Protesters overwhelm 'wall of police'

BEIJING (UPI) — Nearly 200,000 student-led demonstrators for democracy Thursday overwhelmed a human wall of police and troops blocking central Tiananmen Square in the biggest protest since the founding of Communist China. Hours later the government said it would meet with student leaders, a key demand of the protesters, but it was not immediately clear if the students would accept the offer. The demonstrators, defying threats from authorities and a ban on protests, were led by at least 80,000 students, half the city's university population, who circled the northern Beijing in a day-long march. "This is China's people power," said Wang Jianhong, 20, a student at People's University. Thousands of young Chinese massed before the rostrum on the old imperial gate in central Tiananmen Square, chanting "long live democracy" at the spot where Mao Tse-tung pronounced the founding of the communist nation in October 1949.

During the early afternoon, at least 5,000 police and hundreds of unarmed troops were brought in to seal off Tiananmen, the world's largest public square and the site of nearly two weeks of student-led rallies by Chinese demanding greater political freedom. Riot police stood by with shields. A cordon of more than 1,000 uniformed police standing 10-deep was stationed across the main avenue leading to the square and blocks of about 300 elsewhere. But nearly 200,000 students and onlookers overwhelmed their ranks, swarming through police lines and sometimes scuffling. Many chanted with shields. See STUDENTS, Page 12

Landfill developer backs recycle laws

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

A local landfill owner wants consumers to pay more attention to recyclable materials.

Everett Allen, president of the corporation which owns the Jackson County Landfill, said he would support laws mandating consumers to separate recyclable trash from unusable garbage.

"It doesn't make friends," Allen said. "But landfills are becoming scarce."

Illinois House committees are debating 13 Republican bills, which would strengthen recycling programs and place restrictions on landfill dumping. Some of the legislation would ban automobile tires, lead-acid batteries and new print from landfills.

The legislation is an attempt to head off a possible landfill space crisis, Rep. Larry Wennlund, R-New Lenox, said.

In about 10 years the Jackson County Landfill would be full, Allen said. His corporation, Everett Allen Inc., hopes to get permission to develop another landfill adjacent to the present site north of De Soto, he said.

Obtaining permits to build landfills is getting "harder and harder," Allen said. Landfill developers usually get approval from a county board, but local citizen groups have taken developers to court to keep the landfill from opening, Allen said.

"Nobody wants a landfill close to their home," he said. "but we have to put it somewhere."

No new landfill sites in Illinois have been permitted since the early 1980s.

Tom Edmondson, environmental protection specialist at the Environmental Protection Agency office in Marion, said in order to obtain a landfill permit, developers must:

- Get approval from the local county board for the site.
- Apply for the permit with

USG polls extra cost and work

By Miguel Alba
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Government 1989 elections are over, but the final tabulations reveal more than just who won.

The issues at hand are election costs and tabulation accuracy.

In the 1988 elections, students voted 2-1 in favor of having multiple polling places, which established their use in this year's election.

Referendum results this year show continued support for multiple polling places.

The cost of purchasing materials needed for the reusable polling booths is $250, money allotted by the senate for this purpose.

Debbie Hughes, election commissioner, said every possible step was taken to give students an opportunity to vote. In all, seven polling places were set up across campus on election day.

Student government officials estimate students paid over $1,000 for the elections, an amount that has been questioned.

Bill Hall, USG president, expressed concern over a limit on the amount of money the student government should allot to the elections and if the additional money spent would result in more voters.

Hall said he was not sure whether spending additional hundreds of dollars to obtain a relatively small number of votes was worth it.

Hall said students must decide if the expense is worth the return in votes.

The 1988 official election results show 1,833 students voted in the presidential race. This year, unofficial results show 2,158 students voted in that race, an increase of 325 votes.

There are approximately 20,000 undergraduate students at the University.

Jean Paratore, associate vice president for Student Affairs, said only one polling place was used in last year's election with costs amounting to less than $100.

When compared to last year's costs, the additional 325

Pro-life group to picket abortion clinics

By Tracy Sargeant
Staff Writer

An area pro-life group in conjunction with a nationwide pro-life day of rescue, is planning to picket area abortion clinics Saturday.

"We are anticipating a thousand people from all over," Ezra Reams, pro-life rally coordinator, said.

He said he wouldn't reveal exactly where the protesters were going.

"Possibly Granite City, maybe in the St. Louis area," Reams said. "Our goal is to rescue the unborn child from death."

Operation Rescue carries a determined message to all, abortion is the killing of innocent people and that that killing doesn't solve anything, Reams said.

"We're not against the women's right to do what she wants with her body. (We feel) the baby is not part of the woman's body, but a separate person," Reams said.

"By having an abortion, (the woman) is denying the baby to it's constitutional right to life," he said. Reams said that he believes life begins at conception.

The groups intent is to prevent entrance into the clinic by women seeking abortions by blocking the drive-ways and doors.

"There will also be counselors trying to convince women to choose other methods besides abortion, picketers and rescuers, who will risk arrest to prohibit abortions," said Reams.

"(We) hope to close the place down for the day," he said.

Reams added that they do not advocate violence or

Tornado rips through Bangladesh

MANIKGANJ, Bangladesh (UPI) — A tornado that sliced through central Bangladesh killed at least 310 people and left 100,000 homeless, officials said Thursday, and about 200 other people died when a tornado-spawned storm capsized a ferryboat.

The government called in the army to assist rescue work amid the shattered rice and potato farms near Manikganj, 50 miles northwest of Dhaka, where the Wednesday evening tornado sliced an 8-mile-long and 1-mile-wide swath through 20 densely populated settlements.

"I saw the elephant tusk (tornado) come down from the sky and before I could realize, it swept away everything," said Mokbul Hussain, 30, who sustained head injuries and a broken leg.

Hussain lost his wife, mother and two children.

"How I survived, I do not know," he said.

Rescue workers pulled 310 bodies from the ruins of destroyed farms.

"The death toll will surely cross 1,000," estimated rescue supervisor Farooq Ahmad, who said he did not have enough personnel to pull out all the corpses caught amid the tangled debris of thatched

Shuttle Atlantis and crew cleared for today's launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The shuttle Atlantis and its five-member crew were cleared Thursday for launch Friday to dispatch a probe to Venus in a $530 million bid to learn more about the origin and evolution of Earth's solar system. The mission, the first American interplanetary space shot in more than a decade and the first involving the shuttle, was given a formal "go" for launch by Rear Adm. Richard Truly.

Cautious officials reveal no winners in lottery

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Reports circulated Thursday that a Pennsylvania woman and 14 workers from an Ohio brick factory held winning tickets for shares of North America's biggest ever lottery jackpot, but super-cautious officials refused to confirm that even a single winning ticket was sold. Lottery Executive Director James Scroggins said he expected to announce the final value of the monstrous jackpot at 3 p.m.

High rate of leukemia-linked virus is found

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 17 percent of intravenous drug users tested in a New Orleans study were infected with a type of leukemia-linked virus formerly thought to be extremely rare, scientists said Thursday. A team from University of California-Los Angeles and Abbott Laboratories of North Chicago, Ill., stumbled across the surprising findings while examining the effectiveness of a test for HTLV-1.

Eastern to lease 727s to Pan Am for millions

MIAMI (UPI) — Eastern Airlines, unable to keep much of its fleet aloft because of a crippling walkout by mechanics and pilots, said Thursday it will lease 14 Boeing-727 aircraft to Pan American World Airways for $96.6 million. Eastern, which filed for bankruptcy in March, five days after union workers struck the carrier, said it submitted the proposed five-year agreement to the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in New York for approval.

Rockets kill 23 on government anniversary

KABUL, Afghanistan (UPI) — Rebels pounded Kabul with more than 50 rockets Thursday, killing 23 people and wounding 60 in a daylong attack on the 11th anniversary of the 1978 military coup that brought President Najibullah's Soviet-backed party to power, official radio said. The attack came as a rebel leader in Pakistan blamed "extraordinarily cold weather" for delaying the offensives that will topple the "demoralized" Afghan government.

Mudslide, collapse buries miner in Burundi

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Thirty-one bodies have been recovered and a survivor said about 70 more people were missing in the collapse of a rain-weakened, illegal gold mine in Burundi's northeastern Muyinga district, the official Burundi News Agency reported Thursday. "The rescuers are working around the clock to dig out bodies of other prospectors covered with the mass of earth," state-run Radio Burundi said in a separate report.

Worker, students get violent in South Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Thousands of workers and students rioted Thursday in Seoul and other South Korean cities, burning buildings and clashing with police in a fourth day of unrest, news reports said. The state-owned Korea Broadcasting System, or KBS, and the domestic Yonhap News Agency said 13,000 workers from 18 industrial plants in Changwon and the nearby Masan Free Export Zone 185 miles southeast of Seoul began street protests at 2 p.m.

Professor chosen to study in Russia

By Thureasa Livingston
Staff Writer

An associate professor with the University's sociology department has accepted a year-long fellowship with the Russian Research Center at Harvard University. Dmitri N. Shalin will go on sabbatical in August to work on "Gorbachev and the Soviet intelligentsia; the Limits of Public Discourse as a Means of Social Reconstruction," a research project for the center he hopes to develop into a book.

Shalin, who teaches a class on Soviet-American relations at the University, said he was accepted to the center, which accepts about a dozen people annually to its fellowship program, after submitting the project.

A Soviet emigre and a naturalized American citizen, Shalin holds a master's degree in philosophy from the sociology department at Columbia University, a doctorate in sociology from the U.S.S.R. Academy of Science and bachelors' and masters' degrees from Leningrad State University.

Shalin said he is excited about the prospect of contributing something to the Soviet people while at the same time gathering research and teaching materials.

"Much of the work I've done since coming to this country has nothing to do with my ethnic background. Now I feel I'll finally be able to add something to that," he said.

The study will measure the effects of Glasnost and the Gorbachev regime on personal freedom of expression on Soviet intellectuals.

"I want to define the differences between now and times under previous leaders like Brezhnev and Stalin. I want to see what they feel free to say under Glasnost. I want to know if they're satisfied," Shalin said.

Shalin said, although the recent thaw in the political climate has relaxed restraints on Soviet citizens, a fine line still exists that defines what is officially acceptable.

"Soviet intellectuals have always led a dual life. There is the private, where they are free of constraints and are able to say anything they wish, and the public life, where every word is guarded," he said.

"Although the gap between the two has decreased, these two should be closer than what they are."

In addition to his work at the center, Shalin said he will be allowed to do research in the Soviet Union, an opportunity he wouldn't have thought possible until recently.

"I've never been home since I left in 1975 and until last year, I never dreamed it would happen. I will call on colleagues, conduct interviews, maybe give a guest lecture and visit with my mother," he said.

Kennedy adviser sees social reform in 1990s

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

America can expect a sharp change in national mood in the next decade that will resemble the idealism and social reform seen during John F. Kennedy's administration, according to Arthur M. Schlesinger, political adviser, historian and writer.

Schlesinger, who spoke as part of the University Honor Program's Charles D. Tenney Distinguished Lecture Series, said American political philosophies tend to run in 30-year cycles, so the 1990s probably will reflect the views of the 1960s.

During his lecture in Shryock Auditorium Wednesday night, Schlesinger said the change in philosophies occurs because 30 years is the span of a generation. He said reformers solve their problems and because of this they don't have a constituency.

On the other hand, after a while people grow bored with serving their own self-interests and "ask not what their country can do for them, but what they can do for their country," he said, reflecting sentiments expressed in

Schlesinger said America is due for an interest in social change.

Kennedy's inaugural address. Schlesinger focused on the period surrounding the Kennedy administration, but admitted a bias since he was a political adviser for Kennedy.

During the 1950s people wanted rest, Schlesinger said. America had just experienced a hot war with Germany and Japan, a cold war with the Soviet Union and a limited war in Korea. He described Eisenhower's presidency as "the bland leading the bland."

America is due for an interest in social concern, Schlesinger said. We have gone a long way toward civil rights.

Schlesinger said the 30-year cycles of opportunity, not necessity. He said individuals can affect history, and urged the public to build political pressure to put into office those who want to take the opportunities available to them.

Plant and soil science students receive awards

University News Service

Four plant and soil science students at SIU-C have been honored for academic excellence and a "commitment to agriculture."

Winners of awards from the Department of Plant and Soil

Science are seniors Michael R. Hellmer of Coulterville and Eric E. Radliff of Macon and juniors Matthew E. Bunger of Ashton and Darla K. Sievers of Staunton.

Hellmer received a $500 award as top senior in the department. He is a member of the Plant and Soil Science Club and the College of Agriculture's student recruiting organization, the Agassadors.

Radliff, received a special certificate as one of the top seniors. He is a member of Phi Kappa Phi honorary society, the Golden Key honor society, Alpha Zeta and the Plant and Soil Science Club.

Bunger received the $500 prize as top junior in the department. He is a member of the Plant and Soil Science Club and is a lifeguard in SIU-C's intramural swimming program. He is a transfer student from Kishwaukee College.

Alternatives remain for football program

ANTHROPOLOGY PROFESSOR Jerome Handler's proposition to ax football has unleashed a storm of criticism on an unwary football program. His argument is strong, and he is quickly gaining support from faculty.

Student opinion is difficult to gauge. While Tim Hildebrand, Undergraduate Student Government president-elect, stands against the proposal to do away with football, the Graduate and Professional Student Council — though it decided not to take a stand in its Wednesday meeting — seems to be leaning Handler's way.

The tide seems to be rising for Handler's proposition, but the battle is yet to be joined. University President John C. Guyon, has not commented, and Athletic Director Jim Hart simply belittles the proposal. Like the ostrich that believes it can't be seen because it can't see anything, Jim Hart has stuck his head in the sand and pulls it out only to say there is more to cutting football than money.

WELL, THIS IS a message to Guyon and Hart: The issue is not going away because a half-a-million dollars a year spent on a floundering football program is unacceptable. Guyon should look at football, and decide whether allowing this Goliath to gobble up as much of the University's money and resources each year fits in with the "mission" of the University, as he is fond of saying.

But when Guyon and Hart examine the alternatives they should not constrain themselves with the either/or solution that has been voiced so far. Up to now the question has been cast in the form: Should it stay or should it go? But there are other options available that the University should research in an intelligent and neutral manner so that an informed decision can be made as to the fate of football.

FOREMOST AMONG these options is a drop from the 1-AA level to a division II or Division III. Arguments against this move include the possibility that a drop to division II would result in an increase in travel expenses because of the scarcity of Division II schools, and that the level of competition at Division III would be so low that few would come to the games.

On the other hand, a move down in divisions would almost certainly save money in scholarship and salary expenditures because lower divisions allow fewer scholarships, and the coaching staff could be reduced in accordance with the lower level of competition.

Another factor that should be considered before dismissing the football program outright is its influence on the athletic department's fund raising. The SIU-C Foundation this year probably will double the income designated for the athletic program over that of any prior 12 month period. While it is impossible to say how much dismantling the football program would hurt fund raising, its impact would almost certainly be negative.

These are points that the administration can and should look into. It is a far more productive step than simply pretending the issue doesn't exist.

Quotable Quotes

"I guess his name was not worth as much as they (the University) thought it would be." — Laura Duffy, sophomore field hockey player, referring to the University's promoting of Athletic Director Jim Hart as an effective fundraiser before his appointment.

"Cut Anthro Save Football!" — A sign taped to a walkway over Route 51 North referring to anthropology professor Jerome Handler's proposition to eliminate the football program.

Academics suffering neglect; the football program should go

Our new "Education President" thinks Japan attacked Pearl Harbor on Sept. 7, 1941. Our state governor originates a loan program to major political backers for luxury hotels in the amount of $47 million, while simultaneously butchering state monies to education.

Students of Illinois universities have incurred huge tuition increases over the last two years. Illinois universities are being cut to pieces by administrations forced to re-examine their priorities.

This re-examination has, in some cases, come down to a contest of athletic programs versus academic programs. If something has to be eliminated in institutions of higher education, it seems only logical that academics would take a higher priority than athletics.

Almost no academic department... SIU has failed to feel the devastating effects of the budget crunch. Maintenance contracts at the then School of Technical Careers Secretarial and Office Specialties program were abolished in 1988, leaving few properly functioning pieces of equipment.

Too many computers at Faner Lab are left in a state of disrepair for too long, not to mention the problem of overcrowding.

Morris Library's position as a research library has dropped significantly in the past years because necessary monies are not available to it.

With these facts in mind, I support Dr. Jerome Handler's proposal to eliminate an athletic program that has lost half a million dollars annually in the past seven years.

Dr. Handler's sound reasoning involves a combination of several major considerations. Among his arguments is the following fact: "... Among 104 research libraries in the United States and Canada, Morris Library now ranks 71st in five major categories..."

These numbers are interesting because, among other things, if Morris Library were in a class with its colleagues with a grading scale based on a curve, it would not receive a passing grade in these major categories.

Why is Morris Library suffering? A library administrator stated that the most pressing problem is the rising cost of purchasing and restoring serials. He also said that although budgets have grown, they have not kept pace with the exponential growth of the size and numbers of journals.

Anyone who has ever written a paper, as every college student must, knows the importance of an extensive periodicals section.

Serials are a vital part of doing research. "A university is obliged to maintain its libraries at the levels its (researchers) require because the library is included among the indirect costs of sponsored research for which the granting agencies reimburse the university," according to "Physics Today."

When Morris Library was faced with having to cut 1,000 journals from its periodicals list in the fall of 1988, the University came up with $200,000 to prevent this from happening.

This means an additional $200,000 a year is now required at Morris Library just to maintain the status quo. Remember, $241,000 was the figure the football program's salaries paid annually. Almost one fourth of this is to pay for the salary for the football coach alone.

Athletics Director Jim Hart stated in the DE, "Who said athletics was a money-maker? That is not the reason for being there. It is not our primary purpose."

True. Existence of departments at universities should not be based on the criteria of whether or not they are money-makers. But to return to Jim Hart's reference to the reason for being here, let us ask ourselves: What are we doing here? Just what is our "primary purpose?"

If the answer is to get a good education, current economic conditions may force us to eliminate peripheral programs which are not essential to a good education.

There are sensible ways of reining in the rising costs of higher education. I am convinced Dr. Handler's proposal to eliminate football is one of them. — Rebecca Davis, pre-major.

Hart is hypocritical on football issue

Dear Mr. Hart,
Ever since you were hired last year, you have been nothing but a hypocrite. In our pre-season field hockey meeting you stood before us like a politician on the campaign trail and said you had no intention of cutting field hockey.

You even showed up at all of our games giving us a false sense of security. I guess we were just naive, but I assume most athletes believe what their athletic directors tell them.

However, not only were field hockey and gymnastics cut, but the reasons given were financial. Then in the April 24 DE you defend the football program by saying, "All that is being considered is numbers. There are people involved here. You could make a case out of the numbers, but it is not just a numbers game. It involves people."

Well excuse me Jim, but aren't the field hockey and gymnastics members people? You may see us as only minor sports, but they are major sports to the players who unselfishly gave up their time and effort to represent the school they are suppose to be proud of.

Why is it that you consider the football players feelings, and not how we felt when we had to read in the paper that our sports were to be cut?

Furthermore, why is it that any sport — field hockey, gymnastics or possibly football — have to be cut? After all, Mr. Hart, what were you hired to do anyway? — Laura A. Duffy and Cathy L. Dahlquist, sophomores, and members of SIU-C's former field hockey team.

They all go for the medal, the pride

Organization of all events key to Special Olympics' victories

By Phyllis Coon
Features Editor

Completed registration and medical forms overflow from boxes in the office of the area Special Olympics director.

The more important of Sara Norris' paper stacks are shuffled on her desk in the Life Community Center at 2500 Sunset Drive. She has been working on heat sheets for the track and field competition.

"It's important to divide the heats by age, gender and scores in practice so you don't have a high ability athlete who can run the 50-yard dash in eight seconds running against someone who takes 26 seconds," Norris, who has been directing the area games for three years, said.

When Norris started as director there were about 370 participants. This year the number participating has grown to 550, she said.

"Participation is growing because of the knowledge and the positive results of the competition," Norris said. "Special Olympics also has been receiving more national attention. Sports Illustrated has written articles about it, and Wide World of Sports has been covering it."

Media attention isn't the only reason for the growth, she said.

"Everyone is a winner that day," Norris said. "Even the ones who don't compete are excited about it, and they leave wanting to be involved."

This was the first year the area Special Olympics received corporate sponsorship, she said. Scott Lad Foods of Eldorado donated food and souvenirs.

"We are very excited about the sponsor because we have tried and tried to find someone," Norris said. "In Southern Illinois we are not as accessible to corporate sponsorship."

While competing could be the main focus of many of the athletes, Norris has a different vision of the day's goal.

"The whole focus isn't you win, you win or compete, compete, compete," Norris said. "They remember the competition, but it's also a fun day."

Not only is a lot of effort put out by the coordinators and volunteers, but by the athletes themselves, she said.

"They train like anybody else," Norris said. "Coaches take them out and they have a time for training each day. They get really excited about the competition."

As the track and field event draws closer, she said she hears stories about the athletes' dedication.

One athlete with the Jackson Community Workshop, Murphysboro, didn't want to pick up a heavy box of trash because he didn't want to hurt his back and not be able to compete, she said.

"You hear all the stories about how long and hard they prepare," Norris said. "It makes all the paperwork and running around worth it."

Olympians compete for more than winning

By Phyllis Coon
Features Editor

A final call for athletes in the 800-meter race walk booms through McAndrew Stadium at about 1 p.m. Thursday at the area track and field competition for Special Olympics.

Four athletes take their marks on the track where the temperature is about 90 degrees.

At the sound of the gun Ricky Barringer walks in hopes of realizing a 15-year-old dream of winning his first gold medal.

"I want to win a gold for myself," Barringer, of the Jackson Community Workshop in Murphysboro, said. "I also want a chance to go to Normal."

Illinois State University, in Normal, is where the state competition is held in June. About 170 athletes who win gold medals in the area games will compete in the state competition.

Barringer said he has one gold medal that he won several years ago in a run, dribble and shoot competition.

Prof gives emotional support to cancer-stricken

By Dwayne Thompson
Student Writer

After surviving Hodgkin's Disease, Micheal Grey, a University professor, is aware of the isolation, frustration and loss of dignity many cancer patients experience while being treated.

Because of the experience, he is now a volunteer for the American Cancer Society and involved in its April fund-raising campaign. He said people tend to get involved in the American Cancer Society only when they, or someone they love, are confronted with cancer.

"The main intensity, when I had cancer, was that there was no one I could talk to that I could relate to," Grey said.

Grey, professor in the College of Technical Careers, joined CANSurmont, a program that unites cancer survivors with victims to discuss the effects of cancer in their lives.

"I would not let another person suffer the emotional side-effects of cancer alone," he said.

As a volunteer, Grey helps answer the questions that arise when a patient is diagnosed. He visits the families of those who have cancer and helps them to vent their frustrations that a family experiences.

Grey also is aware of the need for fund raising. He will be among the first survivors of cancer to walk door to door for the American Cancer Society's 1989 Cancer Crusade.

Adopting a sound diet will be the focus of this annual education and fund-raising campaign, which took place throughout this month. April is celebrated annually nationwide as Cancer Control Month.

According to statistics released by the American Cancer Society, 60 percent of all cancers can be prevented by making simple changes in daily habits.

Dr. O. Ballesteros, president of the society's Jackson County unit, said, "In the past, the crusade has stressed the various tests and procedures that detect cancer in its early stages."

"The purpose of this year's

"I would not let another person suffer the emotional side-effects of cancer alone."

crusade is to inform as many people as possible in Jackson County about cancer prevention, in addition to early detection, treatment, research and education programs," Ballesteros said.

During the crusade, more than 300 volunteers distributed the leaflets, "Eat Right," to Jackson County residents.

Toni Intraiva, volunteer coordinator for Carbondale, said volunteers were divided into 34 areas of the city, with each area containing five to 10 helpers and a captain.

"So many of those who are captains have lost someone they know to cancer, so they want very much to help," Intraiva said.

In addition to distributing the leaflets, volunteers solicited donations. The goal for the county crusade is $405,300, with the funds going toward cancer research.

Grey said "People should donate in advance and not until they are confronted with the disease."

Grey relates his experiences not only as a survivor, but as a survivor who had little hope.

He said he was misdiagnosed at the beginning of his illness, and told he had only months to live. It was during this time he felt the emotional side-effects of cancer.

Family and friends felt the brunt of confronting Grey while he was undergoing chemotherapy, which results in mood swings and depression.

Grey said his parents, who he moved in with during the illness, offered the strongest support. "My mother would not accept (the cancer)," he said.

The cancer got to the point of degradation when the day came that his mother was tying his shoes and getting him water to save his energy, Grey said. "It drew our family together," he said.

Many of Grey's social relationships dissolved or were damaged, he said. "The big problem that many of the patients have is they notice that many of their friends and family members shy away because they don't know how to act. He said the answer is 'just like before.'"

At the time of his illness, Grey had secured funeral arrangements. Now, he says, his life with God is slightly different.

"Seven months ago, I became involved in the church and accepted Jesus Christ," he said. "When I counsel patients I ask them where they are in their faith. Sometimes I pray with the patient."

Grey said his life is better now than it's ever been. All of his energy comes from the people he has helped through the American Cancer Society, he said.

"My role is definitely defined now," he said.

Sigma Pi members will continue to shake, rattle and roll for Multiple Sclerosis at the Carboard Boat Regatta and at the University Mall Saturday.

Sigma Pi members will shake and rattle cans for donations for the Multiple Sclerosis Society. Last weekend, the members raised about $400 to $500, John Coomes, chapter vice president, said.

"The totals aren't in. We dropped it off at the bank, and they're going to count it for us. It was mostly change, so it will take a while," Coomes said.

Multiple Sclerosis is the charity chosen by the national Sigma Pi, he said.

The chapter's goal is to raise $3,000. Last year, the local chapter raised about $1,000, Coomes said.

After all the money is collected, 60 percent will go to the Multiple Sclerosis Society regional office in St. Louis and the rest will go to the national office in New York.

Multiple Sclerosis is a neurological condition that attacks the central nervous system.

Panel to discuss health care

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

Citizens concerned about retirement and health care benefits will have a chance to air their views at a symposium sponsored by the Carbondale branch of the Illinois Education Association.

The lack of funding by the state for retired University employees and the recent demise of the CarleCare Health Maintenance Organization, led the IEA to set up the symposium, Jim Sullivan, vice president of the

IEA said

The CarleCare ended its service to Southern Illinois because of rising costs; therefore, the University had to cover its employees with the Quality Health Care plan on July 1.

The symposium will be 3 to 5 p.m. Wednesday in Lawson Hall, Room 131.

According to a recent survey by the National Education Association, the University ranked close to the bottom for quality health care and retirement benefits for its employees, Sullivan said.

During a local executive board meeting of the IEA, a group of University officials were selected to serve on the panel, Sullivan said.

Members of the panel include: Arnold Auerbach, emeritus college director; James Beedie, participant services director for the state university retirement system; and Larry Johnson, employee of the personnel office.

David Kenney, past president of the SIU annuitants association, will serve as a moderator.

Group places second in contest

By Megan Hauck
Staff Writer

The University's American Advertising Federation chapter won second place at a regional competition last week in Chicago.

The competition required clubs from 15 regions throughout the United States to design an advertising and marketing scheme for a Kellogg product. Entrants were required to submit a book outlining their plans, and present the book at a conference in Chicago.

SIU-C entered in the sixth district with 20 other schools, including University of Illinois, Michigan State, Indiana University, De Paul, Purdue and Ball State, which took first place.

"Ball State must have beaten us on the book," Johan Yssel, adviser for AAF, said, "because nobody beat us in the presentation."

Five AAF members presented the group's proposal at 8:30 a.m., the first of several presentations that lasted until 4 p.m.

"The presentation was flawless — it was immaculate," Yssel said. "The organizer (of the conference) said the winner will have to beat SIU."

"We were the only team without notes. They set the standard all the way," he said.

Members conducted the presentations, complete with music and visual materials.

Yssel said about 60 percent of the 58-member club contributed to the advertising campaign.

Willard D. Klimstra, distinguished University professor emeritus of zoology, will be honored today by Blackburn College in Carlinville.

Klimstra, 67, will receive Blackburn's newly established leadership citation in recognition of his distinguished professional career.

A graduate of Blackburn, Klimstra earned an associate degree from the school before it became a four-year college. He finished his undergraduate work at Maryville College in Tennessee and went on to earn master's and doctoral degrees from Iowa State University.

"Blackburn is special to me," he said. "I was a naive, little country boy with no money—the first in my family to go to college. In fact, of the six of us, I was only the second who went beyond grade school and high school."

Blackburn's "self-help" financial aid program gave Klimstra "two years of education for an outlay of about $225," Klimstra said.

Klimstra, who joined the

Willard D. Klimstra

SIU-C faculty in 1949, is best known as founder and director of the University's Cooperative Wildlife Research Laboratory.

Although he retired in 1987, Klimstra has continued to work on protection plans for Florida's endangered Key deer and on land reclamation projects for coal mine sites.

Klimstra won two national conservation awards last year.

Research professor in philosophy to be honored

University News Service

Paul A. Schilpp, distinguished University research professor of philosophy and founder of the internationally acclaimed "Library of Living Philosophers" series, will be honored today at the American Philosophical Association's annual meeting in Chicago.

The occasion marks the 50th anniversary of the series' first volume, published in 1939, which examined the philosophy of John Dewey.

"I am pleased that my work of 'Library of Living Philosophers' has been recognized by my colleagues," Schilpp said.

Schilpp, who is a former president of the American Philosophers Association's central division, created the "Living Philosophers" series in 1938 while teaching at Northwestern University, bringing it to SIU-C when he joined the faculty in 1965.

The series allows well-known living philosophers a chance to respond to their disciples and critics, a concept never before used in any field of study.

Schilpp edited the series until 1981 and was succeeded by Lewis E. Hahn, retired research professor of philosophy at SIU-C.

The series' 13 volumes have so far examined the ideas of such thinkers as Bertrand Russell, Albert Einstein, Jean-Paul Satre and Alfred North Whitehead. The next volume, on Finnish philosopher Georg

Von Wright, is expected to be published next year.

Despite some health problems and failing eyesight, Schilpp, who turned 92 in February, continues to write and lecture.

He has completed a chapter for the book, "Courage to Grow Old," soon to be published by Ballantine Books. He also is working on his autobiography. Other books include "Kant's Pre-Critical Ethics," "The Quest for Religious Realism" and "The Crisis of Science and Education."

Born in Dillenburg, Germany to a Methodist minister, Schilpp came to America at 16 to enter Baldwin Wallace College in Berea, Ohio. He earned a bachelor's degree at Garrett Theological Seminary, a master's degree at Northwestern and a doctorate at Stanford. He has received honorary doctorates from four universities, including one from SIU-C in 1982.

McLeod Theater stages another gem

By Wayne Wallace
Entertainment Editor

Stay at this University long enough and you'll have the opportunity to experience nearly every type of play imaginable, from Aristotelian tragedies to Neil Simon comedies to Samuel Beckett's "theater of the absurd."

The Department of Theater could probably make a lot of easy money staging popular comedies and musicals in McLeod Theater, its main forum, but instead the 1988-89 season has offered us "Picnic," an American social statement, "She Stoops to Conquer," an 18th century costume comedy, and "Gypsy Baron," a light opera.

The theater department should be applauded not only for posing these challenges to its actors, directors and craftspersons, but for providing the community with such entertaining opportunities to witness a living history of the theater.

McLeod's latest marvel fittingly concludes the '88-89 season.

Anton Chekhov's "The Three Sisters" captures a dying era, the final years of the aristocracy in turn-of-the-century Russia.

THE PROMINENT Prozorov sisters become ghost-like as they watch their fragile world come tumbling down around them, crushing all hopes for happiness in the last days before the revolution.

The haunting image of their delicate, and coldly obsolete, lifestyle is accentuated by scene designer Jim Medved's tall, white pillars of drapes, especially breathtaking the very moment the lights come up on Act One.

Medved's symmetrical set, strewn with white curtains against a melancholy blue backdrop, is expressionistic in that the sisters cling desperately to the home of their deceased parents as the only hope for Eden, a heavenly refuge from the ever-changing world outside.

Donna Dean's period costumes are also a feast for the eye, noteworthy for Dean's range from the elegant dresses of the beautiful sisters to the crisp military uniforms of the six Russian soldiers.

Director Lynne Innerst breathes humor, even warmth into these very depressing surroundings, without destroying Chekhov's mournful atmosphere.

INNERST'S ATTENTION to detail is evident in her handling of the ensemble cast. She makes background character business a treat to watch.

Background actors, most noticeably the soldiers who come to court youngest sister Irina (Michele DiMaso), don't merely sit, look bored and listen, but rather remain active and in-character.

Often, it is tempting to forget the present speaker and instead focus on some character in the background who is making, or attempting to make, eye contact with some member of the opposite sex.

Thanks to a cast that stays busy onstage, Innerst consistently keeps a level of action going on beneath the verbal progression of the plot dialogue.

The top-notch cast produces not one flawed performance.

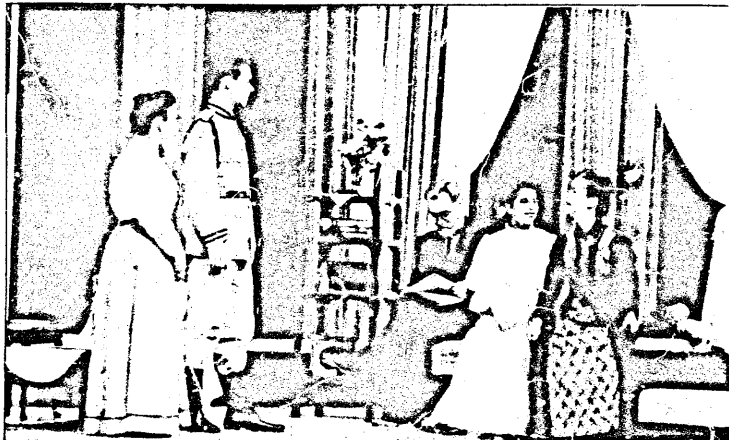

Barbara Wruck, who played a sexually-frustrated school marm in last semester's "Picnic," almost gives a command performance here as mysterious sister Masha, the love-starved wife of a stodgy professor, enowued with a gallant weakness by actor Scott West.

WRUCK KEEPS Masha's passions restrained somewhat, but the actress prevails in several delightfully wicked scenes, such as Act Three where she flirts with army colonel Verzhinin (Brian Gant) right in front of her husband! This is a wonderfully underplayed scene, as opposed to their exciting primal encounter in the second act.

Gant is quite amiable as the optimistic soldier-philosopher and, like Wruck and the rest of the actors, keeps emotions in check to honor the somber Chekhov proceedings.

Despite the play's numerous relationships, the strongest love in "Three Sisters" is exchanged by the sisters themselves, namely Masha and Irina, who are touchingly united in a special bond by Wruck and DiMaso.

support as the overworked and overlook d oldest sister, who loses control of her household to Natasha (Leah Ellison), her sister-in-law and the play's villainess.

IF ELLISON'S character were to die at the end of the play, the audience would surely cheer. That's how nasty Ellison gets.

The play's most moving performance comes from Mark Mendelsohn as the sisters' only brother and Natasha's pathetic husband. Mendelsohn's performance is so well-controlled and underplayed that he evokes heart-breaking pathos as the milquetoast who's pampered by his sisters.

Danny Stark hands in the play's funniest performance as the drunken doctor. His argument with the fiery Solony (Troy Skeeters) over the definition of "shallot" is one of the play's comic highlights.

Much of the humor in "Three Sisters" comes from an array of talented comic relief players, such as Jim Westerland's doddering old caretaker, Lynne Guido's addebrained nanny and Chris Mitchell's acrobatic army lieutenant.

Farm drought relief concert nets $1,000 for area farmers

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

A check for $1,000 from the proceeds of the drought relief concert has been presented to the co-founder and co-director of the Farm Resource Center.

Tom Corry, concert coordinator, said the $1,000 came from donations taken at the door and more money is on the way from the sale of a compilation tape, featuring the bands that played at the concert.

The tapes are on sale at local record shops for $5. An extra $1,500 is expected from the tapes, and more tapes could be produced, Corry said.

Roger W. Hannan, co-founder and co-director of the center, said the money received from the April 7 concert will be used as leverage for more state funding. Hannan received the check at a press conference Wednesday.

"We can now go to the state government and say you've cut our funds, but here's an indication that the public supports our service," Hannan said.

"We'll use this as kind of a crowbar to open up funding. Students at SIU are showing some fantastic values," he said.

The primary activity of the center is to give aggressive outreach counseling to farm families experiencing stress, Hannan said.

"With the drought I felt it would be a good way to help the farmers and get exposure for Carbondale bands. I'll try to do my best to see that SPC (Student Programming Council) carries this on in future years," he said.

The bands that participated in the concert are the Salomantics, Stone Face, the Reform, October's Child, Fuse Box, From Hell and the Jungle Dogs.

Banner contest slated for cardboard regatta

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

The Great Cardboard Boat Regatta is almost here and not only will you have a chance to be seen on MTV, but you could win a prize for the biggest and best MTV banner.

Jose Villanueva, one of the originators of the idea, said prizes will be given away for the biggest and the most creative banner in the crowd. The prizes are being sponsored through Alpha Epsilon Rho, a radio and television organization.

Local businesses will donate the prizes. Jeremiah's will give away a dinner for two, the Bike Surgeon will provide limo service to the dinner, Record Bar is giving away three albums and J C Penney will donate a $50 gift certificate, according to Dan Kenny, another originator of the idea.

Michael Starr, lecturer in radio-television who has been involved from the beginning, said that MTV may do an extended program on the Regatta next year if this year's taping goes well.

"I'd like to encourage everyone to come out because it could be a good deal for us next year," he said.

The Regatta is being taped by Chris Yerke, a 1987 SIU-C graduate. Yerke owns two video production businesses in Carbondale.

"Basically, MTV called me up. I think they got my name from a radio-television graduate student," Yerke said.

In his businesses, Time-Space Illusions and Christopher Yerke Productions, he produces educational tapes for SIU and sells tapes to CNN or CBS as a stringer.

Starr and Yerke will work together in taping the Regatta. He said that after they tape the event the footage will be sent to New York (MTV) to be edited.

The finished product will be shown on the program "School's Out" on May 21 along with footage of other events at other universities, Yerke said.

Featured in the tape will be an interview with Richard Archer, originator of the regatta, interviews with people in the crowd, footage of the races and people working on boats the night before, Yerke said.

Earthquake shakes 5 states

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A moderate earthquake along the infamous New Madrid fault made downtown skyscrapers vibrate "like tuning forks" and shook the ground in five states Thursday, panicking residents but injuring no one, officials said.

The earthquake, which hit at 11:48 a.m. with a magnitude of 4.7 on the Richter scale, was centered about 10 miles northeast of Blytheville, Ark., and felt 300 miles away in Paducah, Ky., the U.S. Geological Survey reported.

Dishes broke on kitchen shelves and pictures fell from walls as the earthquake's shock wave rolled through Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri, Kentucky and Illinois, but no more serious damage was reported, officials said.

The quake rattled Caruthersville, Mo., 20 miles northeast of Blytheville, while the police department softball team was practicing.

"The quake shook the whole town," detective Mike Malone said. "We felt the field shake, and I knew my wife would be going crazy. She hates things like this. When I got home, she said the dishes on the shelves shook. The pictures on the walls were hanging crooked at a right hit."

Police were swamped with hundreds of phone calls from worried residents who live along the New Madrid fault where one of North America's greatest tremblers struck 173 years ago.

The 1811 earthquake is said to have made the Mississippi River flow backwards for three days, drowning dozens of people and creating Reelfoot Lake in Tennessee. Scientists have warned there is a 90 percent chance of another devastating earthquake within the next 50 years somewhere along the 200-mile-long fault.

In Memphis, people phoned the Center for Earthquake Research and Information at Memphis State University to report that downtown buildings swayed during the 10 seconds the quake was felt.

"There were some very low frequency waves that actually caused those tall buildings to shake like tuning forks. There have been a hundred people who have called here," said Jim Dorman, the center's associate director.

The needle jumped off the page on the seismograph at the Center of Earthquake Studies at Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau 90 miles north of Blytheville.

"We were not able to read it because we were so close," said David Stuart, the center's director. "Reports have come in that glassware was broken, photos knocked off of walls and books fell from shelves."

"thank you, thank you," as they shoved past.

Long lines of students joined hands and marched past the nearby Ministry of Public Security, guarded by five-deep ranks of police inside its gate. As several hundred officers filed back toward the building, the protesters stopped to applaud the police. Many of the officers broke into relieved smiles.

There were no injuries reported in the 18-hour demonstration that in sheer numbers surpassed even the anti-government protests of the 1960s Cultural Revolution. It was the biggest demonstration since Communist China was founded in 1949 and came on the 11th day of student-led demonstrations for greater political freedom.

The unrest began after April 15 death of liberal former Communist Party chief Hu Yaobang, who students proclaimed a symbol of political reform, and has blossomed into the stiffest challenge to the communist government in its 40-year history.

houses, trees and flimsy dwellings.

"It is like a scene after a bloody war," he said, weeping. "Bodies are littering the area. This is the curse of God."

The disaster occurred on the day President Mohammad Hussain Ershad called for the public to pray for an end to the drought that has wilted crops and caused epidemics that have killed at least 270 people and left some 10,000 others debilitated.

Ahmad said in the wake of the tornado, workers had recovered 275 bodies from Shaturia village, while officials reported 35 corpses had been found in three other areas. However, there were indications the death toll could be much higher.

He said Shaturia's 700-shop market was wiped off the map and that 100-mph winds had also caused the collapse of three warehouses being used by the government to distribute food to inhabitants of the drought area.

An estimated 2,000 people were sleeping inside the large buildings made of concrete and iron sheets, and as there were no signs of life, they may have all been crushed to death, he said.

SPECIAL, from Page 5

The race walk is 400 meters, which is two laps around the track.

During the first fourth of the race David Bloodworth, of R.A.V.E. Inc., has a strong 10-pace lead. But at the half-way mark Barringer passes Bloodworth.

At five minutes and 35 seconds on the clock Barringer wins his gold medal.

"I won!" Barringer yells. "I can't believe it! This is great!"

Barringer is one of 41 athletes that the Jackson Community Workshop brought to the Special Olympics.

■ If the application for the site is approved, a development permit must be applied for with the IEPA.

■ After development is complete, a operational permit must be applied for and approved by the IEPA.

Other proposals in the legislative package would call for the development of an official state recycling emblem to help consumers identify recyclable material, a requirement for counties with less than 100,000 residents to form solid waste management plans and the creation of product labels describing safe disposal instructions for hazardous household products.

votes cost students about $3 per vote.

However, Paratore said the issue was based on more than dollars and cents. She said the $1,000 plus election cost was acceptable considering that much was done to provide students with every opportunity to vote.

In a memo to Hughes, Paratore wrote, "No one can say that they just couldn't get by a polling place. The opportunity to vote was afforded to everyone. It is then up to the students to decide whether or not to take advantage of that opportunity."

"The fact that voter turn-out was still not fantastic given the number of students on this campus was, I believe, a result of negative publicity which plagued student government as a result of their internal problems last fall and the simple fact that voter turn-out in any election is rarely overwhelming."

Paratore wrote the potential problem of voter fraud with multiple voting places was practically eliminated and she commended Hughes for her work.

Using a two envelope system in the elections, ballots were sealed in the first envelope then the envelope was placed inside the second envelope that was marked with a name and other pertinent data. After a ballot had been counted, no other ballots with the same name would be admitted.

Hughes said the only way to cut the election budget is to cut advertising.

Tim Hildebrand, USG president-elect, said it could be a matter of time before voter count rises using multiple polling places.

"Maybe people have to get accustomed to them," Hildebrand said. "It could take time before the count rises."

Though no voter fraud is suspected, the issue of accuracy comes quickly to mind in an election where 2,000 plus votes were counted by hand.

Hughes said the strategy involved in the presidential counting was "100 percent accurate, without a shadow of a doubt."

Hughes said no one has, so far, questioned the results.

Hughes said votes would be counted as invalid if they were not complete or could not be read, adding that partially completed ballots were counted.

The commission members separated presidential votes by stacks of 50 and then counted the results. If the number of votes attributed to candidates did not match with the stack number, a recount was made, Hughes said.

However, this process was not followed while counting the senatorial and referendum ballots, Hughes said, adding that there was little room for error in those counts.

Referendum and senatorial results were determined by simply hand tallying, Hughes said.

She said if anyone wanted a recount, it would be done following constitutional guidelines.

Hughes said that although this system was slow, it provided a voting security. She said she did not know of any other reliable method.

Hughes said she would not trust a computer to count votes because many people on this campus are knowledgeable about computers and could tamper with the results.

Paratore said a computer was once used to input ballot results, but problems with the program made the practice unreliable.

"This is a passive protest. We don't resist arrest, and there is no pressure from other members to join in the group, it's totally voluntary," said Chris Vincent, freshman in psychology.

"We want to put our bodies between the abortionists and their intended victims. We want to stop the killing," said

Reams.

"We feel that human life is sacred," Vincent said.

She said that statistics show that one out of every five women who comes across a protest like this cancels her appointment and at least one doesn't have the abortion.

A similar protest occurred last January at the Hope Clinic in Granite City.

Reams speculated that with all the confusion and protesters about 30 abortions were prevented.

"Out of sixty scheduled abortions, (Hope Clinic) admitted to doing thirty," Reams said. "Whether or not they came back later can't be determined," he said.

"But we feel that we did turn away some women," he said.

Fred, always striving to be contemporary, read that a new trendy honkytonk in the area has instituted a dress code. This new bar believes that gym shoes, faded jeans, t-shirts and caps are detrimental to their ambiance.

Well heck! Fred's can't ban sneakers or we'll have to turn away David Letterman and Sybil Shepard when they come out to the barn. If we ban t-shirts, how can we sell our inventory of 127 dancing pig shirts. In Chicago it might be inappropriate to wear Durkey Fence Post or DEKALB feed but since when did Carbondale move to the 41st latitude, and Fred absolutely refuses to wear anything but faded blue jeans to the "grocery store".

So here it is...

MURDALE HOMES. CARBONDALE, west of campus, one-half mile west of Murdale Shopping Center, at Old Route 13 West (West Murphyboro Road) and North Tower Road. Very convenient location, easy access, about two miles, about six minutes to campus or downtown, and to food stores, laundromats, service stations, and SU Airport, no railroad or heavy traffic. City fire and police protection, natural gas heat, grassy 50 foot lots, shade trees, hard-surface parking, quiet and private. Each home is 12x52 feet, with two bedrooms approximately the same size as one with large bath in between, with 30 gallon water heater (house size), and cablevision. Each has good insulation on permanent loam, anchored with steel cables, good underpinning (skirting) and separate treated wood walking storage building 8x10 feet. Fully finished construction. Concrete masonry, remove snow from city sidewalks, pay for normal refuse removal and security lights. Well maintained, very competitive rates. Summer only $170 per month. Fall and Spring only $240 per month, two persons. Office at 711 South Poplar Street (directly north of Morris library), call 457-7352 or 529-5777.

because it doesn't make money on its presentations. It's a learning experience for the actors.

In terms of sheer numbers, football draws more than basketball per game. No one seems to be advocating cutting the game that everyone in Southern Illinois is crazy about.

Basketball brings in more money and even has a chance for paying for itself, but the purpose of college athletics is not to make money. If the reason we support athletics is to make money, then does the University support exploiting its athletes? Exploitation of athletes isn't good advertising for this institution of higher education.

Football and basketball provide tremendous public relations for the University. Athletics Director Jim Hart has been advertising for the University since the day he was drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals.

And now Hart is drafting people to support not only the football program that gave him his opportunity in life, but has the potential to give student-athletes down the road the same opportunities. Not in the sense that SIU-C is going to start sending mass quantities of football stars to the professional ranks, but the other opportunities that stem from playing Saluki football.

Don't put a price on the opportunities the sport of football can give its athletes and the entertainment it can give the fans that support it.

Money is lost on other sports and academic programs, but no one is making an issue about all these other losers. Put the money issue aside. Education is what the University is all about. The athletics department is just playing its role.

BURDEN, from Page 24

Division III, even if it did well. People will shake their heads when they look at a once I-A team who, through their inability to compete, has been vanquished to a lower echelon of competition.

Athletics Director Jim Hart, as well as a host of sources who feel football should not be dropped, have argued the economic reasons set forth by an anthropology professor Jerome Handler are not the only consideration.

But the truth is, the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee invalidated this argument when they voted to eliminate gymnastics and field hockey last December.

At that time, the chief reason the two sports were cut was economics. Now, with football, the argument is that there are people involved, not just numbers. As several field hockey players and gymnasts have pointed out, it would seem the athletics department does not see them as people.

Many of the arguments forwarded by those wanting to eliminate Saluki football have been distorted into anti-football stands. They are not.

The arguments given are directed toward football at this University and only that. They have been brought forward not because people don't like football, but because they don't like what football is doing economically to SIU-C.

In the best interests of the University and its surrounding community, the decision that would work the best in the long run, would be to cut Saluki football.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Chicago Simeon basketball star Dion Thomas next week will officially sign a national letter of intent to attend the University of Illinois, a published report said Thursday.

The Champaign-Urbana News Gazette reported the 6-foot-9 Thomas turned down offers to attend Iowa and Minnesota in favor of Illinois.

Thomas is expected to announce his decision Monday.

Softball team hitting the road for pair of league opponents

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

The Saluki softball team is on the road this weekend against Gateway Conference contenders Drake and Northern Iowa.

The Saluki women, now 18-15 overall and 5-5 in the Gateway, will battle Drake in a doubleheader at 3 p.m. today in Des Moines, Iowa. On Saturday the team will take on Northern Iowa in a doubleheader at noon in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

The Salukis, who have lost four of their last five games, have eight Gateway Conference games to play before the conference tournament, which begins May 11.

Northern Iowa (24-21) swept Drake in a doubleheader last Wednesday after a fine pitching performance from Krista Fostbinder (12-11, 1.22 ERA) and Sarah O'Byrne (11-9, 1.42 ERA).

Northern Iowa, who has the most experienced pitching staff in the Gateway in Fostbinder and O'Byrne, has won its last eight games.

The Panthers will be hampered this weekend because of the loss of their lead-off hitter Melissa Schafer, who is out with a virus. Schafer, who has a .304 hitting average, is second to two-year all-Gateway teammate Chris Ehler.

The Salukis will be led this weekend by last week's Gateway player Shelly Gibbs. Gibbs batted .556, with 10 hits, six runs scored, six RBIs, one double and two home runs in six games last week.

LeFevre's squad faces MVC teams one week before conference finals

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

In its last outing before next week's Missouri Valley Conference championships, the men's tennis squad will battle valley foes Wichita State and Tulsa this weekend.

The Salukis are coming off last weekend's victory over Illinois State, 6-3. In that match the Salukis were helped by the performances of Joe Demeterco, Mickey Maule, Juan Martinez and George Hime, who all notched singles wins.

This weekend the test should be much tougher according to coach Dick LeFevre.

"Wichita and Tulsa will be the toughest teams we've faced in a while," LeFevre said. "I think that they are the teams to beat in the conference tournament."

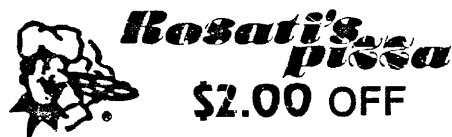

The Salukis, led by Maule and Fabiano Ramos who sport records of 16-9 and 14-11, respectively, will need wins this weekend to enhance their chances at conference.

"If we lose this weekend, our seeding will go down," LeFevre said. "That will mean we will have to play tougher teams to get to the finals."

The squad, which suffered some injuries earlier in the season, such as Demeterco's injured back, are healthy and in form to make a run at the MVC championships May 4-6.

"Unlike the women's team, we are healthy at the end of the season instead of the start," LeFevre said. "We're happy about that, and barring injury I think we have a great shot next week."

Women's track team picks up seven new recruits

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

A group of seven newcomers, described by women's track coach Don DeNoon as his strongest recruiting class ever, will help the SIU-C track team reload for next season.

The Salukis have won the last three Gateway Conference championships indoors and outdoors, but the squad will be forced to rebuild next year with the loss of six seniors, including Kathy Raske and Christiana Philippou, who have combined to set eight individual school records.

Signees Brandi Mock of Toulon and Jennifer King of Jefferson City, Mo., are a pair of sprinters who should offset the loss of Raske and Dora Kyriacou.

Mock, a state champion last season in the 200- and 400-meter dash, has personal bests of 25.04 seconds and 56.88 in those events. The three-time conference titlist in the 100-meters, 200-meters, and 400-meters, turned down scholarship offers from Illinois State, Iowa, and Indiana to attend SIU-C.

King, who was Jefferson City High Schools' MVP last season, set school records in the 100- and 200-meters. On her way to a third place 200-meter finish at state she helped her team win the district championship.

"Brandi is a championship caliber athlete," DeNoon said. "She has the intensity to be successful. Jennifer is probably another (Kathy) Raske for us. She has range to run from 55 meters up to 400 meters."

A pair of distance runners that DeNoon inked are Dawn Barefoot of Hoffman Estates and Leeann Conway of Overland Park, Ks. Both will run cross country and track for SIU-C.

Barefoot, a 5 minute 9 second miler, is undefeated thus far this season for her Hoffman Estates High School. Her two-mile time is equally impressive, 11:45.

Conway, who won a National AAU championship last August in the 3,000-meters, was victorious in the 1,600-meters and finished second in the 800-meters at the Missouri State championships.

"Dawn has to be one of the five best distance runners in Illinois this year," DeNoon said. "And Leeann is an exceptional competitor. She has great outward intensity and intelligence."

Shaure Winfield of Harvey,

Nacolia Moore of Georgetown and Lesley Tynes of Benton, Ky., round out the Salukis' recruits.

Winfield, who will be a long sprinter for SIU-C, was an all-conference and all-sectional performer for Thornton High School last spring.

Tynes, a three-time team MVP in cross country at Marshall County High School, earned all-state honors with a fifth place showing in the Kentucky Girls State Cross Country Championships.

Moore has placed at the state meet in both the long jump and the 100-meters. She finished fourth in the long jump and second in the 100-meters.

Women's tennis team nets 3 high school recruits

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

The women's tennis team has signed three recruits and is planning on a couple more in the next two weeks.

The Salukis have gotten letters of intent from Wendy Varnum of Colorado Springs, Co., and Lori Gallagher of O'Fallon. Also, Nancy Mullins of Rantoul will walk-on next season.

The signing of the three high school players will partially ease the impact of the loss of three seniors to graduation this May.

Varnum, who went 19-2 at singles in her junior season at Colorado Springs Christian School and placed third at state, was an honorable mention All-American for Prince Manufacturing Inc. and Player of the Year for the Colorado Springs Gazette Telegraph.

"Wendy will be a good addition to our team and will help immediately in both singles and doubles," Auld said. "She is a strong, aggressive player who hits the ball very hard and solid. She's also a good worker on and off the court."

Gallagher also brings impressive credentials to SIU-C. She has career marks of 83-25 in singles and 15-1 in doubles for O'Fallon Township High School. The three-time conference champion has made four trips to the Illinois' state championships.

"Lori has a promising future at the college level," Auld said. "She is a competitive, intelligent player. She is quick, athletic and can attack the net or work the baseline."

Mullins, a tennis, basketball and softball standout for Rantoul High School, hopes to develop into a prime contributor for the Salukis. She participated in the 1988 state tournament after a 11-4 singles record and 8-4 showing in doubles. Mullins is a two-time MVP for her school.

Golf squads up against tough teams

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

The men's and women's golf teams will be in action this weekend, the men heading to DeKalb for the Midwestern Invitational and the women to Savoy for the Illini Spring Classic.

On the men's side, coach Lew Hartzog and the Salukis will face Big Ten teams Illinois, the defending champ, Ohio State, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota and Purdue. The 54-hole tournament opens today and finishes up Saturday.

In addition, three Big Eight schools, Notre Dame, Louisville, host Northern Illinois and Missouri Valley foe Illinois State.

The women will face eight opponents including Michigan, Indiana, Northern Illinois and Gateway member Illinois State. The Salukis finished sixth out of 16 in last year's 36-hole affair, which also open today and runs through Saturday.

Coming into today's action, Lisa Meritt tops the women with an 81.6 average, with freshman Anne Childers in second at 82.1. As a team, the Salukis have a 339.0 average.

Murray State shells Salukis 18-2 behind three home runs

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Willie Wilder gave Murray State a big reason to celebrate — a leadoff home run against SIU-C's Mark Holanson that started the Racers rolling to a stunning 18-2 rout over the Salukis Thursday in Murray, Ky.

Hokanson never recovered from Wilder's blast. He faced eight batters and gave up six runs, five of which were unearned. With the loss his record went to 2-1.

The Salukis (22-24) ended up using five pitchers on the afternoon and none lasted longer than first reliever Rob Carter, who took 2-3 innings to give up seven hits and five runs.

By that time the damage was done. Although Chris Beno, Brian Oestrike and George Joseph took turns on the hill, Murray State was well along to chalking up its 29th victory in 32 games.

All told, Murray State chalked up 18 base hits and took advantage of four SIU-C errors. The Racers had two doubles, a triple and three home runs.

Wilder contributed another homer as part of a three-run fifth.

Pauli Allegre had the Racers

other dinger, a two-run shot in the eighth.

Rick Grogan threw for seven of the nine innings to get the win. He scattered six hits and allowed just one run to put his record at 7-2.

The Salukis finished with 11 hits.

Ed Janke scored the Salukis' only two runs. In the sixth Janke led off with a double and came home on a sacrifice fly by Jeff Nelson. In the eighth, Janke tripped and then scored on a Brian Gibson single.

Kurt Endetrock added two hits.

Indiana State remains MVC leader

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Indiana State, which stayed atop the Missouri Valley standings, heads into the fourth week of conference action with a one-game lead over Wichita State and Creighton.

The Sycamores (29-14, 8-4) have turned their offensive production up a notch, batting .334 as a team. They took three of four games from Illinois State last week and will play host to Bradley this weekend.

This week's Collegiate Baseball-ESPN poll ranked the Sycamores 29th. They join No. 8 Wichita State as the second Valley team to be mentioned in the poll.

Dan Frye, a freshman shortstop batting .375 on the season, gave the Sycamores a boost with a 9-for-18 performance last week. Frye had a home run, two doubles and six RBIs.

Frye is not the only Sycamore making his presence known at the plate. Mitch Hannahs, senior second baseman, leads the league with a .411 average.

Five other Sycamores besides Hannahs and Frye are batting over .300. Mike Farrell is hitting .370. Chad McDonald, who along with SIU-C's Doug Shields leads the conference with 16 doubles, is hitting .363. Dave Larson is hitting .340 while Larry Russell and Kurt Olson each have a .331 average.

As for Indiana State's pitching, which ranks third behind Wichita State and Creighton, junior righthander Chris Schaefer turned in two outstanding outings to be named co-Pitcher of the Week.

Schaefer, who has a 4-3 record and a 3.38 earned run average, got a pair of complete, nine-inning victories. The first was a 3-1 decision over Butler, the second a 2-0 blanking of Illinois State.

Schaefer has a three-game win streak going, as well as a 9.89 per game strikeout ratio that ranks among the NCAA leaders. His 55 strikeouts puts him fourth in the Valley rankings.

W is for...

Wichita State's Eric Wedge was named Player of the Week and Illinois State's Paul Wagner took co-Pitcher of the Week honors.

Saluki Invitational gaining prestige

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

The weekend's Saluki Invitational, which will be held at McAndrew Stadium, is steadily becoming one of the top Midwest track and field meets.

The second annual event will have as many as 600 men, women and more than 25 women's teams in the daylong event.

Women's coach Don DeNoon said that the meet is well on its way to becoming one of the more prestigious meets in the Illinois area.

"There will be some quality teams here this weekend," DeNoon said. "The level of competition at this meet is equal to most of the big invitationals that we travel to.

Although the meet is only in its second year, men's coach Bill Cornell is hopeful that the Saluki Invitational will some day compete with the Drake and Penn Relays for the best invitationals in the Midwest.

"We may not be able to attract the spectators those two meets draw," Cornell said. "But since we run mostly NCAA events, rather than just relays, the meet might become more popular with competitors trying to qualify for the NCAAs.

Saturday's activities will start with the heptathlon at 8 a.m. and will end with the 4 x

"I don't think we have a single event during the day that won't provide some excitement for spectators."

—Don DeNoon

400 relay at 6 p.m.

According to DeNoon the time in between will be packed with exciting events.

"I don't think we have a single event during the day that won't provide some excitement for spectators," DeNoon said. "There are at least three or four standouts in every event and the field of teams appears to be extremely well balanced."

A few key events will be the triple jump, 400-meters and the 100-meter hurdles.

The triple jump, which begins at 1:30 p.m. for both men and women, will feature a standout from both SIU-C squads. Leonard Vance and Christiana Philippou, both defending conference outdoor champions, will both be aiming for qualifying NCAA marks this weekend.

The 400-meters, which starts at 3:30 p.m., will showcase the talent of Saluki sprinter Erick Pegues, a two-time conference champion. Pegues, like Vance and Philippou, will set his aim at a NCAA qualifying.

At 3:05 p.m. fans will get to see two-time NCAA qualifier Kathy Raske in the 100-meter hurdle finals. Raske, who beat the NCAA qualifying mark last weekend, will also be in the 100-meter hurdle preliminaries at 12 p.m.

Both squads will face tough competition this weekend. The men's foes include Eastern Illinois, Illinois, Mississippi, Western Illinois and Illinois State. The women will match up against Tulane, Kentucky State, Murray State and Southeast Missouri.

SIU-C playing host to No. 8 Shockers

Baseball team facing league spoiler role

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

For all practical purposes, the baseball team's chances for a Missouri Valley regular season title have faded. But Saluki coach Itchy Jones' team can still add a little spice to the conference race.

With No. 8 Wichita State coming to Carbondale for a pair of noon doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday, the last-place Salukis have been instructed to play the traditional role of spoiler.

"It's not mathematically impossible, but it would be very difficult for us to win the regular season title," Jones said. "Because of that, I've told the players to create havoc in the league."

While the Salukis appear to be out of contention with a 22-23 overall record and 4-8 conference mark, Wichita State enters in second place at 41-8 and 6-4. Indiana State, who the Salukis play next week, is first at 29-14 and 8-4.

"We're in a position now to disrupt the other teams,"

Jones said. "Let's play with an attitude of being the spoiler. Let's get prepared for the conference tournament."

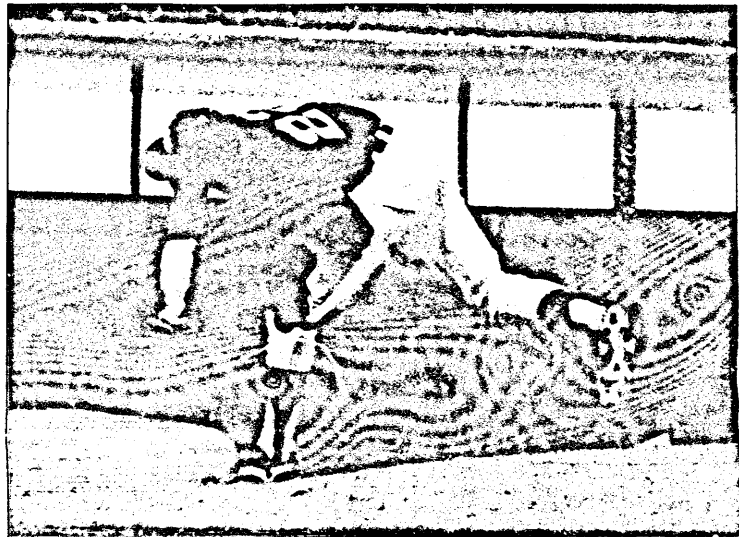

"We're in a position where if we get hot and play well, the conference will have to look at us for every game to determine what's happening in the league. From that standpoint, I think we should be able to play loose."

Playing loose has been the Salukis' top concern. The longest win streak was five games in the first week of April. Since then, the team has split five of its last six doubleheaders.

The only haven for the Salukis has been Abe Martin Field, where they are 13-6 on the season, yet 2-2 in the conference.

Meanwhile, the Shockers have played .500 ball at Abe Martin in their last two visits. In 1985 the Shockers were 50-7 and took two games. In 1987 they were 33-13 and won two games.

Football's economic burden justifies eliminating program

President Guyon and the Board of Trustees should seriously consider dropping Saluki football.

The University's football program represents an immense burden on the athletics department, and is the major reason several of the minor sports, such as gymnastics, wrestling and field hockey, have been eliminated throughout this decade.

Football represents a roadblock to the success of the men's and women's basketball programs, as well as the evolution of some of the minor sports.

By eliminating football, the athletics department would be throwing out a yearly expense of over $550,000 and freeing up some $200,000 in the budget.

Granted, the University can never get back what has been lost, but it can prevent losing more. By channeling the excess budget money into the two basketball programs, it seems only a matter of time before they both obtain their spot as regional powerhouses.

Arguably, there is no assurance this will ever happen, but it is a chance the department must take if it hopes to have a nationally respected sport.

From the press box

No one can deny the rewards the football personnel receive from the sport, but do those rewards warrant such a great sacrifice by other members of the department?

Saluki football hurts the University community. Many have said if we stay at the I-AA level, we will surely have success in the future. But if the program cannot win when it has $300,000 to work with, as it did earlier in the 1980s, then how can it win when the sport receives cuts every year?

Dropping down a division is not the answer. The University would merely be downgrading itself by going to

Benefits of football to players outweigh financial difficulties

No one can argue that football makes cents.

But what the opposition refuses to see is that there is more to athletics than finances.

What football offers to its players, coaches and fans cannot be equated with dollars and cents. Can you put a price tag on education?

Athletics offers an education to some athletes that otherwise wouldn't be here. Graduating 25 percent of our athletes is poor, but its foolish to assume that no education is taking place. Textbooks teach history and calculus, but football teaches hard work and responsibility.

What it takes to be successful on the field can be paralleled to endeavors in the real world.

Professors use examples to prove their points in class. Football is the classroom for teaching athletes about life. A different approach to learning is needed for different individuals. If the athletics department can get the job done on the field, why should money prevent football from educating its athletes?

Sophomore quarterback Fred Gibson said that being a student-athlete will make him be a more productive person once he leaves football.

"It gives you intangibles that can't be taken away," Gibson said.

What really shouldn't be taken away is the entertainment it gives its fans for the five home games each year. McAndrew Stadium may never reach maximum capacity, but for the 9,680 people it does entertain each game, it's worth it.

The administration doesn't eliminate the theater department
