China beefs up security to quell riots

BEIJING (UPI) — China has launched a major security effort to counter its worst civil unrest in more than a decade, transferring 20,000 troops to Beijing, mobilizing anti-riot squads and sharply cracking down on the press, Chinese sources said Sunday.

No new outbreaks were reported after huge pro-democracy protests in Beijing and rioting Saturday in two provincial capital cities, central Xian and southern Changsha, where protests were marked by unusual direct criticism of senior leader Deng Xiaoping.

But thousands of students held daylong pro-democracy rallies on three Beijing campuses and called for a nationwide class boycott beginning Monday to ready for more protests to mark the 70th anniversary on May 4th of a 1979 student movement.

Authorities declared a 24-hour martial law in a section of Xian after more than 130 people were injured in rioting after a protest by what foreigners estimated at 50,000 students and other people.

Troops Sunday sealed off the city square where rioters stormed a government office, burned vehicles and hurled rocks at police. Some students were arrested, foreigners in the city said.

Police were also detaining several hundred people in Changsha, in southern Hunan Province, after rioters smashed windows and looted dozens of shops, state-run television reported. Several thousand students had earlier marched through the city.

Both cities were reported quiet Sunday.

Since the April 15 death of liberal former Communist Party chief Hu Yaobang, students in Beijing have led a week of demonstrations for greater political freedom that have attracted stunning support from average Chinese. Protests have now spread to five other cities.

In an editorial for Monday's edition, the communist party newspaper People's Daily called for calm with a patriotic appeal, saying all Chinese "should put the national interests above everything else and safeguard social stability."

"Democracy calls for a process of perfection and cannot be accomplished overnight," warned the editorial, carried by the official Xinhua news agency.

The size and vehemence of the demonstrations, virtually unprecedented since the 1949 communist takeover, have posed the stiffest challenge to the government since mass rioting in Beijing in April 1976 at the end of the Cultural Revolution.

Springfest arrests increase by more than 100 percent

A Staff Report

Despite sunny skies and high spirits, many of Saturday's 13,000 Springfest partiers expressed disapproval of the University's decision to separate the Cardboard Boat Regatta from the annual April celebration.

University Police report that nearly 60 people were arrested Saturday, a 100 percent increase over last year's 25 Springfest arrests.

Most of the arrests were for underage consumption of alcohol, public consumption and public indecency.

Some arrests were for possession of cannabis and driving under the influence of alcohol. Most of the arrests were made between noon and 6 p.m.

University Police also logged more than 200 Elvis sightings.

"I think they blew it when they separated Springfest from the boat regatta," Kevin Lewis, an undecided freshman, said. "It seemed too contained and didn't last long enough. We need more things going on."

Sieve Roos, a double major in radio-TV and marketing, said M-TV won't have much to cover this Saturday when the cable network visits the

Loan fund established to help three colleges

By Alicia Hill

Students from three colleges in the University will have greater financial assistance opportunities because of a loan fund established by an alumnus and his wife.

Donald L. and Wileen G. Bryant signed a memorandum of understanding Thursday, to establish a $50,000 loan fund to be shared among the College of Liberal Arts, College of Communications and Fine Arts and the College of Business and Administration.

"This gift is indicative of the kind of lifetime of service the Bryants have shown," John Jackson, COLA dean, said.

COBA raises more than $4 million

Better equipment, more scholarships, new extracurricular activities and a better business program are among the Administration's $4 million "Time for Pride" fund drive.

With the help of the community and alumni, COBA raised more than $4 million.

Although the campaign to raise the money was launched on Oct. 17, 1987, two days before the stock market plunged, the second-largest crash in the nation's history, it was still successful.

"It took a lot of hard work and energy to raise the money," Thomas Gutteridge, dean of COBA, said. "We couldn't have done it without the support of our friends in the community and our distinguished alumni."

Gutteridge announced Friday that the grand total was $4,241,421. He said the number would probably increase until the drive officially closed on Friday.

Cheney outlines 1990 military budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney outlined a 1990 Pentagon budget Sunday that scales back the "Star Wars" antimissile program, keeps alive the Midgetman missile and calls into question the future of the radar-elusive Stealth bomber.

Interviewed on the NBC News program "Meet the Press," Cheney described the budget he will present Tuesday to Congress as the product of "tough decisions" to eliminate some weapons programs, delay others and reduce forces. "If it were my decision to make today, I'd spend more on defense and have real growth in defense on a steady, stable basis over time," he said. "That's not an option. The president and the Congress have made a decision that the budget will be cut."

Cheney, who had a hawkish voting record on defense issues as a member of Congress, has had to find $10 billion in cuts from the level of spending proposed by former President Reagan for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

While estimating 95 percent of his recommendations prevailed, Cheney acknowledged being overruled by Bush on one key issue: the modernization of the nation's land-based nuclear missiles.

Rather than abandon development of the mobile, single-warhead Midgetman as Cheney proposed, Bush ordered the program to proceed in tandem, though at a somewhat reduced level, with the redeployment of 10-warhead missiles from silos in Wyoming to railroad cars to enhance their survivability in the event of a Soviet attack.

Over time, production of 500 truck-mounted Midgetman missiles would cost an estimated $25 billion, compared to the $5.4 billion price tag of the MX redeployment. Bush, however, opted for a mix of the two missiles on the strong advice of members of Congress and his national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, who for some time has urged a strategic shift by the superpowers to smaller, less threatening land-based missiles.

Naval station awaits return of USS Iowa battleship

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Families of the crew of the USS Iowa awaited the return of the battleship Sunday while Navy investigators on board continued looking for signs of what caused a fiery explosion that killed 47 sailors. The 887-foot-long, 58,000-ton Iowa and its crew of about 1,600 was taken to the world's largest naval base. The Navy said families would greet the sailors and be allowed to leave before reporters could question them.

Oil still escaping ruptured hull of tanker

VALDEZ, Alaska (UPI) — Pools of petroleum sheen escaped containment booms Sunday near the ruptured hull of Exxon Valdez, and officials were worried that the vessel is still contributing to the nation's worst oil spill. At least 16,000 gallons of emulsified oil remain in the hold of the tanker now docked in a protected cove on Naked Island, about 40 miles from Blight Reef where the ship ran aground March 24, spewing 10.1 million gallons.

U.S.-backed Moslem rebel rockets kill 10

KABUL, Afghanistan (UPI) — Rockets fired by U.S.-armed Moslem rebels killed 10 people and injured 21 Sunday in the Afghan capital, where the prices of basic commodities continued to climb after five days without a supply convoy from the Soviet Union, state-run Kabul Radio reported. A foreign Ministry spokesman, meanwhile, reported ongoing fighting around the eastern towns of Jalalabad and Khost, the western city of Herat and the southern city of Kandahar between government forces and guerrillas backed by the United States, China and Arab nations and based mainly in neighboring Pakistan.

Mitchell: New information revealed at trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell said Sunday some exhibits used at Oliver North's trial have information that was not contained in similar documents the White House gave the 1987 Iran-Contra committees. As jurors in North's case took a break Sunday from deliberations, Mitchell told CBS's "Face the Nation" that the versions of the documents given to the select congressional committees did not bear notations linking President Reagan far more closely to secret deals for Nicaraguan rebels.

Prison populations rise 7.4 percent in 1988

WASHINGTON (UPI) — State and federal prison populations rose by 7.4 percent last year and have nearly doubled in the past eight years, putting new pressures on the nation's penal system, the Justice Department's research arm reported Sunday.

22 states surveyed would restrict abortion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A state-by-state survey released Sunday showed that 22 states would severely restrict abortions if the Supreme Court overturned the landmark Roe vs. Wade decision legalizing abortion. The survey, conducted by Newsweek magazine, also found that at least 12 states and the District of Columbia would opt for few restrictions on abortion and 16 other states shaped up as definite battlegrounds, with opinions too tough to predict.

36 Arabs wounded in 'Day of Confrontations'

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Widespread rioting erupted Sunday in the Gaza Strip, where Palestinian sources said up to 36 Arabs were wounded on the "day of confrontations" with Israeli soldiers. Initial military reports indicated four Palestinians were wounded during violent clashes with soldiers, including a 14-year-old Jabalia refugee camp resident seriously wounded in the head and transferred to an Israeli hospital, an army spokesman said.

Soviet police cart away rowdy demonstrators

MOSCOW (UPI) — Special police dispersed a rally of some 2,000 sympathizers of the self-declared Democratic Union party Sunday, carting away demonstrators who chanted "Freedom," and "You fascists," as they were shoved into buses. The official Tass news agency said 47 participants in the Pushkin Square rally were detained. It said those detained were "the most aggressive organizers" and that most participants just "marched past ... near Pushkin Square shouting demagogic slogans."

Marijuana advocates unite at smoke-in

from Page 1

By Wayne Wallace
Entertainment Editor

All they are saying is give pot a chance.

Not only can it cure what ails you, but the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML) claims the illegal herb can be converted into a pollution-free fuel, thereby reversing the greenhouse effect and saving our planet.

Another NORML platform asserts that America's farm economy could be saved if the weed were made legal for cultivation as a billion-dollar-a-year cash crop for our nation's farmers.

NORML organizers were on campus Friday to light up Springfest weekend with a marijuana "smoke-in," attended by nearly 300 students and a few, if any, cops.

"You live longer if you use marijuana."

—Jack Herer

"Well, if they tried to bust just one person, they'd have a real problem on their hands," Chicagoan Steve Van Buskirk said, guessing why no police were on hand to arrest protesters who openly smoked grass at the Free Forum Area rally.

"Deep down, (the police) realize we're not harming anybody," was another explanation of the arrest-free demonstration, offered by Bill Hartley, a senior in English.

Hartley said he has smoked marijuana periodically for 12 years, mostly on weekends.

A city a day is NORML's goal, according to Jackson Club, a volunteer for the "Legalize in '89 Tour," which stopped in five Illinois cities last week, including Carbondale, Chicago and Springfield.

"The students in Carbondale participants in a marijuana legalization rally at the free forum area Friday afternoon. Brown is a member of the NOHML organization.

are party professionals," Club said.

"There are lots of reasons pot should be legalized," Van Buskirk added. "Medicine, fuel. It can replace wood to make paper products. It would take it out of the dealers' hands and make it cheaper to buy."

Sue O'Malley, freshman in business, said she attended the smoke-in just to get some sun and to hang out with her friends. As for the legalization of marijuana, O'Malley said, "It might take a while, but I hope it happens."

Faul Lichares, junior in ceramics, said by legalizing pot, the U.S. government could tax marijuana sales and use the proceeds to fund other, more important drug-prevention programs.

"You live longer if you use marijuana," author Jack Herer proclaimed to the crowd.

Herer is the author of "The Emperor Wears No Clothes," a book extolling the virtues of marijuana, in both its recreational and practical usages.

"One liquor store in America kills more people than all the marijuana ever did," Herer said.

"Freedom doesn't mean freedom from drugs, but freedom from ignorant people who make the laws," he added.

Herer reminded the young audience, "The war on drugs is a war on you!"

Steve DeAngelo, an editor of "High Times" magazine, addressed the demonstrators, establishing that an ounce of pot cost $125 in Carbondale.

DeAngelo blamed the Reagan administration for placing undue emphasis on cracking down on marijuana smugglers from Columbia while more dangerous drugs were allowed to come into the country, he said.

Following his speech, DeAngelo complimented the Carbondale demonstrators noting that while the turnout wasn't as large as at other tour stops, "this is their first foray into asserting your rights for self-government."

Yearbook memories could be a memory

IT SEEMS THAT the Obelisk, a book created for student memories, is about to become a memory itself. With the cancelation of the 1988-89 yearbook and the debts that have plagued the yearbook since it was started again in the late 1970s — chances for another yearbook looked bleak.

Only 849 of an expected 2,000 senior portraits were taken and only 51 paid orders were taken for the yearbook. Not encouraging.

But the students who voted against a referendum for a 50-cent per-student, per-semester fee to support the Obelisk may have been the final straw. Only 1,032 voted for the fee, while 1,131 voted against it.

WHY SHOULD THE administration or an overworked yearbook staff make the effort to continue if the students can't even support the book with a small fee or the purchase of a yearbook?

Several options for continuing the yearbook were considered, including switching to a magazine format, but the main problems are financial.

Perhaps the yearbook could be saved by placing its business end under the charge of another organization. Some university yearbooks are run by the campus paper's business office.

This could be a possibility for the Obelisk. After all, wouldn't a book of memories be better than just the memory of a book?

AT LEAST THE results of the student election were not as bleak as the yearbook referendum.

The turnout in the student elections indicated that multiple polling places work — to some extent. There was not much of an increase over last year's total at a single polling place. About 2,220 students voted in this year's election — 1,831 voted last year.

The multiple polls provide the opportunity for more students to vote, unfortunately they didn't seem to take the opportunity. But the system has proven itself and should be continued, perhaps with more publicity, it will increase voter turnout over the next few years.

Opinions from elsewhere

San Francisco Examiner

The world is not weeping enough for the carnage in Lebanon. There have been upwards of 1,300 casualties in six weeks in the renewed internecine battling of Arab against Arab. Why have not the major democratic powers, which are supposed to respond to human suffering in large emergencies, gotten together with some plan of assistance and solution?

It is because none sees itself as having a critical vested interest in Lebanon, and because the whole drawn-out business of multifunctional civil war seems so insoluble. But the suffering, borne by helpless civilians, cries for outside help for new initiatives on the part of the large powers in the search for remedies and the easing of pain.

The world's attention is glued to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict to the south, in which some 460 people have been killed in the 16-month Palestinian uprising. In Lebanon, by contrast, 150,000 have died in the civil war, now 14 years old and worsening, as the occupying Syrians and the armed religious factions throw rockets as never before.

How is there anything left of Beirut? How many more thousands of Lebanese civilians will have to die in this mad exchange before the warring sides agree to a cease-fire and negotiations?

There is a beginning, at least, toward that end. Last week the secretary-general of the United Nations, Javier Perez de Cuellar, was trying to bring about a cease-fire, appealing to several nations to assist.

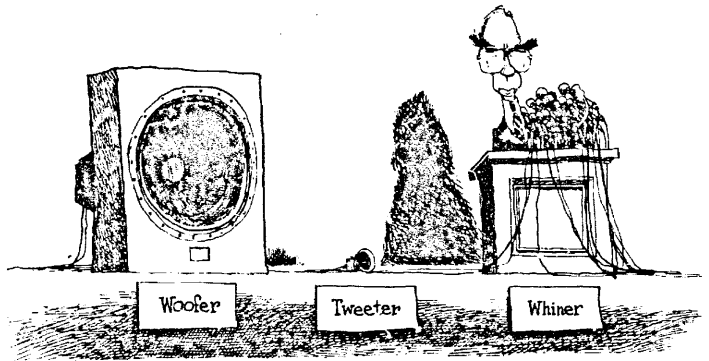

A truce with a patrolling U.N. monitor force that would strive to keep the several battling Lebanese elements apart would be a good start. But right now, lots of material aid for the battered population, which now lacks food and medical care, is imperative. The French, to their credit, have been treating some of the wounded on a navy hospital ship offshore, as Lebanese hospitals ashore have gone up in flames under rocket fire.

The United States should respond likewise, and quickly, with generous medical and food assistance. The commanding general of the Lebanese Christian army, Michel Aoun, has made a critical mistake in deciding to expel the Syrian army, which obviously he cannot do with his 10,000 troops against the Syrians' 40,000. The attempt can destroy what is left of Beirut. But the Arab League, under whose 1976 mandate Syrian forces remain in Lebanon, conceivably might get those forces removed, despite Syria's territorial designs upon Lebanon. Let us see every effort exerted to achieve that disengagement.

Heavy metal fans should enjoy; others push for different bands

Good morning ladies and gentlemen and welcome to day number 42 in the debate of the rock lovers. As it stands now, both sides of the issue have thoroughly insulted each other, and themselves.

Mr. Edwards, I would like to congratulate you for stirring a lively bit of reading in our daily newspaper. Thank you.

It disturbs me, however, that the respondents to your letter cannot stop harassing each other's musical preferences long enough to realize what you were actually trying to say — that there have been an awful lot of heavy metal bands booked at the Arena in the last couple of years, and once again, you are correct.

I agree that there have been too many heavy metal bands booked and I would really like to see a greater diversity of music presented for the students of SIU.

Unfortunately, the Arena serves a much larger audience than the population of SIU, and the fact of the matter is that heavy metal is hot. Record crowds have been filling arenas much larger than our own, and in pure business sense, that means bucks.

The Arena operates on a limited budget, and to be quite frank, they have made some bad choices in the past. Bands have not drawn the numbers necessary to provide a profit, or even enough people to break even. With the sale of T-shirts and other merchandise, they sometimes come close.

Bands like the Moody Blues and other wide-appeal bands that were mentioned by another reader, often do not do well in ticket sales, so bands like Ratt and Bon Jovi look very appealing to concert promoters.

If we would like to see a greater diversity of bands, we need to convince the Arena promoters that we, like the heavy metal fans, will come out in droves to support our favorite bands.

The Arena would like to diversify their line-up, but without guaranteed numbers of fans, ticket prices are too high for the average concert-goer.

So until SIU can book another wide-appeal band like REM, you will find me safe at home, in front of the TV, keeping my mouth shut. Heavy metal fans, to you I say one word: Enjoy. — Clint Potts, graduate student, higher education.

Young minds should remain open

It's the ability of a young mind to open up and accept new ideas that is so very beautiful. Unfortunately, many young people today do not have this trait — people like Brad Seifert.

Obviously Brad is a student unable to establish his own identity so he has, in turn, decided to imitate that of the 60s hippies. Why else would he share with us a list of tried old gypsies and new age hippies as the bands he wants to see.

As young adults it's our job to express ourselves in ways that older generations may not understand. That is what hippies did. Many times these expressions are considered offensive by past generations. This can be done through the art of expression.

Examples are the "How should the flag be displayed" deal, the TV show "Married With Children," comedians like Sam Kinison, shock radio, and music ranging from Madonna to U2 to Metallica to the Carbondale band The Womb.

Your problem, Brad, is you can't accept anything new; you've been brainwashed by too many classic rock radio stations. So you've chosen to repeat history and be a closed-minded hippie freak. — Lewis Whitten, senior, radio-television.

Sexism in language not a major issue

This is in response to the letter by R. Wood Young. Since you failed to identify your sex in your letter, we will refer to you simply as "zin."

It seems that you have few problems if your only complaint is that the English language is sexist. If every one had worries as trivial as yours, there would be no need for editorials or letters to the editor.

The changing of one pronoun is not going to change the sexist views of those people who use the English language.

There is nothing wrong with using your students as a test group. One small group does not effectively represent the views or opinions of society as a whole.

While you may have a valid point on the use of sexism in the English language, it seems there are more important issues to be dealt with at this day and time. — Robert D. Smith, senior, advanced technical studies, and Catherine White and Stephanie Parmley, seniors in paralegal studies.

MOVE president deserves to be recognized

During last week's blood drive, if someone came up to you and asked you to give blood, that someone was probably Rick Mitchell.

As president of MOVE, Rick is the main drive and force of all the blood drives on campus, but we never seem to see his name in the appear in any blood drive related articles.

Although he is humble, we think Rick deserves credit and respect for his year-round dedication and hard work. So here's to our good friend and everyone's volunteer — Rick Mitchell. Thank you for your time, effort, devotion toward helping others.

— Steve Lange, junior health education, and Joe Harvey, junior, business management.

Michael Bakalis, currently on leave from Loyola University in Chicago as dean of the School of Education, said he is "testing the waters" of a possible run at the office of Illinois governor in the 1990 election.

Bakalis stopped at the Student Center Friday as part of his travels around the state meeting with media and Democratic party leaders.

Bakalis said Illinois is on a "downward slide" and that it was time to bring government back to the people.

Current Republican Gov. James R. Thompson's inability to raise taxes for education and other state programs, is caused by what Bakalis calls the "boy who cried wolf syndrome."

Bakalis said Thompson campaigned in the past saying he would not raise taxes and that the state did not need new taxes. But once elected, Thompson said his assessment of the state's finances was incorrect and there was a need for additional tax revenue, Bakalis said.

The people of Illinois, even the Republican Party, need a change, some new blood and ideas, Bakalis said.

People are tired of hearing about the need for taxes, Bakalis said. Thompson's credibility has totally eroded.

Even when Thompson asks for new tax dollars, he is not willing to go out and fight for it, Bakalis said.

Bakalis said if Thompson cannot go out and convince the people, how can he convince the Legislature to vote for new taxes.

Bakalis said he would only support a tax increase if a serious effort was made to reduce government spending and if property taxes were examined and/or reduced to take away some of the burden of an income tax increase.

find it very boring and pick up their cameras and leave after an hour," Roos said, noting the administration's first-ever alcohol ban for the regatta.

"I don't like it," Robbie Stanley, senior in geology, said. "It's a tradition to have the regatta and Springfest together. A lot of alumni come to see the regatta. You just can't come two weekends in a row."

"Springfest is the best reason to come back to SIU," alumnus John Paul Micelli agreed.

"The atmosphere is so casual and mellow," Jaime C. Ramig said.

Ramig, a freshman in chemical engineering, added, "I've had a great time. There's a lot of prime male skin."

Jerry Fay, Class of '84, drove down from St. Louis to visit his brother Richard, senior in geology, and attend the celebration.

"I had choices, but I'm here," Fay said. "The weather has always been nice."

Mark Barnett, junior in journalism, was witness to a bizarre pagan ritual.

"At about 2 p.m. someone sent an offering to the Springfest gods," Barnett said. "To the south of Anthony Hall, a partier sent up a can — I assume it was beer — tied to three balloons. Its path to the Springfest gods was interrupted by an evergreen tree."

"I've had a groovy time," Erin Michnuik, freshman in pre-med, said. "I especially enjoyed Fishbone."

"This is almost like the Halloween party," Amy Mirocha, a visual communication sophomore, said.

Mike Olson, a senior in film production, disagreed. "Springfest is nothing like Halloween," Olson said. "Nobody wants to cause trouble here. There's more of a festive mood."

Olson said the reason Springfest doesn't have Halloween's bad reputation is because of the out-of-town visitors. "At Springfest, it's only friends of students. Halloween attracts a lot of other people besides that."

Olson also claimed responsibility for the leopard-spotted rug that was draped over the statue of Delyte Morris, former SIU-C president.

"Last year we put leis around his neck and a beer in his hand," Olson said.

Shelly Loughnane, a sophomore in English, said, "It was a mellow time. No one really got out of hand."

Dan Datsun, a 21-year-old visitor from Lombard, attended his second Springfest with buddies Jeff Thune, a fine arts senior, and Kevin Woods, a photography senior.

Datsun said, "I got drunk last year. I got drunk this year."

"And you'll get drunk next year," Thune chimed in. "It's a big Alcoholic Fest," according to Chris Hasler, freshman in psychology.

"There's a lot more drunk people (this year)," Gene Crawford, graduate student in microbiology, said.

"The drunk people were not spread out enough, so there were obnoxious people concentrated in one area," Crawford added.

Gina Matthesen, junior in anthropology, said she enjoyed herself at Springfest, but noted the crowd to be rowdy.

"There were people throwing beer cans at each other near the stage where the bands were playing," Matthesen said.

Chris Wentling, a senior in history, also complained of the alcohol situation, but from the exact opposite position. "I have never seen so many rules in all my life. What is this, a fascist state," Wentling said of the restricted drinking areas imposed on partygoers.

"The music was mediocre and I think it reflects the quality of music in Carbondale," Bill Emslie, 24, said.

"The bands were the most exciting to me," Kenya Batten countered. As for the separation of the boat regatta from Springfest, the microbiology sophomore offered, "I think they lost a lot of people when they did that. (Springfest) used to run the whole weekend long."

"I would've had a great time, but it was so hot," Cristi DeBruyne, freshman in social work, said. "The carnival rides were a lot of fun."

Steve Burlison, senior in visual communication, offered a suggestion that was in concensus with the sentiments of most of the students polled.

"I'd like to see more activities sponsored by students on the mainstage. Bands at night," Burlison said.

"Donald and Eileen Bryant Loan Fund," will be provided as a revolving, long-term loan.

According to Jackson, if it works as planned, the fund will grow throughout the years from accumulated interest.

The loan is designed to support students from Southern Illinois.

"We'd like to give students the hope that maybe there are sources," Donald Bryant said.

Bryant graduated from the University in 1940 with a degree in sociology.

Bryant chose the loan fund over a scholarship fund to allow students the opportunity to give something back to the University.

"I would like for the students to feel some pride in repaying the loan."

He started work as an agent for Carbondale's office of The Equitable Life Assurance Society in Carbondale in 1946 after serving four years in the U.S. Navy.

"People don't plan to get into the insurance business, they get into on accident. That's what happened to me," Bryant said. He retired from the company in 1979 after having risen to the position of senior executive vice president.

Bryant also is on the board of directors for Tandy Corporation which owns Radio Shack and various computer centers.

Donald and Eileen met quite appropriately in a family relations course at the University.

Eileen (Galloway) Bryant is a native of Sesser.

Bryant said that, while he was in school, a $25 loan from the Rotary Club saved his academic career.

He explained he had a hard time obtaining a loan.

"At the time, I wasn't even sure I knew what collateral was," Bryant said.

Airshow '89 displays classics, gives alternative to Springfest

By Alicia Hill
Staff Writer

A sunny sky and little wind made it a perfect day for an airshow.

Airshow '89, sponsored by The Rotor & Wing Association of America, took place Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Southern Illinois Airport.

This year's crowd was much larger than normal, George Vickas, program director, said.

"The show is better established, and we've got more to show," Vickas said.

Rotor & Wing has sponsored the airshow since 1964.

This year's show was only the second to offer aerobatic acts.

Aircraft on display included helicopters, numerous military displays and several classic aircraft.

The 1946 Piper Ercoupe owned by Gary Doolin of Murphysboro was displayed among the classics.

The Ercoupe was built with the intention to be sold to everyone, like automobiles.

The actual airshow began at 1 p.m. with skydivers, the traditional airshow opening.

Among the skydivers was Sam Hodgkins, a junior in Aviation Technology.

Hodgkins' landing with the American flag was accompanied by a moment of silence for war veterans.

In 1967, Hodgkins, who has done 2,000 jumps since 1972, helped to set a world record by participating in the world's largest free fall formation.

One hundred twenty skydivers participated in the jump in Quincy.

Hodgkins, originally from Libertyville, said he guessed it was general insanity that got him started skydiving.

The airshow displayed the talents of Pete Meyers, the oldest airshow pilot in the world.

Jabbed nurse files AIDS lawsuit

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — A former nurse has filed a $12.5 million lawsuit against a doctor who accidentally jabbed her with an AIDS-infected needle during emergency treatment in 1985 at the Erie County Medical Center, officials said Sunday.

The nurse, Victoria Ross, later was diagnosed as having developed AIDS-related complex, meaning she shows some symptoms of the disease. She has since left Erie County and is living downstate.

Ross is currently working, court records indicate, and has not shown any signs of developing a full-blown case of AIDS.

Dr. David Umfrey, who at the time was a student at the State University of New York at Buffalo Medical School, has been told he's not insured and has hired his own lawyer to represent him.

According to court papers in the case, Ross was on a medical team at the county medical center's Acute Respiratory Care unit June 2, 1985, trying to revive a patient whose heart had stopped. The male patient had pneumonia as well as acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Court records said while Ross was compressing the patient's chest, Umfrey was injecting a hypodermic needle into the man. After Umfrey withdrew the needle, he turned slightly and accidentally jabbed Ross in the forearm.

Cheap thrills at $2 per cup coffee shop

DICKSON CITY, Pa. (UPI) — The man who owns Dad's Coffee Shop insists a topless waitress serving coffee and pie is not entertainment, but local officials disagree and want Tom Wasley to cover his staff up.

One thing is certain: At two bucks for a styrofoam cup of coffee, a visit to Dad's hardly qualifies as a cheap thrill.

Officials in Dickson City, a Lackawanna County borough of 7,000, say bare-breasted waitresses are entertainment, and have cited Wasley for a zoning violation and given him until Friday to either apply for a special exception or be subject to a $500-a-day fine.

Wasley said the citation is baseless and will challenge it in court.

"My girls aren't dancing or whatever it is they (borough officials) think constitutes entertainment. They serve coffee," said Wasley. "It's a political thing."

The controversy over Dad's has been mounting steadily since the coffee shop opened in mid-February in a small shopping plaza off Main Street.

Last week, opponents gave borough council a petition with 1,100 signatures protesting the coffee shop's presence in the community.

Borough Administrator Tony Romeo said the borough decided to cite Dad's after advertisements began appearing in a Scranton newspaper, promising customers an "all-day blast" with the likes of "Topless Kimberly" and "Topless Colleen."

Romeo said the issue was not nudity or obscenity but whether the coffee shop provides entertainment and thus requires a zoning exception.

Jazz purist Marsalis performs legacy in concert

By Richard Nunez
Staff Writer

A Review

Although he is often accused of being ill-mannered and arrogant, Wynton Marsalis proved he is forging a legacy for himself in the world of jazz.

Marsalis, who has little respect for modern jazz artists, deserves a lot of respect for his strict and traditional style of playing.

Marsalis, a jazz purist who believes real jazz was played by the likes of saxophonists Charlie Parker and John Coltrane, doesn't hesitate to voice his distaste for musicians he believes are trying to "kill" jazz.

Marsalis and his quintet opened the first set at Shryock Auditorium Thursday night with "The Majesty of the Blues," invoking images of a smoke-filled juke joint from yesteryear.

From the first song, it was evident that Marsalis was only interested in performing straight-ahead jazz. Throughout the concert, Marsalis refused to succumb to showmanship or spotlighting and merely nodded his head in approval during solos by the other band members.

Marsalis performed a punchy version of Charlie Parker's "Cherokee." He took liberties with the familiar song, but it suffered little from his rendition.

Marsalis opened his second set with "The House of William's," a song describing the succulence of southern cooking. Each band member took turns providing their musical version of such delicacies as sweet potato pie, red beans and rice and roast beef sauteed in garlic.

Marsalis dedicated "New Orleans Function," a double-edged funeral song, to the people he said are trying to kill jazz.

"Usually, you only find jazz at the end of the radio dial, where other stations bleed into the music," Marsalis said.

But he then assured the audience that jazz would never die, as long as there were people like himself around to play it.

"New Orleans Function," actually two songs in one, began with a mournful funeral march, featuring a wailing trumpet solo by Marsalis. An abandoned drum solo introduced the second-half of the song, which delved into joyous horn solos and a symbolic reaffirmation of life.

Next, it was all aboard "The Southern Crescent," a song dedicated by Marsalis to a train that runs through the South.

The song began with a slow chugging, provided by drums, and a long blast of the horn, provided by saxophone. Close your eyes and you were rumbling and swaying through the countryside, charging up hills and swinging through Southern towns.

After the first encore, audience members began to leave the auditorium, leaving a few die-hard fans to urge Marsalis to continue playing. Marsalis finally emerged and played a second encore.

LOSS, from Page 20

Aside from financial aspects, Handler has proposed five other reasons why the football program should be cut: prestige, entertainment value, alumni contributions, social issues and academics.

"I am doing my bit to improve the learning environment at SIU," Handler said. "I am trying to enhance the prestige of the institution."

"I have been thinking about this over the last 20 years, when I began to discover what was going on with coaches and athletes. Things like putting athletes in 'Mickey Mouse' classes, athletes not coming to class, kids not graduating and coaches cutting corners."

Handler first presented his argument to the Intercollegiate Athletic Advisory Committee Feb. 21. West, who sits on the IAAC, said Handler's talk was well done.

"I thought he had an excellent presentation," West said, "but by no means did he have all the facts. By what he knew, he thought it deserved some study. I wish they would have gone ahead and formed a study committee."

Subsequently, Handler spoke before the Faculty Senate March 21. The senate voted to send the issue into executive committee for further evaluation and study. Handler has also spoken to the Undergraduate Student Government, which has taken no action.

Graduation rates obtained by the DE and those released by Handler vary slightly. Handler's figures show 23 percent of recruited freshmen who entered SIU-C from 1980 through 1983 and tracked for five years have graduated.

Figures supplied to the DE by Nikki Chambers, the athletics department's academic adviser, show 25 percent of recruited freshmen and junior college transfers entering SIU-C during that same time period have graduated.

Athletics department figures show the graduation rate of all male recruited freshmen during the time period at 34 percent. The graduation rate for all on-campus freshmen for the period is 42.49 percent.

"(Graduation rates) have not been good," Hart said. "I think the revolving door of coaching staffs has something to do with that. There is no continuity there."

IAAC member Jack Cody, chairperson of educational psychology and the committee's faculty representative from the Missouri Valley, said the rates may not be very high, but they do not warrant cutting the program.

"You don't cut the program for it," Cody said. "The real question is of the athletes that do graduate, are they getting an education?"

RESIGNS, from Page 20

Galatia. He later led the West Frankfort Redbirds to a state tournament appearance and had a 115-63 record there before moving to the college ranks.

In 1978, Lubelt vowed to give up coaching when he was not hired as the Salukis' head coach.

Lubelt was a step away from the men's head job seven years later. When then-head coach

Allen Van Winkle had "lost the confidence of the administration," former Athletics Director Lew Hartzog publically admitted that he had offered the job to Lubelt. However, Van Winkle was retained and Lubelt subsequently resigned as Booster Club president and as consultant to the women's program.

However, Lubelt returned to the women's courtside the next season, and planned to retire after the 1986-87 season. But he stayed on for three more years.

Scott is convinced that Lubelt's retirement won't keep completely out of the picture, though. "I can envision our first home game next season," Scott said, "and George sending notes to the locker room at halftime."

Daley moves into city hall, inaugurated

CHICAGO (UPI) — Hours before his inauguration as the city's 45th chief executive, Mayor-elect Richard M. Daley moved personal belongings Sunday into the fifth-floor office of City Hall where his father once presided.

The swearing-in ceremony, before a crowd of about 2,500 invited guests, was set for 10 a.m. Monday at Orchestra Hall. Senior U.S. District Judge Abraham Lincoln Marovitz, who administered the oath of office six times to Daley's father, the legendary "Boss" Richard J. Daley, was given the honor of swearing in the oldest Daley son.

Daley's inauguration marks a personal as well as political milestone: it takes place on his 47th birthday.

The new mayor planned to shake hands in a City Hall receiving line open to the public Monday afternoon and was to be feted at a charity dinner dance at Navy Pier to benefit three children's hospitals, said Daley's news secretary, Avis LaVelle.

LaVelle stressed the swearing-in ceremony would be kept low-key in recognition of the fact that Daley was elected April 4 to fill the unexpired term of the late Mayor Harold Washington, the city's first black chief executive, who died Nov. 25, 1987.

Outgoing Acting Mayor Eugene Sawyer, defeated by Daley in the Feb. 28 Democratic primary, was asked to deliver a "Harold Washington Remembrance" at the ceremony. Author Saul Bellow, a Nobel laureate, will deliver a special reading.

Daley becomes the fifth mayor from the Irish political stronghold of Bridgeport, a working class neighborhood on the South Side.

Simon: Abortion should remain legal

By Joanne Bickler Staff Writer

Sen. Paul Simon and several of his colleagues have signed a friend of the court brief requesting that the Supreme Court uphold the 1973 Roe vs. Wade case that legalized abortion.

"Although I am opposed to abortion personally, I do not believe this is an area that the federal government should regulate," Simon said.

A pro-choice memo was printed in the Daily

Egyptian a few weeks ago, accompanied by a list of legislators names and addresses in Washington D.C.

"I get a variety of abortion mail, but I am encouraged lately by the number of folks writing in support of full access to reproductive health services," Simon's letter said.

The Supreme Court is considering several cases that may have an impact on or possibly overturn the Roe vs. Wade decision.

Hurdler Raske NCAA bound after success in Kansas meet

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

The Salukis will have a representative at the NCAA championships in Indianapolis, Ind. this May.

She has been there before. Hurdler Kathy Raske, who qualified for the NCAA 55-meter hurdles indoor championships in March, again is on her way to Indianapolis. Raske sprinted to a time of 13.47 seconds in the 100-meter hurdles at this weekend's Kansas Relays, to shatter her own school record and the NCAA qualifying mark of 13.60.

Raske said she had some nagging injuries and a couple problems during the race, but she made it through.

"I've got some tendinitis and a strained quad muscle," Raske said. "And I hit two hurdles. But the weather was great and so was the competition. I kind of planned to beat the qualifying standard here, I guess it worked out right."

Raske's plans worked out in both the preliminaries and the final. She ran a 13.47 in the preliminaries and just to make sure, she again beat the NCAA time with a 15.55 in the final.

Raske who tripped over a hurdle in the NCAA indoor championships, hopes to do better at the NCAA outdoor championships.

"It is like I'm getting another chance. I plan to make the most of it."

Coach Don DeNoon believes that Raske can better her 13.47 time.

"She was hurting a little," DeNoon said.

Daugherty signs 2 Indiana golfers; team places 10th at Iowa Invitational

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

Two Indiana golfers will join the Saluki women's golf team, coach Diane Daugherty said.

Beth Kozlowski, of Valparaiso, Ind., and Kimberly Haywood, of Evansville, Ind., both signed national letters of intent April 19 to play at SIU-C.

"We have signed two great golfers," Daugherty said.

Haywood finished second in the Indiana high school state tournament. Kozlowski, sister of former Saluki standout Tina Kozlowski, has been an all-conference pick all four years, MVP of her conference this season and team MVP the past two seasons.

Kozlowski said although her sister did well at SIU-C, golf fans should be prepared to accept her for what she has to offer.

"They have to take me for who I am," said Kozlowski, who plans to major in marketing. "They can stack all of what Tina did behind me, but that's their problem. I'm going to be what I want to be, not what Tina was."

Daugherty, who said she has known Kozlowski the past three years through her sister, said she hopes the incoming golfer will follow in her sister's footsteps.

"She could be as good or even better than Tina, and Tina was great for us," Daugherty said. "She will undoubtedly be compared to Tina, but I am not trying to put any pressure on her. We are just tickled to have her."

The team was in Iowa this weekend, where they picked up a 10th place finish in the Iowa Invitational, one stroke behind Purdue.

Lisa Merritt was low for the Salukis at 245.

"We beat Wichita State which is always good," Daugherty said.

Broken bone may sideline SIU-C runner

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

The women's track squad lost one of its premier athletes this weekend at the Kansas Relays.

Dora Kyriacou, last season's co-MVP of the team, broke her collarbone on the second leg of the 4 x 400 relay.

After handing off the baton, Kyriacou slowed down quickly because of a strain muscle. When she stopped, a runner from one of the other teams who had her head turned around ran over her and caused the injury.

"The other girl that was behind her just ran her over," coach Don DeNoon said. "She was in some pain. We took her to a hospital and found out the collarbone is broken."

The loss of Kyriacou overshadowed the performance of teammates Jane Schumacher, Rosanne Vincent, and Traci Davis.

Schumacher notched a third-place showing in the 1500-meters.

Vincent ran to a third-place finish in the highly competitive 800-meter field of runners. Vincent's time of 2:09.80 is the second-best time in the Gateway Conference this season.

Davis, who nearly broke the SIU-C 100-meter record last week, did the damage this weekend as she set a new record with her fourth-place time of 11.73.

Cornell pleased with runners following meet in Arkansas

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

The men's track team was a bit more successful on its second weekend of competing in Arkansas.

The Salukis traveled to the Tyson Invitational in Fayetteville, Ark., Friday to compete in Saturday's six team meet. The competition included Arkansas, Nebraska, and Oklahoma State.

Sprinter Erick Pegues led the Saluki charge with a first place finish in the 400-meter dash. Pegues sped to a winning time of 43.74 seconds. Coach Bill Cornell said that he was pleased with Pegues, and with all of his athletes.

"Erick ran the way we're used to seeing him," Cornell said. "I'm confident that on the right day Erick could get the NCAA qualifying time (46.10)."

"The overall team improvement was very encouraging. We're making the progress necessary to win the conference meet. I look to continue improving this weekend at home."

The 4 x 100-meter team of Guy Sikora, Donnell Williams, Pegues, and Garrett Hines raced to its third-place finish in a time of 41.03.

Baseball team has rough weekend dropping 3 games to Creighton

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The baseball team did its best disappearing act this weekend against Creighton in Omaha, Neb.

The Salukis saw their Missouri Valley Conference title hopes vanish and center fielder Doug Shields went 0-for-3 in Saturday's second game, ending a 15-game hitting streak.

All told, SIU-C was 1-3 against Creighton, putting the Salukis' record at 21-22 overall and 4-8 in conference heading into Tuesday's home doubleheader against Missouri.

On Sunday: The Salukis managed to avert a sweep of all four weekend games by taking the second game of a doubleheader 3-2 in eight innings. Creighton won the first game 6-2.

In the Saluki win, George Joseph (2-1) picked up the win and Kurt Endebrock collected three RBIs. Shaun Lewis knocked in the game winner in the top of the eighth.

Coach Itchy Jones and Rick Damico were both ejected from the game. Following a suicide squeeze at home plate in which SIU-C baserunner Tim Davis was called out, Damico was ejected for making a comment to the umpire from the bench and Jones for arguing with the umpire on the field.

In the first game, Chris Bend

(4-4) took the loss. Ed Janke went 2-4 for SIU-C and scored both runs.

On Saturday: Creighton won both games, 6-2 and 13-2.

Dale Meyer (4-5) was the losing pitcher in the first game. Shields had an RBI double that scored Rick Damico.

Derricote, but we need some depth," Smith said. "At running back, we have got some, but we need to be durable. A few good recruiting years will take care of that."

The Salukis went without several plays Saturday, holding a few back on purpose, Smith said.

"We have a dozen or so things we purposely did not run," Smith said. "We just did not want to show it."

SIU-C will exchange their film of the game with Western Illinois and their spring game.

Softball team's home weekend spoiled by Gateway squads

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

The Saluki softball team gained one win and surrendered three over the weekend, moving its record to 17-14 overall and 5-5 in the Gateway Conference.

The Salukis split a doubleheader Friday with Bradley. Sophomore Lisa Robinson threw a one-hitter in the opener which ended 2-0, but the Salukis were unable to handle Bradley's sophomore pitcher Sharon Kempf in the nightcap which ended 5-0.

Saluki Coach Kay

Brechtelsbauer had no explanation for the Salukis' losses.

"As a team we just didn't get the job done," said Brechtelsbauer.

Shelly Gibbs and Shannon Taylor each had two hits and an RBI in the opener for the Salukis while Robinson threw her second shutout of the season.

Against Western Illinois on Saturday the Salukis were beaten 11-3 and 4-1. All four Saluki pitchers touched the mound in the opener but not one could stop Western's bats.

Football averaging $550,000 net loss

By David Gallianetti
and Stephanie Wood
Staff Writers

The Saluki football program has cost the SIU-C athletics department nearly $4 million over the past seven years, according to statistics obtained from the athletics department.

From fiscal year 1981-82 through fiscal year 1987-88, the Saluki athletics department operation, scholarships and guarantees. Total revenue was subtracted from total costs to determine the net cost of sustaining the program.

Ten percent of the net cost was added to the total cost, the 10 percent representing indirect costs such as insurance, conference dues, tape and other supplies. The formula for figuring indirect cost was obtained from Associate Athletics Director Charlotte

First in a four-part series on the issue of eliminating Saluki football. The purpose of this series is to inform and present views from the University community.

Tuesday: Reactions from faculty and undergraduates.

Wednesday: History of eliminating football at SIU-C.

Thursday: Reactions from student-athletes and former football personnel.

has lost $3,854,050 on football, an average of $550,578.57 per season.

Records provided by the athletics department showed costs grouped into four categories: salaries, West.

For the seven years studied, 1984-85 saw the worst loss, $719,956.60, while 1982-83 had the smallest loss, $440,941.60.

Numbers presented publically by anthropology professor Jerome Handler, who is campaigning for the elimination of the football program, vary slightly with those obtained by the Daily Egyptian.

Handler's net loss figure is $4,021,991. The discrepancy in numbers arises from a difference in the formula used to calculate indirect costs.

SIU-C Athletics Director Jim Hart said there is more to cutting football than eliminating financial losses.

"All that is being considered is numbers," Hart said. "There are people involved here. You could make a case out of the numbers, but this is not just a numbers game. It involves people."

Hart was a quarterback for the Salukis from 1963 to 1965.

Dean Stuck, director of SIU-C's Renewal Institute for Practicing Educators and former overseer of the athletics department under then-President Albert Somit, said if making money is the reason for athletics, the University should cut all sports.

"If we look at cost then, I would suggest that several academic programs could be in big trouble," Stuck said. "Maybe they should be dropped, or dropped a level by eliminating the graduate programs."

"If the general public were to vote on what stays and what goes, it would be interesting to see the results. We might lose some academic programs. After all, we exist to serve the public, not the faculty."

Handler cites the needs of other University programs, especially Morris Library, as the impetus for his argument and consequent push to have football eliminated.

"The funding is the thing I am concerned about with this environment," Handler said. "I was discouraged with the deterioration of this research library due to lack of funds. That was the straw that broke the camel's back."

Morris Library is one of two research facilities in the state, the other being at the University of Illinois.

Spring scrimmage sees little offense

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

One thing is sure, football coach Bob Smith can never say the Salukis are beating themselves.

Playing in 90-degree heat Saturday afternoon, SIU-C's maroon and white squads played through four 12-minute scoreless quarters in the annual spring scrimmage.

"We're a bit disappointed we did not get into the end zone," Smith said. "If I had the No. 1 unit together and not scored, that would have bothered me."

The game's ending probably reminded the Salukis a lot about their last-second loss at Western Illinois in 1988. With the ball on the one foot line, the maroons and quarterback Fred Gibson could not get the score to the delight of the white defense.

"The defense was about insurmountable," Gibson said. "We're pretty happy with the passing game. We have got to work all the way around. I don't think anyone is ready to play the first game."

Smith said the defense turned in the same solid performance it has given throughout spring drills.

"They run with the ball well, and they didn't give up the big play or touchdown," Smith said. "I did not think our quarterbacks did poorly. I thought we would have done better with the running game early."

One of the problems on offense Smith sees is depth at running back and wide receiver.

"We have three good receivers in Wesley Yates, Chontal Brown and Rob

Iubelt resigns from women's assistant position

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

George Iubelt, who has made an immeasurable impact on Saluki basketball since 1959, has retired as assistant coach to the women's team.

Iubelt, 64, considered to be a master defensive strategist and best-known as the sidekick to former men's coach Jack Hartman, cited health reasons for his retirement.

"I felt I needed to get out and take better care of myself," said Iubelt, whose rehabilitation from a June hip replacement surgery and constant battle against illness often kept him from the sidelines this past season.

In January, Iubelt had told women's coach Cindy Scott and assistant Julie Beck of his intention to retire.

"It was a very, very sad day for me when he announced it. He's been my mentor," Scott said.

For the past seven seasons, Iubelt has been a bench coach and consultant to the women's program. Iubelt is credited with developing for the women's team the "player-defense" — a hybrid of man-to-man and zone concepts.

"The neat thing is that his philosophy will continue," Scott said. "As long as I am coaching, I will use his philosophy. I just hope I was a good learner."

Iubelt joined the women's coaching staff in 1982 after a four-year hiatus from the game. "It was interesting to see him make an adjustment from men to women," Scott said. "At first the kids were apprehensive, but now they love him."

Iubelt said that although he said female players did not possess the physical strengths of their male counterparts, the desire to win was equal.

"In many ways the women players were more coachable," Iubelt said. "They were anxious to learn. I was happy with the way they took instruction."

Iubelt, an Orient native who graduated from SIU-C in 1949, joined Harry Gallatin's staff in 1959. Then, while assisting Hartman and then the late Paul Lambert, Iubelt recruited or signed such Saluki greats as Walt Frazier, Mike Glenn and Joe C. Meriwether.

"George has been a very positive force in SIU basketball through the years," Hartman said in a telephone interview from his home in Manhattan, Kan. "He's good at X and O's, and a real people person. He has a pleasant way about him. An easy guy to like."

Iubelt's association with basketball began as a guard at West Frankfort High School. He enrolled at SIU-C in 1942, and joined Abe Martin's football team.

In 1949, Iubelt was hired as the basketball coach at
