

Mad River Review

Volume 3 | Issue 1

Article 5

2017

Smith Coronas in Bangladesh

Robert Bartusch

Follow this and additional works at: <https://corescholar.libraries.wright.edu/mrr>

Part of the Fiction Commons, and the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation

Bartusch, R. (2017). Smith Coronas in Bangladesh, Mad River Review, 3 (1).

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by CORE Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in Mad River Review by an authorized editor of CORE Scholar. For more information, please contact library-corescholar@wright.edu.

ROBERT BARTUSCH

Smith Coronas in Bangladesh

All the outsourced poets
Have nothing to do;
They all type furiously
On Smith Coronas in Bangladesh.
It's a hard pill to swallow
For former notable wordsmiths
Who are too lazy even
For the labor unions.
All the carpenters
Have become pornographers.
The hookers can't get any work.
They're all gathered around a telephone
Waiting for a thumbs up
From some Indian woman
Who makes two dollars a day.