Dear Merry,

I just rec'd your request today and am replying quickly so the curricula stuff may be ready for the meetings.

- A darker copy of syllabus is enclosed.
- OK on your rendition. As to your (actually some changes.) I made Gerry about an "extra line..." my answer is this: "Virtually all these exercises offer the students the latitude to examine the ways that race and gender relations (and at times, class relations) intersect in defining crime and justice."

- Enclosed my sign-off sheet.

Best of luck! Please remember to give something to Chris Rasche for the newsletters about this project.

I said a little about it* - but you →

Dear Merry:

Enclosed are syllabi for the courses you requested. Use them as you see fit.

NPR series on incest: Crime of Silence Educational Cassettes
Janice Ball and Portia Franklin
P.O. Box B
cost $30.00 Old Chelsea Station
New York, New York 10011

NP Television
Frontline series

Men Who Molest (I think it was produced in 1985, but the video isn't dated. A friend taped the program for me.)

Put me on the list to receive the package, and I will happily send a check to ASC. I will not be attending the ASC this year. I am expecting my first child--the due date is Nov. 19 and the airlines will not let me on the plane. I shall return to London just after Christmas. The address there if you should need it is 28 Middleton Road, London E8 4BS.

All the best,

Dear Mary Morash,

Thank you so much for having managed to have our outlines translated and for putting together the teaching material related to the question of women. I think that it will be very helpful.

I am sending you the more detailed outline of our pluridisciplinary seminar on women and the different normative systems. Please, do not feel that you have to translate that in addition to what you already did'.
(For the Fall session only)

seminar
Our seminar is finally more popular and well attended than we thought it would be. There are some 25 participants in addition to the six professors. The majority of the participants are women, at the doctoral level (some 17 of them), from every possible field or discipline, and from three universities: Concordia, Montreal and the State University of Quebec at Montreal. We will see if the attendance remains at the same level when winter comes and the snow storms disturb everything...

ASC
One of my research assistants, SYLVIE FRIGON, will be at the Chicago meeting and will most probably try to get in touch with you in order to get some material for our research. If possible, please give her some minutes of your time.

Thanks again. Good luck and if we can help, please let us know.

Dear Merry:

Sorry about the delay in answering your letter, but my mail had to be forwarded from FSU and I have also had one hell of a time finding things since my move here. I wonder if I will ever get completely unpacked!!

At any rate, I was unable to locate a non-mimeographed or dittoed copy of my syllabus from FSU. Even the disc with the syllabus on it is among the missing items from the move. You certainly have my permission to retype it if that will help. I am teaching almost the identical course here, but it is called "Women in the Criminal Justice System." Just in case, I have enclosed a copy of that syllabus.

The videotape, "Women and the Law," is distributed by:

Hope this all helps. See you in Chicago.
