

Contributors

MARGARET BEDROSIAN is a lecturer in English and comparative literature at the University of California, Davis; she will be teaching multiethnic literature in the United States during the next academic year.

SILVESTER J. BRITO is assistant professor of English at the University of Wyoming; he was elected as vice-president for NAIES during the 1984 Annual Conference.

JACK D. FORBES is professor of Anthropology and Native American Studies at the University of California, Davis; he served as the Tinbergen Chair Professor at Erasmus Universiteit Rotterdam during the 1983-84 academic year.

LEE HADLEY is assistant professor of English at Iowa State University; she teaches expository and creative writing.

JOHN M. HUNNICUTT is a professor in the department of sociology at the University of Wisconsin, Eau Claire.

ANNABELLE IRWIN is associate professor of English at Iowa State University; she teaches adolescent literature and creative writing.

NEIL NAKADATE is associate professor of English at Iowa State University; he teaches ethnic and American literature.

JUANITA PALMERHALL is the former assistant director of Minority Student Affairs at Iowa State University; she has moved to New Mexico to pursue writing and teaching.