NOTE

In this international seminar on Language Maintenance and Shift 7 (LAMAS 7 for short), we try to do the new paradigm, that is publishing the proceeding after the seminar was held. The positive aspect of the paradigm is that the presenters of the seminar have opportunity to revise their paper based on the responses of the audience. However, it takes longer time to process the proceeding until it is ready to distribute. Therefore, we apologize for being late.

In this opportunity, we would like to extent our deepest gratitude to Balai Bahasa Jawa Tengah for continuously cooperation in conducting the seminar. Thanks also go to the Dean of the Faculty of Humanities, the Head and the Secretary of the Master Program in Linguistics Diponegoro University, without whom the seminar would not have been possible. We would also express our special thanks to committee for putting together the seminar that gave rise to this compilation of papers.

We would like to thank Mrs. Shu-Chuan Chen, Ph.D. from Asia University Taiwan, Dr. Tupas Topsie Ruanni, from National Institute of Education Singapore, Drs, Pardi M.Hum. from Balai Bahasa Jawa Tengah; Prof. Ketut Artawa, Ph.D. from Udayana University, and Dr. Suharno, M.Ed. from Diponegoro University, as invited speakers in plenary sessions, and to all of the participants of the seminar.

INTRODUCTION

Communication is a human interaction where people use a language to interact with each other in their daily life. It is also part of human behavior which cannot be separated from human life. Language as a media for communication has a great variety of purposes. One of them is that by using language, people can exchange experiences and they can recognize others well. Besides, language also has an important role in all human activities. This study focuses on Minangkabau's language dialect, either sound or written. On the other hand, “accent” word is often confused by dialect. And refer to a variety of a language which is different from others not just in pronunciation but also in such matters as vocabulary, grammar and word-order. Whereas Minangkabaunese speaks minang language as the first language, it calls mother language and Indonesia language is second language. So, there is interference in language between both of them.

Language interference is the alternative used by bilinguals of two or more languages in the same conversation. The ability to switch linguistic codes, particularly within single utterances, requires a great deal of linguistic competence, which a linguistic practice constrained by grammatical principles and shaped by environmental, social and personal influences including age, length of time in a country, educational background and social networks.

The important research about morphophonological interference in Minangkabau's language: Traditional poetries of [Bungo Minta Maaf, Pasambahan Sesudah Makan, Manyuruah Orang Makan] mean [Flower of apologizes, Presents after eating, Commanding Someone to Eat]. Which is enrich knowledge not only from history and culture but language capable is the most important in our life because with language we can understand who speaker talks with us through culture. Indonesia has many cultures from Sabang until Marauke consists of over the 34 provinces and from various ethnic groups. Besides, getting benefit that a person learns varieties language either regional or international language. If someone is gone to other places and he or she understood of languages, it will be easier to transaction for business, asking location, and avoid misunderstanding through languages.

According to Wati, M.R.D.P (2015:18) said in bilingual society the words of first language and second language usually are used as technical terms in language acquisition, first language is that child learned first time in the circle of his family and it is called as mother language then most of Indonesian children's first language is their vernacular. In addition Ellis (1986:5) second language is an additional language learned after someone acquired their mother tongue. When Indonesian children go to school and learn Indonesian language after they acquired their mother tongue, their second language is Indonesian language (Sumarsono, 2007:49). In my conclusion, vernacular language can be affected Indonesian language when we met someone and talk with them used Indonesian by dialect, and this thing happened interference between languages.

Ellis (1986:19) claimed interference happens when second language is strongly influenced by first language and the role of first language in second language is negative one. He also said that when first language interference the learning of the second language such features of first language is transferred into second language. When learners of second language have difficulty to express their ideas because of their lack in necessary target language resources, they will resort to their first language to make up the insufficiency (Ellis, 1986:37). In other words interference is the impact from language contact and it is a phenomenon of the use of one language's substance into another language where the characteristics of other language still appear (Wati, 2015:19).

Related to interference in Minangkabau's language, to know the forms of morpheme and pronunciation in dialects are Minangkabau language to Indonesian language in traditional poetry. Besides, this study can also be considered as an attempt to enhance people's interest on ethnic cultures and preserve local languages, particularly Minangkabau language.

RESEARCH METHOD

The method of research is descriptive qualitative which the way or the tools that later on will help us in answer the problem formulation. Sugiyono (2011:18) stated that method of research is scientific way to get data for one's aim and purpose. Further, the writer chooses the traditional poetry (Minangkabau language) as the data resource. To collect the data, the writer uses some of steps; firstly, finding the data source, these are traditional poetry. Then, the traditional poetries read regularly in order to get the understanding deeply about the content. Next, finding some interference between Minangkabau's language and Indonesian especially vowel vocal then they are marked by highlighter, and categorizing the data based on the types of them after that re-checking the data, whether the data collected is really related to the topic or not and finally, analyzing and describing them according to the problem statement.

LITERATURE REVIEW

According to Weinreich in Rindjin et al (1981:24) interference divided into three kinds, they are phonological, grammatical and lexical interference. That grammatical interference covers morphological interference and syntactical interference. Interference can be happened in all language levels.

Elements in the Interference

At least there are three important elements that take part in the process of interference are:

1. Source Language or commonly known as the donor language. Language is the language of the dominant donor in a community language so that language elements often borrowed for the purpose of communication between members of the community.
2. The target language or the language of the absorber (recipient). Absorbing the language is a language that receives foreign elements, and then aligns the rules of pronunciation and writing it into the recipient language support.
3. Importation. This is referred to here is the shift of the elements of a foreign language is the language of the recipient (Chaer and Agustina, 2004:126).

Types of interference, they are:

1. Interference phonological
Phonological interference happens when bilingual speaker perceives and reproduces a phoneme of one language in terms of another language. Phonological interference can be seen when Javanese speakers add nasal sounds in front of name of place with preceding allomorphs like [b], [d] and [g]. For example: mBandung, nDepok, ngGombang (Chaer and Agustina, 2004:122).
2. Interference of Morphological

Crystal in Badudu (2004:11) said that morphology is the linguistic branch which studies about structure or form word through the use of morpheme. Morpheme is the smallest grammatical unit which has meaning (Chaer, 1994:146). For example, the word [kedua] consists of two morpheme [ke] and [dua].

Soewito stated morphological interference can happen if in word formation there is a language that absorbs affixes from another language (1983:56). Kridalaksana (1989:28-29) says that affixation is a process of changing lexeme into complex word form. Affixes from one language are used to form word in another language.

In morphological interference of Javanese language into Indonesian language, there are three kinds of affix (Chaer and Agutina, 2004:123) namely:

- a. Prefix is an affix placed in the beginning of word, for example: ke-pukul, ke-tabrak, ke-jebak.
- b. Suffix is an affix placed in the end of word, for example: jalan-an, cara-ne.
- c. konfix is an affix which contains two substances, prefix and suffix, for example :ke-kecil-an, ke-mahal-an.

Those examples come from the base form of Indonesian language + affix of vernacular; in this case it is Javanese language. Actually, the form with such affixes is not needed, because in Indonesian language there is parable affix for that. One example is prefix [ke] in word [ketabrak], there is correct affix [ter], so the word becomes [tertabrak] (Chaer and Agustina, 1995:162).

RESULT AND DISCUSSION

After the present writer had conducted the research to the interference which contains some of Minangkabau's tradisional poetries, the writer found some finding as follow:

Data 1: Prefix (me-)

Minangkabau Language

Lupo manaruah katinggalan
Manggihia badan dibao tagak

in English

he or she forgot put on and be left out.
the body is shiver when stands up

The data above show that morphological interference of prefix /ma/ in Minangkabau language becomes /me/ in Indonesia language which it is changing structure of word in beginning and following by others verbs. In addition, manaruah in Indonesian means menaruh means put on but in minangkabau language there is additional /a/, manggigia in minangkabau language but in Indonesian means mengigil without /a/ letter means shiver. Meanwhile, phonetic of phoneme /m/ is bilabial nasal occlusive in the beginning words with open lips.

Data 2: prefix (ber-)

Minangkabau Language

Basalam bajawek tangan
Kok basuo di labuah nangolong
Babaju kasumbo lusuah

in English

greeting and shake hands.
he or she met in public place.
wearing clothes had been worn out.

As we can see above data is morpheme interference namely /ba/ as prefix in minangkabau language, actually prefix /ba/ in Indonesian is /ber/. There is changed totally namely basuo, this word is break of rule in Indonesia as national language. In addition phoneme /b/ is bilabial occlusive in the beginning words.

Data 3: prefix (ter-)

Minangkabau Language

Sajuak taraso parasaan
Tasingguang bagageh turun
Nasi talatak mintak dimakan

in English

the feeling is good or calm of mind.
someone who offended should be down ego.
serving of rice on the table is ready to eat.

Based on the data, prefix /ter/ in Indonesia language different from minangkabau language /ta/ as prefix and verbs after /ta/ as prefix are changing totally and it is not suitable in Indonesia language. Meanwhile phoneme /t/ in the beginning and middle words are voiceless apical occlusive.

Data 4: Prefix (ke-)

Minangkabau Language	in English
Kambang nan bagai bungo limau	the flower likes as orange flower.
Pulang katampep babarito	he or she went home to give news or information.

As shown above, prefix /ka/ in Minangkabau language is changing /Ke/ in Indonesia language and not only prefix is changing but also followed by verb overall. Besides, phoneme /k/ is a velar voiceless occlusive in the beginning or middle position.

Data 5: prefix (pe-)

Minangkabau Language	in English
Palito alam dunia nagko	natural lights in this world.
Panyonsong alek jolong datang	waiting party for coming soon.
Pandapek dihati panglang dimato	he or she opines in his heart based on visible.

The data above showing prefix /pa/ in Minangkabau language actually in Indonesian is /pe/. Not only prefix is changing but also ending of word too such as [pelita] becomes [palito]. Phoneme of /p/ is voiceless occlusive, bilabial. This phoneme is absolutely in the first or middle position only.

Data 6: Prefix (se-)

Minangkabau Language	in English
Sasak ba tenggang nachodonyo	it is difficult to consideration.
Sacerek aia pambasuah baun nan	a teapot of water for washing part of body
Samanguak aia lah sadang	a bowl of water is enough

As shown in data above prefix /sa/ in Minangkabau language becomes /se/ in Indonesian and [samanguak] is not prefix change only but also in ending word there is additional /a/ letter. Pronunciation of /s/ is dental or alveolar fricative in contoid.

Data 7: Suffix –nyo

Minangkabau Language	in English
Silaturrahim salamonyo	mutual visits forever
Duo tigo ragam sambanyo	two until three kinds of food
Kapai tampek batanyo	he or she goes whereas looking for a place to discussion.

The data above are showing suffixes /nyo/ in minangkabau language and changing /nya/ in Indonesian. Some of words are not suitable in Indonesian such as [sambanyo] becomes [makanannya] which in Minangkabau of word /o/ to be /a/ in Indonesian, and [batanyo] becomes [bertanya] means ask which in minangkabau language /r/ is omitted. Includes diphthong following by /o/ and the pronunciation is rounded.

Data 8: Konfix or polymorpheme

Minangkabau Language	in English
Manunjuakkan jalan kabanaran	directing that rights a way.
Bakeh bataduah kahujan	shady spot when rain is fall.
Takambanglah payuang tiang tujuh	there are seven of poles umbrella that be spread out.

As we can see data above, konfix consists of more than two words and much more prefix /ma/ in Minangkabau language on the contrary /me/ in Indonesia besides /ka/ and /ta/. In addition, following varieties of suffix are /kan/ /an/ /lah/. Phoneme /m/ pronounces bilabial nasal occlusive, /k/ pronounces velar voiceless occlusive, /t/ pronounces in the beginning and middle words as apikodental voiceless occlusive.

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

After discussing the research findings, it can be concluded that morpheme in morphological interference consists of prefix, suffix and konfix or polymorpheme they called affixation. This research finding of prefix namely: /ma/ /ba/ /ta/ /ka/ /pa/ /sa/ in Minangkabau language to interference in Indonesian becomes /me/ /ber/ /ter/ /ke/ /pe/ /se/, suffix: /nyo/ becomes /nya/, konfix or polymorpheme: /me – kan/ /ke –an/ /te –lah/. [e] Vocal in Minangkabau language becomes [a] in Indonesian and ending word [o] in minangkabau language becomes [a] in Indonesian, besides, there are some of words in minangkabau language omitted namely [r] consonant, such as: basalam in Indonesian bersalam means greeting, babaju in Indonesian berbaju and in English is wear clothing. In addition phonetic in phonological interference includes rhyme, stress, and intonation. These are suitable with consonant and diphthong words to pronounce either rounded or unrounded of lips.

Meanwhile, phonetic of phoneme /m/ is bilabial nasal occlusive in the beginning words with open lips. In addition phoneme /b/ is bilabial occlusive in the beginning words. Phoneme /t/ in the beginning and middle words are voiceless apical occlusive, phoneme /k/ is a velar voiceless occlusive in the beginning or middle position. Phoneme /p/ is voiceless occlusive, bilabial. Phoneme is absolutely in the first or middle position only. Pronunciation of /s/ is dental or alveolar fricative in contoid, phoneme /nyo/ includes diphthong following by /o/ and the pronunciation is rounded.

So, many varieties of regional languages are very interesting should be learned because Indonesia has many islands including language differences from accent and vocabulary. Meanwhile, language is a play important role in our daily life because without language in fact so many misunderstanding and make disorder and it cannot trust in each other. So, we should be appreciated regional languages and learning language to avoid misunderstanding in many languages in this world.
