

SIX MILL INCREASE

School board budget up over $1 million

A rise in projected expenditures for the Terrace school district in 1980 has forced a rate hike of six mills it was revealed Tuesday night by Secretary-Treasurer Ted Wells.

The basic rate will rise from 41 mills to 43.5 mills, a rise which is taking place in other school districts. The non-shareable portion of the rate will also rise an additional 3.5 mills. Wells said some of the additional budget estimates took into account the salary increases which will be forthcoming to the teachers. Wells estimated the 9.5 to 10 per cent increase would cost around $660,000.

The 1980 budget forecasts an expenditure of $14.6 million, as compared to $13.3 million in 1979.

In other school board news, it was decided to allow students attending Kitwanga elementary junior secondary school to eat on the school bus on a trial basis.

The one-month trial period was instituted at the request of school officials who are concerned about the long bus ride some of the students must take. Often they don't eat breakfast and must endure an hour and fifteen minute ride.

There was some criticism of the continued absence of a school board trustee from board meetings. Glenn

Williams, the government appointed member from Kitwanga, has attended board meetings on an irregular basis. While noting it was not the role of the board to monitor the attendance of its members,

Joyce Krause said it was obvious Williams was not showing any real interest in the job. Elaine Johnson the outgoing trustee commented that "we seem to have failed in getting him interested."

Haisla take a land stand

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Herald Staff Writer

The Kitimaat Village Council has informed Kitimat District Council that no new development will be tolerated within Haisla tribal territory until native land claims are settled.

The letter states: "owing to the apparent inability of the two senior levels of government to come together to deal with the long outstanding question of Indian land claims settlement in British Columbia, we, the Haisla Nation are obliged to insist that henceforth no new development of any kind will be tolerated within our tribal territory until our land claims have been adequately negotiated and settled."

Council members agreed to contact the band council and arrange a meeting early in the new year to find out the location and extent of Haisla tribal territory.

A provisional budget for 1980 was tabled until the Jan. 14 council meeting.

The budget indicates that total revenue in 1980 will amount to an estimated $2,500,900.

Expenditures are estimated at $7,013,900 leaving a balance of $4,513,000 to be raised by taxation.

A request for a grant in lieu of taxes from the Kitimat Curling Club was also tabled for two weeks.

Council members agreed to write to a communications consulting company requesting information about television service.

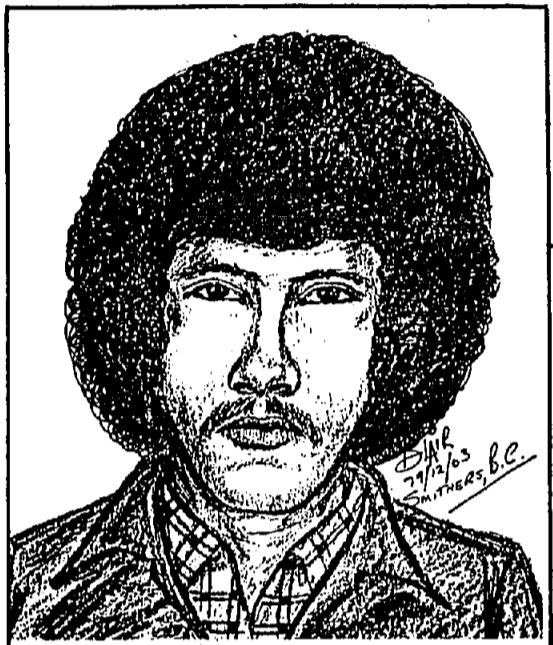

Alderman Lee Ellis said that if the company can offer "more and better television to citizens of Kitimat, council should investigate the matter."

Council adopted the 1980 Remuneration By-law giving members a raise in salary.

A motion by Alderman Ray Brady that the by-law be tabled until October, 1980 was lost for want of a second.

Brady said the salary increase should not be adopted until October so that "in November the people can tell us whether we deserve it."

Mayor George Thom and Alderman Max Patzelt have been appointed to the Kitimat-Sikine Regional District Board.

WANTED

RCMP in Terrace and Smithers are looking for this man in connection with a robbery in Terrace and one in Smithers.

The man is black, between 5'9" and 5'11" tall, weighs between 150 and 170 pounds and is in his late teens or early twenties.

It is alleged that this man entered the Kentucky Fried Chicken outlet on Lakelse Street in Terrace, ordered fries and paid for them. Then, when the girl behind the counter opened the till to make change, he allegedly reached into the till and grabbed $210 and fled.

He is also alleged to have done the same thing in Smithers in the Smithers News store last Wednesday.

If you know this man or see anyone answering this description, the RCMP request that you call them. In Terrace the number is 635-4911, and in Kitimat 632-7111.

TEENAGERS

A problem here

Is teenage pregnancy a problem in Terrace schools?

The answer appears to be yes according to school board trustees for School District 88. However, a suggestion to advertise a counselling service in the upcoming school yearbooks was rejected by a 4-1 vote at the Tuesday night board meeting.

Lisa Brock, the Terrace director for an organization called 'Birthright' wrote the board requesting the group be allowed to advertise its services in the yearbook, on school notice boards and through direct contact with students.

Birthright offers guidance and support services to pregnant girls and women in distress.

The subject of pregnancy and abortions recently received wide attention when Health Minister Rafe Mair said he would request health officials to investigate whether illegal abortions were being performed in the province's hospitals. Mair cited 1978 statistics showing there were 33.6 therapeutic abortions for every 100 live births in B.C., the highest rate in Canada.

However, the value of the help offered by Birthright was questioned by Trustee Joyce Krause. She wondered if the group put enough stress on prevention of unwanted pregnancies. Krause also wondered if Birthright's avowed nonpolitical stance was consistent with its pressuring for changes in the abortion laws.

Another trustee, Nan Harrison, advised the board to put its emphasis on preventative measures and instead revise the present health program in this area. The board voted to thank Birthright for its offer, but declined their help. Trustee Dennis Brewer, however, cast a dissenting vote.

"Basically, I don't think we have any information to deny this opportunity," he stated. "I really think we made an emotional type decision on the spur of the moment."

Brewer said a program should be designed to suit all the parties involved, including parents. He said at present there is some attempt at preventative education at Skeena and Caledonia schools.

"It is not enough however, and we must have a program which goes through the school system," he said. He said the board has been examining the institution of such a program the last two months.

Socreds cut researchers

VICTORIA (CP) — Social Credit MLAs abruptly eliminated Tuesday an office that has been a source of embarrassment for them since September by firing their four remaining research employees.

"I guess some of us are Scrooges," caucus chairman Jack Kempf said in response to a reporter's remark that the firings were "nice Christmas presents."

Among those fired was Ellen Mackay, a researcher who was a key figure in the recent so-called political dirty tricks revelations, which involved the sending of letters with phoney signatures to newspaper editors in an effort to discredit the New Democratic Party opposition.

Kempf, MLA for Omineca, denied the sackings were connected with the scandal which is under investigation by the RCMP. Two of the fired researchers who talked with reporters said they felt the dirty tricks are behind their dismissal.

The jobs of the four researchers were eliminated immediately and Kempf gave the employees five minutes notice before announcing the decision to reporters.

The four, researchers Ms. Mackay, Bob Husband, and Susan Cowan, and their secretary Penny Lyton will be given severance pay, said Kempf. However, Husband and Ms. Cowan have worked for the caucus for only four months and under provincial labor law, six months employment is needed to qualify for severance pay.

Jack Kelly, a fifth employee in the office, resigned Oct. 9 after a tape recording was produced on which he was heard advocating dirty tricks to defeat the NDP. He has since made efforts to regain his job.

Ms. Mackay, appearing shaken after the announcement, said she would be meeting her lawyer, Robert Gardner of Vancouver, today and is contemplating legal action against the 31-member caucus. She also was involved in the tape-recording.

Kempf said the party caucus had been polled by telephone in the last two days and a decision had been made to eliminate the research office.

The move was made, he said, in the light of budgeting decisions made last summer and the caucus had opted for changes to "restructure and reorganize" its support staff. But he added there was no intention to find the four party workers new jobs.

"It's got nothing to do with that," said Kempf, when asked if the firings were related to the dirty tricks affair. "As far as I'm concerned, the letters-to-the-editor affair was over and done with a long time ago."

Kempf has been on the hot seat several times during the affair himself. As caucus chairman, he was expected to discipline those who advised party officers to send bogus letters.

But Ms. Mackay refused a reprimand and one-month suspension without pay for her part in the affair, saying she was acting under the authority of party officials. Instead, she hired Gardner to look after her interests.

Ms. Mackay said each member of the office was given a letter saying their services were no longer required but there was no explanation provided.

The dirty tricks affair surfaced in September when Premier Bill Bennett was on a business trip in Asia but the tapes involving Kelly and Ms. Mackay were sent to party constituency officers before last May's provincial election.

Since the revelations, many forged letters have been revealed and three party officials, Kelly, George Lenko, executive assistant to Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy, and Ron Grieg, an assistant communications adviser to Bennett, have resigned.

DEATH THREATS

Iran rejects U.N.

TEHRAN (CP) — Students holding 50 Americans hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran today rejected a UN Security Council appeal for their release as the Iranian government made new and stronger threats against the captives.

In Washington, U.S. officials indicated that the hostages had been threatened with death if they did not confess to charges of spying and pro-shah activities that are being drawn up against them.

The official, who asked not to be identified, said the Americans "have been threatened with execution if they fail to cooperate with their captors."

"You can assume that I don't mean co-operation... in routine matters," he said.

A student spokesman reached by telephone at the embassy said the Security Council resolution calling for the immediate release of the hostages had been rejected because the council "is orchestrated by the United States."

"As it is also obvious that the United States has great influence on this council, which has nothing to do with the oppressed people of the world, its opinion is worthless as far as we are concerned and will not affect us in any way."

In another development, the secretary of Iran's governing Revolutionary Council, Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, said the hostages will be tried before a revolutionary court under Islamic law.

The penalty for spying under Islamic law is death.

Beheshti said the students would be asked a revolutionary court to take responsibility for such a trial.

His remarks appeared to be at odds with statements made Tuesday by Iranian Foreign Minister Sadeq Ghotbzadeh, who told a French newspaper that the students will try the captives.

Ghotbzadeh said the hostages will be tried as spies "for sure," but that head of state Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini could overrule any sentences and pardon the captives "if the United States extradites the shah."

Ghotbzadeh also accused U.S. Charge d'Affaires L. Bruce Laingen and embassy officials Michael Howland and Victor Tomseth — the three top U.S. diplomats in Iran who are being held at the foreign ministry — of "having committed crimes."

"Thus once they leave the ministry compound, they will fall into the hands of justice and I will then be the first to demand they be arrested and tried," he said.

Last week, Ghotbzadeh said the three diplomats were "free to leave" Iran. But he later reversed himself when the students at the embassy repudiated his remarks.

The Iranians seized the embassy and those inside it Nov. 4, demanding that the U.S. surrender deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran for trial. The Carter administration refused and Tuesday joined the 14 other Security Council members in unanimous adoption of the resolution urging the release of the captives.

The resolution was adopted on the fourth consecutive day of debate in which every speaker called for the release of the hostages. The Iranian government boycotted the debate,

Zimbabwe plan okay

LONDON (AP) — Britain and Patriotic Front guerrilla leaders agreed today on a compromise plan for a ceasefire in Zimbabwe Rhodesia, opening the way for a settlement in the guerrilla war that began seven years ago, peace conference officials said.

A spokesman for Commonwealth Secretary-General Shridath Ramphal, who helped resolve the ceasefire dispute, told reporters of the accord after Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, leaders of the black nationalist guerrillas, met with British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington for an hour.

Immediately afterward, Carrington, chairman of the peace talks that began here 13 weeks ago, told the House of Lords the Patriotic Front must still formally agree to the ceasefire, but he left little doubt they would.

Hesaid a British governor, whom he did not identify, would travel to Salisbury in the next few days to take power in the breakaway British colony during a transitional period for free, internationally-recognized elections.

British authorities privately reported the chosen governor is Lord Soames, 59-year-old son-in-law of the late Sir Winston Churchill.

Carrington said final ceasefire arrangements need not take more than two or three days. He also announced a bill will be introduced into Parliament on Thursday

He borrowed his coat

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — A Suffolk sheep named 490 may have been fleeced of its wool by parasites, but the beloved bovid now is a sheep in sheep's clothing.

490, who belongs to Deanna Walker and Bill Oves, lost its fluffy fleece after being treated for painful parasites with a medicine the veterinarian said would either kill or cure the sheep.

490 was cured, but another sheep treated with the medicine was killed. While 490's fate was preferable, the little critter was left without a winter coat. So Ms. Walker fashioned a fine jacket out of an old felt. The coat fits snugly from 490's neck to derriere, covering its sides and securing in front with strings tied in a nice bow on its chest. Strings looped around 490's hind legs keep the coat from slipping off.

"I tried to cut it to fit and make it comfortable," said Ms. Walker, who explained 490's name.

"We number the ones we plan to get rid of to keep from getting emotionally attached," she said. 490's baldness is not thought to be permanent, and patches of wool are beginning to reappear.

No snow a concern

By JIM POLING
VANCOUVER (CP) — It's not even beginning to look a bit like Christmas to some Yukon and northern British Columbia residents.

In fact, it's possible that Santa's sleigh runners will be throwing sparks when they touch down in places like Whitehorse, Prince George and Fort Nelson less than three weeks from now.

There simply has not been enough snow yet to cushion an overloaded sleigh and an overweight pilot.

No snow at this time of year is almost unheard of in the North. However, some communities have been shattering long-standing drought records.

snowless. The weatherman says only flurries — no major falls — are in sight.

"Yes, it is unusual," said the Whitehorse weatherman. "We usually get 23 centimetres of snow in November alone."

He's lived in Whitehorse 25 years and has never seen a green Christmas there.

The skiers and snowmobile enthusiasts are upset. But to pass time, they can go skating on smaller lakes that have frozen clear as glass.

The weatherman says the absence of snow has left the ice so clear that "fish can be seen swimming below."

November was the fifth consecutive month of below-normal precipitation in Prince George. Total precipitation during November was 2.8 millimetres, the lowest since 1921, when recordkeeping began.

In Prince George, 800 road kilometres north of Vancouver, die-hard duffers were still firing white balls around the golf courses last weekend. Some snow fell Monday, but only a meagre one centimetre remained Tuesday.

There wasn't a flake to be found at Fort Nelson, the far northeastern B.C. community that is the final jumping off point to the Yukon.

If that's not startling, consider the Yukon capital of Whitehorse.

That city, just down the road from where a snowy and froebitten Sam McGee was cremated in Robert Service's famous poem, is

HAM CATS WANTED
UPPINGHAM, England (CP) — Cats have been invited to audition for a part in a drama production to be staged by Arts Theatre in Uppingham. The producers have advised that the successful cat must be docile, good-tempered and fond of bright lights.

A normal November in Prince George sees 19.1 millimetres of rain and 39.4 centimetres of snow, for a total liquid-measure precipitation of 54.9 millimetres.

"We've got a real drought going here," said the weatherman.

Other northern communities do have snow, but not much. Dease Lake in northwestern B.C. and Watson Lake in the southern Yukon had reported one centimetre of white stuff on the ground.

Weather forecasters say the situation is starting to look grim for the spring runoff next year.

However, the immediate concern for northern folks, especially the little ones, is that heavily-laden sleigh.

Not to worry, says one forecaster.

"The odds are always with Santa. It might take a while, but there'll be plenty of snow for Christmas."

Piracy with paint now

BEIRUT (AP) — The pirates of Lebanon fly no Jolly Roger and clench no knives between their teeth. The tools of the modern pirate are paintbrushes and a fat chequebook.

Under paintbrush piracy, old freighters are sold to new owners after leaving for their destination. While the ship is still at sea, a new name is painted on and a new flag is hoisted. Its cargo is resold and unloaded at an illegal port.

Since the 1975-76 civil war, more than 50 lost freighters have been sighted off Lebanon's 155-kilometre-long coast.

The Middle East, was practically paralysed because of disputes between Christian militia forces and Syrian peace-keeping troops.

A Beirut banker said legitimate importers cannot compete with the paintbrush pirates — a 26-inch West German color television set costs about $2,000 if purchased legally. A smuggled set costs less than half that.

The tale of the Betty is a typical case of paintbrush piracy.

The Betty, originally owned by Pero Shipping Co. Ltd. of Cyprus, sailed from Yugoslavia on Aug. 16, bound for Jidda, Saudi Arabia. Instead of going to the Suez canal, the Betty stopped at Pulos island in Greece for repairs and fueling.

It stayed at Pulos until the end of August. During that time, Pero sold the Betty to another Cyprus-based

Wells to stay

The board of trustees of School District 88 announced Tuesday night that the tenure of Ted Wells, secretary-treasurer for the board, has been extended an additional three years.

Wells, who has been with the school district for 23 years, was due to retire in April 1980 when he would reach retirement age of 65. However, Wells had indicated he would be receptive to an offer to stay on the job for a few more years.

The board took Wells up on that offer, said Trustee

Joyce Krause.

"It will allow us time to find a replacement for his position of secretary-treasurer," she said. "He is a valuable employee and he'll be difficult to replace."

Wells, for his part, expressed pleasure at the prospect of an additional three years on the job. He said he enjoys the work and noted the fact the board requested he stay on the job was a key factor in his decision to postpone retirement.

While Wells' attendance at board meetings will continue for the next three years, Tuesday's meeting was the last one for Trustee Elaine Johnson. Johnson, who has served on the board for six years, decided not to run for re-election on Nov. 17. Jack Cook, the chairman of the board, said Johnson was a valuable member and her ideas and suggestions to the board would be missed. The board then accorded the outgoing trustee a standing ovation. Johnson will be replaced by Diane McKay, who was elected by acclamation.

MLA Frank Howard (NDP-Skeena) says Eurocan Pulp and Paper Ltd. should be required to set up a back-up generator source to prevent any possible recurrence of the November fire which destroyed its Kitimat mill precipitator.

"It seems to me that, if an alternative electrical generating source had been available to keep the Cascades (the pollution control equipment) in operation then the fire would not have started and we wouldn't now be faced with a pollution problem in Kitimat," he said.

"Eurocan should be required to install such an alternative electrical energy source to be on stand-by in case there are power failures in the future."

The Skeena MLA said he would present his suggestion to Stephen Rogers, the new B.C. environment minister.

Hamilton said the problem of adapting to a new language is alleviated somewhat in that some of the children have some knowledge or previous exposure to English.

"I was watching one of the youngsters in class the other day and it was going very well," he commented.

"I would suspect at the rate they are going, many of these pupils will be able to communicate by the end of June," he said.

He indicated constant contact is being kept with the department of employment and immigration as to the possibility of additional families coming here in the future. Hamilton said there may be a few families coming to New Hazelton in the near future, but there is no confirmation yet.

AND IT'S LIVE

Doubles is a pleasure

By DON SCHAFER
Herald Staff Writer

The Terrace Little Theatre's production of Doubles, a farce by Fred Carmichael, provides an entertaining two hours of comedy for those who would forsake their TV sets to venture out into the slush.

Doubles is a farcical comedy set in a small resort hotel in Mexico, and comprises two acts which are in fact separate plays connected by setting and the characters of Wilma Burroughs and her two assistants, Luz and Julian.

Luz and Julian, Penny Kent and Mark LaPrairie, are the domestic assistants who clean up the hotel, and Burroughs, Michele Butler, is the owner.

I am, like most people brought up in front of the TV set, suspicious of live productions of any kind, if only for the reason that we are conditioned to believe in the great boon of video-tape delay and the editing out of mistakes as the highest form of performing art. Such is not the case, as anyone who has seen a really good stage production or a really poor TV show can attest.

The performance of Doubles I saw was well worth the trip into the brand-new snow last Friday night. Sure, there were one or two stumbled-up lines and the odd missed cue, but this happens in any live production, no matter who is involved.

I enjoyed it. The first vignette was about two couples staying in the adjoining rooms, represented by a very well-made set. One couple is a lady screenwriter and her new lover, the other is a ham actor and a young girl with whom he is trying to recover his lost youth, and guess who has been recently separated from each other.

The audience observes the actor and the screenwriter each having their last fling. Shelly, played by Cindy Johnson, and Christopher, Brian Koven, portray the couple who are trying to escape from each other's influence, while David Dossor as Howard and Denise Kenney as Jackie are their at-first-willing victims.

The second act concerns a heroin conspiracy and three older people who are trying to enjoy their last few days in Ajijic, the small Mexican town.

Janet McColl as Amy Dimston, Ken Morton as Donald Steed and Dossor as Simon Clugg are the three put-upon vacationers who unwittingly become part of the smugglers' plot, these being Johnston as Lily, Koven as Max and John Ricketts as George. This plot is a typically complicated detective-story spoof, and proceeds at a breakneck pace.

No Laurence Olivier was in the cast, but hell, this is local theatre and, as far as my experience goes, good local theatre at that. It isn't fair to criticize them on the basis of what is seen on Channel Nine. And that's not saying the cast was not good. They are, and although no Oscars are forthcoming, they brought the play off.

Doubles was funny. When you come right down to it, a comedy is supposed to be funny.

That's what counts, as far as I'm concerned.

Is a driver's attitude towards other road users better at 8 a.m. or 5 p.m.? Is the level of driving skill generally better at 12 noon or at 12 midnight? What makes a good driver? These are some of the questions the Canada Safety Council is asking each and every driver in Canada to consider during the 1979 "Safe Driving Week."

The first two of these questions can only be answered by each individual driver-for as humans, we differ. The object of the exercise is to encourage awareness of the times that might be our driving "weak" points. Of course, there are many other factors that can play a part in the decision at any given time. The Safety Council is offering some suggested answers to the third question:

- A good driver must have:
- knowledge of traffic laws and regulations
  - driving skills
  - knowledge of defensive driving practices and techniques
  - a vehicle that is mechanically fit and safe to drive
  - in good physical and mental health and, a good attitude.

The Council says in a leaflet just published that all of these are critical to safe driving, but the single most important ingredient is the last—a good attitude. There is no substitute. A negative or poor attitude can be disastrous—even for a driver with all the other skills and qualities.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir: Most local observers would agree that there certainly is a rumbling of voices over the so-called Kemano II (or as we shall increasingly hear, the Kemano Completion Project).

The Smithers 'Interior News' has led in the regional investigation of Alcan's intentions. According to editorial comment, these reporters have been 'stonewalled'. The Financial Post appears to have the inside track. On November 10th, it reported that Alcan has the 'unique opportunity of doubling its hydro output (in B.C.). Not an admission of intent, but more than a subtle hint. Combined with the fact that Alcan wishes to be known as an 'energy' stock, the evidence speaks for itself.

The debate over fish loss and habitat destruction has begun, as Alcan proceeds with its plans. The economic debate on fish dollars vs. aluminum is guaranteed to be critical to the future of Kemano II. Food vs. Metal. Interestingly, this emphasis must be seen in light of the similarity of strategy in both industries.

The fishing industry appears determined to export more Canadian jobs with frozen, not fully processed fish to Japan. Similarly, Alcan's desire for further capacity hinges on further 'opportunities' in the Japanese market. The export of increased amounts of raw aluminum has arisen due to the increased costs of energy for smelting in Japan. Once again, the export of jobs with raw material to a low cost wage area. Once again, Canadians are forced to buy back goods from another country and potentially hurt our balance of trade. All this is made possible due to the giveaway of inexpensive land and electrical capacity granted Alcan more than a generation ago.

As with fish, the fabrication and production of aluminum goods moves out. Yet one can rest assured that Alcan will prompt itself as a 'Good Corporate Citizen' in the up-coming debate. It will ignore the export of jobs and talk instead of the benefit of increased employment in B.C. Certainly, a large number of construction jobs are possible, but what of permanent employment?

As a person associated with the Building Trades, I must take these jobs seriously. Of course, if Alcan is truly concerned about job creation, an alternative exists. I'm certain that construction workers would be more than pleased to build facilities to further process aluminum ingots. Always willing to help create more Canadian jobs in secondary manufacturing!!

Just a final note and observation, as the war of words heats up. Alcan has other problems on its mind. There are reasons why this 'Good Corporate citizen' has faced off with other countries. Alcan's international reputation is, at best, questionable. I do believe that it would serve us well to learn from the experience of other nations in which this multinational has or does under legislative controls in Jamaica, be accused of support of apartheid in South Africa, or economically support a military dictatorship in Brazil? Alcan's words must be weighed with an eye to these matters. Before one chooses sides in the Kemano debate, there certainly are many factors to consider.

Publisher comments on the dog situation

By KNOX COUPLAND

The community we live and work in is on the verge of an old fashioned range war.

Instead of sheep herders and cattle ranchers, the antagonists are livestock farmers and dog owners.

It is of little value to try to assess blame, as in most conflicts of this sort there are strong arguments on both sides.

The tally at this point is a number of dead sheep and at least two badly injured goats, as well as the known dead and missing dogs. Local doctors and hospital officials will also relate almost countless cases of people bitten by dogs here. No one, however, has been killed, yet.

Will it be necessary for a human being to be mauled, permanently maimed or even killed before sanity prevails?

As a residential community we simply cannot allow animals to range freely on our streets.

Dogs have an instinct to 'pack' and hunt prey. Believe it or not, your friendly family pet, after frolicking with the children, can become a frenzied predator when caught up in the excitement of the hunt.

The results of a dog pack hunting down livestock and even other dogs are sickening. The retaliation of the farmers can be just as swift and brutal.

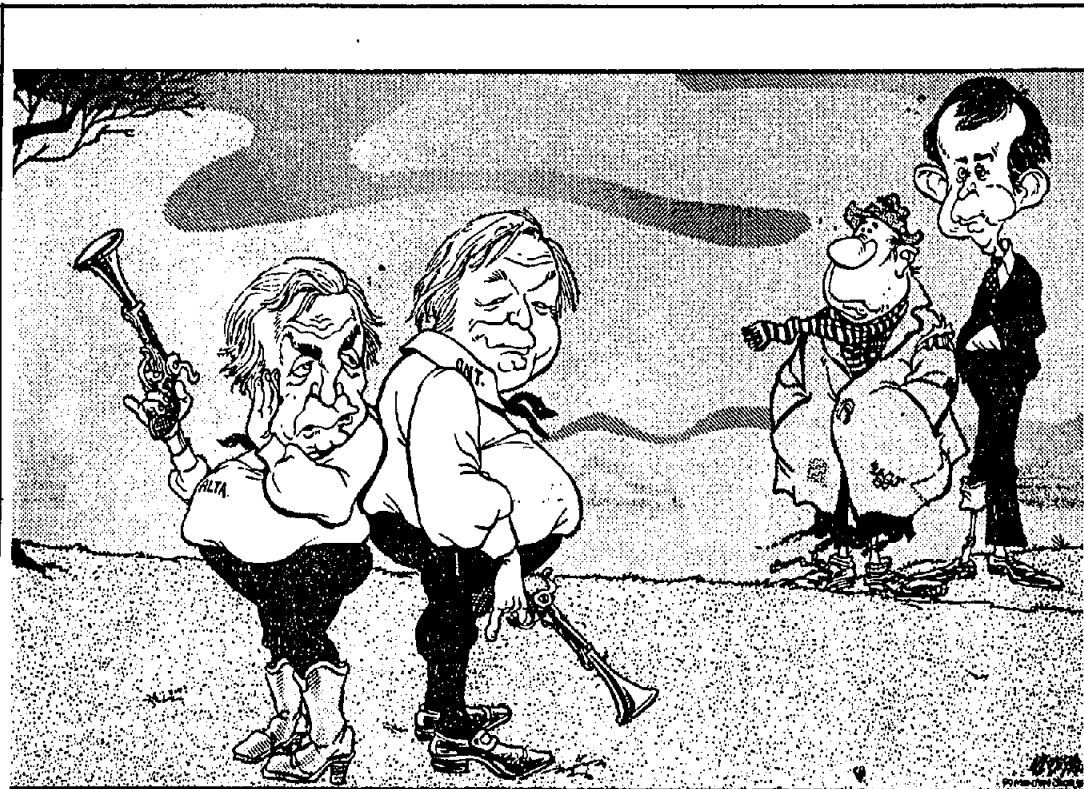

When emotions are running high the next logical step may seem to be retaliation against the dog or livestock owner.

The Herald calls on its readers to take immediate action before this crisis results in a human tragedy. Phone or write your aldermen, the mayor or your regional district representative today and demand our streets be made safe for our children as well as for both the livestock and occasional pet that does get free by accident.

We call on the District of Terrace and the Regional District of Kitimat Stikine to take immediate action before it is too late.

All dogs found loose on the streets must be impounded immediately and without exception. The excuse that the manpower is not available is simply not good enough.

Animals, that means dogs as well as livestock should be kept in proper enclosures and please, please keep the rifles and shotguns on the shelf.

WHO LOSES?

The Premiers battle

By MARJ WELCH
TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis doesn't like to play the numbers game when he discusses domestic oil prices. He prefers to talk about being Canadian.

"I am not a pocket-calculator nationalist and I am not about to do a cost-benefit analysis of my citizenship," he said in a recent speech.

But if backed into a corner he'll quote figures — 60,000 jobs, $2.9 billion in income, $5.4 billion in consumer costs. That's what Ontario says quickly shoving the price of domestic crude toward world levels will cost Canada.

Sure, Ontario acknowledges that Alberta gave up $15 billion by selling its oil to Canadians cheaply.

But, as Davis often says, Ontario contributed $16 billion in federal transfer payments between 1967 and 1977 to help other areas of Canada.

"And the principle is not one of dollars," a Davis aide said. "You can't put a price on being Canadian. We have to share the wealth."

And the west wasn't worried about distorting the market in the 1960s when Ontario started paying more for Alberta oil under the Ottawa Valley agreement, he said.

That's when the federal government drew a line across the eastern end of Ontario. Areas to the east used imported oil which was cheaper at the time, those to the west paid more for Canadian crude.

An energy ministry official said gasoline, which cost about 40 cents a gallon, cost one-half to one cent a gallon more because domestic oil was used.

For about 10 years Ontario paid $35 million a year extra to use western oil — until 1973 when international prices went out of sight.

"It was never a horrendous penalty," the official said, but Ontario paid it without fussing. It also helped establish a domestic oil market.

"It was the appropriate thing to do in the national interest."

So William Davis talks about national interest.

He told a recent federal-provincial meeting on oil pricing that "the ultimate security of our country has absolutely no place as a bargaining chip around this table."

Ontarians are willing to pay more for oil if the extra earnings are pumped into ensuring energy self sufficiency for Canada, he said.

"But we cannot accept a change in the existing price agreement that would generate windfall profits rather than oil security and economic recession rather than shared national growth."

And Ontario doesn't agree that Alberta must line up diversified industries to fill in when the oil runs out.

First, the oil will be there for a long time. Davis told the first ministers that oil sands production will continue for 30 years with current technology, 200 years with new technology.

Secondly, without adding a penny, the $5-billion Heritage Trust Fund will be worth $10 billion by 1985.

Alberta is running its affairs almost without taxing its residents while the federal government and consuming provinces have huge deficits — not exactly a stabilizing thing for Canada, Ontario officials say.

Canada has oil while others, like Japan and Germany, have none so it can set a "made-in-Canada" price to keep its energy resources cheaper.

This will allow a competitive edge over other industrial nations rather than accepting an "artificial, erratic and soaring world price."

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed has promised Ontario the lowest-priced crude oil of any manufacturing complex in the industrialized world even after a price raise.

"We've always argued that we should have that," Davis said in an interview. "It's in the national interest to have it."

He said Prime Minister Clark, a Progressive Conservative like Davis and Lougheed, seems to back this theory. And the Ontario premier is optimistic about other parts of his pricing package.

It appears the western producing provinces and federal government don't want world prices, he hopes — perhaps they will set a cost higher than Ontario would like but at least it won't double suddenly.

Canadians pay $13.75 a barrel for domestic oil, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries charge twice that.

And Davis said the rest of the country basically accepts the Ontario argument that Canada must aim for energy security and improved self-sufficiency.

But Ontario is alone in wanting the cost of Canadian crude oil kept well below world levels. Its premier was accused of being parochial as he battled alone at the federal-provincial level.

Davis told the first ministers that raising the cost $4 a barrel next year and adding a 30-cent federal excise tax will take $700 from every Canadian household.

"There can be no question that you will risk a national recession."

The premier has reminded the rest of the provinces that "a healthy Ontario means a healthy Canada."

And Davis has used strong words over the situation. He told a recent dinner in Toronto he was developing "a slow burn" over the western view that Ontario is just greedy.

"We're not saints here in Ontario but we have helped build this country and we have shared our abundant wealth with other Canadians in each and every region of this country — no strings attached."

But there's a light side, too. At a federal Conservative fundraising affair, Davis joked that he had heard Finance Minister John Crosbie was planning to give Ontario to Alberta in his December budget.

OTTAWA OFFBEAT

BY RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa—So long in power—roughly 40 of the past 45 years—the Liberals never change.

They seem incapable of accommodating the changing circumstances of victory and defeat.

And that's understandable, for in all the years since the defeat of Conservative Prime Minister Richard Bedford Bennett in the mid-1930's they've only once tasted the bitter fruit of rejection by the taxpayers...until this Spring.

They suffered the first humiliation, briefly, for a shade more than five years, when John Diefenbaker led his Conservatives out of nowhere in 1957—how time flies, it was nearly 23 years ago—to take power.

Now power to the Liberals is not just something to savor, the pleasure of personal ego-tripping, nor the profitable joy of rewarding your friends and allies.

It's more than even an incurable addiction. Power has become regarded by the Liberals—after all national supremacy long has been their way of political life—as their personal possession.

Not only do they deeply resent its loss in their every blood and bones, they simply can't comprehend it.

To them it has been, for years, beyond understanding that the usually appreciative taxpayers should become disenchanted with the legislative wonders they cause to come about.

But it has happened.

Twice now.

First time with Dief.

And now, this second time in 45 years with Joe Clark.

Their response has been totally irrational each time.

In 1957 when the Conservatives—as surprised as they themselves were—astounded everyone by beating them, the dogma of the divine right to rule had become, even then, so deeply engrained they refused to accept it.

So Lester Pearson, the freshman Liberal leader, naively was persuaded by Jack Pickersgill, who learned his tricks at Mackenzie King's knee, to ask the newly triumphant Conservatives to politely step aside and allow them to get on with the business of running the country, which, they believed in their hearts was so rightly theirs.

Right there on the floor of Parliament, Mr. Pearson, in all sobriety, moved a non-confidence motion reading...

"...In view of the desirability at this time of having a government pledged to implement Liberal policies; 'His Excellency's advisers' (that was Dief and Company) should, in the opinion of this House, submit their resignations at once."

If you saw and heard it that day, you'd never forget it.

The House was thunderstruck, except for the Liberals who saw nothing extraordinary about it. In their view the universe was unfolding as they thought it should.

Then Dief replied, and the late Bert Herridge, NDP member for an inter-mountain British Columbia riding, remarked that Dief, in cutting up Pearson, had "transformed the House into an abattoir."

Which indeed he had, for 12 days later he used the arrogantly presumptive Liberal motion as the springboard to an election that won him that record 208 seats.

Now on what they regard as the "wrong" side of the House, in Opposition, the Liberals are in the same mood of unreality.

They're challenging the Conservatives to tests of voting strength in the minority House, and coming close.

Close to toppling the new Clark government—and if they and the NDP win the two by-elections this month, they'll have the troops for it—and close to disaster again.

Arrogance beat them last Spring.

And if they continue playing with fire in the House, arrogance will consume them again, for even the Liberals admit the country is in no mood, or financial shape, for a Winter election.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir, The enclosed letter received no consideration, was merely read and filed, at the Council Meeting of Monday, November 25th.

The incumbent alderman made the statement from a public platform. The press reported it. He repeated it on radio the week of the municipal election. The mayor became involved.

When elected persons confront one another over public funds, it is in the public domain.

Now thanks to the observations of another alderman, the Gair Avenue paving arises. The job was done last August. The $14,000 cost is being borne out of general revenue. A by-law should have been processed early last summer, and forwarded to the Inspector of Municipalities for approval. Thus property owners on Gair Avenue (or any other street) carry the costs from the outset. This is the concept of Local Improvement Projects.

The Clerk-Administrator has called it an oversight. "In our enthusiasm and haste to get the paving done, we forgot to put through a by-law", or words to that effect. There are three municipal officers whose salaries and allowances are to be checked, double check and triple check the correct documentation for the collection and disbursement of public monies, and whatever other detail is involved. Being three in number, this is a triple guarantee, a back up against mistakes. "Oversights" should not occur.

With due respect, Mr. Editor, I ask you, in view of the statement and rebuttal regarding the '79 budget, and the Gair affair, is the public from whom the monies are collected, the public who pays, not entitled to know in detail—how, why and where?

Sincerely,
Gerry Duffus.

The Mayor and Council, Dear Sirs, During his recent campaigning for public office, to which he was re-elected, an incumbent alderman raised his objection to the spending of large sums of monies from the 1979 budget on frills. When challenged on this at the Regular Meeting of Council on Tuesday, November 13th, the alderman stood by his statement. Does it not seem reasonable to expect that the public will be fully enlightened on this matter: how the monies were accumulated, and how they were spent?

Sincerely,
Gerry Duffus.

Fed Up With Spoiled Hams

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In response to ACTRESS, who criticized those in the audience for rushing out of the theater the minute the performance is over instead of sticking around for all the curtain calls:

I go to the ticket window, lay down my hard-earned money hoping to get my money's worth in entertainment. I sit through the performance, then down comes the curtain. End of show. Then I get up and leave.

Why should I either remain in my seat or stand up and keep applauding those egomaniacs and shouting "Bravo!" like a nincompoop? I paid THEM to perform for ME. I should be applauded for buying the ticket. Without me, and others like me, they would be in the unemployment line because those ego-loaded showoffs would rather starve to death than do menial work.

Why should entertainers be treated like gods? Have you ever heard of three curtain calls for a neurosurgeon?
JOES IN SALEM, N.Y.

DEAR JOE: No. But it could be "curtains" for the patient of a neurosurgeon who turns in a poor performance!

DEAR ABBY: About six months ago my husband started acting nervous and preoccupied. He also started working late at his office and on weekends—something he rarely did.

We've been married 16 years, have a nice family, and have often said that ours was one of the few really "good" marriages we knew of.

A week ago, I received a phone call in the middle of the afternoon from a woman who refused to identify herself, but said she thought I should know that my husband was having an affair with a young woman who works in his office. Then she mentioned the woman's name. I recalled my husband telling me that he had employed a young, unmarried woman by that name about a year ago. I fell apart.

When my husband came home, I told him about the call and knew from his reaction it was true. I cried. He cried, too, and then confessed that he had had an affair with her, but broke it off two weeks ago, telling her it was a regrettable mistake, and he would get her a job elsewhere. He said she seemed to accept his decision. Then he asked me to listen in on the telephone extension while he called someone. I did. I recognized the voice at once as the woman who had phoned me! She called, hoping I would throw my husband out and give her a clear field!

I've forgiven my husband, but I'm still hurting some. I'm glad I didn't act foolishly in haste. Perhaps some other wife will be wiser for my experience.

If you print this, please don't use my name.

GETTING OVER IT

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to LONGING FOR MOTHERHOOD was the worst! She wanted a baby but had no husband or boyfriend, so she was considering asking a fellow to do her a favor and father her child. You told her "scrap the idea!" Why?

If a woman wants a baby, why should she have to marry a man she may not love just to have one? If she's longing for motherhood, married or not, that's the time to do something about it.

Today a woman has the right to have an abortion if she wants one, so why shouldn't she have the right to have a baby if that's what she wants?

FREEDOM FOR ALL

DEAR FREEDOM: I'm all for a woman's right to have a baby if she wants one. But I could not in good conscience go along with her idea of "asking a fellow to do her a favor" to achieve motherhood.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

An old love affair is remembered today — but don't let memory give it more importance than it actually held. Your future looks rosy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

It's time to slow down and devote some time to solid planning. Curb an impulse to act without thought. A rash decision could bring you sorrow.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Self-doubt can hold you back. What you need is confidence to put your ideas, and yourself, over. Never doubt that you have what it takes.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)

Don't let others discourage you. Your ideas are sound and they'll work if you take the time to present them carefully. Win others to your cause.

Native Indians to sue on tax refund issue

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Indians will take the provincial government to court if they don't get back all the money they've paid illegally in sales tax on electricity and gas purchased from B.C. Hydro and its predecessor, George Manuel, president of the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs, said Tuesday.

Manuel's comment followed a ruling by the B.C.

Court of Appeal that Indians living on reserves are exempt from paying provincial sales tax on electricity and gas. The decision overturned an earlier B.C. Supreme Court ruling.

"We will claim for the illegal tax dollars collected over the years by the provincial government on behalf of all Indians," said Manuel. "This is a stand I have taken myself for a long time and I appreciate this decision."

There are 60,000 Indians in the province, of whom 40,000 live on reserves. Manuel said the court action would be taken on behalf of all B.C. Indians because "all of them have lived on a reserve at one time or another."

He said his association will ask for a meeting with Premier Bill Bennett "within the next two weeks and ask him to return all the illegal taxes they have collected from the Indian people of B.C."

If a meeting cannot be arranged—or if talks fail—legal action will be the next step, Manuel said.

He said B.C. is the only province in Canada that forces Indians living on a reserve to pay provincial sales tax.

Leslie Pinder, lawyer for the union, said it is too soon for her to estimate how much money has been wrongfully collected in sales tax on electricity and gas from reserve Indians.

However, she said her files show that reserve Indians have paid sales tax on electricity since 1948—long before the 1962 creation of the Crown corporation of

B.C. Hydro through the merger of the B.C. Electric Co. and the B.C. Power Commission.

The appeal court ruled in favor of Lillian Brown, a Haida Indian from the Skidegate reserve on the Queen Charlotte Islands. She had challenged as unlawful the government tax on electricity delivered to the reserve. She objected to paying $4.38 sales tax on electricity purchased from Hydro between Oct. 12 and Dec. 9, 1978.

She claimed that Indians are exempt from the tax because electricity delivered to the reserve is "personal property situated on the reserve."

Justice E. B. Bull, who wrote the reasons for the court, and Justices J. D. Taggart and W. A. Craig held that the Indian Act took precedence over the Social Services Tax Act.

Yukon resents colonial deals

OTTAWA (CP) — The Yukon territory is exploited like a colony by the federal government and will therefore continue to demand federal financing for projects such as the Alaskan natural gas pipeline, Chris Pearson, Yukon government leader, said Tuesday.

Pearson, appearing before the Commons northern pipelines committee, told MPs the territorial government soon will make a formal request to Ottawa for $200 million to establish a Yukon heritage fund.

Creation of the fund was originally recommended by the National Energy Board and the Lysyk inquiry in reports into construction of the $15-billion project and its impact on the Yukon.

Pearson said growth of the fund, based on property taxes of up to $30 million a year on the pipeline, would be slow without the "one-time-only" capitalization grant.

"We feel very strongly that since benefits of the project will flow south of the 60th parallel, Canada is beholden to give the Yukon this one-time-only grant of $200 million."

The territory is expected to gain about $1 billion in taxes over the life of the project, about half of which would flow to the heritage fund. The concept of the fund is similar to the Alberta version, designed to protect the interests of Yukon residents when Alaskan gas has stopped flowing to the lower 48 states.

Pearson said that although the evolution to more responsible government in the Yukon is moving at a suitable pace, lack of territorial control over areas such as natural resources reduces the region of 25,000 persons to no more than colonial status.

"The statement that we are a colony of Canada is undeniable and our status will remain unchanged until provincehood has been attained," he said.

The Progressive Conservative government has pledged provincial status to the two northern territories during its first term of office, provided the majority of residents support the move.

Pearson also said Yukoners now are quite confident the pipeline will be built. He said the government has "studied the pipeline to death" and is certain it will act as a catalyst to further development in the region.

Blast rocks rules

VANCOUVER (CP) — An explosion that touched off a walkout by workers at the Kaiser Resources mine at Sparwood in southeastern British Columbia will result in additional blasting regulations in B.C.

Bill Robinson, chief provincial mines inspector, said Tuesday the new regulations will be based on recommendations made at a meeting of the United Mineworkers of America and company representatives.

The B.C. Labor Relations Board ordered the meeting after miners staged a six-day walkout to protest the blast, which was set off Nov. 2 while miners were working in the area.

One of the recommendations was that blasting be banned 130 minutes before or after a shift change.

Red River is back from black

BOSSIER CITY, La. (AP) — The Red River is red again, but officials still haven't traced the origin of a black stain that discolored it for three weeks.

While the Red River was black, the city drew its drinking water from a reservoir, but Mayor Marvin Atling said the shift was only precautionary.

"Even though the water looked funny and the public works department couldn't filter out the black pigment, it never posed a health hazard," he said. "We went to the reservoir for aesthetic purposes."

Aesthetics, along the Red River call for red water, not black. The red coloration comes from the clay which lines the river bottom.

Rookie a big factor

The fans came to Madison Square Garden to see Earl Monroe, the veteran guard who was making his first appearance of the season. But when they left Tuesday night, it was New York Knicks' corps of youngsters which had them cheering. Rookie centre Bill Cartwright took advantage of Phoenix centre Alvan Adams' absence due to a sore foot to score a career-high 36 points and grab 13 rebounds, leading the Knicks to a 118-114 National Basketball Association victory over the Suns.

Elsewhere, Boston Celtics downed Detroit Pistons 118-114 in overtime, Cleveland Cavaliers beat San Diego Clippers 115-112 and Los Angeles Lakers outlasted San Antonio Spurs 127-121. "Cartwright was tremendous," said Suns coach John MacLeod. "Every time he touched the ball in the low post, he was effective. We tried three or four guys against him, but we couldn't stop him."

Backup centres Joel Kramer and Jeff Cook weren't strong enough to stop the 7-foot-1, 255-pound Cartwright, and forwards Len (Truck) Robinson and Gar Heard weren't tall enough. But Cartwright wasn't the only New York player who performed well. Michael Ray Richardson, New York's rapidly-improving, second-year guard who inherited a spot in the starting lineup from Monroe, had his best game as a pro. He scored a career-high 28 points, shooting 11-for-16 from the field and 5-for-5 from the line, and added 12 assists, nine rebounds and three steals. And what about Monroe? The 35-year-old guard spent the first 25 games of the season on the injured list and he looked rusty in his season debut—scoring two points in 11 minutes and missing seven of eight shots. But the fans didn't care. They cheered his every move. Celtics 118 Pistons 114

Flyers streak at 22

By NEIL STEVENS
The Canadian Press
Philadelphia Flyers have not won in their last three games but they haven't lost either, making use of tie games to extend their unbeaten string to 22 games. On home ice Tuesday night, the Flyers rallied from a 2-0 deficit to tie Boston Bruins 2-2 in one of six National Hockey League games.

Colorado club, which coach Don Cherry says is beginning to play with more discipline after a slow start this season. Marc Tardif had

— Dave Taylor, with two goals, and Marcel Dionne and Charlie Simmer one each. Mike Murphy and Dean Hopkins padded the Berry. "It gives everybody a lift when we play like that. Our defence played spectacularly, and all our forwards checked well."

Potvin gone

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Denis Potvin will be out of the New York Islanders' lineup for from six to eight weeks following surgery Tuesday to repair torn ligaments in his right thumb, the National Hockey League club said.

Potvin, winner the last two seasons of the Norris Trophy as the NHL's top all-around defenceman, suffered the injury last Friday night in a loss at Edmonton.

Potvin missed the first eight games this season with a sprain of the joint that connects his left arm to his shoulder and had appeared in just 13 of New York's first 23 games. He scored four goals and 17 assists.

The Islanders also said defenceman Stefan Persson suffered a charleyhorse in the first period of Tuesday night's 5-1 loss to Vancouver and would be out of the lineup for five to six days.

White an all-star again

By HERSCHEL NISSE-SON
The Associated Press
Charles White of Southern California, who led the U.S. in rushing and all-purpose rushing en route to becoming the second leading ground-gainer in college football history, was named the The Associated Press all-America team for the second year in a row Tuesday along with six other repeaters from 1978.

Junior Miller of Nebraska was the tight end while Ken Margerum of Stanford was the wide receiver. The interior line consisted of Ritcher, tackles Jim Bunch of Alabama and Greg Kolenda of Arkansas and guards Brad Budde of Southern Cal and Ken Fritz of Ohio State.

The rest of the defensive unit consisted of end Jacob Green of Texas A and M, tackle Steve McMichael of Texas and Jim Stuckey of Clemson, middle guard Ron Simmons of Florida State, linebackers Ron Simpkins of Michigan and Mike Singletary of Baylor and deep back

Mark Haynes of Colorado. Miller and Kolenda were third-teamers a year ago. Besides Hugh Green and Easley, other juniors are Margerum, Rogers, Simmons and Singletary. The others all are seniors. White, who missed one entire game and half of another with a shoulder injury, carried 293 times for 1,803 yards — his pergame average of 180.3 was a Pacific-10 Conference record — and scored 18 touchdowns. Rogers was the runner-up with 1,548 yards on 286 carries for a 140.7 per-game average while Sims finished fourth with 1,506 yards on 224

Gym women rank 10th

FORT WORTH, Tex. (CP) — The Canadian women's team compiled 187.65 points from compulsory exercises at the world gymnastics championships Tuesday, good for 10th spot among 27 teams.

Men's competition resumes today and the Canadian team stands ninth. If the Canadian contingent can hang on to its current team placings, both the women's and men's teams would qualify for next summer's Olympics since the top 12 in each division go to Moscow.

Canadian champion, is trying to regain the form lost through two months of inactivity due to a broken ankle. Sherry Hawco of Cambridge, Ont., another veteran member of the Canadian women's team, is not competing after injuring an ankle, while Karen Kelsall of Vancouver is out with a tendon injury.

The Chinese team, competing for first time in 18 years in an international gymnastics tournament, made an impressive showing Tuesday. The Chinese women's team came in sixth over-all after the compulsories and the men were in fifth place after Monday's men's compulsories. These totals account for half of the scores, which decide over-all placings. The Soviet women took their usual top place with a team total of 194.925 and the Romanians were a fraction behind at 194.250. In third place was East Germany with 193.875 followed by the United States with 192.575. Czechoslovakia was fifth with 192.300 and China came next with 191.400. The high point was the appearance of Nadia Comaneci, the star of the Montreal Olympic Games. She had the day's high score of 39.5 out of 40.

Ellie Schlegel of Toronto led the Canadian performers with 37.70 points, followed by Ellen Stewart of Toronto with 37.60; Shannon Fleming, Toronto, 37.45; Diane Carnegie, Toronto, 37.40; Monica Goermann, Winnipeg, 37.25 and Carmen Alie, Montreal, 36.80. Goermann, the reigning
