Hearing confirmed for waste permit

TERRACE — A spokesman in the Victoria office of the B.C. Waste Management Branch (WMB) recently stated that a formal appeal hearing regarding the permit issued to the Mount Layton Hot Springs will be held in Terrace Nov. 18. Al Hayman, manager of administration and evaluation for the WMB, said that his department has received three appeals in response to issuance of the permit and several written complaints.

by Michael Kelly

Although the hearing will be open to the public, Hayman pointed out that the formal appeal process will only allow submissions from groups or individuals who have actually lodged appeals or complaints in writing with the WMB. Both the appellants and the permit holder, Mount Layton Hot Springs, will be given the opportunity to file evidence and call witnesses, and cross-examination and rebuttals will follow each presentation. Hayman stressed, however, that no informal discussion with the general public

Health care concerns outlined

TERRACE — The 1985 annual report for the Skeena Health Unit released last week, states that staff shortages in a number of fields affected the delivery of health services to Skeena residents. In the Chairperson's Report, board chairman Michael Corbeil states, "The main areas of concern continue to be the problems of inadequate staffing levels coupled with recruitment difficulties to fill vacated positions. The increased need to meet health care concerns ...has resulted in increased pressure and workload demands on our staff ...These problems are related to inadequate health education training in the province and the inability of the Provincial Government to implement and adequately fund programs that would produce graduates to fill our vacancies."

by Michael Kelly

These remarks support arguments from several other sources indicating that levels of health care throughout B.C. are suffering due to personnel shortages in several professional disciplines. During a recent labor dispute in B.C. hospitals, the B.C. Nurses Union maintained adamantly that patient care has been on a long-term downward slide due to a shortage of nurses. BCNU representatives stated repeatedly that unattractive wage scales in hospitals and the lack of nursing programs in colleges and universities are responsible for a crisis in B.C. health care.

The Health Sciences Association, representing numerous medical professionals such as radiologists, laboratory technologists, physiotherapists and psychologists in B.C. hospitals, has put forward the same position in its continuing negotiations with the Health Labour Relations Association.

Recent reports indicate that a mediator's offer to the HSA for a Terrace Centennial Lions Club members have paid tribute to two local residents for their outstanding contribution to the community. Fred Gibbs (third from the left) and Giannino Pretto (second from right) were honored by Doug McFarlane (left) secretary for the Lions; Hugh Hepburn, president of the club; and Captain John Harker (right). Gibbs is a stone mason who is thanked for the work he did on the Ian Faraday memorial fountain which stands at Tretraut Park. Pretto is congratulated for the voluntary work he has done on the Lions Club van.

will be allowed at the hearing. People who have expressed concerns in writing will be given a chance to speak, but only formal appeals will be given a full hearing process.

The hot springs discharge permit, numbered PE-7531, appears stringent in regard to chemical content of the effluent; the terms are primarily directed at phosphorus content, requiring about two parts per thousand or less prior to the point where the effluent enters the facultative lagoon system. Appeals against the permit, however, express concern about the lack of firm parameters for bacterial levels in the treated sewage discharged into Lakelse Lake and doubts about the effectiveness of the monitoring process which makes the permit holder responsible for monthly sampling. A number of local residents were also puzzled by the fact that the permit allows year-round operation, despite language in the original application indicating 180 days per year. Further alarm has been expressed over an escape clause in Appendix B-1, subsection 2 of the permit, which would allow the discharge of untreated sewage into the lake upon written approval of the Regional Waste Manager. The lake water is used by shoreline residents as their primary source of drinking water, despite warnings from health inspectors about high seasonal coliform levels.

Hayman stated that the appeal hearing has been tentatively scheduled for Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the Terrace Hotel. Robert Ferguson, the provincial head of Waste Management, will chair the meeting and will make a final decision in the matter. Ron Driedger, the northern regional director of the WMB, is also expected to be present at the hearing.

Railway constructed

The building of the Grand Trunk Railway in 1908 to 1912 was responsible for the establishment of the town site which later became the village of Terrace. The Grand Trunk Railway was constructed to connect Kitimat and Prince Rupert, and the existing railway from Prince Rupert to Hazelton all junctioned in Terrace, which later became a main stop between destinations.

four-year contract will probably not bring a resolution to the dispute, and the BCNU, despite an executive recommendation to accept their mediator's contract proposal, has stated that the contract will do nothing to address staff shortages.

The 17 Child Development Centres in B.C., operated by the Cerebral Palsy Association, suffer from chronic funding shortages, but even those centres receiving adequate funds are unable to find physiotherapists, audiologists and speech therapists to fill staffing vacancies. A newly-formed non-profit organization, H.E.A.R.T. (Had Enough; Action Required Today!) Services Society, has a founding membership of numerous B.C. residents who barely survived lengthy wait-lists for critical surgery. In the Burnaby-based society's first bulletin, president Frank Skinner calls the waiting lists for surgery an "appalling and critical situation". An attached fact sheet identifies many of the same problems that concern the professionals themselves: escalating work loads, deterioration in staff morale, more money for sophisticated technology and less money for professional training, excessive demands for overtime, and an increasing requirement for acute care due to shorter hospital stays for patients. Skinner concludes by stating, "A number of people of all ages have died while awaiting open-heart surgery. There is no doubt that some of these tragedies could have been prevented or certainly postponed if surgery had been available."

These delays do not appear to be a serious problem for patients referred to Vancouver hospitals from the Terrace area. Dr. Barrie Phillips, the Terrace internist who expedites most of the local referrals, said, "Delays do not occur often. I have a very good rapport with the people down there, and that may have something to do with it." Phillips did say, however, that he has experienced some difficulty during summer months, a period when many nurses take their holidays. Phillips indicated that he thought the delays could be connected to a shortage of nurses, and he speculated that the problems may be a consequence of a staffing cutbacks in the hospitals.

The section of the Skeena Health Unit report dealing with the Terrace Mental Health Centre continues the theme of inadequate staff levels. Bill Herriot, former program director of the Centre, states in the report that, despite having 90 percent of staff positions filled during 1985, "each staff member has been faced with enormous demands for their services... there is a real need to establish minimum program standards for the delivery of community mental health services in the Pacific Northwest." Herriot expresses particular concern about the Centre's capacity to provide help to young people, stating, "The Pacific Northwest is desperately lacking psychiatric resources for children and adolescents. The Centre with its limited staff resources, limited clinical hours, and with no access to a local child care treatment

RCMP's theme is crime prevention

The Terrace RCMP announced recently that they will be taking part in National Crime Prevention Week this year, Nov. 2 to Nov. 8.

National Crime Prevention Week was inaugurated in 1983 by the Solicitor General of Canada with the goal of raising Canadians' awareness of crime prevention activities, and encouraging them to become actively involved in preventing crime in their communities.

This year, there will be events in Terrace that fit in with this concept of community involvement. A business workshop on prevention will be held Nov. 5 covering robbery, shoplifting and fraud prevention.

A shoplifting prevention project, the first of its type in B.C., will start up in Terrace schools during Crime Prevention Week. This is a joint effort of the Terrace RCMP and the Terrace and District Chamber of Commerce, and it will be directed toward Grade 7 and 8 students. The program is designed to explain the implication of theft from businesses and the involvement of the business and family in a theft. This project will be repeated every year as part of the R.C.M. Police School

Liaison Program.

The Skeena Mall in Terrace will be the site for the Operation Family Identification program run by the Terrace Kinsmen Club. In this program, families can have their fingerprints taken at no cost. The fingerprints are kept by the family members and, in case of a lost or missing person, can become invaluable to assist in the location and identification of the person. All local families are encouraged to take part in this project, scheduled for Nov. 7 from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m., and Nov. 8 from 12 noon until 6 p.m.

Cst. Ewen Harvie of the Terrace RCMP urges all residents, whether city or rural, to take an active part in at least one of these; residents, he said, can participate in their own way, whether it's to keep an extra eye on neighbor's property, to join Operation Identification and mark valuables, or to organize a Neighborhood Watch meeting in your area. The ideas are endless, he said, but the thrust is designed to make the ordinary citizen take an interest in their community.

For further information contact the Terrace R.C.M. Police Crime Prevention Unit.

Remembrance Day is Tuesday, Nov. 11.

Remembrance Day ceremonies announced

TERRACE — On Nov. 11 people all over Terrace will remember those who fought for the country's freedom.

On Remembrance Day, activities designed to commemorate the valiant efforts of many Canadians, will occur in the community. Firstly there will be a parade, which will form in the Safeway parking lot at 10:15 a.m., the Parade Marshal will be L.D. Kirkaldy. The parade will make its way to the Tillicum Theatre for services. In the theatre there will be an opening prayer at 10:49 a.m., at 10:54 the singing of O Canada, at 10:56 the hymn "Abide With Me", and from 11 a.m. on until about 11:20 there will be several musical dedications like the Last Post. After the ceremonies in the theatre there will be a wreath laying ceremony at the Cenotaph, and the service will move over to the Anglican Hall where refreshments will be on hand to the public.

Court report

On Friday, Oct. 24 in Terrace Provincial Court Gordon Furness was fined $35 for an offense under the Motor Vehicle Act. Furness was also fined $35 for a different offense under the Motor Vehicle Act.

Election slate set

TERRACE — All nominations are in for the local elections taking place on Nov. 15. Four candidates have filed for three two-year seats on Terrace municipal council, and seven candidates have declared for three trustee positions with School District 88.

The candidates for the aldermanic contest are incumbents Robert Cooper, Robert Jackman and Doug Smith; the only new entry on the slate is Graham Geeraert, a Terrace ironworker.

The school board elections have generated a considerably higher level of interest, with seven people competing for three available trustee positions. They are Edna Cooper, incumbent and board chairman Laverne Hislop, Bev Mackie, Barbara Ross, Francis Sabine, Wallace Schmidt, and George Stanley.

For introductory profiles of all eleven candidates and their initial statements on election issues, see the story beginning on page 12.

In other areas of School District 88, Val Napoleon, an employment counsellor, was elected by acclamation to the trusteeship for the Hazeltons, and no nominations were entered for the seat representing the reserves of Kitwanga, Kitwancool and Kitsegukla. A trustee for the three reserves will be appointed after the election.

Skeena MLA-elect waits to be sworn in

TERRACE — The Registrar of Voters for the Skeena riding, Barbara McGowan, reported recently that 1,899 unregistered votes remain to be counted from the Oct. 22 provincial election; McGowan also stated that she had no connection with an earlier erroneous report that the Section 80 count would be less than 1,000. Social Credit candidate Dave Parker's victory over Skeena New Democratic Party incumbent Frank Howard, however, appears to be secure.

Parker stated in a recent interview that he plans to go to Victoria Nov. 17 to be sworn in as Skeena's MLA, after which he will participate with the rest of the government-side members in a two-day caucus meeting. "I imagine the first order of business will be the appointment of a new cabinet," Parker said. "There are also a number of other pressing issues to be dealt with, and perhaps after that I can get around to working on some of my pet projects for the Skeena constituency." During the election campaign Parker identified the settlement of native land claims, improved forest management and the revitalization of Kitimat's declining retail economy as being the three dominant concerns in the Skeena riding.

Parker said he plans to set up a constituency office after the caucus meeting, but for at least the next two weeks he will be operating out of his business office at 308-4722 Lakelse Ave., an office he shares with engineer John Morgan.

Parker also said he has decided to retain his seat as a trustee on the board of School District 88. "My initial reaction was to resign," he said, "but a number of people have asked me stay on the board. I looked into it and found out it's legal; I think that I should be able to do an even more effective job in this position."

Reviewing the election contest, Parker remarked, "I thought we ran a very clean and positive campaign."

The official results of the provincial election, including the final count of Section 80 ballots, will be released this week. Detailed analysis of the final outcome for the province will be available in the Nov. 12 edition of the Terrace Review.

All Seasons Sporting Goods — sponsorship & spot prizes; R.C.M.P. — patrolling route during race; Safeway — beverages and to Ms. Lehmann's class from Skeena High School who volunteered their time.

Dave Parker, MLA-elect for the Skeena riding, will continue operating from his business office in the Tillicum Building for the time being. Parker said recently that he will make a decision about setting up a constituency office after a government caucus meeting later this month.

Editorial

Some win and some lose but what's most important is that a number of people decide to play the game. There is nothing like choices to keep the guessing game at a fever pitch.

The provincial election 86 campaign was waged on a variety of issues in the Skeena riding. All candidates agreed that native Indian land claims must be dealt with, that questions about the future of the forest industry in the northwest must be addressed and that financial assistance should be available for students wishing to attend post secondary institutions.

The political competitors voiced an array of opinions, on a variety of subjects, and provided residents in the constituency with the conceptual variations that help promote a process of analytical thought in the voter's mind.

There is nothing quite like choices to sharpen accuracy of judgement and there is nothing quite so dull as a lack of alternatives in any political arena. New voices rise, others fall and perhaps it is this democratic gift that preserves freedom for all.

Voters in Skeena chose MLA elect Dave Parker as their representative this time. He brings to the platform a realistic view of the political process... "an MLA must be receptive to all people in the riding... if the issues were easy, they would have already been solved."

Parker stands in tribute to the valued democratic process called "Freedom of Choice".

Terrace Review
Victoria Correspondent

No matter which way you look at it, Bill Vander Zalm and his Social Credit Party slaughtered the NDP on election night.

The man who made no promises during the campaign and refused to debate issues, insisting that the only thing which counted was leadership, swept his party to an impressive victory.

In this age of computers, the election was all but decided a quarter of an hour after the polls closed. BCTV projected a majority Socred government by 8:17 p.m., which certainly takes a lot of the fun out of watching the results on TV.

The big winner and the big loser now face their own difficulties. Vander Zalm, who was given the next-best thing to a landslide victory, now must live up to the expectations of a lot of voters who haven't always been in the Socred camp.

His victory speech was the first attempt at pacifying those who may expect too much of him. Staying with the non-committal style he used during the campaign, the premier called on all British Columbians to "pull together".

NDP leader Bob Skelly faces an even bigger problem. Had he lost his own seat, the hatchet job his party will have to do on him, would have been easier. Unless he offers to step down as leader, things could get a little messy.

Every indicator during the campaign showed that Skelly was the NDP's biggest problem. One way or another, he will have to go.

With David Vickers' unsuccessful attempt to get a seat in Saanich and the Islands, the new leader will almost certainly be Vancouver Mayor Mike Harcourt.

How will the NDP tackle the unsavory task of dumping its leader? Every leader, no matter how popular, automatically undergoes an annual leadership review at the NDP's fall convention.

My guess is that the next convention, review and all, will come sooner than next fall, and that's when Skelly will be given his walking papers.

The quote of the evening came from political veteran Garde Gardom, who has left politics after 20 years. Skelly, he said, deserves another chance. I'll bet the old Liberal-turned-Socred would just love that.

Skelly wrote his own epitaph during his concession speech. "We will beat them eventually," he said. Unfortunately for him, he won't be the leader if and when that happens.

The man to watch now is Harcourt. He's the NDP's best bet to win a future election. Not only is Harcourt a better campaigner and better leadership material, he's also the only man who's ever beaten Vander Zalm — for the Vancouver mayor's job.

For those watching the results on TV, there almost was another notable story. For a few minutes, Liberal leader Art Lee was shown in second place after Grace McCarthy in Vancouver Little Mountain. In the end, it turned out to be an error in adding up votes.

Too bad. The return of a Liberal to the B.C. legislature would have called for a celebration. But I suppose we're stuck for some time with the two-party system.

The biggest upset of the election was the defeat of Labor Minister Terry Segarty in the riding of Kootenay, a riding that has consistently had close races.

One thing I learned from this election is to trust my own instincts. In one of the last columns during the campaign, I predicted that the Socreds would get a 50-to-19 majority.

I was hesitant to go with that prediction because of a number of polls done for various news outlets and some evidence that the NDP was closing the gap.

As it turned out, I was right to ignore the pollsters and the legion of political pundits who are always eager to change your mind for you.

talk of the town

The Terrace Review asked:
Do you think our legal system is effective enough?

Judy Vandergucht

No, definitely not. Our legal system is too bogged down in bureaucracy to be effective. There doesn't seem to be a set method of handling offenders. The legal system fails young people in not providing positive, preventative alternatives. Most rehabilitative measures are coming too late.

Joy Dover

No, I don't. I do not believe penalties are stiff enough. Crimes are committed and penalties are dealt out but offenders are back on the street too soon, resulting in a situation where the average citizen is penalized by having no protection. There is little deterrent to crime now as penalties are not stiff enough.

Al McAlpine

Basically, our legal system has evolved through democratic processes for many centuries, following that of England and the U.S. It may not be totally fair but it is the best that great minds have come up with over all those years. The process is still evolving and will grow stronger with time.

Gabriel Mahle

The legal system is not very effective because there is too much red tape and loopholes.

Steve McIsack
The legal system bogs down in its own bureaucracy. People wait eight or nine months before their case gets into court. The legal process is totally bogged down with the system rather than with the justice.

Janet Coburn
It isn't all that effective in that some of the concerns that are brought before the courts are meaningless and tie up the system for more important cases. The system has to change as it is taking too long for cases to come to trial.

Dennis Brewer

Rotary Club President Al McAlpine (left) and Kinsmen President Scott Cooke present a cheque to Judy Vandergucht, who coordinates Project RAFT (Responsible Action for Teenagers). The cheque, for the amount of $100, is a payment of a bet that the two service clubs made when they played a softball game at a field located near Heritage Park. The winner of the game was to choose a charity for the other team to donate the money to. The Rotary Club of Terrace finished the game with a 20-2 win and have chosen Project RAFT as the charity because of its work with youth.

Shoplifting prevention program initiated

Terrace R.C.M. Police in cooperation with the Terrace and District Chamber of Commerce, recently announced the initiation of a community crime prevention project during National Crime Prevention Week.

The project, shoplifting prevention, will be carried into local schools to inform youth about the reality of shoplifting and the effect it can have on their future. Talks will encompass all Grade 7 and 8 classes this year in Terrace. Cst. Ewen Harvie said, "The project came about as a result of the need to educate youth because of the noted increase in incidents of thefts involving Young Offenders. Statistics have shown that approximately 50 percent of shoplifters are between the ages of 11 to 15 years old."

Harvie stated, "Presently in B.C., there are no prevention programs directed at shoplifting in this age group. The Terrace project is the first of its type in B.C., and it will be evaluated with the assistance of the Attorney General's Dept. of B.C."

The project will involve a member of the R.C.M. Police in Terrace, along with a member from the Chamber of Commerce, speaking to classes on the outcome of theft from a business, whether it is a $1.00 or $100 item. "The results are the same," Harvie said. "A thief is a thief."

A short video will be shown, along with the talks. The video is intended for a young audience, and it explains the involvement of the parents when a Young Offender is caught stealing. It also explains how parents have to pick up the youth from the police, and how parents or guardians must attend court with the youth.

A pamphlet, designed by the RCMP in Terrace and funded by the local Chamber of Commerce, will be given out to the students with the intent of reinforcing the information received. Parents and guardians will be encouraged to discuss the pamphlet and the topic of theft with their young people.

Harvie said the shoplifting prevention program has been in the planning stages for almost a year, and it will be run on a yearly basis after this year. This project, he concluded, is a good example of the police and business community working together to educate the public on this important method of crime prevention.

MADD requests mayor to proclaim Drunk Driving Week

TERRACE — The MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Drivers) organization sent a letter to council requesting the proclamation that Dec. 8 to 15 be Drunk Driving Awareness Week. The group's choice of dates will make the week in conjunction with Counter Attack.

MADD recognizes victims of alcohol related car accidents and has been formed to insure that violators are prosecuted to the full extent of the law. The group has encouraged all B.C. communities to proclaim the event, but it is questionable as to whether a MADD representative will be available to make the organization's policies apparent.

Nelson wins half marathon

A name will be engraved on this year's All Season's annual half-marathon trophy for the second time.

It's 18-year-old Charles Nelson of Prince Rupert who ran the challenging 13.1 mile course in one hour, 13 minutes and 13 seconds on Sunday, Oct. 25. His closest competitor was Colin Parr of Terrace with a time of 1:15:51. Nelson won previously in 1984.

Nelson's time was one minute and 50 seconds off the record-setting pace of Ed Ansems during the inaugural race of 1982. Last year's winner, Richard Harrison of Telkwa, did not take part this year.

Had there been a prize for family participation, the Nelsons would have won hands down. Charles' 14-year-old brother, Joe, finished fourth overall, and runner-up to Charles for the under-19 trophy. The boys' father, Dr. John Nelson, also ran the race and he placed ninth overall.

It was a Prince Rupert father and sons trio that stood out at the All Seasons annual half-marathon road race recently. Eighteen-year-old Charles Nelson, left, was the overall winner. Joe Nelson, right, placed fourth overall, while father John Nelson came in ninth.

Third place went to the fastest over-35 runner, Gordon Thomson of Vancouver. Thomson was in Terrace on business and decided to run while here.

Top female was veteran world-class marathoner, Sue Walker. Her time was one hour, 24 minutes, 23 seconds, which Walker said was five minutes faster than her time of last year.

Only one relay team took part and they were all junior high school students from Skeena. Thirteen-year-old twins

David and Chad Edmonds teamed up with Gary Peden, 13, and David Shepherd, 12, to post the fifth best time of 1:22:24.

The race attracted 38 runners overall, including a contingent of 11 from New Aiyansh, and one wheelchair athlete.

The lineup consisted of four females (one under-19), five male masters (40 and over), 11 men aged 19 to 39, and 18 youths under-19.

Race conditions were far from ideal, with threatening clouds and periods of rain.

Thornhill boys win at volleyball

Coach Tom Hamakawa's Thornhill junior high school boys' volleyball team went through the John McInnes invitational tournament undefeated to capture top honors on the Oct. 25 weekend.

Adding to their unblemished record was the choice of Thornhill's Bruce Neid as the series' most valuable player, and the selection of Neid's teammates Ben Foote and Kevin Hamakawa to the all-star team.

The Prince George tournament featured 10 boys and 10 girls teams. Each division had five-team sections for round-robin play. After that, the top two in each section advanced to semi-finals.

Thornhill boys started their round-robin by downing Anne Stevenson School of Williams Lake 15-2, 15-4. Then they took MacKenzie 15-2, 15-7, defeated Prince George Duchess Park 15-10, 15-6, and trounced Prince George D.P. Todd 15-6, 15-2.

In their section, Skeena boys posted a three-win, one-loss mark. They knocked off Kelly Road of Prince George, Fort St. John and Williams Lake junior high while losing only to the host team.

In the semi-finals, Thornhill eliminated Skeena 15-8, 15-0, while John McInnes took out Anne Stevenson 15-9, 9-15, 15-9.

The championship game was 15-9, 15-5 for Thornhill over McInnes.

Both Skeena and Thornhill girls' teams were less successful, although Skeena's Cheryl Blanes was named to the all-star team.

Thornhill and Skeena ended up with one-win and three-loss records in their round-robin and failed to gain a berth in the playoff section.

Midget hockey game cancelled

Too much violence resulted in game two of a two-game series involving Terrace and Hazelton midgets being called off in minor hockey action here Oct. 25.

The exhibition series saw Hazelton win the first game 9-3. They called the second contest after two periods when the referee decided they were more interested in fighting than playing hockey. Hazelton was ahead 6-2 at the time.

A Terrace spokesman told us that Hazelton had overaged players on their roster, and seemed more interested in a form of decapitation and intimidation. The spokesman also said the Terrace midgets would refuse to play Hazelton in the future.

Ken Lavelle with two and Richard Haldane with one paced Terrace in the opener. Derek Phillips and Rod Epp scored for Terrace in the fight-shortened second game.

Terrace resident Peter Fassnacht invites local residents to visit Skeena Jr. Secondary School and Thornhill Jr. Secondary School to watch the Grade 8 boys' and girls' Volleyball Zone Championships. The girls will be playing at Thornhill and the boys at Skeena all day Saturday, Nov. 8. Visiting teams will include Kitwanga, Prince Rupert and Hazelton.

Remember Jr. High?

When was the last time you visited a junior high vibrating with excitement and activity?

Can you still remember those days?

How about rekindling some of those nostalgic feelings? On Saturday, Nov. 8, Skeena Jr. Sec. School and Thornhill Jr. Sec. School will be hosts for the Grade 8 boys' and girls' volleyball zone championships. The girls will be competing at Thornhill, while the boys play at Skeena. In addition to the local teams, visiting teams will include Kitwanga, Prince Rupert, and Hazelton.

For the players, this tournament culminates their season. They have worked diligently at improving their skills, learning team play, and maintaining their academic standings. To the coaches, this is also the final test. How well has his/her team players learned to be supportive of each other, to accept losing with dignity, and to win graciously?

The organizers for the zone playoffs extend a welcome to all the citizens of Terrace and Thornhill to come and visit the two schools. Come and be a part of the noise, the support, and the excitement. Come and remember what it was like in your yesterdays of junior high. Bring your younger children and allow them to witness what it was like for you, what it will be like for them.

The junior high school years were unforgettable; how about giving that memory a little reminder.

Hockey reps win 2 games

Terrace, Prince Rupert and Kitimat teams each won two games in the Skeena Valley minor hockey inter-city rep team league on the Oct. 25 weekend.

The Terrace Peewees swept a pair from the Prince Rupert Peewees. In their 8-1 victory in game one, Ivan Laschenko and Kevin Marleau each scored twice. Singles went to Davey Jones, Rhett Gibson, Dennis Bannister and Jared Ewart.

In Terrace's 9-2 second-game win, Bannister set the pace with a three-goal effort. Cliff Prest had two goals while Kevin Marleau, Jared Ewart and Garth Muller added singles.

In other action, Kitimat Atoms took both ends of their games against Prince Rupert's Atoms by scores of 11-0 and 10-2. Prince Rupert's Bantams pulled off a twin against Kitimat's Bantams by 11-7 and 8-7 scores.

Volleyball action ending

With Northwest zone volleyball finals coming up this weekend, there doesn't appear to be any dominant team in all the divisions of this high school sport.

Evidence of this was seen on the Oct. 25 weekend when senior boys' teams gathered at Thornhill school for a one-day tournament.

In a thrilling final, Caledonia Kermodes captured the title by downing Prince Rupert 13-15, 15-13, 15-13. In the playoff for third and fourth, Bulkley Valley Christian defeated Nishga 15-6, 15-4.

The following are the scores of round-robin matches leading up to the finals:

Kermodes beat Nishga 16-14, 15-6; Kermodes whipped Houston 15-2, 15-5; Nishga beat Houston 15-7, 7-15, 15-3; Bulkley Valley took Hazelton 15-3, 15-5; Prince Rupert defeated Bulkley Valley 15-12, 14-16, 15-13; and Prince Rupert knocked off Hazelton 15-4, 15-10.

In the girls' senior tournament played at Caledonia School, Smithers won the title by downing Caledonia 14-16, 15-9, 15-8 in the final. There was no playoff for third and fourth.

Round-robin game scores were as follows:

Caledonia beat Kitimat 15-7, 15-7; Smithers downed Prince Rupert 15-11, 15-11; Smithers took Kitimat 15-13, 0-15, 15-8; Caledonia defeated Prince Rupert 15-4, 15-6; Smithers outscored Caledonia 11-15, 15-7, 15-12; and Kitimat beat Prince Rupert 15-7, 15-7.

In the Grade 8 volleyball tournament at Kitimat's Mount Elizabeth on Oct. 25, Kitimat's 'A' team won the boys' side, with Thornhill second. Prince Rupert's Booth and Kitimat 'B' team tied for third. Kitwanga and Skeena of Terrace tied for last place.

On the girls' side, Thornhill 'A' won over Skeena 'A' in the final. Hazelton was third and Kitwanga, fourth, followed by Skeena 'B', Thornhill 'B', and Kitimat 'A' and 'B' teams.

Habinger takes spiel

The top prize of $3,000 went to Gary Habinger of Kitimat at the conclusion of the 24-team annual Prince Rupert cash bonspiel.

Habinger downed Don Palmer of Smithers in the championship game. Palmer picked up $2,000 for being runnerup.

Bruce Kerr of Prince Rupert won $1,000 for placing third, while Smithers' Don Brise took home $500 for a fourth-place finish.

In the consolation final, Bob Baase of Houston won $300 in beating out Steve Jackson of Rupert. Jackson pocketed $100.

The world championship women's rink, skipped by Linda Moore, started off by losing to Habinger. She then won two straight to gain a berth in the money round. However, Kerr eliminated her in their first contest, and Moore finished out of the money.

The only Terrace entry was the all-female Kim McDougall rink. They were sidelined with two straight losses.

Overall, four ladies, one junior, two senior and 17 men's rinks completed in the three day series.

This weekend at Terrace the next cash spiel on the northwest agenda will be held. 24 teams were sought for this Friday-to-Sunday event.

There's no better time to leave town.

Terrace resident Pierre Le Gal, grand knight for the Knights of Columbus, presents Fiona Baillinger, preschool teacher at the Terrace Child Development Centre, with a cheque for $1,249.25. # Four candidates vie for three council seats

Graham Geeraert: Council must help establish secondary industries.

Geeraert for council

I have lived in Terrace and the Skeena Valley for 31 years. My roots are deep in the community. For 25 years my family had a local business, the Terrace Hotel, in which I worked until it was sold in 1980. Since then I have been employed in many northwest industrial projects at my trade as an Ironworker.

I have never entertained the idea of leaving this beautiful Skeena Valley. I have put my name forward because I want to contribute to the community and help make Terrace an even better place to live, work, and raise a family.

Terrace's economic mainstay is rooted deep in forestry. City council must pursue an intensive silviculture program in the Nass and Skeena Valleys. In doing so we will ensure badly needed local jobs and a future for our children.

City council has to seek out and help establish secondary industries in which we can or could use our local natural resources, thus establishing a sorely needed tax base.

From June until October hundreds of sports fishermen invade the Skeena watershed in hope of catching a trophy salmon or steelhead. The city should be leading the way for salmonoid enhancement and establishing facilities to accommodate the sports fisherman.

At the junction of the Kalum and Skeena Rivers tourists park neck to neck on the road side; why is there no campsite? This is only one example of lost revenue. These are just a few of the issues on which City Council should lead the way.

Doug Smith: Decision making must always serve the community first.

Doug Smith seeks re-election

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Council must be aggressive in its search for potential economic development.

Council must be creative and open when exploring economic development and the community must find development acceptable.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

Council must learn of community desires in this area and prepare and publish a comprehensive plan. This plan would allow residents to know where they are in terms of improvements. It will also allow residents to know where the city's priorities lie.

This permits examination of council's decision and is open for discussion and change. The plan would also involve a listing of expenditures.

AN OPEN-MINDED COUNCIL

Council must maintain an open view to all issues and be prepared to

Jackman speaks out

Council's greatest effort over the next two years must be to concentrate on Terrace's continued development as the regional hub for the northwest.

With this "hub" idea to focus on, other issues become easier to resolve. Our position will come from answering the question "will this proposal help Terrace?"

As a regional hub, we will try to persuade provincial and federal governments to recognize the northwest as a separate economic area when they put in regional offices like the WCB review board. As a supply center, we can lobby for our share of benefits from the Klappan coal project and other new developments in mining, forestry and aquaculture, and encourage improvements to our airport. We can promote jobs by going after better health care services, supporting a new extended care wing at Terraceview, for example.

Council must continue to build Terrace's reputation in Victoria, and by participating with other communities, to improve the visibility of the northwest region as a whole.

At the same time, there are a number of potential major costs that we have to avoid — the liability insurance nightmare, increased municipal share of policing costs, and the turnover of federal airports to municipalities. Council has been working on these issues with other communities to help "soften the blow" to local taxpayers.

Some issues are exciting and get a lot of media attention. Some are less interesting but no less important. Over the past two years, council has been able to focus on issues rather than politics or personalities, and we've improved the way Terrace is viewed in the province. We can continue this positive approach, and help Terrace make an impact as the major center in a vitally important region of B.C., with cooperation and coordination of all the various groups, including council, that contribute to our economy and our lifestyle.

Incumbent Cooper runs for alderman

In order to maintain our position as the regional center for our area we have to spend money to encourage people to come and be a part of it.

Our major problem is generating the revenue we need to look after our basic services, while at the same time making some necessary improvements such as the upgrading and completion of paving on our streets.

BACKGROUND

Born in Telkwa, B.C. in 1922. Moved to Terrace in 1927. Married with four children. Four years in the Canadian Armed Forces. Logging contractor since 1951.

Active in Community Organizations:

- Past president Canadian Legion.
- Past president Terrace Flying Club.
- Past president Northwest Loggers Association.
- Charter member Terrace JC's.
- Chairman of Committee to form Terraceview Society.

Terrace Alderman for nine years. Active on most committees.

Regional District director for eight years. Chairman two years. Member of Ski Hill committee. Member of

Marina Committee. Board. Chairman of the Regional District appointee to Hospital

Commission.

Bob Cooper: We must maintain our position as the regional center.

Barbara Ross: Responsible accounting of money to the taxpayer is mandatory.

Barbara Ross for school trustee

To introduce myself to you — I grew up in the Terrace area as Barbara Johnson.

My husband Gary Ross and I make our home in Thornhill with our two sons — Jonathan, 5 years old, currently attending Kindergarten at Kiti-K-Shan Primary School, and our 2-year-old Michael.

I am employed full-time as a finance clerk with the Employment Development Branch of the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission.

I have been employed previously where administrative skills were an integral part of my position. As well, while in my secondary high school years I was quite actively involved with the student's council. I currently sit as a voting member of St. Matthews Anglican Church Committee. I feel that the two most important issues currently facing our School District are the fact that teachers within our district are currently operating without an agreement with the School District; and secondly fiscal responsibility.

I think that the issue of the "missing" $600,000.00 has to be resolved. As an average taxpayer I do not feel that all the facts of this situation were passed along to me and I would like to see a full disclosure of facts made available to the public.

In my opinion the mandate a school board is given at the time of election is to ensure, firstly the quality of education our children receive and secondly, a responsible accounting of money to the taxpayers.

Seven seek election to three trustee positions

Francis Sabine enters School Board race

Francis Sabine characterizes his election platform for School District 88 trustee as being a "housekeeping slate". Sabine, a ten-year resident of Terrace, works as a student counsellor for Northwest Community College.

"As a trustee, my objective would be to ensure that those things which need to be done get done," Sabine said. His primary areas of concern are fiscal responsibility, classroom environment and program development for students.

"I am not involving myself in this election to destroy any personalities," Sabine stated, "but one of the main responsibilities of the school board is financial management. I've been marvelling that, during this restraint era, each year the District 88 board manages to produce a surplus. We should be asking ourselves, 'What does this mean?'"

Sabine also expressed misgivings about the effect on students of the prolonged and sometimes bitter negotiations between the board and teachers. "Teachers have to be given the opportunity to regain their sense of dignity," he said. "The importance of environment in relation to production is well known, and by that I mean a good working environment for teachers. We have to look at long-term results, to moderate the environment and soften the atmosphere of confrontation because it is hurting our children."

Program revisions are needed, Sabine said, because students aren't being adequately prepared for realities beyond the public education system. "Students don't understand the function of schools, especially the economic function. Improved programming is needed in the industrial and trades areas, and there is a particular need for a full-time reading specialist to work with Grade 11 and 12 students who require one-on-one help with their literacy skills."

Sabine concluded by observing, "What I'm saying here is nothing new, it's plain everyday common sense, but it isn't being done. For example, as a parent of four children I'm concerned about dangerous conditions around the schools that develop because snow and ice aren't removed during the winter. The simple solution would be to scatter sand on the surface, but we don't see that being done. My line is getting things done."

In addition to his work as a counsellor at the college, Sabine has also worked as an alcohol and drug counsellor and is an active member of many community groups. He has been on the boards of the Kermode Friendship Society, the Terraceview Lodge Society and the B.C. Association for the Mentally Handicapped; he is a member of the Terrace Centennial Lions Club and the Seven Sisters Society, and he is a founding member of the K'san House Society.

Mackie committed to quality education

I have entered the race for School Board Trustee because of my concern about the confrontation style of School Board/Teacher relations.

I am committed to more direct personal involvement at the classroom level and if elected will visit classrooms and staff-rooms, learning about the problems and working towards their solutions.

I am also concerned that children in this district receive the quality of education they will require to compete in their future endeavors, wherever they may be. In light of recent events I will push for full financial disclosures on a monthly basis.

I have lived in Terrace for three years, have one child at present in Skeena Jr. Secondary School. I have no political affiliations or aspirations, and indeed feel there is no place for politics at the School Board level.

I have a varied experience in the work force in Terrace and the Prince George region, most recently as Training Coordinator with the Native Communications Society. My many years of experience in administration and communication will be an asset as a school trustee.

See the story on the other four school board candidates on pages 14, 15 & 18

George Stanley seeks trusteeship

Main issues facing local schools and the school district:

- Maintaining the quality of education in a period of reduced budgets.

- Opening up school board meetings so the public can feel free to express its concerns and can expect to be treated with respect and courtesy.

- Reviewing (and possibly revising) the budget process so as to eliminate the possibility of mill rate increases based on misleading or false financial information.

How I would deal with these issues as a trustee:

- Join with other school boards to petition or lobby the new provincial government for a reasonable increase in education funding. In line with Premier Vander Zalm's stated belief in decentralization, press for the repeal of the Education (Interim) Finance Act and the restoring of taxing power and autonomy to school boards.

- Use funding wisely. Vote tax increases only if they are for specific, learning-related, programs, not funded by Victoria, that are clearly desired by parents and taxpayers, such as: reducing split classes, increased counseling, libraries, art and music, attention to learning disabilities.

- Let the public know that they are welcome at school board meetings and can express their concerns in an atmosphere of courtesy and respect.

- A full disclosure of the 1985/86 accounting records and an audit by an independent accounting firm, with an opinion given on the budgeting process. This matter cannot be "swept under the rug", or it will leave a legacy of distrust in the financial operations of the school district — past and present.

look at all options in courses of action. Decision making cannot run along party lines and must always serve the community first.

ACCOUNTABILITY

Council must continue to address the issue of accountability in terms of the city and its operation, particularly financial accountability, decision making and priorities. I propose a mid term financial report for taxpayers.

SOCIAL SERVICES

Council must take an active and supportive roll with our city's community services. Although many of these services may be federally or provincially financed, council must initiate, where needed, firm lobbying and support measures to ensure funding. The disadvantaged residents of our community must also be served by council.

Edna Cooper: All we need is the will to pull together.

Edna Cooper runs for school trustee

The main issue facing our school system is our perception of it. There is such a cloud of doom and gloom hanging over us, because of the recession, that we can't see the forest for the trees.

Let us assess our situation realistically; we have wonderful school facilities, excellent teachers and a dedicated School Board. All we need is the will to pull together for our common goal — an effective education for our children.

Wallace Schmidt seeks trusteeship

I feel that we must recognize our children for what they are, "our number one natural resource", and that the future of our province and country depends on how well we prepare them for the future.

I feel we must work to put an end to the conflicts between teachers, the school board and government, and get back to each doing the job they are meant to do.

I feel that a good education is a right that we must strive to protect.

I feel there is a need for more grass roots involvement, i.e., parents and taxpayers.

I would work hard to see that everyone concerned with education was given a fair hearing at the school board level.

Library lighting studied

TERRACE — The City of Terrace will be looking into a budget for lighting around the Terrace Public Library. The lighting is required to help deter vandals in Lower Little Park. The cost of new lighting is under investigation, meanwhile three new street lights are to be placed in the parking lot beside the park.

The city is also investigating the possibility of getting a new dog and handler for the RCMP to patrol the area. The new lighting and the RCMP addition have been classified as under preliminary investigation before any commitment can be made, as the cost to the city may be quite high.

Square foot gardening a success

Terrace — Gardening is truly a wonderful pleasure enjoyed by many Canadians and this summer the residents of Terraceview Lodge were able to enjoy this activity but not in a totally conventional way.

by Kathleen Delgatty
Terrace contributor

The adoption of a new system of growing vegetables and flowers, called the square foot method, was implemented and proved to be very simple — a garden is created in a series of squares, rather than rows, and each square holds a different vegetable, herb or flower. What is created is a garden which is highly diverse, productive and easily managed. It is estimated that one saves at least 80% of space, time and money due to this method.

Two types of square foot gardens were created at Terraceview. The first type was a ground level garden built of a wood crib 4 x 12 ft. and the second type was designed to accommodate those residents in wheelchairs. This wheelchair garden was successfully created by constructing the patio model which consisted of a 4 x 4 ft. plywood frame and bottom elevated on sawhorses.

Flowers and vegetables flourished in the gardens and the yield was remarkable. Watching the progress of the garden was enjoyed by residents and staff alike.

Very special thanks must be given to Bev Beaudin who suggested the idea after discovering the book Square Foot Gardening by Mel Bartholomew who developed the system; Ron Lennan for building the frames and Jack Hoekstra for assisting with the provision of soil.

Success was ours in this project. We look forward to 1987 in doing more of the same.

Hydrangea flowers last for ages

TERRACE — Local resident Dorothy Smith not only has an unusually large shrub growing in her front yard, she has discovered a method of keeping the blossoms around for a long time.

Smith's Hydrangea bush features blooms close to a foot in length. When the blossoms first came out, about a month ago, they appeared in a pale green color. Later the blossoms turned a creamy white and are now merging into pink.

And quite by accident Smith has found out how to make the floral arrangements last. "You can put them in the house in a vase and keep them for years," Smith said.

She became aware of this option after returning from a vacation. Smith left her husband in charge of watering the blossoms which she had cut and put in a container in their home.

Her husband conveniently "never bothered" with the flower arrangement and when Smith returned home she found the blooms beautifully preserved. She "just found out by experiment," so to speak, how to make the blossoms last. Now she often gives bouquets of hydrangea blooms to friends so they can keep them in vases in their dwellings.

Smith said the bumble bees have "just been thick" in the blossoms during the last month. "I think it's wonderful they can get honey from them," she commented. The Smith's have resided in their home on Halliwell for the past 11 years. Dorothy was born in Terrace at Kitsumkalum, the original town site. Kitsumkalum is located west of Terrace and was a landing for riverboats and settlers in the early days.

Dorothy is the daughter of Mattie and Henry Frank, a pioneer family in the area. She was born in 1913 and lived at Frank's Dairy.

Smith is fond of Terrace. "I love it, it's my home. It's where I was born and I love the valley and mountains." She added, I think Terrace is wonderful. "I don't know of a more beautiful place."

Rachelle D'Silva, customer relations representative for McDonald's in Terrace, will be leaving her post to relocate in White Rock, B.C. D'Silva plans to pursue a position, much like the one she has been doing, at a lower mainland branch of McDonald's. D'Silva has been with McDonald's in Terrace for about five months.

School trustee incumbent Lavern Hislop runs for board seat

Lavern Hislop: Recruitment of best teachers ensures key to success.

My husband Fred and I have been residents of Terrace for 35 years. We had five children, all graduates of the Terrace schools and now have grandchildren attending schools in this district.

My political and administrative experience has been varied. As well as being a homemaker and mother I have been a member of the School Board for the past seven years and served as chairman for three years of that time.

I was the North Coast Branch School Districts' representative to the Provincial Education Committee for five years. During the B.C.

Winter Games last year I coordinated the 52 Hostesses who worked at all venues. I am a member of the Pacific Northwest Music Festival and served a two year term as President. In the past I have done substitute teaching in our schools for a number of years as well as worked as a secretary in a real estate and insurance office. I feel the board should continue to:

Lobby the Ministry to ensure that courses continue to be revised in light of new and different needs of the students and of new knowledge. Future applications to the Fund

For Excellence will ensure that monies are available for local initiatives. This year's grant of $334,000 has resulted in the district spending $230,000 on computers and computer equipment; providing $40,000 for teacher in-service; spending $50,000 on library resources and supplementary material and purchasing $14,000 worth of safety equipment in the form of eye wash stations in all school labs.

Recruit the best teachers possible; to provide them fair and equitable salaries; to ensure that they receive Professional Development and Inservice to teach the new and revised programs; and to continue to recognize their contribution to the success of this school district.

Request that the Ministry have textbooks available to teach the students before teachers are required to implement a new course.

I am proud of our schools and the good things happening there. Our class sizes are smaller than last year and we have been able to offer our teachers more money. I have been in a number of schools and witnessed happy students, hard working teachers and clean and well maintained schools.

I see the board's major role as support to our students, our teachers, our staff, parents and the community as we work together to provide the best possible education for our students.

Support shown for Terrace Literacy Campaign

TERRACE — The overwhelming response to the Literacy Campaign has influenced the beginning of several support programs which aid struggling students.

by Philip Musselman

The effectiveness of the Adult Basic Education Association of B.C.'s campaign inspired the joining of many supporters. Although the campaign has done well so far it has just scratched the surface of the problem. In order to address the problem, there are some projects which must be considered. One of these projects is already in the early development stages, and relies on community support throughout the province.

A letter to the mayor thanked Terrace for its support and its letter of encouragement. The letter also informed the city that a toll-free number for long distance access to counselling will be installed in the future. Also in response to the Literacy Campaign institutions, like Northwest Community College, have started student aid programs for people who are struggling at school.

With the growing support from communities like Terrace the campaign will soon be able to reach many of the province's people who have a problem with reading.

Don't miss La Troupe Circus

The Terrace Concert Society will present La Troupe Circus on Friday, Nov. 14 at 8 p.m. in the R.E.M. Lee Theatre.

by Diane Weismiller
Director, Terrace Concert Society

Circus is a professional touring group which was formed in 1981. It has toured throughout Quebec, taken its shows to Vancouver, Toronto and Belgium, and represented Quebec at the World's Fair in New Orleans.

This unique Canadian circus-theatre group delights audiences of all ages. Circus is inspired by its desire to explore the link between theatre and circus techniques, to delve deeper into the study of clown characters, to make gymnastics inventive and creative and, above all, to share the joys of energy in motion.

The group's members are Yvan Cote, Jacqueline Gosselin, Yolande Hudon, Renald Laurin, Pierre Leclerc, and Michelle Legault. Artistic director is Robert Dion. Each of the members has over five years of training in acrobatics, and has specialized in one or more circus techniques: clowning, juggling or mask.

Tickets are available at Sight and Sound or at the door.

Irene Kuhar, vice president and public relations representative of the Terrace Peaks Gymnastics Club, invites young competitors to register with the club. The organization will continue to accept registrations up until the end of December.

Gymnasts prepare

TERRACE — The Terrace Peaks Gymnastics Club held a registration tryout session recently and received a good turnout of young people who are interested in the sport.

by Philip Musselman

The club now has about 95 to 100 young athletes registered in Terrace and others from Thornhill. The group has operated for over 16 years in this area, and other than a few slight storage problems the club is in great shape. In mid-November the club will participate in a few meets and two workshops. The main concern is the Northern B.C. Winter Games in February. Training and preparation will have to be done to insure an outstanding performance.

The two clinics in November are for the coaching level, and the meets will likely take place in Kitimat. Also the group will make plans for some type of fund raising activity in order to have money for trips to competitions. According to Irene Kuhar, vice president and public relations representative of the club, upcoming plans are still questionable, but registration will be open till the end of December, and then again from January through May. Fees vary with ages and experience, and there will be times during the week when athletes can hone their skills on the various equipment that is available.

November's astronomy calendar

Stars over Terrace

by Allen Wootton
Terrace Contributor

Terrace — This is the first of what is intended as a series of articles on astronomy. The articles will appear at the beginning of each month and will describe some of the fascinating things that can be seen in the sky — mostly from Terrace.

In November 1986 there are a number of things to look for. First of all there are two planets that are easy to see for a large part of each (clear) night. These two are Jupiter, the largest of the planets, and Mars, the next planet beyond Earth from the Sun. Both of these planets are easily visible in the southern part of Terrace sky.

Mars

Mars is the reddish star-like object that is located somewhat east of south and about 20 degrees above the horizon just after sunset. Every two years Mars and Earth come close to each other. In July, Earth and Mars were almost as close as they ever get but now the separation between them is increasing. As a result, Mars is getting dimmer as time passes; it still is very bright and its disc can be seen with a pair of binoculars. With a small telescope, even Mars' polar caps can be seen.

Jupiter

While Mars is interesting to look at, Jupiter is absolutely fascinating. At the moment, Jupiter is the brightest star-like object in the evening sky. It is located east, south east at sunset, about 30 degrees above horizon. As for Mars, the later you look out at the sky, the further to the west Jupiter will have moved.

Jupiter's bright white light is beautiful. Viewed through binoculars it becomes a miniature solar system. Binoculars as small as 7 x 35 held steadily reveal Jupiter's disc and the four "Galilean" moons that revolve around it. These moons, Io, Callisto, Ganymede and Europa were shown by the spacecraft Voyager to be some of the most fasinating objects in the solar system.

Moons

Historically, too, the moons have interest. Galileo was one of the first people to look at them with a telescope and when he saw them revolving around Jupiter he had some direct proof that the Earth wasn't the centre around which all objects revolved as was commonly believed at the time. Watch them over a period of a few hours or from night to night and you too will see them move.

Uranus

Mars and Jupiter are easy to see this month. Much more difficult to see is Uranus. If the evening tonight, Nov. 5 is clear, however, you may be able to find this very distant planet 4° north of the crescent moon. Unfortunately, Uranus is very dim, almost at the limit of naked eye visibility so use binoculars if possible.

Venus - Mercury

Two more planets will become visible late in November. They are Venus and Mercury. If your southeast horizon is clear you may see these planets in that area just before sunrise. Both planets make interesting objects to view through binoculars because, like the moon, they show phases. You should find that Venus appears crescent shaped in late November, while Mercury should appear like a half moon.

Of these two planets, Venus is usually easier to see because of its brightness. It is often called the morning or evening "star". It is rarer to see Mercury — it is smaller and more distant than Venus, and as well, never rises very long before, nor sets long after the Sun.

On Nov. 13 a rather special event will occur: the planet Mercury will cross between us and the Sun, right across the Sun's face. Most unfortunately for Terrace residents this fairly rare event (it only occurs about 13 times each century) will not be visible from here but it offers a great excuse to go off to Australia from where it will be visible.

Have fun looking at this month's planets.

Local entertainers present stage play Young Dracula

Oh no! The Vampire

Sybil, played by Laura Tupper, reacts to one of the most famous creatures of the night, Dracula, played by Doug Roszmann.

Hey! What's going on back there? After a rehearsal, the cast of Young Dracula appears on the stairs at the REM Lee Theatre for a different kind of performance. The cast members are (in approximate order of appearance): maids, Susan Mehs, Margaret Dodd and Jenny Hope; Bill, Jim Enriquez; Joan, Leanne Saline; Raymond, David Weismiller; Rona, Rhlannon George; Melinda, Pam Kerr; Jerry, Marc Smith (missing from Photo); Lillian, Joanne Greening; Moana, Gloria Nichols; Werewolf, Tony Ruksys; Dracula, Doug Roszmann; Sybil, Laura Tupper; Frau Wierschnitzel, Lorna Morton; and Keith, Joey Zucchiatti.

Doug Roszmann demonstrates the power of Dracula. The Dracula part is that of an older, eccentric character who always makes himself look bigger than he is.

This performer was part of a production which was held at Terrace's REM Lee Theatre recently. The show featured the Canadian illusionist, Murray Hatfield and talents such as the famous ventriloquist, Don Bryan.

Audience entertained at REM Lee

The audience was captivated by a recent performance in the REM Lee Theatre. A Canadian illusionist and several other talented performers appeared at the theatre to make frowns disappear.

Philip Musselman photos

Boy, is this place strange! David Weismiller, Rhlannon George and Joanne Greening play the roles of three teenagers who came to Dracula's castle with their friends. The poor students seem destined to have the night of their lives in the mysterious castle.

Show goes on

TERRACE — The Terrace Little Theatre productions of Young Dracula are to take place this Friday, Nov. 7 and Saturday, Nov. 8.

The play will be shown three times, one on Friday at 8 p.m. and twice on Saturday at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Tickets are available at Carter's Jewellers and Sight and Sound.

The play has been in rehearsal for over a month and is sure to delight audiences. Revenue from the productions goes toward the renovation of the Terrace Little Theatre. The organization is very pleased to present the play with the help of the Terrace Theatre Alive Society and the Terrace Community Band.

Marilyn Kerr, producer of Young Dracula which is sponsored by the Terrace Little Theatre with the cooperation of the Terrace Theatre Alive Society and the Terrace Community Band, welcomes one and all to "a play for the whole family". Tickets for Young Dracula are available at Sight and Sound and Carter's Jewellers. The play will be held on Nov. 7 and 8 at the REM Lee Theatre.

expectations for treatment services for children... The Mental Health Centre is considered "THE" treatment resource for children and adolescents and yet we do not have the staffing capabilities nor the residential resource capabilities to offer even minimum service."

Andre Klingner, a Terrace psychologist and instructor at Northwest Community College, is the present director for the Terrace Mental Health Centre. In an interview Klingner recently stated that the situation has improved somewhat since Herriot's report. He pointed out that the Terrace staff are spending less of their valuable time travelling due to the addition of a sub-office in Stewart and the hiring of two new staff members based in Smithers. Klingner also said the establishment of a regional head office in Prince George has been helpful in communicating the centre's concerns to Victoria. Premier Bill Vander Zalm, he added, promised Terrace a regional facility for the mentally disabled during a stop here in the October election campaign; no specific information was given at that time, and Klingner said no further action has been taken by Victoria since then. Herriot's report identifies unemployment as a major mental health problem in the Northwest, but Klingner said the number of referrals for people experiencing problems due to unemployment has been declining this year. "I don't believe the employment situation has improved," he said. "It appears that people are just becoming numb."

Police report

by Carrie Olson

On Wednesday, Oct. 29 at approximately 6 p.m. a single vehicle accident occurred 10 kilometers east of Terrace.

The automobile carrying two occupants plunged 12 feet into the Skeena River killing 36-year-old Terrace resident Diane Josephine Johnson.

James Alan Armstrong of Terrace was lucky to get out alive and was taken to Mills Memorial Hospital with undetermined injuries.

Terrace RCMP said the cause of the accident is still under investigation.

School soccer ends

The high school junior soccer season came to an end on the Oct. 25 weekend when Kitimat hosted Prince Rupert and beat their guests 2-0 to capture the northwest zone title. Skeena of Terrace cancelled out of this series due to a lack of players.

Meanwhile, the final mini-tournament for senior high school soccer took place at Terrace.

The Caledonia boys started with a 1-0 win over Prince Rupert on a goal by Balbir Mann. Jimmy Mantel was in goal for the shutout. In the next game, Prince Rupert downed Kitimat 1-0.

The third game saw Kitimat outscore Caledonia 2-1. Adam Ford scored the Terrace goal.

Hundreds attend Fall Bazaar

by Marion Schlegel
Terrace Contributor

Terrace — On Wednesday, Oct. 29 the Ladies of the Catholic Women's League (C.W.L.) held their annual Fall Bazaar at Veritas School gym.

The doors opened at 7:00 p.m. and about 300 Terrace residents entered the gym to enjoy the event. There were tables with toys; crafts; religious articles; baking goods; plants and a "white elephant" table. Youngsters especially enjoyed the bottle table. They could win a bottle and its contents by buying a ticket.

The attraction of the evening was the "Cake Wheel". Over 40 fine decorated cakes were on display. The Portuguese Community had a great table with some fine baked original Portuguese goods. Visitors were presented with coffee, cakes and sandwiches served by Grade 7 students.

The C.W.L. Ladies like to thank all who attended and volunteered at the Bazaar, especially those who donated cakes, bottles and other goods. With the support of all these people it was a very enjoyable and successful evening. The money raised will go towards the school as well as other worthy causes.

If you want to become a member of the C.W.L. please contact the president, Betty Ruksys at 635-5394 (home), 635-6536 (work) or Marion Schlegel at 635-3525. The C.W.L. is the largest women's group in Canada and is organized provincially and nationally. The group has an input towards the lawmaking process in parliament and at the provincial level.

All Catholic women are called to participate.

Accounting Positions

Westar Timber is a company on the move. Our operations are under constant upgrading programs and a new sawmill, Carnaby, is under construction near Hazelton, B.C.

These changes have brought about the need for:

- Junior and Intermediate Accountants
Growth and inter-divisional transfers are creating vacancies for new members for our accounting team. The positions available will provide support for accounts receivable, accounts payable functions, payroll control, general accounting and preparation of quarterly statements under the direction of the divisional controller. Candidates should have completed 2nd to 4th year C.G.A./R.I.A. courses and have work experience in an industrial environment.
- Project Accountant
The management team at our new sawmill, Carnaby, requires a self-motivated professional to set up and manage accounting systems. The position is vital for the construction period and initial stages of operation of the mill, and can develop into a permanent position. Candidates should have completed 4th year C.G.A./R.I.A. level programs and have 2-3 years project related experience.

These positions provide unique management challenges in dynamic working environments. Successful applicants will be self-motivated team players and willing to relocate if necessary. Superior communications and interpersonal skills are also required.

Please reply in writing in confidence to:

Campaign launched

The first of British Columbia's major post-Expo marketing campaigns is aimed at selling "The Other Side" — the cultural side — of super, natural British Columbia to American tourists. The $2 million campaign focuses on key markets on the west coast of the United States.

The first phase of the campaign (approximately $1.1 million) is a joint federal-provincial-private sector pilot project designed to promote Vancouver and Victoria as "cultural destination cities". Federal funding of $250,000 was matched by Tourism B.C. and augmented by the private sector.

This campaign will be the first of many designed to capitalize on the high profile which British Columbia now enjoys in the United States as a result of Expo 86.

Terrace resident, Betty Cambell, zone chairman for the B.C. Heart Foundation, reminds people that they can give an In Honor donation to research for the cure of heart disease at any time during the year. Funds can be sent to the B.C. Heart Foundation, Box 22, Terrace B.C., V8G 4A2 or phone 635-5221.

Vikki MacKay, one of the Family Four, had an opportunity to display her watercolors at the Terrace Public Art Gallery, recently. MacKay, along with her parents and her sister, held their first family showing over the month of October.

Books for young readers - The Druid's Tune

by Andrea Deakin
Terrace Book Reviewer

O.R. Melling's first book, "The Druid's Tune" (Puffin), was a story in the heroic tradition of two young people from the 10th century who find themselves back in ancient Ireland, caught in the war between Maeve of Connaught and Cuculann, champion of Ulster.

"The Singing Stone" (Viking Kestrel: $16.95) begins with Kay Warrick, a lonely young woman living in a modern city who receives a parcel of old Celtic legends and realizes that she is being drawn to Ireland to find the answer to the strange dreams which haunt her. Once there, she too is drawn into the ancient past on a quest to find four ancient lost treasures of power: The Sword, The Spear, The Cauldron and The Stone of Destiny.

From the beginning she has a companion, a young helpless girl called Aherne. Once again O.R. Melling has succeeded in not only telling an absorbing story with sympathetic attractive protagonists, but also in capturing the spirit of magic and ritual which are part of the ancient Celtic myths. Young people will find it difficult to put down. It is a powerful, richly patterned tale.

Eric Wilson's main goal has always been to encourage reluctant young readers to take the plunge. Therefore he has offered fast-paced adventure stories simply and directly told, stories with recognizable Canadian settings. His latest book, "The Unmasking of K'shan" (Collins: $13.95) is one of his most effective so far.

Tom and Liz Austin are not involved this time, instead there are two interesting young people; Dawn, a gifted young native dancer from Hazelton, and Graham; the son of the local minister, still mourning the loss of his mother. Each of them shows growth and development through the novel, Graham dealing with his fears of heights and his insecurities of purpose; Dawn growing to appreciate the gift she has been given and the heritage she belongs to.

The youngsters have real problems to solve and real judgements to make. The story concerns the theft of a priceless antique Indian mask, that of the Raven, from the museum at K'san, but it also deals with understanding the culture which has produced the mask and the peoples who keep alive his heritage in northern British Columbia.

Young Janet Munsil's first book, "Dinner at Aunt Rosie's" (Annick: $4.95) was a delightful commentary on a youngster's reactions to 'being good' during a family visit. "Zach at the Zoo" (Annick: $4.95) is another attractive nonsense story. Zach goes to the zoo, but when he bends down to tie his shoe his father gets lost. Zach asks directions to the Lost and Found. "Let's see," said the man, "first you go straight, then right, then left, then turn, left, straight, right, leftlefrightrightlefrightright. And there you are."

As you might imagine with these instructions Zach soon finds himself in the middle of Albert Avenue, nowhere near the Lost and Found, and followed by six eager penguins. The nonsense goes cheerfully from bad to worse accompanied by high spirited bright illustrations by Lesley Fairfield. This lighthearted romp is going to be very popular with youngsters, I am sure. Janet Munsil has the touch of a true comic.

Lastly, as Christmas draws nearer there are new editions of old favorites. Anatoly Ivanov has taken Robert Browning's "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" (Gage: $20.50) and filled it with rich imaginative illustrations. This edition for older children, with its elegant calligraphy, jewel-bright pictures and imaginative touches, makes an elegant version of an old classic.

Jonesa Beintema, 5, displays the outlined pumpkin she neatly colored at the Hallow'en Hoot in the banquet room at the Terrace Arena Friday, Oct. 31. "I got a black tooth," said Beintema with a grand smile.

Terrace vampire attacks pumpkin

Stephen Metton-Hodges, 8, of Terrace carves a face in his pumpkin at the Hallowe'en Hoot in the Terrace Arena Friday Oct. 31. Stephen showed his oversized teeth and explained he was dressed as a vampire.

Museum Society to build storage shed

TERRACE — The Terrace Regional Museum Society (TRMS) have plans to build a storage shed at Heritage Park to house such items as the belly-dump wagon, fire truck, and sternwheeler parts.

These items and others will be preserved and exhibited in this building.

A letter has been received from Grace McCarthy stating that a grant of $20,000 (one third of the project cost) has been approved to B.C. Lotteries.

Before the grant is forwarded the TRMS must provide evidence that they are able to raise a substantial amount of the funds required. The museum society has been working towards this goal for some time and appreciates the continued support of the community.

A bake sale, along with stationery items, will be held on Nov. 29 at the Skeena Mall. Any donations of baking, preserves, etc. would be appreciated. Call 635-5456 or 635-5650.

Randy Penner, member of the Terrace Regional Museum Society, sits beside a model of a Sternwheeler that was a common sight on the Skeena River in the early 1900's. Artifacts collected from such sternwheelers will be housed in the proposed shed to be built at Heritage Park.

Terrace nurses gathered in the basement cafeteria at Mills Memorial Hospital recently to listen to shop stewards Ursula Althaus (left) and Pamela Pilling outline the current state of negotiations. Members of the B.C. Nurses Union will vote on the latest contract proposal tomorrow, Nov. 6

Local nurses talk shop at a recent meeting.

Progress on talks between the B.C. Nurses Association and the Health Labour Relations Association are explained to Terrace nurses.
