Riverboat Days — 1990

POPULAR WINNERS in the non-commercial classification of the Riverboat Days parade were the local Elks Lodge and Order of the Royal Purple. Their purple and white riverboat caught both the spirit of the celebration and the eyes of all those watching the parade.

THE RIVERBOAT DAYS parade would not be the same without the Rube Band and its equally famous leader Bud Kirkaldy (seen above).

KIDDIES DAY at the Terraceview Lodge brought smiles to the painted faces of Shawna Linteris, Amanda Duhan and Ashley Morris — and the residents of the lodge.

BLAST FROM THE PAST. This 1955 Chevrolet is the pride and joy of Larry Craig. He's had the vehicle for 10 years and has restored it to as near original as possible. It has a two-speed transmission and 265 cubic inch V-8 engine. Craig estimates he's spent $7,000 in restorations.

THE WORM TURNS. Terrace Public Library had a new addition to its entry this year — Wormsworth. The colourful slinker wove down the parade route aided by the propulsion of a cornucopia of children.

List of parade winners

TERRACE — Northwest Community College won the best overall award for floats, sponsored by the legion, in this year's Riverboat Days parade.

In the non-commercial category, first went to the Elks and Order of the Royal Purple; second went to the Filipino-Canadian Association; and third went to the Northern B.C. Winter Games committee.

In the commercial category, Terrace Animal Shelter placed first; Terraceview Lodge was second; and Kitimat Chamber of Commerce was third.

For vehicle awards, first place went to Reunion '65; second to The Terrace Review; third to Terrace Chamber of Commerce; and fourth to Shawn Munson.

In children's awards, first went to Darryl and Dennis from Farwest Fuels; second went to Michael Anweird and Jeremy Floor.

A special award for category of their own went to the 4-H club.

In a separate competition, the Royal Bank placed first for business decorating while the Northern Motor Inn was second and Ev's Menswear was third.

Oldtimers swap stories at a reunion banquet

By YVONNE MOEN
More than 100 Terrace oldtimers got together for a reunion dinner last week to tell stories and exchange gifts.

People came from as far away as North Carolina and Washington to attend the July 28th dinner at the Terrace Inn.

The reunion began with a social hour, followed by the dinner, the drawing of door prizes and then the stories.

Alex Houlden started the evening by welcoming everyone and introducing the out of town guests.

Joe Haitz won the door prize, a collectors Kermodei plate, which he gave away to Julia Little. A second draw prize of a Pioneers of Terrace Area book, which was for someone who had been in Terrace prior to 1918, was won by Floyd Johnson.

Ted Johnston then presented Mamie Kerby with his book for the heritage site.

Floyd Frank told the first story of the night which was about how the hole-in-the-wall got its name, and Tom Olson followed with a story about his aunt Jessie.

Belle Watts recounted her memories of receiving the mail by a dog team and Luella Brooks talked about her days as a nurse in the Prince Rupert hospital in 1920.

The out of town visitors travelling the farthest to attend the reunion were Sanna Ross Gaffney from Boone, North Carolina. She received a Kermodei collectors plate.

Other visitors were: Luella Brooks (Frank), White Rock; Belle Watts (Frank), Calgary; Vera Frank, North Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Haasjes, Victoria; Freda Malory, Prince Rupert; Daisy Stokes, Kispiox Valley; Bernice Houlden (Sand), Kispiox Valley; Jack and Linda Sager, Vernon B.C.; Eric Lenney, Bellingham, Washington; Jean Froese, Clearbrook.

Summer of visits, birthdays

By YVONNE MOEN

Bert Goulet's mother, who came to Terrace as a homesteader in 1920, was in Terrace visiting her son recently.

Now living in Qualicum on Vancouver Island, 92 year-old Antoinette Goulet is doing very well. Bert's daughter Cheryl and her three children were also here for a visit from Vancouver.

Bill and Helene McRae tallied up their 14th grandchild when son Doug and his wife Annie had a new baby.

While walking by Northwest Sportsman the other day with Belle Watts I spotted Bill Gibbs weighing in a 60 pound fish he'd caught on the lower Kalum.

Ted Barry celebrated his 60th birthday last week with many friends and family attending the celebration.

Held at his daughter's house, the party was attended by more than 35 people including Ted's brother Pat and his family from Saskatoon. Other out of town guests were Ted's son Dave and his family and Ray and Joan Clifford from Salmon Arm B.C.

The guest of honour arrived in style on his daughter Laurie's Harley Davidson.

A special thanks to Rod Cameron who videotaped the special event. Everyone had a marvellous time.

Kip and Ruth Gravelle are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house at the Elks Hall August 25, and would like all their friends to come join them on this special day.

Married at the St. John Anglican Church in Duncan B.C., they moved to Terrace in

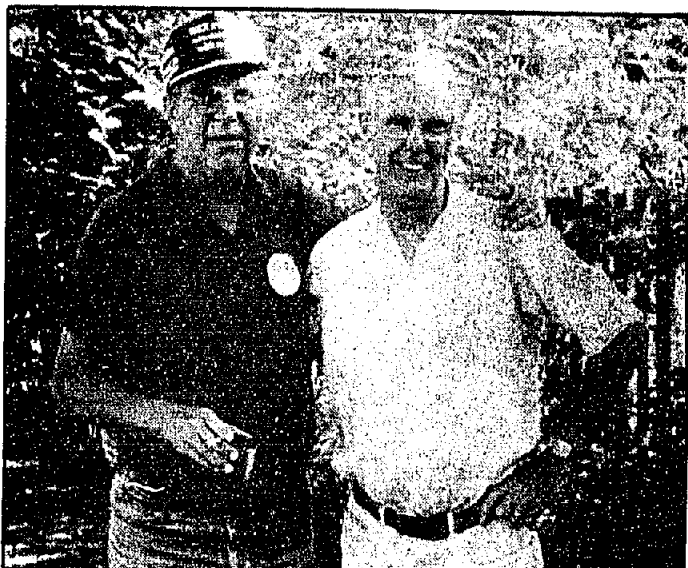

"Here 'n There" by Yvonne Moen

1959 where Kip worked for Columbia Cellulose until he retired in 1982.

They have three children:

Elaine Furnseth, Leslie Nicholichuk and Joe Gravelle. Please come and join in on this special day.

TED BARRY, here with his brother Pat from Saskatoon on the right, received a surprise party for his 60th birthday. More than 35 friends and relatives attended. Barry arrived in style — on his daughter's Harley Davidson.

Fun in France

By YVONNE MOEN

Ten people have just returned from studying french at a Paris school.

The trip included four weeks of classes at the Centre Internationale d'Etude Francaise and five days of sightseeing in Paris.

The five days wasn't enough to see Paris, they say, but enough to make them want to go back and see the rest.

Their sightseeing tour began with a bus trip around the city to familiarize them with the landmarks, and was followed by a visit to the Notre Dame Cathedral and the home of the Mona Lisa.

They also visited the old opera house, the Eiffel Tower, the Palace of Versailles and the Place de la Concorde.

Participating in the trip was Northwest Community College French teacher Jo Patterson, Linda Miller and Ann Kantakis from the college and Pam Jakobs, Charmaine Anderson, Julie Krause, Jason Krause, Lisa Chen-Wing and Eric Bergsma. Also along was Jackie Turner from Yarrow.

Park Report
by James Roop

VICTORIA — Parks Minister Ivan Messmer announced Parks Plan 90, a comprehensive planning process that will shape the future of British Columbia's parks.

"British Columbians have been blessed and challenged by our natural heritage," Messmer said, "BC Parks' ultimate aim is to establish a system of parks which balances conservation and recreation. In order to achieve this goal, we must plan for the long term, with full public participation."

Messmer today released four Parks Plan 90 documents to encourage discussion and comments from British Columbians: Parks Plan 90: Summary, Parks Plan 90: Landscapes for BC Parks, Parks Plan 90: Special Features for BC Parks, and Striking the Balance (third edition).

Beginning in the fall of 1990, the public in every part of the province will be invited to express its views on Parks Plan 90 documents. BC Parks will also meet with interest groups, industry and business, Messmer said.

After the public meetings, an action plan will be prepared in 1991. At that time, areas will be targeted for study, and a timetable and process for completion of the parks system will be suggested.

The documents released today explain the role and responsibility of BC Parks, and describe the steps required to deal with proposals for additional parks. They illustrate the process BC parks' will follow to establish a system of parks which preserves natural environments for the inspiration, use and enjoyment of the public.

Parks Plan 90: Landscapes for BC Parks identifies the 59 representative landscapes of British Columbia. Parks Plan 90: Special Features for BC Parks identifies some of British Columbia's key recreation settings, including most unusual geographical features, highest waterfalls, best beaches and rarest wildlife.

Parks Plan 90 is the second phase of BC Parks' initiative to involve British Columbians in planning the parks system, and follows the 1988 release of Striking a Balance, BC Parks' first public policy statement.

"British Columbia is a diverse province and we want a diverse parks system that will reflect the vision of all British Columbians," said Messmer.

"Since 1911, BC parks has created 388 parks, covering an area the size of Nova Scotia," Messmer added, "but our parks system is still far from complete. Through Parks Plan 90, BC parks will continue to identify important areas of the province to add to the current 5.5 million-hectare system."

Copies of these documents are available at BC Parks, 4000 Seymour Place, Victoria, B.C. V8V 1X5; phone 387-5002.

Fishing: an incurable addiction

"Hello." It was me answering the phone.

"Let's go fishing." It was Bill calling me.

There was unmistakable urgency in his voice, an urgency shaped by the need to recreate a fine fishing experience — to share the temporary sporting wealth of a newly discovered angling treasure.

"I've got to scrape the moss off the roof. I've been promising Karen for months," a vision of me peeling back a layer of spongy green carpet and discovering shingles still attached to it flashed across the part of my brain that handles such things.

"I've found a run, one we've driven past hundreds of times — and it's loaded," Bill spoke in an uncharacteristically low voice; it was all he could do to keep from breaking into uncontrollable hysteria. I could see silver, torpedo-shaped tubes of muscle hovering over the boulders of glacially tinted pools, waiting to unleash their explosive energy upon tiny glittering, undulant objects dangled over their heads on gossamer threads of mono.

"To hell with the moss," I said involuntarily.

"Huh?"

"The moss can wait."

"Pick me up," said Bill.

There had been no new logging. The road hadn't been graded in a long time. The rods in the car and those underneath it rattled together as I attempted to steer the endangered Honda through a minefield of potholes and jagged rocks. A moment on the road is a moment stolen from streamside. My lead-soled driving foot was near the floor. We shot past Baxter's and

The Skeena Angler

by Rob Brown

Blackie's, rallied dangerously alongside the precipitous slopes of the canyon, sped past Little America, rattled over the bridge at Simpson Creek and groaned up the grade to Matson's Canyon. Shrapnel shot from under the wheels.

We pried our eyes away from the tortuous course and shot sidelong glances at the river to make sure it hadn't coloured up in the interim. It hadn't and it wouldn't, for the temperature had dropped and the first of the fall frosts had bitten the landscape. It was fall down here in the lower reaches if the river, it had to be winter 40 miles inland, where the glaciers had stopped melting.

The water courses along the rock faces had frozen causing shards of rock to break free and roll onto the road in many places. I wheeled around a dangerous corner.

"There!" yelled Bill. "Where?" I screamed, hitting a piece of rock that could easily have been mistaken for the incisor of a prehistoric shark.

There was a cruel grating sound. I gave Bill a what-do-you-think look. Bill shrugged. A red light on the dash board went on. "Oil," it said.

We got out. The Honda bled black blood. "We've got to get back to town," I said. Bill nodded agreement.

Down a hill — no light. Up a hill — "OIL". And so it went.

"Dan welds," suggested Bill as the oil light went out on a downslope.

We pulled into Dan's place. He lived in Thornhill, on River Road near the Church of God. I pounded on the door for a long time before Dan opened it. He had just gotten out of bed. His eyes were half-shut and he was in his underwear. Except for a fierce-looking great horned owl, stuffed with its wings outstretched, Dan's house was bare.

"Can you weld my oilpan?" I asked Dan. "I tore it on the Copper River Road. We were on our way to a new hotspot," I added for clarity.

Dan understood. Within half an hour, he'd brazed the pan. We topped up with oil at the service station and were on our way.

"What happened to Dan's stuff?" I asked.

"His old lady left," said Bill. "He must've fished too much."

Knowing where the rocks and holes were now, I drove faster. In thirty minutes we were there. We fished hard. We fished with waning anticipation. We hooked nothing — not a fish.

"Can't understand it," said Bill shaking his head. "It was great yesterday."

Race hike Kings

TERRACE — Smithers' Richard Harrison retained his crown in Terrace's 13th annual King of the Mountain race up Terrace Mountain.

The six-time winner was in a dead heat with Terrace's Colin Parr for much of the eight-kilometre hiking trail course on July 29. But Harrison's mid-course surge gave him a slight lead over Parr which he managed to hold until the end, winning by 25 seconds.

The steep hills and rocky surface made the course a real challenge for all participants, and all finishers were given T-shirts.

The final standings were:

Open Men

1st — Richard Harrison, 37:43 minutes. Harrison holds the course record of 35:29.

2nd — Colin Parr, 38:08 Parr has won the race twice and is a former record holder.

3rd — Perry Grunenberg (Telkwa), 42:41. Fourth overall.

Open Women

1st — Rose-Marie Cheer (Pr. Rupert), 51:46

2nd — Kelli Maskewich (Smithers), 53:12

3rd — Kim Barriere (Terrace), 1:02:47

Masters Men

1st — Ed Ansems (Terrace), 41:12. Ansems was third overall.

2nd — Geoff Phillips (Terrace), 46:10

3rd — Neil Fleischmann (Terr.) 50:44

Masters Women

1st — Marilyn Earl (Terrace), 1:03:16

2nd — Ruth Keefe (Kitimat), 1:10:26

Junior Male (14-18)

1st — Dave Edmonds (Terrace), 43:26

1st — Cynthia Kenyon (Terr.) 1:07:19

2nd — Sarah Weston (Terrace), 1:29:20

RIVERBOAT DAYS spirit helped out on the ball field, where teams from across the northwest clashed in a weekend slo-pitch tournament. Smithers' Video-Pop batters seemed to have an extra dose of that spirit on their way to victory over the Prince Rupert Putters. Results next week.

Sharples: awaits word

TERRACE — Jeff Sharples is waiting for a signal that there's still room for him in the National Hockey League.

He says negotiations for a new contract are in progress between his agent and the New Jersey Devils. But if the talks fall through he says he will play out his option and then decide what to do.

The 23-year-old defenceman from Terrace was bounced from club to club last season. He opened the year with the Detroit Red Wings organization that originally drafted him, was traded to the Oilers following a mid-season injury and ended up in New Jersey amid year-end trading.

"Hockey is still my long-term goal," he said last week. "I don't have any doubt that I can play in the National Hockey League. It's just a matter of getting a chance again and if that chance is a year down the road or two years down the road when expansion happens then that's the way it has to be."

Sharples said the New Jersey management has been sending encouraging signs, and added

it's early to make alternate plans. "We'll just have to see what they come up with first, and everything else is just hypothetical right now," he said.

He's teaching at the Okanagan Hockey School right now, before returning to Terrace to help train local youngsters at Terrace's Summer Hockey School.

"After that I'm just going to go back and have a good training camp," he said. "The only way to make it is to play your best hockey, and that's what I'm going to do."

Stealers win berth

TERRACE — Terrace's Northern Motor Inn Stealers ladies fastball team earned a berth at the provincials by winning a July 28 tournament in Kispiox.

The Stealers will represent the zone at the Aug. 24-26 provincial championships in Richmond.

They lost their first game against the Hazelton Skeena A's. But when the A's were beaten by Kispiox, Terrace had to face them again. This time the Stealers came out on top, with a 7-6 win.

They rolled on to victory on double wins over Kispiox — 7-1, 6-2.

Kickers

SPEED AND SKILLS helped the NTC Kickers score four goals against Skeena Hotel's three for a win in men's soccer league action Thursday night.

Fencing

Thomas is world-class

By YVONNE MOEN

A former Terrace athlete has capped an impressive year of international-level fencing with medal-winning performances at the Western Canada summer games in Winnipeg.

Crystal Thomas earned a silver medal in individual fencing and a team gold at the western championships last month.

Dacre Stoker, Canada's national coach, says Thomas — who has competed internationally with the Canadian national women's team throughout Europe — has the potential to soar even higher.

Thomas' consistent improvement in both athletic abilities and competition results could soon put her in the top three, Stoker adds. Thomas hopes to attend the world championships this month in Spain.

She also competes in the modern pentathlon — a combination of swimming, running, fencing, handgun shooting and show horse jumping. Now living in Calgary, she trains more than 30 hours a week and works part-time. The competitive demands are harsh, and she's seeking sponsorship to allow her more time for training.

She qualified for the Western Canada games with a first-place performance at the 1990 Alberta provincial championships earlier this year.

Thomas was born in Terrace and graduated from Caledonia Senior Secondary school in 1984. She left town to study sociology at the University of Victoria.

While competing internationally in the Soviet Union in the spring of 1989, Thomas took in a three-week training camp in Riga, Latvia. She has won numerous medals at provincial- and national-level competitions.

REAL ESTATE

A Touch Of Mediterranean Class

This handsome home combines convenience and class and is ideally suited for a lot with a reverse view. Notice all of the important rooms are arranged across the rear. On the left is the bedroom wing...three large bedrooms are enhanced with plenty of closet space. You have two choices for bathroom and ensuite layout depending on your budget. The two front bedrooms share the interesting feature of vaulted bay windows letting in lots of light. Over the foyer is another vaulted ceiling and yet another graceful arched window to flood the foyer with natural light. The spacious family area will make conversation and meal preparation a delight...just off the nook is a large covered deck, it can be made even bigger if you prefer. The formal dining area is close to the kitchen as is the utility and handy lavatory.

TERRACE— The Terrace Hiking Club has set out its list of hikes for August and early September.

Anyone is welcome to come along. Participants usually meet in the morning at the library, where people can get together and car pool.

Bring appropriate footwear, food and water for day hikes.

Planned hikes are:

• August 5 — Bornite Mountain: Ten miles east of Terrace. This is a moderate hike. Walk one mile of logging road (if no 4WD), then two miles of moderate trail, the last part a little steep, then climb the peak if you wish, over fairly open

Area hikes set mountain (takes another hour plus). Meet at library at 9 a.m. Leader is Vicki (635-2935).

• August 12 — Mount Elizabeth: Six miles northeast of Kitimat. Fairly steep trail. Eight miles on dusty logging road, two miles of trail. Very beautiful at the top. Meet at Terrace library at 8 a.m. and at Mt. Elizabeth sign on highway near Kitimat at 8:40 a.m. Leader John Williams (632-6445).

• August 19 — Thornhill crossover: We drive to within a mile of the microwave on Copper Mtn., then walk to towers and across mountain to peak on Thornhill Mountain. Moderate walk, rough and wet downhill at start of trail. We will come down the Thornhill trail (about five miles). Meet at library at 9 a.m. Pickups, 4WDs very welcome. If vehicles not available we will hike up trail and down again. Lakes at top, flowers and berries. Vicki leader.

• August 26 — Silvern Lakes: A hike to the Silvern lakes near the ski hill at Smithers. Takes place on Bulkley Valley fall fair weekend. Possible overnight. Call Shannon at 635-4486 for more information.

• September 1-3 — Seven Sisters: A two-night scenic hike into the Seven Sisters mountain range near Cedarvale. Contact Kelly Kline at 798-2535.

• September 9 — Claque Mountain: Near Kitimat, this hike offers great views. A fairly strenuous three-hour climb each way. Meet in Terrace at 8:30 a.m. at the library for car pool or at the Kitimat Chamber of Commerce sign.
