LEAVES WATERLOO

Rev. C. W. Foreman, B.A., L.Th.

Rev. C. W. Foreman, Resigns Position on College Faculty

Appointed Rector of St. Mary's Church, Walkerville.

By the appointment of Rev. C. W. Foreman, B.A., L.Th., as rector of St. Mary's Church, Walkerville, Waterloo College lost an esteemed and able professor. As lecturer in English and history at the College, rural dean of Waterloo County, and rector of the Church of the Holy Saviour, he has won the esteem of the people of Waterloo and district, but especially of the students and professors at the College.

Rev. Mr. Foreman is a graduate of Huron College and the University of Western Ontario. He has been curate of St. Paul's Cathedral and lecturer at Huron College. During the war he served overseas with the Canadian army. While overseas, he was captain and chaplain of reserve battalions and the 21st Battalion in France, Belgium and Germany.

It is about eight years since Rev. Mr. Foreman came to Waterloo. Since then he has been active, not only in church work but also in other activities. He was chaplain of the Scots Fusiliers, secretary of the Waterloo Library Board, and cap-

HONOUR COURSES TO BE OFFERED AT WATERLOO SHORTLY

Twelve Courses of College Curriculum Added or Extended.

In order to meet the desire of students to continue the study of various subjects, even beyond the requisite studies, the Faculty of Waterloo College has added or extended twelve courses.

In addition to courses offered last year the 1929-30 Announcement includes courses in Pre-calculus and the Mathematical Theory of Investment, the History of the Renaissance and the Reformation, Modern History, the History of the United States and advanced Latin and Greek.

As a nucleus for honour or specialist work, courses in Roman and Greek History and Literature, supplemental and accredited in Latin 10, 20, 30, 40 and Greek 1, 10, 20, 30, 40 are being offered. Following up this plan the Faculty hopes to be able to offer honour courses in several subjects within a year or two.

Since honour matriculation certificates are necessary for specialist work, several courses have been extended. Greek and Latin 20 Extensions are being offered to prepare students for teaching in High Schools and Collegiate Institutes, and for Departmental Upper School or Honour Matriculation examinations in June.

Many students are taking advantage of the new courses, especially in the Department of Classics. In conjunction with the additional courses in Classics offered, a special Classics study room, equipped with valuable books of Greek and Roman Literature and History, has been opened.

Toil-worn Laborers Seek Registrar's Office

It was a motley crowd which gathered on September 24 before the registrar's office. Farmers, artisans, printers, reporters, butlers, bell-hops, fruit-pickers, customs inspectors, gentlemen (professional) and co-eds were there from far and near. Students came from as far east as Bridgewater, N.S., west as far as Pontix, Sask., and even the United States was represented by a "Yankee" from New Brighton, Pa.

PUBLIC INVITED TO ATTEND LECTURES IN AMERICAN HISTORY

A course in the History of the United States is being offered this year. Any one that would find it of interest to obtain a more comprehensive knowledge of the process by which a neighboring nation has developed but who would not desire to assume the burden of working for a credit will be welcome to attend the lectures. Regular attendance will not be necessary. This applies to students and also to persons outside of the college.

Co-eds Make Inroads At Waterloo College

Former Male Students Seek Shelter in Dormitory.

Waterloo College is another proof that history repeats itself. Centuries ago the Romans suddenly realized that the barbarian hordes had entered their hitherto impregnable empire. Thenceforth there was no peace for the Romans.

Similarly the boys at Waterloo College awoke one bright morning to find that a group of Amazons, who had been besieging their stronghold of masculine liberty, had succeeded in gaining a foothold within the walls.

In a mad panic, in which one of the boys broke his wrist, the poor souls retreated into the innermost part of the fortress, known as the dormitory, where the on-rushing co-eds would not dare to set foot. There in their "sanctum sanctorum" the boys are spending their days unmolested, emerging only when absolutely necessary—that is, to attend classes, and even then with the greatest precautions.

The invaders, however, are not

DEAN OF WOMEN

Miss Hannah M. Haug, M.A.

Miss H. M. Haug, M.A. First Dean of Women

Miss Haug Has Wide Teaching Experience and Will Have Charge of the Department of History.

When Co-education this year invaded the halls of Waterloo College and brought a new factor into the academic and social life of the institution, a valuable addition was made to the faculty as a result — Miss Hannah M. Haug, M.A., Assistant Professor of History and Dean of Women in the College.

Miss Haug comes to Waterloo with an impressive record of scholastic achievements and wide teaching experience. Graduating from the Teachers' College at River Falls, Wisconsin, of which state she is a native, she taught in public schools for a time, before going to the University of Wisconsin. After obtaining the degree of B.A., she again reverted to the teaching profession after which she returned to the University for further study. She was awarded an M.A. degree in 1928. Miss Haug is now seeking her doctor's degree.

The teaching experience of Waterloo's first Dean of Women includes work on the staffs of public and high schools and of the North Dakota State School of Science at Wahpeton, in the Junior College de-

Welcome! With this edition of the College Cord you will know that activities at Waterloo College have begun for another term. With the opening of the fall term many new students have found their way within the school's doors. This year's registration has shown a gratifying increase in male students, and a very promising start as regards the female students. We take this opportunity to welcome these strangers. Let us hope that you will not be strangers in our midst for very long. Let us encourage you to take your part in the school's activities. The school is still comparatively young and to obtain the best results we must co-operate. "Each for one and one for all." Again, welcome to our halls; may the time when you become one of us be not far hence.

Rev. C. W. Foreman The appointment of the Rev. Foreman to the rectory of St. Mary's at Walkerville, means the loss of an able lecturer in English at Waterloo College. Rev. C. W. Foreman has been very prominent in boys' work throughout his career and his ability to work with and secure the best results from boys has been ably demonstrated during his two years' stay at Waterloo College. The Rev. Foreman was well versed in the works of the various English writers, and because of his acquaintance with the scenes of the writings, could make a lecture a vivid picture instead of a mere description. Rev. C. W. Foreman was not only popular in the classroom but also in recreation circles. As everyone knows, he was an ardent lover of the great out of doors, and was always glad to chaperone any of the outings held by the boys, where he was just a grown-up boy with the rest of the crowd. At Waterloo we have, perhaps, at least one advantage over other universities. We come into personal contact with our professors, more so than at many of the other schools. The professor is not merely a man who walks into the room, reads his lecture, and departs, apparently oblivious of the fact that the student exists. On the contrary the professor enters the room and gives his lecture with the welfare of each individual student at heart. Therefore the departure of the Rev. Foreman will be felt by all who have known him. His absence will be marked by every individual. He is gone, but his memory and influence remain. As his thoughts will turn back to Waterloo, so ours will follow him in his new position. May God bless him and allow his work to prosper!

Concords

It is well known that a newspaper must depend on its advertisers in order to function successfully. With this issue of the Cord our readers will notice a number of new advertisers. When approached by the Advertising Manager and his staff our advertisers were ready to subscribe to the limited space in order to help along this publication. We would then again at this time draw the attention of our readers and especially the student body to these advertisements and ask them to patronize the business houses which are helping to make our "College Cord".

partment of that institution. Miss Haug was also Superintendent of Schools at Waucoma, Iowa, for some time.

When questioned by the Cord regarding her first impressions of Waterloo College, Miss Haug's answer was very decisive.

"It's a queer thing," she declared, "but when I first came here everything appealed favorably to me. That is a very unusual occurrence. The people are splendid, and everyone improves with acquaintance. I'm afraid I'm going to like Waterloo all too well."

Miss Haug has great faith in a school of this type and looks forward to a splendid future for Waterloo College. She says the type of work done here is being needed more and more; the signs of the times, in her opinion, indicate that fact. Another favorable factor at Waterloo College, according to Miss Haug, is the personal attention to individual students, facilitated in a small school. And this is now being recognized more and more as being essential in educational work.

Miss Haug is strongly in favor of co-education. It is her firm belief—a belief founded upon wide educational experience—that co-education is vitally necessary to produce balanced training. And it is certain that, in the capacity of Dean of Women, she will put co-education on a firm footing in Waterloo College.

WORDS THAT HAVE BEEN OVERUSED

The following discussion on the overuse of words, which appeared in a leaflet called "Word Study", imparts some valuable criticism and should be of interest to all students of English.

In a recent article John Macey suggests that it might be well "to put to sleep for a long, long rest some words and usages which are very tired, or were crippled or feeble-minded to start with."

It is of interest to examine some of the terms of which Mr. Macy disapproves, at the same time bearing in mind that we have here simply the interesting phenomenon of one writer's opinion with regard to these words. Such an opinion doubtless presents prejudices that other students of English would not recognize as legitimate, although many would admit that too often these words are used from thoughtless following of fashion rather than because they aptly fit the sense. No one would criticize the careful and correct use of these same words by the great writers of our literature. With this position clearly in mind, any study of such words as those that Mr. Macy would avoid is well worthwhile.

"Culture" is his first choice—because it has become a bore. Probably if persons who use the word light-heartedly were more vividly aware of its primary significance—tillage, with all that that word implies in the way of hard, difficult, unremitting labor, they would use it more sparingly.

"Crass" Mr. Macy calls a word "wedded to stupidity." Despite Mr. Macy's dislike of crass, one imagines that there are occasions when no other word will take its place. Webster quotes that powerful phrase from Sir Thomas Browne as an example, "crass and fumid exhalations."

Then Mr. Macy objects to "keen", as applied to a sense of humor. Oddly enough, the person with a keen sense of humor often receives his humor passively, not actively; he appreciates the cutting wit of others, instead of having a keen-edged wit himself.

For "intrigue" used as a verb in the French sense, donner a penser (for example, "The plot intrigued us greatly"), Mr. Macy finds no authority in the dictionaries. (In a recent supplement of New Words, Webster defines it thus: "to arouse the interest, desire, or curiosity of, as by an engaging, beguiling, or baffling quality; beguile.")

Mr. Macy would use "meticulous" only in the sense of "timid" not of "exquisite, delicate, careful." He admits that there is authority for the secondary meaning, "but our younger writers," he insists, "are working it to death."

"Lurid" Mr. Macy regards as "a good word to put in the morgue." His objection here is that the word "really means pale yellow, wan, gray, quite the opposite of highly colored," whereas many use it as if it meant "something like vivid or highly colored." Mr. Macy apparently verges on a fallacy in his comment on this word. One would judge from what he says here that a word may not legitimately change in meaning in the course of time. In actual fact, many words have turned complete somersaults in the progress of the years—knight, for example, knave, sensual, villain, caitiff, and others. According to Webster, lurid, in addition to the meanings allowed it by Mr. Macy, also signifies "appearing like glowing fire seen through or combined with cloud or smoke;" and as a fourth definition, Webster gives "brown tinged with red." The word is unquestionably overused, but not noticeably misused.

"Terse," again, Mr. Macy would avoid in the sense of "short and snappy, concise. It means polished, and has no suggestion either of brevity or of length." In Webster, the meaning "polished" is given as obsolete, whereas one of the modern meanings is "succinct, pithy."

Of "hokum" he says that it is "a word utterly ruined by Mencken and his imitators." "Subconscious," in his judgment, is "a cant word in the current psychological mythology," and so is "complex," especially when mated with "inferiority." He would not use "slay" as a synonym of "murder," and for a proper use of "buxom" he would go back to Milton. He notes that most persons think "winsome" means "winning." To "poignant," as vastly overused, he would grant a long vacation; and "convincing," particularly as employed by weary book reviewers, he describes as "a footsore word."

Athenaeum Organizes For Active Fall Term

Miss Haug, M.A., Elected Honorary President; C. J. Seltzer President.

Holding forth promise of a very successful term, the Athenaeum Society of Waterloo College held its annual meeting in the auditorium of the school Thursday evening. The pioneers of co-education at Waterloo were present and began a new chapter in the history of the literary society, entrenching themselves firmly in that body by gaining two representatives on the executive. Miss Hannah M. Haug, Dean of Women, was elected honorary president by acclamation, and Miss L. Twietmeyer gained the office of vice-president via the same path.

Carl Seltzer will guide the destinies of the Athenaeum this year, being elected to the office of president at the meeting. Walter Eifert was named secretary-treasurer and William Nolting librarian.

"This meeting is unique in having the trebles of the females mingling with the gruff male tones in the singing of 'O Canada'. It marks a new milestone in the history of the Athenaeum, of Waterloo College, and in the annals of the student body." Such was the statement made by Professor Roy J. E. Hirtle, past honorary president of the society, when requested to address the students. Professor Hirtle extended a hearty welcome to the new students.

Included in the program was an address by Miss H. M. Haug. Miss Haug, in expressing an appreciation for the welcome extended to the "co-eds", became immediately popular by her delightful brand of refreshing humor. But her address also contained more serious phases. "There is something fascinating," she declared, "in being pioneers. We feel that we are laying a corner stone, and we aim to select our ideals with some care so that in the rivalry between institutions of this kind our standards will never be topped."

At the conclusion of the elections, the new president, Carl Seltzer, in a brief address, made a strong plea for the co-operation of the student body in carrying on the work of the Athenaeum.

A pleasing feature of the program was a violin solo by William Nolting, "Mighty Lak' a Rose". Mr. Nolting was accompanied by Walter F. Koerber at the piano.

The remainder of the meeting was taken up with routine business, and the presentation of the secretary's reports. Suggestions for activities during the coming year were numerous and ingenious. H. Crouse, past librarian, presented his report. Lloyd Schaus, vice-president for the past year, presided.

Middle School Results In The College School Reach High Standard

Former Principal Seltzer
Gives Extensive Report

No doubt it will be of interest to our readers outside of the school as well as to the students themselves to see a schedule of results of the Junior Matriculation Examinations of June 1929. In this respect Waterloo College School has a place all her own, an enviable one at that. She has been at a disadvantage in being outside the pale of Departmental supervision through inspectors, but also at an advantage in that there has been no limit to her curricular activities. This has been a greater boon than it at first appears. Our Student Body has always included a goodly number of boys who have resumed their studies after several years' absence from the class-room. Naturally, due to their more advanced age they were able to proceed at a greater rate than the average younger student. We point with pride to the fact that in the last two years three such students have completed their Middle School standing within three years of their first registration; that five more are attempting the same at the present time and stand a very good chance of success. This is really a four-year course; finishing it in three years time is exceptional in secondary schools of the present.

In considering the following results for the term 1928-29, one must bear in mind the nature of our classes. Many applicants for the Junior Matriculation have come to us from different schools. We have had only one year, sometimes two, to assimilate them before they write these examinations. The change of schools in the middle of a course is invariably a handicap. Too many of our students are of foreign extraction without full command of the English language and as a consequence have difficulty in making themselves clear.

Wiener Roast

On Monday evening, September 23rd, the Tutorial students very successfully held their annual wiener roast at Devil's Hill. This year, as in former years, the freshmen were not roped together, only one was present.

As the social committee had transported the refreshments to the scene of the roast, the freshman was allowed to go free till a later time.

The party left the College campus at about 7.30 p.m. It was chaperoned by Messrs. Seltzer and Eifert, two instructors. After much walking, jumping creeks and falling over stumps, they reached their destination.

After enough wood had been gathered and a fire started, sing-songs were enjoyed by all. After this a solo, entitled "I am a Wild Cow-boy" was sung by the freshman, Jack Prowse, who just arrived from Ponteix, Saskatchewan.

By this time everyone was hungry and there was now a scramble for the wieners and rolls. In the rush one student forgot to turn aside for the fire, and only by his alertness was he able to avoid the flames and jump over them. The wieners, marshmallows and soft drinks were soon consumed, satisfying almost everybody.

After this the programme was continued. Short stories (ghost and others), talks, intermingled by sing-songs, were rendered.

By the time all had had a chance to say something, it was getting quite late. So after a real rousing sing-song they quenched the fire and returned to Waterloo.

Dormitory News

Although some are still recalling fond memories of their vacation, the fourth floor once more presents the typical scene of students' life. The old students have once more settled down and the freshmen are fast becoming adapted to their new life.

William Hill, who unfortunately broke his arm three weeks ago, is fast recovering from his misfortune. Bill treated himself to a new saxophone during the summer months and from room 419 some the sweet strains of music. Bill will soon be accompanied by M. Neeb, who found a toy fife.

Literary News

The Laury Literary Society has organized for another year with Prof. E. C. Shelley, B.A., instructor in French, as Honorary President. The members of the executive are as follows: President, R. Bean; Vice-President, G. Albrecht; Secretary, Miss M. Lockhart; censor, H. Berner; Pianist, M. Neeb.

The aim of the Society is to make its members efficient and convincing speakers and to teach them platform manners. The duty of the Honorary President is to give constructive criticisms. The result does not depend upon the president or the Honorary President but upon the efforts of the student himself.

The German Literary Society has also re-organized again and is carrying on its work under the following executive: Honorary President, Prof. Dr. H. Schorten; President, E. Dietsche; Vice-President, F. Haak; Secretary, H. Scherbarth; Censor, C. Laing.

The aim of this Society is to give the students a chance to exercise their knowledge of German in speeches, recitations and readings. Impromptu speeches are also becoming a part of the programme.

Girl Athletes To Participate in Various Sports

Miss E. Spohn Reviews
Athletics Among Girls

Girls' athletics have been progressing favorably during the past few years, despite all adverse criticism. There is no fault to be found with them as long as they are not overdone and do not take up too much time.

This winter it is to be hoped that a girls' basketball team can be formed. As most of the girls in the P. T. class have played basketball before, it is quite probable that there will be a team. The girls are all eager to play and it might be possible to challenge the Collegiate team.

Tennis is one of the games in which girls have lately made rapid strides. There are new players coming to the fore every year who are beating many of the old standbys. Take for example, Betty Nuthall in England and the Palfrey sisters in the United States. What could be more interesting than a hard, fast game between two well-matched players? The admiration that a good stroke calls for, the applause after a play almost too quick for the eye to follow, the disappointment when a player fails to make a difficult stroke,—all these combine to make tennis a game which is interesting to all, whether a player or spectator.

Another game which is very popular now is badminton. Anyone who has ever played tennis is greatly benefited in playing badminton. It is an extremely good indoor game for winter. If the temperature seems about ten degrees below zero at the start, after five or ten minutes play the room seems most exceedingly hot. It tends to quicken the blood circulation and to make one more active. Badminton requires quick judgment and accuracy and trains one to act and think quickly.

Although women's athletics at Waterloo College are yet in their infancy, it is to be hoped that with a good organization and the cooperation of all, the girls may be able to make as good a showing as any of the other colleges.

Directorate Appoints Team Managers

Considerable interest and enthusiasm for the fall program of sports was manifested at the meeting of the Athletic Directorate on Thursday afternoon when plans were made for the various school teams. The meeting was unique in the fact that for the first time a lady was present, Miss Elizabeth Spohn, a former athlete of repute at the K.-W. Collegiate, recently being appointed to the Directorate as the representative of the co-eds.

George Orth will act as manager of the pigskin addicts and to Prof. Karl Klinck has been given the difficult task of guiding the basketeers. Badminton will soon become a popular sport at Waterloo College as it is planned to install the necessary equipment in the near future.

The Directorate plans to postpone the annual fall field day to next spring as the fall program of rugby and basketball is taxing the available candidates.

Sport Dope

By A. Whisper

In view of the fact that the tennis courts on the campus are not being conditioned this year, the Athletic Directorate has taken action to rent courts at the Waterloo Tennis Club. Two courts have been procured for the remainder of the season. All students of the College are entitled to make use of them. They have been requested, however, to take good care of the equipment, i. e. to roll the courts, if necessary, before playing and to loosen the nets when through playing.

In obtaining these two courts, our sports facilities in the realm of tennis have been greatly added to. Every student should take advantage of the opportunity to engage in such a recreative sport as tennis.

The Rugby season is coming on us with great vigour. The grid artists are turning out in large numbers at the practices. In spite of the fact that we lost our last year's manager and a number of our best players, every indication points to a splendid team this year. With the squad twirling the pig-skin every night under the direction of our new manager, Geo. Orth, the boys will be in splendid shape to meet their opponents. Well, "On with the Show", boys.

Lieut. E. C. Shelley, B.A., head of the French Department and assistant in English at Waterloo College, who spent part of his vacation at Wolseley Barracks, London, Ontario, where he successfully qualified for his lieutenancy. ## Seminary Alumni News

Rev. F. L. Howald, S.T.M.
Elmwood, Ont.

The quiet holiday season is over. Much of great interest and concern has occurred during these months. We are happy to be able to report such information which is at hand.

We welcome the new members and congratulate them for their wise decision. "It is not good for man to be alone." They have therefore "taken" a wife.

Schultz - Smith

At St. Matthew's Church, Kitchener, on June 4th, Rev. Garnet Schultz, B.A., was married to Evangeline Smith of Kitchener. Mr. Harold Smith supported the groom, while Miss Marjorie Good acted as bridesmaid. Rev. J. Schmieder officiated. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Schultz are now residing at New Dundee.

Datars - Fries

Rev. Albert Datars, B.A., and Leona Fries, Kitchener, were united in matrimony at St. Matthew's Church, Kitchener, June 18. Rev. A. Mehlenbacher, assisted by Rev. J. Schmieder, performed the ceremony. The bridesmaid was Miss Erla Ritz, Kitchener, with Fred Goos, Gananoque, as groom's man. The young couple have taken up residence at Desboro.

Keffer - Montgomery

On July 18, Rev. Norman Keffer and Irene Montgomery, both of Maple, were married at Sherwood by the Rev. Dr. J. Maurer of Kitchener, assisted by Rev. Prof. S. W. Hirtle, B.A., of Waterloo. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Keffer will reside at Windsor.

Baetz - Heinrich

St. John's Church, Waterloo, was the scene of an interesting wedding on August 31st at high-noon, when Alice Heinrich, Waterloo, became the bride of Rev. Harry Baetz, B.A., of Chesley. Mr. Victor Monk, B.A., and Miss Nancy Milne supported the couple. Rev. C. S. Roberts officiated.

Everyone is glad these brethren have received calls and remained in Canada.

Congratulations!

To Rev. and Mrs. E. Heimrich, Sherwood, on the birth of a daughter—Audry, July 2nd.

New Church Dedicated

Rev. J. L. Kirchhofer, pastor of the Zion congregation, Philipsburg, dedicated a new church on Sept. 29. The following Alumni assisted in the service: Revs. L. Kalbfleisch, Elmira; E. J. Fisher, Hespeler; and K. Sobbi, Wellesley.

The mission congregation at the Sault, Rev. S. Cooper, pastor, dedicated their church home recently.

We are glad to have received "Church Bulletins" from a number of the brethren. More news next issue.

College Alumni News

Wanted.—A private stenographer who is accustomed to day and nocturnal work, to aid in the cataloguing of promises made by delinquent alumni. Apply during business hours, 1 a.m. to 12 p.m. to the Alumni Reporter of the "College Cord".

The response from the alumni for news of their activities has been unanimous and that doesn't mean magnanimous. If no news is good news then the Waterloo College Alumni has ransacked Canada of its health, strength and prosperity and migrated to Utopia or crawled into some hole and pulled the mouth of the cavity in after them.

But getting down to hard driven petrified facts, let it be stated that if this dearth of material continues to flow in as gently as the waters of "Sweet Afton", this column is going to melt away as quickly as the proverbial snowball. And what this means isn't maybe.

All the news that could be gathered was heard over the talkative teacups from various quarters apparently remote from the resorts and rendezvous of the alumni.

Brothers Hagey, Keffer, Baetz, Datars and Schultz have discarded their single bliss and are stepping lively in the matrimonial ranks. Felicitations, gentlemen; may your wives be as considerate with you as you have been in choosing them and may they realize that the Alma Mater professors have not as yet specialized in the studies of the duties of a true husband.

All but two of the class '28 emigrants have returned to this country. Messrs. Cunningham, Heldman and Schweitzer are continuing their studies at the College of Education at Toronto along with three '29 graduates, "Ted" Wagner, Albert and John Herbert. "Herb" Kalbfleisch and "Fred" Ahrens, the two aforementioned prodigals, have resumed their quarters in New York City.

Word has been received that the two aspiring shysters, Louis Hagey and Harry Weir, have rented an apartment in Toronto to which they invite their many friends to spend a quiet and enjoyable evening. (No lunch served after cafe hours).

Of the remaining alumni little or nothing could be learned. However, since their modesty is of such magnitude would it be asking too much if one should request those who do NOT feel slighted by the omission of their names in this column, to write to yours truly and give the "whys, wherefores and whatsoevers"? If you don't know anything, don't write, but don't be like that.

Prof. H. Henkel
Travels Abroad

Attends European Universities.

With the lifting of the anchor on June 1st the Koeln steamer sped on its way to Europe. It was an eventful day for Prof. Henkel. He was sailing for his native land which he had not seen for many years. With great eagerness and delight he looked forward to the meeting of his relatives and old acquaintances. How long he had wished to visit Germany!

Sailing by way of Scotland and the Hebrides Islands, after a twelve-day journey on the ocean, the Koeln steamer nosed its way into the harbour of Hanover. There he saw a very old cloister called "Corvey" which Louis the Pious had founded in 822. After Prof. Henkel had visited a few of his friends living there he set out for his home town, Espol. This is a very beautiful little village surrounded by forests and nestled in the valley of a very mountainous district. Espol brought back many fond memories to Prof. Henkel—memories of his parents and boyhood days he had spent there. But time would not permit him to remain there very long.

Thus we see Prof. Henkel sailing for Copenhagen. There he had the pleasure of attending the noted Lutheran Conference which was in session at that time. Apart from the beautiful buildings and scenery, the cleanliness of the country made a lasting impression on him.

Rostock was his next important stop. There he visited his nephew, Mr. Eric Freise. Mr. Freise, who formerly conducted a German bakery here in Waterloo, is well-known in this district.

A large part of Prof. Henkel's vacation was spent at Goettingen University. He took a course entitled "Theologie und Weltanschauung", (Theology and World-view). It is remarkable to think that for the very small sum of fifteen marks he received about forty lectures from renowned professors of all countries. These learned men could all speak fluent German. Besides these lectures he made sight-seeing trips to Cassel, Eisenach, Wartburg and Goslar.

Prof. Henkel, as head of the department of Philosophy at Waterloo College, was also very fortunate in receiving a few lectures in psychology at the University of Heidelberg.

Munich appealed particularly to Prof. Henkel. Its architecture, art, culture and intellectual life were apparent everywhere. Munich is noted all over Europe for its excellent quality of beer.

After making a return visit to many of the places and people he had visited before, he set sail for home on the 27th of August.

On the return voyage he saw an

SOCIAL

Smart Social Event
Sponsored by Miss Haug

Friday evening was unique in the history of Waterloo College and the Twin-City as it marked the date of the first social function arranged for "co-eds". This interesting event took place at the home of Mrs. Hamm, Waterloo. The recently appointed Dean of Women of the College, Miss Hannah Marie Haug, M.A., sponsored a dinner which in its excellence defied description, but could not defy the fairer sex.

Miss Haug received in a gown of shaded Parisian blue. She was assisted by Miss Louise Twietmeyer in a hand painted frock of pea green. The nine girls whose presence at Waterloo College ushers in a new era in the life of the institution were all in attendance and greatly enjoyed the delicious dinner served from a table attractively arranged with flowers and candles in the college colors of purple and gold.

The first co-eds include Miss Margaret Lockhart and Miss Nesha Boehm, formerly of the Ovenden Ladies' College, Barrie, both of whom are now in the tutorial department of the Waterloo institution; Miss Lenore Munroe, Miss Marjorie Tailby and Miss Elizabeth Spohn, who graduated last year from the K.-W. Collegiate; Miss Dorothy Tailby, formerly of the office staff of the Dominion Life Insurance Co., Miss Carlinda Meyers of Preston and Miss Verna Lauman of Kitchener.

who completed their four-year course in three years with such creditable showing; of Paul Eydt, who made second class honours in English though only in the second year of his course; of Siegfried Alberti and Walter Hamm for their mark in German Composition after only one year in that course.

It is evident that such a record could be made only by careful preparation and constant application. Students and the members of the Faculty, of what was Waterloo College School but now the Tutorial Department of Waterloo College, are to be congratulated on their showing. They have lived and toiled true to the motto,

JUST BE GLAD

O! heart of mine, we shouldn't Worry so!

What we've missed of the calm, we couldn't

Have, you know,

What we've met of stormy pain
And of sorrow's driving rain,

We can better meet again
If they blow.

We have erred in that dark hour,
We have known;

When the tears fell with the shower,
All alone,

Were not shine and shadow blent

As the gracious Master meant?
Let us temper our content
With His own.

For we know not every morrow
Can be sad;

So, forgetting all the sorrow
We have had,

Let us fold away our fears,
And put by our foolish tears,

And through all the coming years
Just be glad.

—James Whitcomb Riley.

Discords

A Freshman answered the telephone the other day and a cheerful voice inquired, "What number is this?"

Being an expert at answering questions, the Frosh replied: "You ought to know. You just called it."

English Professor: What is meant by a "pastoral convention"?

Student: A gathering of clergymen.

A Prepositional Offence

The policeman entered the restaurant and with great dignity announced to the man at the table:

"Your car awaits without."

Without what? retorted the rather loud-mouthed gentleman.

"Without lights," said the cop. "Here's your ticket."

Two co-eds were discussing an article in a newspaper.

"I see," said one, "that Mr. So-and-So, the octogenarian, is dead. Now what on earth is an octogenarian?"

"I'm sure I haven't the faintest idea," replied the other one. "But they're a sickly lot. You never hear of one but he's dying."

Professor: If you had a little more spunk you would be at the head of the class. Do you know what spunk is?

Pupil: Yes, sir. It's the past participle of spank.

Carl: What's that, Charlie, a new tie you have on?

Charlie: No, this is just the old one washed.

TOIL-WORN LABORERS

One by one these browned and sunburned youths and maidens filed into the office to be greeted with a hearty smile and handshake from the Dean and Registrar. This atmosphere soon wore off, however, when the candidate was presented with a light brown card no less than a yard long over which he might puzzle for an hour or more. Finally when every last line had been filled out the candidate came face to face with the bursar, Dr. C. H. Little, who with his characteristic equanimity extracted the "shekels" which the students (and in some cases the fathers) had labored so hard to gather. All these things were readily forgotten when the timetable was consulted and it was found classes would be in session from 7.45 a.m. to 5 p.m. with an hour off at noon for lunch.

College School Is Discontinued

Replaced by Tutorial Section.

The institution on Seminary Hill has again undergone a change. Waterloo College School no longer exists. In its place, however, a Tutorial Department has been established.

The College School came into being in 1924 when the Faculty of Arts became affiliated with the University of Western Ontario as Waterloo College, while the High School Department was styled Waterloo College School. During its existence the College School served its students efficiently under the principalships of Dr. Willison and Messrs. Oscar Nickel and Carl Seltzer.

The discontinuance of the College School was deemed necessary by the Board of Governors when Principal Seltzer and Assistant Eifert resigned their positions in order to pursue studies in the College. The recommendation of the Board of Governors to this effect was passed by the Evangelical Lutheran Synod at its meeting at Zurich last May. When, following the decision of the Synod, numerous regrets were expressed and the embarrassment the discontinuance of the School would cause students already in attendance, a new plan was arranged.

According to the new plan the College School was to be closed gradually. In 1929-30 there will be no Form I. Form II and the Middle School will continue for some time as the Tutorial Department.

Instructions in the Tutorial Department will be given by three College professors, four experienced High School teachers and four instructors. The purpose of this department is to prepare students, both male and female, of Form II, the Middle School, and upward, for Matriculation and College Entrance.

REV. C. W. FOREMAN

tain of the Union Badminton Club of Kitchener and Waterloo.

It is at the College where the students and professors learned to respect him and to appreciate his talent. His cheerful personality, his wide experience and his wonderful flow of English made his lectures not only educative but also extremely interesting.

The departure of a man with such ability and such congeniality as the Rev. Foreman possessed, causes extreme regret among the students. His associations and fellowship with the student body has been appreciated. The students and professors wish him God speed and every success in his new undertaking.
