Just how different is college today?

There are computers, cell phones, the Internet and Web. There are numerous little electronic devices for tweeting, talking, teaching, playing and learning. There are also still classes, laboratories, cramming at the library, all nighters, and discussions about dreams and goals. Take a peek inside the life of today's college students as four incoming freshmen spend some time each month telling us about college life. Follow their posts about college life at www.linfield.edu/news-blog.
