

1992

Symposium: Brown v. Board of Education and Its Legacy: A Tribute to Justice Thurgood Marshall, Introductory Remarks

William Michael Treanor

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.lawnet.fordham.edu/flr>

Part of the Law Commons

Recommended Citation

William Michael Treanor, Symposium: Brown v. Board of Education and Its Legacy: A Tribute to Justice Thurgood Marshall, Introductory Remarks, 61 Fordham L. Rev. 1 (1992).

Available at: <https://ir.lawnet.fordham.edu/flr/vol61/iss1/1>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by FLASH: The Fordham Law Archive of Scholarship and History. It has been accepted for inclusion in Fordham Law Review by an authorized editor of FLASH: The Fordham Law Archive of Scholarship and History. For more information, please contact tmelnick@law.fordham.edu.

Symposium: Brown v. Board of Education and Its Legacy: A Tribute to Justice Thurgood Marshall, Introductory Remarks

Cover Page Footnote

Associate Professor of Law, Fordham University. I would like to thank Russell Pearce for his comments on an earlier draft of this introduction and Mary Daly and Bruce Green, my co-organizers, for "Brown v. Board of Education and its Legacy: A Tribute to Justice Marshall," for their help in putting this symposium together. I would also like to thank Fordham Law School and the Stein Institute of Law and Ethics for their generous sponsorship of this program.

FORDHAM LAW REVIEW
VOLUME 61
1992-1993

PAGES IN THIS VOLUME
ARE NOT NUMBERED CONSECUTIVELY

THIS VOLUME CONTAINS A COLLOQUIUM ISSUE
THAT IS NUMBERED SEPARATELY

ISSUES 1-5
1992-1993
PAGES 1 TO 1262

ISSUE 6: COLLOQUIUM
1993
PAGES S1 TO S380

FORDHAM LAW REVIEW

VOLUME LXI

OCTOBER 1992

NUMBER 1

CONTENTS

SYMPOSIUM

BROWN V. BOARD OF EDUCATION AND ITS LEGACY: A TRIBUTE TO JUSTICE THURGOOD MARSHALL

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS	William M. Treanor	1
PANEL I: BROWN AND THE TRANSFORMATION OF THE CONSTITUTION
THE HISTORICAL SETTING OF BROWN AND ITS IMPACT ON THE SUPREME COURT'S DECISION ..	The Hon. Constance Baker Motley	9
THE LIMITLESS HORIZONS OF BROWN V. BOARD OF EDUCATION	The Hon. Louis H. Pollak	19
PUBLIC LAW LITIGATION AND THE AMBIGUITIES OF BROWN	Mark Tushnet	23
PANEL I: CONCLUDING REMARKS	Paul R. Dimond	29
PANEL II: CIVIL RIGHTS AND EDUCATION AFTER BROWN
THE OTHER DESEGREGATION STORY: ERADICATING THE DUAL SCHOOL SYSTEM IN HILLSBOROUGH COUNTY, FLORIDA ..	Drew S. Days, III	33
THE OVERTHROW OF MONROE V. PAPE : A CHAPTER IN THE LEGACY OF THURGOOD MARSHALL	Conrad K. Harper	39
MILLIKEN V. BRADLEY : BROWN 'S TROUBLED JOURNEY NORTH	The Hon. Nathaniel R. Jones	49
MISSOURI V. JENKINS : ARE WE REALLY A DESEGREGATED SOCIETY?	Theodore M. Shaw	57
PANEL II: CONCLUDING REMARKS	Paul R. Dimond	63
LEARNING TOGETHER: JUSTICE MARSHALL'S DESEGREGATION OPINIONS	Maria L. Marcus	69

ARTICLE

A STREAM OF LEGAL CONSCIOUSNESS: THE CURRENT OF COMMERCE DOCTRINE FROM SWIFT TO JONES & LAUGHLIN	Barry Cushman	105
--	----------------------	-----

ESSAY

THE POLITICAL ECOLOGY OF TAKEOVERS: THOUGHTS ON HARMONIZING THE EUROPEAN CORPORATE GOVERNANCE ENVIRONMENT.....	Ronald J. Gilson	161
---	-------------------------	-----

NOTES

BUILDING UPON THE ARCHITECTURAL WORKS PROTECTION COPYRIGHT ACT OF 1990	Vanessa N. Scaglione	193
PARTIAL SATISFACTION UNDER THE UCC.....	Alysse Kaplan	221
“WHO GOES THERE?”—PROPOSING A MODEL ANTI-MASK ACT	Stephen J. Simoni	241

FORDHAM LAW REVIEW

VOLUME LXI

NOVEMBER 1992

NUMBER 2

CONTENTS

ESSAYS

- WHY SO MANY LAWYERS?
ARE THEY GOOD OR BAD? Dean Robert C. Clark 275
- THE LAST PROMISSORY ESTOPPEL ARTICLE ... Jay M. Feinman 303

ARTICLE

- THE EMPIRE STRIKES BACK:
THE TAKING OF JOE DOHERTY James T. Kelly 317

NOTES

- ERISA'S PREEMPTION OF STATE TAX LAWS Kevin Matz 401
- NON-DEBTOR LIABILITY IN CHAPTER 11:
VALIDITY OF THIRD-PARTY
DISCHARGE IN BANKRUPTCY Peter M. Boyle 421
- "PROTECTION" OF VOLUNTEERS UNDER FEDERAL EMPLOYMENT LAW:
DISCOURAGING VOLUNTARISM? Leda E. Dunn 451
- PUBLIC EMPLOYEES' RIGHT OF ASSOCIATION:
SHOULD CONNICK V. MYERS' SPEECH-BASED PUBLIC-CONCERN RULE APPLY? Mark Strauss 473

FORDHAM LAW REVIEW

VOLUME LXI

DECEMBER 1992

NUMBER 3

CONTENTS

ARTICLES

THE SLEEPER WAKES: THE HISTORY
AND LEGACY OF THE TWENTY-SEVENTH
AMENDMENT..... Richard B. Bernstein 497

DANCES WITH NONLAWYERS: A NEW PERSPECTIVE ON LAW FIRM
DIVERSIFICATION..... Gary A. Munneke 559

ESSAY

THE DALKON SHIELD CLAIMANTS TRUST:
PARADIGM LOST (OR FOUND)?..... Georgene M. Vairo 617

NOTE

THE APPLICABILITY OF THE FAIR USE DEFENSE TO COMMERCIAL ADVERTISING: ELIMINATING
UNFOUNDED LIMITATIONS..... Manal Z. Khalil 661

BOOK REVIEW

DERRICK BELL'S RADICAL REALISM Tracy E. Higgins 683

FORDHAM LAW REVIEW

VOLUME LXI

MARCH 1993

NUMBER 4

CONTENTS

ARTICLES

THE SOCIETAS EUROPEA:
THE EVOLVING EUROPEAN
CORPORATION STATUTE Terence L. Blackburn 695

THE LEGAL, ETHICAL, AND SOCIAL IMPLICATIONS OF THE "REASONABLE WOMAN" STANDARD IN SEXUAL HARASSMENT CASES..... Robert S. Adler 773 and Ellen R. Peirce

ESSAYS

APPELLATE ADVOCACY: SOME REFLECTIONS
FROM THE BENCH The Hon. Lawrence W. Pierce 829

COMPETITION FOR CORPORATE CHARTERS
AND THE LESSON OF TAKEOVER
STATUTES Roberta Romano 843

NOTES

INTERCEPTING REFUGEES AT SEA:
AN ANALYSIS OF THE UNITED STATES'
LEGAL AND MORAL OBLIGATIONS Suzanne Gluck 865

JUSTICES HARLAN AND BLACK REVISITED:
THE EMERGING DISPUTE BETWEEN
JUSTICE O'CONNOR AND JUSTICE SCALIA
OVER UNENUMERATED FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS..... David B. Anders 895

SECTION 365 VERSUS 362:
APPLYING THE AUTOMATIC STAY TO PREVENT UNILATERAL TERMINATION IN A BANKRUPTCY SETTING Robert J. Verga 935

FORDHAM LAW REVIEW

VOLUME LXI

APRIL 1993

NUMBER 5

CONTENTS

ARTICLE

- BONDAGE, DOMINATION, AND THE ART OF
THE DEAL: AN ASSESSMENT OF JUDICIAL STRATEGIES IN LENDER LIABILITY
GOOD FAITH LITIGATION..... A. Brooke Overby 963

ESSAYS

- POLITICAL REALITY TESTING: 1993 Derrick Bell 1033
- MYTH AND REALITY—OR IS IT
“PERCEPTION AND TASTE”?—IN THE
READING OF DONATIVE DOCUMENTS . James L. Robertson 1045

SYMPOSIUM

THE PRIVACY RIGHTS OF RAPE VICTIMS IN THE MEDIA AND THE LAW

- PERSPECTIVES ON DISCLOSING RAPE
VICTIMS' NAMES Deborah W. Denno 1113
- COMMENTARIES..... Michael Gartner 1133
Linda Fairstein 1137
Helen Benedict 1141

NOTES

- NEW TECHNOLOGY, OLD PROBLEM:
DETERMINING THE FIRST AMENDMENT
STATUS OF ELECTRONIC
INFORMATION SERVICES Philip H. Miller 1147
- WARMING THE BENCH: THE NONSTATUTORY
LABOR EXEMPTION IN THE NATIONAL
FOOTBALL LEAGUE..... Jonathan S. Shapiro 1203

COMMENT

- A COMPREHENSIVE THEORY OF PROTECTIVE JURISDICTION:
THE MISSING “INGREDIENT” OF
“ARISING UNDER” JURISDICTION Loretta Shaw 1235

FORDHAM LAW REVIEW

VOLUME LXI

MAY 1993

NUMBER 6

CONTENTS

COLLOQUIUM

FOREWORD	Milton V. Freeman	S-1
RULE 10b-5 AS AN ADAPTIVE ORGANISM	Donald C. Langevoort	S-7
CAN 10b-5 FOR THE BANKS? THE EFFECT OF AN ANTIFRAUD RULE ON THE REGULATION OF BANKS	Michael P. Malloy	S-23
CONGRATULATIONS FROM YOUR CONTINENTAL COUSINS, 10b-5: SECURITIES FRAUD REGULATION FROM THE EUROPEAN PERSPECTIVE	Gerhard Wegen	S-57
AS TIME GOES BY: NEW QUESTIONS ABOUT THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS FOR RULE 10b-5	Jill E. Fisch	S-101

NOTES

THE RISE AND FALL (AND RISE?) OF INFORMATION-BASED INSIDER TRADING ENFORCEMENT	Thomas A. McGrath III	S-127
SHOULD FRAUD ON THE MARKET THEORY EXTEND TO THE CONTEXT OF NEWLY ISSUED SECURITIES?	Joseph De Simone	S-151
AN IMPLIED RIGHT OF CONTRIBUTION UNDER RULE 10b-5: AN ESSENTIAL ELEMENT OF ATTAINING THE GOALS OF THE SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT OF 1934	Mary Ellen P. Dooley	S-185
PUPPET MASTERS OR MARIONETTES: IS PROGRAM TRADING MANIPULATIVE AS DEFINED BY THE SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT OF 1934?	Lawrence Damian McCabe	S-207
THE DUTY TO DISCLOSE FORWARD- LOOKING INFORMATION: A LOOK AT THE FUTURE OF MD&A	Suzanne J. Romajas	S-245

THE "MOTHER COURT" AND THE FOREIGN PLAINTIFF: DOES RULE 10b-5 REACH FAR ENOUGH?	James J. Finnerty III	S-287
RULE 10b-5 AND TRANSNATIONAL BANKRUPTCIES: WHOSE LAW SHOULD APPLY?	Lauren Rosenthal	S-321
10b-5 OR NOT 10b-5?: ARE THE CURRENT EFFORTS TO REFORM SECURITIES LITIGATION MISGUIDED?	Adam F. Ingber	S-351

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS

WILLIAM MICHAEL TREANOR*

THIS issue of the Fordham Law Review presents Fordham Law School's tribute to one of the giants of American law and American history on the occasion of his retirement from the Supreme Court. Justice Thurgood Marshall is, I believe, the single most important lawyer of this century, both for his contribution as an advocate and for his contribution as a jurist. Because he decided to make the law his career and because of the way in which he pursued that career, the United States today is a remarkably different place than it was in 1933 when he began practice, and ours is a far more just society.

Justice Marshall made history repeatedly—as Chief Counsel of the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, as Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, as Solicitor General, and, of course, as Supreme Court Justice. But perhaps his most important contribution was his victory in the case of Brown v. Board of Education.¹

On March 24, 1992, Fordham Law School and the Stein Institute of Law and Ethics paid tribute to Justice Marshall by hosting a program exploring the significance of this case. That program, entitled "Brown v. Board of Education and its Legacy," brought together a remarkable group of leading jurists, scholars, and civil rights litigators to discuss the significance of Brown and the past and future of civil rights in this country. The presentations of the panelists (revised for publication) are gathered here.

Brown was the capstone of Justice Marshall's campaign at the NAACP Legal Defense Fund to combat and eradicate state-sponsored segregation. There were, of course, two Supreme Court decisions in Brown. In the first decision, in 1954, Chief Justice Warren, on behalf of a unanimous Court, ruled that "[s]eparate educational facilities are inherently unequal."² While it established the constitutional right to equal education in bold terms, the first decision, commonly referred to as Brown I, left open the question of what was the remedy for the violation of that right. The following year, in Brown II, the Court fashioned a remedy that left the right largely unrealized; rejecting Marshall's request to fix a date for the end to segregation,³ it unanimously directed the district courts "to admit [the parties] to public schools on a racially nondis-

* Associate Professor of Law, Fordham University. I would like to thank Russell Pearce for his comments on an earlier draft of this introduction and Mary Daly and Bruce Green, my co-organizers, for "Brown v. Board of Education and its Legacy: A Tribute to Justice Marshall," for their help in putting this symposium together. I would also like to thank Fordham Law School and the Stein Institute of Law and Ethics for their generous sponsorship of this program.

1. 349 U.S. 294 (1955) (Brown II); 347 U.S. 483 (1954) (Brown I).

2. Brown I, 347 U.S. at 495.

3. See Richard Kluger, Simple Justice 941 (1975).

criminary basis with all deliberate speed."⁴

Together, the decisions in Brown were, at the same time, both revolutionary and conservative. They were revolutionary because they dramatically changed the law and the life of the people in this country;⁵ yet, they were conservative because that change was effected by the actions of lawfully constituted authority. The decisions were controversial at the time, and their jurisprudential underpinnings remain controversial today.

Perhaps the most famous critique of the jurisprudence of Brown is Professor Herbert Wechsler's 1959 essay Toward Neutral Principles of Law, in which he contended that the decision was unprincipled and contrary to basic tenets of constitutional government.⁶ More recently, Professor Charles Lawrence and others have said that the Court in Brown I missed the real wrong. By focusing on the psychological harms of segregation, the Court missed the fact that the real harm of segregation is that it stigmatizes and subordinates African-Americans. It has additionally been argued that because the Court got the right wrong in Brown I, the Supreme Court in the 1970s and 1980s was able to retreat from its commitment to civil rights.⁷

Just as the right has been attacked, so has the remedy. The limited remedy of Brown II—and in particular the "all deliberate speed" formulation—did not promptly vindicate the rights of African-Americans. In fact, ten years after Brown, only two percent of Black children in the South attended desegregated schools.⁸

These two themes, the transformation that Brown created and the limits of that transformation, are the focus of the first panel of the tribute, "Brown and the Transformation of the Constitution."

The first contribution is from one of the legends of the civil rights movement, Judge Constance Baker Motley. Judge Motley participated in all of the major education cases during her two decades with the Legal Defense Fund, including both Brown I and Brown II, in which she was one of the attorneys who wrote the briefs that the Legal Defense Fund submitted to the Supreme Court. Speaking from the vantage point of a participant, Judge Motley places Brown in the context of the earlier civil rights cases that eroded the force of Plessy v. Ferguson,⁹ and assesses the impact of the Brown decision. In the second piece, Professor Mark

4. Brown II, 349 U.S. at 301.

5. For discussions of the way in which Brown transformed the civil rights movement, see Kluger, supra note 3, at 946-60; Gene B. Sperling, Does the Supreme Court Matter?, Am. Prospect, Winter 1991, at 91-92.

6. See Herbert Wechsler, Toward Neutral Principles of Constitutional Law, 73 Harv. L. Rev. 1, 31-35 (1959).

7. See Charles Lawrence, "One More River to Cross"—Recognizing the Real Injury in Brown: A Prerequisite to Shaping New Remedies, in Shades of Brown: New Perspectives on School Desegregation 49 (Derrick A. Bell ed., 1980).

8. See Cass R. Sunstein, Constitutional Politics and the Conservative Court, Am. Prospect, Apr. 1990, at 51, 59.

9. 163 U.S. 537 (1896), overruled by Brown v. Board of Educ., 347 U.S. 483 (1954).

Tushnet, speaking from the vantage point of historian and legal scholar, probes the gap between Brown I's right and Brown II's remedy, and concludes that the "all deliberate speed" formulation ultimately, and ironically, contributed to the rise of judicial activism and modern public law litigation. The final member of the panel is Judge Louis Pollak, a long-time advisor to the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, one of the attorneys who wrote the brief in Brown II, and author of the article, Racial Discrimination and Judicial Integrity: A Reply to Professor Wechsler.¹⁰ Although then-Professor Pollak disagreed with the Court's reasoning, that article provided one of the most important defenses of the constitutional legitimacy of the holding in Brown. In his contribution here, Judge Pollak discusses the generative power of Brown's commitment to the principle of equality, a power that he sees manifested in the Supreme Court's jurisprudence of the next quarter-century, and even in the jurisprudence of foreign countries.

The second panel, "Civil Rights in Education after Brown," focuses on a specific aspect of Brown's legacy: the on-going campaign to end school segregation. The members of the panel are four attorneys who played an important and distinguished role in litigating post-Brown civil rights cases. Each writer's discussion focuses on one or two of the education cases on which he worked and the lessons that can be drawn from those experiences.

The cases that are the subject of this second panel are, for the most part, a second generation of segregation cases—second generation not merely in terms of chronology, but also second generation in terms of the type of case. The focus is no longer primarily, as it was in the years immediately following Brown, on the South, although it remains in the South as well. These are cases in which educational segregation is inextricably linked to segregation in housing, and in which segregation in housing is a product of White flight as much as it is a product of segregation within the town or the city.

The problems posed by these cases are more complex, but the underlying issues remain largely the same as they were in Brown. What is the nature of the constitutional rights involved? What kind of remedy is appropriate for those rights? What is the relationship between the rights articulated by courts and the remedies that they require to be followed? What is the relation between judicial enunciation of rights and remedies and popular support for civil rights? To these questions, however, a new one is added: Does the more complex nature of the segregation involved necessitate a different kind of remedy?

The first panelist, Mr. Conrad Harper, a member of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund's staff from 1965 to 1970, discusses Harkless v. Sweeny Independent School District,¹¹ a case which played an important role in the eventually successful challenge to Monroe v. Pape's¹² bar to civil rights suits against municipalities. Mr. Harper argues that the case illustrates how the Legal Defense Fund successfully combated hostile precedent. Professor Drew Days, a former Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights and First Assistant Counsel for the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, offers the Hillsborough County, Florida school desegregation case¹³ as an example of how integration can be successfully achieved. In a dramatically different tone, Judge Nathaniel Jones, NAACP General Counsel for a decade, discusses Milliken v. Bradley.¹⁴ Milliken was the critical case in the attempt to apply the principles enunciated in Brown to Northern schools, and, Judge Jones eloquently declares, the Supreme Court's decision in Milliken I was a "watershed" event in the retreat from the Court's commitment to racial equality. The final panelist whose comments are presented here is Professor Theodore Shaw. Professor Shaw was a trial attorney in the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice, Assistant Counsel and Director of the Education Docket for the NAACP's Legal Defense Fund, and Western Regional Counsel for the Legal Defense Fund. He discusses *Missouri v. Jenkins*¹⁵ and Dowell v. Board of Education.¹⁶ Professor Shaw uses these cases as evidence of the complexity of the school desegregation issue, of the difficulties that those who hope to carry on in the tradition of Justice Marshall must confront, and of the importance of carrying on that tradition.

10. 108 U. Pa. L. Rev. 1 (1959).

11. 427 F.2d 319 (5th Cir. 1970), cert. denied, 400 U.S. 991 (1971).

The closing remarks come from the program's moderator, Mr. Paul Dimond, a distinguished scholar and former Director of the National Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights under Law. Mr. Dimond suggests that an "anticaste" principle informs the Supreme Court's decision in Brown and argues for its revival. Returning to the theme of the difference between the right and the remedy in Brown, Mr. Dimond defends the appropriateness of separating right and remedy. He argues that the combination of the enunciation of broad constitutional principles and the use of constrained judicial remedies acknowledges limitations on judicial power while permitting coalition building.

Taken together, the two panels illustrate the many dimensions of Brown's legacy. The panelists' comments demonstrate that the promise of Brown remains and may well long remain unfulfilled. But the weight of their remarks is to mark and celebrate a triumph. The comments show the way in which the decision's support for the principle of racial equality empowered the civil rights movement and shaped subsequent

12. 365 U.S. 167 (1961), overruled by Monell v. Department of Social Servs., 436 U.S. 658 (1978), and overruled by Ingraham v. Wright, 430 U.S. 651 (1977).

13. See Mannings v. Board of Pub. Instruction, 306 F. Supp. 497 (M.D. Fla. 1969), rev'd, 427 F.2d 874 (5th Cir. 1970).

14. 433 U.S. 267 (1977) (Milliken II); 418 U.S. 717 (1974) (Milliken I).

15. 495 U.S. 33 (1990).

16. 396 U.S. 269 (1969).

constitutional and legal developments on a host of fronts, and they show how Brown set an aspirational standard against which subsequent developments would be tested.

Strikingly, the remarks of the panelists also bear witness to the incomparable significance of the career of Justice Thurgood Marshall. The panelists discuss Justice Marshall in many different contexts. They speak of him as a colleague, as a Supreme Court Justice, as a hero. Regardless of how they know him, the common thread is that he touched their lives. Although in different ways, each of the panelists has been a fighter for the cause of racial justice and equality. In that struggle, each of the panelists was clearly inspired and challenged by Thurgood Marshall. It is this ability to challenge and inspire countless men and women—just as much as it is his role in personally shaping the law—that constitutes Thurgood Marshall's legacy.

PANEL I:
BROWN AND THE TRANSFORMATION OF THE CONSTITUTION

