Buildings and Their Histories:

Towers Hall

Rebuilt in 1871 (first one known as Old Main was destroyed in fire--some of the bricks from the original building were used to rebuild), and was officially known as Towers Hall in 1954. It is listed on the National Register of Historic Places on March 4, 1971, and 1973. The towers on the building now are not the original famous ones.

Cowan Hall

Cowan was dedicated to Dr. Clyde Cowan '1904 on Oct. 28, 1951. He made a donation for the construction of a "chapel-auditorium" in honor of his former professors, which was supposed to be anonymous until after his death. His widow gave permission to dedicate the building in his honor. It underwent renovation in 2004-2005.

Memorial Stadium

Memorial Stadium was dedicated in 1948 as a memorial to those Otterbein students and alumni who were killed in World War II. The field itself is named Ballenger Field, in honor of long time OC Athletic supporter Dwight "Smokey" Ballenger '39. Encircling the field is the McVay Track, which was dedicated in 1988 and named in honor of Lawrence and Dorothy McVay who donated $100,000 to the college. The Stadium was replaced in 2005 with funds raised by the "O" Club and the Clements Foundation. Built on the original site, it was dedicated on Sept. 17, 2005.

Battelle Fine Arts Center

Originally named Alumni Gymnasium dedicated at Homecoming in November 1929 (which later grew and the Rike was built). The building was renovated for $1.4 million, with the lead gift of $200,000 given by the Battelle Memorial Institute. It was dedicated in 1979 as Battelle Fine Arts Center as the new home of the Depts. of Music and Art. In 2006, Art moved to the new facility, but it remains the home for the Department of Music today.

Campus Center

Dr. Clyde E. Cowan '1904, was a leading figure in the coal industry. He made a donation to the College for the construction of a "chapel-auditorium" in honor of his former professors, whom he considered "scholarly men of great vision, with broad understanding and a high degree of tolerance." Cowan underwent renovation in 2004-05.

Clements Recreational Center

Clements Recreational Center was dedicated on October 18, 2002. With a $3.5 million donation from the Vida S. Clements Foundation and a core gift of $500,000 from the Freeman Family in honor and memory of Ida and Harold Freeman, and John and Margaret Freeman, the Center took 17 months to build at a cost of $9.5 million. Westerville native Frank Orville Clements '1896 and his wife, Vida Shauck Clements '1901, were generous benefactors to the College and community, even helping students through the Great Depression.

Clippinger Hall

In 1908, Otterbein was given money by the Carnegie Foundation to build and dedicate a library (1 out of 1,681 in the U.S.). The Library housed Otterbein's volumes until 1954, when expansion was necessary and a part of Towers Hall was renovated into the Centennial Library. Dr. Jacob S. Gruver '1898 made a generous gift in 1947 to be used in remodeling the Carnegie Library, with the stipulation that it be named after Dr. Walter Clippinger, president of Otterbein from 1909-1939.

The building became home to the sciences in 1920. Now undergoing renovations, the Science Building will reopen as a new, state-of-the-art facility. The building used to be called McFadden-Scheerer Science Building, but since the new renovations have been underway, a new name for the building has yet to be determined.

Science Building

Courtright Memorial Library

After Otterbein's collection outgrew both Clippinger and the Centennial Library, they built a new facility. It was built for $2.1 million and dedicated in 1972 to Robert and Ada Courtright, the parents of local newspaper owner A. Monroe Courtright '1940.

The Rike Center was built in 1975 for $1.5 million with the main donation from the Rike Family. Also known as "The Otterdome", the Rike was considered the envy of the Ohio Athletic Conference at the time of its dedication.

Rike Center

Roush Hall

Roush Hall was dedicated on June 12, 1993 and was named after Edwin "Dubbs" Roush and his wife Marilou Roush '45. The Roush Family dedicated $2 million out of the $6.5 million it took to build it. In addition to classrooms, it also houses a two-floor art gallery, the President's office, Academic Affairs, Graduate Programs, and the Depts. of Education, and Building, Accounting and Economics. It stands where the Old Association Building once stood. It held religion classes, the campus center health enter, and athletics for both men and women until 1929.

Art and Communication Building

The Art and Communications Building is a recently acquired building that currently serves as a temporary home of the sciences, and a home of the Arts and Communication Departments. Naming opportunities exist for this newly renovated building at this time as well.

Buildings and Their Histories...

Barlow Hall

Barlow Hall was originally built in 1948 and named after Shauck E. Barlow, who left $240,000 to Otterbein in his will. It was nicknamed "Barlow Beach" for the flat roof that served as a popular and relatively secluded place for female students to sunbathe.

Collegeview currently serves as a temporary home to the Sciences while the Science Building is under construction and a storage area.

Collegeview

25 W. Home Street

Otterbein has recently bought this building just down the street from Hanby and Clements Halls. It is currently under construction and will be a residence hall in the Fall 2008.

Dunlap-King Hall was originally called King Hall and built as a freshman and sophomore men's residence hall and dining room in 1926 with a gift of $40,000 from John R. King '1894. In 1948, the building became a residence hall for women. Renovations were made in 1988, funded by Nationwide Insurance in honor of former CEO and long time member of the Otterbein Board of Trustees, George Dunlap. Today, the hall serves as a men's and women's residence hall.

Dunlap-King Hall

Hanby Hall

Hanby Hall was dedicated in November of 1961 in honor of Kate Winter Hanby '1857, a member of Otterbein's first graduating class and wife of composer Benjamin Hanby '1858. It is a residence hall (it houses 139 women) and is home to the Office of Student Affairs.

Clements Hall owes its name to the couple Frank Orville Clements '1896 and Vida Shauck Clements '1901. Clements hall was built in 1956 as a women's residence hall, and still remains one to this day.

Clements Hall

Mayne Hall

Mayne Hall was dedicated in 1964 as a women's residence hall through a gift of Westerville automobile and real estate broker Horace Lambert Mayne '1913, and named in the memory of his mother, Hannah Lambert Mayne, class of 1890. Mayne hall became a men's residence hall in 1980.

Home Street Commons

The Home Street Commons are on campus apartments for Juniors and Seniors to live in. Home Street Commons are split into four buildings, and they all together can hold up to 88 students.

The Park Street Commons are apartments for Juniors and Seniors to live in on campus. Park Street Commons can hold up to 89 people total, and they are split into four buildings as well.

Garst Hall

Garst Hall was built in 1960 as a residence hall for men. It was named for Henry Garst, professor of Latin, English and Ethics from 1869-1900. Henry Garst also wrote the first history of Otterbein College. It currently houses both men and women.

Scott Hall was built in 1959 as a men's residence hall. It is named for Dr. George Scott, a professor of classical language and literature and twelfth president of Otterbein. It is currently a residence hall for women.

Engle Hall

Engle Hall was built as a residence hall for men in 1961. It is named for Professor Jesse Engle, who taught Bible and Religion from 1923-1956.

Davis Hall is named for Reverend Lewis Davis, who was Otterbein's third and sixth president. It was built as a men's residence hall in 1961, and since then has changed to a Co-ed hall.

Davis Annex

In 1965, Davis Annex was built as an addition to Davis Hall. In 1978 the Annex became a separate women's residence hall (Davis Hall being all male at the time).

The Suites was built in 2005 and completed in 2006. The Suites contains three floors of suite-styled rooms for sophomores. 174 people can live in the Suites at one time. "The Suites" is its inf widely known by now is its informal name

Vernon Pack Lecture Series

Continuing to look toward a greener future, actor and environmentalist Ed Begley, Jr. came to Otterbein College to educate the community about environmental issues as the 2008 Vernon L. Pack Distinguished Lecturer. His lecture was titled Live Simply So Others May Simply Live.

When it comes to taking personal responsibility for the environment, few individuals can match the record of Begley. Known for turning up at Hollywood events on his bicycle, he has served as chairman of the Environmental Media Association and the Santa Monica Mountains Conservancy. His work has earned awards from numerous environmental groups. Currently, he stars on the hit HGTV series Living with Ed, a look at the day-to-day realities of “living green” with his not-so-environmentalist wife.

Inspired by the works of his Academy Award-winning father, Begley became an actor. He first came to the attention of audiences for his portrayal of Dr. Victor Ehrlich on the long-running hit television series St. Elsewhere, for which he received six Emmy nominations. Since then, Begley has appeared in A Mighty Wind, Best In Show, and For Your Consideration. He also appeared in the cult classic hit film This is Spinal Tap and Batman Forever.

On television, Begley has had recurring roles on Six Feet Under and Arrested Development. Begley lives in Studio City, CA in a small, energy efficient home with his wife and daughter. More information about Begley’s views on the environment and his tips for “living green” can be found at www.living-withed.net and Fixingtheplanet.com.

Psychology Department

Forty faculty and staff from 13 departments at Otterbein College participated in Dumpster Diving for Charity to prevent usable items from ending up in the landfill during student move-out days, June 9-11.

Organized by Psychology Chair Michele Acker, the event sent one furniture truck, two large vans, three large pick-up trucks and one stuffed station wagon of reusable goods to charity.

Among the items donated to MAP (Material Assistance Program) furniture bank, a local Somali school, AWARE (All Westerville Area Residents Enriched) and WARM (Westerville Area Resource Ministry) were 12 large boxes of food, 11 vacuum cleaners, 20 bags of clothes and more than 30 pillows.

While retrieving the usable items, the faculty members also diverted recyclables from the dumpsters to the recycling bins.

“Fearless faculty and staff rummaged through garbage bags and climbed through the dumpsters to facilitate the salvage effort which ran across three days,” said Acker. “Although some of the donated items were left outside by the students, the vast majority were salvaged by volunteers who sorted the student trash bags before they went into the dumpster and who climbed into the dumpster and opened and sorted trash.”

“As a result, the overall volume of the dumpsters was down considerably. Two of the dumpsters that have always been mounded up by move-out day were only half-full by Wednesday evening,” she said.

Acker and fellow faculty members have rescued many reusable items from dumpsters over the past five years, but this was the first organized effort. She is already excited about getting more people involved in next year’s Dumpster Dive for Charity.

Equine Science Students volunteer to help rescued horses

By Hilary Patrick '08

Jessica Hennig, a sophomore equine pre-veterinarian and molecular biology major, and other volunteers formed a relationship with a rescue in Crooksville, Ohio, where they volunteer their time and energy to WHINNY (When Horses In Need...Need You) Horse Rescue. These students have also raised visibility of the issue of horse rescue within the Otterbein and surrounding communities.

Founder Mary Jones opened WHINNY in 2002. The rescue takes all breeds and ages, some of which are old and blind while others are young and were too much to handle for their previous owners. Jones keeps the horses medically up-to-date and works with them to try and regain their trust in humans.

"We have the chance to work with these sweet horses who come from such painful pasts and we get to give them what they really, truly deserve-unconditional love," said Hennig.

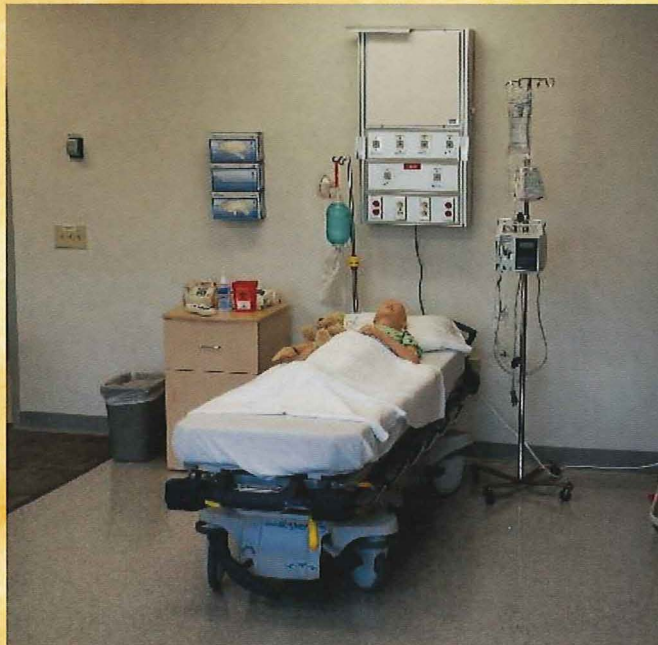

At any given time there could be around 50 horses on the ground. Eight Otterbein students made the first trip to WHINNY during fall quarter and 13 went on the second during spring quarter. The student volunteers clean the stalls, disinfect water buckets, groom, medicate horses, and whatever else they need.

Some of the horses were abused before they arrived at WHINNY. Hennig talks about one horse in particular named Doc. He is 32-years-old and blind in both eyes. Doc was beat by his previous owner causing severe nerve damage which can still be seen today in his permanent head tilt. "The most important thing we do is to show these unwanted horses that they are loved and that not all people are bad. That is the best therapy these horses could ever ask for," said Hennig.

Up 'Til Dawn

Up 'til Dawn is a letter writing campaign colleges all around the nation participate in that raises money to fight childhood cancer at St. Jude Research Hospital in Memphis, Tennessee.

Currently, Otterbein College participates in Up 'til Dawn along with 100+ other schools around the nation and has raised over $140,000, placing first within Ohio in 2005 and second in 2006 raising $48,000 and $50,000 respectively.

So what separates St. Jude from all other childhood hospitals? St. Jude is a world-renowned hospital that treats and cures children who are currently suffering from cancer all over the world. Along with this, St. Jude is able to house and support every child's family at absolutely no cost. That's right, St. Jude pays for everything. From the actual treatment and surgery to the family's groceries and toothpaste, St. Jude covers it.

These are just a few facts that show how special and unique St. Jude really is. Let's keep helping Denny Thomas' quote become true... "No child should die in the dawn of life."

Class of 2008!

2007-08 Year in News

September 2007

- Protesters converge on Jena, Louisiana, to protest the handling of the case of six black teenagers accused of beating a white student in December 2006.
- Rebels in Darfur Kill African Union peacekeepers

October 2007

- Wildfires in California force nearly a million people to evacuate homes near Los Angeles.
- Former Vice President Al Gore and the United Nations Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change win the 2007 Nobel Peace Prize.
- Track star Marion Jones, who won five medals at the 2000 Olympics, three of them gold, admits to steroid use.

November 2007

- America's foreclosure and mortgage crisis begins to make headlines, and will continue to stay in headlines through 2008.
- Two teams of scientists, one in Wisconsin the other in Japan, announce they have discovered a way to make embryonic stem cells without using embryonic stem cells.

December 2007

- A gunman opens fire at Omaha Mall during the Christmas shopping season, killing eight people and wounding five before turning the gun on himself.
- A National Intelligence Estimate compiled by the 16 agencies of the U.S. intelligence community says "with high confidence" that Iran froze its nuclear weapons program in 2003. Despite the report, President Bush says Iran remains a threat and can not be trusted to pursue enriching uranium for civilian use.
- New York Times reports that in 2005 the CIA destroyed videotapes of the interrogation of two al-Qaeda suspects. The tapes reportedly included agency operatives using harsh interrogation techniques.
- Former Pakistani prime minister Benazir Bhutto dies at a campaign rally in Rawalpindi. The Pakistan People's Party selects Bhutto's eldest son, Bilawal Bhutto Zardari, as its chairman to succeed his mother.
- Disputed Kenyan election sparks deadly tribal violence that leads to hundreds of deaths in the weeks following the election.
- Report on steroids rocks professional baseball, bringing players such as Roger Clemens to testify before Congress.

January 2008

- Presidential Primaries Begin (Jan. 3): Democratic candidates include Barack Obama, Hillary Clinton, and John Edwards. Republican candidates include John McCain, Mike Huckabee, Mitt Romney and Fred Thompson.

February 2008

- Responding to a crisis in the housing market and rising oil prices, Bush proposes $145 billion stimulus package that gives rebates of $300-$600 for individuals earning up to $75,000 and to couples with incomes up to $150,000.
- Kosovo declares independence from Serbia. Serbian Prime Minister Vojislav Kostunica says he would never recognize the "false state."
- Fidel Castro, who temporarily handed power to his brother Raúl in July 2006 when he fell ill, permanently steps down after 49 years in power. Raúl Castro succeeds his brother, Fidel, as president of Cuba.
- Senate votes to ban all methods of interrogation that are banned in the Army Field Manual, which prohibits waterboarding and other harsh techniques that have been used by the CIA.
- Gunman kills six students and then himself and wounds 15 more when he opens fire on a classroom at Northern Illinois University.

March 2008

- Dmitri A. Medvedev, a former aide to Russian president Vladimir Putin who has never held elected office, wins the presidential election in a landslide. Putin says he will serve as prime minister when Medvedev takes office in May.
- China cracks down on protests by monks in Tibet as it prepares for the Beijing Olympics. Tibetan leaders say that more than 100 Tibetans are killed, but Chinese officials say there are only 16 fatalities and deny that police had used lethal force.
- U.S. suffers 4,000th death in Iraq on March 23, 2008.
- McCain secures enough delegates to become the Republican presidential nominee.

April 2008
