

EDITORIAL

Croatica Chemica Acta is celebrating its 85th anniversary. All we can say is – it has been a loooooong journey. On this occasion we are proud to present this Special Issue which contains articles written by eminent international and Croatian scientists.

As a journal of general orientation and fundamental character, Croatica (as we like to prattle it) is publishing subjects from all fields of chemistry and its overlapping regions to the other areas of science. Although our vision remains the same, our approach is constantly improved and adjusted.

One cutting-edge feature article, several original contributions and review papers, dealing with experimental and/or theoretical aspects written by eminent scientists from Croatia and many other countries entirely surpassed our expectations.

We wish to express our gratitude to all authors who contributed to this Special Issue of Croatica Chemica Acta. Our special thanks go to all of the reviewers who have generously devoted considerable time to thoughtfully assist the Editorial Board.
