My dear Miss Elizabeth:-

First of all you will see that I am at home again, a hard ordeal, and growing harder.

Next I will tell you about the monogram on my stationary. It was something my husband had made when we were first married in the bright irredescent form you will find it on the enclosed envelope. It is made to represent an old coin. I have always adored it. When he was taken from me I had it changed to black and silver. I have just received a new package of it and you will see how poorly it is done compared to the other. They claimed they could not get that silver cloudlike effect in New Haven which I had done in New York and Los Angeles.

*Just at this moment callers came and my Secretary who comes at call from New Haven -
who had been here less than a week - could not mail - and she needs them.*
