Dear Friends,

At long last you hold in your hands the culmination of many long hours of work. Those of us who have struggled to put it together are, to say the very least, proud of what has been accomplished. Our hope is that Muscogiana will bring the history of the Columbus/Original Muscogee County area and its people closer to those who have it as part of their heritage. The preservation of this rich, yet untapped, history is our utmost goal.

A word of thanks is in order to Callie McGinnis, Dr. John Lupold, Dr. Craig Lloyd, and Jon Haney, all of Columbus College, for their assistance in the production aspects of this publication. Special consideration is due to Linda Kennedy for her diligence in the preparation of the contents and her patience throughout the many problems and last-minute changes.

Sincerely,

John Lassiter

COLUMBUS, GEORGIA'S ORIGINAL COMMISSIONERS: Part One—JAMES HALLAM

By
Kenneth H. Thomas, Jr.
619 Pinetree Drive
Decatur, Georgia 30030

Muscogee County, the original, large, county, was named and authorized to form a county government on December 11, 1826, when the law was passed by both houses of the legislature.¹

A year later, on December 14, 1827, original Muscogee was divided into the present counties of Harris, Marion, Talbot, and current Muscogee.² During the same session of the state legislature, a law was passed which authorized the creation of Columbus. It was signed on December 24, 1827 by Governor John Forsyth.³

In this law, the governor was authorized to appoint five commissioners "to select the most eligible site and cause to be laid out and distinctly marked on the reserve aforesaid, a town upon which such plan as they may devise and approve...", to have the lots surveyed and organize and conduct the public sale of lots for the newly-created city of Columbus and the Coweta Falls Reserve.⁴ Most of the rest of the whole land lots in original Muscogee County had been distributed by the Land Lottery of 1827 conducted in Milledgeville, the state capital, from March 6 through May 25, 1827.⁵ Fractional lots were handled separately, and were not distributed by lottery.

Governor John Forsyth appointed the five commissioners authorized by law in early January, 1828. The commissioners and the counties where they lived at the time they were appointed and signed their bonds were:

Philip H. Alston	(Elbert County)
Elias Beall	(Monroe County)
Dr. Edwin L. deGraffenried	(Greene County)
Ignatius A. Few	(Richmond County)
James Hallam	(Muscogee County) ⁶

This article will discuss the most obscure of these five men, James Hallam.

While the other four commissioners were fairly prominent men of their time, or related to families which are easily traced (three have genealogies published on their families),⁷ Hallam has not yet been found in any source which predates the establishment of Muscogee County.

Neither the earlier histories of Columbus (Martin, Telfair, Worsley, Lupold, Whitehead) nor the latest two (Kyle, Mahan) have added much to our information of Mr. Hallam. A letter Mrs. Louise Jones DuBose wrote to the director of the state archives in 1928 while writing A History of Columbus, Georgia 1828-1928 (using the pseudonym Nancy Telfair) for the city's centennial, indicated she had been asking a lot of questions. She had located a descendant of commissioner Elias Beall living in Columbus, but was not sure whether Hallam's name was spelled "Hallam" or "Hallman". It is obvious from her book, that the reply revealed nothing new about Hallam.⁸

Hallam signed his bond in Baldwin County, the site of Milledgeville, the state capital, when he arrived for the first meeting of the commissioners, January 25, 1828. Mrs. DuBose and her sources felt that he was actually a resident of original Muscogee in 1827 before the city of Columbus was established.⁹ While no study has been made of who the commissioners were or where they came from for Georgia's other state-established towns Macon and Louisville, it would sound reasonable that at least one local resident would be needed, since it was not presumed that the commissioners would actually move to the new city to live. There was also a local tradition that Hallam was a lawyer.¹⁰

Most of Muscogee County's records from the creation of the original county government in June, 1827 until October, 1838 were destroyed in the Muscogee County Courthouse fire, October 15, 1838.¹¹ The few county-created records which predate this fire do not date back to this early period and would be useful only if Hallam had resided in the county and owned property.

In searching the earliest state and federal records concerning the formation of the county and the city and their inhabitants at the Georgia Department of Archives and History, no new clues have surfaced. Hallam's name did not appear in either the 1827 Land Lottery list of winners (as published),¹² the published indexes for the 1830 Census for either Georgia or Alabama,¹³ or the 1832 Gold and Land Lotteries for Georgia as published and indexed.¹⁴ His name also does not appear as a county officer, militia captain, Justice of the Peace, or postmaster.

After original Muscogee was named and authorized to form a government in December, 1826, news of the formation of the county appeared in The Macon Telegraph,¹⁵ since Muscogee did not have a newspaper until The Columbus Enquirer began publication in May, 1828. The Macon Telegraph thus is a good source for news about these early days, carrying both social, governmental, and legal notices.

In reading the issues for 1827, the first mention found of Hallam's name occurred some six months before he was named a commissioner for Columbus. The issue of June 25, 1827 indicated that he was to be the speaker or orator for the 4th of July ceremony.¹⁶ Speech making was one of the major components for 4th of July ceremonies in the 19th century. Since this was the first one for original Muscogee, for Hallam to have been chosen speaker indicates that he was indeed a local figure of some note. Given the sparsely populated county, it may indicate that he had settled near the temporary courthouse where the celebration was to be held.

The site for the 4th of July celebration was the house of Colonel William C. Osburn (Osborne), where the legislature had authorized elections and court be held at the time of the county's organization in December, 1826.¹⁷ The mention of Osborne's house indicated that he was obviously residing in the new territory before the land was distributed by land lottery. Perhaps Hallam was as well.

Osborne later placed an advertisement in The Macon Telegraph indicating his intention in November, 1827 of opening an inn known as "Waverly Hall".¹⁸ Osborne was appointed the first postmaster for the town of Waverly Hall in February, 1829 and lived east of the present commercial area of the town on the road to Talbotton.¹⁹ Since he lived close to the current town, it was obviously in the part of original Muscogee which became Harris County. Col. Osborne's house thus was the first county seat for Muscogee and served from December, 1826 until the county was divided and elections held for the new governments formed in February, 1828. At that time, the election place for newly-formed Harris County was designated as the home of Lewis Wynn, not Colonel Osborne.²⁰

During 1828, the Columbus Commissioners met several times, both in Milledgeville and at the new town site. They fulfilled their duties by having the town site laid out, surveyed, lots designated, and then selecting a date for and conducting the public sale, or auction, of lots. This took place from July 10 -23, 1828.²¹

The minutes of the Board of Commissioners of Columbus indicate that Hallam was present for most of the meetings held in 1828, and his name appears on all the surviving state certificates of purchase for the new owners signed that summer.²² There are also payment records indicating the amount and date each commissioner was paid.²³

Since not all of the lots were sold in July 1828, and fearing that the lots might sell too low, the commissioners held back the rest. Then, the commissioners authorized a second sale, to take place January 31, 1829. It was advertised throughout Georgia, and in some newspapers in Alabama. Only four commissioners signed this advertisement. Hallam's name was missing at the time it was first run on January 10th.²⁴

No doubt some mention of what became of Hallam appeared in the fledgling Columbus Enquirer. Although it began publication under the editorship of Mirabeau B. Lamar on May 28, 1828, only five issues survive for the years 1828 through 1831.²⁵ A near-complete run resumes with the issues of January, 1832.²⁶ The only other newspaper known to have been published in Columbus during any part of this period was The Columbus Democrat, which did not begin until October, 1830.²⁷

The only knowledge we have as to what became of James Hallam after the summer of 1828 rests on the following:

The Savannah Georgian (and no doubt all major newspapers in Georgia) on March 27, 1829:

"Appointments by the Governor since the 1st of Janaury, last (1829):

Ulysses Lewis of Columbus to be Commissioner of the sale of lots in Columbus in place of I. Few, resigned.

James Van Ness of Columbus do. do. do (meaning ditto) in place of James Hallam, removed."

The Executive Minutes (1825-1829) of the Governor's office are the source for the official wording. It makes the situation a bit clearer:

February 23, 1829:

"Ordered that Ulysses Lewis be and appointed commissioner for sale of the lots in the Town of Columbus in place of Ign. A. Few, resigned and James P. Van Ness in the place of James Hallam, removed from the state."²⁸

This statement definitely indicates that James Hallam had left Columbus, and Georgia. It would appear that he did not resign, as had Colonel Few, and thus no letter should survive that would give any reason for his departure. It also indicates that he was still alive. It is also possible that he could have moved away not realizing that there would be another sale and that his duties as a commissioner were not over.

The name Hallam appears in the counties of original Muscogee later in the name of another official. Jeremiah Hallam, a native of Bertie County, North Carolina, was the sheriff of Harris County. He was living in Jones County, Georgia at the time of the 1827 Land Lottery registration and was in Harris as early as the 1830 census.²⁹

Thus the trail ends, for now. James Hallam, one of the founders of Columbus, after appearing briefly in the history of Muscogee/Columbus from 1827 to 1829, disappears.³⁰

NOTES

1. Acts of the General Assembly...1826 (Milledgeville, 1826), p. 57-59. The published act does not show a signature date for the governor's assent. Muscogee County had been identified as Section 2 in the Creek Land Session under the Act of June 9, 1825, and that date is often given as the date of creation of the county. But the county was not named, nor authorized to form a government, until December 11, 1826. According to the 1825 act, in lieu of any established government, Section 2 was attached to Houston County for administrative purposes. No search has been made to determine if any records in Houston County relate to Muscogee County's pre-organization years.
2. Acts of the General Assembly...1827, p. 69-71 is the law which divided original Muscogee. On pages 65-67 is the law which established the election sites and dates for the elections of all county officers. This law was signed December 24, 1827 and established Columbus as the county seat for the reduced Muscogee County. The smaller Muscogee County included most of Chattahoochee County until it was created as a separate county in 1854. Talbot County had a portion cut off in 1852 to form part of Taylor County.
3. Acts...1827, pp. 183-186. Forsyth had become governor on November 7, 1827.
4. Ibid.
5. Houston, Martha Lou. Reprint of Official Register of Land Lottery of Georgia 1827 (Columbus, 1928) and reprinted with a full, complete index by Southern Historical Press, 1976. This most recent edition contains the only accurate index to this volume. The book is a reprint of one published in Milledgeville in 1827 from the daily reports of lottery winners which appeared in the local newspaper.
6. The bonds for Alston, Beall, and deGraffenreid are located in the Surveyor General's Office of the Georgia Department of Archives and History (GDAH). The bond for Hallam is headed Baldwin County due to his signing it at the first meeting of the commissioners in Milledgeville. It is located in File II, GDAH. The commissioners' counties of residence are the same on the bonds as in the appointment notice except for Hallam. See Executive Minutes for December 26, 1827, quoted in Telfair, page 35.
7. See Joseph A. Groves, The Alstons and Allstons of North and South Carolina (Atlanta, 1901, reprinted later), pp. 616-166.; Thomas P. deGraffenried, History of the deGraffenried Family... 8. Beall Family Folder, Central Research Room, GDAH. Mrs. DuBose had actually written Mr. A. T. Harris about Hallam, according to the letter. It is not clear who he was. She was writing to find information about all the five commissioners but the letter ended up in the Beall Folder.

Hallam's name does not appear in either index.
15. The Macon Telegraph, December 12, 1826, p. 27 (3), column 2. The new officers of Muscogee County were announced in the issue of June 4, 1827, p. 3, column 1. Hallam was not listed.
16. Ibid., June 25, 1827, p. 3, column 2. "Fourth of July Orators" was the title of the article.
17. Acts...1826, p. 57. The Macon Telegraph of July 2, 1827, p. 3, column 5, indicated that the Muscogee County Sheriff's sale would take place at the house of William C. Osborne "the place of holding courts".
18. The Macon Telegrah, November 20, 1827, p. 2, column 4. The advertisement is entitled "Waverly Hall" and Osborn(e) indicated that he had just completed a building "where the Sheriff's Sales and other Public Business for the future will be transacted". He was no doubt dismayed when a month later the county was divided and the county seats changed.

22. Minutes of the Commissioners, Town of Columbus, 1828 located in the Surveyor General's Office, GDAH. The Certificates of Purchase issued by the commissioners on behalf of the state during the July 1828 sales were signed by all five commissioners. The full title to these lots did not always end up in a grant to the person who was the original purchaser and whose name is on the certificate. The purchaser had to make five installment payments and often sold off his interest in the lot before these were paid in full. The reverse of the certificates gives a wonderful, unexplored history of title to land in the city of Columbus. The unbound certificates, located in the Surveyor General's Office, are arranged by lot number. They have not been searched to determine if any were signed after the July, 1828 sale with or without Hallam's signature. The actual grants, in two bound volumes, begin in 1830 and are signed only by the governor.

23. Senate Journal...1828 (Milledgeville, 1828), p. 249, payment for January 17, 1828, $100 in advance; p. 251 August 2, 1828, paid $120.

24. The Southern Recorder (Milledgeville, GA), January 31, 1829; and Martin, op. cit., p. 18, indicated that the sale had taken six days, Feb. 21-27, 1829. Note that the governor's replacements for the two missing Columbus commissioners was not made until February 23 during the week of the sale.

25. The only nationwide search of early newspapers to include any of the missing issues of The Columbus Enquirer appears to be Winifred Gregory, ed., American Newspapers, 1821-1936; A Union List... New York, 1937, p. 104. Gregory lists five issues: June 21 and July 19, 1828; July 2, and August 27, 1830; and January 15, 1832. A photocopy of the June 21, 1828 issue from the Library of Congress is on file at The Columbus Ledger-Enquirer offices. It is obvious from reading Martin's history that he had access to many other issues from this period, but not all of them.

26. The University of Georgia is the source for the most complete set of microfilm of early Georgia newspapers. A careful study of existing microfilm of the early issues of The Columbus Enquirer has indicated that there are two different microfilm editions for the period 1832-1840. That done by the University of Georgia of copies found in Athens is the most complete. The set made from issues found in Columbus is very incomplete. The copies found in Athens were the exchange copies saved by the local Athens newspaper.

27. See Martin, op. cit., p. 23. A near complete set of this newspaper was found and microfilmed by the University of Georgia at the Washington Memorial Library in Macon. The original set is still there. It was published only from October, 1830 until September, 1832 but due to the lack of the early issues of the Enquirer for this period, it is a valuable source and one that Martin did not use since he had been editor of the Enquirer.

28. Executive Minutes March 8, 1825 - October 31, 1829, p. 620 under date of February 23, 1829. There is a modern index which is very confusing and incomplete. The microfilm of this volume is also incomplete.

29. A search of various indexes related to the other counties formed from original Muscogee has revealed only Jeremiah Hallam of Harris County. He was a legatee of John Hallam who died in Bertie County, North Carolina leaving a will before 1838 (North Carolina Genealogical Society Quarterly, III, p. 9, 1977). The will of John Hallam was probated in 1804 leaving two children, Jeremiah and an unborn child. Carolyn Williams, The History of Jones County,

JAMES HALLAM

Georgia... (1957), p. 797, lists the registrants for the lottery. There was also a John Hallam who registered and won. Barfield, op. cit., p. 113, lists him in the 1830 Census of Harris County as "Holm". The name often is written Holland, Hallman, Hollman, Hallum. It is also possible that the name was written Allums. Jeremiah Hallam was also a veteran of the War of 1812 and lived long enough to draw a pension or for his widow to draw one.

30. Various indexes and records in Georgia have been searched for any mention of James Hallam. The author feels that he had made a thorough search over a ten year period, to no avail. The only clue to date as to where Hallam might have moved is Tennessee. Various published books of county marriages and census indexes show a man of that name there in the 1820s and 1840s. No research has been undertaken to determine if there is any connection.

At the time that John H. Martin wrote "Columbus, Georgia, 1827-1865," he did not have access to the Columbus Enquirer for the years 1835 and 1836. Therefore, the chapters for those years do not include any marriages and deaths, as do the chapters for other years. A microfilm copy of the Columbus Enquirer for 1835 and 1836 is now available at the W. C. Bradley Memorial Library of Columbus. The following are taken from that microfilm.

A few notices do not give the exact date of the marriage or death. In those cases, they are listed as "Before" and the date of the paper in which the notice appeared, is given.

QUERIES

BLAND-CARTER-MORGAN-ASKEW-GOLSON: Seeking information on the parents of Calvin Bland, b. 7 April 1820 Edgefield Dist, S.C. He was married to Lucinda Morgan, Daughter of James and Mary Dathny Morgan, 3 October 1855. Their children were: Analiza, b. 7 March 1847 Muscogee Co., GA.; Harriett Frances, b. 22 May 1849 Muscogee Co., GA.; Frank (Francis W.) b. 1853 Muscogee Co.; William Wesley, b. 22 April 1855, Chattahoochee Co., GA. Calvin remarried to Martha Askew, daughter of James Askew and Cintha Golson, 13 January 1856. They had a son, James Jefferson, b. 17 January 1861 Marion Co., GA. Calvin's father could have been Talton (Tarlton) Bland who married Mary Polly Carter 23 Jan 1823. Would like to correspond with anyone working on these families. Calvin and James Jefferson Bland came to Texas in late 1880's. Louise Bland Martin, Route 3 Box 324 A, Garrison, Texas 75946.

DICKENS-STEPP: Seeking parents of Jane Dickens, who was married in 1806 in Oglethorpe County, Georgia to John "Jack" Stepp. Her father disowned her when she married Jack. Jack made whiskey and sold it to the Cherokee Indians. Their children could speak their language. Some think there is Indian blood in the family. Jack was a heavy drinker and died before 1830, when Jane (Dickens) Stepp was on the census of Hardin County, Tennessee. Any help appreciated. Sue Nite Raguzin, 5008 Briarbrook, Dickinson, Texas 77539.

HAMMOCK-MCGINTY: Looking for parents of Frances (Fannie) Hammock (b. c. 1850, Ga.; d. 1900-1910, Marion Co., GA.) m. William Henry McGinty on 16 November 1871, Marion Co., GA. Was she the daughter of John P. Hammock of Talbot/Marion Cos. or possibly of Richard Hammock of Talbot Co? Would like to hear from anyone researching McGinty or Hammock, any place or time. Karan A. Berryman, PO Box 234, Cuthbert, GA 31740.

HARRIS: There apparently exists no comprehensive listing of the very large number of descendents of the early Virginia HARRISES. We propose to begin to amass data on these down to the present day, with a view to publishing such at a later date. Many persons who trace their lineage back to colonial Virginia have Harris ancestors, so that such a listing would have wide applicability. If you have a Harris ancestor or information on such lineages and would be willing to contribute data to this undertaking, we would like to correspond with you. Dr. B. L. Harris, Pondsprings, 11323 Glenarm Rd., Glenarm, MD 21057.

RHODES-PARK-KELLY: Seeking information on families of Moses R. Rhodes (1789-1825?), wife Hannah (Park) Rhodes b. ca 1790, and children including John W. Rhodes (1813-1876). Were in Elbert County, Georgia 1815-1848, possibly South Carolina before 1815. John W. Rhodes married 1838 Mary Polly Kelly, moved to Carroll County, Tennessee 1848. Hannah, widow of Moses, drew land in what is now Harris County in 1827 Land Lottery. Will reimburse costs of postage, copies, etc. Gifford Rhodes, 669 Creighton Road, Orange Park, Florida 32073.
