EXPECTATIONS of STUDENTS: In order to get their money's worth and have fun with this class, students should want to work hard and think hard. Thus I assume all students will always attend class and complete all reading and other assignments on time. Students must contact the professor before the due date concerning problems with exams or research papers. Leave a voicemail message if you can't reach me personally or try me via email. Class participation and attendance will weigh heavily in deciding borderline grades. Make-up exams will be given only under extraordinary circumstances. Research papers and response papers must be handed in in hard copy; emailed papers are not accepted. No electronics in class without permission, please.

Level of Course:

This is an upper level American government course which will examine various aspects of the process and politics of the judicial system in the United States. The course is also part of the Law and Society concentration. This is not a Constitutional Law course, and we will read very few actual court decisions. Instead, this is a course which examines how political scientists study judicial politics and judicial behavior. It assumes information learned in the Intro to American Government course (Pol Sci 050). While Pol Sci 050 is not a formal prerequisite, that course or other law related courses are certainly helpful background for this course. If you have any questions, please see the professor.
