Copyright is owned by the Author of the thesis. Permission is given for a copy to be downloaded by an individual for the purpose of research and private study only. The thesis may not be reproduced elsewhere without the permission of the Author.

A STUDY OF FAMILIES' EXPERIENCES OF ASSISTING A MEMBER INTO RESIDENTIAL CARE

A thesis presented in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of

Master of Arts in Nursing

at Massey University

Annette Stewart 1997

ABSTRACT

Traditionally the responsibility of caring for an aging relative has fallen upon the family of that person, usually the spouse or the daughter(s). An increase in the state recognised age of retirement, more women returning to or remaining in the workforce, and the tendency of families to be more mobile than in the past, means that the option of being cared for in the community by family members has diminished for some elderly people.

Residential care - an umbrella term for retirement homes, hospitals and secure units - provides an alternative for families unable to care for their aged relative(s). Some research has been done on the phenomenon of relocation into residential care from the client's perspective, yet there is a paucity of information about the experience from the point of view of the families involved in this process. This piece of research sets out to address this issue and to hopefully influence the nursing practice of those who work in this area.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to acknowledge those people who have offered me help and encouragement to complete this study. In particular I would like to thank the following:

The participants, who so willingly shared their experiences with me.

- * Jo Ann Walton and Judith Christensen, my joint supervisors, for their expertise and commitment.
- * Don, for his love, support and encouragement.
- * Andrei and Olesya, my children for their patience and love.
- * Margot, for her help in proof reading this document.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ADSTRACT
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTSii
KEY TO TRANSCRIPTIONSiv
CHAPTER ONE:
INTRODUCTION1
CHAPTER TWO:
LITERATURE REVIEW
The nursing profession and care of the elderly
Ageism and sexism11
Grief process
Families and family dynamics15
The caregiver role17
Aging in New Zealand22
CHAPTER THREE:
THE RESEARCH PROCESS
The aim27
The method
Phenomenology - historical perspective
Existential phenomenology of Heidegger3
Nursing and phenomenology
Evaluation of research method39
Participant selection43
Interviews44
Data collection46
Data analysis4
Ethical concerns 49

CHAPTER FOUR:
OVERVIEW OF THE RESEARCH OUTCOME55
CHAPTER FIVE:
THE RESEARCH OUTCOME - PART 1
Turning point 60
Autonomy and control65
Commitment to care
CHAPTER SIX:
THE RESEARCH OUTCOME - PART 2
Loneliness76
Guilt82
Grief87
CHAPTER SEVEN:
THE RESEARCH OUTCOME - PART 3
Abiding hope93
Making meaning97
Interpersonal relationships
CHAPTER EIGHT:
DISCUSSION
Review of the study105
Limitations110
Implications for practice
Recommendations118
Further research12
Conclusion. 122

REFERENCES

APPENDICES

Appendix A: Open letter

Appendix B: Information sheet

Appendix C: Consent form

Appendix D: Prompt sheet

Appendix E: Non-disclosure form

KEY TO TRANSCRIPTIONS

The abbreviations and conventions given below are used in this study in chapters five, six and seven which discuss the analysis of the data.

Italics: Indicate the words quoted by the participant during the interviews.

...//...: Indicates where material has been edited out of the interview.

( ): Figures enclosed in brackets indicate participant number, interview number and page number. For example participant five, interview one, page three would be recorded as (5:1:3).