ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I should like to express my thanks to my supervisor, Peter Lineham, for his patience and encouragement. To Kerry Howe for some pithy advice. To Glynnis Cropp for sending me an article on Margaret of Anjou and for her continuing interest in my work. To Anne Austin for proof-reading and witty comments. To Noelene White and Annette Holm of Massey University Library, who obtained obscure material for me from overseas when I despaired of ever seeing it. To Felicity Rashbrooke of the Parliamentary Library for a steady stream of photocopies. And most importantly, as always, to Alison Hanham. As consultant for this paper she has spent many hours discussing with me, by letter and telephone, the correspondence of the period. Her expertise has guided me to a better understanding of what everyone, from the Duchess of York to Friar Brackley, meant, and what their recipients understood them to mean, by their 'tidings.' I can only describe her, once again, as 'mentor and friend,' and rely on her for help in the future as I have in the past.
