Half-Pint House Is Priced at $60

By Jack Gill
The industrial arts department soon will have two houses for sale. Both are being made by C. R. Brown's carpentry students and will be sold for $60 each, the price of the material.

Yes, there is a catch to the deal. The houses are half-size. They are being built to exact half scale from full-size house plans for practice by Brown's carpentry students.

Two similar model houses have been built and sold this semester to University faculty members. Prof. Richard G. Huzarski of architectural engineering and William C. Wagner, head of civil engineering, have purchased the midget structures for play houses for their children.

The two half-scale houses, in the process of construction now, have not been sold yet. Arthur P. Bailey, head of industrial arts, said, "We're ready for offers." He added that they would continue making the play houses as long as they could be sold to pay for the material in them.

Although the houses are half size by dimension, they are only one-fourth size by volume. For instance, the studs are made from 1 by 2-inch boards instead of from 2 by 4-inch lumber. A full-size house takes four times as many board feet of lumber as the replicas take. All elements of a full size house, such as jack hips, rafters, fire stops, and joists, are incorporated in the models.

Brown agrees that it sounds logical that, if a half-size house can be built with $60 worth of material, a full-size one shouldn't cost much more than four times as much, "but it just can't be done," he lamented.

Band Still Short 10 To Reach 100 Quota

Band Director Robert E. Dahmert announced yesterday that approximately 10 more members are needed to fill the marching ranks of the band to 100 pieces for Homecoming. "Students who are interested must see me today," Dahmert said.

Program charts for the Homecoming game have to be made out this week, and it is necessary to have all the ranks filled to do the large formations which have been planned, Dahmert stated.

Brass instruments and clarinets are needed greatly, and there is room for one more flute, Dahmert said.

The 100-piece band will be used for the Bradley game, also.

Sigler Puts 450 Men In Part-time Work

"In September we placed 450 men students in jobs on and off the campus," said Russell K. Sigler, Placement Bureau director.

Sigler said he usually can secure employment for the applicant, and he does not reserve any job for any particular person.

Sigler replaced Brad Prince, who was called back into the Army, this August. Prior to this he was vocational adviser in the Veterans Administration. When he arrived at the university he was a counsellor in the English workshop class.

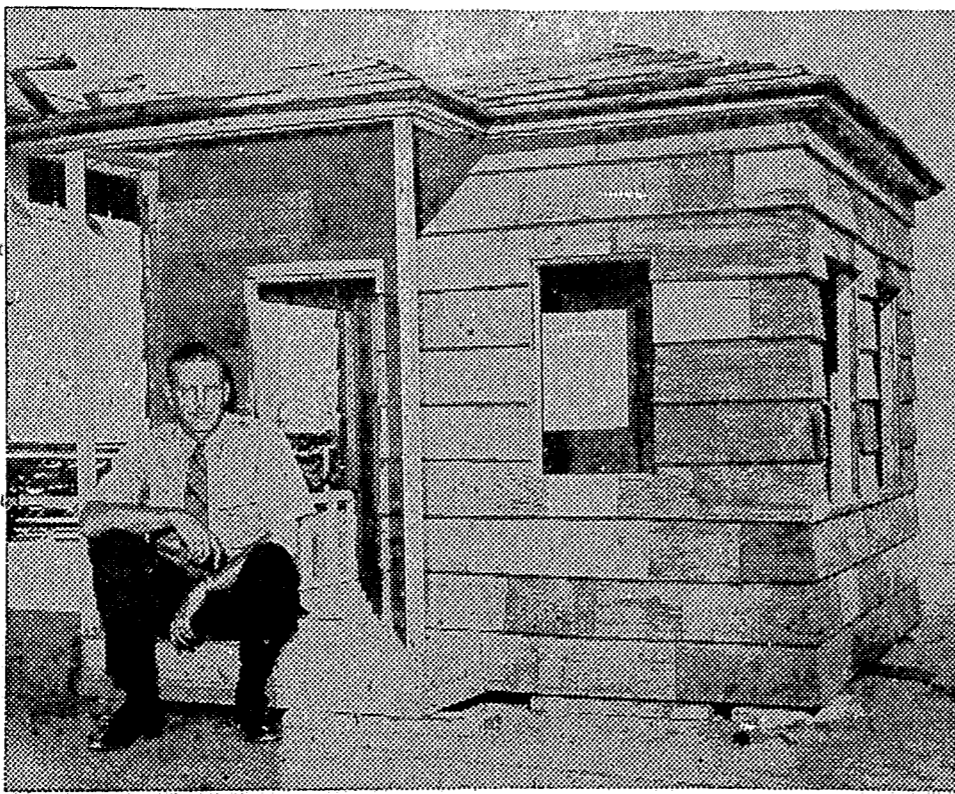

Sigler received his B.S. from Colorado A&M at Fort Collins, his M.A. from the University of Colorado. As a lieutenant in the infantry, he spent part of his three years in the South Pacific. He and his wife and boy now reside in Albuquerque.

USP to Meet Tonight

Glen Houston, chairman of USP, announced a policy meeting to make plans for 1950-1951, and to select a USP nominee for student senate president. The meeting will be in Y1-8 at 7 p.m. tonight. All USP members and students are invited to attend.

WEATHER

Fair today and tomorrow. Partly cloudy in the afternoon. High today 82, low 50.

C. R. Brown, carpentry instructor in industrial arts at the University, is shown sitting on the front porch of one of the half-size play houses constructed by his students. The house is complete in every structural detail and is made from full-size plans. It has been sold to William C. Wagner, head of civil engineering at UNM, for $60. Professor Wagner will add the finishing touches by painting the redwood siding and installing windows before turning it over to his children. (Journal photo.)

Bards Read Own Work During Poetry Fiesta

By Don Bennett
Southwestern poets read their poems Sunday at New Mexico's first Poet's Fiesta. The Fiesta, held in Rodey hall, was sponsored by the Albuquerque branch of the National League of Pen Women in cooperation with the department of English.

Eleven poets from New Mexico and Texas read both published and unpublished works at the Fiesta. The poets included M. M. Parrish, Alice Benton, Grace Meredith, Emilie Van Auw, Tom Calkins, Alice Briley, Marion Sturges Burton, Allison Ross, Peggy Pond Church, Charles Wiley, and Grace Noll Crowell.

Dr. Lena Creswell, president of the Albuquerque branch of Pen Women, opened the Fiesta by explaining the purpose and origin of Poetry day in New Mexico.

"Our purpose," explained Dr. Creswell, "is to honor poetry and poets of all times." She went further to say that Governor Mabry, in 1948, had proclaimed October 15 as Poetry day in New Mexico, and that day has been observed by New Mexican poets since then.

The poems were both humorous and serious.

Mrs. M. M. Parrish and her daughter, Allison Ross, formed a mother and daughter team. Mrs. Parrish has a poem appearing in this week's issue of the Saturday Evening Post. Allison Ross is the pen name of Mrs. Robert Anderson.

In keeping with the theme, "Poets of the Southwest," the poets were dressed in southwestern costumes. The ushers dressed in brilliant Spanish costumes, and recorded Spanish music set the mood for the Fiesta.

All of the poets have had poems appear in national magazines, and many have had books published.

Dr. T. M. Pearce, head of the department of English, acted as faculty advisor. Proceeds for the Fiesta will be used to establish an annual Poetry award for UNM students, administered by the English department.

Sigs and Kappa Sigs Take 2 Cage Games

Sigma Chi, with Dave Warren scoring 13 points, rolled over Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 25 to 13 in the first of four intramural basketball games last Monday night at 7:30 p.m. in the gymnasium.

Kappa Sigma handed Delta Sigma Phi a 22-16 defeat in the second scrap. H. Sobol led Kappa Sigma Getting seven points.

The Baptist Student Union squad dropped a 39-15 decision to the NROTC in the final game.

Big Brass to Review Middies, Air Cadets

Rear Admiral W. K. Phillips, Commandant, Eighth Naval District, will review a joint parade of midshipmen of the Naval ROTC Unit and cadets of the Air Force ROTC at Zimmerman Field, Oct. 26.

Brigadier General John S. Mills, USAF, who recently assumed command of the Air Force Special Weapons Command at Kirtland Field, and President Tom L. Popejoy will be in the reviewing party.

A special feature of the ceremony will be an exhibition by a drill team of selected midshipmen, under the direction of Midshipman James T. Lewis.

Music for the parade will be provided by the UNM Band under the direction of Robert E. Dahmert.

Pirate Is Sunk . . .

Former Student Loses Minesweeper

Capt. Alfred M. Granum, head of NROTC here, received word last night that a former student of UNM was aboard the US Navy minesweeper Pirate, which was sunk off the east coast of Korea.

The former student, Lt. Cmdr. Bruce Hyatt, was commander of minesweeper-division 32. The Pirate and another minesweeper were both sunk by North Korean mines off Won San. The Pirate was Hyatt's flag ship. It sank in five minutes, Capt. Granum said.

Several lives were lost but Hyatt's name was not on the casualty list.

Hyatt was called to active duty

'Dream Girl' Shows Four Newcomers

Four newcomers will appear with 10 UNM veteran actors in the University theater production of "Dream Girl." The Elmer Rice comedy is to begin its run next Tuesday in Rodey hall.

Rosemary Long, Dave Geleibter, Mary Ellen Smith, and Harold Huber will appear for the first time before audiences here. All four have appeared in other college productions.

Drama major Geleibter was author, director, and producer of a radio play, "As Youth Sees It," given over New York's WFDR.

Tickets for "Dream Girl" may be bought at the Rodey hall box office this week. Office hours are noon to 5 p.m. daily. University students should present activity tickets in advance to get seats.

Only $150 for Ride To UNM-Army Tilt

An opportunity for students to fly round-trip to the UNM-Army game at West Point for only $150 was announced today by Dick Spindler, student organizer of the trip.

Spindler said that the low fare is offered so that as many students as possible will be able to see the great Army squad, currently No. 1 in the nation, play the Lobos. The east coast will be at its best and most scenic during the early part of November, making the trip an ideal short vacation, he added.

The plane will leave here in sufficient time for all to see the game and will return the day after, giving time for game-goers to visit New York City.

Affairs Office Seeks Address Corrections For New Directory

A UNM student directory will be published about the middle of November, it was announced today by the director of student affairs.

The Student Affairs office also reported that Saturday is the deadline for address corrections to be turned in for the directory. Many students' addresses were omitted on census cards during registration, the office said.

Addresses should be given to Mrs. McGrath in room 152 of the Ad building.

The directory will contain names, addresses, phones, and home towns of all students who enrolled in the University this fall. It will carry no advertising.

It is being published this year by the Student Affairs office at the expense of the University. Last year, members of the Thunderbird staff produced the directory as a student publication.

DeAnza Club Shows Folk Music Talents

De Anza club found talent among its members last week.

Gloria France, a new member, was first to display her talents at the piano with "Besame Mucho," and several other selections. Hazel Martinez and Vangie Garcia both sang Spanish numbers. The club's sponsor, Mr. Ulibarri, read two selections of poetry to the group.

Highlighting the program were two Mexican dances performed by Amalia Gardos of Yucatan, Mexico, and Bob Whipple of this city. Both wore Mexican fiesta costumes and danced several folk dances to records which Miss Gardos brought with her from her native country.

A get-acquainted social was held after the program, and refreshments were served. Eli Zondo, head of the entertainment committee, announced they will bring noted speakers of Hispanic interest to the club.

NOTICE

All members and pledges of Alpha Phi Omega are asked to be at a meeting tonight at 7:30 in the SUB lounge. Homecoming projects will be planned.

Dorm Men Dance Tonight

Men's new dorm residents will entertain guests tonight in another Wednesday night dance, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the dorm's fourth-floor recreation hall. All students are invited.

Scene of the Crime . . .

The Tri-Delts awakened Friday morning to find the three Deltas missing from the front of their house. After a search of the campus they found the Deltas hanging from a third floor window of the Administration building. This picture, found near the scene of the crime, is the only clue to the identity of the culprits.

The Daily Lobo is an independent newspaper published for the benefit of the students and the University, but it does not assume that opinions expressed in editorials and columns are necessarily those of the majority of the student body...

PROMISES

Class officer elections have now come to a close with the Campus party scoring a near clean sweep. To some the results were electrifying; to others they were the saddest of disappointments...

Last spring there was another student body election. In that election this year's Student Council and student body president were elected along with an Athletic council. The results then were definitely split with CP gaining a slight edge over USP...

We have a feeling that many have forgotten what the politicians promised last spring. As a matter of fact, were it not for an old yellowed Daily Lobo of April 28 last, we might have forgotten ourselves. However we did find this paper, so we know what was to be, and what actually is.

One of the most heated points last spring, supported by both parties, was recommendation to the Albuquerque City Commission that an anti-discrimination ordinance be passed. Not a word on this has, as yet, come from the student government. Space limitations prevent our going through each of the 21 things both parties promised last year, but we can safely say that all but one of these platform planks have received to date no attention...

The one plank which has been resolved, or at least brought up, was that concerning a new auditorium. And this little subject is being thrashed about by the City and the University, not student government.

We realize it is still pretty early in the year, but we would like to see some action taken before too long on what was promised the students last spring by the student politicians.

And after Monday's class officer elections, we find ourselves with six more promises. Let's not forget them either.

STRICTLY FROM UNGER

The Samuel L. Unger and Co. people thought of us and sent along a swell little publication called Unger's Industrial Mail Order Catalog. On the first page, in white type on an enormous black arrow pointing to the following pages, Mr. Unger wrote an introduction.

"This section brings you again a host of new products and some tried and true items from sources other than our own." The arrow points to the first product, "a paper saver toilet tissue holder." Illustrations prove that other tissue holders are "wasteful and unsanitary" whereas "981,000 workers are saving $19,720 per month for their employers with Percmo paper saver toilet tissue holders."

Next is a machine that "automatically removes excess moisture from the air." It "controls humidity, prevents rust, rot, mold, and mildew."

On the next page is a compact little machine that automatically puts moisture in the air, makes factory life worthwhile, and saves 981,000 workers $19,720 per month in doctor bills.

Items of interest to every factory-owner in the next few pages are: a 9 1/2 cent ball point pen with a "visible ink supply," a gadget that boils water as it comes from the tap—only $14.95, a flexible screw driver for driving screws that are around corners, and some liquid sandpaper that "eliminates sanding"—just pour it on and the surface falls off.

Illustrations on the last page depicts a "salesman's file, a president's file, a junior file, and a secretary's file," all of the cabinet type. The door of the secretary's file cabinet is left slightly ajar in the picture. Inside can be seen little items that secretaries often use, some that the president might be able to use, some that would interest a junior, and the corner of a fifth of something—probably ink eradicator.

It might be well to mention that Mr. Unger sent this compilation to 49,999 other persons (he said so himself) and the products he advertises can be obtained only through Unger. If anyone is interested in obtaining a copy of said catalog have him please call at the office anytime. We are through with it. We got an editorial out of Unger.

DUDLEY AT UNM

by JACK TOMLINS

The Boy of Our Dreams

Wrong Van Horn and Sergeant Looney of the Royal Mounted Campus Police approached the Gamma Gamma Kappa house. "They'll never get away with this latest scheme. I know they're holding Dudley somewhere in that house, and we're going in and get him out. Who knows what may have happened to that poor boy during this last week. He's so young. His mind is yet pliable, and this is just the sort of thing that invites mental breakdown."

At that moment Miss Angela Vertangela opened the front door in their faces. She was dressed in sleek, low-cut, black satin.

"My name is Wrong Van Horn, Miss. I've come with the law to reclaim our reporter, Dudley Smedley. Just give him back peacefully and we'll go our way. We'll keep this terrible scandal quiet if you will kindly deliver that poor boy to us."

"Oh, I've heard so much about you, you wonderful man."

"Yes, well, let's get our business transaction over with as soon as our way... What have you heard about me, my dear?"

"You and the Sergeant come on in for some tea, won't you? Oh, Mr. Van Horn, when Dudley called on us we were more than thrilled to be chosen by your paper for an interview. I'm Miss Vertangela, the girl you wanted to write a story about."

"Well, since I'm here, Miss Vertangela, I might as well interview you myself. Now we want to prove in our column that the American sorority woman is a healthy, normal, straightforward individual."

"You can see I'm healthy, and I'm sooo normal. Around the right people I can also be most straightforward." She jumped upon his lap.

"Huzzah, huzzah," he called. "That's just the sort of thing we want for our column. Now if I can just get my notebook, I'll take a few notes. Sergeant Looney, you may go on and wait for me on the front porch. I think I can handle this alone."

"Yes, I'm a normal, American girl. Only one thing has been lacking from my life all these years. I have never known true affection. I never knew if a man was after me or my money. Do you know what it is to be starved for affection, to crave someone to love? Have you ever known such frustration?"

"Please, Miss Vertangela, not so close. You're stabbing me with my pen."

"You're the man I've waited all my life for. I knew it when you first walked in the door. I love you, you fool. Call for me on Saturday night." Mother Bivvins reared her head above the back of the couch.

Little Man On Campus

by Bibler

"I wish you guys would 'thumb through' my medical books a little faster—I've got to study 'em.

We're the girls supreme, the queens of all society. We set the rules and make the laws for all propriety, We're the ones you can't afford, never see us in a Ford, Cadillac and Buicks are our meat. Gamma, Gamma, Gamma, Gamma G. G. K. Gamma, Gamma, Gamma, Gamma G. G. K.

At the conclusion of the song, Angela placed her sorority pin upon Mr. Van Horn's sweater. Like an apparition he struggled through the front door. Sergeant Looney met him on the porch. "What's the matter? What have they done to you? And where's Dudley?" "Dudley? Dudley? Egad, I forgot about Dudley!"

LETTERIP ... Voice of the Students

Bubbling Spirits
Dear Editor,
It was a long ride over to Amarillo this weekend and an even longer ride back. It might have sounded pretty bad over the radio, but there is more to the game than just the score.

Phi Sigma meeting, 7:30 p. m. in the SUB south lounge.

I can't write this letter without including a big piece about the band. The 84 students and their leader, Robert E. Dahnert deserve a lot of credit. They made the long trip by bus and to make it even longer they stopped in two New Mexico towns to serenade the local citizens. On arriving in Amarillo the band went to the stadium and practiced for the night's show. I saw most of them around 6 p. m., just checking in at the hotel. They had to get cleaned up (three to a room) and out by 7 in order to be at the stadium for the game. When they arrived, they went through their regular opening and showed the fans some snappy marching. In the stands they formed the best cheering section you would ask for. I didn't see their half time show but everyone praised it.

The send-off Friday was well attended, but we still saw a lot of students walk by on their way to class. This Friday will be Western day, and the night's big attraction will be a Letterman's assembly and Pep Rally and a western dance to follow. They'll show up and show some real spirit.

JOB-PORTUNITIES
The U. S. Civil Service commission has announced its 1950 examinations for junior management assistant, paying salaries of $3,100 a year in Federal Offices throughout the country. June graduates may apply if between 18 and 35, age limits being waived for veterans. After the applicant has passed the necessary qualifications, an interview will be given.

Snap, Flash, Curtain... Miller's Stage Camera Gains Fame

Practical stage photography, which started for James H. Miller, assistant professor of drama at the University, as a sort of necessary sideline, has assumed unusual importance in the little theater world.

Miller has just published his second article in the national Educational Theatre Journal on inexpensive photographic aids for small theaters. He will take a leading part at the Southwest Theater Conference at Baylor University, Oct. 20 and 21, in a discussion of the same subject.

While at Princeton University, where he graduated in 1938, Miller became interested in the technical side of staging shows. He worked with the Triangle Club and Princeton's Theatre Intime as a sort of relief from his heavy major field, reflective lyric poetry.

Once out with a degree, he began tours with stage shows in 1940 and 41 as an expert technician. On one of these tours he met Dorothy Davies, a Graft ballet specialist who soon became Mrs. James Miller. After the war, he was with the Goodman Theater. He came to the University of New Mexico in 1946.

Miller continues his trade as professor and specialist in stage photography. Mrs. Miller is often called back to the theater for many jobs requiring expert choreography. For Rodey theater productions, she has handled the dancing in Yellow Jacket, Dark of the Moon, L' Histoire du Soldat, and Peer Gynt. For Dean J. D. Tolby's opera, Little Jo, she was in full charge of all the choreography.

This makes full time work to two theater people who incidentally are rearing three young actors at home. Bunyan wrote "Pilgrim's Progress" while incarcerated in Bedford jail.

Young GOP's Pick Heads, Plan Picnic Newman Club to Initiate Tonight at Aquinas Hall

The Young Republicans elected pro-tem officers for the semester at a recent meeting. Also discussed were plans for a tea picnic after the November election.

Officers elected were George Bufbet, president; Judy Caldwell, first vice-president; Jo Shaner, secretary and Felipe Gonzales, treasurer. Representatives were also elected to the Student council and the County Central committee.

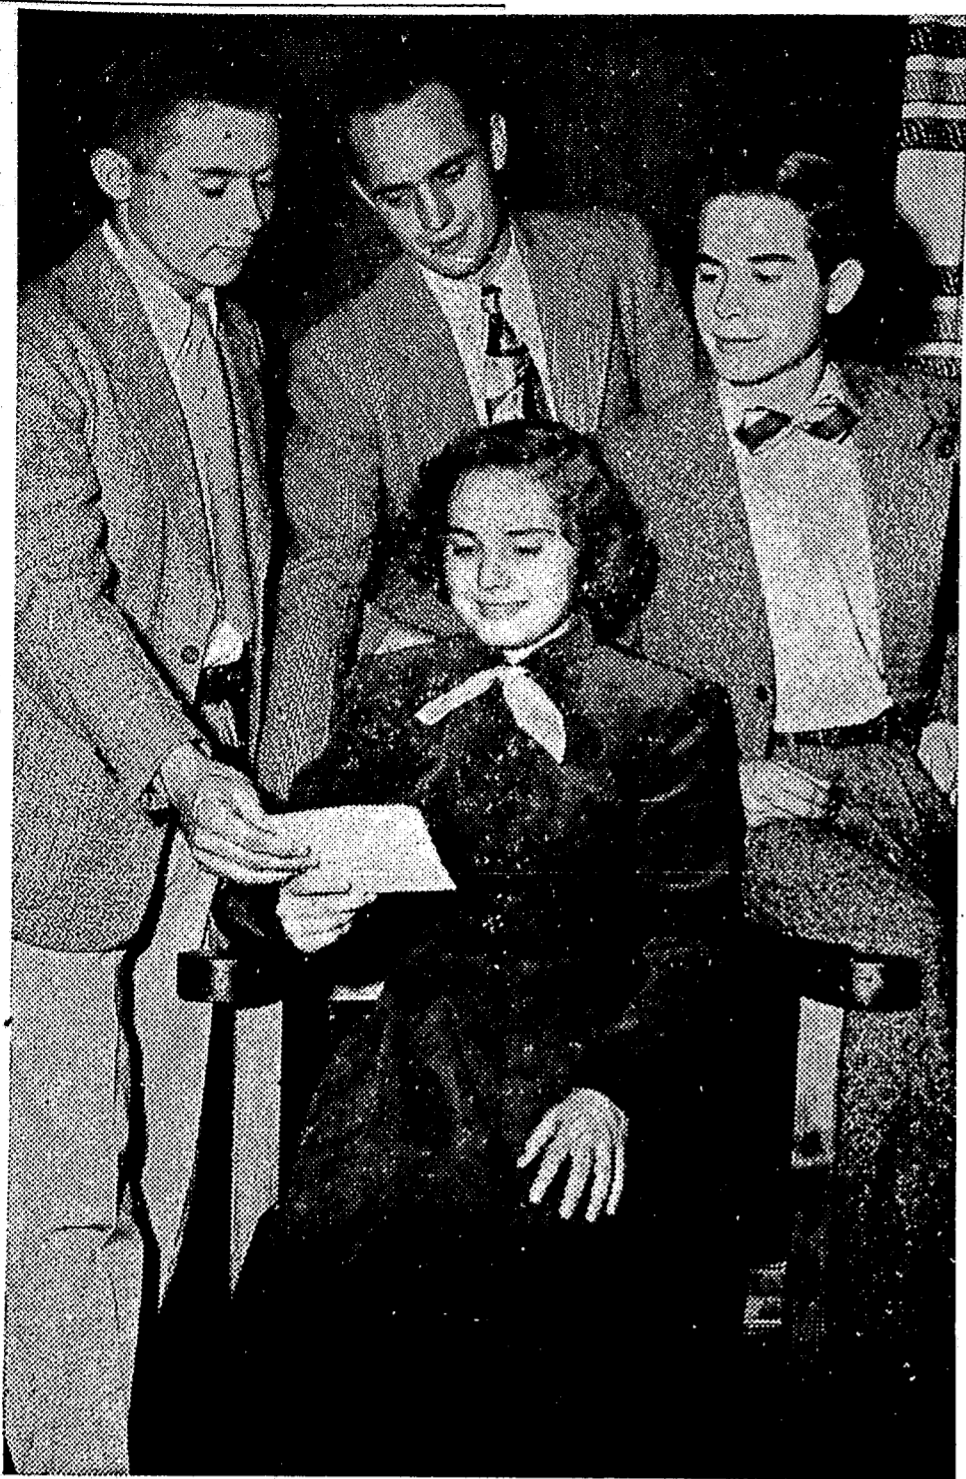

Initiated members are invited to attend. Unregistered students may register any time before the meeting.

Weight: 165
Height: 5' 9"
Hometown: Albuquerque and Gallup

The only three-year letterman on the 1950 UNM roster, Gene is one of the Cherry and Silver's front line defensive men. A heady ball player, Gene is an expert on pass defense. Probably the highlight of his offensive play came when he scored two TDs against Fresno State in 1947.

A senior in the College of Education, Gene is a 22-year-old former all-state gridder. He was a star at Gallup high, now calls Albuquerque home. His twin brother, Jack, was on the Lobo team last year.

Cotton-topped Gene is not related to Harold Brock, who also represents UNM on the gridiron.

Picking up the loose ends department, once again that thoughtful little devil, the statistic, has popped up and this time, in our favor. Considering the Lobos season thus far, it is good to find that the New Mexico boys are First in pass defence in the nation, according to the latest statistics of the National Collegiate Athletic bureau.

At the same time, they are 13th nationally in rushing offense. That leaves one thing, our rushing defense, to be seriously considered. We have no figures on that and have no desire to get hands on same.

Mrs. White's boy from Mesa, Ariz., named Wilfred and commonly known as Whizzer is leading the nation's colleges in individual rushing and his team, Arizona State (Tempe) is the leading college rushing team and third in total offense. Fair average, yet Hardin-Simmons rolled 'em 41-14 last week.

Glenn S. "Pop" Warner, the father of the double wing and Dud DeGroot's former coach, is due in this week-end. The all-seeing Warner will probably see many flaws. It will be interesting to find out what he thinks is the matter with our crew. It certainly isn't as bad as the record shows.

The Wolfpack came through the West Texas scrap without any serious injuries despite the fact that it was one of the roughest games of the year. This Saturday they face the improving Texas Western Miners on the Zimmerman turf. The Orediggers use the winged T formation and feature Harvey Gabriel and Bill Chesak in the backfield. Mike Brumbelow is the new head man at Western after a long tenure under Dutch Meyer at TCU.

The jail at York Village, Me., erected in 1653, is still standing and is open to the public as a historical museum.
