731 Ask Retention of Dr. Faruki

India Retains Leadership Of The Neutralist World

By DONALD BURGE
City Editor

Only three weeks after India invaded Portuguese Goa almost all controversy over official discussion of the invasion has died down; a United Nations veto killed any chance of United Nations acting to intervene or call for a cease fire. An Egyptian action which held off Portuguese warships in the Suez Canal killed any possibility of Portuguese retaliation or of stemming off the invasion. Two days after the invasion had been successfully ended, India's Prime Minister Nehru asked Nikita Khrushchev for his veto and told the world "Work for peace," in the year.

Ahead of Schedule

Meanwhile in Goa itself the Indian government was working ahead of schedule with the plan of settling Goa's massive economic problem. Telegraph and telephone systems were being brought in by the Indian government and the state bank of India had taken over the Banco Nacional Ultramarino to help speed things up. In addition to these a new budget was being drawn up by the Finance Minister of India and a trade embargo imposed by India was being lifted in order to lower the sky high food prices.

Many Parties

Political parties were beginning to spring up from almost nowhere. Within a week there were a scrambling for power, each with stories of Portuguese brutality that even the Indians didn't believe. But these tales weren't

Portugal May Quit UN Says Salazar

Portuguese dictator Antonio Salazar threatened yesterday to pull Portugal out of the United Nations because of the UN's failure to halt India's invasion of Goa, a Portuguese holding in the Indian subcontinent.

"I do not know whether we shall be the first country to abandon the United Nations, but we surely shall be among the first," the 72 year old Prime Minister told his National Assembly.

Refuse Collaboration

"Meanwhile, we shall refuse them our collaboration in everything that is not in our direct interest," he said.

As he spoke, a hunt was going on in Portugal for leaders of an unsuccessful New Year's day revolt against the Salazar government. The government blamed Communists for the uprising, claiming that Moscow radio announced the revolt attempt before Portugal did. U.S. observers said that the revolt appeared to be led by the Portuguese democratic opposition. The revolt was quickly squelched in fierce fighting in the city of Beja.

UN Is "Useless"

"The UN is not only useless but actively harmful," the dictator said in a bitter attack on the UN failure to protect Goa.

Salazar lauded the American government for its condemnation of the Indians' seizure of the Portuguese enclaves. He said Britain's failure to come to the aid of Portugal, its oldest ally, prevented the Portuguese from putting up a stronger fight.

Almost all of Salazar's speech dealt with Goa, and the remarks on the UN came in the context of his statements on Goa.

U.S. Criticizes

The Salazar regime has not had many kind words for the United States this year, since the U.S.

Smith Asks Students' Refusal

UNM students and campus organizations are being urged to "refuse to take part" in the promotion of certain radio and television shows which feature campus events and activities.

Director of Student Affairs Dr. Sherman E. Smith told the LOBO that a local radio station and a TV station had contacted at least one sorority asking their participation.

Dr. Smith issued the following clarifying statement:

"Within the past few weeks, one T-V and one Radio station requested administrative clearance on programs to be sponsored by a brewing company, in which students and student activities would be featured. These requests were turned down on the grounds that the production of the kinds of programs contemplated would require a great deal of student effort. Moreover, the University is generally reluctant to identify itself with any commercial sponsor.

"I have just learned that still another Radio station, without clearance, is promoting a program of this kind and calling on individual students and student organizations for participation. At least one organization has been told it has an obligation to cooperate. I want all students and organizations to know that they have no such obligation, and that they are encouraged to refuse to take part in this sort of promotion."

UNM Regents Meet, Consider Buildings

The UNM Regents will meet at 10 Friday morning for an all day session—mostly to consider construction of buildings.

For the meeting in the Council Room of the Union the Regents will look over final plans for the construction of buildings for the College of Education, first phase of the College of Fine Arts and completion of the Anthropology Museum.

A committee is due to meet with the Regents to discuss the auditorium for the College of Fine Arts. Also up for consideration will be an architect for the proposed School of Medicine.

In other matters the group will examine the summary current funds budget for 1962-63 and discuss a possible increase in fees for support of the student health services.

New faculty contracts, leaves of absence and sabbaticals will also be on the agenda.

Attention Seniors

Representatives of the Albuquerque Public Schools will be in the Placement Bureau Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 8 and 9 to interview all teacher applicants in both elementary and secondary education.

Tabulation Shows $2 Million Given To UNM In 1961

Outside money providing for all types of research programs, academic year, and summer institutes on the UNM campus amounted to almost $2,000,000 in 1961.

Harold L. Walker, UNM director of research and security coordinator, said that "other people's money" flowed into the campus to the tune of slightly more than $1,900,000.00 during the year now ending.

In the research field alone, Walker said that $1,397,178 was received in new contracts, grants and extension of old contracts—a jump of 57.6 per cent from the $886,459 received in 1960.

Money for research actually completed in 1961 to $961,601—up from the $873,835 received in 1960 by 10 per cent, Walker stated.

Increase Not Exceptional

This annual increase is not exceptional. The first year Walker headed up the research field at the University the total amount received for completed research projects was $402,267.

The second year jumped to $544,557, the third to $730,835 and the fourth (for 1961) to $961,601.

As 1961 came to an end, Walker said that 17 departments at the University are engaged in 78 major research projects, the largest of which is for $434,665 for the shock tube work at Kirtland. The second largest is for $107,635 in electrical engineering for submarine communications work.

The UNM departments, including the number in each, with outside sponsored projects are: anthropology 5, biology 5, Bureau of Business Research 2, chemical engineering 1.

Chemistry 12, economics 1, education 3, electrical engineering 12, geology 2, geology 2, history 1, mathematics 3, mechanical engineering 7, physics 12, psychology 7, and three under the director of research.

Besides adding to the prestige of the University in the field of scholarly research, the outside grants provide opportunities for graduate and undergraduate students to earn money and get the feel of delving into technical problems, Walker said.

Petition Is Directed To Regents

A petition signed by 731 UNM students and asking that Dr. Zhudi T. Faruki not be released from his duties as an instructor of philosophy has been directed to the Board of Regents.

Kenneth G. Peterson, one of the students who helped to circulate the petition, said that the petition was sent to Regents' chairman Dr. L. H. Wilkinson on December 22, but that no reply had been received as yet.

Receives President's Reply

Peterson said that he had received a reply to the letter which he addressed to UNM President Tom L. Popejoy. He said that Popejoy had explained that Dr. Faruki had been hired on a temporary basis, and that his current contract was scheduled to expire at the end of the current academic year.

Popejoy had earlier said he would rely upon the decision of the head of the Philosophy Department and the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences on whether or not to retain Dr. Faruki.

Decline Comment

Neither Philosophy Department Chairman Dr. H. G. Alexander nor Acting Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences Dr. Hoyt Trowbridge had seen copies of the petition when contacted Wednesday night. Both reserved comment until they had seen the text of the petition.

The move to save Faruki's job was started shortly before the Christmas recess when it was rumored that his contract would not be renewed when it expired in June. It was then that the petition was drawn up and Peterson sent his letter to President Popejoy.

Teaching Termed 'Inspiring'

In his letter Peterson said, "As a student, I am amazed that the University would decide to discontinue the services of a teacher so inspiring and creative."

In his reply, Popejoy pointed out that most faculty members are hired by the University on a probationary status, and may serve up to a maximum of six years before

Foreign Student:

Says Brazilian Students More Mature Than Here

By MIKE MCGARRITY

Note: Mike McGarrity is doing a series of interviews with foreign students for the LOBO.)

Fiorani Milanez is a Brazilian student studying electrical engineering at UNM. Before he came to this country Santo worked on his father's farm in Sao Paulo, Brazil. As a member of the community Santo has the advantage of a new outlook that came from his environment and life. I asked Santo for some comparisons of the students of Brazil and the United States; "Which group would you consider most mature?"

"The students of Brazil are more mature than their American counterparts. In the Brazilian universities, social activities are more restricted but still important. The students spend more of their time in studies. As a matter of fact, it would seem that the Brazilian students are more interested in academic pursuits than social activities.

"You find that a Brazilian student is very aware of his good fortune and is proud to be a member of a university. The College of Medicine, at the University of Sao Paulo has 1500 applications for eighty vacancies yearly. It is very difficult for the average student in Brazil to gain admittance. I do believe that Americans don't realize how lucky they are to be able to attend college so freely."

Q. What are the general opinions of Brazilian students toward

More Than 700,000 Visit UNM During 1961

UNM, the state's largest institution of higher learning, drew almost three-quarters of a million people to the campus during 1961—not including students and faculty members.

A detailed tabulation shows that local, state, southwest and national institutes, workshops, clinics and conventions attracted slightly more than 700,000 people.

Half Attend Union

Almost half of the total attended 202 conferences in the New Mexico Union where 295,554 people sat through meetings for one or more days during 1961.

Other than the athletic events in the University Stadium, the Union Ballroom and Johnson Gymnasium accommodated the visiting groups with the largest numbers.

Some 25,000 people attended high school commencements in Johnson Gymnasium. The 10,000 people who attended the New Mexico Education Association's annual convention were pretty well scattered over all campus buildings.

Lectures Draw Crowds

The six lectures under the star drew about 5,000 people during the UNM summer session. In presenting four plays during the year the University Theatre had a total attendance of about 2,500.

Other big drawing cards included: 1500 for open houses of Engineering and Pharmacy, 2,000 for the Cleveland Playhouse, 1,500 for the meetings of the Gem and Mineral Club.

'Game of Love' Show Saturday

French film, "The Game of Love" will be presented by the Film Society Saturday evening in the Union theater.

The adaptation of Colette's famous novel of adolescence will be shown at 7 and 9:15 p.m. Admission at the door, is fifty cents. The program has been described in the New York Times as "immaculate and real, made from one of the best-liked novels of the very wise, candid Colette, is handled with deep and intense absorption."

The film won the Grand Prix du Grand Film Festival in 1954, and the Diploma of Merit at the Edinburgh Film Festival.

Two films remaining on the 62 Series are "Bicycle Thief," Italy, which will be shown on January 13 and "El (This Strange One)" from Mexico, scheduled for Jan. 20.

President Directs Many Functions

(fifth of a series)

By JOHN MORRIS

At some universities and colleges, the faculty has a considerable role in the area of public and alumni relations, intercollegiate athletics, and similar areas. At UNM, these functions are administered by the President; although through the use of the Administrative Committee, President Popejoy has available to him faculty members and others of his choice, to advise him on any problem to which he desires a recommendation reflecting opinions of both faculty and administrative departments.

Limitations on faculty self-governance, which tend to reduce faculty control and influence over some areas reserved by tradition, custom, or even faculty constitution, are discussed by Corson, as follows:

- 1) Organizational structure of the faculty itself, which may dissipate power among committees, and representation difficult, while at the same time demanding a considerable portion of the faculty member's non-platform time.

- 2) Limitation of the vote to tenure-holders, and assistant professors or higher-ranking members. Part-time faculty members, those not yet granted tenure or eligible for it, and instructors are thus not eligible to vote, although they may, in some cases, serve

Smith Work Included In Current Art Show

Sam Smith, UNM art department faculty member, will be represented in the first exhibit of 1962 planned by the Fine Arts Gallery.

Opening Jan 5, the show represents the Knoerzer Art Foundation collection of 35 paintings and water colors by various American and European artists. They were brought together by the California Foundation, located at Millbrae, Calif., to encourage persons, particularly college students in the study of art. It will remain on view through Jan. 24.

Visiting hours are noon until 1:00 and from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. through Fridays. Visitors are also on faculty committees.

The final limitation on the exercise of faculty power is, 3), failure of faculty members themselves to participate in self-governance, and policy influence, by lack of interest, attendance at meetings, or abstention from voting.

Weakening of the faculty as a body, in areas where exercise of its power is relatively secure and unchallenged, tends to reduce effective faculty influence in those areas, and also attenuates any influence in corollary areas of university policy and administration to which the faculty might reasonably lay claim.

welcome from 10:00 a.m. to noon Saturdays.
Other shows running in the gallery include weaving by Moran and photography by Del Castillo, Feb. 15-20; Haas paintings, March 6-11; Uate shows, April 28-May 3; the Annual Student Art Sale, May 28-June 14.

Opera Workshop Slates 'Falstaff' for Production

Staff' by Verdi will be the production by the UNM Workshop under sponsorship of the College of Fine Arts. Snow, professor of music and a noted singer, will direct the workshop's production of the 12th consecutive year. There will be three performances on Jan. 19, 20 and 21 in the ballroom of the Union. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

Premiered at La Scala in 1893, at La Scala, Milan, "Falstaff" has been a long favorite of opera-goers both here and in this country. The setting is Windsor in England during the reign of Henry IV. It is considered more English in heart than any English opera. The re-creation of Shakespeare's Falstaff.

Frederick Will Conduct. Frederick, director of the Symphony, is serving as the director for the opera. Elizabeth Waters handling choreography. Other include Arthur D. Barrows, Sir John Falstaff. In last production, "Gianni Schicchi" and "The Impresario," Barrows leading roles. Other graduate student, Judith, who was the national winner of the National Federation of Clubs Auditions, will sing the role of Mrs. Alice Ford.

Cast Listed: Chavez will appear as husband of Alice; George as Fenton; Bruce Bullock, actor Caju; Bruce Griffith as Philip; Richard Strommen,

Library Receives Mexican Prints

Twenty-two black and white prints by students at the Ocaranza Art School in Mexico have been presented to the library.

Conna Ritter, UNM technical services librarian, said that the prints will be of great interest to students of contemporary American culture. The prints, bound into book form, were reproduced in 150 red editions of which two, 108, were given to UNM. The purpose is to further an exchange of ideas and to establish contacts between New Mexico and the art school, Ritter contacts for obtaining prints for UNM were made by Kurtman, Albuquerque currently serving with the printing plant. He became acquainted with the school, its staff and its founder, Professor Jose Maria Paredes during a three-month painting trip to Mexico.

The school, a private art institution, enrolls students from 16-years of age, who are required to reproduce Mexican landscape. Their prints are subject matter objects of daily lives: the oxen, a horse, the cooking pot, school, a festival pinata and address. The school's proximity to the volcano is apparent in an engraving by Manuel Tovar. The school's introduction to the United States was written by Elasto Cortes, director of fine arts at the Ocaranza Art School.

Plans Dance Student Body

225 Foreigners Visit

The most unique group to visit the campus was the 225 foreign visitors from almost as many different nations. Under the guidance of Miss Wilma Loy Shelton, they visited the University, Albuquerque, Santa Fe, Taos and various Indian villages.

No attempt has been made to place a dollar value for the presence of 8,000 students, 400 faculty members and another 600 employees—plus the three-quarter million visitors.

It has been variously estimated that all these factors might bring in about $50,000,000 into the city's coffers.
