

New Mexico Quarterly

Volume 33 | Issue 4

Article 16

1963

Ethics: A Short Course

C. W. Schuler

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalrepository.unm.edu/nmq>

Recommended Citation

Schuler, C. W.. "Ethics: A Short Course." New Mexico Quarterly 33, 4 (1963). <https://digitalrepository.unm.edu/nmq/vol33/iss4/16>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by the University of New Mexico Press at UNM Digital Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in New Mexico Quarterly by an authorized editor of UNM Digital Repository. For more information, please contact disc@unm.edu.

G. W. SCHULER

ETHICS: A SHORT COURSE

(McGuffey Revised)

The shark
With crescent fin
Has no thought of sin.

The hawk
His airborne twin
Has no thought of sin.

The mackerel
And the hare are dumb
And must to greater gods succumb.

The martyred saint
Expires with grace
He dies to save the human race.

The tyrant
Filled with hate and lust
Like saint and shark returns to dust.

The lesson,
Which we all must share:
Sans hawk, sans shark, sans saint, sans hare.