

1966

At the Humming Rails

Philip Legler

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalrepository.unm.edu/nmq>

Recommended Citation

Legler, Philip. "At the Humming Rails." New Mexico Quarterly 36, 3 (1966). <https://digitalrepository.unm.edu/nmq/vol36/iss3/14>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by the University of New Mexico Press at UNM Digital Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in New Mexico Quarterly by an authorized editor of UNM Digital Repository. For more information, please contact disc@unm.edu.

PHILIP LEGLER

AT THE HUMMING RAILS

—for Shelby

It runs round the nearest curve
in my mind, where the grass bends back and the crossing gates blink, lifting.

Oh where are the old train tracks?
the diminishing poles of childhood?
our ears at the humming rails.