WMH Valued at $7,500,000:
Cree Sandefur

Estimated value of the White Memorial Hospital complex is approximately $7,500,000, according to Cree Sandefur, Southern California Conference president. In a release to the newspapers this week, Elder Sandefur said, "It is felt that this training affiliation will add strength to the excellence of patient care at the White Memorial Hospital and to the educational opportunities through Loma Linda University."

He added that "the White Memorial Hospital will continue its history of excellent medical care."

The church president stated that the Clinic, "a major health care facility in Los Angeles," will receive major improvements and a reorganization for better service under the new administration....We consider this clinic one of the great opportunities for service to the community."

Elder Sandefur emphasized that "as part of Loma Linda University, the White Memorial Hospital has been a part of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. The transfer involves assigning operation of the hospital and its clinics to another agency of the same church organization and will not in any way disrupt the hospital's health services to the public."

The Conference operates medical facilities at Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, Azusa Valley Sanitarium and Ventura Estates, a home for senior citizens. A new hospital to be operated by the church unit will be constructed soon in Simi Valley, California.

Board of Councillors To Sponsor Major LLU Campus Project?

WASHINGTON, DC -- The University Board of Councillors agreed in principle to undertake to sponsor a major project on the Loma Linda campus at their third annual meeting in Washington, DC. According to the chairman of the board, Jerry L. Pettis, some thought has been given to the construction of an auditorium-gymnasium.

Such a complex, the councillor chairman pointed out, could be exceedingly valuable for recreational purposes, for physical education or for regional meetings. He visualized a building that would seat five or six thousand people.

The Councillors decried the fact that "there is no place on the Loma Linda campus where we can have cultural events for example. We would have to put up tents or go somewhere else. So the Councillors liked the idea of undertaking this project."

Heubach Speaks At Mental Health Meeting in Ohio

Paul Heubach, professor of applied theology at Loma Linda University, attended meetings of the Institute on Mental Health for Seventh-day Adventist Ministers at Harding Hospital, Worthington, Ohio. The meetings were October 21 to 23.

SCOPE'S Special

The University SCOPE will be available at the special introductory rate of $1 only until November 8, 1963, according to the managing editor. After that date the regular price of $3 per year will buy a year's subscription of the weekly Loma Linda University newspaper.

Elder FD Nichol Challenges Students to New Evaluation

University students were challenged to a more realistic evaluation of their role in life by the editor of the Church's official organ in last week's convocation. The speaker, Francis D. Nichol of Review and Herald, emphasized the responsibility which the students of this institution have to their church and to humanity.

"If you are going to help justify the enormous expenditure to be made here" said the executive editor, "you should stand up exultantly in enthusiasm for the basic concepts that brought this school into existence."

Elder Nichol, who attended school here in a 12x17 foot tent in 1905, made his theme the University's justification for existence:

"If we seek only to educate a group of brilliant young scientists," he said. "I wouldn't vote additional millions for the school, because we already have schools that will do that. Ellen White's appeal was for something beyond that."

"This school is a monument to certain beliefs and convictions, certain assumptions with regard to man, for man is the object of all our attention."

The speaker outlined the three basic assumptions upon which the University is built:

The belief that life is more than meat and the body than rainment, that man is more than atoms and protoplasm, and that his objectives should be

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The University trustees at the General Conference Fall Council took action on the future of White Memorial Hospital and Clinic in meetings that ended Monday. New owner of the hospital at the Los Angeles campus will be the Southern California Conference of Seventh-day Adventists.

The transfer from Loma Linda University to Conference ownership will take full effect on January 1, 1964. At that time the Conference, according to the Fall Council decision, will have elected a local board.

Meanwhile an interim committee will direct operation of the hospital and clinic, according to Dr. Godfrey T. Anderson, president of the University which has owned and operated the hospital since its establishment in 1918.

Interim Board: 'White', Glendale, Conference, LLU

The interim committee will consist of five members representing the University and the Conference. They are Alvin G. Munson, conference secretary, and Erwin Remboldt, Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital administrator, for the Conference; President Anderson and Robert L. Cone, vice president for business affairs, for the University; and Robert G. Manuel, White Memorial Hospital and Clinic assistant administrator.

Hospital, University To be Affiliated

The trustee action calls for a plan of affiliation between the hospital and the University. The affiliation agreement as detailed at the Council states:

1. The University recognizes the value to the Church, to the profession of medicine and to the White Memorial Hospital of the residencies as graduate training programs.

2. The University recognizes the advantages to the White Memorial Hospital and to itself of an affiliation covering the residency program.

3. The University broadly defines affiliation as assistance to the Hospital with such educational programs as the two institutions may agree should be operated at the "White," and as recognition by the University of the programs which meet commonly accepted academic and professional standards.

On Common Goals

"How can the University afford to give away its Los Angeles campus?"

This was the response of one faculty member on hearing of the Fall Council action transferring by means of a grant deed the White Memorial Hospital to the Southern California Conference.

The question deserves a thoughtful answer based on the realization that the Southern California Conference is committed to give something just as important as buildings and equipment, i.e. guidance and support.

It may, therefore, be said that Loma Linda University and members of the Southern California Conference are both investing in an effort designed to provide Christian health services to the people of Los Angeles. And, as the Fall Council agreement is observed, this joint effort will facilitate and promote a strong program continuing educational and training activities at the White.

The action in Washington should lead to a re-discovery of the fact that the people of the General, Union and local conferences are united in the pursuit of common goals.

The matter of ownership or management is not so important as the underlying reasons for operating an institution, and in this respect we have nothing to fear---the Southern California Conference has demonstrated its administrative ability in the development and management of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital. Its leaders are dedicated to the same ideals that motivate the University.

The University gladly welcomes the people of the Southern California Conference as they join in the carrying out of a vital and exciting mission. Guided by mutually acceptable affiliation agreements, they will continue to promote the best interests of the White Memorial Hospital.

Why a Loma Linda Park?

The new master plan for the University's Loma Linda campus shows that landscaping has been given due consideration. The plan gives us the assurance that the beauty of this campus will be maintained and even improved upon -- although the orange groves must go for new educational facilities.

At this point the master plan does not include a park. The University, however, has given thought to the need of a community park, as has the Loma Linda Chamber of Commerce.

Last week the Chamber addressed a letter to the chairman of the San Bernardino County Service Area, Judge Van E. Unger, urging that the subject of a park for Loma Linda be placed on the agenda for an early meeting. We wish to commend the Chamber for this action.

Now a number of University officials have indicated interest in making land available for a park project. We feel that this is a step in the right direction.

Parks have been called "city lungs." It is a fitting term not only because a park excludes dust and asphalt and other marks of an all-subduing civilization. The community park also gives people an opportunity to breathe in a natural environment.

It is significant, too, that students of community development have observed that industry, business and housing are generally drawn by such facilities as parks, libraries, schools and other cultural components.

A park not only provides an atmosphere of beauty for the pleasure and recreation of those who live near it; in the final analysis it is a facility through which a community expresses hospitality to its visitors as well as its own people.

We cannot hope to invite to our homes the thousands of guests that drop by our churches, the University or the local business establishments. Neither can a one-person team such as that of Mrs. Gerald A. Mitchell ever hope to entertain en masse this community and its visitors. (Mrs. Mitchell has been the community hostess for some time and

Increase of Gifts to LLU

The estate planning program of Loma Linda University is becoming increasingly popular with alumni and other friends who take seriously the stewardship of their estates. It is obviously a source of great satisfaction to these donors to place their holdings in this institution which represents such an important world-wide medical and missionary work.

Cash funds or their equivalent in property securities and other assets transferred by donors to the University during the month of September represent a cash value of $378,847. This is the largest amount received by the University from this source in any single month in its history.

It is interesting to note in looking back over the estate gifts of the last year and a half that they vary in size from $1000 to $380,000. It is also significant that $990,567 in cash funds have been given to date to Loma Linda University by supporters who are not members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

The basic plans used by the University in writing agreements with these friends of the University are (1) the trust agreement, (2) the annuity and (3) the life income agreement.

In addition to the satisfaction of supporting the University, many of these people have, by taking advantage of the estate planning service, made provision for their own family security and greatly improved their tax situation.

It should be gratifying to the University family to know that its development and corporation offices have been working overtime these past weeks in processing the scores of estates which are being placed with this institution.

is to be commended for the fine work she has been doing.)

We like our visitors to feel at home here, to find a table in a nice little park where they may have potluck suppers with us or where they may find a slide for the children or a friendly bench. . . .

The next few steps must be to settle on a place, secure adequate funds, ask the county to aid in developing the park and then do our best to maintain it. Such a park would be a true setting for good community relations.

GOOD ADVICE, DR!

I sure do want to be on the mailing list of "our" family newspaper.

How about having a weekly feature, entitled something like "This We believe" -- then a short statement relative to one of the statements made by EGW as to the destiny of Loma Linda?

Example: "There is a very precious work to be done in connection with the interests of the sanitarium and school at Loma Linda, and this will be done when all work to that end." -- Medical Ministry, page 59.

My prayers and best wishes are with you.

A COMPARISON

As one of the older graduates of Loma Linda University, I wish to tell you that I have now received four copies of SCOPE. My wife and I have read them all from cover to cover and we wish to express our appreciation of everything about the little paper.

We were embarrassed on reading Nancy's criticism of your first issue. Our first impression was the similarity in format, printing and paper to the American Medical Association News (AMA NEWS) which we also read from cover to cover. It is a wonderful idea both for The AMA NEWS and the University SCOPE ... You are to be highly commended.

REGISTERS ON LEAVE IN SWEDEN

In a letter to a University SCOPE staff member, the wife of Dr. U. D. Register, a University faculty member presently on leave in Sweden, writes:

We are settled in Sweden probably until June and we have just heard about the newsy publication, the University SCOPE. Would it be possible to have this sent to us so we can keep up with the events there?

Regy is enjoying his research work at the Kanolinska Institute very much. It is a large hospital (3500 beds) and medical school. He has been given a lovely office and lab all to himself.

The Wasco Story Shows Impact Of LLU Alumni on Community

A Special Report
By Oliver Jacques

Five Loma Linda University alumni have made a remarkable contribution to progress and the general welfare in Wasco, California, where I represented the University and its work last weekend. This unpretentious farming center twenty miles northeast of Bakersfield has benefited from our alumni in a number of ways.

It began when Drs. Glen Hallock, SM'44, and Lynn E. Gair, SM'45, started practice there. These men put the emphasis on Christian service and are, as a result, widely respected throughout the area.

Dr. Hallock, busy as he is, has more friends even than patients. Dr. Gair built and now operates the community's only hospital, a modern, well-located twenty-four bed plant of which the people of Wasco are justly proud.

The two physicians were followed by Drs. Roland Walters, SD'57, and William Seibly, SD'59, both of whom have set high standards of dentistry in Wasco. These men are active in community affairs and, like their physician friends, are a credit to their University.

Another LLU alumnus, Radiologic Technician Charles Howard, operates a fine, modern x-ray and medical laboratory. But the impact of these men on their local church is the part of their story that impressed me most.

Eight years ago members of the congregation met with the Conference president to disband the struggling company. Wasco is but a few miles from Shafter where there is a larger congregation, and it didn't seem worth the effort to continue at Wasco.

At the darkest moment, Dr. Gair stood and said, "We have been instructed to have a light in every city and town. The light here must not go out. This is not the end, but the beginning."

The weary members rallied. Selling the small cottage property in which they were meeting, they purchased a suitable lot on the new side of town and began building up funds for a new church home.

For several years they were pilgrims, meeting first in the church owned by the Church of Latter-day Saints, then in the Assembly of God Church and finally, in the Wasco Congregational Church. Their membership grew with each move.

At last they were ready to begin construction. The Loma Linda alumni worked with the other members, giving money, labor and devotion. Three years ago the "impossible" had happened and a beautiful, commodious church building was dedicated.

The worship service was beautiful and reverently inspiring, but the atmosphere of fellowship and unity has left an unforgettable mark on me.

Pastor Robert Odell looks forward to days of growth and progress. He may well do so. A good foundation has been laid, and LLU's quiet, unassuming but very earnest alumni are a vital part of it.

But there's more to this account of faithful service and continuing devotion. Drs. Walters and Seibly also work for their alma mater, each giving many hours through their alumni association.

Dr. Walters has served as president of his alumni association, as founding editor of THE DENTIST and a charter member of the Century Club.

Dr. Seibly is first vice-president of the alumni association and general chairman of the annual student-alumni dental convention.

What is more, Dr. Walters is a member of the University's

Dental Student Wins National Third Prize

A student in the Loma Linda University School of Dentistry, Donald D. Jeffries, was selected as one of the six best dental student clinicians in the nation by the American Dental Association on October 16 in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

Loma Linda also had a winner last year; John DeVincento.

Jeffries won third place in the "Clinical Application and Technics" category with his presentation of "Use of a Perfusion Chamber in Studies of Etiology of Periodontal Disease."

The student clinicians program, which has been supported for the past five years by a financial grant from The Dentists' Supply Company, is sponsored by the ADA Council on Scientific Session. It is designed to demonstrate the high level of accomplishment and the skill and competence of American dental students.

OT Students Enjoy Picnic, Painting

The University occupational therapy classes had their fall picnic last week. On October 13 the students were joined by faculty members for a day of hikes, mountain climbing, swimming and badminton.

Sunburned faces and tired feet attested to the fact that the occupational therapy students and faculty members had enjoyed the many activities.

The picnic was set for last week so that the regular picnic day, October 17, could be spent in painting and redecorating the building of the Occupational Therapy Curriculum, reports a class spokesman.

Medical Educator of International Fame Visits University Campuses

An internationally-renowned medical educator visited School of Medicine classrooms on both campuses Wednesday participating in clinical and curricular discussions with faculty and students.

George W. Thorn, MD., is physician-in-chief of Boston's Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. He is Hersey professor of the theory and practice of physics, one of Harvard Medical School's oldest and most distinguished chairs.

Doctor Thorn is known throughout the world for his research in endocrinology and metabolism and for his contribution to medical education. He has authored numerous papers and textbooks.

As chairman of a committee studying the medical curriculum at Harvard, he has become deeply involved in emerging trends in medical education. He shared his ideas with School of Medicine faculty here, reporting on developments in this field.

His day with University teachers and students began at Los Angeles County General Hospital, where he joined the School of Medicine curriculum study committee and other faculty members in a discussion of curricular objectives.

Doctor Thorn then attended a clinical session involving junior medical students and house staff of the Los Angeles County General Hospital. A case was presented and discussed.

A noon case study on adrenal hypercorticism involving senior students and house staff members at the Riverside County Hospital was followed by discussion on the Loma Linda campus with an ad hoc committee for the development of a faculty practice plan.

Doctor Thorn says that patient care should keep pace with research and that university hospitals have an important role in achieving this goal by relating patient care to teaching and research programs.

As physician-in-chief of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Doctor Thorn has fostered the work of medical scientists within the department of medicine, so that the fruits of research can be made more quickly available to the sick. He favors the placing of such research units as biophysics or biomathematics within the framework of a department of medicine.

Doctor Thorn revealed interest and enthusiasm in discussing plans for School of Medicine consolidation. He was invited to Loma Linda by the School of Medicine Assistant Dean John E. Peterson, MD.

LLU Cafeteria Makes Changes After Survey

A recent menu preference survey at the Loma Linda University cafeteria resulted in some excellent suggestions and ideas, says Mrs. Jim Bowen, University food service dietitian. The purpose of the survey was to determine the most popular items served and get new menu ideas.

Some suggestions have been acted upon already: The express line is open on Friday from 11:50 a.m. to 12:20 p.m. only. Fresh fruit in season is now available for every meal. Prices for menu items are posted. The menu has more variety and new ideas. More popular items appear on the menu more often. An attempt is being made to increase the servers' efficiency.

"We were gratified by the large number of compliments received," says Mrs. Bowen, "and will do our best to continue improving service and menus."

Wenigers Have Alaska Guest

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weniger had as a guest recently the Honorable James Parsons, member of the Alaska House of Representatives. Also a recent visitor was Aletha Fletcher, chief librarian at Lompoc High School, Lompoc, California.

1963's Medical Students Write 18 Million Drug Orders during School Year

CHICAGO—Medical students in the class of 1963 wrote more than 18,000,000 drug orders, totalling an estimated $27,600,000 in manufacturers' sales during the 1962-63 school year, according to a survey by the Student American Medical Association.

Although the medical student does not prescribe drugs, he writes orders during his clinical clerkship training in the last two years of medical school.

In addition, the survey reveals that the majority of seniors orders drugs by trade rather than generic names. Only three of the 115 respondents indicate that they never use trade names. Four say they always use trade names and 108 that they sometimes use trade name.

In the "sometimes" group, 66 of the 108 indicate that they order by trade name 50 percent or more of the time.

LLU's Dr. Maxwell To Give Paper on Daniel

Dr. A. Graham Maxwell, director of the Division of Religion at Loma Linda University, has been appointed by the General Conference to a committee to study problems in the book of Daniel. He presently is meeting with the committee at Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan, and will present a paper, "The Interpretation of Daniel 8:14."

He will be the speaker for the Fall Week of Prayer to be October 27 to November 2 at Union College, Lincoln, Nebraska.

Recently, Dr. Maxwell attended a meeting of the ministerial training advisory committee, also at Andrews University. The committee met to work out a new program leading to the bachelor of divinity degree and to study the training of academy and college Bible teachers.

At a recent meeting of the Arizona Conference Medical-Ministerial Fellowship, Prescott, Arizona, Dr. Maxwell delivered seven addresses.

Eight Take Up Scuba Diving

Scuba classes began at the University swimming pool this week with eight students signing up for diving instruction that will take them to Catalina Island for a graduation in the briny deep.

Mac McGirr, pool manager, said that the class is still open for those who have not been reached as yet. They may register for next Thursday night at the pool. University and Academy students are invited, said McGirr.

He is teaching the class and will be showing the would-be Scuba divers how to make their own diving suits. He is alleged to have made his own for only $15.

Welfare Clinic Continues

A record-breaking 107 patients visited the School of Dentistry welfare clinic during the second Sunday of the school year. They were treated by 111 students and assisted by nine alumni -- who accomplished more work than at any previous clinic, George Foust, welfare clinic coordinator told SCOPE.

Patient education is one of the important aspects of the clinic, said Mr. Foust. All new patients are shown a film, "Diet Did It," which explains the importance of diet, especially the influence a high diet in sugar has on tooth decay. Tooth brushes are given to all patients. The clinic also demonstrates how to use the brushes.

The welfare clinic program, which started six years ago, is a student body organization assisted by alumni and working with the San Bernardino welfare department as well as the School of Dentistry.

The clinic is coordinated by Dr. Lloyd Baum.

Faculty Member Has Bible Series

A Loma Linda University faculty member has started a Bible lecture series. He is F. Stanley Kannenberg, assistant instructor in the Division of Public Health. Elder Kannenberg will give eight lectures each Friday and Sunday at 7:15 p.m. until November 17.

His meetings are in the KP Hall, 27254 Main Street, Highland. Topics will be "The Return of Jesus," "The Future Unrolled for 1000 Years," "Is Heaven a Real Place?" "Faith in Eden," "What is Jesus Doing Now?" "The Time of the Judgment," "Beyond the Grave" and "Hell -- Where is it? What is it?"

Elder Kannenberg says that those who attend eight lectures will receive a gift Bible. The meetings will feature the Loma Linda Union Academy Girls Sextette.

University Printing Service Lauded For Its United Fund

Personnel in the University Printing Service were lauded today by Jerry Pettis, general chairman for the University's annual United Fund appeal. According to Mr. Pettis, the Printing Service reports 100 percent participation with an average per capita gift of $15.60. "This is a good and fair record of giving," said Mr. Pettis. "If all other services did as well, we would double our goal."

The Los Angeles campaign chairman, Douglas Buckner, reports steady progress towards the campus goal of $5000 with most teams reaching their goals. "Participation by professional personnel is getting underway," said Buckner.

Kathleen Ekkens, team coordinator on the Loma Linda campus, reports a high level of giving from many teams, "although a few teams are turning in rather small cash contributions," she said.

The Loma Linda chairman, Oliver Jacques, stressed the importance of giving through the payroll deduction plan. "This is the only way that most of us can really give our fair share," said Mr. Jacques. In presentations to various departments, he told the story of the good Samaritan. "While we like to identify ourselves with the good Samaritan," he said, "there is danger we resemble most those who saw the need but passed by. Health, welfare and social needs around Loma Linda are very real. We cannot solve them by closing our eyes or by resorting to token giving," he concluded.

First Volume Published of Dr. Horn's Seminary Studies

Volume one of the new Andrews University SEMINARY STUDIES is now available, according to Dr. A. Graham Maxwell, director of the Division of Religion, Loma Linda University. Dr. Maxwell is one of seven editorial consultants for the publication.

Editor is Dr. Siegfried Horn, professor of archeology and history of antiquity at Andrews University. He is now in this area teaching courses in Old Testament as a part of the program offered by the West Coast Extension Schools of Andrews University Theological Seminary.

The journal has been produced to meet the need for a suitable outlet for scholarly articles and papers. Among the 16 articles in the present issue are several dealing with the early observances of Sabbath and Sunday and one discussing the Gospel of John and the institution of the Lord's Supper.

Suitable contributions of a scholarly nature are invited from "alumni and scholars around the world regardless of color or creed."

TENSE MOMENTS PASS SWIFTLY in the White Memorial Hospital operating room where every second is weighted against those surrounding the table. And in the waiting room anxious relatives pace the floor, knowing that all depends upon the skilled hands and quick thinking of the people behind the masks. Established in 1918, the hospital has 308 beds and 54 bassinets. Admissions in a year are some 12,000. Average outpatient visits are more than 131,000 in the half hundred clinics within the Clinic.

9. A description of the affiliation of the White Memorial Hospital with the University shall appear in the official publications of both institutions.

Operation of Schools At 'White Memorial'

The Trustees also agreed that the Loma Linda University School of Nursing, the School of Nutrition and Dietetics, the curriculum of Radiologic Technology and the School of Medical Technology continue to use the facilities of the White Memorial Hospital. The clinical training program for the School of Medicine seniors will continue at the "White" until phased out.

"It is understood," the Trustees stated, "that insofar as practicable, costs of school operations and supervision of the academic programs and of students and faculty be the responsibility of the University."

The Trustees stated that detailed contracts for a division of specific responsibilities will be drawn up by appropriate joint committees and presented to the respective boards for approval.

Buildings Needed for Teaching Program

The Trustees voted that all the school departments and offices be consolidated in one or two buildings such as the Comstock building or similar buildings near the White Memorial Hospital.

According to Trustee action, teaching and hospital expenses on the Los Angeles campus will be separated.

It is understood that if the University uses any buildings on the six and a half block area, a mutually agreeable rental rate will be worked out between the University and the Hospital.

Operation of Clinic To be Reorganized

In order to give the new hospital administration time to reorganize the clinic on the basis of handling the patient load with residents and interns, the Trustees took the following action:

January 1, 1964, is the date for phasing out of work in the clinic for all departments with exception of pediatrics and obstetrics. This pertains to the use of undergraduate students in the clinic with the understanding that minor adjustments in this schedule can be made by the respective administrations.

THE WHITE MEMORIAL HOSPITAL heart team has made a name for the hospital, not only at the Los Angeles campus but throughout the world. The recent tour of Pakistan and other Asiatic countries during which the heart team performed more than fifty heart operations brought international recognition to the hospital as well as the team. The photo shows one of the many steps in a heart operation: In the diagnostic procedure, a staff member prepares the patient for heart catheterization.

Professional-medical Building on Option

It was agreed that the new board be given the option of purchasing the professional-medical building from the Loma Linda Foundation at a negotiated price in order to control the future relationship of the tenants to the hospital.

Library Books to be Transferred to LL

The Trustees observed that the majority of the library books on the Los Angeles campus are the property of the School of Medicine and therefore must be transferred with the School of Medicine.

It was voted that duplicate books, of which there are a number, should be left at the White Memorial library for the interns and residents training program.

It was also agreed that the University leave such other books as are necessary for the nurse's training and the dietitians training program as sponsored by the University as long as schools continue on the Los Angeles campus.

In other actions the Trustees decided that

- * the White Memorial Hospital administration work out a rental basis for the alumni office quarters.

- * the University Placement Service move to Loma Linda as soon as this can be worked out and that a rental arrangement be worked out with the respective organizations for the use of these present quarters until the move is finalized.

- * the Women's Residence be utilized by the University for its nursing and dietetic students and that a satisfactory rental agreement be worked out by the advisory board covering the rental of buildings etc. during the time of use.

- * the hospital and research equipment that is being used primarily for patient care will remain with the hospital. All other research equipment will be moved at the option of Loma Linda University.

- * the animal research laboratory located in the basement of the hospital will be classified as a research project. The University will retain the rights to the equipment.

General Conference Hears Decision

The action by the Trustees to make the transfer of White Memorial Hospital to Southern California Conference by grant deed was taken in counsel with the General Conference at the Fall Council.

This concluded the transfer of the 308-bed, 54 bassinet hospital to the Conference, adding a second large hospital to its administration. The Conference has since 1905 owned and operated the 298 bed Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital at Glendale, California.

more than feeding a blob of protoplasm and acquiring material things.

The mind has a powerful part to play in health. It must be taken into account in all studies and attitudes.

Religion plays a very large part in health.

"These assumptions hold up the whole structure of the University and justify this institution," he said. "The passing years have provided increasing stature to these convictions."

Elder Nichols proceeded to cite three recent developments showing that the concepts upon which the University is based are being recognized now as valid by the medical world.

The first is the coining of a new term: psychosomatic medicine, and with it the birth of a new branch of medicine dedicated to psychosomatic medicine — treatment of body and spirit.

The organization of the Academy of Religion and Mental Health, a learned group of 3000, including the elite of the religious world, is the second recent development, Elder Nichol told the student body. "The Academy is proof of the validity of our whole position," he said.

Thirdly, a new department was recently set up by the American Medical Association; the department of religion and medicine.

According to conservative estimates, the speaker stated, 50 percent of all patients suffer from the vicissitudes of life rather than from physical ailments.

"They suffer from a fracture of personality and a collapse of spirit. But you can't administer religion with a hypo. It is inhaled by the patient from the atmosphere that radiates from your personality."

"Our degree of worth is measured by our convictions," the speaker concluded, as he threw out the challenge to Loma Linda University students to be proud of their connection with the University, "for today we are very respectable in scientific eyes."
