Middle East College Affiliates With Loma Linda University

Loma Linda University will begin an active affiliation with Middle East College, Beirut, Lebanon, next September.

Arrangements for the academic relationship between the two institutions have been approved by the University Administration and Trustees, reports President Godfrey T. Anderson. The affiliation agreement calls for the University, in effect, to validate or stand behind degrees granted by the Lebanese school, Dr. Anderson says.

Faculty Will Travel

Loma Linda University will be responsible for assignment of two faculty members to the Middle East school. The pair of professors, appointed in alternate years to two year terms, will serve on academic committees there, making certain that diplomas validated by the University represent standards of performance acceptable to the University.

La Sierra College President William M. Landeen has indicated that La Sierra faculty will cooperate in the visiting professor program at Middle East College. Dr. Anderson says this is desirable in view of the fact that Loma Linda University has limited faculty resources in some teaching fields where it does not offer formal curriculums. Thus La Sierra might supply faculty to reinforce Middle East programs in business or teacher education, he suggests.

College Proposal

Middle East College first proposed the idea of affiliation to Loma Linda University, whose Trustees studied the idea last summer. Trustees approved the idea in principle and authorized a trip to the Beirut college by President Anderson. If he approved of the college's program to improve and enlarge its library, physical plant and faculty, and agreed that academic programs there met acceptable standards of excellence, the affiliation should go ahead, the Trustees decided.

Dr. Anderson returned from his trip in October, recommended approval to Trustees at their November meeting and announced the affiliation plans this week.

International Opportunity

Middle East College, operated in Lebanon by the Middle East Division of Seventh-day Adventists since 1939, has a student enrollment of just under 200. Lebanon's apparent stability amid intra-Arab political disputes has made it possible for students from neighboring Arab nations to attend the college without serious difficulty.

The climate, culture and archeological interest of the area make it a desirable situation for American educators, Dr. Anderson observes. Close to the college is well-known American University, affiliated with New York University much as Middle East College will be affiliated with Loma Linda. Occasional lectures or teaching assignments at American University will probably be a part of visiting professors' programs, Dr. Anderson says.

Probably only one California teacher will be assigned to Lebanon for the school year beginning next September, the President reports. A second professor will begin the following year, and two will be continuously in residence thereafter.

Officials Break Ground For $650,000 Structure

HELPING TO BREAK the ground for the new biochemistry-chemistry building are (l to r) J. Paul Stauffer, PhD, dean of the Graduate School; Maurice E. Mathisen, PhD, chairman of the department of chemistry in the Graduate School; Lee Goin, graduate student in chemistry; Godfrey T. Anderson, PhD, president of Loma Linda University; David B. Hinshaw, MD, dean of the School of Medicine; Raymond A. Mortensen, PhD, chairman of the department of biochemistry in the School of Medicine; and Ronald White, graduate student in biochemistry. — Photo by Everett Mason.

Officials broke ground for a new biochemistry-chemistry building at Loma Linda University Monday, November 16. Many students and faculty members braved the cool weather to attend the brief ceremony following the regular Monday morning convocation.

The two-story structure with full basement will rise next to Griggs Hall, the Graduate School building, at the northeast corner of Central Avenue and San Bernardino Street. It will house teaching, research, and administrative programs of the School of Medicine department of biochemistry and the Graduate School department of chemistry.

Three University officials and two students wielded ceremonial spades to kick off the construction project. The spading done by President Godfrey T. Anderson was with a pneumatic-powered jackhammer. "He's a little tired from all the groundbreaking here lately," it was explained.

Site of the new building is within a few yards of three other construction projects currently under way, including the new medical center.

Immediate Construction

Construction on the new building is scheduled to begin immediately. The initial contract calls for completion of only the upper story, which will house biochemistry laboratories, offices and classroom facilities. The ground floor and basement will be left unfinished, except for exterior walls and structural supports, until the Graduate School department of chemistry grows to require the space.

Exterior dimensions of the building are 132 feet (east-west) by 103 feet (north-south). Each floor will have approximately 13,600 square feet, making the building somewhat larger than adjoining Griggs Hall, which it will match in appearance.

Biochemistry facilities in the new structure will replace those destroyed in a fire that swept the University's Risley Hall nine months ago. The department has been occupying temporary quarters elsewhere on the campus. The Graduate School chemistry program will find its first permanent home in the new building.

Contractors Havstad and Bergvall of Loma Linda will build the proposed structure, with finished upper floor, for $650,000. Architects are Heitschmidt and Thompson, Los Angeles.

Features

Included in the upper floor, which biochemistry faculty hope to utilize by May or June, will be:

- a large, amphitheater-type classroom in the center, seating 108 students;
- a spacious student laboratory accommodating 104 with room to spare;
- seven research rooms, each with an adjoining office;
- a conference and library room;

Dental Student Wins Second Prize

A Loma Linda University student last week won second prize in a national scientific competition sponsored by the American Dental Association.

Larry V. Smith, 23-year-old senior student in the School of Dentistry, received the award at the association's national convention in San Francisco. His project, titled "Ion Permeability of Vital and Nonvital Human Teeth," was judged among scientific projects and clinical exhibits prepared by students at 43 US dental schools.

The award marks the third consecutive year in which Loma Linda University's entry has placed among the top three in national judging. Mr. Smith's exhibit was selected to represent the University in the competition when it won first prize in an intra-school contest at Loma Linda last February.

The Loma Linda student, married and the father of a young son, will be the school's first second-generation dental alumnus. His father, Vernon R. Smith, DDS, graduated from Loma Linda University School of Dentistry in 1960 when his son was a pre-dental student at La Sierra College, Riverside. Loma Linda's first dentistry degrees were conferred in 1957.

The senior Smiths now live at 11344 San Bernardino St., Loma Linda. Dr. Smith practices in Redlands.

First prize in the basic science project competition went to Douglas Cameron, University of Washington dental student.

In 1962 John P. DeVincenzo, SD '64, received second award in the national competition and Donald D. Jeffries, SD '64 won third award in 1963.

31st Annual Bach Festival Held This Weekend

Alumnus H. Vincent Mitzelfelt, SM '60, will direct the thirty-first annual Bach Festival at the First Congregational Church of Los Angeles on November 20 and 22. This oldest Bach Festival on the West Coast will include choral, solo, and instrumental music by Sebastian Bach and his contemporaries.

Dr. Harold E. Mitzelfelt, the alumnus' father, will guest conduct on Friday, November 20. The Bach Festival Virtuoso Orchestra will present "Suite No. 2 in B Minor"; "Concerto in F Major Opus 4 No. 4 by Handel"; "Tocatta in F"; Suite in A Minor by Telemann"; "Cantata No. 51 Jauchzet Gott in Allen Lande"; and "Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 in D Major."

University Presents Musical Talent Show

Burden Hall was filled last Saturday evening for the University Talent Night. Dean of Students Walter B. Clark was master of ceremonies for the musical affair.

The first award of $40 went to Tom Stauffer, a college student who works part-time at Loma Linda Market, for his cello solo of "Elegie" by Faure.

Second honors and $20 went to Nancy Koelsch, junior dental hygiene student, for her performance of "Listen to the Mockingbird" by Hawthorne on the marimba.

A third award of $10 went to Helen and Ray Irwin, sophomore dental student and wife, for a vocal duet, "Romance" from "The Student Prince" by Romberg.

Konimi Lum, a sophomore student in the School of Nursing, received a special third award of $10 for her performance of "Kona Kai O Pua," a Hawaiian folk song.

Other contestants in the program included Marilyn Froom, SN '67; Cheryl Reinhard, SN '67; Eileen Wangrin, SN '67; Judy Dietrich, SN '66; Bradley Nelson, SM '68; Connie Anderson, SN '67; David Olson, PT '66; Beverly Steele, RN; Doris Babcock, PT '66; Mae Long, pharmacology research assistant; Shirley Ching, SN '65; Kathleen Ekkens, secretary in the development office and Jamie Trefz, secretary in the office of public information.

Other participants were Gayle Nelson, MD, and his wife, Kathleen; Billy Burks, SD '62; and Fred H. Dortch, SD '59 and currently a graduate student in periodontics.

Judges were J. W. Osborn, retired music professor; Mrs. Mary Ziprick, piano instructor at La Sierra College; and Mrs. Anne Evans, a soprano soloist from Riverside.

The program was organized by Patrick H. Hicks, minister of music for the University Church.

"Let Us Complete"

A year ago this Sunday, the United States was rudely shocked into a period of soul searching by the sudden loss of its Chief Executive through an assassin's bullet. The death of President Kennedy was one of the great tragedies of the Twentieth Century. We at Loma Linda University, and the reader's of SCOPE shared that loss.

A year ago, our flags flew at half mast in memory of a current leader. Today, our flags fly at half mast in memory of former President Herbert Hoover. Through two consecutive Thanksgiving seasons we have mourned the loss of great men of our nation.

Yet the nation has much to view with thanks. The transfer of leadership to President Lyndon Johnson went smoothly. The world at large enjoys a period of peace from war, if an uneasy peace. Material prosperity for Americans is at an all time high. Universities everywhere are riding a crest of national attention to their needs. Loma Linda University has broken ground on numerous projects to increase its potential for service.

Even in the loss of Presidents Kennedy and Hoover the nation may well have profited. From President Kennedy men and women learned to live with enthusiasm and vigor. From President Hoover men and women learned to value other peoples. Both these men were undeniably involved in the successful building of higher education.

In his inaugural address President Kennedy challenged, "Let us begin." President Johnson has challenged, "Let us continue."

As a Seventh-day Adventist university perhaps our prayer of petition and thanksgiving should be, "Let us complete."

Let us complete the commission of God to this generation.

Affairs Council Forms in Area

A World Affairs Council of Inland Southern California has been formed by eight colleges and universities, including Loma Linda University, and interested citizens.

Godfrey T. Anderson, PhD, University president, was elected temporary chairman of the board of directors at the organization's first meeting in October.

The purpose of the new council, patterned after similar organizations in the San Francisco and Los Angeles areas, is to bring speakers on international affairs to this area and to "provide an avenue for the study and full and free discussion of matters of international import," according to a statement adopted by the board. The directors' first meeting was at University of California, Riverside.

First public meeting of the new group will be November 23 at a dinner meeting in the Orange Show Empire Room in San Bernardino. Michael Forrestal, special assistant to the Secretary of State for Vietnamese Affairs, is the speaker.

Individuals desiring further information may call the president's office, extension 288.

Book Talk

By GERALDINE PALMER
Assistant Librarian

If you know Peg Bracken as the witty, practical, and knowledgeable author of I Hate to Cook Book and I Hate to Housekeep Book, you will recognize her touch in I Try to Behave Myself (Harcourt, 1964), which is just as useful, just as up to date and even funnier.

Peg Bracken does not claim to be the first authority on etiquette. She takes up, she says, where Emily Post and Amy Vanderbilt leave off. She indicates that authorities can differ on points of behavior, even to being exactly opposite, and then gives her own rule: warmhearted feeling for the comfort of other people is the basis of all good manners.

The problems of etiquette seem to diminish under sugar-coated chapter headings. "Pardon Me, You're Standing on My Status Symbol," for instance, is about the problems of conversation. Her counsel regarding interior decoration is to "stay away from the subject of interior decoration, at least until you have seen the other person's quarters. Your Upper Bohemian friend may be pained right down to the soles of his chukka boots by your Early Williamsburg living room, and you may think his African masks are Early Halloween, but neither one of you has made any snide remarks beforehand; so no harm has been done."

In her chapter on "Let it Ring, Let it Ring, Let it Ring" you may be surprised to know that she says, "You don't have to answer. It is perfectly good manners not to."

Never inquire about someone in anything but noncommittal terms—or complimentary. Just as sure as you ask, "Who's the 1926 belle with the false teeth?" the person you ask will turn out to be her husband. It is far better to say, "Who is the interesting woman in the sequins?"

How not to give "insult" gifts, toe-covers or side-saddle presents, what to find for people who have everything, what to do for friends who are having real troubles and how to visit people in hospitals are covered in the chapter on "Gifts and Gentle Deeds."

Peg Bracken comes to the end of her book wondering what should be the moral, the final word, and decides that "the heart of the etiquette that matters is 'to rejoice with them that do rejoice and to weep with them that weep,' remembering, and trying to help them remember, that for every door that closes another opens."

Tightening Taxes

The Johns Hopkins University's Applied Physics Laboratory has lost its protest against a $140,000 tax bill presented by county officials. The county ruled that the laboratory was a business, not an educational institution. Baltimore News-American, September 15.

The department of biology in the Graduate School began in 1962-63 with three students; last year there were 14 enrolled, five of whom are PhD prospects.

Nickel Gets Rancho Hospital Position

New medical director of Rancho Los Amigos Hospital in Downey, California is Vernon L. Nickel, MD, according to Eugene R. Erickson, administrator of the 2,220-bed facility.

Dr. Nickel graduated from the School of Medicine in the class of 1944-A and is a clinical professor of orthopedic surgery.

Dr. Nickel's responsibilities at Rancho Los Amigos Hospital since 1953 have included the supervision of about 300 patients undergoing intensive rehabilitation and treatment, including physical therapy, occupational therapy, the fitting and making of braces and artificial limbs.

Tonn Accepts New Health Position

Emil F. Tonn, SM '38, was appointed deputy health officer and deputy medical investigator for Josephine County, Oregon, last month.

Doctor Tonn has been in general practice of medicine and surgery since moving to Grants Pass in the county in 1948.

He served his internship at Loma Linda University Hospital from 1937 to 1939.

Hardinge Sums Up Plans for New School of Public Health

(Editorial note: A SCOPE writer recently interviewed Mervyn G. Hardinge, MD, PhD, DPH, chairman of the Division of Public Health, to ask about future plans for the division. These plans, announced by Dr. Hardinge, are the basis for this article.)

"You may recall that the Division of Public Health was created by the Board of Trustees effective September 1. This action was taken so that the various area programs in public health, tropical medicine and nutrition and dietetics could eventually be brought together in a School of Public Health.

Not a New Idea

"The idea of establishing a School of Public Health is not new. Harold N. Mozar, MD, and Saleem A. Farag, PhD, who were formerly associated with the University and the Division of Public Health and Tropical Medicine, had this idea for several years and worked toward this end," said Dr. Hardinge.

Several obstacles have been overcome in the past few months and there are others to be surmounted in the future. For example, the accredited School of Public Health which is to be established must have at least four departments—public health administration, epidemiology, biostatistics and environmental health—and each of these departments must have a minimum of two full-time faculty members at a doctoral level.

"When our school is established, we hope to have four other departments in addition to those which are required. These would include nutrition, international health, tropical medicine and health education. Now one of our main tasks is to find enough qualified personnel to staff these eight departments."

The projected date for the official opening of the School of Public Health is July 1, 1967. Then the accrediting committee will be asked to visit in the spring of 1968.

In the Meantime

"The Master of Science degree in health education is currently being offered through the Graduate School. Although this is a good degree, a Master of Public Health degree would be preferable. We will continue to offer the MS in health education until the School of Public Health is established and then we will give the MPH."

Workers who have a MPH degree are in demand on city, county and national levels. The 12 accredited schools of public health now existing in the United States are not able to meet the needs. In the future our school will turn out additional numbers of qualified workers, able to lead out in church, medical and educational work or in other national and international projects, according to Dr. Hardinge.

Division of Religion Sets Summer Tour of Holy Land

A tour of Israel next summer will be sponsored by the Division of Religion, according to John M. Reeves, assistant dean of students and instructor in religion. Mr. Reeves, who has traveled extensively in the Middle East, is the tour director.

Nutritionists Give Food Demonstration

Two additional food demonstrations will be given on the Los Angeles campus by the School of Nutrition and Dietetics, according to Irma B. Vyhmeister, associate professor of nutrition and dietetics.

The December 1 presentation is "A Festival of Foreign Cookery." "Holiday Flare" will be given on December 8. The first demonstration in the current series, "Treasury of Thanksgiving Ideas," was given last Tuesday.

Everyone is invited and door prizes and samples will be given away at the demonstrations which will be given in the educational room at the White Memorial Church from 7 to 9 p.m. on the dates given.

The tour itinerary will literally cover the areas from "Dan to Beersheba," with special emphasis on the archeological remains of well known Biblical and historical sites, he said.

Some of the ancient sites to be visited are Mount Carmel, Dead Sea, Sodom, Red Sea, Jerusalem and the spot where the Dead Sea scrolls were found.

Other places on the itinerary include Caesarea, Sea of Galilee, Cana, Tiberias, Capernaum, Nazareth and Tel Aviv.

"We will spend two Sabbaths in Jerusalem and Nazareth," Mr. Reeves continued. "The Bible is the best guidebook for travel in the Holy Land and becomes increasingly meaningful as one travels throughout this little country, 250 miles long, 10 to 60 miles wide and 5,000 years deep."

The tour group will leave New York by jet on June 17 and will return July 18.

Only $907.00

"The amazingly low cost of $907.00 offers a truly remarkable travel bargain which would be impossible to get as an independent tourist. It is planned for those who desire an economical trip in both price and time.

On the way home the group will stop in Rome. At this point the tour members will be free to travel as they wish in Europe for 13 days. Expenses during this period, however, are not covered by the cost of the tour.

The price includes round-trip jet fare from New York to Tel Aviv, Israel, rooms and all meals, chartered air conditioned bus for the LLU group and an experienced guide. Special features include lectures on actual "digs" by Israeli archeologists, an overnight stay at an Israeli "Kibbutz" near the Sea of Galilee and the opportunity to stay as an overnight guest of an Israeli family (optional).

Religion Credit

University credit in religion is available for those who want it and are able to meet the requirements of the Division of Religion and Loma Linda University.

Individuals desiring further information should contact John M. Reeves at LLU.

Physical Therapy Alumni Encourage Associate Members

Seventh-day Adventist physical therapists who graduated from schools other than Loma Linda University are invited to join the Loma Linda University School of Physical Therapy Alumni Association as associate members.

Recent changes in the association constitution and bylaws make it possible for graduates of other schools to enjoy the same advantages of membership as Loma Linda University alumni. These include opportunities for association and professional interchange with other Seventh-day Adventist therapists and keeping up-to-date through the pages of University Scope and an annual association membership directory.

Applications should be addressed to: School of Physical Therapy Alumni Association, Administration Building Room 102, Loma Linda University, Loma Linda, California 92354. Annual dues are $3.00.

The White Memorial Medical Library receives 1108 journals.

University Hosts College Alumnors

The Alumnors, a group of directors of alumni programs in small independent colleges and universities within an 80 mile radius of Los Angeles, were hosted by Loma Linda University November 2, according to Viola Lutz, alumni relations officer.

Members are from Chapman College, Claremont Men's College, Harvey Mudd College, La Verne College, Pepperdine College, Occidental College, Pomona College, Scripps College, Whittier College, Loma Linda University, Loyola University and University of Redlands.

LLU Student, Wife Win $1,880 on TV

LaDon Homer, SM '65, and his wife, Mary Ann, were the lucky winners of $1,880 worth of bedroom furniture and carpeting on the NBC telecast "Let's Make a Deal."

Mr. and Mrs. Homer were selected from the studio audience on October 27 to participate in the show as panel members. The telecast was taped and it appeared on NBC's coast-to-coast network on Friday, November 13. The show appeared locally over KNBC, channel 4.

The Homers are the parents of a son, Kevin, who is one and one-half years old. They live at 10670 Collett Ave., in La Sierra.

Physical Therapy Alumni Welcome New Members

The 1964 physical therapy interns were honored guests at a buffet supper sponsored by the School of Physical Therapy Alumni Association in the University Cafeteria November 5.

Julius V. Toews, PT '59, president of the alumni association, welcomed the interns as new members. One hundred twenty individuals, including 38 alumni, attended this annual function.

Bernard Strohm, president of the Southern California Chapter of the American Physical Therapy Association, was the speaker. He stressed the importance of completeness in preparation for service in physical therapy, the need for research and the importance and the need for continuing service.

As their names were called by Ronald A. Hershey, PT '48, educational director of the School of Physical Therapy, the new members in the association were presented school pins by former instructors.

Horace Walsh to be New York Pastor

After serving as chaplain of Loma Linda University Hospital since June, 1954, Horace E. Walsh has left Loma Linda to become the pastor of the Rochester (New York) Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Mr. Walsh

In addition to his work at the hospital he was an instructor in the Division of Religion at Loma Linda University and was associate pastor of the Loma Linda Hill Church.

He graduated from Columbia Union College in 1944 and received his Master of Arts and Bachelor of Divinity degrees from the SDA Theological Seminary in 1949 and 1950.

After finishing his graduate work he was commissioned a first lieutenant in the United States Army and was a chaplain for three years.

Mr. Walsh enjoys singing and studied at the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, Maryland. As an amateur photographer, he has a large collection of color slides of Europe, Africa and the Near East.

Mr. Walsh and his wife, Patricia, will live at 445 Hurstbourne Road, Rochester, New York.

Five-Day Plan Conducted Here

Twenty individuals started the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking on November 1, said F. Stanley Kannenberg, research assistant in public health, who directed the recent program.

"Although a few dropped out, 13 were able to break the habit," Mr. Kannenberg stated. "Smokers around the country who want to break the tobacco habit find the Five-Day Plan an effective aid."

Lecturers for the sessions included Howard C. Smith, MD, instructor in anatomy in the School of Medicine; Kern H. Pihl, MD; and Wilbur K. Chapman, pastor of the Loma Linda Hill Church.

At each session the participants are reminded of the harmful physical effects of smoking. They learn new "tricks" to help them break their habit and exchange reports of individual progress.

Men and women entering the programs are not required to make any commitment to stop smoking, said Mr. Kannenberg. However, information available on those who have finished earlier series shows a high percentage of success, even for heavy smokers of long standing, he added.

Provonsha Speaks At Redlands U.

Jack W. Provonsha, MD, associate professor of Christian ethics in the Division of Religion, participated in Redlands (California) University's Religious Emphasis Week. The week was devoted this year to a consideration of science and religion.

Dr. Provonsha presented a paper November 11 entitled "Medicine and Morality," in which he explored the relevance of religious moral values to medical science. In the afternoon he took part in an informal discussion of the issues raised by his presentation.

Ruth Little Serves On Guidance Panel

Ruth Little, PhD, director of the School of Nutrition and Dietetics, served as a panelist for the vocational guidance discussion at the Senior Fellowship Conference at Cedar Falls Camp last month.

Sponsored by the Southern California Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, the outing was designed to bring fellowship, spiritual inspiration and vocational guidance to academy seniors.

Jennie S. Hudson, associate professor in the School of Nutrition and Dietetics, accompanied Dr. Little to the conference.

Maintenance Crew Camps at Salton Sea

About 85 employees and families from the maintenance department enjoyed the fourth annual campout at Salton Sea October 30 to November 1.

Activities included Sabbath School, a potluck dinner and a visit to Painted Canyon on Saturday, a bonfire and games on Halloween night and boat rides and water skiing on Sunday.

Clyde C. Moses, Ernest Turk and Ray Greenlaw organized the weekend affair.

Chaplains Hold Convention Here

About 30 chaplains, hospital administrators and Bible workers attended the annual Western Chaplains' Association meetings held this year on the Loma Linda campus.

The association, composed of Seventh-day Adventist chaplains on the West Coast, began its sessions on October 27 and ended at noon October 29.

Speakers included a college president, a religion professor, a hospital administrator, ministers and a physician.

Hospital Honors Youth for Service

Fifty young volunteers received special recognition for the services they have contributed to the University Hospital throughout the summer. Among them were Doris Dodson and Barry Clark who both were awarded for outstanding services, Doris for contributing 2350 hours and Barry for giving 600 hours in the voluntary work that candy strippers (girls) and hand strippers do.

Making the awards were Richard G. Ubbink, assistant hospital administrator, and Dorothy F. Beltz, director of volunteer services.

Leis were presented to those who volunteered 50 hours or more. Recognized for more than 200 hours of service were Betty Ann Ayers, Faith Greenwood, Gloria Martell, Cathie McClelland, Richie Powers and Beverly Warren.

Giving 100 hours of service were Yolanda Blanco, Claire Boxer, Debby Clark, Donna English, Ines Flores, Ruth Guy, Glenna Hempel, Kerstin Hermansson, Glynda Holloway, Kathy Ide, Ellen Kairat.

Faculty Members Pass Ob-Gyn Exams

Four faculty members in the School of Medicine recently passed the examinations of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology, according to William G. Slate, MB, ChB, chairman of the department of gynecology and obstetrics.

Now certified by the specialty board are Richard M. Briggs, MD, instructor in gynecology and obstetrics; Jack R. Kennedy, MD, SM '54, assistant professor of gynecology and obstetrics; John R. Madsen, MD, SM '56, assistant clinical professor of gynecology and obstetrics; and Raymond I. Mathews, MD, '54, instructor in gynecology and obstetrics.

Wynton G. Shaw, MD, SM '56, who completed his residency training at White Memorial Medical Center, also received his specialty certification.
