Dr. Kindler To Conduct Orchestra Concert Here

The National Symphony Orchestra of Washington, D. C., under the baton of its permanent conductor, Dr. Hans Kindler, will present a concert in Wilson Hall, Thursday at 8 p.m.

Started in 1931, and backed by ninety-seven sponsors, the National Symphony Orchestra, now has more than ten thousand contributors. It has grown and developed to the position of one of the six leading American symphony orchestras. Dr. Hans Kindler was the founder of the orchestra.

Activities of Orchestra

Known as the nation's symphony, the National Symphony provides musical culture for Americans from all over the country who are living in, or visiting the Capital, and for representatives of all the United Nations.

Almost a hundred musicians make up the winter orchestra and there are seventy-five in the summer group. Student's concerts in the public schools and Youth Concerts for the capital's colleges, are played each year; as well as the regular winter season at Constitution Hall, tours, and special music "festivals," and other concerts. In addition, ballet and opera companies appear each year with the orchestra.

Kindler Born in Holland

Born in Rotterdam, Holland, in 1893, Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor was a "Wonderchild" and played in public at the age of ten. At thirteen, he won first prize for piano and cello at the Rotterdam Conservatory and made his official debut as soloist with the Berlin Philharmonic at seventeen. Coming to America in 1914 as an already distinguished European cellist, he took the post of first cellist with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Stokowski. The urge to expand his art caused Dr. Kindler to abandon the cello as a concert instrument for greater repertory of the symphony orchestra.

The program which has been selected for Thursday's performance is as follows:

Overture from "The Marriage of Figaro," Mozart; "Symphony in D minor," Franck; "Pacific Nocturne," Henry; and "Capriccio Espagnola," Rimsky-Korsicoff.

Miss Elsie Wigley Publishes Article

Miss Elsie Wigley, supervisor of kindergarten at the Madison College Training School, recently had an article published in Childhood Education, a magazine published by the Association for Childhood Education. The article entitled "As a Result of Dissatisfaction..." tells of the work and results of a committee of teachers and parents who revised the report card system of Main Street school.

This committee made a study of the purposes and criteria of record keeping. Questionnaires were used by teachers for the purpose of evaluating the curriculum to gain a common philosophy and understanding.

Recommendations were made for the reporting system. A home visit would be made early in the year; "check lists" would go to the parents in November, parent-teacher conferences would be held in January and another check list would be the final report in June.

E. Dustoor, of the University of Allahabab, India; Mr Samuel Levering, chairman of the Five Years' Committee of the Friends Church; and the Rev. J. S. Johnston of the Arlington Methodist Church, Arlington, Va. All meetings are open to Madison students.

Dr. Dustoor, scholar, educator, author and broadcaster, is on a year's leave in the United States in order to study American life. Widely traveled and learned, he should be able to discuss objectively India's problems.

Members of the University of Virginia Wesley Cabinet met the Madison cabinet last night for a joint meeting here. Frank Dale, recent law school graduate, spoke on "A Faith For Today," followed by an open discussion.

Above is pictured the entire National Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of its permanent conductor, Dr. Hans Kindler. The famed group will appear in concert in Wilson Auditorium, on Thursday, February 26, at 8:00 P. M.

The orchestra is being presented as the third lyceum program of the year and is the first of its kind since the performance of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra here two years ago.

Please Consider A Reading Day!

The student body discussed a very pressing campus problem in its regular meeting last Monday—that of the necessity of having a "reading day" before exams begin, when so many of us find ourselves faced with two or more exams on the first day. We consider such a suggestion most worthwhile.

The students of course appreciate the week-end we get off following the completion of this hectic week, and would be distressed to have it taken from us. Nevertheless, a day before the grueling task begins would be a great improvement. Because other schools have this practice is not the basis of our request. Ours is purely from the standpoint of necessity and is what we consider our privilege.

Several professors seemed to think it was necessary to test their students on Friday before exams began on Saturday. That left a great many unfortunate coeds only one night to study for two or more exams. We can't exactly see how anyone can be expected to do his best work with such a little time for preparation—everyone doesn't learn quickly under pressure.

Students would probably be willing to be campused on that one day in order to insure its usefulness. Though this may mean an extra day of school and an upset to next year's calendar, we consider it a vital suggestion and urge its consideration. —B. R.

A Word To The Wise . . .

Several times during the year the college brings outstanding performers to the Madison Campus, through the lyceum series. These programs are not numerous, nor should they be, as long as we continue to prefer quality in entertainment rather than quantity. In the fall the Barter Theater presented two fine plays; they will present another later in the spring. Next Thursday Hans Kindler will bring his National Symphony Orchestra to our campus for a symphony concert. This is an opportunity not to be shunned, nor shrugged off casually—the orchestra can only be secured by one college bi-yearly, because of the expense involved.

Students are urged to attend the symphony concert. Dates can wait, books should be shelved, even tests ignored for this particular occasion.

Our conduct should be an example of our best. Knitting, giggling, coughing, and other preoccupations should be minimized. Besides the rules of common courtesy involved, we should want to get the most for our "money". Lyceums are paid for from our campus fees.

Another word of caution: many townspeople, unable to attend symphony programs at any other time, will be anxious to be admitted on Thursday evening. The college students will have reserved seats, which is as it should be, but when the conductor mounts the podium and the orchestra begins to play, a number of student-reserved seats will be empty and will remain empty through the evening. This has been so in the past. This time let us try to remember to fill our reserved seats, or not reserve them, so that others, in our places, may have an opportunity to hear the orchestra. We are, too old to play "dog in the manger". I. M.

Remember Seniority

Underclassmen evidently need another reminder about recognizing Madison seniority by remaining in their seats until it is their turn to leave regular Wednesday assembly programs. It has always been the custom at Madison for the faculty to leave the auditorium first, followed by the seniors, the men students, juniors, sophomores and last of all, freshmen.

It is more or less common courtesy to allow the faculty and seniors to leave the auditorium first and shows respect from the underclassmen.

We realize that all students are anxiously waiting for lunch at this time, but lunch is not served until all arrive and in this case "first come is NOT first served."

If students will only remember to leave in order of their class, the faculty and seniors will be very appreciative and the exit from the assembly will be on the whole more orderly and accomplished much more quickly.

The Ideal Roommate

We all want a ideal roommate. She is the person who adds a great deal of happiness to our college life and helps us make our tiny campus room a real home.

And what qualities make up this ideal roommate? Each of us may have several different answers to that question, but the chances are that consideration of others is close to the top of each list. It is consideration of others that holds the magic key to the ability easy to get along with. And really it is the background and basis of friendliness, another campus virtue in demand.

Neatness also characterizes the ideal roommate. And how much we do appreciate the roommate who wants to help keep the room clean, picks up her clothes, and is so neat herself that you are honestly proud of her!

All of us enjoy knowing people who have that certain something, personality. Some of the factors include witty, intelligent conversation, sympathy, and appreciation of life's finer things. The roommate we all want would have these things.

There is one especially nice thing about the ideal roommate—She could be your roommate—She could also be you!

Amateur Weather Forecaster Tries To Prophecy Week-end Conditions

By Irene Munson

"Cumulus? nimbus? or altostratus?" mumbled the amateur weather forecaster, leaning from her window, to survey the cloud formations of the neighborhood, and eyeing the thermometer which she held outstretched before her. With the other hand she hurriedly thumbed through her weather maps and a great assortment of meteorological charts which she kept on hand for just such emergencies. "Well, it's 70 degrees F. out now, but a wind's rising in the west . . ."

"Mr. X in Staunton, who supposed to be a weather prophet says we'll have snow waist deep for the dance week-end," called her assistant from her post by the radio, where, ear glued to the box (an uncomfortable position, I'll tell you), she was awaiting the latest developments from WASHINGTON and other authoritative points.

"Snow? Rain? Who Knows?" "Waist deep? Wee-ll," remarked the sager weather gal, "maybe it will just rain—though I'm personally hoping it will be sunny and fair and springlike a while longer . . ."

Rain before seven, clear before eleven," quoted aimlessly the assistant. "But it's one o'clock now."

"Yes, and red in the morning, Sailors take warning, Red at night, Sailor's delight" the other retorted. "We'll have to make a note of that."

"I don't know any sailors," said the assistant, eyeing the barometer meanwhile, "but my roommate does."

"That won't help, silly. What we need is some authentic data."

So we went out and found some, here and there on campus.

So They Say

Whitey Reeves: About this wonderful springlike weather, I don't think it's going to last. It's made me feel lazier than usual.

Fern Waters: The more spring, the better, and the sooner. I'm not sure what is going to happen this weekend, the weather, I mean.

Martha Jane Bradley: I feel so lazy with this spring weather. I say sunshine this weekend, I hope! It's supposed to snow, you know.

Bynum Lamb: I think it's wonderful. I hope it lasts. I feel like going boat-riding, for one thing. I never try to predict weather, but my pessimism says a foot of snow!

Jean Shelley: I think it's going to be cold, but clear this weekend. No snow. I've felt more like May Day, the last few days, than Midwinters."

Roy Butler: I predict rain for Friday (how about that?), and cloudy and turning colder over the weekend. This spring is just temporary.

Irene Reynolds: I hope it will be moonlight this weekend. I've had spring fever all week.

Tom Garner: I don't know, but I hope we have 45 inches of snow. After reading about evolution nothing would surprise me.

Homer Long: From my experience in the Valley, I think it's going to be pretty cold this week-end. I'm enjoying the "spring," though, and I'm hoping we have more of it so I can get in a bit of tennis.

CABE'S COMMENTS

One good reason why the war in the Holy Land has not been even more violent, is the embargo placed on shipments of arms to that area. The Arabs are fairly well supplied with ammunitions and guns by their neighbors, but the Jews have no sizeable source from which to obtain arms. The only source of any consequence at all would be the U. S. However, if the U. S. lifted her embargo she would only be attempting to sidetrack the prominent issue—not face it and handle it.

Furnishing the Palestine Jews with weapons will not solve the situation—it will only increase and continue to increase the bloodshed and strife. Obviously, an international police force is the only absolutely correct way to enforce the partitioning decision made by the U. N. However, there is no I. P. F., and no way to organize one in the three short months before it will definitely be needed in Palestine (when British troops withdraw). A second-best solution lies in the collecting of a U. N. army in that sector. That would mean that the Big Five and two more members of the Security Council must vote for such a force and contribute to the cosmopolitan group. This is one time when we need hardly worry about the Russian veto. They seem to be all for it, but how Britain will vote is another question.

At any rate, the U. N. will have to do something about enforcing the decision they made.

Something To Chat About —

By Frances Wilkins

Although February 14 has passed, some of our hearts are still fluttering; or our stomachs from so much candy. The postmaster nearly had a breakdown from so many packages.

As an expert on marital affairs here's Dr. Percy Warren's advice to the lovers on Valentine's Day:

"To all in love
Let me forbid,
That they be doed
Like I've been did."

I want a man who is handsome
And dumb as dumb can be
Handsome so I'll love him,
And dumb so he'll love me.

Sophomore: "Does this wind bother you?"

Co-ed: "No, talk as much as you want."

Deliberations

By Nellie L. Shumake

The grass is so brown
The walls are so gray
The rain is so loud
As it patters away.

My nerves are so taut
My mind is so dense
I'm like a caged human,
Devoid of sense.

Yet in each college day
I am constantly reminded
I must study to excel
And be socially inclin'd,

Or else give my place
To the girl with the I. Q.
Who can make all A's
And take the knocks too.

So what shall I do,
I'm asking you please,
To bluff my way out
Of the "average C's?"

SHOWGOER

By Pat Rogers

That Broadway hit "The Voice of the Turtle," starring Eleanor Parker as the actress who is hard to win and Ronald Reagan as the sergeant who is hard to lose, will appear at the State Theatre Sunday through Wednesday.

This movie has a gay, fast-moving plot. The setting is in New York in the days when hotel rooms could hardly be had. Ronald Reagan finds himself without a room but Eleanor Parker rescues him by offering her day-bed to the cause. It's a purely patriotic gesture but fate steps in and it's love.

Thursday the Virginia will present "So Well Remembered" with John Mills and Martha Scott. In this version of Hilton's best seller Mills suffers marital breakup but comes to the rescue of the son of his wife by another marriage when her jealousy almost jeopardizes the young man's romance.

Returning again for Virginia Theatre goes is Walt Disney's ever favorite "Bambi" on Friday and Saturday.

Wednesday Assembly Speaker To Present European Views

Dr. Jerome Davis, author, educator and correspondent, will speak in assembly on Wednesday. His topics will be "Europe."

An authority on Russia, Dr. Davis has visited that country eleven times in the past 30 years. In 1916 the World's Committee of the YMCA appointed him to take charge of all prisoner-of-war work in Russia. Remaining there for 2½ years through the Revolution he became acquainted with Lenin and Trotsky.

Missions In Russia

Other missions in Russia have been to see about food relief and to hold a long conference with Stalin regarding the settlement of differences with the United States. Dr. Davis has also acted as a representative in Russia for leading American, Canadian and Swedish newspapers. His latest book, Behind Soviet Power, summarizes his views of the present situation in Russia in the light of thirty years' observation.

Last summer Dr. Davis headed a group of U. S. senators, Congressmen, and prominent businessmen who visited England, Sweden, Finland, Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia and France to study the social, economic, and political conditions of Europe.

Born In Japan

Born in Japan where his father was an American missionary-statesman, Dr. Davis travelled over the Orient during his boyhood days. He learned the Japanese language, the people, and their customs.

He also has had long experience in the field of industrial relations. In the early 1920's he was the first to propose that a labor audit be made in every industry as well as the annual financial audit. This proposal met with wide response. He has investigated strikes all over the country and today he is on the public panel of the U. S. Government for arbitration work.

Dr. Davis held the Stark Choir of Practical Philanthropy at Yale University for thirteen years. He has taught at Boston University, Dartmouth College, Harvard, the University of Wisconsin, and the New School of Social Research. He has been president of the Eastern Sociological Society and was for three years president of the American Federation of Teachers.

Besides his book, Behind Soviet Power, Dr. Davis is the author of over a dozen volumes on international economic, and religious subjects. His published articles have appeared in Atlantic Monthly, Harpers, Colliers, The Nation and Forum.

Extramural Team Wins Two Games Over Sweet Briar

The Madison College Duchesses displaying winning form yesterday in taking two ends of a basketball double header from the Sweet Briar college sextets. The Sweet Briar teams fought gamely but the Madison forwards were hitting the basketball from every angle and the guards clung tenaciously to their opponents.

The first Purple and Gold team came out on top 33-25, Sweet Briar led in the opening minutes but after Madison caught up, the team was never headed. Grant played an excellent offensive game, leading the Madison scoring with 14 points. Ciekot was second in scoring with 11 points. Pickrel meshed 6 and Shelley, acting captain, scored 2. Goettling, regular captain, was unable to play due to an injury, but watched the team win. Epperson, Johnson and Messick, the guards, used the shifting zone defense to good advantage.

Early tallied 10, Lanier made 4 and Swartz netted 3. Dickenson, captain, Cockrill, Nethers, and Woodward at the guard posts, held Sweet Briar to 6 field goals in the entire game.

The Spotlight . . . By BERYL SNELLINGS

Here's a few dits and dahs from sports around the world. Columbia University's football coach, Lou Little, has been tempted mightily handsomely by Yale here lately with an extra fine setup. But Lou has made his decision definite now. He's staying at Columbia. Why? Because General Ike Eisenhower, who is taking over the presidency of that great school, told Little, "Lou, you fit into my plans." That did it. Lou is not going. . . . First baseman Jackie Robinson and club owner Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and President Ford Frick of the National League were named among the winners of the Thomas Jefferson prizes for the Advancement of Democracy during 1947 for breaking the color barrier in American big-league baseball. . . . Miss Barbara Ann Scott of Canada, the 19-year-old blonde from Ottawa, has really taken some titles these past few weeks in figure skating on ice. She captured the Olympic crown at St. Montz; the European championship at Prague and the woman's world figure skating championship at Davos Platz. Here's what Prime Minister King of Canada cabled to her after hearing of the triple crown victory, "Canada is prouder of you than ever. Your triumph is shared by all your fellow Canadians who now await your return to accord you a truly national welcome." Nice, huh? . . . Roanoke College situated in Salem, Virginia, maintained its record as the State's No. 1 basketball team by defeating her latest opponent, Virginia Military Institute, 55-43, the early part of this week. . . .
