We may thred the moss-veil from the rose, The blossom from the spray , The bloom that pearls the luscious grape A touch will brush away;

The vine may loosen from the tree Which once it clung to fast, But the heart will keep its memories Till life itself be past.

The gold must die from sunset skies, The purple from far hills : The foam flowers fade from opal waves; Drouth hush the babbling rills .

The earth grow cold and passionless 'Neath winter's bitter blast ; But the heart will keep it momories Till time itself be past.

The flush will fade from cheek and brow. The sweet smile wane and die. The freshness leave the coral lip, Tears dim the brightest eye; Youth, beauty, hope, and happiness, And love may die at last, But the heart will keep its memories Till life itself be past.

> FIVE MINUTES WORK. BY MRS. FRANCIS D. GAGE.

Here, Lizzie, I wish you would put a few stitches into my coat; its getting so

'It's so Frank ; but really I think you had best take it to the tailor.' 'Take it to a tailor ! By George ! but that's a huge idea. Why, there's not five minutes' work to be done, and the tailor would charge a dollar.' 'I suppose he would, bat I don't see how I can do it to day. Walter is very fretful, and you know he kept me awake nearly all night.'

'Little imp ! It does not seem to me there ever was so cross a young one — Always some excuse! Well, you must mend my coat, anyhow.'

'I will try and find time' 'Try ! just let him squall ! 'twill do him good-strengthen his lungs." 'Then, you know, it is ironing day.' Well, how many more excuses ? I'll put it on, rips and all, if you are going to make a fuss? "Oh, no, Frank, I did not mean to make a fuss; but it's a long job, and one I am not used to; and with my dinner to get, and baby, and ironing I do not see yet, how I can get it done. But I'll do my best.' Such was the conversation that passed between a young husband and a wife of eighteen months standing.

Frank Burton was what the world calls a real driver. He made anything that went through his hands insure to his own benefit. Everybody liked him because he was so frank, and withal so bonest and upright in all his dealings with his customers. He was well edu cated for a business man; lived in society; had made up his mind that he could support a wife, and, according to his reckoning, save something to boot. Yes, to be sure he could. There were six dollars a week for board, one dollar a week for washing, and then quarters and dimes innumerable for taking his lady acquaintances to ride, to the theatre, to icc cream saloons, balls, operas, etc. 'By George !' he exclaimed, as he cast up his yearly account, 'that's huge; enough to break a fellow; a thousand a year ; it wont do ; I'll marry and settle down l'

So he applied to Lizzie Forsyth to be his wife; and he was soon in possession

A snug house was rented, and the work of supporting a wife began in earnest. The five rooms cost, two hundred dollars a year, and were prettily furnish. ed. Lizzie preferred to do all her work, Sometimes by her needle she earned a dollar extra. Then, as it was a little lonesome for Frank, he brought home. several clerks as day boarders, at four dollars a week. Still, with all this, he would tell his acquaintances how much less it cost him to live now he supported a wife. He never seemed for a moment to realize that she it was who was saving all these expenses, and that if he had not earned a dollar, her busy hands would have paid the rent and kept him from starving. So the matter stood when he asked his wife to mend his coat. Lizzie drew a deep sigh after he was gone, and hurried her dishes away as fast as possible.

The coat was of broodcloth, and was his wedding garment; but it was well nigh wearing out, broken under the arms, the cord and lining in rags, the sleeve linings broke loose, buttons worn off; in fine, there was nearly a day's work. She sat down to the coat with hearty good will, determined to do her best. Her needle flew fast, but every moment it had to be laid down to see to dinner or bush the baby. The hours wore away, and though she did all she possibly could, the job was still undone

Walter cried incessantly. He looked pale, and his eyes were dim. She then remembered Frank's words, 'let him squall,' and let him cry half an hour or more. Oh, how it wearied her to hear her darling cry for its mother. Tears swam in her eyes as she thought of her hard day's work and the want of appreciation of her labor. She knew she was making his old coat look almost as well as new. But he would never think of the toil she had put pon it. 'And what if he don't,' she mentally said; 'I shall in my own spirit know all I have done, and that is enough.'

But Lizzie was strong hearted as well as loving and dutital. So she shook off her discontent, and became as cheerful as possible. Then she worried through supper getting, and with much managing had all things done by the time that Frank came in with his companions. 'My coat done, Lizzie?' 'No, not quite.'

'There's a woman for ye, boys, One half of them would let a husband go out of the e:bows a week before they would turn aside from any plan of their own. All the ironing completed, I'll be

Lizzie was taking her biscuit out of the oven, and the young men did not see the deep flush of pain that flashed

please?' she said pleasantly. 'There it is again; when I was a bach Ihad nothing to do but hand my coat over to the tailor, pay him a dollar, and tired, either.' Lizzie was nervous, was tired with household work and care. She could not endure his badinage, although half playful. She hastily set the biscuit on the table, and saying simply 'supper is ready,' stepped in the bedroom and then burst into tears. Her tears did not flow long, though she was deeply and wrongfully hurt in her feelings. Her hear! gained in its natural relief, and after pretending that she was getting Walter asleep (which she actually did) she

Frank sat watching her flying fingers for an hour or two, as he laughed and talked with his friend, thinking to him self that every turn would be the last. At nine o'clock she had set the last stitch, The coat looked like a new one all around As she finished, she looked up with still a shade of sadness upon coat thoroughly. I guess it will last another year now.

'Quite a job, wasn't it? longer than thought,' said he, deprecatingly.
'How much clear cash have you made to-day, Frank?' asked Lizzie, in a very earnest tone.

was his answer. 'For my own satisfaction; certainly should feel an interest in all of your af-twenty dollars.' 'How much do you count your own services worth?' 'Not less than five dollars a day.'

Because, Frank, we are husband and wife. We expect to live the rest of our lives together, and if there is harmony in our marriage relation, there must be who should be our first care, and the last thing under any circumstances, to

'I had not thought of that.' 'I know you had not, Frank, so I shall freely forgive you, but I must be to be threatened, nor hear myself accused of not being willing to do my duty.'

Frank felt the force of her words and an old coat, which when done, would not sell for the amount of your ten case against me, Lizzie.' 'No. Frank, not a case against you; l could not do that; but I am stating facts been entirely idle, not even rocking, the cradle, which I have been obliged to do half a dezen times.' 'Lizzie, don't say another word, and I'll never do so again,' said Frank, springing from his chair, to jog the cradle, where the boy was nestling, 'You

'Yes but I will,' answered Lizzie, ad vancing to the cradle, 'only don't tell me ten hours' work can be done in five minutes, nor ask me to let the baby She litted Walter from the cradle

They stooped to kiss his fair, rosy cheek but made a nistake, and kissed each other, while Frank whispered: 'God bless you, Lizzie, I never tho't of all this before. I want do it again. Six years have passed by, and Frank

A traveler being in a offee house with some gentlemen, was largely drawing on the credulity of the company. 'Where did you say all these wonders happened, sir? asked a gentleman present, 'I can't exactly say,' replied the traveler, 'but somewhere in Europe-Russia, I think. I should rather think It-a-ly; returned the other.

'Oh, yes,' was the cool reply, 'and I would willingly lay it up in Heaven.'

What I Con't Know About Farming In selling stock by live weight, it is a good plan to feed each one about three pails of water, and whatever other stuff can be got down 'em, just before driving on the scales. If the buyer has ever invested much money on 'Change he will know what watered stock' means.

In holding the plow, I always prefer to hold it in the house, seated in a rocking chair, with my family clustered around me. In planting hay I always plant the longest I can find, as short hay bends a persons back too much in cutting it,

In the matter of wheat, I always raise it by the barrel, at a mill not far away, as it saves buying seed, plowing, sowing, cradling and threshing. I generally raise it on

In travelling through the country, I have often noticed that farmers do not sufficiently regard the health of their animals. My barn is arranged on a plan of my own. It is open on all sides, so that no creature may have to stand out in a storm because I am asleep or away. This also saves lumber.
All around the barn are benches on which any animal can sit down when tired of standing, or when waiting for something or other to turn up. The sheriff says my cattle always sell when my neighbor's don't and he thinks it is all owing to my economy, and I do not doubt it. In subsoiling a piece of ground, I always 'plant' a mortgage on it the winter previous. It raises the biggest kind of a crop, especi-ally when you let the interest go behind — I hardly ever knew such a sowing that didn't turn out full as well as the holder expected.

In raising hogs, I think that many far. mers are altogether too slack for their interests. Now, suppose that I want to raise a hog, I go at it in a careful, scientific way. A good many farmers raise their hogs with the first club that comes handy, but this has a tendency to make the animal discouraged and discontented.

I have my own ideas about training horses. If ever I get hold of a horse inclined to run away, I always borrow a buggy of some of my neighbors, put him into it, turn hin, into a lot, and let him run. He generally gets sick of the fun by the time the buggy is gone, but if he don't hitch him to any of the wheels that may be left, and keep him travelling. The owner of the buggy always expresses astonishment at my system, but the evidence of its success is there before him, and he cannot dispute the

If I ever get hold of a kicking cow, I always let Mrs. Quad sit down first to mik, and I take my station by her to see what 'Well, I think the shop has cleared foot the animal kicks with, and how hard she hits. My wife has a remarkable clear memory, and after coming to the can generally give me any little particulars which I failed to note owing to distance. I then get the cow into the stable, draw her up with a windlass, until she is just evenly balanced. Then I get a bag and fill it with bricks, hang it within easy kicking distance, and stand off for developments. Every time she comes down she hits the bricks, and when she goes up I have another thing to apply to her in front, and after she has gotes through with this oscillation two or three times, she never kicks any more, at least not until she looks around for bricks.

PRECAUTIONS. - 1. Never sleep in a room where there is any green paper on the walls as this color is made of arsenic or lead; the former is by far the most dangerous, being Scheele's green, and is known positively by a drop of muriatic acid on the green leaving it white. 2. White glazed visiting cards. contains sugar of lead, and will poison a child who is tempted to chew them, from the sweetish taste. 3. Green glazed cards, used for concert tickets, are still more poisonous; a single one of them contains a grain and a half of arsenic, enough to kill a child. 4. Never put a pin in the mouth or between the teeth, for a single instant, because a sudden effort to laugh or speak may convey it into the throat, or lungs, or stomach, causing death in a few minutes, or requiring the wind-pipe to be cut open to get it out; if it has passed into the stomach it may, as it has done, cause years of suffering, ceasing only when it has made its way out of the body through the abdomen and other portions of the system. 5. It is best to have no button or string about any garment worn during the night. A long, loose nightgown is the best thing to sleep in. Many a man has facilita. ted apoplexy by buttoning his shirt collar.

In a town in Onio, not long ago, the women went in bands of two and three with their knitting and sewing into the dram shops of that place, and spent the whole day with their work, and talking politely on various topics. Husbands and friends came in, saw how things looked, and had not the courage to step up to the bar and take a drink. This was kept up for several days, and the result was every shop in the place was closed.

SMILL SALARY .- A Pennsylvania paper tells of a local preacher who received for his salary this year, nothing but a curry comb, a keg of varnish and two dozen clothes pins. Whenever his children cry with hunger he gags them with a clothes pin, scratches their stomachs with a curry comb, and lays on a coat of varnish.

State and County Taxes

We are reminded by the Essex (Va) Gazette that the new law in relation to the mode of collecting taxes will go into practical operation in a short time, and our readers would do well to be prepared for its requirements. The county treasu ct, between April and September of each year, appoints some place in each township "to receive taxes" He does not apply to any one, and whether the taxes are paid to him or to the collector (after 1st September) his commissions are the same. If the tax payer fails to go to the treasurer and pay before the 1st of September, then the tress. urer adds five per cent. to e ch tax-ticket and places it into the hin is of the township collector, who can levy and collect the same by law. If the collector fails to do so by 1st December, the treasurer and the attorney for the Commonwealth are required by law to be after him and his securities, and to puncture them with a peculiarly sharp stick, on ten days' notice.

So it will be seen that old things have passed away" and that the tax-pay-er can't be indulged as formerly. As five per cent is, of itself, a burdensome tax for the use of money for a short time, we advise our friends to attend to the official which sits at the receipt of customs," in July and August . The Fish Question.

Dr. Wall, of Frederick, one of the Virginia Fish Commissioners, in his last report to Gov. Walker, says that he has examined a number of springs in the Valley, and finds that they are not colder than 54 degrees, which is 14 degrees warmer than the extreme point at which Mr. Seth Green says that trout can be propagated. There are many encu i s made for black bass; and wi h the aid of expert fishermen the Doctor succeeded in catching a number carly in June, but the weather proved too warm for their preservation and trans. ortation, and the experiment had then been relinquished. He will renew it when the weather gets colder, and the prospects are that this beautiful and delicious fish will be successfully introduced into the waters in that section of the State They have already been introduced into Pennsylvania and Maryland, and thrive beyond the anticipations of fish fanciers.

Dr. Wall proposes with Prof. Baird, of the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, to explore the falls of the Potomae above Georgetown with the view of investigating the feesibility of constructing ' fish ways," so that shad and herring may find their way to the upper part of the river-where they have never yet been .- Enquirer.

Our correspondent of Stony Man, Page county, Va., furnishes the following statement of occurrences there on the 10th instant :

A daughter of Mr. Fred. Sours, while at the spring house, was butten in the foot by a striped snake. We are glad to learn that she is doing very well. THE LASS CHANCE !- Those who wish to secure a ticket in the great July Enterprise can do so by calling at Mr. Pollock's Saloon by Monday next. The drawing takes place the 4th of July. Call and look at the spiendid scheme.

NOTES BY THE WAY .- When an editor escapes from the tread-mill and betakes himself to the enjoyment of a little fresh air and recreation, it is expected that he will at least make brief mention of such matters of interest as may fall under his observation.

We have just had the pleasure of spending a few daye with our friends at Woodstock, after an absence of several months.

It was gratifying to witness the progress already made by the farmers along the line of the railroad in securing their splendid crops of wheat. In a majority of ceses, and especially where reapers were used, the harvest was finished by Friday or Saturday. By this time, we should think, but little remains unharvested. With the exception of a few instances, the result of impoverished soil or imperfect cultivation, we should judge that the crops in this county and Shenandoah are very nearly an average with these of the past ten years. In quality, the wheat is superior to any crop within that time .-As a general thing, the crops of corn are rather backward, with some few exceptions along the water courses and upon the better cultivated uplands. The continued cool rains, so advantageous to the wheat, has retarded the growth of corn. Should the next two months be favorable, the unfavorable weather of May and June will prove not to have been a serious disadvantage. Oits are generally short, but present a thrifty appear. auce. The crop will no doubt fall below an average one. We noticed but few fields of rye, some good, others indifferently good. -The prospect for a large quantity of 'pure rve' tangle-foot, this season, is not flattering With regard to fruit, so far as we could get will be an abundant yield of peaches. So | ters of one of our good hotels : much for the crops.

Woodstock is one of the oldest towns in the Valley-established by law in March, 1761, then in the county of Freederick-but the old town is not by any means "finished," as the phrass goes. Within the past few years-we mean since the war-considerable improvement, in the way of erecting new buildings and repairing old ones, has been made. On a previous occasion we refe red to several of these improvements, and need | can." not enumerate them again. Chief among the more recent improvements may be men. tioned the new court-room, now being completed. The new building is an extension from the rear of the old court-room, fifty by forty feet, and is one of the finest aud most conveniently arranged court houses in the State. The entrance is through the old court room from the front, the latter serving the purpose of ante-chamber or vestibule to the new room. The new building, when finished, will not cost the county over three thousand dollars, which is certainly an insignificant sum for the proud old county of Shenandoah to pay for an improvement so much needed and necessary for the comfort no less than the safety of the court and of the citizins. The Clerk's office, Sheriff's office and Jury rooms remain as formerly in the old building, with doors communicating with the new room. The walls of the new room are of brick, and were erected by Messrs. David Hoshour and Isaac Sheetz, and the joiners' work was executed by Mr. A. J. Cullers. The work is done in the neatest and most substantial manner, and is highly creditable to the gentlemen named and their

In this connection, it may not be irrelev. ant, while on the subject of improvements, to mention the new distillery recently erected by Messrs. From the number of strange faces we met be a fair conclusion that there has been some addition to the population of the town within the past year or so. We hope they may do well.

BROADWAY .- Having recently visited this enterprising little village, on the line of the O., A. & M. R. R., in this county, we are fully prepared to endorse the following "xtract from the letter of a correspondent of the Shenandoah Valley:

"From the large number of hands engag ed in erecting new buildings, the eagerness with which building lots are purchased, and the certain prospect of a new Railroad, in a few years, I am induced to believe that Broadway is destined to become a place of great importance. Everything seems lively here. The merchants are doing a large bu iness-by fall there will be three dry goods Stores in operation—and there is some talk about establishing a bank, and opening a large hardware and drug store. Near here there is one of the finest water powers in the State, owned by the enterprising foun-der of Broadway—Dr. Winfield The prop-erty can be bought low and on good te m:. Why do not our capitalists open their eyes. at once examine the property, and establish a first-class factory of some kind? Let us have factories of our own and keep our money at home; until we do this, our finds will be carried North, and our people be. 'hard up.' "

We are very glad to chronicle the enterprise of the people of Broadway and viciaity. In fact, there is more "go-abead" in the citizens of this little village than is exhibited by the people in any other section of our county. From six to eight buildings are now in course of construction, and more are projected The village is surrounded by fine lands, has abundant water power, and has many natural advantages, which inspires the hope that Broadway will soon become a town of considerable importance.

COD LIVER OIL

We desire to call the attention of the Medical Profession to this preparation of Cod Liver Oil. for the following reasons: It will agree with the most debilitated stomach. It is decidedly more pleasant to alminister. It is less expensive to prescribe. It will not nauscate, as the Paucreatine assists in perfectly digesting the Oil. It is more palatable, as the combination forms an emulsion, and we are therefore able to disguise its offensiveness. It is less expensive, as a small quantity of Cod Liver Oil perfectly digested will produce far more beneficial results than five times the quantity imperfectly digested. This preparation is meeting with the greatest favor among Physicians in Diseases of the Laugs, and is rapidly taking the place of the plain oil. Price Lists and Dose Books will be freely furnished upon application.—Manufactured by REED, CARNRICK & ANDRUS, 108 Fulson St., N. Y. Sold by Druggists generally. # THE CHICKEN'S MISTAKE.

BY PHEBE CARY. A little downy chicken one day Asked leave to go on the water; Where she saw a duck, with her brood at play, Swimming and splashing about her.

Indeed, she began to peep and cry, When her mother wouldn't let her, If the ducks can swim there, why can't I? Are they any bigger or better?'

The old hen answered: 'Listen to me, And bush your foolish talking; Just look at your feet and you will see They are only made for walking."

But chicky wistfully eyed the brook, And didn't half believe her, For she seemed to say, by a knowing look, 'Such stories couldn't deceive her.'

And as her mother was scratching the ground,

She muttered, lower and lower, 'I know I can go there and not be drowned, And so I think I'll show her.'

Then she made a plunge, where the stream was deep.
And saw too late her blunder; For she hadn'thardly time to peep,

Till her foolish head went under. And now I hope her fate will show The child my story rending. That those who are older sometimes know

That each content in his place should dwell, And envy not his brother; And any part that is acted well Is just as good as another.

What you will do well in heeding:

For v.c all have our proper sphere below. And this is a truth worth knowing: You will come to grief if you try to go Where you never were made for going!

HARD TIMES FOR FARMERS -A farmer in debt always will have hard times, such as those who own land and have a comfortable home, free from all encumbrance, cannot fully comprehend. Mr. Beecher, who-knows the costs of farming, perhaps, better than its profits, says candidly :

"No blister draws sharper than interest does. Of all industries, none is comparable to that of interest. It works all day and night, in fair weather and foul. It has no sound in its foot steps, but travels fast. It knaws at a man's substance with invisible teeth. It binds industry with its film as a fly is bound in a spider's web.

Debts roll a man over and over. binding him hand and foot, and letting him hang upon the fatal mesh until the long-legged interest devours him. There is but one thing on a farm like it, and that is the Canada thistle, which swarms new plants every time you break its roots, whose blossoms are prolific, and every flower the father of a million seeds, every leaf is an awl, every branch a spear, and every plant a plattoon of bayonets, and a field of them like an armed host. Teh whole plant is a torment and vegetable curse. And vet a farmer had better make his bed of Canada thistles than attempt to be at ease upon interest."

THE TRAPPER IN CHUFCH .- - An old weather-beaten trapper was sauntering along the main street of one of our Western villages on a recent Sunday. Passing in front of a meeting-house, for a moment he went in and took his seat among the congregation. The preacher was discoursing on the text of 'the sheep and the wolves,' and had evidently b en drawing a contrast between the two subjects. Says

'We who assemble here from week to week, and perform our duty and do our part, are the sheep now, then, who are the welves? A pause and our friend the 'trapper, rose to his feet. Waal, stranger, rather than see the play stopped, I will be the wolves. The preacher pronounced the benediction at once.

A Wisconsin paper tells about a girl who hated her suitor to such an extent, that when he called to see her on Sunday evening, she threw her arms about his neck and rqueezed him almost to death. The youth was so alarmed that he did not call again the next evening.

In putting away furs, sprinkle them with a little camphor and black pepper, and paste up tightly in newspaper, and moths will not trouble them.

To PRESERVE STEEL PENS -Metalic pens may be preserved from rusting by throwing into the bottle containing the ink a few nails, or broken pieces of steel pens, it not varnished. The corrosive action of the acid which the itk contains is expended on the fron so introduced, and will not, therefore, affect the pen.
