Course Description

This course is designed to provide you with a toolbox of resources so you can be a strong writer in all of your college courses and beyond. To ensure this, you will learn to develop and sharpen your abilities to coherently express yourself and persuasively communicate your thoughts. To be able to do so, we will approach writing as a process. According to Janet Emig, "[o]ne writes best as one learns best, at one's own pace." By the end of the semester you should have developed an understanding of your own writing process and its personal usefulness to you.

Throughout the semester, we will work as a large group, in small groups, and one-on-one in conferences to sharpen your reading, writing, and editing skills. Practice in these areas will serve you well throughout your university career, no matter what subject you pursue. Needless to say – your attendance is crucial to this learning process.

Learning Objectives

- To become aware that writing is a process and to develop your own.
- To write rhetorically astute papers in which paragraphs, sentences, and words develop to a central idea. Papers must reflect a command of the writing process.
- To gain an appreciation and understanding of the value of writing-to-learn. You will leave the course knowing the possibilities for learning that are inherent in writing regardless of your academic concentration.
- Evaluate how questions of purpose, audience, and genre have been addressed.
- To develop skills in critical reading and thinking in order to become a discerning reader, critic, and editor of your own work and that of others.
- To develop research skills by exploring and analyzing a variety of sources.
- Be able to annotate, paraphrase, summarize, quote, and synthesize written material accurately and ethically.

Policies

- Attendance is mandatory. Habitual tardiness is annoying and rude; if you are repeatedly late, I may ask you to see me after class. Moreover, your attendance naturally influences your success in the course, so missing will negatively impact your grade. Keep in mind that any group work, presentations, quizzes, activities, or in-class writing cannot be made up. I'm giving you two unexcused absences, which means you can miss and I don't need to know why. However, after two unexcused absences, I will deduct points from your attendance and participation grade. Excused absences must conform to EIU's University Policy that stipulates "properly verified absences due to illness, emergency, or participation in an official University activity" are recognized. Therefore, you must have legal, medical, or official University documentation for an absence to be excused. Students are responsible for all work that is due and covered in the sessions they miss. I don't take attendance lightly – neither should you.
- Hand papers in on time. Late papers will receive an automatic deduction of 10 points and will only be accepted one day late unless prior arrangements with me have been made. However, if you have a University-approved excuse, no point deduction will be enforced.
- Class participation is required. That is to say, being physically present in class is not enough. I expect you to contribute to and participate thoughtfully in class discussion. We are all working together, so the participation of each individual is crucial to the success of the whole. In addition, be prepared for class. In other words, finish all the readings or assignments for class and come with something to say. Participation is a major factor in your grade.
- TURN OFF ALL ELECTRONIC DEVICES BEFORE CLASS. iPods, cell phones, laptops, and etc. should all be turned off. Cell phones should be turned completely off (not put on vibrate), since vibrate mode is still disruptive. I'm giving you my attention during class, so I expect the same courtesy from you.
- The English Dept. policy on plagiarism states that any teacher who discovers plagiarism – "The appropriation or imitation of the language, ideas, and/or thoughts of another author and representation of them as one's original work" (Random House Dictionary of the English Language) – has the right and responsibility to impose upon the guilty student a suitable penalty, up to and including a grade of F for the assigned essay and a grade of NC for the course, and to report the incident to the Judicial Affairs Office.
- If you have a documented disability and wish to receive accommodations, contact the Coordinator of the Office of Disability Services (581-6583) ASAP. If you have a concern/ question about the class, don't hesitate to ask me. The best way to reach me is through email. If you need an immediate response, call me.

Essay Requirements and Grades

- To pass English 1001, you must complete all requirements and have a grade of A, B, or C. Anything below constitutes a grade of NC, no credit, and will result in you having to retake the course. (An NC is not factored into your GPA.)
- Turning in work – all assignments (unless in-class) must be typed and in MLA format. This means that this must be double-spaced and in 12-point font Times New Roman with 1-inch margins on all sides.
- Also, you are required to turn in your polished essays in a two-pocket folder. The polished, finished paper will go in the right pocket with your Revision Reflection. All drafts and pre-writing exercises belong in the left pocket.

EIU Writing Center

I strongly encourage you to use EIU's Writing Center located at 3110 Coleman Hall. This free service provides one-on-one conferences with writing center consultants (English Graduate Assistants) who can help you with brainstorming, organizing, developing support, and documenting your papers. They will help with any aspect of the writing process. Also, it helps sometimes just to have someone to talk to your paper about! You can walk in or call 581-5929 to schedule an appointment Monday-Thursday, 9am-3pm and 6pm-9pm, and Fridays 9am to 1pm.
