Local bars suspended

By DAVID M. PUTNEY
City editor

The city liquor commissioner hit two local bars with seven-day liquor-license suspensions for serving alcohol to a 19-year-old.

A representative of Stix, 1412 Fourth St., and a representative of Panther Lounge, 1421 Fourth St., both admitted to serving a 19-year-old police informant during a sting operation March 3. The violations were the second offenses for each bar in less than a year.

Cougill had the option of fining the bars $500 or ordering seven-day license suspensions. Since July, the city has issued 24 citations to bars for serving underage patrons.

A hearing for Stu's Surf Side, 1405 Fourth St., was postponed until 10 a.m. Thursday so the lawyer representing the bar can plan a legal defense. Stu's faces a 30-day suspension or a $1,000 fine if found guilty because another violation would mark Stu's third offense in the past year.

Roc's, 410 Sixth St., also received a citation for allegedly serving an underage police informant Friday. The offense would be Roc's third offense. If found guilty, the bar could also face a 30-day suspension or $1,000 fine.

Because Stix holds restaurant and bar liquor licenses, liquor commissioner Dan Cougill allowed alcohol sales to continue in the banquet room, which is separated from bar area.

"We need to be able to distinguish where the restaurant begins and ends," Cougill said. "We are going to define the area that exists where we can say the restaurant license applies."

When Stix was cited Oct. 21 for serving an underage police informant, City Attorney Brian Bower sought to suspend both of Stix's licenses because the restaurant and tavern areas were

New rule ends alcohol use at pledge functions

By BRIAN HUCHEL
Staff writer

Because of concerns surrounding the safety of fraternity and sorority pledges, the Office of Student Activities last week declared that pledges cannot be the focus of a function involving alcohol, said Eileen Sullivan, assistant director for the Office of Student Activities.

A memorandum distributed to each of Eastern's fraternities and sororities last Wednesday says that, "no alcohol shall be present at any pledge/associate member/novice program or activity of the chapter."

In addition, all pre-planned events must be changed if they violate the new policy.

Greek activities included in the memo are fraternity or sorority Mom's Nights, Dad's Nights, Big Brother Nights and Big Sister Nights. The new rule will be inserted as part of the "Guidelines for Fraternity's and Sorority's Use of Alcohol."

The policy change is to take effect immediately and is permanent, the memo said.

"It is an important policy change because, demographically, a majority of the new greeks are under the age of 21," Sullivan said. "Many students are still experimenting with alcohol and do not know their own limits."

"We want to try to make sure the bonds formed between new greeks and a fraternity or sorority are not liquid bonds," Sullivan added.

This policy change comes almost five months after a Pi Kappa Alpha Big Brothers Night ended with a pledge being hospitalized with a blood alcohol level of more than twice the legal limit.

Sullivan admitted the Pi Kappa Alpha incident, combined with the recent accident involving Delta Sigma Phi pledge Greg McCoy, who suffered caustic burns from a pile of lime after becoming intoxicated at a local tavern, spurred the Office of Student Activities to take action.

"Having two situations where new greek members under the age of 21 got inebriated at a function where pledges are a focus definitely played a small part in the decision," Sullivan said. "More than anything, it alerted the system that we (the Office of Student Activities) need to re-emphasize as to how and why fraternities and sororities assimilate new members."

Although Eastern's fraternities and sororities are self-governing in nature, Sullivan said the policy will still stand.

"All but a few of the groups contain this as a tenet of their national alcohol policies," Sullivan said. "Unfortunately,

Tax referendum could up voting

By TRAVIS SPENCER

The 1994 primary election in Coles County will be a success if 33 percent of registered voters come to the polls today, the Coles County Clerk said Monday.

A property-tax-hike referendum may bring more voters to the polls than if the ballot only contained contested races for candidacy, said Coles County Clerk Betty Coffrin, but the reasons voters don't cast ballots are sometimes hard to determine.

"I don't know if people will come vote for the school referendum question or because of the contested races," Coffrin said. "Only the voters know why they vote."

Coffrin said she thinks some voters shy away from the primary elections because they prefer not to declare a political party affiliation.

Today's election will ask voters to choose a Republican or Democratic ballot. Voters may also request a nonpartisan ballot to vote only for the property

2 student elections forums set

By ANDREA FREIDINGER
Staff writer

Two on-campus forums scheduled for April 14 and 19 will try to give students a better knowledge of Student Government and Student Senate candidates' platforms, the spring elections co-chairman said Monday.

Senate member Harvey Pettry, this spring's elections co-chairman, said one candidate forum is slated for 7 to 9 p.m. April 14 in Carman Hall. A second forum will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. April 19 in Coleman Hall.

Principal ousted for racial decision

WEDOWEE, Ala. (AP) — The high school principal whose students said he tried to ban interracial dates at their prom and told a mixed-race student she was a "mistake" was suspended Monday pending an investigation.

ReVonda Bowen, whose mother is black and father is white, said she burst into tears after Randolph County High School Principal Hulond Humphries made the remarks at a school assembly.

Four white Randolph County school board members joined the panel's only black member Monday night in voting to suspend Humphries with pay pending an "immediate, serious, in earnest and in full scope" investigation. The board's other two white members dissented.

About 500 people jammed the high school auditorium amid heavy security for the hearing. Civil rights leaders spoke on behalf of Ms. Bowen and the need for racial justice in schools. Humphries and Ms. Bowen did not attend.

More than half the crowd in the auditorium was black, and there were groans from some blacks when the recommendation was made to pay Humphries while he is under suspension. The board could have fired him.

Throughout the hearing, both blacks and whites were demonstrative, and some blacks carried placards, including one that read "Love knows no color." But the school board session ended in less than an hour with no serious disruptions.

Many supporters had rallied to Humphries' defense earlier. Over the weekend, parents and students formed a 100-car motorcade and waved signs at a rally in Wedowee.

Gene linked to food addiction

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A single gene may lie behind an addiction to food, alcohol or drugs, researchers said Monday.

"The environment shepherds people one way or another," said Dr. Ernest P. Noble, a professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences at the University of California, Los Angeles.

"If they're in a home that uses a lot of alcohol, they become alcoholics. If cocaine is around, they become cocaine users. If there's food as a way of giving a reward, those children might grow up to be obese."

His findings, published in Monday's Journal of Eating Disorders, center on a dopamine receptor gene that is responsible for sensations of pleasure or reward.

tax referendum.

In this primary election, the Charleston school district is asking for a 97-cent per $100 assessed valuation property tax boost for the local school district.

On the full ballot, nominations will be made for governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, treasurer, secretary of state and comptroller.

For the county, voters will decide on county clerk, sheriff, treasurer and seats on the count board.

Coffrin is running unopposed for re-election. Ronald Scott is running on the Democratic ballot and will face incumbent Sheriff Jim Kimball in the November election.

Bill Grimes is running for his third term as county treasurer.

forum site because freshmen tend to be more likely to vote, Pettry said.

The election will be held April 20.

Petry said the elections committee is hoping to improve the number of voters in the upcoming election. In last year's spring election, which featured a contested race for one of the five Student Government executive positions, a total of 1,624 votes were cast; 1,286 were on-campus and 338 were off-campus.

In this year's Student Government race, senate member Katina Gillespie and Blake Wood, Student Government's financial vice president, have both declared candidacy for student body president. Gillespie and Wood said they will have a full slate of senate and executive candidates.

"The competition will hopefully bring more voters out to support the party they feel is best qualified," Pettry said.

To entice more students to the polls, Pettry said, the election committee hopes to offer free prizes to voters.

Petry said issues he expects Student Government candidates to address during the two election forums include the city liquor task force's upcoming decision on the bar-entry age, a proposed child-care facility on campus, the Board of Governors' role in university governance, and how money from a proposed $31 student fee increase might be spent.

Petry said polling booths are expected to be set up in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union, Buzzard Building, Coleman Hall and the Student Recreation Center. The RHA has not decided if they will set up booths in residence halls.

Petry said the election committee is trying to set up a voting booth at the Library Quad in an attempt to attract more students to vote in the April 20 election.

The polls are tentatively planned to be open from 7:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. on April 20.

AB to resume budget cuts

By NATALIE GOTT
Staff writer

The Apportionment Board will continue to make cuts today in the 1994-95 school year budget, hoping to reach a goal of cutting at least $100,000.

The AB will meet at 7 p.m. in the Arcola-Tuscola Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

The AB is faced with budget requests totaling about $25,000. Based on this year's student enrollment figures and $14.50 per semester student activity fee, the AB has $114,000 available for next year's budget.

Last week the AB tentatively cut more than $60,000, said Chairman Blake Wood.

Included in the cuts was a $12,305 request to fund the salaries of three graduate assistants in the Office of Student Activities.

"We can still take further action," Wood said Monday. "Even if we reach the $314,000 goal, we can still go back to renew the cuts."

At the meeting, the AB will review budget requests from UB's Comedy, Homecoming, Human Potential, Lectures, Mini-Concerts and Movies committees.

At last week's meeting, the AB also reduced the Sports and Recreation Board request of $127,209 to $91,138 and cut its original student payroll request of $93,566 to $82,400.

The AB also eliminated the Sports and Recreation request of $15,000 for a new computer system.

"I sympathize with a need to update (their computer system) but in a tight fiscal year, we can't help it," said Gary Owen, an AB member.

The AB also cut $2,745 from the Student Government request of $31,725.

Of the cuts, $500 came from funding "What Has Student Government Done For Me Lately," a workshop the Student Government created this year to inform students and the public of the activities it offers.

Another $1,180 was cut from Student Government's promotions request.

The UB's general costs request of $18,485 was reduced to $15,205.

Get ready University prepares graduation ceremony

By MARK FORSTNEGER
Staff writer

Although the ceremonies are still two months away, university officials are making plans for this year's three commencement ceremonies.

Spring 1994 commencement will be held at 9 a.m., 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. on Saturday, May 14, in the Library Quad.

The march order for each ceremony is as follows: 9 a.m., Eastern's Graduate School and College of Sciences; 1 p.m., the College of Education and Professional Studies and the College of Arts and Humanities; and 5 p.m., the School of Adult and Continuing Education and the Lumpkin College of Business and Applied Sciences.

Steve Falk, vice president for institutional advancement, said he is not anticipating any problems with the commencement ceremonies.

"We always have problems with parking," Falk said. "We do not anticipate any special arrangements, but we encourage people to come early, park their car, and walk to the ceremony."

Falk also advised against parking in the Lantz Gymnasium parking lot.

In the event of bad weather, the ceremonies will be in Lantz Gymnasium, which has a maximum capacity of 4,000 people, according to Charleen Anderson, assistant director of alumni relations.

If the weather's bad, the President's Council will decide whether to hold the ceremony inside or outside, Falk said.

This year will mark the first time the university has held three ceremonies instead of two.

"We had to go to three ceremonies because we wouldn't have room for guests indoors (with two ceremonies)," Anderson said.

Graduating students will be able to obtain tickets for commencement after April 18 at the Linder House, Anderson said. Students should bring their IDs.

City to settle alley dispute

By TRAVIS SPENCER
Staff writer

After much discussion at its last meeting, the Charleston City Council will decide whether to turn over ownership of an alley to residents whose property borders it.

The council voted unanimously March 10 to place on file for public inspection an ordinance that would have relinquished all city property rights to half of an alley that runs north from Polk Avenue to Taylor Avenue. Residents in the area filed the petition because motorists were using the alley for a through road and parking.

The alley had been blocked off illegally by a resident.

If the entire alley is vacated, the change would cut off the driveway of Cheryl Levix, 219 Taylor Ave., one of the residents who organized the petition.

In other business, the City Council will consider:

- Approval of $3,325 for the Charleston Area Chamber of Commerce for the purchase of holiday lights and decorations for downtown Charleston and the lighting outline of Old Main. Both will be part of the Starflake Trail.

- Approval of $3,200 for advertising and printing expenses for Charleston's Red, White and Blue Days.

- Approval of $2,175 for the purchase of banners and mounting brackets for Eastern's centennial celebration.

- Approval of $1,000 for newspaper, television and radio advertising for the Annual All Gauge Train Show and Swap Meet in Charleston.

- Approval of $255 for newspaper advertising on June 4 and 5 for the Civil War Days Encampment and Living History event in Oakland. The tourism funds spent in Oakland will promote Charleston motels as a nearby location for overnight stays.

- The authorization of bids for water distribution materials. These include water main material, hydrants and related maintenance equipment.

- A contract for soil boring for the construction of the water and sewer project along Illinois Rt. 16 with Professional Service Industrial Inc.

Burn victim still critical

A student who received third-degree chemical burns March 6 is still in critical condition in a Springfield hospital.

Greg McCoy, 20, of Livingston, received third-degree burns over 63 percent of his body after he spent several hours unconscious in a pile of caustic lime behind a local welding supply store. Police said he had been drinking.

Police are still waiting to question McCoy to find out any information he has about how he ended up at the welding shop, eight blocks from where he was last seen.

IBHE questions to top Faculty Senate agenda

By AMY CARNES
Administration editor

A discussion of issues to ask Illinois Board of Higher Education Chairman Arthur Quern to address will top the agenda at today's Faculty Senate meeting.

The Faculty Senate will meet at 2 p.m. today in the Board of Governors Room of Booth Library.

Faculty Senate chairman Bill Addison said likely topics of discussion with Quern include the IBHE's awarding of bonuses for compliance with its Priorities, Quality and Productivity Initiative and the lack of funding for Booth Library's collection of books and scientific journals.

Quern will visit the senate on March 29.

Also at today's meeting, Jill Nilsen, special assistant to Eastern President David Jorns, will give a presentation on the university's strategic planning process.

Addison said he hopes to have some members of the Staff Senate attend today's meeting to talk about the university's mission statement.

He said the Faculty Senate has proposed adding the words "research, creative activity and service" to the portion of the mission statement that describes the role of faculty. The Staff Senate, however, has voted to recommend keeping the mission statement as it currently reads.

In other matters, ballots for the spring election were mailed Monday and should be received by faculty today or Wednesday, Addison said.

He said candidate statements for each person running for a seat on the senate will be attached to the minutes of this week's meeting. There are 10 candidates vying for five vacancies on the senate next fall.

Clarification

The Page 1 article on the property-tax referendum in Monday's edition of The Daily Eastern News was misleading in reporting possible rent hikes. If the referendum is approved, a 24-unit apartment building that currently pays $9,858 in taxes will pay $11,045. This translates into an increase of less than $7 per unit per month, if the increase is even passed on to the renters. These figures are from the City Clerk's Office.

Eastern made the best of a tragic situation

Eastern experienced a tragedy last week when it lost one of its own, but it also proved itself to be up to the challenge of dealing with a tragedy in a responsible and rational manner.

Lou Rainaldi, 20, a sports medicine major from Darien died March 7 from meningococemia, a blood infection caused by meningitis-related bacteria.

Editorial

Rainaldi was the second student in two years to die of meningitis. Eastern sophomore Peter G. Giese died in February 1992 of the same form of meningitis.

While the two tragedies were very similar, the events that followed each incident were very different. Giese's death caused widespread panic for many students; more than 6,000 went to Health Service to receive Rifampin, the medicine used to prevent meningitis, in the days immediately following Giese's death.

This time was different. During the first few days following Rainaldi's death, only about 250 students went to Health Service to receive preventive medicine. The student population was immediately informed of the symptoms and risks of the disease, and the vast majority dealt with the tragedy rationally and remained calm.

The two incidents also differed in the ways the discovery of the illness was handled. No one suspected Giese might have had the disease until he was found dead by his roommate in the residence hall room they shared.

Rainaldi was taken to the hospital by Mike Walker, a pre-med major who lived across the hall from him and recognized his symptoms as possible meningitis. It was a case of a student actually applying what he had learned in class in a life-threatening situation.

Health Service also proved to be up to the challenge. It had enough Rifampin on hand to treat 250 patients, more than enough to treat those who had come within immediate contact with Rainaldi and were therefore the most at risk.

The university and its students made the most of a bad situation last week, and for that we can be proud.

TODAY'S QUOTE

Death is always and under all circumstances a tragedy, for if it is not, then life itself has become one.

Theodore Roosevelt

Communication cause for misunderstanding

Communication makes the world go around, or so an old saying goes.

Actually, that old saying might be something more along the lines of "love makes the world go around," but that's a subject for another day somewhere far, far in the future. So for now, I'll just borrow the saying, with apologies to whoever it was who said it in the first place, and make the necessary revisions to make the saying fit the topic at hand — communication, or more specifically, how it can fail.

Communication is our way of relaying information and expressing ideas. It's the best and really the only method we have for voicing our likes and dislikes and letting those around us know the important things they need to know, like if their hair happens to be on fire.

But the problem with communication is that it often inevitably leads to miscommunication and misunderstanding. We say or write things that seem perfectly clear to us, but appear incomprehensible or illogical to others.

People have had trouble communicating with one another since the beginning of time when the first caveman climbed out of his cave, peered at the first cavewoman pointing at a rock and uttered the immortal phrase, "Huh?" And it has been downhill ever since then.

As most of us know firsthand, there are few things more frustrating than being misunderstood. Whether it be in casual conversation, speech class, a paper written for class, or even a column for The Daily Eastern News, we like to believe we know what we're talking about and that others will understand and believe also.

It's agonizing to spend hours or sometimes even days formulating and polishing an argument, only to discover later that your message was completely misunderstood. It's annoying to learn that your efforts were misinterpreted to mean something entirely different from what you meant.

Sherry Sidwell

"There are few things more frustrating than being misunderstood."

People who read my writing regularly may or may not have noticed that I tend to write in a rather sarcastic vein.

But reading through the letters to the editor mailbag last week, I learned something about sarcasm. Many people just don't get it. And when people begin to take sarcasm at face value and look for meaning in that interpretation, a basis of miscommunication is established.

Normally, I enjoy reading the letters we receive here at the News. Whether the letter writers agree or disagree with what we said, letters let us know that readers sometimes have opinions just as strong and often just as valid as our own.

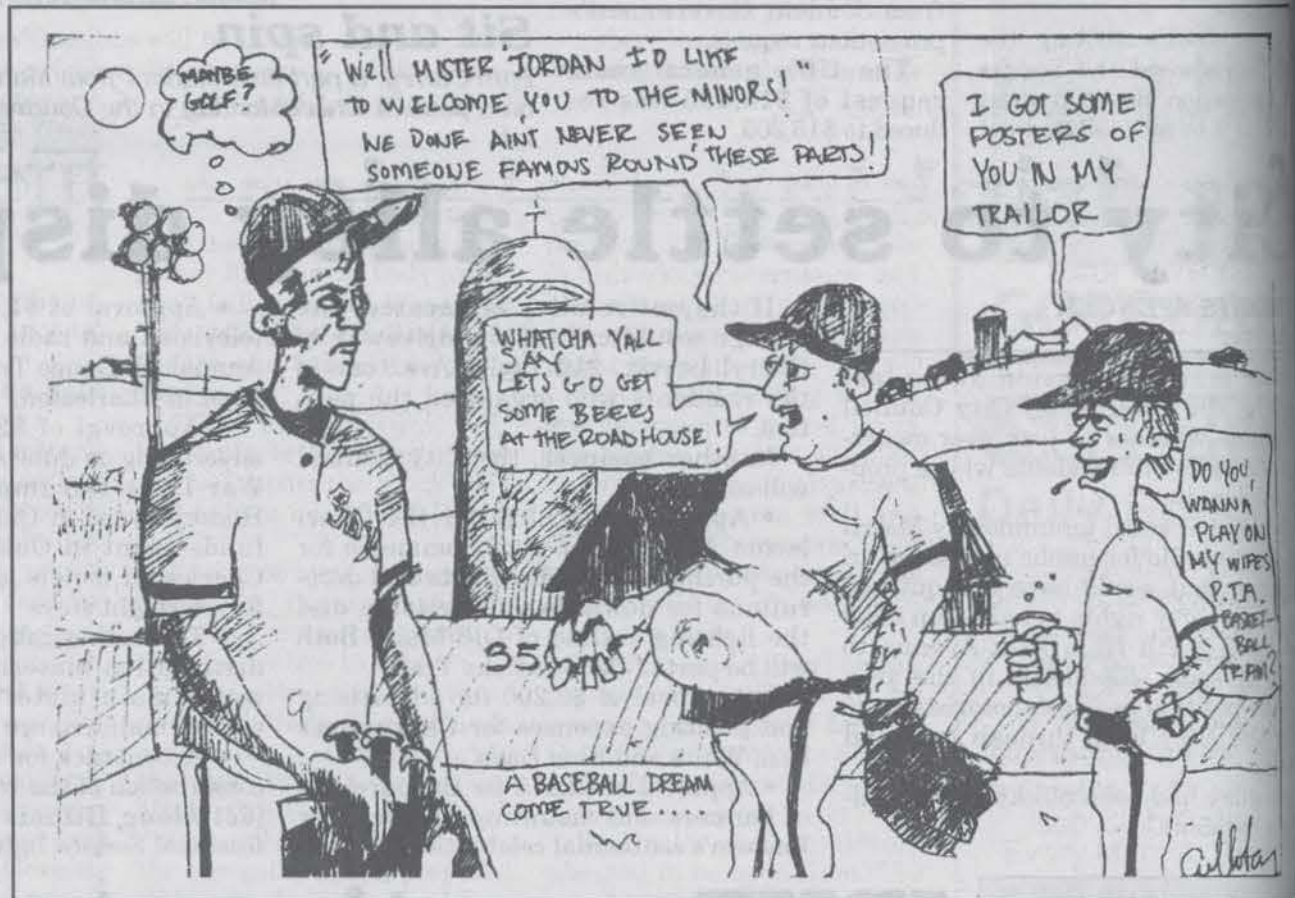

Much harder to stomach, however, are scathing letters written by people who apparently do take sarcastic exaggerations at face value to mean a belief in something that couldn't be farther from the truth.

Last week, for example, several readers took what considered to be relatively innocent comments on a public breast-feeding protest in a shopping mall to mean that I find such things offensive and believe that breast-feeding women should stay home out of sight.

Hardly. I would hope most readers would recognize my sarcasm for what it was — an attempt at a laugh on a not-so-serious subject and nothing more.

But then, with communication problems being what they are, how can we know for sure?

Reader is tired of reading about mayor and his agenda

Dear editor:

I am writing in response to every article The Daily Eastern News has ever written concerning Charleston Mayor Dan Cougill. I don't know about everyone else, but I for one am tired of reading about Cougill and his morality crackdowns. This newspaper should be devoted to reporting news about the students, not be a bulletin for the crappy mayor and his Christian coalition to promote their agenda.

As far as raising the bar-entry age, I've got news for Dan Cougill — it doesn't matter. All of my other underage friends and I will be drinking it up next year, and if Cougill has a problem with it, he can take it in his ear.

Your turn

And what's more, I can't believe the lack of respect that is shown towards the students here at Eastern by various influential members of the Charleston community. If it weren't for the revenue generated by the student body and the school itself, a great deal of people in this town (including Cougill) would be out of a job. It's about time people in Charleston start checking their wallets and realize where their money is coming from.

Support school referendum in Tuesday election

Dear editor:

In the brochure for the Charleston Community Unit School District No. 1 referendum to be held March 15, I stated, "Charleston schools have a fine reputation for quality programs as well as a dedicated staff. This certainly helps when we recruit employees to the university."

A strong Charleston school system adds to the vitality of Eastern, especially as the university delivers services to many Eastern students involved in student teaching, classroom observations, graduate assistantships and internship programs in the school district.

In order to maintain and improve the quality of educational programs offered in the school district, more revenue is needed. I request that you consider supporting the referendum in Tuesday's election.

Candidate for dean here today

The third candidate for the dean of the College of Arts and Humanities will be on campus for interviews today.

Students will have an opportunity to meet with candidate Stephen Steinberg and ask him questions from 11 a.m. to 11:50 a.m. in the Arcola/Tuscola Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Steinberg, who currently serves as the assistant to the president at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, is the third of four candidates to interview for the dean position.

Last week, Margaret Merrion and Jeffrey Buller were on campus for interviews. Merrion is the dean of the College of Fine Arts and a professor of music at Ball State University. Buller is the associate dean of arts and sciences and an associate professor at Georgia Southern University.

Illinois races excite no one

CHICAGO (AP) - Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, one of the most powerful men on Capitol Hill, faces the toughest election of his 36-year congressional career in Tuesday's Illinois primary.

And in the campaign for governor, voters could reward a risky campaign tactic by handing the Democratic nomination to a candidate proposing a $2.5 billion tax increase.

Despite such contests, the election seems to excite few voters.

Polls consistently show large numbers of undecideds, and state election officials predict fewer than 30 percent of registered voters will turn out.

Haunted by allegations that he pocketed taxpayer and campaign funds, Rostenkowski was considered vulnerable for the first time in decades. Challengers were quick to take advantage.

State Sen. John Cullerton and former Alderman Dick Simpson tried to ignite anti-incumbent sentiment by portraying Rostenkowski as the ultimate insider, pampered and unfeeling.

"Rosty" has fought back with a parade of influential supporters, including President Clinton and Republican Gov. Jim Edgar, who say Illinois and the country need the Chicago Democrat leading the Ways and Means Committee.

On Monday, he greeted voters with former vice presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro. Rostenkowski has kept up a busy campaign schedule as polls have depicted a tight race.

A Chicago Tribune poll taken about two weeks ago showed Rostenkowski supported by 27 percent of likely voters, Cullerton with 23 percent and Simpson with 13 percent. Thirty-one percent were undecided. The poll's margin of error was plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Renowned for his ability to bring his district federal money, Rostenkowski has recently delivered a federal job-training center and on Monday an emergency rescue helicopter.

Pollster Richard Day said such clout may be enough to re-elect Rostenkowski, particularly in a low-turnout election where his allies in Chicago's Democratic organization play a big role.

Candidate wants to be staff representative on senate

Editor's note: This is another in a series of articles profiling 10 candidates running in the Faculty Senate elections this week.

Fielding opinions from fellow faculty members in her department and representing them as honestly and fully as possible would be the primary goal of Faculty Senate candidate Deborah Wolf, if elected.

"I hope I can contribute to what the Faculty Senate does and some of the recommendations they make," Wolf said.

She said some of the current Faculty Senate issues she finds important are President David Jorns' strategic plan, the department-chairmen retention policy and enrollment management policies.

If elected, she said she would focus her attention first on becoming familiar with everyone on the senate.

"(I would) become fully informed on the issues they are dealing with and then give input," Wolf said.

Wolf, an assistant professor of physical education, serves on her department's Curriculum Committee and its Assessment Committee, the university Governance Structure Committee, the College of Education and Professional Studies Knowledge-Based Committee and the Booth Library Advisory Board.

Whitewater fallout claims Clinton ally

WASHINGTON (AP) - Associate Attorney General Webster Hubbell, a longtime friend of President and Mrs. Clinton, resigned Monday, saying distractions from a probe at his former law firm "will interfere with my service to the country."

Hubbell was the second high-ranking Clinton official to resign in just over a week. White House Counsel Bernard Nussbaum quit under fire on March 5 after revelations of White House briefings with federal regulators who are investigating an Arkansas savings and loan with ties to the Clintons.

The president said Hubbell had done valuable work at the Justice Department but "he made the right decision" to resign and return home to Arkansas to deal with an investigation into billings he charged while in private law practice.

Attorney General Janet Reno said his departure would be a loss for the Justice Department, where he has been the No. 3 official for nine months.

Hubbell did not attend Reno's news conference, but released a statement recalling the "wonderful journey" he took from Little Rock, Ark., to Washington a year ago when Clinton was inaugurated.

He lamented that "private issues" involving his billings at the Rose Law Firm in Little Rock, where he and Hillary Rodham Clinton were partners, were "elevated to public speculation." He said he was confident the dispute would be resolved satisfactorily.

The law firm has been investigating whether Hubbell overbilled clients. He has denied doing so and has said he was cooperating with the firm's probe.

Hubbell recused himself last fall from any role in the department's investigation of the Clintons' investment in the Whitewater Development Corp., the co-owner of which also owned Madison Guaranty Savings & Loan.

The Rose firm had represented Madison in the past, and Hubbell later sued an accounting firm blamed in the thrift's failure on behalf of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Hubbell said he would "stand and take the blows from wherever they came" if they affected only him.

U.S. gunship crashes One crewman dead, 10 missing

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) - An American AC-130 aerial gunship crashed into the Indian Ocean off the Kenyan coast Monday, killing one crewman and leaving 10 missing.

Three other crew members were plucked from the water by rescuers, said Army Col. Steve Rausch. Kenyan divers and fishing boats, as well as several U.S. aircraft, were continuing the search.

The plane had taken off from Mombasa, Kenya, and was on its way to Somalia "to conduct a routine mission" in support of U.S. forces there, said a Pentagon spokesman, Cmdr. Joe Gradisher, in Washington. There were no early indications that the plane went down due to hostile fire.

Rausch said the crash would be investigated, but it seemed to be the result of a malfunction.

The AC-130 is a heavily armed version of the four-engined C-130 cargo plane, one of the workhorses of the U.S. military.

Four AC-130s have been operating since June from Kenya's port city of Mombasa. Kenya borders Somalia to the south and has long served as a base for both U.S. military and humanitarian efforts aimed at Somalia.

Alternative spring break

Students volunteer time, effort during week's vacation

By KRISTINA WOODS
Staff writer

Spring break usually conjures images of a weeklong party filled with sun, sand, and members of the opposite sex and night clubs.

But not for everyone. Some Eastern students plan to take up an increasingly popular form of respite from classes by donating their time to philanthropic work in needy communities.

Through so-called "alternative" spring-break programs, students are offered a chance to help build homes for the needy or clean up communities still recovering from last summer's Mississippi flooding.

Jennifer Brenna is volunteering for the second time this year and will work in Illinois flood-relief projects. She will be among 37 students who will take part in a program sponsored by the Newman Catholic Center.

"I really enjoy making a contribution even though I don't have any money," she said. "College students don't usually have much money, but at least I could contribute my time."

The trips are cheaper than most vacations, with some costing less than $100, and appeal to students who want to contribute to humanitarian projects.

The Newman Center program will send students to five sites around the country from Michigan to Georgia next week, said graduate student Holly Walters, a coordinator of the program.

Some students will work in continuing flood-relief efforts, Walters said, adding that the Army Corp of Engineers anticipates more flooding in Illinois this year.

"If that flooding occurs before our spring break, our students will be sandbagging at that site," she said. They will also clean houses and help flood victims return to their homes.

Senior Lisa Vonderheide is a second-year volunteer who said the alternative-type of spring break suits her much better than a typical vacation because she would tire of sun and sand after a while.

"For me the 'typical' spring break wouldn't be as fun," she said. "This type of work makes me feel much better about the world, and I'm making a difference."

Students will also travel to Battle Creek, Mich., where they will renovate homes for Habitat for Humanity.

Sophomore Nicole Mark will spend her first alternative spring break trip in Battle Creek. She got involved with the program because friends last year talked about what a great time they had.

"I do a lot of volunteer work at home, and this just seemed to fit in," Mark said.

Elsewhere, in Kentucky, students will join a group of permanent volunteers and the people of Appalachia to work in a home-building program, Walters said.

The most popular of the five sites is a Sioux YMCA in Dupree, S.D., where the students will stay with residents in an Indian reservation. They will work on community projects the YMCA organizes, Walters said.

"They will be working a lot with children and will experience a lot of cultural things," she said. "They will get to go to a pow-wow."

In Atlanta, Ga., students will work a homeless-shelter soup kitchen for the first part of the break and then travel to an Appalachian Habitat for Humanity in Robins, Tenn., where they will build or rehabilitate homes, Walters said.

First-time volunteer freshman Krista Erickson said she has enjoyed previous work with homeless people and enjoyed it. The experience, she hopes, could also add to her background in sociology, her major.

Roger Songer of the Christian Campus House said his organization will take a group of 20 to 30 students on a missions trip to Indianapolis, where they will renovate a house into a youth center. Work will include painting, carpentry work, landscaping and general clean-up, said Songer.

Songer said this is the first trip offered for spring break, although the Campus House has offered similar trips over the Christmas break for 10 years.

"We haven't done things over spring break previously because it's so short a time," said Songer. "But it was a popular demand. Students wanted to do something."

The Newman Center trip is inexpensive compared to similar projects other universities offer, Walters said. The cost is $70 and includes travel, lodging and food for the week.

Students will be responsible for their own expenses for the trip, but transportation will be provided.

Walters said two openings are still available for the Illinois flood-relief trip. Anyone interested may call her at 348-0230.

Packwood hands over his diaries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Bob Packwood conceded defeat in a legal fight over his diaries Monday, agreeing to turn them over to the Senate Ethics Committee for its investigation into allegations of sexual and official misconduct.

Packwood, R-Ore, said in a statement he was ending a challenge to a district court order that he provide the panel with the diaries, tapes and transcripts it subpoenaed last year.

Supreme Court Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist earlier this month rejected his request to postpone transfer of the diaries to the committee pending a hearing of his appeal before the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The appeals hearing was scheduled for May, but by then the diaries already would have been in the hands of the committee.

Packwood had contended the subpoena for the diaries was a violation of his Fourth Amendment right to privacy and his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

He said in the statement Monday: "Fortunately, in this country we solve our disputes in court, rather than through armed revolution. While I am disappointed in, and disagree with the court's decision, I will nonetheless abide by it."

"However, it frightens me to think that the private thoughts, hopes, dreams and despairs of all our citizens can now be seized by the government.

Israel continues attack on Jewish extremists

JERUSALEM (AP) — The crackdown against Jewish extremists focused Monday on Hebron, site of the mosque massacre, with police confiscating automatic weapons from Jews and briefly detaining a leading rabbi.

Although the massacre shocked Israelis across the political spectrum, they expressed discomfort Monday with seeing Jews being jailed without trial and with their views being outlawed. The Israeli Cabinet on Sunday ordered the measures — long applied only to Arab enemies — applied to Jewish extremists.

Israeli negotiators and U.S. Middle East coordinator Dennis Ross met with PLO leader Yasser Arafat in Tunisia to discuss resuming negotiations about the issues that have blocked the Israel-PLO peace accord from being implemented.

Those talks broke off after the Feb. 25 killing of 30 Muslim worshippers by a Jewish settler at the mosque in the Tomb of the Patriarchs in the occupied West Bank.

Rabbi Moshe Levinger, 59, was questioned about an incident in November, when soldiers said he barged into a Muslim area of the Tomb — which is holy to both Muslims and Jews — against army orders to stay out. He also threatened an Islamic religious official, said Moshe Mizrahi, commander of Judea police.

Levinger was released on $1,700 bond and is to appear in a Jerusalem court Tuesday. His wife was questioned about throwing eggs and knocking down Palestinian market stalls in Hebron last October, Mizrahi said.

A founder of the Gush Emunim (Block of the Faithful) settlement movement, Levinger served three months in jail in 1990 for shooting dead a Palestinian shoe salesman in response to a stoning attack.

Police said they were seeking to confiscate 23 army-issued submachine guns in the occupied lands, out of 9,000 a senior general said were distributed there. Many settlers also have pistols.

Liberal and conservative lawmakers were critical of the decision to jail eight followers of late extremist Rabbi Meir Kahane without putting them on trial and the outlawing of their political views.

One leader of his Kach party, Baruch Marzel, remains at large.

Parliament's Law and Justice Committee questioned Attorney General Michael Ben-Yair about the measures.

"It wasn't an easy decision to cancel basic rights," Ben-Yair said.

Football star also looks to catch on in baseball

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — The scenario is strikingly familiar — the most dominant player in his league, an MVP, suddenly shifts gears in mid-career and takes up baseball.

Damon Allen has no Michael Jordan fixation. He's simply carrying out a fantasy he's had ever since he and brother Marcus were growing up in San Diego, playing whichever sport was in season, and playing it well.

Marcus is the better known Allen in this country.

But imagine Joe Montana or Dan Marino leaving the NFL to try out with a baseball team, and that's the impact Allen's signing with the Pittsburgh Pirates has had in Canada.

Allen, who is 6-foot-3 and 185 pounds, isn't just any quarterback, but the Grey Cup MVP for the Edmonton Eskimos — a player with 25,000 career passing yards and a $500,000 contract for 1994.

Now, it's baseball season, and Damon Allen again wants to be the pitcher. But he's 30 ancient for a baseball rookie, and he's temporarily put his football career on hold.

There's no Jordan-like entourage surrounding him, no thousands of screaming fans in the stands. He was just another of the 75 pitchers in the Pirates' minor league camp until a Canadian passed the word around — hey, this guy is a star. Now, Allen fields as many questions about Canadian football as he does bunts during fielding practice.

"That guy had to open his mouth and tell everybody that I was a superstar," Allen said.

"Since then, everybody keeps asking me about the league and the rules and playing football. Some of these guys are going to be serious CFL fans."

He was surprised by one previously unconsidered aspect of baseball.

"It's a lot harder than football," he said. "Football, we might practice 90 minutes. Baseball, it's four to five hours with a lot of running, a lot of running. I've got to get used to that. If I go back to football, I'll be in good shape."

When — or if — he goes back to football may be determined by how many fans he develops in Pittsburgh's front office. The Pirates have been low-keying Allen's presence in camp, but minor-league pitching coach Pete Vuckovich thinks he has a big league-level fastball and slider.

No sex for Swiss booters

GENEVA (AP) — No sex please, we're Swiss.

The coach of Switzerland's World Cup soccer team wants his players to be celibate during this summer's tournament in the United States.

Roy Hodgson, a Briton who has led Switzerland to its first World Cup appearance in 28 years, says his team's hotel will be off-limits to wives and girlfriends. Computer games and billiards are envisaged for leisure time.

Hodgson's edict prompted headlines such as "No Sex Please, The Manager's British."

"I don't even want to talk about such idiotic polemics," Hodgson said Monday. "I'm only thinking about soccer — and in the United States we can achieve a once-in-a-lifetime performance, if we concentrate on sport."

Hodgson's perfectionist philosophy has led reporters to compare him to Sir Alf Ramsey, who coached England to the 1966 World Cup title. While Hodgson commands respect from his players, some of their female companions are less than thrilled by his no-sex policy.

"A sex ban? It's a joke, a kindergarten game," said 24-year-old Nicole Arm, the girlfriend of midfielder Ciriaco Sforza.

Marianne Bregy, the 35-year-old wife of veteran Georges Bregy, was less perturbed.

"I don't believe Mr. Hodgson will implement the ban at the finals. We're certain to find a moment when we can meet our husbands," she said.

Psychologists, sexologists and sports experts remain divided over the benefits of abstinence. Some say that sex saps the energy and should be discouraged. Others say that if players feel satisfied, their performance improves.

In a country with a reputation for hot-blooded Latin lovers, Italy's former head coach, Azeglio Vicini, ordered his players to stay celibate during the 1990 World Cup. Italy finished third and Vicini was replaced the following year by Arrigo Sacchi, who isn't planning a sex ban this summer.

While his players contemplate giving up sex, Hodgson worries he won't be able to light up his cigars.

"Where will I be able to relax with a cigar in fanatical anti-smoking America?" said the 46-year-old, known for his love of expensive cigars, fine wines and gourmet cooking.

Vikings release McMahon

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — Jim McMahon was deemed too expensive by the Minnesota Vikings, who on Monday cut the quarterback they had hoped would put them in the Super Bowl.

McMahon, who will be 35 before next season, could still return to the Vikings but would do so on their terms. Now an unrestricted free agent, McMahon could join his fourth team since the Chicago Bears traded him in 1989.

The Phoenix Cardinals, coached by former Bears assistant Buddy Ryan, reportedly are interested in the one-time "punk QB," who guided Chicago to its only Super Bowl but has been hurt in each of his 12

Haynes signs with Saints

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Michael Haynes, one of the NFL's most dangerous wide receivers, officially became a New Orleans Saint today when the Atlanta Falcons declined to match a $10 million, four-year offer.

"He is a Saint," Ricky Zeller, spokesman for the New Orleans franchise, said this morning.

Haynes had 72 receptions for 778 yards and four touchdowns in 1993, including a 98-yard touchdown catch against the Saints.

Haynes was a transitional player for the Falcons, meaning after he signed the Saints offer sheet, the Falcons had the right of first refusal. To keep him they would have to have matched the Saints' offer.

The Saints offered Haynes the four-year contract on March 4.

NFL seasons.

"When Denny Green and I talked to Jim this morning, we told him we were not closing the door on him,"

Vikings vice president Jeff Diamond said. "We are simply electing not to exercise our option on his second year."

Jordan not only two-sport star this spring

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — The scene is strikingly familiar — the most dominant player in his league, an MVP, suddenly shifts gears in mid-career and signs up baseball.

Damon Allen has no Michael Jordan. He's simply carrying out a fantasy he's had ever since he and brother Marcus were growing up in San Diego, playing whichever sport was in season, and playing it well.

The Pirates have been low-keying Allen's presence in camp, but minor-league pitching coach Pete Vuckovich thinks he has a big league-level fastball and slider.

The hangups, of course, are his age and the fact he hasn't played competitive baseball since he was 3-2 with a 3.60 ERA and four saves for Cal State-Fullerton in 1984, when he was a seventh-round pick of the Tigers.

sports (football and men's basketball) have got the money in them."

Thompson said he has not been actively seeking a job elsewhere and that he applied for the Eastern athletic director job because the school has a football team with a vastly different demographic composition than UTSA.

"Eastern has) some things that we don't have (at UTSA)," Thompson said. "You have a traditional campus, and we have a commuter campus. You have football and you have tradition. You're almost 100 years old."

Thompson said he believes Eastern needs to find a stable conference to call home, remain at the NCAA Division I level and bring itself into line with gender equity requirements as they continue to develop.

One area Thompson has drawn criticism in is his handling of gender equity compliance at UTSA.

"I haven't met anybody who I believe is against equity," Thompson said. "The problem is how do you do it, and what does it actually mean?"

"I think it's going to go to court, and I think it's going to be decided there. I don't want it to, but it wouldn't surprise me."

Thompson boasted of the athletic success UTSA teams have had since he arrived there.

"It's not a win-at-all-costs program, but we are certainly interested in winning," Thompson said. "That's why they keep score."

Thompson, an Oklahoma native, has also been athletic director at the University of Nebraska at Omaha and at Fort Hays State University. He served as head football coach at UNO and assistant football coach at Oklahoma State University.

Thompson will meet with the Student Athletic Advisory Board from 8 to 8:50 a.m. today, with deans, directors, chairpersons and the Council of University Administrators from 9 to 9:50 a.m. and with the Athletic Director Search Committee from 10 to 11:15 a.m., all in the 1895 Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

He will then meet with Eastern President David Jorns from 11:30 a.m. to noon before leaving this afternoon.

qualifiers Rich Murry and Eirik Gustafson, who experienced injuries around early in 1994 and were able to get back in the groove and made well down the stretch.

Along with Daubach and Murry, McCausland will lose seniors Chris Edwards, Cornell Thomas, Steve Smerz and John

Wentz. While McCausland has begun the process of filling the voids left by his seniors, he said their leadership and good work ethic will be missed the most.

"They (seniors) had good attitudes, and there were never any qualms or questions about what was to be done," McCausland said. "We're always 'team first.'"

Thomas had a tremendous year at 158 pounds, finishing with a 20-19 record and a fourth-place finish at the regional tournament.

Also contributing a great deal were freshmen Bee and Tony Duncan.

Duncan ended his rookie year with a 23-16 record and also placed in six major tournaments.

Bee was burdened with a rib injury for a large part of the season but did finish fourth in the 167-pound bracket at regionals and will provide McCausland with strong leadership for years to come.

Although McCausland is losing six strong seniors, he is confident in the returning wrestlers and knows the future looks good.

"We've got a great nucleus coming back," McCausland said. "I feel pretty positive."

Regionals, he became very depressed because he had wrestled so well this year.

"I was depressed to the point of being sick," said Gustafson. "Coach gave me two days off and I didn't plan on coming back for a while because I was kind of burned out and I was really mad at all the effort I put in for the year and then I lost that match 1-0."

Gustafson finished with a 19-13 record and did so after recovering from a knee injury which still hampers him from time to time.

Gustafson, along with teammates Joe Daubach and Rich Murry, will start competition in the National Tournament on Thursday.

north as Wisconsin.

With such a strenuous task at hand, and lack of experience returning in the fall, all head coach Betty Ralston can be is optimistic.

"This is a very tough schedule," Ralston admitted. "We get two of the top 35 teams in the power rankings to start off the season. Then we get Wisconsin (51) and Idaho (56) the next weekend."

"Next we have DePaul (53), Northern Illinois (19) and South Florida (26). So we'll definitely see what we are made of. Every match will be a challenge."

The Power rankings, used by the NCAA for all college sports, goes by the 25/50/25 system: The first 25 percent is based on the individual teams' winning percentage. The next 50 percent is based on the opponents winning percentage. And the final 25 percent is based on the opponent's winning percentage.

The power rankings are also used for seedings in postseason tournaments.

"Last year we finished 84th, which is the highest we ever reached," Ralston said. "To be in the top 100 is our goal for this season. But that will be tough to accomplish because we have so much youth."

"And especially with this schedule, Kaaryn (Sadler) and Sherri (Piwowarczyk) are going to have to step up their game a lot. The freshman recruits we have aren't seniors, nor are they expected to play like seniors."

But what disappoints Ralston the most about the schedule is the two Sunday matches that the team will have to play which directly follow a weekend tournament, not to mention the extra nights spent in hotel rooms.

"It's not a good schedule for the kids," Ralston said. "We're going to be burned out in these Sunday games after long weekends. And having eight home matches is also tough."

"It's what we got for the season, though."

But the current situation causes Ralston to look ahead in hopes for more home matches in the following fall season.

"I'm waiting for next season where we can have a lot of home matches and not so many road trips," Ralston said. "Then hopefully we can get the Panther Classic back."

"But there was nothing we could do about the away tournaments," she said. "It was too late to do anything as far as scheduling any home tournaments because we were up in their waiting for what was happening in the Mid-Con."

And the four tournaments are tough in more ways than one. Three of the four will be five-team tournaments, which according to Ralston, virtually disappeared because nobody liked playing two matches in a day.

And the Lady Panthers will have to adapt to new conference opponents in the restructured Mid-Con: Northeastern Illinois, Missouri-Kansas City and Chicago State. They will also face current Mid-Con members Western Illinois and Valparaiso, which Ralston believes to be the favorite next season.

"Valpo has to be looked at as the conference favorite," Ralston said. "They made the final four of the Mid-Con tournament and they didn't lose anybody (to graduation)."

"And we're younger than Valpo," she added. "They didn't lose a center like we did (Amy Van Eekeren). That puts us at a disadvantage."

regionals gets injured and can not compete.

His luck would have it, that scenario played out for Gustafson.

Kevin Bracken, the 142-pound regional champion from Illinois State, was sidelined with appendicitis, thus opening the spot for Gustafson.

"I feel pretty lucky," Gustafson said of his being chosen. "I didn't expect it (to be chosen) at all."

against everybody else, and we always seem to play strong against the Panthers.

"We've had trouble with them in the past," said Panther skipper Dan Callahan. "The last time we faced them they really kicked our tails (a 17-8 loss last year). We've been trying to break that trend the last four or five years, and we're hoping to finally get it done this year."

Junior righthander Willy Hilton will take the hill against the Illini this afternoon. Hilton was one of the Panther hurlers who pitched well over the weekend at Middle Tennessee State, going two-plus innings, allowing no runs and striking out five.

"Hilton was probably the only bright spot on our pitching staff this weekend," said Callahan. "Most of the pitchers that went on the trip with us weren't as effective as they're capable of being, and Willy was the lone bright spot."

Even though Callahan was pleased with Hilton's performance, he doesn't hold the same impression for the rest of the staff. Eastern was outscored by Middle Tennessee in the three-game series 25-13, and even though the Panthers did make six errors in the series, Callahan said his pitchers were unable to pitch their way out of jams like they need to.

"Our problem was not so much defense as it was pitching," Callahan said. "I'm disappointed the pitchers have not done a good job. We need to concentrate a little more, and we have to learn to pitch around mistakes. Our pitching was a question mark coming into the season, and the it concerns me a little bit."

"We've got to get a guy to step to the forefront and get the job done. The majority of the problem is not a defensive breakdown, but the inability to make the quality pitch in a crucial situation."

Wrestlers begin process of rebuilding

While three of Eastern's wrestlers are heading to the national tournament this weekend, the others are left to help them practice and to rebuild for next year.

Coach Ralph McCausland's team finished with a 6-6 dual meet record and although the team had a mediocre showing at the regional tournament, McCausland was pleased with his team's efforts this season.

"Overall, I thought we were pretty successful," McCausland said. "On paper, when we started off it looked really good, but things changed."

Gustafson going to nationals

Last Thursday junior Eirik Gustafson heard some news he thought would never come.

He was in the NCAA National Wrestling Tournament to be held this weekend in Chapel Hill, N.C.

Gustafson originally earned a first alternate position after finishing third in the 118-pound weight class at the Regional competition March 5 in Springfield, Mo.

A first alternate only gets a chance to wrestle in the National Tournament if one of the 20 wrestlers who qualified from

The squad was hit with a large number of injuries this year, and, according to McCausland, it became quite a chore to make out the starting lineup.

"This year we probably had what I considered the strongest lineup in there maybe three times," McCausland said.

A number of Eastern's starters were injured at one time or another during the season and some missed a lot of matches.

"That was a bit frustrating," McCausland said of his starters missing a lot of mat time.

Freshman Joe Bee was out of the lineup at 167 pounds for most of the end of the season and his replacement, Tim Fix, broke his wrist in a match against Southwest Missouri State.

Final A.D. candidate visits campus

Embattled Thompson interviews

By ROBERT MANKER
Associate sports editor

The fourth candidate to interview for the vacant position of Eastern athletic director said Monday he believes he could do the job if selected, despite an array of charges that have been leveled against him.

Bobby Thompson, athletic director at Texas-San Antonio, has been the target of various accusations from at least one former UTSA employee since his name was released as a finalist last month. Other accusations made against Thompson date as far back as 1989.

Thompson, 57, has been accused of numerous NCAA violations, attempted cover ups and undue firings while at UTSA. He has been athletic director there since 1988.

"If all that stuff is true, do you think I'd still be (at UTSA)," Thompson asked. "Do you think (UTSA) would have just given me a new five-year contract?"

"If that stuff was true, the NCAA would be coming down all over me."

Thompson arrived in the Charleston area Sunday afternoon amid rumors that he would not be coming for his interview as scheduled.

He was quoted in the March 5 edition of the San Antonio News-Express as saying he had decided not to visit Eastern but that he had not yet informed Eastern officials of his decision. But in a phone interview last Thursday, Thompson said he still planned to visit Eastern and subsequently arrived Sunday afternoon.

The controversial Thompson spent Monday in interviews with various campus constituencies. In an afternoon interview with students, Thompson offered few solutions to challenges the Eastern athletic department is currently facing.

He did, however, portray himself as able to make the tough decisions he believes would be necessary to get the department back on track.

"I've been through budget cuts before, and let me tell you, it's not any fun," Thompson said. "It's tough."

Thompson was alluding to the possibility that about $800,000 in state funding may be cut from the athletic department budget by 1996 upon recommendation by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

"I think everybody in the department has to be affected by a cut of that magnitude," Thompson said of how far-reaching the cuts would be, if made. "The bottom line is, in your budget, your revenue

Spikers to have just eight home games next season

To say that the Eastern women's volleyball team's schedule for the upcoming fall season is challenging would be more than an understatement.

The Lady Panthers, 17-16 last fall and graduating seniors Kim Traub and Amy Van Eekeren, will face two teams certain to be in the nation's top 25. And that's only their first two games of the season.

Eastern, ranked 121 in the NCAA's power rankings, will face 13 different programs ranked above them in the power rankings next season. Eastern's first opponent, Texas, was the ranked No. 1 in the power rankings and the Lady Panthers' second opponent, New Mexico, was ranked No. 34.

In addition, The Lady Panthers host just eight home matches all year, and will go on the road for four different tournaments, traveling as far west as New Mexico and as far

Baseball Panthers playing Illini today

By RANDY LISS

The Eastern baseball team will travel to Champaign this afternoon to take on the University of Illinois for a 2 p.m. ballgame.

The Fighting Illini are 6-6 on the young season, but have played a pretty tough schedule up to this point. Illinois has played and lost to the University of Miami twice and South Carolina three times, two teams that are ranked in the nation's Top 20.

Still, the Illini are 6-
