Computers are schools' future: Love

By KIM MIKUS
Staff writer

Dr. Ruth Love, former superintendent of the Chicago public school system, told a crowd of about 150 that the most important aspect of education in the 21st century will be the growing importance of computers.

"The 21st century will work from the living room, but we still need teachers and universities," Love said.

She said it is predicted that in the year 2000 there will be plastic cars and people will probably live to be 150 years old.

About half the students responded when Love asked how many in the audience were education majors. She said, "I believe that in the 21st century, there will be even more emphasis on academics."

Since Love left the Chicago school system in March 1985, she has formed her own corporation. Her company produces video-based training material for teachers and administrators.

She described this "effective school movement," which is a "primary reform measure" in these tapes.

Love found that it is necessary for effective schools to have strong leadership, shared leadership, heavy emphasis on academic achievement, high expectations and a clear curriculum.

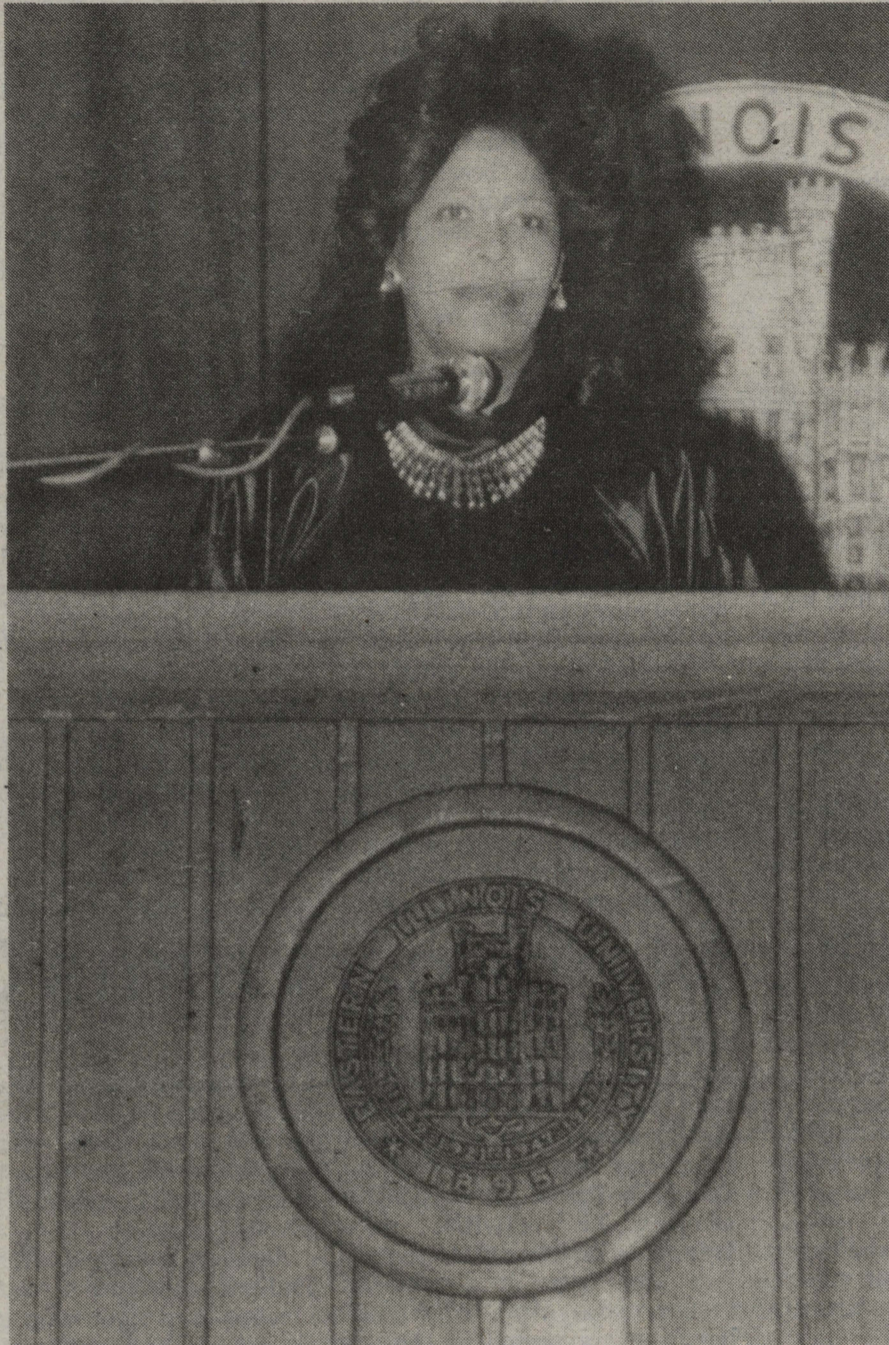

The role of the teacher in the year 2000 will be explained more like a coach than a teacher, Love said.

She added that as future educators, we will have to surface the ideas of how to get rid of second class education and to get rid of the thought that education is determined at birth by what class one is born into.

Another important aspect of the 21st century is what kind of people we need, said Love.

She said, "There are several important characteristics that make up the best human beings."

The first qualification is "to have a vision of who you want to be." She said not to mistake this with a dream. "A dream is a hope for the future, while a vision is something you make happen."

The second characteristic is to have an "open mind, willing to grow, learn and try something new." The third is to set goals and to take charge of relationships. "People need people," Love said.

After Love spoke for 45 minutes she opened the floor for questioning.

One student asked about the controversial subject of teaching and handing out birth control in schools.

"I wish there was an easy answer," Love said.

Motion on budget set by Weaver

By MATT HORTENSTINE
and BILL DENNIS
Staff writers

A motion to override the budget cuts that sliced 2 percent from the Board of Governor's fiscal year 1988 budget is in the works, State Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Charleston, said Tuesday.

He and Rep. Jim Keane, D-Chicago, are filing a motion to override the cuts when the fall override session starts in early October, Weaver said.

However, he said the motion, which would restore the BOG's budget to fiscal year 1987 levels, faces some serious problems.

"Even if the override passes, we probably won't have the money to pay for it," Weaver said. "We're trying to get as much (money) as we can right now. Even if it fails, it might put us in a better position for next spring."

Weaver said Senate President Phil Rock, a Democrat, indicated that there is simply no money available for further funding of education or any other programs.

An override would be "wonderful" said John Rearden, Eastern chapter president of the University Professionals of Illinois Tuesday. But he said it would make little sense to try changing the appropriation without increasing the state's revenues.

Lobby efforts by UPI and other groups last year focused on raising support for an increase in personal and corporate income taxes to support education, Rearden said. But their efforts met with little support from area legislators, including Weaver, he added.

"Nobody likes a tax increase," Rearden said. "But nobody wants a lousy education system either."

Most Republicans in the legislature, including Weaver, did not show much support for a needed tax increase, said Richard Dulka, UPI member in charge of monitoring the General Assembly on education issues.

Officials expect decision on 'Greek Court' in January

By JEFF MADSEN
Staff writer

The Faculty Senate voted Tuesday to table further discussion on the proposed Greek housing project until sometime in January when a recommendation either supporting or opposing the project made by officials involved in the project.

Student Activities Director Craig and Sherri Sanders, "Greek Court" committee members, answered questions from the members regarding the project.

Craig stressed the project is still in the preliminary stages and that no concrete decisions will be made until the recommendation is filed in January.

Sanders said the results from the survey sent to the fraternities and sororities have been turned in and will be reviewed Wednesday.

"From what we've seen so far, there is a mixed bag of results," Sanders said. "Some of the greek organizations are in favor of the project while others have just spent a lot of money to remodel their chapter homes and don't want to consider moving."

The $2.5 million project would include eight houses to be built on 30 acres between Ninth Street and Carman halls. Depending on support from greeks, the project could expand to 20 houses. Involvement in the project is voluntary.

The senate also recommended that the faculty declare Oct. 21 an "Education Day" on which all classes discuss higher education, write letters to legislators and the governor, and possibly make the trip to Springfield to help pressure state legislators into allotting more funds for state universities.

Both resolutions were submitted by senate member Michael Loudon, who said he hopes the rallying efforts and the lobby day in Springfield will give students an opportunity to observe state government or engage in any other activity in order to increase student awareness and support for the funding issue.

Senate Chair John North also submitted a draft version of a letter he wrote to Thomas Layzell, chancellor of the Board of Governors, Eastern's governing body, protesting a possible tuition increase.

The letter states: "We at Eastern recognize the need for further budget increases as much or more than any other public university. But, students have been increasingly called on to share a greater burden of the academic costs over the past seven years. We feel the governor and the legislature should better meet its responsibilities to the citizens of the state."

AIDS victim seeks return to school

BELLEVILLE—A lawsuit seeking to force Belleville school officials to allow a 6-year-old AIDS victim to return to class was being prepared Tuesday, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union said.

The boy, whose name is being withheld at the request of his parents, was barred from class by the school board in Belleville District 118. He has been taught at home by a district tutor since school opened Aug. 27.

Harvey Grossman, an attorney with the ACLU of Illinois, said the lawsuit against the district would be filed in U.S. District Court in East St. Louis later Tuesday or early Wednesday.

Contacted by telephone at his Chicago office about noon, Grossman said he was preparing the final papers before meeting Robert Hillebrand, a Belleville attorney also representing the child in Belleville later in the day.

Hahn declares 'I am not a bimbo'

CHARLOTTE, N.C.—Jessica Hahn, declaring "I am not a bimbo," says in a Playboy magazine interview that she "hated every second" of her sexual encounter with PTL founder Jim Bakker seven years ago and "it has ruined my life."

A copy of the November issue of the magazine, which includes a 31-page interview and semi-nude photo layout of Hahn, become available Tuesday as she concluded two days of testimony before a federal grand jury looking into hush money paid her after the liaison.

"You know, two men had me in one day," Hahn said in the interview, referring to Bakker and Oklahoma City evangelist John Fletcher, who she said accompanied him to a Florida motel room for the tryst with the young church secretary.

"... I've been treated as less than human, as a thing as a pawn," she said, "And just because I don't have a Bible or a microphone—just because I don't draw millions of people on TV—doesn't mean I'm not human."

U.S. leaders hear plea for peace

WASHINGTON—Costa Rican President Oscar Arias appealed to President Reagan and Congress Tuesday to "take a chance for peace" and permit the peace plan he drafted for Central America to run its course.

"The essence of my words is that we give peace a chance—that is the message I have brought to Washington," Arias told reporters after meeting with Reagan at the White House and addressing members of congress gathered informally in the House of Representatives.

Arias, the original architect of the five-nation Central American peace plan unveiled in Guatemala last month, told Congress his initiative needs time and assistance in order to succeed.

The plan calls for a negotiated cease-fire to go into effect by Nov. 7 but Arias said the peace effort should not be scuttled if that date passes without a definitive settlement.

Search for evidence behind surveillance of Iranian ship

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. military forces had shadowed the Iranian ship they attacked Monday night for days, waiting for conclusive evidence the vessel was laying underwater mines, Pentagon officials said Tuesday.

The officials, who requested anonymity, said the vessel Iran Ajr had been tracked by radar and by air for several days as it steamed through the central gulf toward Bahrain "because it had been seen loading suspect devices" before leaving an Iranian port.

"It was no accident" that U.S. helicopters from the frigate USS Jarrett were flying near the Iranian ship Monday night, using infrared sensors to monitor its activities, one official added, "When we caught them in the act, we had the evidence we needed and we moved in," he said.

The Pentagon said three Iranians were killed and two were listed as missing in the attack, while 26 Iranians were rescued, four of them wounded. It said a Navy boarding party found 10 mines aboard the Iran Ajr, a 1,622-ton amphibious landing craft.

President Reagan, meantime, defended the U.S. attack on the ship as clearly "authorized by law" because the vessel was sowing mines in international waters.

Reagan also insisted, however, the United States had not entered a shooting war with Iran, and White House and Pentagon spokesman said the crewmen of the Iranian vessel would be returned to Iran.

At the same time, Iranian leaders dismissed the U.S. account of the incident and vowed revenge.

Ali Khamenei vows revenge

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Iranian President Ali Khamenei fumed at the U.S. "arch-Satan" before the United Nations Tuesday and swore Iran would avenge a U.S. attack on an Iranian ship in the Persian Gulf.

The U.S. delegation stalked out in protest after the black-robed and turbaned Khamenei indicted the "bullying" United States and announced: "This is a beginning for a series of events, the bitter consequences of which shall not be restricted to the Persian Gulf."

"I declare here, very unambiguously, that the United States shall receive a proper response for this abominable act," the gray-bearded cleric said in an hour-and-20 minute speech in Farsi.

Hundreds of angry, dissident Iranians demonstrated against the fundamentalist Tehran government outside the United Nations building, shouting "Expel Khamenei from the U.N.! Down with the criminal murdering regime!"

"I do not intend to sit passively when our country is insulted, our president pilloried and the truth trampled," Deputy U.S. Ambassador Herbet Okun told reporters.

He called Khamenei's charges against the United States "false accusations (which) distort the facts and misrepresent our policy totally."

The bespectacled Khamenei, who met Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar in Iran last week, was greeted by shouts of "God is great!" from supporters in the gallery as he began his speech with a prayer.

Mercenary turns Contra foe

WASHINGTON (AP)—A mercenary turned Contra-critic says he was the victim of a Reagan administration campaign to silence him, contending the claim is buttressed by documents showing his activities were brought to Reagan's attention.

"I have been in a pressure cooker since April 6, 1986, having every person in the administration saying I am a liar, a commie, a nut . . . I am almost brain dead." Jack Terrell said Tuesday.

"I consider myself a victim among many victims," he said in an interview. "People who were targeted . . . as part of an overall discreditation campaign. I find it overwhelming."

Recently returned from the Philippines where he has been investigating right-wing groups, Terrell said he has contacted the American Civil Liberties Union about exploring action in his case. He was interviewed at the International Center for Development Policy, a liberal think tank where he is an investigator.

Terrell, a one-time anti-communist mercenary in Central America who became an outspoken critic of the Nicaraguan Contras in early 1986, was the subject of several memos written by former White House aide Oliver L. North, by Robert W. Owen. North's unofficial liaison with the rebels, and by the FBI.

Ike's adds the first woman to bartending staff

By AMY CARR
Staff writer

An old bar has a new attitude. For the first time in its history, Ike's Little Campus has a female bartender. Senior Cindy Marin started Sept. 15, as part of the new management's effort to bring the bar more up-to-date.

"This is a new bar," said Manager Bill Mulvaney. "I thought adding a girl to the staff would help business, and I saw no reason why we shouldn't have a lady behind the bar."

Marin, who spent a lot of time visiting friends at the bar, said she came across the job rather casually. Bill (Mulvaney) said he was looking to hire some girls. But he wanted to wait until someone was fired or quit. Two weeks ago one of the guys quit, and Bill said "Give me your schedule. Can you start Tuesday?"

Mulvaney, who worked for the bar for over two years before becoming a co-owner, said girls had shown interest in bartending at the bar before he took over. Although he had announced plans to hire a female under his management, no applications for the position were taken.

"The word was out," Mulvaney said. "I already knew her, and I thought she was probably the best person for the job."

"All I've gotten is positive stuff. Everyone thinks it's a neat idea that we finally broke down and hired a girl," he added.

Marin said she intends to be treated equally, and from the looks of things so far, she's getting exactly what she asked for.

"I told them when I started, 'I don't want you to treat me like a fragile thing,'" Marin said, adding that the male bartenders already have her lugging cases of beer up the bar's steep staircases.

Although she was a little apprehensive about the position when she first started, Marin said she believes she fits right in.

"They razed me my first night because I took a beer bottle away that still had a little beer in it. But, I think every rookie gets that whether it's a girl or a guy."

"I'm having a really good time and I haven't made any major mess-ups yet," Marin said.

She will be treated equally in all aspects, including the hours she works, Mulvaney said, adding he will not schedule her during popular hours simply to attract business.

"One of our bartenders quit. She filled the slot and took his hours. We're using her just like we'd use any other bartender," Mulvaney said.

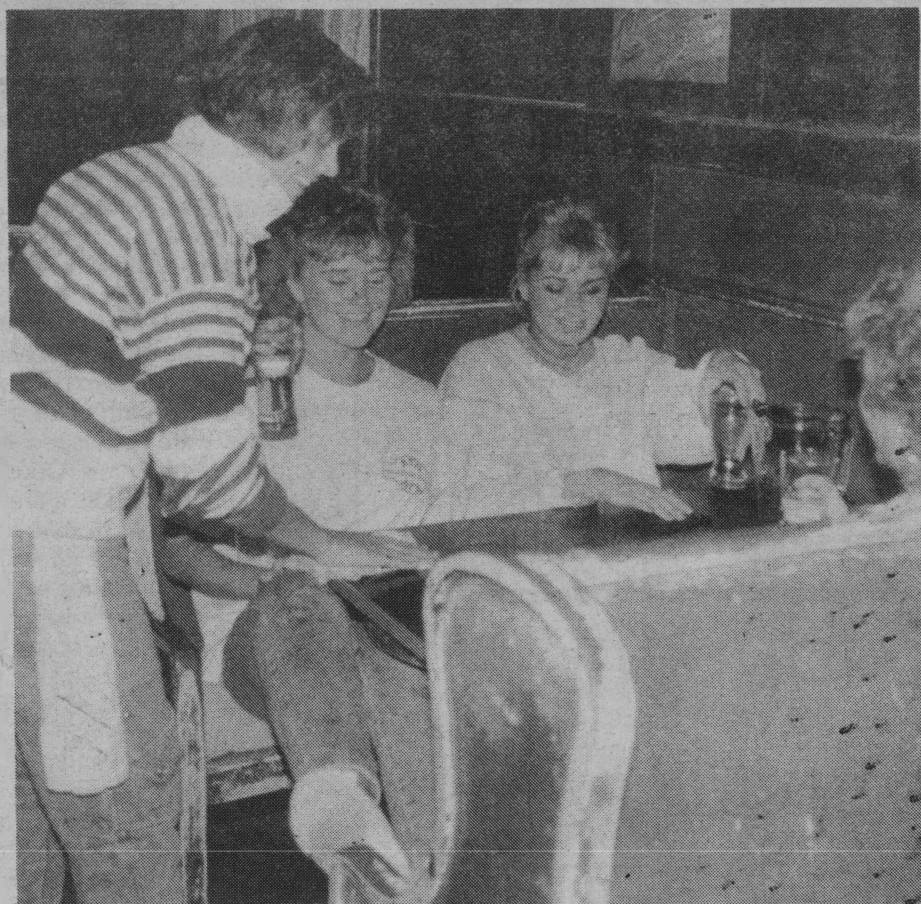

Although no other female bartenders have been hired yet, Mulvaney said he may add more to the staff as positions open up.

"Now that I've got a job (at Ike's), everybody wants one," Marin said.

She added women are not the only ones who are jealous of her job. "A couple of guys have come in and said, 'Hey, she got my job. I wanted to work here.' I just go along with the joke. I laugh it up too."

Mulvaney, who took over the bar Aug. 24, said he hopes to make additional changes to the bar. "We plan to do something to show the kids we appreciate their business."

This will include drink specials, which have not existed in the bar before, or other attractions which do not involve alcohol, he said.

KEVIN SMITH / Staff photographer

Adding a woman's touch to Ike's Little Campus is senior Cindy Marin, the bar's first woman bartender. Marin began her new job at Ike's Sept. 15.

The idea to purchase the bar came about last summer, when Mulvaney learned that former owner Mike Kennard was interested in selling.

"I never thought they would ever get rid of this place," Mulvaney said. "When I heard he was interested in selling it, I got some investors together."

Although he would not disclose the price of the bar, Mulvaney said four investors were involved in the purchase.

He said the name on the sign will remain "Ike's" for years to come.

New management may come and go, but some things will never change.

Coleman Hall air conditioning units to be consolidated

By JEFF BRITT
Senior reporter

Coleman Hall's two air conditioning systems have been recently undergoing some modifications.

The air conditioning units, located on the east and west sides of Coleman Hall, are being combined to save energy.

The consolidation of the two units is evident in the middle portion of Coleman Hall, atop the roof of the lecture hall, where duct pipes running between the building can be seen from second floor hallway windows.

In the past, one air conditioner cooled one side of the building, said Physical Plant Director Victor Robeson. When the work is finished, one air conditioner will have the capacity to cool both sides when the weather allows.

"We'll be only using one unit during light-load service, as opposed to two units," he said. But when there's a high demand, both units will operate.

"The work should be done within the next couple of weeks," he said. Work on combining the two air conditioning units started near the end of August and has continued sporadically since then.

Robeson said it is a small project costing Eastern $30,000.

"It will allow us—a way of using just one of the units if the weather permits," said Verna Armstrong, vice president for administration and finance.

"It's definitely cost effective because we won't have to run the other unit," Robeson said.

The amount of savings cannot be predetermined as it depends largely on the weather. "We do think there are some savings," Armstrong said.

"If the weather is mild enough, we may be able to run one unit, but that's beyond our control," she said.

"It's not just savings," she added. "The main reason for doing this is just to retain the environment in Coleman Hall."

Ticketmaster booth may lead to name-band performances at Eastern

By JEFF MADSEN
Staff writer

Student Senator Grahame Wilkin will resubmit a bill Wednesday asking that a Ticketmaster service booth be installed in the University Union at the next Student Government meeting.

Wilkin introduced the idea of a Ticketmaster booth last spring as part of a campaign to promise and forsee the idea of a Ticketmaster booth as a radical change for Eastern.

This univeristy has had a history of conservativeness. This is a radical change because they (Eastern officials) have never seen or heard of this (Ticketmaster) before and that kind of scares me," Wilkin said.

He added he hopes "that ultimately, the university will see the students point of view when they consider the idea. I've seen a lot of good ideas go down the drain because of the university's conservative policy."

Wilkin said he introduced the bill because if a student wanted tickets for popular name-band concerts, they would have to either travel 40 miles or spend an entire day on the telephone trying to get through to an open Ticketmaster line.

"If you want a ticket for any kind of an event, you'd have to make at least a 40-mile road trip. Sometimes a student will blow off an entire day of school if he or she wants those tickets bad enough."

"Or, you can try to get them over the telephone, but if you've ever tried to do that before, you know that it usually takes more than just one phone call," Wilkin said. "If the bill is approved, students will be able to walk to the Union, go to the Ticketmaster booth and get the tickets they want right here on campus," he said.

Wilkin added the university would get a certain percentage of ticket sales generated from the booth.

"That's the beauty of the whole thing. As far as I know, the only thing EIU pays for is the fee for the telephone lines the computer will be hooked up to. We're supposed to get a certain percentage of the sales and the way Ticketmaster has it worked out, we're supposed to at least break even.

"It's not one of those 'get rich quick' schemes, but we won't lose any money on it either," Wilkin said, noting the booth would be open to the entire Coles County area.

Wilkin said the booth would also provide the university with contacts to arrange more popular name bands to perform at Eastern. REO Speedwagon and The Psychedlic Furs were two of the bands Wilkin named when he introduced the bill last week.

But, no one is convinced the Ticketmaster will even work at Eastern. The student senate has yet to approve the bill and Ticketmaster hasn't decided whether or not a booth at Eastern is marketable. Ticketmaster still has to survey the demographics of the area to see if the idea is feasible.

"I guess you could say that I'm stuck between a rock and a hard place because not only do I have to convince EIU, but I've got to convince Ticketmaster too," Wilkin said.

Weekend parties lead to four more arrests

The Charleston Police Department Tuesday released the names of four more students arrested in connection with party incidents over the weekend.

According to police reports, four students were arrested for allegedly disturbing the peace at 1:14 a.m. on Saturday at 2100 Ninth St., Apt. 22.

Arrested were junior David C. Worthy, 20, junior Michael Wolbers, 19, and junior Kent E. Melum, 20, all residents of 2100 Ninth St., Apt. 22.

Also arrested in the incident was 22-year-old Charles E. Barnes III, according to police reports.

European arms treaty is a fine starting point

The United States and Soviet Union are finally on the verge of eliminating an entire generation of nuclear missiles. This may ease the potential for nuclear annihilation, but hardly eliminates it.

Still remaining are countless inter-continental ballistic missiles with more than ample force to devastate life as we have come to know it.

Nonetheless, these accords offer more than hope that at last the superpowers will reduce their nuclear stockpiles. Previous agreements merely placed quotas on existing or new deployments of nuclear weaponry. The significance of this approaching summit is in the elimination of all superpower nuclear weapons in Europe.

Europe has been the cold war's battle field for the past 10 years. Since 1977, tensions between the United States and Soviets increased when the Americans implanted their first ground-based nuclear missiles there since retracting them after the Cuban missile crisis.

Some NATO leaders fear this accord may leave Western Europeans without means to protect themselves from the Communist's conventional forces. The result of a Reagan agreement will, more than likely, have a built-in time table, in effect giving NATO opportunity to re-arm. The Soviet Union has also agreed to separate West German from U.S. missiles in the discussions.

This diminishes U.S.-Soviet temptation to use Europe as a target should a conflict arise between the two. With superpower missiles there, Europeans would have been first casualties in a nuclear confrontation.

Long-range missiles still remain a real threat. After the waters froze over following President Reagan and Secretary Gorbachev's Iceland summit, "Star Wars" remains a sticking point. This may either turn out to be his bargaining chip or stumbling block for future negotiating prospects.

Now with the possibility of removing medium and short-range superpower warheads from Europe, the two sides must not grow complacent. This is an opening toward solving other East-West conflicts.

A looming threat remains. The medium and short-range missiles represent less than 5 percent of the global nuclear threat. The approaching treaty is a praiseworthy beginning. But it is only that—a good beginning.

Newspapers are more than fishwrap

There's some scary thoughts circulating around this campus about what the purpose of a newspaper is.

Granted, the newspaper has a multitude of purposes. For some, it is used as nothing more than a household gadget which serves more purposes than any Ronco or K-tel piece of work ever could.

Can't you hear the commercial now?

"Is there no end to the uses for this mass of black and white?

Look, you can wrap a fish in it, peel carrots on it, line a bird cage, potty train a pit bull, wrap presents, pack glass ware, insulate a bum's shoes, make Silly Putty printings to save Opus' face for years, shine your shoes on it, kindle a fire. Whew!" the announcer sighs having said all of that in a loud nasal tone and in one breath. "You'll never find another gadget in this lifetime that has so many uses (except, of course, the Veg-o-matic) for such a low investment."

And if such a commercial existed, the announcer would be right because the newspaper does serve all of those secondary functions.

However, while many on campus are still scratching their heads wondering what the heck the original purpose of the campus newspaper is, others have in mind a clear picture of what it should be.

I, perhaps naively, believed that most people thought the purpose of a campus newspaper was the same as that of any real newspaper—to report the news of the day. If we can inform and entertain people in the process, so much the better.

However, a recent phone call indicated to me that not everyone shares my definition of purpose. On the phone was an assistant professor upset because of the way a story about his department had been edited.

"The reporter's version of the story was fine," he told me. It was interesting, to say the least, how this man knew what a reporter's version of the story looked like since it is not a policy of The Daily Eastern News to allow a source to read a story prior to publication.

"Well, I've heard a lot of others complain also, and if you let them read the stories ahead of time, you won't have as many errors."

There's a thought. All of the editors could just resign because faculty and other sources could edit all of their own stories so they would be worded exactly as they wanted them.

Smacks of, shall we say, censorship?

Perhaps as a student I could find some new instructors and tell them I had to read their exams before they are mimeographed to make sure they are worded exactly the way I would like them to be. That sounds pretty fair, doesn't it?

Well, that's just about what happened here. The professor asked the student, who happened to be a new reporter, to see the story prior to it being printed. The new reporter, not knowing any better, obliged. Although the man could not point out any factual errors in the edited version of the story, he was nonetheless upset about it.

"The caption is all wrong," he said. Upon looking at the caption (not the story itself), I saw that, indeed, it was inaccurate. I told him we would run a correction amending our error. That would not be good enough, though, because the story did not run in the correct spot.

"Don't you understand the significance of this?" he asked me. Yes, as a matter of fact, I did. That's why it ran on one of the back pages instead of page one where he thought it should have been.

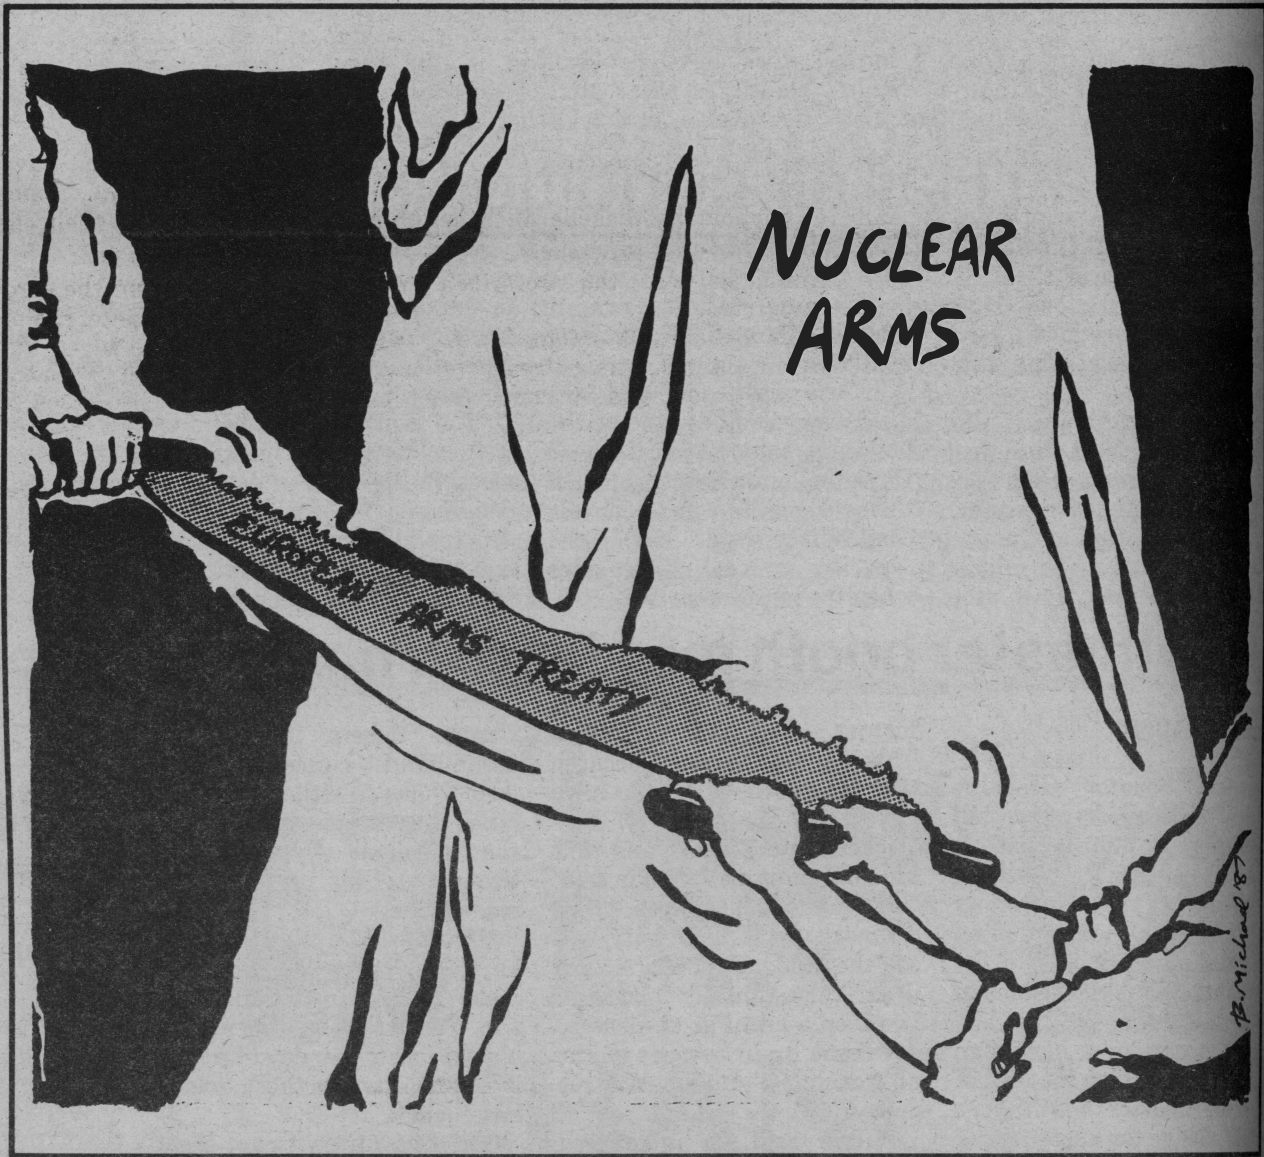

"Don't you think as a university newspaper your job should be to support the university?" he asked me.

No, I don't think that at all. University Relations has been doing a fine job all by itself.

"Well, maybe you better rethink your policies," he said.

Rethink censorship? I don't think so.

Students shouldn't be labeled disabled

Editor:

I read with interest the article in The Daily Eastern News regarding the appointment of Dr. Christine McCormick as Eastern's new coordinator of services for students with disabilities. Please note the wording of her title: "coordinator of services for students with disabilities." This title reflects the fact that the individuals who receive these services are students first, and that their disability comes second.

In the article, these students were constantly referred to as "the disabled" or "disabled students." Labeling language of this sort implies that the student's disability is his/her primary identifying condition. It ignores other characteristics such as one student might be a freshman majoring in chemistry who is interested in woodworking.

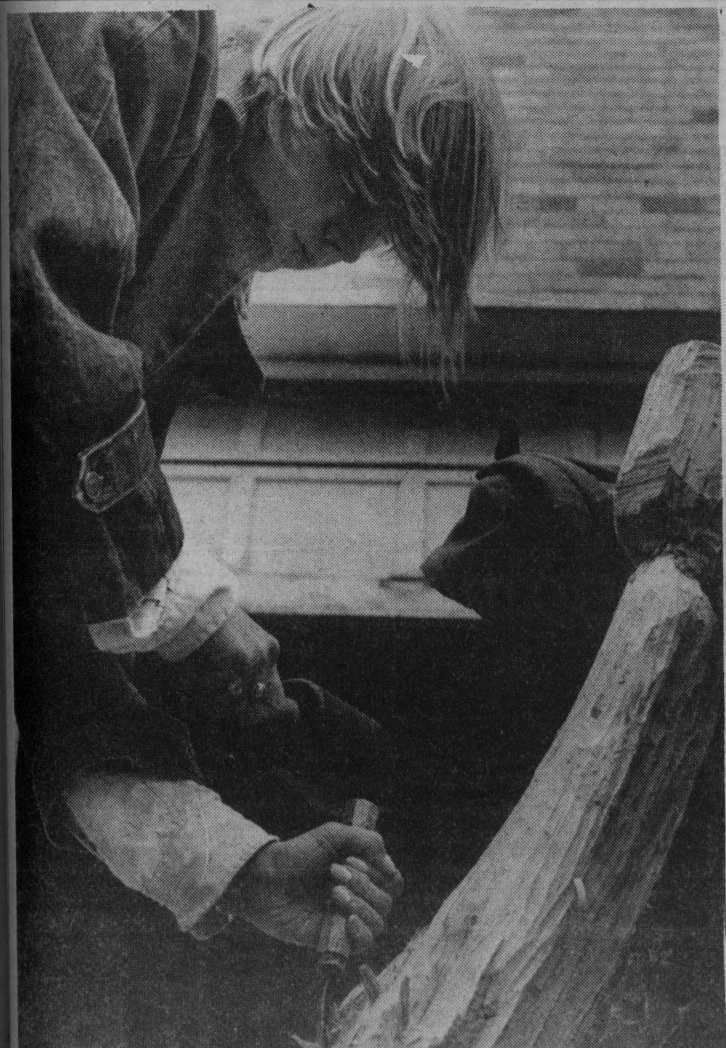

Journalists must realize that what they present to the public shapes public opinion.

While my point may seem a bit trivial, the article subtly implies that individuals who have some type of disabling condition are quite different from those who do not have such a condition. This is far from the truth, and The Daily Eastern News should be more careful in its wording.

'Greek Court' surveys studied

By JUDY WEIDMAN
Activities editor

The "Greek Court" Committee will tally "Greek Court" opinion surveys 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Union Addition Greenup Room.

After the surveys are tabulated, Committee chair Sherri Sanders said Eastern President Stanley Rives will receive the results.

Panhellenic President Terese Papa said, "First we want to see if there's a need. I think we need to get some more information before we get an architect," she said.

Also on the committee are Inter-Fraternity Council President Ed Bugg; Kawan Coxbey, a representative from black greek council; Vic Robeson, director of the physical plant; Eastern Treasurer Marion Zane; Rob Confortti, Delta Sigma Phi house core; Eli Sidwell, Sigma Pi house core; J. Sain, Sigma Tau Gamma house core; Kevin Cannon, housing; Elise Ramsey, Alpha Gamma Delta house core; Mary Henrickson, Sigma Kappa house core and Gail McKee, Delta Zeta house core.

The council will be tabulating questionnaires which were sent to individual fraternities and sororities seeking opinions on the proposed $2.5 million "Greek Court" housing project.

Papa said they didn't survey all the chapter members in each house.

Soviets invite civil rights group

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—The Kremlin issued an invitation to a Western group highly critical of its human rights policy to meet officials in Moscow, the Soviet envoy to the 35-nation Helsinki review conference announced Tuesday.

Western officials welcomed the unprecedented invitation and other recent shifts in Moscow's human rights policy, but insisted on more improvements before signing an accord to end the conference.

"In the all important areas of human rights and human contacts there is still a shortfall... of deeds to match the ambitious language of perestroika," David Mellor, minister of state in Britain's foreign office, said as the fourth round of talks opened.

Perestroika is Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's campaign for wholesale restructuring of Soviet society and economy.

The Soviets must do better, otherwise "we shall be keeping our pens in our pockets," and not signing the accord to end the conference, Mellor told reporters.

The 35 nations signed a human rights agreement in 1975 in the Finnish capital of Helsinki. The conference was supposed to end last July.

Diplomats now say they hope to reach agreement by Christmas.

Soviet Ambassador Yuri D. Kashlev told a news conference, Moscow has invited a delegation from the International Helsinki Federation, private group that monitors human rights.

Gerard Nagler, senior representative of the International Helsinki Federation in Vienna, said a 12-member delegation from various West European countries would go to Moscow in November for five days of meetings.

Five out of eight sororities hit fall rush quotas

By BETH CARLSON
Staff writer

After 395 women signed up for fall rush, five of eight sorority houses reached their quota of 43.

The Panhellenic Council arrives at the quota number by taking the amount of rushees who attend the second round of parties and dividing it by the number of houses, said Sherri Sanders, assistant director of student activities and greek sponsor.

Phi Sigma Sigma picked up 26 pledges. "It wasn't hard picking the girls out at all," said Nikki Murphy, Phi Sigma Sigma rush chair. "Real good girls went through rush."

Alpha Gamma Delta rush chair Laura Gundlach, a junior, agreed that there were a lot of good girls that went through rush and said Alpha Gamma Delta took in 43 pledges.

Alpha Phi sorority also took in 43 pledges. Rush Chair Alice Ryno, a senior, said she had only one major complaint with this year's rush—the

It was a major problem, but everything turned out best in the end," Ryno said.

Sophomore Michelle Michals, Alpha Sigma Tau rush chair, refused to comment on the sorority's rush progress.

Panhellenic President Terese Papa said this year's rush was a lot more organized due to a fairly new computer system.

The system, which was first used for fall '86 rush, is based on a program devised from Iowa State.

"It (the system) helped very much this year. It made us a lot more organized and helped us gather more statistics," Papa said.

She said the students working on these computers sometimes are up to 4 or 5 a.m. depending on when the sororities get their bids in. If they are late, it makes it harder to send out invitations to the rushees, she added.

"There is a fine for sororities who turn in late bids," Papa said.

The computer workers included members of the Panhellenic executive committee, representatives from the Rho-Chi's (sorority members who disassociate from their chapter during rush) and Sanders.

Reactions from the sororities varied on the new computer system.

Murphy, a junior, said the new system helped "speed things up."

"There is not so much time spent in the Union," Murphy added.

Gundlach also said the new computer system "saves a lot of time."

Ryno said the Panhellenic Council is still working out the bugs, but "down the line, the system will be incredible."

Another change in rush organization this year was in the party structures.

This year, rushees went to eight parties two nights in a row, which was different from previous years where they went to the eight houses for only one night.

"This gives smaller houses a chance," Gundlach said.

Gundlach said when rushees first see a house with not as many girls, they tend to think it's not as good of a house, but with the new system, they can go back a second night and get to know the girls better.

Also improved from last year was a dinner break for the houses and the rushees.

"This gave the girls a chance to be rejuvenated," Ryno said.

Incoming freshmen learned of the rush schedule through a summer brochure.

In this mailer, there is an application that interested girls fill out and send, along with a $10 fee to Eastern.

The $10 goes towards all the materials needed in rush, said junior Tegan Ward, first vice-president of Panhellenic Council.

Interested men signing up for rush only have to pay $3. The reason for the higher price for girls is because the Interfraternity Council does not use the computers throughout rush, Tegan said.

"We need this money for programs, disks, packages to send to the rush counselors, etc.," Ward said.

AIDS statement to be put to vote by Senate

By JEFF MADSEN
Staff writer

The Student Senate will vote on a resolution supporting the AIDS statement published by the university in the student handbook, Senate Speaker Denise Wasetis said Tuesday.

The senate will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola Room.

The statement says the Health Service will treat AIDS on a normative fashion, on a case by case basis. And "because of the low level of communicability of the disease as per the best medical advise, the university places no automatic restrictions of AIDS victims, either as students or employees, other than as individual case conditions may dictate."

The statement states the university will make a concerted effort to disseminate information concerning AIDS so the college community may avail itself of background on AIDS prevention and on symptoms and treatment of the disease.

The senate is also expected to review its first bill of the semester, submitted by Senator Grahame Wilkin, which requests senate approval to install a Ticketmaster booth in the student union.

Wilkin introduced the bill last week, but further legislation on the bill was tabled until Wilkin could submit an updated report.

Motion

for an income tax increase, providing there were corresponding cuts in property taxes, Dulka said. Such a plan was submitted by State Sen. Harry "Babe" Woodyard, R-Chrisman, he added.

"But none of that had a chance,"

Dulka said. Behind-the-scenes support for the proposals was lacking, making it hard for observers to tell how lawmakers really felt about the issue, he added.

However, Weaver placed most of the blame for the budget cuts on Democrats in the General Assembly, especially the leadership, and on Gov. James Thompson.

For the past five years, Illinois has seen some revenue growth. But two years ago the educational reform program consumed about $250 million, using up any revenue growth, he said.

"Suddenly, the state found itself short of money," he added. Thus, revenues had to be increased or services decreased."

Jazz department will sponsor first concert

By TEGAN WARD
Staff Writer

Eastern's jazz department will sponsor its first jazz concert featuring the Graduate Quartet and the Faculty Jazz Sextet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Dvorak Hall.

Jazz instructor Dan Goble said he expects to draw a diversified crowd.

"It will give the students a chance to hear all different types of jazz music—live music in a concert setting," he said.

The jazz combos will play several selections including Clifford Brown's "Sandu," an original by graduate student Jonathan Schwabe and Rogers' and Hart's "My Funny Valentine," Goble said.

He said two years ago, a jazz studies major was added to the jazz department curriculum.

Since then, the Faculty Jazz Sextet was formed, and has not only performed in various campus concerts, but also acted as a recruiting ensemble for the jazz department. The group has played for area high schools and local establishments.

"Our goal is to continue to have quality players come into the program," Goble added.

The newly formed Graduate Quartet is made up of four graduate students serving as graduate assistants in the jazz studies department.

Goble said they practice once a week and have performed at the Domino's Pizza Grand Opening.

"These students will play as well as any professional group you'll ever hear," he said.

Members in the graduate combo include Marvin Sparks, a graduate of the University of Illinois who also received the Illinois Consordium Educational Opportunities Program Scholarship; Jonathan Schwabe, the composer of a selection to be featured in the concert; David Champoullion, a graduate of the University of Miami; and Mark Maegdlin, a graduate of Williams Mary College in New York.

"We (the faculty) can show students that we not only teach and talk about what we do, but we can do it too," Goble said. "Our goal is to be a nationally recognized jazz studies program."

Faculty will discuss Irish study

By JODI DOLAN
Staff writer

The office of faculty development hopes Irish eyes will be smiling at noon Thursday in the Rathskeller when two Eastern faculty members discuss their recent sabbatical.

The seminar features Bob and Jo Barger who will discuss Irish higher education.

Last spring Bob Barger was invited to teach at the University College Cork in Cork City, the Irish Republic, so he was granted a sabbatical leave and Jo Barger took an administrative educational leave for the semester.

Jo Barger said her husband taught two graduate courses and shared responsibility for a third. His area of study was educational philosophy.

She said she did research involving a comparative analysis of the structures of academic advising between Ireland and the United States.

The Barger's will illustrate their lecture with a slide presentation of the university and the students they interviewed.

Mrs. Barger said her trip was "a once in a life time experience."

Bob Barger teaches in the department of secondary education and foundations and Jo is a counselor in the Academic Assistance Center.

The Barger's began their careers at Eastern in 1977.

Apple computer users to exchange ideas, work out problems

A new group has formed on campus and all its members have one common interest—computers.

Speech instructor Terry Perkins heads the group to discuss the latest in the Apple computer family. The group meets at 7 p.m. every third Wednesday of the month at the Instructional Materials Center in the Buzzard Building.

Attending these meetings are Apple computer users whose knowledge range from the novice to the master programmer.

Perkins said the members exchange ideas, help each other work problems out or just discuss the latest in computer software. In addition to the IMC in Buzzard, computers can be found in Booth Library, Student Services Building, and Coleman Hall. They are also available in the residence halls Carmen, Taylor, and Stevenson.

The computers range from the IBM Personal Computer to Widget systems.

Computer software is also available and ranges from simple programs designed to aid children with their math, to complex home budget analysis.

ABC will substitute 'Star Trek' for NFL

Television networks scrambled Tuesday to find programs to replace NFL games wiped out by the players' strike.

If the strike isn't settled by the weekend, owners plan to skip Sunday's games and resume play Oct. 4 with teams made up of free agents and non-striking veterans.

CBS said it will show a replay of last season's New York Giants-Denver Broncos Super Bowl game on Sunday following an expanded, hour-long version of the "NFL Live," from 30 minutes to one hour Sunday to cover the strike. The network said it would announce further programming plans later Tuesday.

ABC will show "Star Trek III: The Search For Spock" in place of "Monday Night Football" next week if the strike isn't settled by then. The network's plans beyond that date are uncertain.

"We are studying our options and waiting for the National Football League to communicate its position regarding Monday, Sept. 28, and future Monday nights," a network news release said.

ESPN, which is scheduled to show Sunday night games during the second half of the season, also took a wait-and-see approach. The cable network is showing NFL games for the first time this season.

"We've got some time to evaluate the situation before we make a decision," spokesman Chris LePlaca said. "By the time Week 9 rolls around, hopefully the strike will be settled and we'll be back in business."

there to help them, they took off and ran with it."

"It's a fun way of conditioning," said senior forward Ann Brown. "We do this twice a week."

"This way (of working out) motivates us to work harder. We're all working on the same things at the same time—together."

Both Hilke and Gerrie also stressed the togetherness aspect of the aerobics class. Last season, the Lady Panthers held the aerobics sessions in McAfee Gym, but this year, the gym was unavailable during prime-time hours.

"There's an element of personal risk when you put yourself out in that situation on a stage and say, 'follow the leader' when you don't know what you're doing," Hilke said.

"But if we come through this well, we'll be stronger as a team."

"This is a little more fun approach (to conditioning), and it gets them together as a group," Gerrie said. "And it's a good team spirit builder."

However, psychological results were not the only positive aspects of the team's new approach.

"Last year, we had fewer muscle stress-related injuries," Hilke said. "It's a great workout with limited joint exposure . . . not pounding up and down the floor."

"Running improves straight muscle strength, but running doesn't do anything for flexibility," said Nancy Kassebaum, the women's basketball graduate assistant and Panther softball player from 1979-83.

"And as far as footwork, there's no comparison," she added. "Running is just one motion, but basketball is just about all footwork."

Although the team still runs long distances and sprints three times a week, the aerobic workouts actually take longer. Normally, the squad will run sprints for one-half hour, but the aerobics session lasts for more than one hour.

"It's a different training in that it offers a wide variety of exercises," she said. "It develops leg strength, foot speed, flexibility and upper body strength because of the overall workout that we do."

Bette Midler is The Rose, a hard-singing rock star who can't reconcile public adulation with her own deeply rooted loneliness. On stage she's vital and electric. Off-stage, she's burning herself out. Drinking heavily and popping pills, she desperately searches for someone to love her, but even love isn't enough. Midler's sensational film debut gets strong support from Frederic Forrest and Alan Bates, but the film belongs to Bette. Her stunning vocal style and stage presence burns the screen.

Students not happy with NFL strike

 writer

Football fans across the nation begin to prepare themselves for football-less days, most Eastern students join in the anguish and disgust over the National Football League Players Association's decision to go on strike with a proposed strike.

The NFLPA is striking over issues as free agency, salary structures, drug testing and roster sizes.

Members of NFL teams are going ahead with their hiring of free agents to replace the striking players, and continue with the season, postponing this Sunday's games and resuming play on Oct. 4.

"I think both sides should be at the bargaining table, and if they are not, I hope that it costs both parties a great deal of money," said senior marketing major Mark Harrison.

"It's unsportsmanlike for two reasons," said sophomore pre-business major Paul Haren.

"First, it deprives millions of people the right and privilege to enjoy a weekly professional football game of the caliber of any normal season.

"And second, the vast majority of the NFL players make a great deal more money than the average football fan can make in a year.

Freshman Jane Kratochvic agreed saying, "I think it's stupid because many individuals—like the TV networks and stadium employees—will lose a lot of money because of the greediness of the players."

Rhonda Schutt, a senior fashion design major, summed it up for most of Eastern's football fans.

"I think the whole thing is depressing. I enjoy watching football on Sundays as much as anyone," Schutt said.

But senior political science and pre-law major Patrick Gareis summed up his sentiments by saying, "the primary victims of the strike are the fans.

"Although both sides have legitimate claims, it strikes me as unethical that the management and the players' loyalty to the fans runs only as deep as their pockets.

Ready Panthers chance to beat of aerobic drums

JOHN PLETZ
 staff writer

Traditional preseason conditioning programs are rarely fun, but Eastern women's basketball coach Bobbie Hilke is not a graduate of the old school of coaching.

Together with local fitness club owner and aerobics instructor Barb Berrie, Hilke started her program last fall.

Prior to the start of annual preseason conditioning last year, Hilke was talking to the 1972 Eastern graduate while working out at Gerrie's health club, The Fitness Club in the Wilb Walker Center, about alternatives to typical, mundane conditioning programs involving running long distances, sprints and weight training.

Gerrie, who has taught aerobics and modern dance at Eastern for two years, suggested that Hilke add a new twist to the normal program with aerobics sessions per week.

Although Hilke was thoroughly convinced of the program's benefits, Hilke brought the idea to her players was yet another story.

"(Basketball players) are not dancers, so we had a little bit of selling to do last year," the ninth-year coach said. "But once they realized... Barb was (See LADY, page 12)

Upshaw, Donlan talk as NFL players walk

NEW YORK (AP)—Talks resumed in the NFL strike Tuesday as the chief negotiators held a surprise 90-minute meeting while all but a handful of the 1,585 players took to the picket lines.

A union spokesman said both sides agreed to meet again.

The meeting between management's Jack Donlan and the union's Gene Upshaw was the first since last Friday since Donlan offered concessions on issues such as roster size and pensions if Upshaw would postpone the strike 30 days. Upshaw rejected the demands, making the walkout that began Tuesday unavoidable.

Meanwhile, the strike began with nearly all the NFL players honoring picket lines and the teams making plans to resume games a week from Sunday with free-agents, retirees and whatever other players they could get. Among the handful to cross the picket lines were two quarterbacks, Gary Hogeboom of the Indianapolis Colts and Marc Wilson of the Los Angeles Raiders.

Frank Woschitz, a spokesman for the NFL Players Association, said Upshaw and Donlan met in New York and agreed to meet again. The meeting followed a session between Upshaw, the NFLPA's executive director, and the mystery man Upshaw said could bring the day-old walkout to a quick end.

Way standings

In one week of Gateway complete, Eastern has a share of the lead with Eastern Illinois and Southwest Missouri State.

The Panthers, Leathernecks and Bears are tied for the top with 1-0 conference records and are all 2-1 overall.

Eastern Iowa holds down the place with a 2-1 overall record and the purple Panthers conference play Saturday at Indiana State in Terre Haute.

Eastern Illinois and Indiana State are tied for the Gateway conference with 0-1 conference records and 1-2 overall records. Weekend action, Western Illinois beat Indiana State 42-12, Nicholls State defeated Southwest Missouri 21-9 and Southern topped Austin Peay 10-3.

Spartan streak ends

The San Jose State Spartans, who beat Eastern 24-3 on Sept. 5, have lost their 11-game consecutive win streak.

The Spartans dropped a 36-34 decision to Oregon State in Corvallis, Ore. Saturday and lost the win streak which dated back to the fourth game of the Spartans '86 season, a 35-14 win over the University of California.

The 11-game streak tied San Jose State with the University of Oklahoma's current streak of 11 games.

The Spartans could have taken over the streak as the Sooners were idle Saturday.

Sutcliffe gets 18th; Cubs defeat Mets 6-2

CHICAGO (AP)—Rick Sutcliffe couldn't care less about personal awards. What has him wondering these days is why he's an 18-game winner for a team that isn't in the pennant race.

"The fact I have to come to the ball park every day, knowing we're 15 to 17 games behind the St. Louis Cardinals, is awful hard to swallow, and you begin to wonder just who's to blame," Sutcliffe, 18-8, said after an eight-hit, 6-2 victory over the New York Mets.

The Mets dropped three games back of the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League East title chase.

The Cubs, meanwhile, remained in last place in the NL East. With no team goals remaining, interim manager Frank Lucchesi hopes Sutcliffe can salvage something from the season by winning a second National League Cy Young Award. Sutcliffe won the award in 1984.

"I called Sutcliffe into my office last week and we agreed he'd pitch every fourth day because it's my hope that he'll get the recognition he so richly deserves," Lucchesi said.

"There was a time early in camp that I didn't think he'd be with us. He didn't understand what we wanted from him.

"He was a good player, but he didn't always want to work hard in practice," Smith continued. "I think when he realized what we wanted from him, that he really came into his own."

"When I first came into camp, I was the starting cornerback and coach (Smith) had to move me to safety," Holcombe said, "and I didn't like it."

"It was different than cornerback," he added. "My mind was always on cornerback, thinking they'd find another safety, and I realized I was going to be safety."

The 5-11, 180-pound sophomore, who has yet to declare a major, said he found something as a safety he couldn't find as a cornerback.

"I see a lot more action," he explained. "I like action—I like to be in the action. Tough players are always in on the ball mixing it up where the action is."

"By me showing I give my 110 percent, (my teammates) can give their 110 percent," he added. "If the whole team gives the effort, we'll come out on top."

And coach Spoo says that is all he asks from any of the Panthers.

"We preach, preach, preach: TEAM," Spoo said, "and I think they're believing in themselves now that they can do great things by being unselfish."

"(Daryl) is a very unselfish player, and I think our team is made up of unselfish players," Spoo added. "I don't think that in this game of football that any guy can do it by himself."

'Special' Holcombe does it all for Panthers

JOHN PLETZ

After the 1987 NFL draft in April and graduation last May, many fans thought the Eastern football team would be hard pressed to win any games this fall.

Head coach Al Molde jumped a ship and went for a coaching job at Division-I Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti, Mich., and injuries sidelined two of the top defensive starters (lineman Tom Jurkovic and linebacker Jeff Holcombe), it looked as if new coach Bob Williams would need to put Superman in a new uniform.

But Spoo has found his Superman in sophomore defensive back Daryl Holcombe.

In the past two games Holcombe has scored nine points on special teams; he blocked a kickoff 85 yards on Sept. 12 at Northeast Missouri for the Panthers' first touchdown of the season, and he blocked a punt for a touchdown and returned an interception 22 yards to set up a field goal Saturday against Illinois State.

In his Saturday night heroics (10 interceptions, a forced fumble, a blocked punt which resulted in a safety and a touchdown saving tackle on Redbird running back Ron Westmoreland's 39-yard run in the fourth quarter which would have tied the contest at 15), Holcombe also received honors as the Gateway conference's "Defensive Player of the Week."

"He's been tremendous all year," said defensive coordinator John Smith. "He loves to play football, and he's a great football player."

"He's got all the tools to become a great football player. He's blocked a punt, he's returned a kick, he does it all for us."

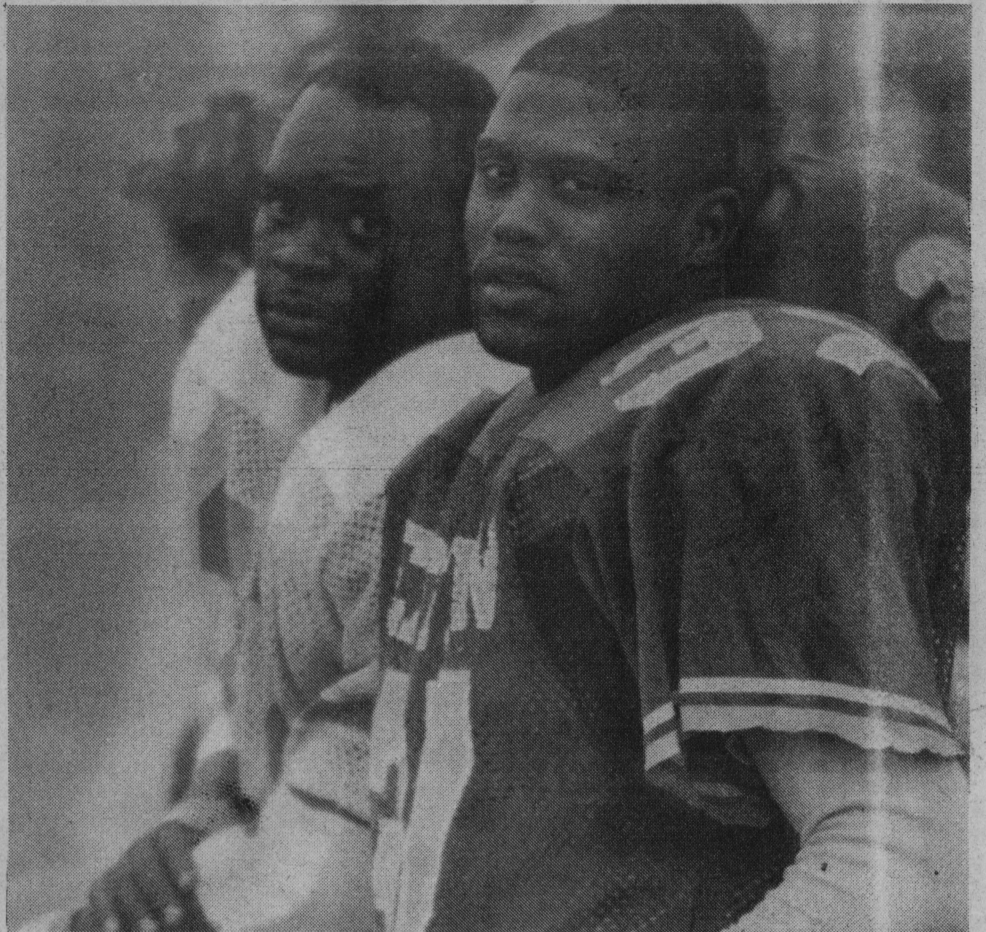

But Holcombe attributes his success from a complete effort on the field.

"I love the sport of football," Holcombe said. "I give 110 percent every day. I have to do my part to make this team a success."

So far this season, Holcombe has done more than his part. However, there was a time when that couldn't be said about the former All-County performer from Ft. Lauderdale's Nova High School.

"Daryl's come so far," Smith said.

Eastern head coach Bob Spoo talks with junior quarterback Kurt Simon during Saturday night's 15-9 win over Illinois State. The Panthers travel to Lynchburg, Va. Saturday for a game against the Liberty University Flames.

Eastern chosen No. 17

Football Notebook/ Barry Bottino

For the first time this season, Eastern's football team has reached the top 20.

In this week's NCAA Division I-AA football rankings, the Panthers have shot to 17th place.

Eastern had not been chosen for any preseason rankings after finishing last season at the number three position.

However, Gateway Conference foes Northern Iowa and Southern Illinois were named eighth and 17th in the preseason poll respectively.

The Panthers clawed their way into this week's poll after two straight victories (a 16-10 triumph at Northeast Missouri Sept. 12 and a 15-9 defeat of Illinois State Saturday at O'Brien Stadium).

The purple Panthers of Northern Iowa have moved up to sixth position in this week's poll after a 53-9 thrashing of Montana State.

Meanwhile, the Salukis of SIU have since dropped out of the polls since beginning the season with losses to Division II's Delta State University and Gateway member Southwest Missouri.

AP Poll

Listed below are the Top Twenty teams in the Division-AA College Football poll as chosen by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) for the week of Sept. 21-28, 1987 including current team records through Sept. 19.

Lights, Camera, Action!!!

For the first time since 1980, an Eastern football game will be televised.

The Panther contest versus Liberty University this Saturday will begin at 12:40 p.m. on Channel 29 (WEIU-TV) on the Charleston cable system.

WEIU will take a satellite feed from the Liberty Broadcasting Network in Lynchburg, Va.

The last Eastern game that was televised was the NCAA Division II national semifinal versus California Polytechnical Institute at San Luis Obispo by ABC television.

For Mattoon residents, the game will be broadcast on (See EASTERN, page 13)

Golfers finish 6th in USI tournament

By DAVID LINDQUIST
Staff writer

Although Eastern's team score was higher Tuesday, the Panthers improved their position in the standings of the two-day Southern Indiana-Evansville University Invitational golf tournament.

While a team total of 323 earned Eastern seventh place at the mid-point of the tourney Monday, Tuesday's round of 340 enabled the Panthers to move past Northern Kentucky and stake claim to sixth place in the 11-team field.

Building on an impressive 298 showing Monday, tourney leader Bellarmine College held on to cruise to the tourney crown with a 36-hole total of 612.

Tournament hosts Evansville (629) and Southern Indiana (643) followed Bellarmine to take second and third place respectively.

Eastern head coach Paul Lueken said that Evansville's more difficult Oak Meadow course played a role in upping the Panthers tourney total to 663.

"As we expected, the course was tougher and longer," Lueken said.

Junior Jeff Schafer paced the Panthers Tuesday with a round of 83 that gave him a total of 168 for the tournament.

Schafer's second day performance was an exception as he cut two strokes from his Monday total, while other scores ballooned.

Freshmen Scott Dessing had Eastern's best tournament individually, adding an 84 Tuesday to his 77 Monday mark.

Lueken said that quicker greens on the Evansville course slowed Dessing's play Tuesday.

"Dessing had some trouble today putting," he said. "But, he played real well on the first day and, all in all, had a pretty good tournament."

Freshman John Varner ended up six strokes behind Dessing over 36 holes, shooting an 87 on Tuesday to bring his match total to 167.

Junior Dale Carlson's 86 on Tuesday was good enough for third among participating Panthers.

Eastern, Valpo meet for first time in soccer

By BRENT FEENEY
Staff writer

When Eastern's soccer team dropped a 1-0 decision to Midwest regional rival Illinois State on Sunday, assistant coach Guy Callipari said that the remaining schedule would be "an uphill battle."

Wednesday afternoon at Lakeside Field, the Panthers begin that long uphill climb when they take on the Valparaiso Crusaders at 4 p.m. It will be the first meeting on the soccer field for the two sides.

The Panthers will enter the game with their two strikers, junior Mark Noffert and sophomore Garry Laidlaw, as question marks because of injuries.

"Garry sprained his ankle in a collision with the (Illinois State) goalkeeper, and Mark suffered an injury to his hamstring," said coach Cizo Mosnia. "We're not sure how they are right now."

Of more importance, however, is the Panther effort.

"We were somewhat flat in spirit Sunday," Mosnia said. "It was almost like we were going through the motions out there. We probably would have done better if we would have had a little bit more desire."

"I guess it just wasn't meant to be for us on Sunday," Mosnia said. "We will work harder in our practices and in our games. Hopefully, there will be a carryover effect to the team."

Another thing Mosnia would like to see is a big crowd for the match. "There was a big crowd at the game on Sunday (at Illinois State's 15,000-seat Hancock Stadium)," Mosnia said. "We had just as many fans as they did. There were quite a few parents and students who made the trip, and I want them to know that I really appreciate it."

But Mosnia is still puzzled by the lack of fans at Eastern soccer games.

"I really don't understand why we haven't been getting good crowds," Mosnia added. "We have very talented kids playing for us. We only have two players from out of the country, and they're Canadian, so that means all of our players are from North America."

"With such a young team as we have," Mosnia continued, "a packed house could really make a difference. We know that we don't have any money in the budget to promote the team. Our players are talking to everybody they know, and the media can only do so much."

"I just can't understand why the students don't come out and see us play. We feel that we represent Eastern Illinois University just as well as anybody else."

As for statistics, Noffert leads the team with six goals and two assists for total of 14 points. Laidlaw has four goals and three assists for 11 points, and sophomore David Kompere has four goals and two assists for 10 points.

While both teams are members of the Association of Mid-Continent Universities, Valpo does not participate in the soccer competition. Therefore, Wednesday's match will be a non-conference affair.

The Panthers will travel to Quincy College on Saturday night to take on the Hawks in a 7:30 p.m. contest.
