UNIVERSITY OF SAN DIEGO SUMMER PROGRAM

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The University of San Diego will be offering more than 80 courses over a 12-week period this coming summer. Of special interest to service personnel are offerings in the School of Business Administration which include Cost Accounting, Money and Banking, Personnel Administration, Production Management, Accounting Standards and Analysis, and Management Theory and Practice.

Courses are offered both days and evenings, at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, and range from one-week symposia to eight-week courses in the School of Business Administration.

The Department of Political Science and International Relations is offering "Politics and Parties," "Arms Control and Disarmament," and "Theories of Causes of War."

The Department of History is making available Historic Site Archaeology at the Old Town State Park. During the six-week regular session, Dr. John Alexander Carroll, a visiting Pulitzer Prize author in History, is teaching the Age of Washington. Other courses include The American Indian and Explorations of North America, studies in selected periods and areas of important explorations of North America on land and by sea, taught by Dr. James Moriarty. Medieval Institutions will be taught in the regular session.

For further information and bulletin requests phone 291-6480, extension 221.
