University of San Diego Digital USD

USD Magazine USD News

Winter 1995

USD Magazine Winter 1995 10.2

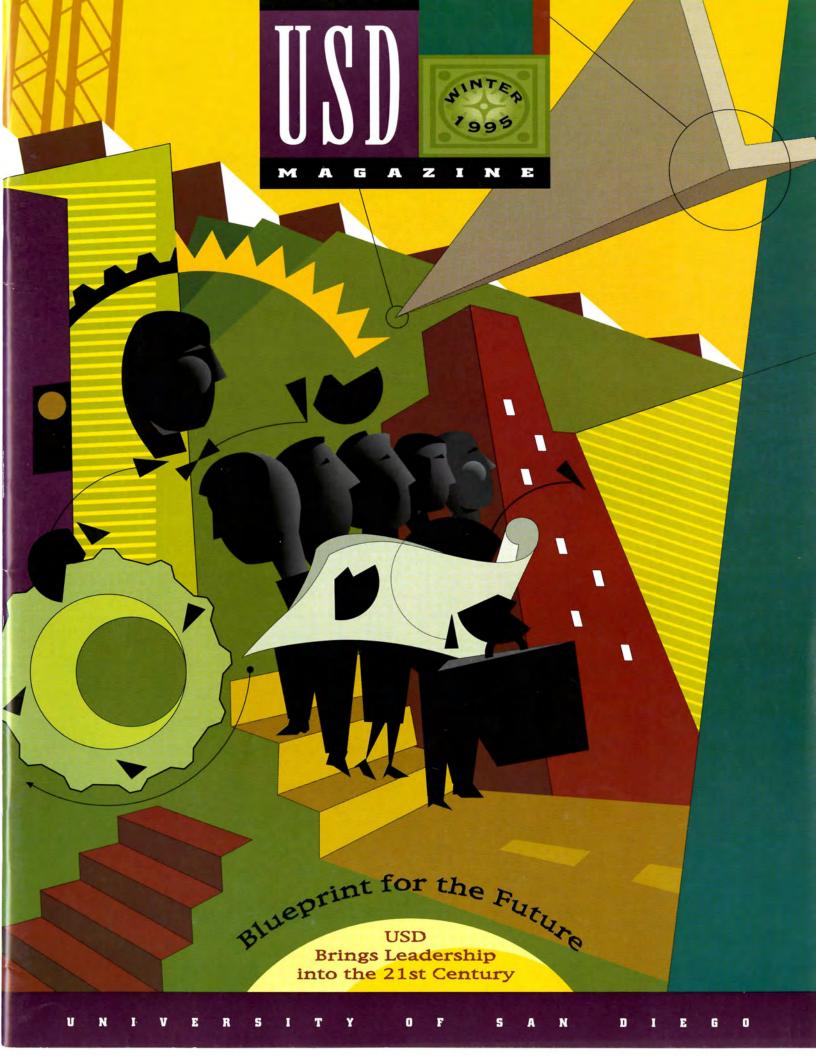

University of San Diego

Follow this and additional works at: http://digital.sandiego.edu/usdmagazine

Digital USD Citation

University of San Diego, "USD Magazine Winter 1995 10.2" (1995). USD Magazine. 8. http://digital.sandiego.edu/usdmagazine/8

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the USD News at Digital USD. It has been accepted for inclusion in USD Magazine by an authorized administrator of Digital USD. For more information, please contact digital@sandiego.edu.

nyone who has older brothers or sisters has experienced firsthand the sheer power of leadership. Purely by instinct, older siblings personify a leadership model our nation has revered for centuries — one based on a single authoritarian leader and loval followers.

But the School of Education's leadership program is changing ideas about effective leadership today. Gone are the "great man" theories that espouse one person with a vision directing a group of supporters, replaced by new collaborative theories being explored by the education professors and students.

Our cover story, "Blueprint for the Future: USD Brings Leadership into the 21st Century," examines those theories of team-building and shows how they differ from the popular management development programs many businesses are embracing today. The story also highlights graduates of the program who have introduced these new leadership concepts in a number of fields, including business, education and non-profit administration. As one professor noted, "Management is election to an office, leadership is how you conduct yourself once you get into that office."

Also in this issue, "At Center Stage" puts the spotlight on USD alumni who are making names for themselves in film, theater and music. One parlayed his talent for stunts into a marriage and a career, another shares his traveling stage with everyone from prisoners to schoolchildren, and two others get their audiences dancing in the aisles, whether they are playing their version of "The Sesame Street Song" or one of their original tunes like "My Carphone's on the Pill."

Finally, "Dear Mr. O'Brien" illustrates the powerful effect a chance encounter can have on a person's life. At last May's undergraduate commencement, Sherri Bliss had a lot of questions about her future. Jack O'Brien, the commencement speaker, had the answers. And though the two have never met face-to-face, it's not likely that they will forget each other soon.

LETTER

FROM

THE

EDITOR

Trisha J. Ratledge

ONTENTS

At Center Stage

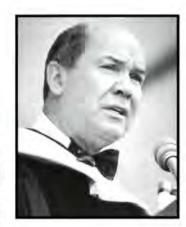

By Jill Wagner

It is perhaps the only business in which a pink prom dress, a high-speed chase and sheer imagination are part of the workday. A handful of USD alumni show why there's no business like show business, whether they are making music, staging stunts or teaching the dramatic arts.

Dear Mr. O'Brien By Trisha J. Ratledge

Sitting with her fellow undergraduates at commencement last May 22, Sherri Bliss was in no mood to celebrate. She was contemplating her future amid the revelry, and it gave her pause. Little did she know that three minutes of the ceremony would change the course of her life.

Blueprint for the Future

By Michael R. Haskins

0

The days of the leader with the iron will — whether in politics, private organizations or everyday life — are over. Ideas about leadership now favor cooperation and collaboration over coercion and competition. At USD, students in the School of Education's leadership program are throwing away old theories and developing a new model for the 21st century.

ALCALÁ ALMANAC	2	KALEIDOSCOPE	29
ALUMNI GALLERY	18	PARTING SHOT	BC

USD MAGAZINE

EDITOR

Trisha J. Ratledge

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Kate Callen

Michael R. Haskins Jill Wagner

ART DIRECTOR

Visual Asylum

PHOTOGRAPHERS

Jim Coit Pablo Mason

ILLUSTRATION

Troy Viss

THE UNIVERSITY OF SAN DIEGO

PRESIDENT

Author E. Hughes

VICE PRESIDENT FOR UNIVERSITY RELATIONS

John G. McNamara

DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC RELATIONS

Jack Cannon

DIRECTOR OF ALUMNI RELATIONS

John Trifiletti '78

USD Magazine is published quarterly by the University of San Diego for its alumni, parents and friends. Editorial offices: USD Magazine, Publications Office, University of San Diego, 5998 Alcala' Park, San Diego, CA 92110-2492. Third-class postage paid at San Diego, CA 92110. USD phone number: (619) 260-4600; emergency security: (619) 260-2222; disaster: (619) 260-4534.

Postmaster: Send address changes to USD Magazine, Publications Office, 5998 Alcala' Park, San Diego, CA 92110-2492.

Hughes Books to the Future in Final Convocation

n his 24th and final convocation before the faculty, USD President Author E. Hughes posed some of the questions facing the nation and the university as a new era begins in American higher education.

The questions are easy to formulate although "unbelievably complex to address," Hughes said in the September speech. They include:

- What is a university education worth?
- · Who pays? Who gets financial aid?
- Who will subsidize the teaching of liberal arts in a society that clamors for an immediate economic payoff?
- What will the future American Catholic university look like? How will it relate to its students and to the church?

Each question represents a central dilemma of the times, Hughes said, adding that while no single person holds the answers, USD is blessed with a community of individuals who possess the wisdom, vision and constancy of purpose to lead the university into the next century.

In the convocation, Hughes pointed to the strengths that will ensure the university's future success, including its financial status, its base of contributors, its outstanding students and faculty, and a committed board of trustees.

As for the classroom of the future, Hughes told the audience it will be vital to maintain a balance between teaching and research. "There is great opportunity for the University of San Diego to gain recognition by making teaching and research reinforce each other in the lives of our students," he said. Hughes wrapped up his address by noting a trend in Catholic higher education toward emphasizing ecumenism, or the interdependence of all religions. Ecumenism embraces the concept of respect for each person, Hughes said, and gives an individual the freedom to pursue his or her own faith while also enabling people of different faiths to rely on each other for support.

The convocation concluded when Hughes presented the inaugural Medal of San Diego de Alcalá to Irving Parker, retired English professor and a founding faculty member of the San Diego College for Men. The medal is awarded to a long-time employee in recognition of extraordinary and enduring contributions to furthering the goals and mission of the university. Hughes noted that Parker quickly became a jack-of-all-trades after his arrival on campus — teaching, working as registrar and even obtaining equipment.

Also honored at the convocation were five University Professors, recognized for outstanding, balanced career contributions supporting the mission and goals of the university. They are: Dennis R. Briscoe, Iris H.W. Engstrand, Edward Kujawa, Gary A. Macy and Donald Weckstein.

In addition, five Steber Professors were recognized for substantial contributions in the areas of teaching, research and service: Gregory M. Gazda, Florence Morgan Gillman, Donald L. Helmich, the Rev. Dennis W. Krouse and Patricia A. Plovanich.

5 TUDENTS 5 TUDY 6 TUDY 6 TUDY 1 TUDY

A contingent of 20 law students from the University of Rostock in the former East Germany spent most of August on the USD campus studying a curriculum on Introduction to American Law.

Organized by Fulbright Professor Thomas Lundmark, the summer program included instruction on constitutional law from Bernard Siegan, torts from Gail Heriot, civil procedure from Walt Heiser, contracts from Mike Kelly, international environmental law and law of the sea from Jorge Vargas, and sexual discrimination from Academic Vice President and Provost Sister Sally Furay.

During their visit, the German students were honored at a reception hosted by the USD School of Law chapter of the International Law Society.

NUASE PAACTITIONER PROGRAM EXPANDS

Nurse practitioner students at the Philip Y. Hahn School of Nursing now can specialize in providing primary care to adults and elderly people with acute and chronic illnesses.

The new adult nurse practitioner track with a gerontological subspecialty option focuses on serving adults and elders and their families. This track, part of the master of science in nursing program, is being offered thanks to a $254,951 grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. Studies include health promotion, acute and chronic illness management, and rehabilitation in ambulatory, community and institutional settings.

"The need for specialized case management for adults and elders has grown dramatically in recent years," says Louise Rauckhorst, associate professor of nursing and the project director. "We are particularly excited about the rich learning opportunities in San Diego for preparing nurse practitioners to meet the special needs of culturally diverse and medically underserved adult and elderly populations."

Publishing Executive Joins Board

The University of San Diego's board of trustees has welcomed a new member: Roy E. "Gene" Bell, president and chief executive officer of the Union-Tribune Publishing Co.

Bell, who has been active in the newspaper business for 34 years, joins the board as it conducts its search for a successor to outgoing President Author E. Hughes.

"The guidance of our board will be especially critical during this leadership transition," says Daniel W. Derbes, chairman of the board of trustees. "We are grateful that Mr. Bell has agreed to serve as our newest trustee, and we know his counsel will be invaluable to us."

Bell joined the Union-Tribune Publishing Co. after 25 years of leadership with the Tribune Co. of Chicago. In 1983, he was named vice president and director of operations for the Chicago

of Trustees

Tribune. Before that, he spent six years as vice president and operations director for the Tribune-owned Orlando Sentinel Communications Co. In 1989, he was named vice president of newspaper operations for the Tribune Co. Between 1989 and 1991, he represented the Tribune Co. in the management of the Tribune-owned New York Daily News.

Bell began his newspaper career as a printer in La Junta, Colo., before joining the Sentinel in 1966 as a journeyman printer. A native of Florida, he attended Florida Southern University. He is active in community affairs and serves on the advisory committee of the Newspaper Management Center at Northwestern University. Bell also has served as an adviser to the Rochester Institute of Technology and the West Virginia Institute of Technology.

HONORING A NOBLE PROFESSION

When Hal Holbrook looked back on his acting career during a recent visit to USD, he thanked one person in particular — Ed Wright, a teacher at his alma mater, Denison University in Ohio. After all, that teacher gave him the idea for the Mark Twain character Holbrook has portrayed for more than 40 years.

Holbrook gave his first solo performance as Mark Twain in 1954, and has updated and toured the show every year since, "My teacher gave me the magnificent gift of this Mark Twain character," Holbrook noted. "I'm a very lucky man because of a teacher who cared for me and cared about his subject when he was teaching."

Holbrook was at USD in September presenting a benefit lecture in honor of a teacher who inspired countless USD students during her own career. Joanne T. Dempsey, who taught English literature at USD for a decade, died of heart failure at age 44 in the fall of 1990. The university community was saddened by the loss and her students were devastated.

"She was an outstanding teacher, a genuine scholar of Renaissance literature and a woman of wisdom with the eloquence to communicate that wisdom," said Sister Betsy Walsh, a professor in the English department. "She was a person of rare integrity."

To perpetuate Dempsey's memory, the English department has set out to establish a lecture series on topics related to her three loves: literature, drama and the arts. Proceeds from Holbrook's lecture benefited the Professor Joanne T. Dempsey Memorial Fund, for which the department has raised about half of the $25,000 needed to finance the lectures.

In the meantime, Dempsey is remembered by former students and colleagues for her kindness, her compassion and her love for her students, family and friends.

In a written tribute, William Alfred recalled the Joanne Dempsey who was a fervent student at Harvard while conflicts over the Vietnam war erupted on campus. Students had taken over the administrative offices one day and called a strike, he remembered. Picket lines were set up outside the lecture halls and demonstrators were calling for faculty and students to join them.

"Before I could sit down (to teach the last thousand lines of 'Beowulf'), a woman rushed in and demanded five minutes in which to address the issues," Alfred wrote. "She was in the 12th minute of her five-minute talk when Joanne Dempsey rose, courteously got the floor and delicately told her that since we knew the issues all too well, there was no need to waste the little time the class had to cover the last hard lines of the poem.

"The student mottled with anger and shifted from talk to harangue. Joanne resumed her seat, opened her book, and began to read the day's assignment in flawless Anglo-Saxon. The class and I joined in. Our young protester kicked our retrograde dust from her heels and flounced out."

This unparalleled passion for literature and the arts, combined with a singular compassion for her friends and family, made Dempsey an unforgettable professor, mentor and friend. Once established, the lecture series will honor Dempsey and the countless other educators who inspire students every day.

UID Inducts Inaugural Hall of Tame Honorees

he University of San Diego athletics department inducted the first three members into its newly established Athletic Hall of Fame at a Nov. 11 celebration and dinner. The inaugural inductees, who all have distinguished themselves both at the university and in their professional lives, are Bernie Bickerstaff '68, Chester Pagni '89 (honorary) and John Wathan '71.

Bickerstaff, a point guard for two seasons at USD, was captain of the men's basketball team and earned most valuable player honors in his senior year. His coaching career started at USD in 1966 when he began assisting coach Phil Woolpert. He was named head coach in 1969 and held that post for four years, racking up a career record of 55-49, including his 19-9 final season.

In 1973, Bickerstaff was named assistant coach of the Washington Bullets. During his 12-year tenure, the team reached the NBA finals three times and took one championship. Hired by the Seattle SuperSonics as head coach in 1985, Bickerstaff led the team to the NBA playoffs three times and was named NBA coach of the year in 1987. In 1990, he became general manager of the Denver Nuggets.

Chet Pagni is fondly known as the founding father of the USD Sports Banquet, the athletics department's largest annual fund-raising event. During his 14 years as chairman of the sports banquet, the event raised more than $1.5 million for the athletics program.

"Chet suggested the whole idea of the sports banquet to President Hughes and me in 1978," says Tom Burke, USD vice president for student affairs. "Chet said that he would help us, and four months later I knew what Chet's involvement meant. Any organization that has a volunteer with the ability, drive, loyalty and determination of a Chet Pagni is bound to succeed. I have come to love the man; he's the greatest."

Pagni, who made a name for himself in business with a successful insurance company, also is a past president of the San Diego Stardust Country Club.

John Wathan played both basketball and baseball at USD from 1968 to 1970. An All-American catcher in 1970, he set the pace for the baseball Toreros with a .430 batting average and was named most valuable player.

Wathan was the Kansas City Royals' first selection in the 1971 free agent draft and he played 15 years with the team. During that time, he was a member of the Royals' six American League West championship teams as well as the World Series squads of 1980 and 1985.

His coaching career began with the Royals in 1986. In 1992, Wathan joined the coaching staff of the California Angels and in 1994, he moved to his present position as bullpen coach for the Boston Red Sox.

Nominations for Hall of Fame honorees are solicited each spring. The Torero Athletic Association recognition committee selects the inductees based on athletic achievement, significant contribution to the university as a volunteer and the strength of character demonstrated by the individual.

Toreros Name New Hoops Coach

Brad Holland was named head coach of the men's basketball Toreros in September, replacing Hank Egan, who resigned to take an assistant coach position with the NBA's San Antonio Spurs.

Holland, who revitalized the Cal State Fullerton men's basketball program in the past two seasons, becomes USD's third head coach since the program turned Division I in 1979-80, and its 10th coach overall since the program's first season of competition in 1955-56.

During 1992-93, his first year as head coach at Cal State Fullerton, Holland directed the Titans to their first winning season in four years, finishing 15-12 overall. In the Big West Conference, the team finished 10-8, and along the way beat every team in the conference except New Mexico State. His 1993-94 team, which lost three players to season-ending injuries before the start of the season, finished 8-19 overall and eighth in Big West play.

Holland's basketball career began in the mid-1970s at UCLA, where he was a four-year basketball letterman. The Los Angeles Lakers drafted Holland in 1979, the 14th player taken in the first round, then went on to win the 1980 NBA championship. Holland also played for two other NBA teams before retiring in 1982 due to a knee injury. He entered private business and also was a broadcaster for Prime Ticket from 1985 to 1988. He joined the UCLA coaching staff in 1988, then moved to Cal State Fullerton in 1992.

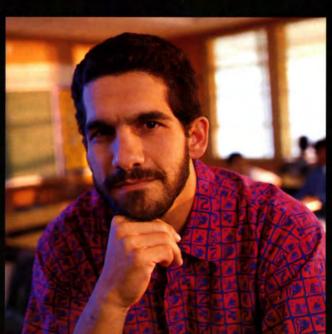

3 9 8 1 5 8 3 1 8 3 1 8

By Jill Wagner

It is perhaps the only business in which a pink prom dress, a high-speed
chase and sheer imagination are part of the workday. It handful of USD alumni show why there's no business like show business, whether they are making music, staging stunts or teaching the dramatic arts.

Photography: Jim Coit

The Augburns, left to right: Steve Poltz, Aob Driscoll, Gregory Page and Jeff Aaledt

teve Poltz '85 was driving home from a gig with a fellow songwriter when his friend began complaining of suffering from writer's block. "I said, 'What do you mean? You can write a song about anything,'" Poltz recalls, as they passed a man thumbing for a ride. "'Like that hitchhiker, Hitchhiker Joe.'"

"Hitchhiker Joe," performed by The Rugburns, is now played on 85 radio stations nationwide, and the band, started by two USD alumni, has won the hearts of a legion of San Diego fans. That base of supporters is sure to expand, as the four-man group struck out in September on its first tour, gearing up to meet a host of out-of-town fans who until this fall had only the radio and one mass-produced compact disc to sate their appetites for the band's slightly twisted acoustic folk rock.

Poltz and Rob Driscoll '84 have been a guitar playing, songwriting duo for more than a decade, but it wasn't until their Morning Wood CD was released in April that The Rugburns' music was played regularly on San Diego alternative rock stations. Produced by the independent label Bizarre Planet, Morning Wood features 14 songs written primarily by Poltz, who says he composes lyrics in the morning when he's in a silly mood.

"I like making things up every day," he says, adding that his answering machine often comes in handy when a new tune comes to him and he's not at home. A call to Poltz's La Jolla apartment verifies that the singer indeed uses the machine as a venue for one of his latest songs — a ditty about living in an anthill.

Poltz and Driscoll clearly have a spin on life that is best verbalized through their music. Perhaps the best word to describe the lyrics of songs like "Gold's Gym Guy" and "My Carphone's on the Pill" is irreverent. Take the lyrics from the latter: "My carphone's on the pill, and my girlfriend's got call waiting. My paper wants some coffee, and my mother needs recycling. The percolator's drooling, and the baby's at the store. Would you help me? Please!"

Far from being offensive, the folksie tunes get audiences laughing and out of their seats, dancing in the aisles.

Onstage, Poltz, Driscoll, Jeff Aafedt on drums and Gregory Page on bass are pure entertainers. Lead singer Poltz is energy in motion, dancing wildly as he plays the acoustic guitar. The sandy-haired, lanky singer is a marked contrast to Driscoll, who prefers to keep both feet on the ground while deftly strumming an electric guitar and backing up Poltz with harmony. Driscoll sports frizzy black hair, usually in a ponytail, and generally dons matching clothes, as does the comparatively conservative-looking Page. Poltz and Aafedt, on the other hand, are known for their playful garb. Aafedt's favorite outfit is a kilt with a shirt Ward Cleaver would have been proud to wear, while Poltz may appear first in Levi's and a Don Ho-like shirt, then change into a pink prom dress for a rendition of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show's" famous tune, "Sweet Transvestite."

The Rugburns are genuine fun, doing, being and saying exactly as they wish onstage and off. Another favorite cover performed regularly by the band is a rocking version of "The Sesame Street Song."

Driscoll says the playfulness between Poltz and him began as soon as they met on campus in 1982. An English major and philosophy minor, Driscoll was taking classical guitar lessons when Poltz overheard him playing one day.

"The next thing I knew, I was in charge of the music for the Tuesday midday Mass," Driscoll recalls. Soon he and Poltz also were playing the Sunday afternoon Mass, and classmates remember some rocking and rolling in the residence halls when Driscoll and Poltz teamed up.

Even while playing, they always tried to make each other laugh, Driscoll remembers. Their campy sense of humor is evident on the Morning Wood CD cover, which encourages listeners to write a post office box address "for Rugburn tips and cool Cheez Whiz recipes."

Music was purely an outlet for the two students, who left USD with no expectations of becoming megastars. "I think that's the difference between us and a lot of other bands; we've always done it for amusement," Driscoll says.

While Driscoll went on to become a high school English teacher in Oceanside, Calif., Poltz, a political science major and Spanish minor, took a job as a sales representative for a plastics company. Poltz, however, knew when he left college that he couldn't make a lifetime career around people in suits or in an organizational structure. In addition to their day jobs, the two musicians kept their music alive by playing evening gigs in small pubs.

After several name changes, The Rugburns stuck and Poltz and Driscoll became favorites throughout San Diego County. The acoustic duo took on a drummer and bass player to produce the Morning Wood album and since then have played as a foursome. Even with the addition of a manager and a sound technician, the group remains small and accessible to fans. They eagerly sign autographs when asked and Poltz enthusiastically asks the name of everyone who approaches him. The female fans are often treated to a hug or kiss on the hand from the friendly Poltz, who says simply that he loves people.

The Rugburns returned from their debut tour, which took them as far as Louisiana, in time to play USD's Homecoming in October. In January, the group's second CD on the Bizarre Planet label is due out.

It's been 12 years, but Driscoll and Poltz are just beginning to realize and enjoy their musical potential. The friendship and partnership of the outgoing Poltz and reserved Driscoll have evolved to make the pair a dynamic, if unlikely, duo. "I think that's why we've stuck together so long," Driscoll says. "We compliment each other. I'm the yin to his yang."

hen Peter J. McKernan '81 spotted fellow USD student Jane Mikolyski at a party, he told a friend she was the woman he would marry. For the next month, Peter casually waited outside Copley Library every afternoon, hoping to run into Jane. As a senior, Peter didn't have any time to waste. She finally appeared one afternoon and Peter asked her if she'd like to go have a soda.

Thirteen years later, Jane McKernan remembers the story slightly differently. Peter was hurrying out of the library, Jane says, and slammed right into her.

In either case, the meeting led to marriage a year later and is now celebrated as one of the first stunts staged by Peter, who eventually parlayed that talent into a career as a professional stunt coordinator for movies and television.

Today, McKernan Motion Picture Aviation, a stunt coordination company, boasts a list of projects that ranges from the popular "Die Hard" and "Lethal Weapon" movies to the television series "Airwolf" and "Magnum P.I." to commercial spots for car companies and tourist bureaus. Recent productions showcasing Peter's work include "Star Trek Generations" and "The Brady Bunch" movie.

Under McKernan's direction, 50 cars come to a screeching halt while Al Pacino crosses a New York intersection. Or a stunt double in a Jean-Claude Van Damme movie repels from a helicopter into a baseball stadium. Or a skydiver doubling for Capt. Kirk parachutes out of the starship Enterprise. Whether it's a drama like "Scent of a Woman" or the latest action movie, Peter's skills are called upon by some of the hottest directors in Hollywood.

As a high-performance pilot, Peter himself is often at the controls of a helicopter while a photographer captures the high-speed drama of a 110 mph car chase or the breathtaking beauty of an island paradise. His gutsy flying, noticed first by "Apocalypse Now" director David Jones, was Peter's ticket into the movie industry and has since earned him the respect of colleagues. "Prior to meeting David, I was working for the Department of Justice, teaching CIA agents how to fly," Peter says. "Getting into films was a matter of being in the right place at the right time."

Growing up with a Marine pilot for a father, Peter always knew he wanted to fly. At 16, he got behind the controls of a helicopter for the first time, and when he graduated from high school, he was set on a career in flying. "College or no college, I was already a pilot," he says.

Peter considered following his father into the Marines until his dad pointed out that military flying opportunities were diminishing. By the late 1970s, six pilots were sharing one jet, Peter says, so he traded a duffel bag for a footlocker and headed off to the University of Connecticut. After a year he transferred to USD.

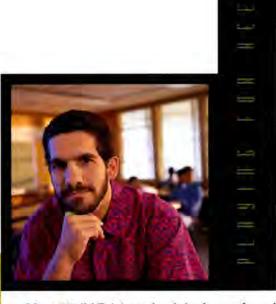

Peter worked as a flight instructor while at USD and immediately after graduation began flying as a pilot for major corporations. Although grateful not to have the pressure of deciding on a career, Peter says his four years on campus were invaluable in helping him mature. "People who don't go to college don't know what it is to sit in an amphitheater or lecture hall and just listen," he says.

Now living in Manhattan Beach, Calif., the McKernans are busy around the clock raising three children and coordinating as many as eight stunt projects at once. Jane has earned her own reputation as one of the top stunt drivers in the country. She also doubles in stunts for actresses such as Geena Davis, Daryl Hannah and Debra Winger. Peter and Jane's oldest son, Patrick, also has joined the family business, acting as a back-seat passenger for a Ford commercial in which his mom drove the car while his dad flew a helicopter alongside — a mere six feet off the ground — to film the action.

McKernan Motion Picture Aviation works on an average of 70 commercials a year in addition to movies and television productions. From week to week, Peter will fly around the country or world to coordinate stunts and pilot the aircraft himself. He has kept busy despite the economic doldrums plaguing the country because, "the film industry is the only business that is absolutely recession-free," he says. And despite his tenure in the business, Peter is still turned on by flying for the movies.

"When I step out of the plane, I still say to the producer, 'I can't believe you're paying me to do this,'" he says.

arry Mann '89 (M.F.A.) stood and slowly transformed into the Elephant Man. His crooked arm extended from a shoulder that was hunched, seemingly in pain. A gnarled hand, each finger bent out of shape, hung limp at the end of each arm. Mann's strong legs took on a distorted shape at the same time his neck disappeared between his shoulders and his voice became raspy. A British accent completed his transformation into a man suffering from a disease causing fleshy skin growths and bone distortions.

It's been more than a year since Mann played the lead role in The Lamb's Players production of "The Elephant Man," but he slips easily into the part that challenged him to reach new heights. Unlike the actor in the movie whose transformation is aided by prosthetics, Mann uses only his body and voice to portray the Elephant Man. "I achieved something I couldn't have five years ago, physically, vocally and in terms of focus," Mann says.

A member of the first graduating class of the Old Globe Theatre/University of San Diego Master of Fine Arts in Dramatic Arts program, Mann has reached his goal of supporting himself financially through his creative work, but he has more goals still waiting in the wings. "I want to be successful; I want to do work that matters to me," he says. "I want to do work that's appreciated. I want to continue to be better as an actor."

The work that matters to Mann includes writing, directing and performing in stage plays, storytelling, and teaching the dramatic arts to future actors and non-actors alike. Currently, Mann does it all as what he calls a community artist. He does not race from audition to audition or feel the need to knock on the doors of Los Angeles agents. Instead, he has found a home in San Diego and its thriving arts community.

To Mann, all the world is a stage. He practices his art not only in local theaters but also in schools, churches, nursing homes and prisons. In fact, Mann teaches the essence of theater work to these varied groups, changing the emphasis depending on the age and cultural background of each group. He wants to show each person how drama can enrich their lives, At the R.J. Donovan Correctional Facility in Otay Mesa near the Mexican border, for instance, Mann teaches the men how to use drama to express emotions, communicate and focus on goals. "To an extent, teaching theater work takes on a social work feel," Mann says.

At the other end of the spectrum, Mann is in his first year as an acting teacher at Grossmont College, a community college in San Diego. This role in particular requires Mann to hone his own skills to work effectively with young students hoping to become actors themselves.

To round out the age groups, the USD alumnus works as a visiting artist at elementary, junior and high schools and nursing homes through programs sponsored by the San Diego Institute for Arts Education and the Playwrights Project. Turning to a favorite page in his scrapbook of newspaper clippings, Mann points to a picture of himself and two actresses playing the roles in a skit written by fifth-grader Edward Ward. After working with the elementary class for several days last February, Mann invited his fellow actors to help bring the children's work to life. Ward's scene, titled "The Big Decision," focused on an earthquake that wanted to shake the land and a rock that didn't want the earthquake to do such a thing. "I like working with kids," Mann says, his eyes twinkling.

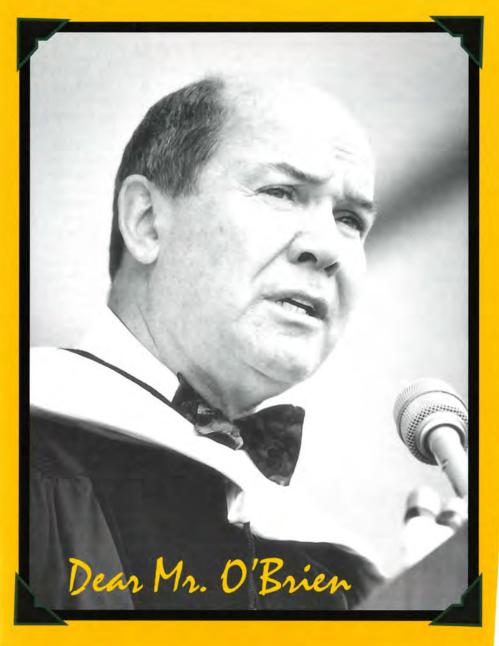

Born in New Jersey and raised as a teen-ager in Florida, Mann headed first to Harvard for his undergraduate work. There, he studied English as well as American Languages and Literature, and he acted in extracurricular plays. After graduating, he moved to New York and began working in regional theater. When he left for California, he didn't think he could be away from New York for more than the two years of his master's program, Mann recalls.

Still, he couldn't pass up the opportunity to participate in the M.F.A. program, which operates as a partnership between the university and the Old Globe Theatre, even though at the time it was in its first year and still experimental. Admittedly, Mann had not heard of USD but knew the Old Globe's reputation as one of the best theaters in the country.

While immersed in acting, voice and even fencing classes on campus, Mann and his fellow students worked as understudies to the actors in the Old Globe productions. One of his fondest memories is performing Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in the courtyard between Camino and Founders halls, Mann says.

The former student is no stranger to the Alcalá Park campus even now. Since diving into the art of storytelling two years ago, Mann has been invited by the continuing education program to regularly join in storytelling classes. Rather than folk-loric tales, Mann prefers to tell personal histories and reflections on growing up in Florida. For a person grounded in the written word, Mann says it was a challenging and enlightening switch to develop stories orally. He never records his stories on paper but instead develops the narrative through conversation with another person. "In that way storytelling has more to do with music than writing," Mann says. "You have to find the right phrase and the lilt of the story."

Mann has certainly found the lilt of his own story, which continues to unfold as the roles in plays, requests to visit schools and ideas for new works spill forth. If there's one thing Barry Mann will never be, it's an out-of-work actor.

itting with her fellow undergraduates at commencement last May 22, Sherri Bliss was in no mood to celebrate. She was contemplating her future amid the revelry, and it gave her pause. Little did she know that three minutes of the ceremony would change the course of her life.

"All through college, I had been debating going into business or education," she recalls, knowing that pursuing her dream to be a guidance counselor would require the added expense of graduate school. "I had finally opted to do something in business. I figured that I would make some money first and then go into education later. It was a struggle, and even as I was making the decision, I knew I wasn't doing the right thing."

Dismissing those instincts, Bliss already had begun interviewing for management training programs with financial companies in Los Angeles. So, she sat with her classmates at Torero Stadium in the late-morning San Diego sun, the various speakers interrupting her uneasy thoughts, her cap and gown symbolizing a beginning that she could not embrace.

Dear Mr. O'Brien:

Although this card is a bit late in coming, I still wanted to take the time to thank you for speaking at our graduation from the University of San Diego. As graduation neared, I had been rearching for anything to do with my degree, knowing that what I really wanted was to pursue a master's degree in counseling. The idea of taking out more money in student loans had scared me away from following my true passion. Your speech, however, reminded me that the rewards in charing my dreams may be later in coming, but they also will be much greater and more fulfilling than if I had settled for less. I have been receiving information and applications from schools all over California and 1 feel really good about my decision. So, I wanted to let you know the part you played in belying me take the first step toward following my passion. Thanks again.

Sincerely, Sherri Bliss

hen Jack O'Brien stepped up to the podium. Ironically, the first commencement speech that O'Brien ever was to hear would be his own — he had always been too busy working on theater productions to attend his graduation ceremonies. Nevertheless, the artistic director of the Old Globe

Theatre says he felt a kinship to the students in the audience and, in that vein, planned to share with them a single insight from his career.

"I am extremely happy to be here today," he started, as the audience's restless attention continued to waver. "Tucked within that most banal of statements is the seed I wish to discuss with you today."

For the next three minutes, O'Brien spoke from his heart, rather than from notes, and as a true master of the stage, he seized the audience's attention with his words, his passion and a message that was brilliant in its simplicity.

"I love my work. Almost immoderately," shared the award-winning director. "Even at this point in my career, it astonishes me that anyone would want to pay me for what I do. ...

"As graduates, you are in possession of a shiny, powerful new machine, which you are about to kick-start. ... And if you ask me what it is that will power that machine and make it work for you, I would answer: passion. ...

"If I have one wish for you today, it would be that in 10 or 20 or even 30 years, if anyone stops you — as they have stopped me today — and asks you how it is going and how you're doing, you could say as I do from the bottom of my heart, 'I am extremely happy to be here.'"

Just as quickly as O'Brien captured the audience's attention, he released it when he stepped away from the podium. The celebrated veteran of the stage took his seat amid enthusiastic applause and spontaneous cheers.

Applauding from her own seat, Bliss knew she had just received the push she needed to follow her own passion. "His message made the difference to me," she says. "It really made me open my eyes and take a look at my life."

Abandoning any thought of a career in business, Bliss immediately began planning her return to school to earn a teaching credential and a master's degree in counseling. And she wrote to Jack O'Brien, thanking him for sharing his wisdom.

"As graduation neared, I had been searching for anything to do with my degree, knowing that what I really wanted was to pursue a master's degree in counseling," she wrote in her letter. "The idea of taking out more money in student loans had scared me away from following my true passion. Your speech, however, reminded me that the rewards in chasing my dreams may be later in coming, but they also will be much greater and more fulfilling than if I had settled for less."

Just as Bliss was deeply moved by O'Brien's message at commencement, he was equally touched by her response. "The mail that comes across my desk usually has to do with 'I liked your play,' 'I hated your play,' 'We had a great time,' 'We had a terrible time,'" he explains. "Then this letter from this young girl says, 'I just wanted you to know I was sitting there listening to you when I realized I was making a big mistake, and I thought I should do something about it.' It touched me, it moved me and it sort of shocked me. But what a nifty thing to have happen to me and to her."

Bliss was not the only person affected by O'Brien's message that day. Many searched out O'Brien after the ceremony to offer their thanks personally, while others wrote to him as Bliss did.

Perhaps O'Brien hit a strong chord because his message rings true from his own life — he simply loves his work, and therein lies the reward. "If you have passion in your life's work, everything takes care of itself because you love going to work," he says. "And if you don't have passion, frankly there isn't enough money in the world to pay you for what you do."

But for one whose career successes are often gauged by audience response, he is still incredulous when he thinks about the stir he created at USD's graduation. "I am quite open-mouthed by it," O'Brien says. "I just knew that I shouldn't bore anybody and then I should get off the stage."

Bliss, for one, has been transformed by his taking a risk that day, and she is now taking a few of her own. Her business suits firmly tucked away in mothballs, she is earning money for graduate school as a charter participant in the National Civilian Community Corps (NCCC), a part of President Bill Clinton's AmeriCorps program.

NCCC participants live together for a year and work in teams on various community service projects identified by the program. In return, they get free room and board, some pay, and an educational award at the end of the year that can be applied toward student loans or further education. Bliss plans to be in the program for the maximum two years. She'll use one award to pay some of her undergraduate student loans and the other to help finance her graduate education.

Rooming with her community corps "unit" at a nearby San Diego military base, Bliss is living life with the passion O'Brien espoused in his speech. Her group is tackling a diverse range of projects, including temporarily staffing a Boys and Girls Club, cleaning up land near the Otay River so a park can be built, and restoring a 19th century house so it can serve as a museum for elementary schoolchildren. While the projects are centered around San Diego for the first few months, the group also will lend a hand in other Western states after the first of the year.

"I've never worked so hard in my entire life," Bliss says.
"You can't put a price tag on what we are doing. It's something that's totally rewarding to us because we see that we are making a difference."

As she works tirelessly toward her goal of graduate school and a career in counseling, Bliss remembers commencement fondly as a day of true beginnings, a day in which she cast aside a misguided plan and began pursuing her true passion in life. Today, tranquility has replaced the apprehension she was feeling in May when she donned her cap and gown.

"I know that what I'm doing now is right," she says with conviction. "At night, I'm just exhausted because we are working so much, but at the same time, I'm so glad to be doing it because it's something I believe in."

WORDS OF WISDOM

When Jack O'Brien addressed the USD undergraduates at their May 22 commencement ceremony, he offered a gift from his heart.

Tucked within that most banal of statements is the seed I wish to discuss with you today.

For anyone choosing a life in the performing arts — and I strongly suggest a vigorous program of guidance counseling for anyone so inclined — for anyone choosing a life in the performing arts, the career choices are fairly narrow and focused. You hope you will work. You hope you will be able to earn a living for yourself and, God willing, your family. Finally, I guess you hope for some degree of acceptance from your audiences and the critical faculty. And that's about it. I would say that nowhere in the top 10 or even 20 possible career goals available does it ever occur to you that you might be standing in front of an audience like this one, about to accept an honorary degree from a distinguished university.

So I feel as if an enormous question mark hangs in the air above my head. How did this possibly come to be?

And since it is customary to give some token of esteem, some gift, some talisman to the graduating seniors to take with them on the road ahead; and since I assume you all have dictionaries; and since the only acceptable alternative might be a personal check made out to each of you for $500 ... get over it! The least I can do is to offer some explanation for the situation which separates me by more than 30 years from sitting where you are today.

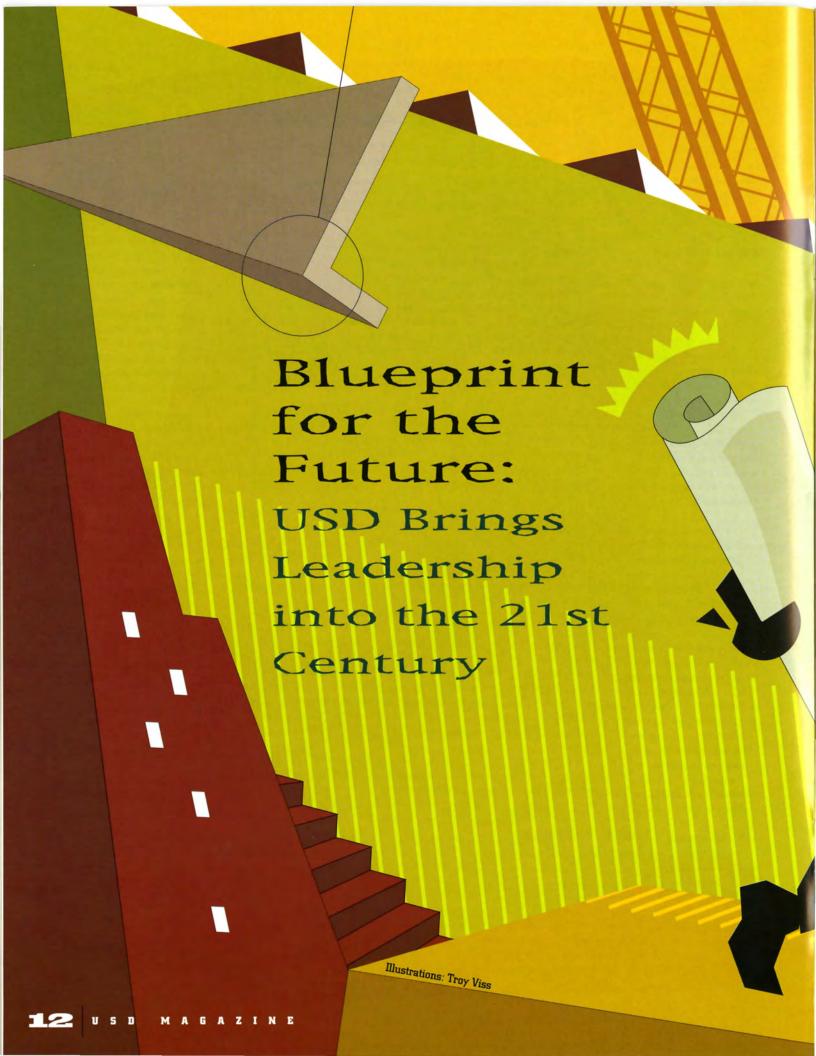

I love my work. Almost immoderately. Even at this point in my career, it astonishes me that anyone would want to pay me for what I do. Now this is clearly a sentiment my agent would prefer I do not share with you in public. But whenever someone from the media asks me which of the plays or operas, the musicals or television plays I have done is my favorite, I invariably, and I think honestly, reply, "The one I'm working on now. I am extremely happy to be here."

As graduates, you are in possession of a shiny, powerful new machine, which you are about to kick-start. It has taken well over 16 years to assemble this machine, and it is a tribute to your perseverance and determination, and has taken some of the best minds available in the academic world, and a considerable amount of money; and it is this machine which is meant to carry you forward throughout your careers. And if you ask me what it is that will power that machine and make it work for you, I would answer: passion. In this cool, sophisticated and even cynical world, passion is not something we talk about, or are comfortable discussing.

If I have one wish for you today, it would be that in 10 or 20 or even 30 years, if anyone stops you — as they have stopped me today — and asks you how it is going and how you're doing, you could say, as I do from the bottom of my heart, "I am extremely happy to be here."

I am extremely happy to be here. And that, I believe, has made all the difference.

he days of the leader with the iron will — whether in politics, private organizations or everyday life — are over. Ideas about leadership now favor cooperation and collaboration over coercion and competition. At USD, students in the School of Education's leadership program are throwing away old theories and developing a new model for the 21st century.

rofessor Joseph Rost can easily talk for hours about leadership, because he's made the study of that subject his life's work. Perhaps the final word on leadership comes not from Rost, however, but from the simple sign that hangs above his desk: "Leadership and learning are indispensable to each other."

Rost is true to those words. He has led the development of a unique, triple-pronged program in leadership studies at USD — encompassing a doctoral program, master's program and undergraduate minor — but he'll be the first to admit he learns something new about the subject almost every day. Not surprising, because the program — especially on the doctoral level — is popular with people working in a number of professional fields, all of whom bring their own views on leadership to the classroom.

"We're in the midst of developing a new theory of leadership, one that will be more appropriate for the 21st century," says Rost. "The doctoral students feel as if they're part of a movement, creating a new, futuristic model,"

That model includes the notion of collaborators who work with a leader, rather than followers who blindly implement a leader's vision. "Leadership is a process of relationships," says Professor Mary Scherr, who along with Rost teaches many of the core leadership courses. "Leaders today empower others to participate in the leadership process."

Rost doesn't claim to create leaders. Instead, his objective is to create experts in leadership. Although this may seem like a tall order, his highly acclaimed book, "Leadership for the Twenty-First Century," has gained notoriety as one of the more progressive works in the field. So has the doctoral program.

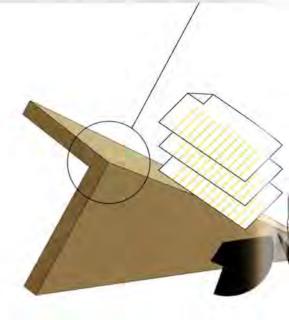

"The program is fairly famous on a national level, because it's one of the few in the United States in which people study leadership from a multidisciplinary perspective," Rost says. That translates into students who essentially build their own curriculum, expanding from the core courses in leadership into their own areas of interest, areas that might include business, socialogy, psychology or education.

A Work in Progress

Rost admits his definition of leadership is still very much a work in progress. There are certain elements essential to leadership — vision, team-building, promoting change, influence — but Rost says the definition of leadership is in transition.

The students may not know precisely what leadership is, but they do know what it is not. In fact, Rost's book and the leadership program cast a critical eye on misguided or outdated notions of leadership. Models such as the "great man" theory — essentially the study of famous leaders — are rejected. Instead, students examine "everyday" leaders, people who exist at every level of an organization.

The program does not duplicate theories taught in business schools, either. "We take the very staunch position that leadership is not the same as management," says Rost. "That separates us from most of the other programs that use leadership as a synonym for administration or management."

Michael Soroka, a USD professor of sociology who brings the concept of leadership into his own classes, verbalizes the difference succinctly: "Management is election to an office, leadership is how you conduct yourself once you get into that office."

Although Rost and his doctoral students are still shaping their definition of leadership, they are learning to be better leaders in the process. And Rost does have some ideas about what leaders in today's world should be doing. "I hope this program helps people do good," he says. "I want them to use their expertise to improve society, the world and their organizations."

Closing the Circle

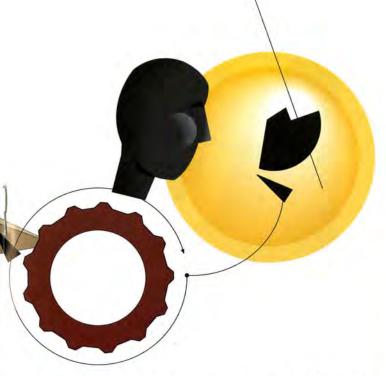

One graduate of the doctoral program who has put Rost's theories to good use is Tom Cosgrove, USD's associate dean of students and director of student development. Among the first few students in the program, Cosgrove began putting his leadership studies to work even before he graduated.

"At the time I was in the leadership program, we were trying to build our own program to develop student leaders at USD," Cosgrove recalls. "I was able to directly apply what I was learning to achieve that goal."

USD has benefited in several ways from the leadership principles Cosgrove learned in his doctoral studies. While still in the program in 1980, Cosgrove formalized the training process for officers of the Associated Students (AS), the self-governing organization to which all USD students belong. The training helps those officers form their own notions of how to lead the student body.

"We started doing off-campus retreats in 1980 to help AS leaders develop their vision," Cosgrove says. "Now these retreats are so indispensable that we can't believe there was a time when we didn't have them."

An even bigger boon to USD was the research Cosgrove conducted for his dissertation. That research led to a nationally recognized program in which students volunteer to compile an extracurricular transcript, in essence a non-academic counterpart to the record of their grades.

The program, which annually attracts about 150 to 200 students, encourages students to assume leadership positions on campus and to keep a record of their activities. They plan those activities in much the same way they plan their academic pursuits, with an eye on areas that will help them in their later careers. They can then present to graduate schools or potential employers an additional transcript, one that shows their abilities outside the classroom. And it seems that the lessons are learned well. While faculty members served as mentors in the program's early days, students have taken over and are acting as mentors for each other.

Years later, Cosgrove still gets requests from those wanting to use or cite from his research. But perhaps most satisfying is seeing his work in action at USD every day. "A lot of students' dissertations may sit on a shelf," he says, "but I continue to apply my research to this program."

Cosgrove's studies have helped foster leadership at USD in other ways, too. After he graduated from the program, Cosgrove went to work designing the staffing needs and hiring processes for the then-new Ernest and Jean Hahn University Center. After the UC was finished and staffed, he delved into the creation of a new "emerging leaders" program for USD freshmen, making the university one of the first schools to implement such a concept.

"The emerging leaders program gives students a leg up on how to be a leader at USD," Cosgrove says of the semesterlong, non-credit series of classes. "After eight years, it's clear that the students who participate in this program are assuming leadership positions at the school."

In a sense, Cosgrove has brought the program full circle. The one-time student of leadership not only brought the principles he learned to his job at USD, he now teaches a core course for the undergraduate leadership minor, "Leadership in Organizations."

"My own definition of leadership is still evolving," Cosgrove muses, "but I've never stopped applying the principles I learned."

Study Partners

When Jackie Freiberg began the research for her leadership studies doctoral dissertation, she chose to further pursue a topic first explored by a researcher she knows well: her husband.

"Kevin, my husband, performed what might be called a 'great man' study, using Herb Kelleher, the CEO of Southwest Airlines, as his model," says Freiberg '94 (Ed.D.). "As I was going through the leadership program several years later, I wondered if I could revisit Southwest Airlines for my dissertation and look for examples of what we called '21st century leadership."

Jackie Freiberg's choice illustrates clearly how the leadership program has evolved. At the time of her husband's dissertation, Professor Joseph Rost, the faculty and the doctoral students were building on models developed by pioneers in leadership studies such as James MacGregor Burns, whose work concentrated on individual leaders and the methods they utilized. Because of that focus, Kevin Freiberg '87 (Ed.D.) based his dissertation on the study of one successful leader.

As the program matured, however, Rost and his students turned toward exploring the process of leadership, and began to define some of the characteristics of a new model of leadership. That's when Jackie Freiberg saw an opportunity to reapproach Southwest, armed with the progress the program had made in the intervening years.

"I studied three major changes at Southwest Airlines and asked if they were examples of 21st century leadership," Freiberg recalls. "One of

(continued on page 17)

Changes in Leadership

USD's foray into leadership studies began in 1976, when Rost was brought to the School of Education to begin a doctoral program in administrative leadership. At the outset, the concentration was on preparing students to become school administrators. When Edward DeRoche came to USD in 1979 as the new dean of the School of Education, the faculty looked at the program and decided to redefine it.

"The faculty agreed that we should change the program fairly dramatically," Rost recalls. "First, we decided to focus on leadership, whereas the previous program focused on education. We also changed the course of study to emphasize a more multidisciplinary approach and recruited from fields other than education."

The doctoral program gradually began to attract people from other fields, including business, health care, university student services, human resources and even politics. After further refinements during the 1980s, the doctoral program evolved into one that now attracts about half of its approximately 100 students from areas other than education.

As the doctoral program grew, so did the interest of both faculty and students in this cutting-edge concept of leadership. During the past decade, the School of Education added an undergraduate minor in leadership as well as a master's degree, which is modeled on the doctoral program.

Masters of Their Own Destiny

"Some students in the leadership master's program are after an (educational) administrative credential, but many apply the principles of leadership to a variety of disciplines," says Scherr, who is the director of the master's program. "About 65 percent of those in the master's program are non-educators. Leadership has an educational component, but leaders of any type need to be skilled in these principles."

That sentiment is echoed by current master's students like Amy Pat Rigney, who is applying leadership principles in her job as a government and community relations assistant for the San Diego Zoo. Rigney says the invaluable part of the program is the study of trends in organizational leadership and the knowledge she is gaining about the future of organizations in America.

"Everyone comes into this program with different undergraduate, work and life experiences, and they carry that through all the coursework," Rigney says. "What you bring with you from your own organizations dictates what you want and what you get out of the program."

A 1993 USD graduate with a major in anthropology and religious studies, Rigney says she wants better interpersonal skills and a better understanding of how the pieces of an organization fit together. "We're learning that leadership can mean simple modifications to existing structures, and that those modifications can create far-reaching changes," she says.

Although some might find it strange that a leader would spend time on minutia rather than on sweeping changes, Rigney says that type of fine-tuning is one of the many tools a leader must master. "There aren't 10 quick steps to becoming a leader," she says. "There's a portfolio of options available, and a leader recognizes which to use in a given situation."

Creating Tomorrow's Leaders

Although the undergraduate minor in leadership offers a less in-depth approach to leadership studies, this component of USD's leadership program is no less important. The leaders of tomorrow are among the undergraduates, and the minor, just a decade old, is coming into its own as more students realize the importance of leadership roles in all levels of our society.

One such student is junior Chris Hutchison, who arrived at USD with a pretty good handle on how to be a leader. Active in student government and other groups in high school, he immediately began working for USD's orientation board, the Associated Students and his fraternity, Delta Tau Delta. Then he discovered USD's leadership program, and found that he still had a lot to learn.

"I've had a 100 percent change in attitude since starting the leadership program," says Hutchison, who signed up for the minor in leadership studies as soon as he found out about it. "It's helped me in my college activities and in my personal life, and I know it will help me in my future career."

That career will be in student affairs if Hutchison has his way, a radical departure for a student who planned to study for a career in business. Now majoring in speech communication, a natural complement to the leadership minor, Hutchinson marvels at how the classes in leadership have changed his life and helped him become a better leader.

"Every time I walk out of class I have information that I can apply in the organizations I'm working with," Hutchison says. "Whether it's working with a committee, delegating responsibilities or just keeping communication between people open, we talk in class about how to apply leadership theories and then go out and do it."

No More Follow the Leader

Students at every level of the leadership program use the knowledge they gain from the program every day. The program by its very nature requires that the ideas explored in the classroom are put to use in the world outside.

"The program offers new ways to solve problems," says Tim Vonder, who graduated from the doctoral program in 1992 and works at San Diego Gas & Electric. "I can now offer a different view than, for example, the economists who work for the company."

Rigney agrees, noting that, "There's a growing need for the type of education that recognizes the human element in organizations. We need to figure out how our society will continue to produce and maintain our standard of living, and the human element of organizations is a big part of that."

Both Rigney and Vonder, who teaches at Mira Costa Community College, praise the teaching process. "The professor works as part of the team, giving students the opportunity to express their own theories and opinions," Vonder says.

Perhaps the most important concept students in the leadership studies program learn is that followers or collaborators are an essential part of the leadership dynamic. "In the next century, leadership will be defined through relationships of leaders and collaborators intending changes that reflect their mutual purposes," says Rost. "One person will not be able to effect change alone. Instead, there will be a number of people involved in any significant change process."

Interestingly, Rost's ideas about the evolution of leadership are reflected in the development of USD's leadership program — starting with one man, but ending with many leaders.

Study Partners (cont.)

those changes was a management problem, but the other two followed what I would call the 'Rost model.' "

The model to which Freiberg ascribes Rost's name takes previous studies of leadership to a new level, incorporating concepts such as selfdirected teams of workers, the idea that leadership can pass from one person to another almost on a daily basis, and that leadership is increasingly a process of relationships and collaboration. "Joe Rost has done some incredible things for the notion of leadership," Freiberg says. "He's taught that by focusing on leadership, we can take organizations, businesses and educational institutions to new heights."

The Freibergs are putting their leadership experience to work doing just that. The couple formed the San Diego Consulting Group to help organizations study where they are performing effectively and, more important, where they aren't. "We work with organizations on management development and training, but we realize that sending people back with new ideas doesn't help if the organization remains the same," Freiberg says. "We also look at the system as a whole, find what it is that inhibits people from leading, and correct those problems."

The Freibergs' company is a testimony to two people who are strenuously applying what they learned about leadership. Jackie Freiberg summarizes their experience in words that would make Joseph Rost proud: "Leadership isn't about individuals," she says, "but people who work collectively."

ALUMNI F ALLERY

Note: Some vacancies still exist for class chairs, co-chairs (for classes prior to 1971), correspondents and co-correspondents (pre-1971 classes). If there is a vacancy in your class year and you want to volunteer, please contact Alumni Relations at (619) 260-4819.

Alumni Gallery notes received after the deadline will appear in a subsequent issue. If a large number of timely items are submitted for the spring issue, surplus notes may appear in the summer edition. For classes with correspondents, please send class news to your correspondent rather than directly to the magazine.

1953

CLASS CHAIR:

Therese (Truitt) Whitcomb, Honorary Chair

1954

CLASS CHAIR:

Katite Murtha

1955

40-Year Reunion Celebration Nov. 11, 1995

CLASS CHAIR:

Mary L. Scott

1956

CLASS CHAIRS:

Mary Ann (Daly) Kennedy and James V. Freed, Honorary Chair

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Diane (Sinclair) Drew 2854 Creekside Road Santa Rosa, CA 95405

1957

CLASS CHAIR:

Carol (Burke) Couture

1959

CLASS CHAIRS:

Angel (Kraemer) Kleinbub and George Palma

1960

35-Year Reunion Celebration
 Nov. 11, 1995

CLASS CHAIRS:

Karene (Lemke) Evenson and John Bowman

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Chuck Hanlen 2956 Verda Avenue Escondido, CA 92025

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

From class chair John Bowman: "In just a few spins of the Earth, the Class of 1960 will observe its 35-year reunion and we hope we can entice some long-absent members of our class to participate. The purpose behind any school reunion is to bring together members of the class who formed deep bonds during their time in school. Let's reunite to renew old and cherished relationships. We ain't gettin' any younger, pals! If you have been remiss of late in visiting the campus, make it a point to drive up Marian Way. The changes will not only delight you but make you proud. We encourage news from all class members: births, deaths, new business ventures, career changes, birthdays, residence changes, weddings, etc." ... Janet Beck Zumstein lives in Granada Hills, Calif., and is owner of Accu-Forms Inc. Her husband, Emil '59, passed away in December 1993.

1961

CLASS CHAIR:

Mary (Fiorino) Orradre

CLASS CORRESPONDENTS:

Martha (Fiorino) Dowell 676 West Timberbranch Parkway Alexandria, VA 22302-3614

Dennis Halloran 5023 Lilac Lane Dallas, TX 75209

1962

CLASS CHAIRS:

Janet (Halla) Trily and Ned Wilson

1963

CLASS CHAIRS:

Penny (Nutting) Guthrie and Hank Acquarelli

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Martha (Spiers) Lepore 750 F Avenue Coronado, CA 92118

1964

CLASS CHAIRS:

Mary Fipp and Tony Mournian

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Delle Willett 2753 Hillcroft Drive Chesterfield, MO 63005-7007

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Jose Cachuela is a popular actor in Hawaiian television commercials, local theater and some national television and movies. Watch for him in Kevin Costner's new film, "Waterworld." He's also earned his teaching credential and is teaching English as a second language at the University of Osaka, subbing at local high schools and tutoring Japanese families. Occasionally, he accepts some private investigator work. Jose writes: "On your next visit to Hawaii, give me a call. I'm in the phone book, two names above Cackle Fresh eggs." ... Anne (Boehler) Lonnecker writes: "As I was preparing to celebrate our 30th college reunion in October, I looked back at all the poignant memories of our USD days. Dick '62 and I celebrated our 30th wedding anniversary in July. On Dec. 14, 1963, we got engaged at Founders Chapel before the annual Christmas dance at the La Jolla Country Club. In 1988, 25 years later, Dick and 1 received the Bishop Buddy Award at Founders Chapel. Just this year, our oldest son, Greg Lonnecker '87, married Jackie Junkin '89 at the chapel. Completing the circle of events, Greg and Jackie's son, Christian Gregory, was baptized at Founders Chapel on Feb. 16. With so many wonderful memories, I can only hope that we have many more beautiful moments."

1965

30-Year Reunion Celebration Nov. 11, 1995

CLASS CHAIRS:

Maureen Buckley and Dennis G. Wick

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Karen (Graham) Thielke 19518 14th NW Seattle, WA 98177

1966

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Lois (Buenger) Hanson and her husband,
Jerry, celebrated their 23rd wedding anniversary in July. They live in Los Gatos, Calif., and have been active in community issues for more than 20 years. Their daughter, Leslie Catherine, graduated from Rice University in May and was married recently in Houston.
Leslie and her husband, Douglas Morrissey, will attend the University of Texas Medical School in the fall.

1967

CLASS CHAIRS:

Donna (Trumble) McGill and Paul Tuomainen

1968

CLASS CHAIRS:

Sandra (Kiszla) Chew and Walt Johnston

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Moira Lees 11806 Gorham Avenue Los Angeles, CA 90049

1969

CLASS CHAIRS:

Jan (Davidson) Tuomainen and Bill Davila

1970

25-Year Reunion Celebration Nov. 11, 1995

CLASS CHAIRS:

Rosemary (Masterson) Johnston and G. Vincent Reardon Jr.

1971

CLASS CHAIR:

Steve Nasman

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Lawrence Pickard 41142 Cardinal Flower Drive Murrieta, CA 92562-2016

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Navy Lt. Philip B. Creider reported for duty with the headquarters and service battalion at Camp Butler in Okinawa, Japan. He joined the Navy in May 1990. ... Richard C. Picard recently completed an accounting program and passed the CPA exam. He is currently self-employed and is looking for an accounting position. He and his wife, Lana, live in Greensboro, N.C.

1972

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

On July 6, Thomas G. Simons was named pastor of St. Francis de Sales parish in Muskegon, Mich. He also recently completed three years as executive director of the National Federation of Priests' Councils in Chicago.

1973

CLASS CHAIR:

Tim Chambers

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Thomas W. Miller writes that he has four great kids and a great job working with youth as project manager with the state of California Conservation Corps. He and his wife, Mary, live in Lodi, Calif.

1974

CLASS CHAIRS:

Victoria (Westervelt) Nasman and Doug Robert

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Mary (Fusco) Russell has been married for 20 years to her husband, Russell, and they have two sons: Michael, 5, and Evan, 11. The Russell family lives in Cincinnati.

1975

20-Year Reunion Celebration Nov. 11, 1995

CLASS CHAIR:

Dennis Blair

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

William Uberti 5350 Satterfield Court Woodbridge, VA 22193-3408

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Cheryll A. LeMay (M.Ed. '81) received her doctor of education, with an emphasis in organization and leadership, from the University of San Francisco on May 20. She is a counselor at Diablo Valley College in Pleasant Hill, Calif. ... College (Kirvin)

Zazworsky is a receptionist and hospital-patient liaison for the Khedive Temple in Virginia Beach, Va. She and her husband, Daniel, have been married for 14 years and they have two children: Lisa, 9, and Brian, 11.

1976

CLASS CHAIRS:

Maureen Phalen and Michael Liuzzi

1977

CLASS CHAIR:

Donald J. Altomonte

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Michael Aeling 48 Darlene Street St. Paul, MN 55119-4908

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Elizabeth (Davenport) Kirby and her husband, Gary, live in Homer, Alaska, where she is a kindergarten teacher for the Kenai Peninsula Borough School District. She earned a master's degree in early education from Boise State University in 1992.

1978

CLASS CHAIR:

Steve Plourd

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Joseph Plan is executive vice president and chief operating officer of The Bank of Commerce in Auburn, Calif.

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

Craig Silberman (M.Ed.) was named vice president of major accounts for Willis Corroon of San Diego.

1979

CLASS CHAIR:

Kathy (George) Frisbie

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Dorothy (Kettel) Kneski 296 Amesport Landing Half Moon Bay, CA 94019

ALUMNI F ALLERY

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Catherine (Priske) Burnette and her husband. Paul, live in Weatherford, Texas, and they have two children: Ashley, 8, and Colton, 3. ... Sister Anastasia Lott has been a missionary in the Garissa Diocese of Kenya since 1988, She writes in a Maryknoll Sisters newsletter: "I was riding a bicycle from our village to another about three miles away, carrying drugs and medical supplies for their dispensary. I had not secured the box well, so it was bouncing a lot, ready to fall off. Between the two villages is a manayatta, a gathering of homesteads of the local pastoralist group who herd animals. One of the women there saw my predicament as I stopped yet again to secure the supplies. She tore a strip, two inches wide, from her own worn clothing and used it to help me tie the box on. I arrived safe and sound at my destination with the supplies intact, and deeply moved by Halima's tearing cloth from her own dress to help me. Not only did she want to help me, she also wanted to help the people for whom the supplies were intended. As the 'Catholic missionary sister,' more often than not I stand in awe of the profoundly Christian - that is, authentically just and human - example of my Muslim sisters here." ... David M. Stanesic and his wife, Lucy, recently relocated to Houston, where he is a fire claims superintendent for State Farm Insurance.

1980

15-Year Reunion Celebration
 Nov. 11, 1995

CLASS CHAIR:

If you are interested in volunteering for this position, please call Alumni Relations at (619) 260-4819.

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Robert Quinnett is living in Des Plaines, Ill.

1981

CLASS CHAIR:

Hugh Swift

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Lisa Sill 11648 Mayfield Avenue, #202 Los Angeles, CA 90049

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Tracy Bushnell and her husband, David Griffin, own SunMist Farm in Reddick, Fla., where they work with horses.

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

Marguerite Peacock (M.Ed.) works on the U.S. Navy ship Comfort, anchored one mile offshore Kingston, Jamaica. Marguerite is one of 70 U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service officers interviewing Haitians to determine whether they qualify for refugee status.

1982

CLASS CHAIR:

Lupe Samaniego-Kraus

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Denise Bailey-Jackson 235 West 56th Street, #39-H New York, NY 10019

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Jeanne Canton-Luna is a natural childbirth educator in Coronado, Calif. She and her husband, Carl Luna, have four daughters: Jacqueline, 10, Rhiannon, 7, Arrielle, 4, and Delaney, 1. Carl is a professor at Mesa College. ... Sister Geraldine M. Clinton made final profession of her vows in the Society of the Sacred Heart on June 12 in Rome. She is a biology teacher at Josephinum High School in Chicago. ... Frances (Karris) Dernbach relocated to Richland, Wash., to start a pediatric practice. She and her husband, Art, have three children: Ashley, 6, Stefan, 4, and Lauren, 2. They are in the process of building a house. ... Lisa Matt (M.A. '90) is a professor at City College in San Diego.

1983

CLASS CHAIR:

Chris Pascale

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Terri (Gainey) Alford 3742 Lone Mesa Drive Las Vegas, NV 89117

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Lisa (Feasel) Binns is a teacher for the Clovis (Calif.) Unified School District and she has a new daughter, Tommi Suzanne. Her husband recently passed away. ... Jennifer Ralph received a bachelor's degree from the University of Massachusetts in 1984 and a master's degree in international marketing from Thunderbird College, Phoenix, in 1992. She works for the U.S. Olympic Organizing Committee in Atlanta, preparing for the 1996 ParaOlympics (games for the disabled). ... Lynne (Hingson) Seibel is still on active duty with the U.S. Navy. She and her husband, John, live in Suffolk, Va., and Lynne works for the Naval Medical Center in Portsmouth. ... Mark D. Tunney was promoted to regional director of national account sales for Marriott in McLean, Va. ... Juan Vargas appeared in a July 1994 story on recycling in National Geographic. The magazine article included a picture of him working with San Diego residents to wipe out graffiti. ... Mark Weedman moved to Davenport, Iowa, in April to join his fiancée. He is employed in a drug rehabilitation program at the Annie Wittenmayer Youth Center.

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

Sandra (Rose) Solem (M.S.N.) is an assistant professor of nursing at Point Loma Nazarene College in San Diego. She and her husband, Craig, live in Coronado, Calif.

1984

CLASS CHAIR:

Tim Huckaby

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Norma Samaniego 489 Pescado Place Encinitas, CA 92024

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

After receiving her master's degree from USD, Bronwyn Bachrach-Towle (M.A. '86) worked for the U.S. Department of State for three years in the Office of Legislative Affairs. She now works for Hecht, Spencer & Associates, a lobbying/government relations firm, in Washington, D.C. Bronwyn and her husband, Raymond, live in Arlington, Va. ... David A. Dahl recently joined the Whittier Trust Co. in South Pasadena, Calif., as vice president and manager of fixed income investments. He and his wife have two children. ... Gina Paladini is vice president of the American division at H&N Seafood in San Francisco. She also just moved into a new home on the shore in San Mateo. ... Carl Tripician is a partner in Franks & Tripician, a law practice in Atlantic City, N.J., that specializes in commercial and business law, civil and criminal litigation, and matrimonial matters.

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

Stephen P. Doyle (J.D.) is senior vice president of development for Coscan Davidson Homes in Del Mar, Calif. He oversees planning, engineering, construction and legal operations for the firm. ... Sylvia Tatman (M.S.N.) works at Palomar College in San Marcos, Calif., where she has been an associate professor for the past 17 years and chairperson of the Department of Nursing Education for the past four years. She and her husband, Gary, live in Menifee, Calif.

1985

10-Year Reunion Celebration
 Nov. 11, 1995

CLASS CHAIR:

Maggie (Keller) Hawblitzel

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Caroline (Carlson) Atwood is a pharmacist for Scripps Health in San Diego. She and her husband, Robert, have two children: Rachel, born in March 1992, and Robert, born in July 1993. ... Laura (Flores) Badillo (M.Ed. '89) is a teacher with the Vista (Calif.) Unified School District. She and her husband, Theodore, have three children and a fourth on the way. ... Cheryl (Meumann) Ingram has a new job as regional account manager for Global Data Inc., a wireless communications company. She and her husband, Dale, live in San Diego. ... Army Capt. Joseph F. Kinnally and Sandra (Appel) Kinnally have three children: Brian, 7, Sean, 4, and Raquel, 2. Joseph is in military intelligence and the family lives in Fort Irwin, Calif.

1986

CLASS CHAIR:

Ed Aloe

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Shannon Smith 1602-1/2 The Strand Hermosa Beach, CA 90254

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Katherine (Farrand) Anastasia and her husband, Jack, live in Pasadena, Calif., where she is assistant director of development at The Chandler School. ... Chuck McBride and his wife, Amanda, live in San Francisco. Chuck is senior advertising copywriter for Goodby Berlin and Silverstein. ... Navy Lt. Daniel K. Mishler recently participated in a major maritime exercise between the United States, Australia, Canada, Japan and the Republic of Korea. The exercise took place near Hawaii and involved more than 50 ships, 200 aircraft and 25,000 sailors, airmen, Marines, soldiers and Coast Guardsmen. ... Shawn D'Hearn moved to Hillsborough in the San Francisco area. He works for Tri-City Health Center as a health educator to help slow the spread of the HIV virus.

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

Kenneth F. Florek (J.D.) was named a partner of Hedman, Gibson & Costigan, P.C., in New York City. He and his wife, Diane, have two sons, ages 1 and 3, and they live in Colts Neck, N.J.

1987

CLASS CHAIR:

Philip Welp

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Niamh Foley-Homan 1621 Andora Carson City, NV 89703

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Brian McCullough is chief financial officer for Shannon Communities in La Jolla, Calif. ... Sean P. Murphy is an E-2/C-2 pilot and C2A aircrew training officer for the Navy in Norfolk, Va. He and his wife, Colleen, have two children: Erin, 4, and Kevin, 2. ... Leesa Pulso is director of special education for Options Head Start in South El Monte, Calif. ... Karen Rivera (M.B.A. '89) is administrative coordinator for the San Diego Consortium and Private Industry Council. ... Robert Stiglich is owner of Diamond Veil Development Inc., a land developing company in Indiana. He also is sales and marketing director for I.S.M. Security, an industrial security management firm. Robert and his wife, Jeanette, live in Merrillville, Ind.

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

Susan (Burkhalter) Baldwin (M.A.) and her husband, J.D., have two children: Gretchen, born in 1990, and Jay, born in 1991. ... Navy Lt. Cmdr. Rea M. Heatherington (M.B.A.) recently reported for duty at U.S. Naval Station Roosevelt Roads in Puerto Rico.

1988

CLASS CHAIR:

Jacki (Cepe) Lake

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Joannie (Santoni) McLoughlin 11454 Eastridge Place San Diego, CA 92131

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Sheila White lives in La Jolla, Calif., and is a special agent in the criminal investigation division of the Department of the Treasury.

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

Catherine E. Gauthier (M.B.A.) is an investment banker with The Trenwith Group based in Newport Beach, Calif. Catherine provides advisory services to emerging companies. ...

Timothy Ronstadt (M.B.A.) is account manager for Schlumberger-GeoQuest in Houston. He and his wife, Valeri, have three children: Vittoria, born in 1985, Elias, born in 1989, and Mitchell, born in 1991. ... Thomas Steele (M.B.A.), formerly Tomislav Ignjatovic, joined Contel as a systems analyst in 1989 and is now senior systems analyst for GTE's commercial services division. He and his wife, Tanja, live in Tampa, Fla., and Thomas plans to start law school in the next two years.

1989

CLASS CHAIR:

Tom Gorman

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Colleen Blackmore 6910 Blue Orchid Lane Carlsbad, CA 92009

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Deena Aladray earned her master's degree in education in July. She is teaching second grade in Encinitas, Calif. ... Jamie (Ferl) Allison is the public relations/marketing coordinator for the Children's Museum in San Diego. Jamie just received her multiple-subject teaching credential from USD and will graduate with her M.Ed. from USD in December. ... Lorie Birk is an associate counsel in the corporate legal department at Amdahl Corp. in Sunnyvale, Calif. She was admitted to the California Bar in December 1992. ... Kelly L. Bull (J.D. '92) is an attorney for the Law Offices of Daniel R. Krinsky in San Diego. ... Karen Cadiero-Kaplan earned a master's degree from San Diego State University in policy studies in language and cross-cultural education. She is an instructor of English as a second language for the San Diego Job Corps and lives in San Diego with her husband, Roger. ... Christal Clark owns a jewelry shop in Pacific Beach, Calif. She designs jewelry and sells it across the country. ... Thomas Clougherty is a second-year law student. ... Christy Coleman graduated from UCLA with a Ph.D. in education and an emphasis in counseling psychology. She is the project coordinator for intervention in the adolescent prevention studies program at UCLA. ... Sean Coughlin is an associate attorney for Milberg & DePhillips in Cardiff-by-the-Sea, Calif. The practice focuses on business litigation with an emphasis in bankruptcy and real estate matters. ... Diane (Davis) Danna is a buyer for United Grocers. She and her husband, Thomas, have a son, Ritchie, and they live in Gresham, Ore. ... Susan Daudelin recently earned her M.B.A. degree from San Diego State University. She is senior subcontract administrator for Teledyne Ryan Aeronautical in San Diego. ... Lisa (Kaenel) Doezie is getting ready to start graduate school at Old Dominion University. She will be working toward a degree in educational administration. Lisa and her husband, Jon, live in Chesapeake, Va., with their two sons. ... Janine Dovidio became owner of a gift shop in the Whittier Hilton Hotel on Aug. 30, 1993. She lives in Hermosa Beach, Calif. ... Mark Edwards is operations supervisor for Gary R. Edwards Inc. in San Diego. ... Monica Foltz is a senior buyer for Solar Turbines in San Diego. She started working on an M.B.A. degree at USD in September. ... Martha Gminski is an M.S.N./nurse practitioner student at USD and a public health nurse for Kaiser Home Health in San Diego. She and her husband, Bud, live in Poway. ... Air Force Capt. Sean Hackbarth lives in Colorado Springs, Colo., and was recently promoted to chief of launch operations for the third satellite control squadron. Sean is responsible for the launch and early orbit operations of the Navy's UHF F/O satellite system. ... Jane Harkins is an R.N. and travel nurse. She was on assignment in Alexandria, Va., until Aug. 31, then off to another city. ... Michelle (O'Connor) Hubers and her husband, Myles, are owners of Mortgage Loan Specialists, a mortgage brokerage firm in San Diego. ... Jennifer L. Jacobs is a social worker for Aspira Foster Family Services in Oakland, Calif. She received her master's degree in counseling psychology from Boston College in May 1993. ... Lucille Kanjer finished her first year of residency in the Department of Pediatrics at Harbor-UCLA Medical Center. ... Suzanne (Ventimiglia) Kelly is working on her master's degree in career counseling and is a career counseling intern at California State University, Northridge. She and her husband, Jack Kelly '87, live in Chatsworth. ... David Lousteau passed the California Bar in 1994 on his first try. He and his wife, Mireya Melendez, have been married since 1991 and are "loving life." ... Mary (Kaplan) Marusich is office manager for Children's Oasis School in Las Vegas. ... Mark McGuiness is a history and government teacher and volleyball coach for Bishop Montgomery High School in Redondo Beach, Calif. The team was C.1.F. champ in 1993 and a state finalist in 1994. ... Stephanie Morand lives in Boston and is the southeast team leader for Sun Microsystems. ... Karen Parker is contract administrator for Advanced Systems Technology Inc. in Arlington, Va. ... Lance Pelky is director of retirement seminars for Hansch Financial Group in San Diego. He and his wife, Eileen, live in La Jolla. ... Alice (Barrett) Schlesier is escrow specialist for Household Bank Escrow in San Diego. She and her husband, Edward Schlesier, celebrated their third wedding anniversary on Sept. 14. ... Stephen P. Schuster recently formed Schuster Marketing Corp. in Milwaukee, Wis. ... Denice (Payne) von Gnechten entered the University of Hawaii Richardson School of Law in August. She and her husband, Richard, live in Honolulu with their three daughters: Jacqueline, 5, Rachel, 3, and Danielle, 1. ... Mark Williams is senior revenue accountant. for USA Transport Inc. in Adelanto, Calif. ... Ken Zampese lives in Flagstaff, Ariz., where he is recruiting and pass game coordinator for the Northern Arizona University football team. He and his wife, Christine Zampese (M.Ed. '91), celebrated their second wedding anniversary on July 11.

ALUMNI | ALLERY

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI
Laura (Flores) Badillo (M.Ed.) is a teacher with the Vista (Calif.) Unified School District. She and her husband, Theodore, live in Murrieta. ... Barry Mann (M.F.A.) is a free-lance actor, writer, educator and storyteller in San Diego. He has been a featured storyteller and lecturer in USD continuing education storytelling classes. ... Julis Cowan Novak (D.N.Sc.) recently moved to Charlottesville, Va., where she is a tenured full professor at the University of Virginia School of Nursing. She directs the nurse practitioner programs and the Division of Family Health Care Nursing. Julie also holds a joint appointment as professor, Department of Pediatrics, University of Virginia School of Medicine. ... Den (Easter) Torrington (M.Ed.) is a fourth-grade teacher at Merryhill Country School in Roseville, Calif.

1990

Five-Year Reunion Celebration
 Nov. 11, 1995

CLASS CHAIR:

Estela Lopez

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

April (Flores) Goodjohn 926 Agate Street San Diego, CA 92109

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Evan Donaldson is restructuring science education at Francis Parker School in San Diego. He recently received the Dethloff Award for teaching excellence. ... Kelly England teaches a third- and fourth-grade combination class of gifted students at Benchley-Weinberger Elementary School in San Diego. ... Anthony Eros is owner of an apparel/screen print company in San Diego. He has developed a children's apparel line for the 1994 holiday season and a men's apparel line for fall 1995. ... Paul Farkas is working on his M.B.A. degree at Pepperdine University and is a corporate account representative for Airtouch Cellular in Irvine, Calif. ... Sheri M. Gess was awarded the Cornaro Scholarship for graduate studies by Kappa Gamma Pi, a national Catholic college graduate honor society. Sheri has enrolled in the master of religious education program at Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. ... Michael Hollon is a legislative aide for Congressman Gene Green in Washington, D.C. He and his wife, Sharon, live in Alexandria, Va. ... Robert Jackson graduated from Baylor Medical School in 1994 with honors in general surgery and neurology. He and his wife, Nancy, are settled in Houston for six years while he serves in his neurosurgery residency. ... Donald E. MacInnes is in marketing/sales with Washington Architectural Hardware in Fife, Wash. Donald and his wife, Mary (McKeon) MacInnes, live in Kent. ... Barbara Meehan is a bond analyst at Oppenheimer & Co. Inc. in New York City. ... Julie (McDonnell) Oliver is in project sales with O'Neill Enterprises, a residential developer in Idaho. She and her husband, Peter, live in Boise. ... Chris Olsen is president of Horticare Management, a horticare company in Dallas and Little Rock, Ark. ... Navy Lt. William Scheibner is officer-incharge of the military detachment onboard the USNS Andrew J. Higgins, an oiler that is forward deployed to the western Pacific and Arabian Gulf. ... Lisa Ziomkowski-Boten and her husband, Russell, live in Plano, Texas, where she is a staff accountant for Frito-Lay

ALUMNI F ALLERY

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

Gerald E. Bracht (M.B.A.) is vice president and administrator for Scripps-Encinitas Healthcare in Encinitas, Calif. He and his wife, Tracy, have two daughters.

1991

CLASS CHAIR:

Al Ingallinera

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Glenn Hickok 2221 Princeton St. Paul, MN 55105

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Eirik Njelle is an equity trader for Torrey Pines Securities in Solana Beach, Calif. He and his wife, Anastasia, have a 2-year-old son. ... Jenniler Jolly is a seventh-grade teacher at St. Raymond School in Downey, Calif. ... Rick Lull is a graphic designer at the Denver Post and also has some free-lance design assignments with Colorado Expression magazine. ... Chris Orr and his wife, Ramona, live in Honolulu, where he teaches U.S. government at St. Louis School in Honolulu. ... Laurel A. Shoaff received her master's degree in non-profit management from the Mandel School of Applied Social Sciences and the Weatherhead School of Management at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland. She is working as an intern in Columbus, Ohio, and seeking employment. ... Tamara Tuits is controller for Pacific Mailing, a literature distribution firm in Newark, Calif. She is working on her M.B.A. at Santa Clara University.

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

Navy Lt. Cmdr. Soren Christensen (M.S.N.) and her husband, James, live in Bremerton, Wash., where she is a nurse and department head of patient education at the Naval Hospital. ... Charlene R. Johnston (M.S.N.) recently reported for duty at the U.S. Naval Hospital in Naples, Italy, ... Navy Cmdr. Robert M. Moore (M.B.A.) recently graduated from the Naval War College. During the 10-month program, students take courses in strategy and policy, national security decisionmaking and joint military operations. ... Marianne (Woolever) Sergel (M.S.N.) is an instructor of community health nursing at Clarkson College in Omaha, Neb.

1992

CLASS CHAIR:

Greg Weaver

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Charlie Bush 6379 Caminito Luisito San Diego, CA 92110

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Claudine Daley (M.Ed. '94) is a teacher at Bernardo Heights Middle School in Poway, Calif. ... Jamis Freeman is a Peace Corps volunteer with the English as a foreign language department in Kazakhstan. ... Jeannie Henderson recently completed the USD RICA program and was confirmed in April at Founders Chapel. In August, she transferred to Dallas with the Marriott Corp. ... Army Lt. Gregory S. Kuzniewski is the assistant logistical officer for the 22nd signal brigade located in Darmstadt, Germany. ... Kimberlee Moravick (M.A. '93) is international documentation specialist for Intermag Inc. in Sacramento, Calif. ... Kara Mullen is stage manager for the Seattle Children's Theatre. In December, Kara will earn her Actor's Equity Association card and will stage manage her first professional show.

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

Peter Amstutz (M.B.A.) is senior process engineer for Thermometrics in Edison, N.J. He and his wife, Grace, live in Matawan. ... Anne Dierickx (J.D. '92, M.B.A. '93) is a lawyer and special assistant for the U.S. Attorney General in San Diego. This new job is a part of a pilot program for the Department of Justice. ... David Hammond (M.B.A.) is a college instructor at Watterson College

Pacific in Vista, Calif. ... Scott Sabin (M.A.) is program director for Floresta U.S.A., a non-profit firm based in San Diego that manages reforestation and economic development projects in the Dominican Republic and Latin America.

1993

CLASS CHAIR:

Houssam Aboukhater

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Hays Fraim 87 Princeville Lane Las Vegas, NV 89113

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

From class correspondent Hays Fraim: "I am still teaching first grade in Las Vegas. I love my job! Please don't hesitate to write or call. We all would love to know what you are up to." ... Air Force 2nd Lt. Kimberly (Holt) Braun lives in Colorado Springs, Colo., and works at Peterson Air Force Base. ... Erika Dohrmann is attending Gonzaga's School of Law in Washington. ... Maxwell Doubek is a sales rep for Douglas Steel in Vernon, Calif. ... Theresa Esparza is an accountant and tax specialist with KPMG Peat Marwick in Phoenix. She will complete the master's of taxation program at Arizona State University in December. ... Sarah Graham and her husband, Michael Amato, are traveling in Europe, Africa and India during 1993 and 1994. ... Jim Greeley is production manager for Richard Chang Associates, an organizational improvement consulting and publishing firm in Irvine, Calif. ... Kimberly Heitmiller is sales administrator for General Instrument in San Diego. She taught English to elementary school students in Guadalajara, Mexico, from August to November 1993. ... Kelly Konitz is a physical therapy aide at Cherry Hills Health Care Center in Englewood, Colo. She is going back to school to earn a master's degree in physical therapy. ... After spending a year traveling through Europe and Central America, Ethan Kutzscher is attending Creighton University Medical School. ... David Martinson writes, "I am a writer/researcher for Senator Eusebio A. Hocog, I recently submitted two bills for HIV/AIDS legislation which, I am told, will pass into law very soon. I am learning Tagalog (Filipino), Japanese and Chinese. I intend to go to law school and practice law in Micronesia." ... Rhonda Nourse writes: "I've been doing a little of everything: working on a congressional campaign, volunteering at a local TV station (still waiting for a break) and mostly paying bills by working at Hewlett-Packard." ... Michael Paganelli started working on his Ph.D. in economics at the University of Texas in the fall 1994 semester. ... Chris Palmer lives in San Diego and just bought a house. ... Peter M. Parker was recently EMT-certified and is driving for Balboa Ambulance in San Diego until he goes to medical school next year. ... Mishelle Patty is teaching second grade in the Guam public school system and working on her master's degree at the University of Guam. She enjoys living at the beach in Ipan-Talofofo with her sister, Melinda Patty '94. ... Mimi Peterson is teaching second grade in Redding, Calif. ... Jeff Prekker works for Aerotek Telecommunications Services in Gardena, Calif. ... Barbra Sheridan is communications assistant for the American Association of Endodontists in Chicago. ... Kim Snyder spent a year as a substitute teacher in San Francisco and now has her own kindergarten class at St. Barbara's School in Newport Beach.

ALUMNI G ALLERY

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

Linda Barkats (J.D.) is an associate with the law firm of Hinchy, Witte, Wood, Anderson & Hodges. ... Terry Moore (M.B.A.) owns Moore Consulting and was recently hired as program management consultant for Solar Turbines Inc. Terry also is consulting with several high technology start-up companies in the San Diego area. ... Stephania Stephens (M.I.B.) is committee coordinator for the East San Diego County Board of Realtors. She and her husband, James, live in Chula Vista.

1994

CLASS CHAIR:

Tom Vertetis

CLASS CORRESPONDENT:

Lauren Riaski 5401 Nassau Circle East Englewood, CO 80110

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Marine 2nd Lt. Thomas H. Campbell was commissioned after completing the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps Program. ... Elizabeth Ganse plans to move to San Francisco and then pursue teaching in Japan through the Jet Program. ... Cynthia Glace is attending Marquette University Law School. ... Malcolm

Khoo Chong Sin is attending Carnegie Mellon Graduate School of Industrial Administration. ... Darcy Long is assistant coordinator of local broadcasting for McCann-Erickson, an advertising firm in San Francisco. ... Jason Mattox is a law student at Santa Clara University. ... Sandra Pérez started graduate studies in Spanish literature at UCLA in fall 1994 and is a teacher's aide. ... Gloria Rojas is working toward a single-subject teaching credential at USD. ... Navy Ensign Kevin P. Schultz was commissioned after completing the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps Program. ... Elizabeth Schweizer is working toward a doctorate at Carnegie Melon University in Pittsburgh. ... Kristin Skow manages a specialty apparel store in San Diego's Seaport Village. The store owners are USD alumni Mark Killeen '83 and Mike Lindmark '83. ... Navy Ensign Christopher Stafford was commissioned after completing the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps Program. ... Marine 2nd Lt. Chad Stewart was commissioned after completing the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps Program. ... Navy Ensign Pedro G. Tajalle was commissioned after completing the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps Program.

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

Edward M. Dempsey (M.A.) is executive director of Ramona Community, a non-profit housing foundation in Ramona, Calif. He and his wife, Debra Hinman, live in Encinitas. ... Barbara (Anderson) Gilliss (Ed.D.) is founder of The Gilliss Organization, a consulting firm. She and her husband, Charles, recently moved to Prescott, Ariz. ... Jeffrey Glazer (Ed.D.) is assistant dean for student relations, at San Diego State University's College of Business. He and his wife, Lisa Braun, live in La Jolla. ... Susan Mitchell (Ed.D.) is associate director of university residential education at San Diego State University. ... Brian R. Tompkins (M.B.A.) is a financial analyst for the retail division of Wells Fargo Bank in San Diego.

MARRIAGES

Please note that USD Magazine does not print engagement information. While alumni are urged to send information about their marriages, due to space considerations, wedding photographs are no longer being published.

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Patricia Hinkle '78 married Edward Mehosky on Oct. 30, 1993. The couple live in Maryland. ... Tricia Garwick '79 and Richard Jarrett '81 were married on Oct. 2, 1993, at Founders Chapel. ... Nicholas Krall '80 married Anne Barhydt on May 29 at St. Francis de Sales Church in Sherman Oaks, Calif. Nicholas is a computer systems service account executive for Reynolds & Reynolds. ... Ellen Evers '82 and Randy Prelan were married on July 23 in the backyard of their new home in San Juan Capistrano, Calif. The couple honeymooned on the French and Italian Riviera. Ellen is a senior manager for McDonnell Douglas Corp. in Huntington Beach. ... Frances Huffman '83 and Jim Marlina '83 were married on July 2 at St. Michael's Church in Poway, Calif. They honeymooned on Cape Cod and now live in New York City. Frances is a corporate tax manager for Sithe Energies Inc. and Jim is pursuing his career as an actor, working in the theater, television and commercials. ... Robin Giamela '84 married John Hellen on Oct. 30, 1993, at St. Jude's Catholic Church in Westlake Village, Calif. Robin is a regional affairs specialist for ICN Biomedicals Inc. She and John live in Huntington Beach. ... Julie Cella '86 and Michael McKenna were married on Sept. 1, 1991. Julie is a government affairs specialist with Hobbs, Trout & Raley in Denver. ... Jack Hannigan '86 married Gina Johnston on Sept. 17. Jack is owner of The Grandstand Pub & Grill in Tigard, Ore. ... Audie De Castro '87 married Thelma Virata in September 1993. After several years in public accounting in San Francisco, Audie recently returned to San Diego, where he is assistant controller for The Eastridge Group. ... Kathryn Etter '87 married Vincent Telles on April 9 in Las Vegas and they honeymooned in the French Polynesian Islands. Kathryn is assistant vice president and branch manager for Bank of America. ... J.D. Blacker '88 married Jennie Littell on March 5 and they spent their honeymoon at Mount Whistler, Canada. ... John Byrum '88 and Karen Tanzy were married in January 1993 and moved to Seattle soon after. John is manager of sales in the office products division of Minolta Corp. ... Lisa Mitchell '88 (M.Ed. '90) and Tim Madson were married in Seattle on June 25. Lisa is a school psychologist/counselor for the Oceanside (Calif.) School District. ... Jacqueline Myrick '88 married Tommy Mejia on April 30 at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church in La Habra, Calif. Jacqueline is public relations director for Big West Conference in Irvine. ... Jennifer Piper '88 (M.Ed. '93) married José Cervantes in March at Founders Chapel. The couple live in Carlsbad, Calif., and Jennifer is a teacher in the Vista Unified School District. ... Orlando Sepulveda '88 and Jennifer Baumann were married on Oct. 8. Orlando is a federal investigator for the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in San Antonio, Texas. ... Anne Sprague '88 (M.Ed. '90) married Robert Culpon on June 4 and they honeymooned on St. John in the U.S. Virgin Islands. She is a development assistant for Microsoft Corp. Anne and Robert live in Kirkland, Wash. ... Stephanie Armstrong '89 (M.A. '92) and Keith Szot '91 (M.B.A.) were married on March 12. Stephanie is a social services case manager for Childhaven in Seattle. ... Gisele Becker '89 married Lt. Cmdr. Basil Gray on Feb. 20 in Coronado. Calif., and then relocated to Arlington, Va. Gisele is a risk management/general liability coordinator for Nordstrom. ... Ronald Bone '89 and Jean Suprunowski were married on May 15, 1993, in Tacoma, Wash. Ron is an FBI agent. ... John Dasher '89 married Kristi Kokalis on Feb. 5 in Portola Valley, Calif. John is Macintosh product manager for MicroNet Technology Inc. ... Loree Draude '89 married Harry Hirschman on July 16 in Ojai, Calif. Loree is a Navy jet pilot and will be one of the first women to deploy on a carrier for six months on a combat billet. ... Mary Farrar '89 and Carl Starrett '90 (J.D. '93) were married on Feb. 12 at St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church in Poway, Calif. Mary is a contracts administrator for Scientific Atlanta and Carl is an attorney with the Law Offices of Shawn F. Kelly. ... Patrick Ginn '89 and Susanne Krasovich were married on July 29 in Milwaukee, Wis. Patrick is a physician at the Bermerton, Wash., Naval Hospital. ... Peter Greeley '89 and Susan Marlow '89 were married on July 23 in Seattle. Peter is a sales agent with John Scott Real Estate in Seattle. ... Jodi Grendahl '89 married Wesley Talcott on Aug. 22 in Anchorage, Alaska. Jodi is a student teacher at O'Malley Elementary School in Anchorage, and she and Wesley bought a lodge in rural Alaska, near Matanuska Glacier. She writes: "If anyone wants a vacation in Alaska, give me a call!" ... Theodora Halikas '89 married Terry Markou in August. Theodora is a social worker with

ALUMNI T ALLERY

ARC in Walnut Creek, Calif. ... Sabrina Haverfield '89 and Aaron Scott were married on July 2. Sabrina is an administrative assistant with the Municipality of Anchorage, Alaska. ... Gina Labovitz '89 married John Caparell '88 on July 24, 1993. John graduated from law school in June and Gina is a firstgrade teacher with the San Diego Unified School District. ... Anna Martinez '89 and Mark Williams were married in September at Founders Chapel. In October, they moved to

Do you have a new job? A promotion? A new spouse or child? A great vacation story to tell? Your classmates want to hear about it!

Take a few minutes to fill out this form and send it to your class correspondent, listed in the Alumni Gallery section by class year.

IF NO CORRESPONDENT IS LISTED, send the form to: Office of Alumni Relations, University of San Diego, 5998 Alcalá Park, San Diego, CA 92110-2492.

You also can send the information via the Internet: alumni@teetot.acusd.edu.

Last	First	Middle	Maiden
Last	First	Middle	Maiden
	State	Zip	Telephone
		Title
	State	Zip	Telephone
	Major	-	Degree
s Year	School		Degree
id? • Yes • N		If yes, Major and Grad Year
			ONE.
	s Year d?	State State Major s Year School If yes, Major a	Last First Middle State Zip Title State Zip Major s Year School

ALUMNI G ALLERY

Mississippi. ... Linda McMillan '89 married David Smith in November 1993. Linda is in advertising and media planning with Rubin Postaer & Associates. ... Sandra Seaburg '89 and Howard Rowley were married Nov. 13, 1993, and they live in San Diego. ... Norman Slaught '89 and Gloria Ramirez '91 were married on June 11 by Father Barry Vinyard at Founders Chapel. They honeymooned on Kauai and Maui and now live in Los Angeles, where Norman is an account executive with LAN Systems Inc. ... Stephen Speer '89 and Julanne Maudlin were married in Chicago on July 30 and they spent their honeymoon at Lake Como in northern Italy. Steve is in the hotel industry and they live in Naperville, Ill. ... Wade Walker '89 and Lara Cook '90 were married in June 1993 in Hillsborough, Calif. Wade is an information scientist for Alza in Palo Alto Kimberly Wood '89 married Stephen Micheli on June 19, 1993. Kimberly earned a master's degree in clinical psychology from Pepperdine University in 1991 and is in private practice as a marriage, family and child therapist in Monrovia, Calif. ... Lisa Zito '89 and William West were married on Sept. 1, 1990. Lisa is a paralegal for Cooksey, Howard, Martin & Toolen in Tustin, Calif. ... Anna Carlson '90 married William Joslin on July 2. They live in Newport Beach, Calif., and Anna is an elementary teacher in the Saddleback Valley School District. ... James Edwards '90 married Katherine Iverson on June 25. The couple live in Denver, where James is a sales agent for Northwestern Mutual Life, ... Michael Eggleton '90 and Rebecca Cussen were married May 15, 1993, at Founders Chapel. In February, they were both transferred to Price Waterhouse's Moscow office for three years. Michael is a tax manager for the company. ... Christina Fitzgerald '90 and Dale Abbott were married in August 1993. Christina is a capital formation manager for Sterling Financial Group. ... Tammy Kelly '90 and Dennis Layton were married on June 24. They live in Las Vegas, where Tammy is a third-year medical student. ... Paula Mascari '90 married Jason Bott on May 29. Paula is sports editor for the Blade-Citizen in Solana Beach, Calif. ... Deborah Poirot '90 and Paul Hedley '93 (M.Ed.) were married in August 1992 at Founders Chapel. Deborah is a flight attendant for American Airlines. ... Marc R. Duggan '91 married Michele L. Friedman on Feb. 19 in San Diego. They live in La Mesa, Calif., and own and operate the Cayman management company. ... Kathleen Larson '91 married Erik Borgeson on July 30. Kathleen earned her master's degree in social work in May. ... Chrislyn Millay '91 and Dominique Brandt '93 (M.B.A.) were married on July 29 at All Hallows Catholic Church in La Jolla, Calif. They live in San Diego, where Chrislyn works for Avis Rent A Car and Dominique is a consultant for Accounting Based Management Inc. ... Molly Montgomery '91 married Brian Richey on Sept. 3. They live in Irving, Texas, where Molly is catering manager for Harvey Hotel. ... Susan Nadeau '91 and Christopher Maloney '90 were married at the Immaculata on June 11. They recently moved to Nashville. ... Katy O'Connell '91 married Greg Kula on Sept. 3 in Lake Tahoe. ... Stacey Simon '91 and Jeff Soinski were married in May 1993. They live in Houston. ... Lori Westcott '91 and Paul Gillette were married May 14 at Founders Chapel. Lori is a quality control associate in immunology at PharMingen in San Diego. ... Heather Heyer '92 married Scott Meyer on Oct. 22. Heather is an underwriter for Henderson Insurance Agency in Huntington Beach, Calif. ... Wesley Kill '92 married his wife, Jeanna, on June 19, 1993. Wesley is property manager for Sheraton Real Estate Management in Chico, Calif. ... Alan Lewis '92 married Brandy Smith '92 on Sept. 3 in Coronado, Calif. Brandy is an analytical chemist for DepoTech Corp. She and Alan live in Cardiff-by-the-Sea. ... Laura Mleczko '92 married Stephen Embry '92 on Oct. 22. They live in San Diego and Laura is a teacher in Vista. ... Michele Peyrebrune '92 and Daniel Tuskey were married on April 19 at the Immaculata. They live in Rancho Santa Margarita, Calif. ... Nicole Schneider '92 and Thomas Huma '92 were married on July 10. Nicole is golf coordinator for Desert Mountain in Scottsdale, Ariz. ... Jason Taitano '92 married Stephanie Thompson '92 on July 10, 1993. Jason is a catalog and advertising production manager for International Male in San Diego. ... Clara Capano '93 and Gene DeVito were married on April 16. Clara and Gene live in Hampton, Va., where she is a paralegal student at Commonwealth College. ... Derek "Jake" Jacoby '93 and Nancy Petty '93 were married one week after graduation. Jake owns his own business, San Diego Primark Inc. ... Andrea Rael '94 married Guillermo Marquez on Aug. 6 at Founders Chapel. Andrea is a teacher for the East Whittier (Calif.) City School District. ... Jennifer Romero '94 and Richard Ward were married on July 24. Jennifer is an accountant for Fisher/San Diego. ... Lisa Upson '94 and Charles Stone were married on June 18 by Father J.J. O'Leary at Founders Chapel. Lisa is a technical editor for Chariot Software Group in San Diego.

Management Group, a commercial property

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI Manuel R. Martinez Jr. '69 (J.D.) married Jonarie N. Nasca on June 6, 1991. They welcomed their first child on Dec. 6, 1992, and their second in October 1994. Manuel is a deputy public defender in charge of the Lancaster, Calif., public defender's office. ... Florence Johnson '87 (Ed.D.) married Evan Evanoff on July 25, 1992. The couple live in Nipomo, Calif. ... Sharyl Aronson '88 (M.B.A.) and David Grayson were married on Aug. 8, 1993. ... Selma Au '92 (M.I.B.) married Joseph Yin on July 16. They live in San Diego, where Selma is marketing director of Simon Wong Engineering. ... Lisa Dreisbach '93 (M.B.A.) and Robert Spiro were married on Sept. 16 in Maui. Lisa is a market analyst for Telios Pharmaceuticals. ... Elizabeth Maierhofer '93 (M.B.A.) and Kenneth Kasianovitz '88 were married on June 19, 1993. They live in San Diego, where Elizabeth is senior market research analyst for Genta Inc. and Ken is CPA supervisor for Considine & Considine. ... Aimée Walsh '94 (M.A.) and H.A. Schade were married in June. Aimée is a teacher at Luther Burbank Middle School in San Francisco.

BIRTHS

UNDERGRADUATE ALUMNI

Maureen (Zirpolo) Tate '80 and her husband, Jonathan, celebrated the birth of a daughter, Hallie, on Dec. 7, 1993. Maureen is director of sales for Koll Co. in Newport Beach, Calif. ... Matt Stehly '81 and his wife, Erin, send news of a daughter, Mollie, born on May 25. ... Kevin Coleman '82 celebrated the arrival of a daughter, Jamie, on Aug. 18. Kevin also has a new law practice, the Law Office of Kevin C. Coleman, in San Rafael, Calif. ... Mary (Woelke) Hogan '83 and her husband, Robert, announced the birth of their third daughter, Sarah, on Nov. 15, 1993. Mary is a teacher with the San Diego Unified School District. ... Maura (Neville) Korbin '83 and her husband, Bill Korbin '83, celebrated the birth of a daughter, Alexandra, on April 1. ... Lea (Vance) Leuckel '83 and her husband, David, had their first child, Christopher, on Feb. 23. ... Russ Whitmarsh '83 and his wife, Terri, send news of a son, Tanner, who joins older brother, Tyler, 2. ... Martie (Carr) Williams '83 and her husband, Doug, welcomed a daughter in October 1993. Martie works with the chronically mentally ill at Behavioral Health Concepts. ... Julie (Gowans) Henderson '84 and her husband, Frederick, announced the birth of a son, Taylor, on April 14. Julie is assistant manager of Metropolitan Properties Ltd. in Honolulu. ... Cathy (Campbell) Larson '84 and her husband. Bobby, celebrated the arrival of a son, Robert, on Feb. 1, 1993. Cathy earned her master's degree in education from the University of Illinois in 1993 and is now marketing specialist for Ventana Medical Systems in Tucson, Ariz. ... Gary Holley '85 and his wife, Eileen, announced the birth of a daughter, Molly, on June 11. ... Judy (Laub) McParlane '85 and her husband, John, recently welcomed a son, Jack, who joins their 2-year-old daughter, Ella. Judy and her family just moved into a new home in San Diego. ... Sharon (Cook) Ratliff '85 and her husband, Greg, send news of a son, Sean, born on June 28. The family lives in Virginia Beach, Va., where Sharon is a human resources generalist for Household Credit Services. ... Paula (Charbonneau) Reno '85 and her husband, Jim, announced the birth of a son, Stephen, on June 10. They live in Santa Ana, Calif., where Paula is a legal secretary/paralegal. ... Laura (Sveum) Colburn '86 (J.D. '90) celebrated the arrival of a daughter, Marianna Katrina Schuster, on Dec. 7, 1993. Laura is self-employed as a

ALUMNI F ALLERY

ANNOUNCING A NEW EXIT
ON THE INFORMATION
SUPERHIGHWAY!

You can now send your class notes and address updates to USD's
Office of Alumni Relations through the Internet. Our e-mail address is:
alumni@teetot.acusd.edu

criminal attorney in San Diego. ... Theresa Gilligan-Krol '86 and her husband, Thomas, welcomed a daughter, Caitlin, on Feb. 18. Caitlin was baptized by Monsignor I.B. Eagen on May 21 at Founders Chapel. ... John Schilling '86 and his wife, Judy, celebrated the birth of a boy, John, on June 24. John is director of opposition research for the Republican National Committee in Washington, D.C. ... Lori (Morgan) Bennett '87 and her husband Eric Bennett '87 welcomed a son, Easton, on May 11, 1993. The family lives in Portland, Ore. ... Laurel (Brochtrup) Collins '88 and her husband, Whitley Collins '86, send news of a son, Matthew, born on Jan. 27. The family lives in Los Angeles. ... Liliana (Pezzullo) Fuss '88 and her husband, Jay, announce the birth of a son, Eric, on Dec. 12, 1993. Liliana is chief financial officer of Page, Polin, Busch & Boatwright, a law firm in San Diego. ... Megan (Lamers) Bark '89 and her husband, Andrew, celebrated the birth of a daughter, Danika, on Nov. 28, 1993. Megan graduated from Loyola Law School in May. ... Lori (Soliz) Del Padre '89 and her husband, David Del Padre '89, welcomed a second child, Christopher, on June 6. The family lives in Virginia Beach, Va., where Lori is a homemaker and David has begun working toward his master's degree. ... Bernardo Goncalves '89 and his wife, Ana, celebrated the arrival of a daughter in July. The family lives in San Diego, where Bernardo is a financial consultant with Smith Barney Inc. ... Mark Kinsey '89 (M.S. '91) and his wife, Margaret, welcomed a son, Timothy, on June 16. Mark is an audio engineer for Sea World in San Diego. ... Kelli (Sullivan) Liautaud '89 and her husband, David Liautaud '89, celebrated the birth of a daughter, Madalyn, born on May 27, 1993, who joins older brother Drey, born on Jan. 14, 1991. Kelli is a vice principal with the Chino (Calif.) Unified School District. ... Heather (Riker) Marino '89 and her husband, Steve, announced the birth of a daughter, Jacquelyn, born on April 29, 1993. ... Joyce (Meehan) Plotnik '89 and her husband, David, celebrated the birth of their first child in September. Joyce is director of operations for KCJ Engineering in Los Angeles. ... Marine Capt. Catherine (Farrell) Romanas '89 and her husband, Gordon, welcomed a son, Ryan, on Jan. 23. The family lives in West Allis, Wis. ... Susan (German) Zec '89 (M.A. '92) and her husband, David, celebrated the arrival of a son, David. Susan is a first-grade teacher with the West Contra Costa Unified School District in California. ... Kim (Mirohalli) Hollowell '90 and her husband, Chris, send news of a daughter, Ashlee, born on Aug. 30, 1992. The family lives in Oceanside, Calif., where Kim is a stay-athome mom. ... Michelle (Da Silva) Gravley '92 and her husband, Dwight, celebrated the birth of a son, William, on Jan. 22. Michelle is a graduate student and the family lives in Encinitas, Calif.

GRADUATE AND LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

Alan J. Saxe (J.D. '81, M.B.A. '85) and his wife, Kay, welcomed their second child, Haley, born on Dec. 12, 1993, who joins 2-1/2-year-old Hudson. Alan is vice president of labor relations for Warner Bros. Television in Burbank, Calif. ... Carl Burke '87 (M.B.A.) and his wife, Colette, celebrated the birth of a son, Conor, in December 1993. Carl is manager of human resources and finance for the northwest operations of Eli Lilly Medical Devices. ... Catherine McDeed-Breault '87 (M.S.N.) and her husband, Christian, welcomed the adoption of their second child, Karianne, who was born on Feb. 13. The family moved to Falls Church, Va., in the spring of 1994 and Catherine started a new job in April as clinical operations director in the emergency department of George Washington University Medical Center. ... Anthony Kathol '88 (M.B.A.) and his wife, Kathleen, welcomed a third daughter, Holly, on Nov. 3, 1993. Holly joins sisters Nicole, born in 1989, and Natalie, born in 1992. Anthony is director of leasing for the Pacific Design Center in West Hollywood, Calif., and is a third-degree member of the Knights of Columbus. ... Susan (Benes) Pacheco '88 (M.B.A.) announced the birth of a son, Daniel, born on Dec. 1, 1992. ... Christine (Pratt) Jorgensen '92 (M.B.A.) and her husband, Richard, celebrated the birth of a son, Kevin, on July 10. Christine is a product marketing manager for Megatek Corp. in San Diego.

IN MEMORIAM

Maryln (Walsh) Bond '57 passed away on Jan. 30, 1994.

AUTHOR E. HUGHES CAREER ACHIEVEMENT AWARDS

e will celebrate the first presentation of the Author E. Hughes Career Achievement Awards on Saturday, April 29, 1995, at the San Diego Hilton Resort on Mission Bay.

The awards will honor USD alumni who have attained outstanding success or achievement in their careers, and who enhance USD's reputation. Not only will this award program identify role models for students and alumni, but it also will increase USD's visibility in San Diego as well as the cities in which honorees reside. Four graduates will be selected each year — one from the College of Arts and Sciences and one from each of the Schools of Business Administration, Education and Nursing.

The process to select this year's four award recipients is well under way. Each school has a selection committee composed of alumni and faculty. Nominations of graduates from the respective schools will be reviewed and selections will be made by mid-February. Award recipients will be notified soon after.

USD alumni are encouraged to nominate individuals worthy of this recognition. Outstanding career achievement or success is the principal criterion. Participation in university activities or events, alumni-related or otherwise, is not relevant.

If you would like to nominate a USD graduate, please call (800) 248-4873 and we will send you a nomination package immediately. The nomination deadline is Jan. 31, 1995.

The ranks of USD alumni contain outstanding individuals who, with the foundation of a USD education, have accomplished great things in their fields. As President Hughes retires this year, the USD Alumni Association will honor these individuals, as well as the legacy of USD's principal leader, with the Author E. Hughes Career Achievement Awards.

DO YOU KNOW A

UNIVERSITY OF SAN

DIEGO ALUMNUS OR

ALUMNA WHO HAS

EXCELLED IN HIS OR HER

FIELD? SOMEONE WHOSE

CAREER ACCOMPLISH-

MENTS HAVE MADE THE

WORLD A BETTER PLACE

OR INFLUENCED THE LIVES

OF OTHERS? THAT PER-

SON IS ELIGIBLE FOR A

PRESTIGIOUS NEW

AWARD AT USD.

January

Certificate in International Business course, "Developing International Marketing Plans," Dick Powell, president, International Marketing Association. 6:30-9:30 p.m., Manchester Executive Conference Center. Continues Wednesdays throughout January. Fee. For information on this or other international business courses, call (619) 260-4644.

5

Institute for Project Management course, "Resource Scheduling for Projects," Barbara Withers, USD assistant professor of management science. 6:30-9:30 p.m., Olin Hall 226. Continues Thursdays throughout January. Fee. For information on this or other project management courses, call (619) 260-2258.

February

Institute for Christian Ministries seminar, "Zen Meditation for Christians," Deborah Barrett, SFCC, Ph.D. 7-9 p.m., Serra Hall 211. Continues Feb. 9. $20 preregistered, $25 at the door. For information on this or other Institute for Christian Ministries courses, call (619) 260-4784.

3

All-faith service. Noon, the Immaculata. This annual celebration features prayers and songs offered by representatives of many religious traditions.

20

"An Evening with Langston and Martin," featuring Danny Glover and Felix Justice. Co-sponsored by the Associated Students social issues committee and the faculty-staff social issues committee. 7 p.m., Shiley Theatre. Free. (619) 260-4798.

Latin Mass, honoring St. Peter. 12:20 p.m., Founders Chapel.

27

Professional development series, "Leadership/Management Training," James Lundy, author of Lead, Follow or Get Out of the Way. 4-6:30 p.m., Manchester Executive Conference Center. The series runs for seven consecutive Monday evenings and covers a different topic each night. Topics include time management, strategic planning and crisis management. Fee. For information on this or other programs in this series, call (619) 260-4585.

March 1

Ash Wednesday, Masses: 7 a.m., 12:20 p.m. and 5 p.m., Founders Chapel.

2-30

Founders Gallery exhibit, "Old Master Prints" from the Hoehn Collection. This exhibition will include more than 20 works from an outstanding private Hoehn collection and will feature prints by the most significant printmakers from the late 15th century to the early 18th century. 12:30-4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Free. (619) 260-2280.

9

Institute for Christian Ministries seminar, "Why Marriages Fail," Michael French, Ph.D., clinical psychologist. 7-9 p.m., USD campus. Continues March 16. $20 preregistered, $25 at the door. (619) 260-4784.

13-17

Spring break.

31

Social issues conference, "Communities in Flux: Awareness, Loyalties and Responsibilities." All day, Hahn University Center Forum A/B. (619) 260-4798.

Torero Sports

USD fields teams in a number of sports throughout the year. For information or schedules for any of the following teams. please call the USD Sports Center at (619) 260-4803.

Men's Baskethall: Home games include: Jan. 3 vs. Yale University; Jan. 12 vs. Gonzaga; Jan. 14 vs. Portland; Jan. 24 vs. Cal Poly; Jan. 28 vs. San Francisco; Feb. 2 vs. Santa Clara; Feb. 4 vs. St. Mary's; Feb. 16 vs. Loyola Marymount; Feb. 18 vs. Pepperdine; and Feb. 28 vs. Cal State Northridge.

Women's Baskethall: Home games include: Jan. 5 vs. Columbia: Jan. 19 vs. Pepperdine; Jan. 21 vs. Loyola Marymount; Jan. 28 vs. San Francisco; Feb. 9 vs. St. Mary's; Feb. 11 vs. Santa Clara; Feb. 23 vs. Portland; and Feb. 25 vs. Gonzaga.

Men's Tennis: Home matches include: Jan. 22 vs. U.C. Riverside; Jan. 22 vs. UCSD; Jan. 31 vs. Brigham Young University; Feb. 3-5, 24th San Diego Intercollegiates; Feb. 21 vs. U.S. Air Force Academy; March 2 vs. U.C. Berkeley; and March 10-12, Pro-Kennex Collegiate Classic.

Women's Tennis: Home matches include: Jan. 24 vs. UCSD; Feb. 4 vs. University of New Mexico; Feb. 11 vs. U.C. Berkeley; Feb. 12 vs. Pepperdine; Feb. 24 vs. Arizona State University; Feb. 25 vs. University of Minnesota; March 1 vs. SDSU; March 4 vs. U.C. Santa Barbara; March 5 vs. William & Mary; March 9 vs. Yale University; and March 11 vs. Rice University. Baseball: Home games include: Feb. 7 vs. Point Loma Nazarene; Feb. 10, 11 and 12 vs. Cal State Northridge; Feb. 19 vs. USC; Feb. 24, 25 and 26 vs. U.C. Santa Barbara; March 1 vs. UCLA; and March 3 and 4 vs. Loyola Marymount. Softball: Home games include: Feb. 10 vs. St. Mary's; Feb. 17 vs. Cal State San Bernardino; Feb. 22 vs. UCSD; March 1 vs. SDSU; March 4 vs. Azusa Pacific; and March 7 vs. Concordia.

Swimming and Diving: Home meets include: Jan. 10 vs. San Jose State, Fresno State and St. Bonaventure; and Jan. 28 vs. Pepperdine.

PARTING SHOT

In 1988, USD was privileged to receive Mother Teresa as a campus visitor. After the visit, the photograph shown here — taken by free-lance photographer Pablo Mason — graced the cover of USD Magazine. This year, the Missionaries of Charity selected the photograph as their founder's official portrait, which will be displayed in the more than 400 Missionaries of Charity homes throughout the world.

The portrait first came to the attention of the Missionaries of Charity when Dr. Anita Figueredo, a USD trustee and longtime associate of Mother Teresa, made a gift of the photograph to the Tijuana Missionaries of Charity home. Father Joseph Langford, the superior of the Missionaries of Charity Fathers, remembered the image he saw in Tijuana when possibilities for the official portrait were being considered.

University of &an Diego

Publications Office 5998 Alcalá Park San Diego, CA 92110-2492 NON-PROFIT ORG. U.S. POSTAGE P A I D SAN DIEGO, CA PERMIT NO. 365

ADDRESS CORRECTION REQUESTED