Biographical Note

Father William L. Shipley attended the Immaculate Heart Seminary in San Diego from 1948 to 1954. He then earned his Ph.L in 1957 and Ph.D in 1958 from the Angelicum University in Rome, Italy. In the fall of 1958, Shipley began teaching in the College for Men Philosophy Department. He became Professor of Philosophy in 1964, a role which he held until his retirement in 2003. In 1960, he became the chairman of the Philosophy Department, which he held until the College for Women and College for Men merged into the University of San Diego. Shipley was preeminent in constructing how the newly combined Philosophy department would function. The department was slow to merge because of the difference in teaching philosophies between Shipley and the College for Women philosophy department chairman, Dr. Richard George. Dr. George believed student should be taught only the perennial philosophy of Aristotle and Aquinas. Father Shipley felt the program should have a historical survey of philosophers and allow students to learn diverse philosophical systems. Shipley was ultimately voted in as the chairman of the newly merged philosophy department in April 1970. While discussion of the role of the Philosophy department continued, Shipley's view were more readily incorporated. During his 45 year tenure at USD, Shipley taught 342 courses and 9273 students.

In addition to Shipley's professorship and chairmanship, he served on 46 campus committees. Among these were: Academic Council (1961-1964), Academic Standards Committee (1962-1967), Budget Committee (1966-1967), Faculty Association (1966-1971), Curriculum Committee (1961-1969), Faculty Status Committee (1968-1972), Presidential Search Committee (1970-1971, Chair), Faculty Senate (1972-1973, Chair), and University Senate (1976-1996). Shipley continues to be recognized at USD a Professor Emeritus of Philosophy.

Scope and Content Note

The Father William Shipley papers consist of the records William Shipley gathered while he was a member of the Philosophy Department faculty. The majority of these records consist of meeting minutes, meeting notes, and memoranda for the various committees on which Shipley served, as well as for the Philosophy department. These records document the challenges faced in the Philosophy Department due to the merger of the College for Women and College for Men. These records also reflect changes in University curriculum, policies, and goals throughout the 1960s to the 1990s. Shipley took thorough notes of the meetings which he attended, documenting discussions, decisions, and his views. These notes are included alongside the more formalized minutes of the meetings.

Also included in these records are clippings of news articles pertaining to the University of San Diego and its development. Materials Shipley gathered during his tenure as a counselor for the St. Francis Seminary are also included. Among these materials are information about the Immaculate Heart Seminary and notice of its closure in 1968.

Processing Information

This collection was processed by Tessie Camina in 2008. Additional processing was conducted by Ashley Toutain in 2017.

Exact original order of these records is unknown. From examination of the records during secondary processing, overarching themes came out in the records that reflected a possible original order. It is from this that the current series and organization were derived. It seemed clear that the majority of the boxes of records were organized in a clear manner: namely the various committee records and the philosophy records. Some materials appear to likely have been arranged in alphabetical with no clear topical order. This perceived organization is reflected in the current organization of these records.

Series IV: Philosophy Department, 1961-2000

Records in this series provide a look into the functions of the University of San Diego Philosophy Department through meeting materials and memoranda. Among the meeting materials are agendas, minutes, and notes that Shipley took during the meetings. These notes provide Shipley's perspective on how the meetings transpired. Memoranda pertain to changes in general education requirements in Philosophy and discussion of how the Philosophy Department should be structured. These discussions were particularly prevalent while the College for Men and College for Women were preparing to merge. Additional records in this series include course information, faculty publications, and surveys conducted about the philosophy department. Series V: St. Francis Seminary, 1966-1971

William Shipley served as an academic counselor for the St. Francis Seminary during the 1969-1970 academic year. This series contains records Shipley gathered during that time. Records include meeting minutes of the faculty and student groups, memoranda regarding the seminary, and requirements for the counselors. Records in this series give a glimpse into the daily schedules of St. Francis Seminary students as well as documentation of student concerns. Also included are materials for the Immaculate Heart Seminary. Whereas the St. Francis Seminary served undergraduate men seeking priesthood, the Immaculate Heart Seminary was for those men who had completed at least two years of undergraduate education and would study Theology. There was a strong correlation between the St. Francis Seminary and the Philosophy Department as St. Francis students were encouraged to major in Philosophy. Alternative majors could be sought upon approval, but 21 units Philosophy were required. Additionally, as a Philosophy Professor, Shipley was closely connected with the Seminary
