ASBURY THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
Department of Inductive Biblical Studies

NT(IBS)511 X Mark
Fall, 2002

David L. Thompson
E-mail: NT511DT@asburyseminary.edu

I. Course Description

This course introduces you to methodical, inductive Bible study and to the message and significance of the Gospel of Mark, with emphasis upon understanding biblical books as wholes. By the study of Mark's Gospel itself, the course helps you gain and hone skills necessary for using inductive Scripture study in life and ministry. When I took a similar course here at Asbury it changed forever my approach to Scripture study. That class gave me tools without which I would not want to attempt Christian ministry.

This is not my first experience teaching NT(IBS)511 as an ExL class. Even so, I have much to learn about designing and guiding this sort of "cyberlearning." It may or may not be your first venture into on-line learning. Adjustments may be necessary on both ends of the "line." I look forward to your feedback to help me in this growing process.

These and all of the other materials of this course are designed specifically and solely for distribution in this ExL class and are not to be reproduced without my permission for any other purpose.

Note at the outset that NT(IBS)511 presents a class experience. Cyberlearning opens up remarkable independence and flexibility for us. Nevertheless, this course is not simply an "independent study." Team consultation will contribute significantly to our learning. This will affect the pace at which you do your work, since peer feedback will prove significant. More on this below.

II. Course Objectives

- A. Regarding method and content, by the end of the course students will:
1. Distinguish between each of the major phases of inductive Scripture study: observation, interpretation, evaluation, application;
 2. Analyze content and structure of a selected passage from the book of Mark, and locate that passage accurately in its immediate context as well as the larger, book context;
 3. Apply a coherent set of interpretive questions to guide research aimed at discovering the meaning of a passage;

4. Answer these questions based on evidence from within and beyond the text;
 5. Situate a text's teaching in the Bible's larger treatment of the issues raised by that text, with a view toward determining how it might speak to times and cultures beyond its own;
 6. Draw valid and practical lessons from Scripture thus studied;
 7. Present an overview of the Gospel of Mark without recourse to the text or notes, identifying major passages and delineating major themes.
- B. Regarding attitude, I purpose that by the end of the course you will desire to:
1. Apply the inductive method to other biblical books;
 2. Make the Gospel of Mark the object of life-long study;
 3. Use the Gospel of Mark as a resource for preaching, teaching and living.

III. Course Texts

A. Required Texts

1. Revised Standard Version. Any edition that gives an uncluttered text, without paragraph titles or other interpretive comments is recommended. Similar formatted editions of the NASB, NRSV, and NIV are also acceptable.
2. Either Nestle-Aland Novum Testamentum Graece, 27th rev. ed. Stuttgart: Deutsche Bibelgesellschaft, 1993;
Or J. D. Douglas (ed.). The New Greek-English Interlinear New Testament. Wheaton, IL: Tyndale Publishers, 1993, or its equivalent.
3. Either 1) Bauer, et. al. (eds.). A Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament and Other Early Christian Literature. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 2000,
And 2) a concordance that allows you to track original language words, either a regular Concordance of the Greek New Testament, or an "Englishman's" concordance (BSTW, 55) or, less preferably, an analytical concordance (e.g., Strongs, Youngs).
Or Bible Works 5: Software for Biblical Exegesis and Research. Distributed by Hermeneutika (which incorporates allowable lexical information and concordance search capabilities).
4. Bible Study That Works. Revised edition. Evangel Press, 1994. Thompson, David L (=BSTW). This non-technical book will give us a quick overview of the terrain we will explore more precisely throughout the semester.

B. Required Access to Resources

In order to function in this class you must have ready access to

1. A Bible dictionary or Bible encyclopedia (See BSTW, 59)
2. Two respected, contemporary commentaries on the Gospel of Mark (See the bibliography for suggestions). Full length, critical commentaries such as those by Lane, Mann, Hooker, Guelich, Evans and others are required. Various homiletical or applicational commentaries may also be consulted, but will not substitute for the ones required. Students will find Matthew Henry and other such works common in “out of copyright” computer resources not fully satisfactory for the work being required in this course. So plan not to rely on them.

You do not have to purchase these books, but you must have access to them in a way that will not hinder your work. This will be increasingly true as the semester proceeds.

IV. Course Procedures and Requirements

A. Inductive Study of Mark

The most important part of the course will be the student’s own independent, direct studies of the Gospel of Mark, due as specified in the syllabus.

A word about “independent.” I understand these lessons are primarily to be notes of your own direct study of the Bible, with reference to secondary sources only as is appropriate--to minimally interpretive works (e.g., concordance, atlas, Bible dictionary in some cases) during the course of study and to more interpretive works only after considerable interpretive study of one’s own. Then you will be expected to give evidence of critical interaction with interpretive sources used. When secondary sources are used, clear documentation will appear. This is sufficiently important from methodological and instructional, not to mention moral perspectives, that unacknowledged appropriation of significant information and ideas from interpretive or introductory resources will be considered plagiarism. Plagiarism will certainly lead to a grade of zero for the lesson involved and may constitute grounds for failure in the course.

If you are from a culture where extensive, undocumented use of secondary sources is acceptable, you should give particular attention to this aspect of North American scholarly expectations to which you will be held accountable. We will help each other here, but I will count on you to take initiative if you have any questions at all about this or are at all unfamiliar with this mode of work.

Independent here excludes reference to any previous student’s work in the course and to lecture notes from any previous semester of NT(IBS)511 or NT(IBS)511X. It is assumed that all work submitted for this course is the your own work, done specifically for NT(IBS)511X, and not previously submitted as part of any other course’s requirements.

B. Course organization and other help for this distance learning experience

1. First Class Learning Space Setups important to this class
 - a. Discussion Center. All items posted here are open to all members of the class. Nothing regarded as confidential should be placed here. We will use this primarily in early phases of the class for getting our work underway and later for items we wish the whole class to interact on. We can trace threaded discussions here. Only rarely, if ever, will we use the “Chat Center” for discussions, since we will be scattered in various time zones.
 - b. Team Center. Materials here can be accessed only by the instructor and designated team members. The Team Center will be the primary place for class interaction after the first couple lessons. Here we will post critical interaction with each other’s work and provide the peer encouragement and feedback essential to this learning process.
 - c. Office Center. Private communication between me and individual students transpires here. This takes primarily two forms in this class:
 - 1) All lessons will be posted here to enable confidential feedback from my office (You will also post a copy of most lessons in the Team Center for group interaction.).
 - 2) You will post confidential messages for me here. Only I, or persons authorized by me, can read materials here in the “Office.”
2. Teams. Although this course puts major emphasis on developing one’s own, independent abilities to interpret Scripture, we will structure ways to capitalize on the learning and various gifts of the entire class. Encouragement and Feedback Teams (E&F Teams) will provide the major forum for class interaction. Carried on in special "conference" areas provided as needed, the work of these teams will be open to me and to the members of a given team.
3. General interaction. You are welcome to copy to me and all course members (unless otherwise instructed in particular instances) selected “conversation” about the topics and response to the assignments of the class. This “copying” happens automatically when you post to the Discussion Center.

This is an electronic “classroom,” as I noted before, not a series of individual study courses. Naturally there will be some private communication between us, i.e., communication that is personal and not for the eyes of everyone in the class (Use the Office for this.). In general, however, we want either the E&F Teams or the entire class in on the discussion.

Think of it this way: in an on-campus course, when you make a remark aloud in class, everyone hears it and has a chance to benefit and respond. That's the way it should be in this electronic classroom. There may be several levels of response on particularly "hot" or disputed topics. (By the way, it's all right, even a desirable aspect of "critical interaction," to disagree or negatively critique a person's work, gently but forthrightly. We will try to learn from St. Paul how to "speak the truth in love," or, in our case, "to write the truth in love.")

4. Graduate work. This is graduate theological education, with expectations for the sort of stimulating and penetrating interaction appropriate to this level of work. I encourage you to remember this particularly in the several "responses" you will make to each other's work during the semester. We will look for significant questions, thoughtful comments and insights to help and probe one another. We will avoid clichés or bland generalities: "I like that!" "Great thought!" "I have questions about that." Say specifically what you liked and why. Indicate specifically what you thought was "great" and on what basis. State clearly what your questions are, and so on. We will find this much more enlightening.
5. NT511X also carries graduate load expectations. This course aims to be comparable to the on-campus course in the gospel of Mark. This is definitely not a typical small group Bible study you will finish in an hour or two. Students on campus typically find it necessary to invest from ten to twelve hours per week (including class time) in their work. A similar investment will be necessary in the ExL experience. In order for us to accomplish what we purpose, we will need a pretty quick turn around or lesson cycle. As indicated below, we will generally do a lesson a week. I put this in bold print not to exaggerate its import, but to call attention to an aspect of the class easily underestimated if one has been out of formal education for some time or if you were thinking in terms something like a "beefed up" continuing ed event.
6. HELP WITH TECHNICAL MATTERS AND ALL SORTS OF QUESTIONS.
[This section needs to be updated. Look for this later.]
7. When I receive an assignment from you which I am to evaluate or to which I am to respond, I will generally aim to have that work returned to you within a week.

C. On Line Office Hours and Response Expectations

1. I will plan to respond to e-mail and other communication Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, 4:00 to 5:00 p.m., Eastern Daylight Time (even though we are in the hills) until we change to standard time. I will respond to messages in the order in which I receive them, so don't be surprised if you do not receive an immediate response to a message sent during these very hours. Please limit messages to 50 words or less if possible. Send regular communication to the Office Center.

If you have a truly urgent message for me, or if, for some reason, I have missed your item in the Office Center, you may email me privately at “david_thompson@asburyseminary.edu.” Label your subject area “urgent.” I will generally respond the same day.

2. All due dates include a “due time” (Eastern Standard Time until we go to daylight saving). Work posted up to that time will be considered on time.
3. Our course week will run from 10:00 a.m. Mondays to 9:59 a.m. the following Monday.

D. Evaluation and Feedback

1. Lessons. All lessons are due to be complete and posted by the time assigned. Only selected, representative lessons will be graded for written feedback, selected to provide best feedback at specific points in the class. Others will be reviewed and noted for credit, at times including brief feedback.
2. Course instruction and interaction. Main source of evaluation and feedback.
3. Peer consultation. Group work (E&F Teams) will be encouraged to make insights and instruction from colleagues available.

E. Grade Components. (See Seminarian: The Catalog Edition for grade values.)

1. Lessons. Groups of lessons will be graded four times during the semester and evaluated as follows:
Group one: I - IV 15 %
Group two: V - VIII 20 %
Group three: IX - XI 25 %
Group four: XII - XIV 30 %
This arrangement assumes growing mastery, with more weight placed on lessons when you have logged some experience in the class.
2. Class participation. Interaction as assigned during the course. 10%
3. Late work. Work submitted late may be accepted for credit but will not normally be graded, except in cases of emergency or by special arrangement with the professor.

F. Criteria for Excellence

1. Induction. Base conclusions on the concrete evidence of the text and research elsewhere. Reason inferentially from specific evidence to conclusions.

2. Accuracy. Observe accurately. Draw valid inferences from the text. Give references.
3. Originality. Take a fresh approach to the material, using your own words and finding new ways of expressing biblical truth.
4. Depth. Probe beneath the surface of the text to find those truths which are not self-evident as well as those that are.
5. Organization. Systematize and present your findings so as to correlate similar ones and so as to indicate logical progression, relative importance and the intended interrelation of your ideas.
6. Relative Thoroughness. Be as complete as possible within the time limits.
7. Clarity. Try to express your thoughts in an unambiguous way.

For further specifics of these and other criteria for excellence, see the Appendixes.

G. Course Requirements

1. Completion and submission of assignments and lessons as assigned. At least 70% of the lessons must be completed to earn credit in the course.
2. Responsible (i.e., student takes initiative) handling of difficulty with class content or requirements, late work or other matters related to the class. This implies student initiative in asking questions and seeking help.

V. Inductive Studies in the Gospel of Mark: Lessons in Inductive Bible Study Theory and Practice

1. It will save you time in the long run if you read through the instructions for an entire lesson before beginning the work, since often the items listed sequentially are actually tasks that can and should be done together.
2. Throughout the instructions below, you will find three related but separate sets of lectures/presentations. First there are “Foundations” lectures, giving basic instructions and orientation for the course. Second, “Hermeneutics” lectures give concepts and information basic to the whole enterprise of understanding and living the Bible. Third, the “Mark Studies” present some of my own inductive studies in Mark for the student’s interest and instruction. Each lecture in the three sets is numbered sequentially and labeled as belonging either to the “Foundations” set or the “Hermeneutics” set or the “Mark Studies” set. Even so, you will need to pay careful attention, I suspect, in order to make sure you are reading the correct module.
3. The Mark Studies are to be read as directed in the syllabus. Most important, Mark Studies on a unit you yourself are working on or will be working on are not to be consulted prior to or in the course of your work. My work is designed as a learning resource, effective over the course of the semester, but not as an aid to doing the specific lesson being covered. This means you will first do your book survey; then later you will read mine. You will first do your survey of Mark 2:1-3:6; then later you will read mine and reflect on its instructive value for you, and so on. Of course there are Mark Studies covering passages we are not going to work on. You may review them at any time.

Group one: I - IV 15 %

September 3 - 09 / Week 1

Lesson I. Warm Up and Foundations

1. To establish the base of your accountability for the course and to acquaint you with the contours of what we are about, read the Syllabus, I-IV (See the Resource Center for official copy if you are using preliminary copy), and just reviewing the rest of it. Report the reading.
2. Let's see what you are bringing to this course. Record a) the main questions to which you hope to find answers and b) the main goals you hope to fulfill through this course. Post in the Discussion Center by midnight, September 05 (Thursday).
3. List the main hermeneutical and theological biases you bring to the course that will need to be taken into account as you do your work.
4. To get a quick, bird's eye view of the terrain we will be covering during the semester, read Bible Study That Works, revised edition. Write a 500 word, critical interaction with this work and post a copy to the Discussion Center. Due midnight. September 06 (F).
5. In the Team Center write 100 word responses to the papers from the other persons in your E&F Team as they appear in the Discussion Center. Due 10:00 a.m. September 09 (M).
6. Read these Foundations lectures.
 - Foundations #01. Why study the Gospel of Mark?
 - Foundations #02. Locating NT(IBS)511X in biblical studies as a whole
 - Foundations #03. Characteristics of good Bible study
5. Read these Hermeneutics lectures.
 - Hermeneutics #01. The "modern" reader and the biblical writer(s)
 - Hermeneutics #02. The "conversation model" as a metaphor for textual interpretation
 - Hermeneutics #03. Prayer and the life of Scripture study
 - Hermeneutics #04. Observation as the appropriate foundation

September 10-16 / Week 2

Mark Book Survey

Lesson II.

Orientation

1. Read these Hermeneutics presentations.
 - Hermeneutics #5. Observing the text for survey
 - Hermeneutics #6. Literary structure and biblical texts
 - Hermeneutics #7. Locating strategic passages
 - Hermeneutics #8. Asking interpretive questions
2. Review BSTW:36-43 and read these Foundations lectures.
 - Foundations #4. The semester “game plan”
 - Foundations #5. Sample Survey of the Gospel of John
3. Survey the Gospel of Mark using the following directions and comparing them with my sample work with the book survey of John’s gospel.

Achtung!! Dieser Lesson Zwei will nicht gegraden sein. Nicht zu frighten. Kalmen sie deiner hertzen, und relaxen sie deiner frazzelden nerven. Haben sie eine sehr gut time. This is a “no lose” assignment. While I want you to do careful work, I am aware that you have had minimal instruction and perhaps no experience in “book survey,” at this point. So I will not grade it, but will only mark it credit/no credit. We will learn much together here.

Book Survey

1. Read the Gospel of Mark through quickly in one sitting. Then do numbers 2-9.
2. Materials. give two to four word titles, descriptive (vs. interpretive) to each paragraph. Then group these paragraphs into segments (roughly chapter length) and title them, group the segments into divisions and title each division, and finally give the book a descriptive title.
3. Literary Structure. Tentatively identify the chief semantic structures which govern the book as a whole, binding the parts together as a whole (See App. I:5-9; [Appendixes are located in the Media Center as separate documents.] BSTW 36-43). In this introductory inquiry regarding structure, you may find it helpful to focus on identifying:

- a. Major themes or emphases. Here look for repeated vocabulary, i.e., more explicit themes, not more interpretive themes such as “God’s grace,” or the like, which, though surely present in the narrative, are not specifically tagged as such.
- b. Possible introduction (its extent and its other possible semantic ties to the book)
- c. A possible major turning point in the book
- d. The climax of the whole work

If you discern rhetorical structures for the book as a whole note these as well.

4. Interpretive questions. With each important literary structure observed, ask a set of interpretive questions (definitional, rational or modal, implicational), tailored both to the specific materials of the book and also the structure involved (See App. I:10-12; Appendix III; BSTW 44-49). Make these questions general enough that they aim at the materials of the book as a whole as seen from the vantage point of the particular structure involved.
(Do not try to answer these now. We will work toward an answer to by studying the entire book itself. These questions will guide us in that process.)
5. Strategic areas. Based on your structural observations, identify key passages (single verses, paragraphs at most) through which to view the book as a whole (App. I:13).
6. Literary form and genre. If there is such a thing as a “gospel” literary genre and you were to describe it on the basis of this preliminary study of Mark, what would you list as its chief characteristics and goals.
7. Atmosphere. Observe the overall atmosphere/emotional tone of the book (within the story itself and elicited from the reader), noting overall change and movement reflected in atmosphere (BSTW 35; MBS 71-72).
8. Discourse Context. Gather any evidence which might identify the writer(s), the implied readers, the reasons for composing the work as it is, etc. Note: proceed inductively here with regard to “critical” matters also. Do not consult various “introductions” to the book. Work inductively from the Gospel itself (App. I:14).
9. Chart. Present your main findings in a single page chart form, indicating both the major book content and structure on the chart. To get the book on a single page, you will probably need to limit the titles included here to segments, divisions and the book as a whole (i.e., omit paragraph titles on the chart). Unless you are a computer graphics whiz, this should be hand done. Send by regular mail to me, with copies by regular mail to your E&F team mates.

Group Consultation

1. Distribute your book survey to your E&F Team partners by midnight, September 13 (F).
2. By 10:00 a.m. September 16 (M) post 200 word responses to each E&F Team member's survey, including: 1) identification of most viable insights and 2) main questions your partners' surveys raise for you.

September 17-23 / Week 3

Mark 2:1-3:6

Lesson III

1. Review these Mark Studies and read these Foundations lectures
 - Mark Studies #01. Survey of the Book of Mark
 - Mark Studies #02. Mark 1:1-13
 - Foundations #07. Segment survey instructions (content, structure, strategic passages)
2. Read • Hermeneutics #9. Levels of literary structure.
3. For each of the literary structures treated in the Hermeneutics #6 presentation, "Literary structure and biblical texts":
 - a. Describe the structure in your own words;
 - b. Make up an example.
 - c. Be able to present the logic of each structure in the "exegetical paraphrase" format illustrated in the Hermeneutics #6 presentation.
 - d. Get whatever help you need from each other in this process. Discussion Center entries would work best for this.
 - e. Send your notes to me by September 20 (F) midnight.
 - f. Review BSTW:36-43 in this process.
4. Lesson III. Survey the segment, Mark 2:1-3:6, following instructions in Foundations #7.
5. Suggest briefly the theological significance you see to your findings. Due midnight, September 20 (F). Post in the Office.

Group Consultation

1. Send to Team members in the Team Center.
2. By 10:00 a.m. September 23 (M) post 200 word responses to your E&F Team members' segment surveys, 1) identifying the most viable insights, 2) stating your main questions about your partners' survey, and 3) offering a word of encouragement.

September 24 - 30 / Week 4

Mark 4:35-5:43

Lesson IV

1. Review BSTW:44-49
2. Read these Foundations, Mark Studies and Hermeneutics presentations:
 - Mark Studies #03. Mark 1:14-45
 - Mark Studies #04. Mark 2:1-3:6
 - Foundations #07. Segment survey instructions (content, structure, strategic passages)
3. Survey the segment, Mark 4:35-5:43, guided by the instructions and sample in Foundations #07 and Mark Study #07.
4. Suggest briefly the theological significance you see to your findings.

Due midnight, September 27 (F). Post in the Office.

Group Consultation

1. Send to Team members via Team Center.
2. Post 200 word responses to the segment surveys of the two E&F Team partners. Indicate 1) the most important structural insights you see in your partners' work; 2) the main questions you have about the surveys you reviewed; 3) two practical applications to contemporary life you would preliminarily draw from this segment, and 4) a word of encouragement. Due 10:00 a.m. September 30 (M).

Group two: V - VIII 20 %

October 1 - 7 / Week 5

Mark 7:24-8:30

Lesson V

1. Review Mark Studies and Foundations presentations:

- Mark Studies #08. Mark 4:1-33
 - Mark Studies #10. Mark 4:34-5:43
 - Mark Studies #11. Mark 6:1-56
 - Mark Studies #12. Mark 7:1-23
 - Foundations #07. Segment survey instructions (content, structure, strategic passages)
2. Survey the segment, Mark 7:24-8:30 , guided by the instructions and sample in Foundations #07.
Give special attention to Mark Studies #07, Segment survey of 3.7-34, and then Mark Studies #07.1, a sample of the sort of interpretive work you are being asked to do in this lesson.
3. Read
- Hermeneutics #10. Interpretation: Answering Interpretive Questions, Approaches and Sources of Information in the Text
 - Hermeneutics #11. Answering Interpretive Questions: Sources of Information Beyond the Text; Using Secondary Sources
4. Analysis-Interpretation
- a. From your segment survey select the set of interpretive questions you want to deal with.
 - b. Beginning with the task of definition, focus on one of your significant “What is involved in...?” questions.
 - c. Answer inductively, by drawing inferences from evidence cited mainly from this segment itself.
 - d. Summarize the results of your interpretive work.
5. Survey and Interpretation are due midnight, October 4 (F). Post in the Office.

Group Consultation

1. Send to Team members via Team Center.
2. Post 200 word responses to the segment surveys of your E&F Team partners. Indicate 1) the most important structural insights you see in your partners’ work; 2) the main questions you have about the surveys you reviewed; 3) two practical applications to contemporary life you would preliminarily draw from this segment, and 4) a brief prayer for your partners. Due October 7 (M), 10:00 a.m.

October 8 - 14 / Week 6

Mark 8:14-21

Lesson VI

Read these Mark Studies

- Mark Studies #05. Mark 2:13-17
- Mark Studies #06. Mark 2:18-22
- Mark Studies #13. Mark 7:24-8:30

We will begin interpretation of this paragraph by observation that will generate specific questions to pursue. Then we will return to our survey of the segment and questions raised there to see how what we have discovered will also answer any of those questions, to integrate further our grasp of this paragraph and the segment.

A. Survey Analysis of the Paragraph

1. Select text mode
 - a. Multiple English Versions/with Greek (Nestle, UBS or interlinear text; for M.Div. and M.A. Biblical Studies students).
 - b. Multiple English Versions/without Greek (for non-biblical studies M.A. students).
 - c. Greek alone (for persons with considerable facility in Greek).

WARNING: DO NOT COPY IN OR DOWNLOAD REAMS OF BIBLE TEXT INTO YOUR LESSON. USE THE VARIOUS TEXTS BUT INCLUDE IN YOUR NOTES ONLY THOSE OBSERVATIONS ABOUT THE TEXTS WHICH WARRANT ATTENTION.

2. Structure. Divide the passage into clauses and discern the structures (Semantic, Rhetorical) which bind the clauses to each other within the paragraph, upon which you will make further observations and inferences below. A simple thought-flow analysis may be the best way to do this for a strategic passage.
3. Preunderstanding. Sketch the general understandings you already have of this passage and the biases you know you bring to the passage.

B. Interpretive Analysis (detailed observation and interpretation):
Your own Inductive-Independent Research (primary and minimally interpretive sources: biblical text, lexicons, concordances, ancient texts/artifacts themselves)

1. Context: immediate, segment & book.
 - a. Analyze the passage in detail, clause by clause, attending to such matters as those listed in App. IV. Attend not only to these clauses in this paragraph context but also to the relationships they have with the segment and book contexts.

- b. Strategic areas. Identify strategic areas of the paragraph.
 - c. Note reasonable interpretive “possibilities” and draw inferences throughout this analysis.
 - d. Record questions that your observations raise or which help you ponder the text..
2. Preliminary Definition of Key Terms. Definitions of key terms from biblical language lexicons or BibleWorks to establish probable field of reference.
 3. Word meaning. If it seems advisable, pursue key terms beyond the preliminary definition above by your own study of their use (Save consultation with other published word study resources for consultative-secondary source research below (see App. II and Bibliography VI.E). Use Greek language concordances or BibleWorks. Draw inferences.
 4. Social, historical contexts. As you are able, get at these contexts through the data in the passage itself and then pick up again through other interpreters in your research below (Bible encyclopedia/dictionary, commentary, article).
 5. Other relevant determinants (sources of information)?
 6. Summarize your findings and major, outstanding questions.

After you have done your own, primary source analysis - interpretation

C. Consultative-Secondary Source Research (commentaries, word study volumes, encyclopedias, dictionaries, journal articles, theologies, etc.)

Select one of your questions or a cluster of your questions which you think will help you get at some major matter which will contribute significantly to your understanding of the paragraph as a whole. You may find it helpful to refine your interpretive question(s) for more focus as you enter this consultative phase of your work. Or you may need to ask a new set of questions. Now select your questions and answer them with the research below.

1. Other interpreters. Consult critically respected interpreters of your passage and other resources treating aspects of the passage, such as social and historical context, word meaning, etc. (Remember App I:37-41) See Herm. #11, 2.2.1.
2. If time allows, return to the text and context for more of your own analysis and reflection, informed by your learning from the secondary sources.

Synthesis (Synthetic Interpretation)

Note questions from your segment survey most directly related to the paragraph you have studied. How do your findings here respond to those questions? Or, reflect on the ways your increased understanding of 8:14-21 contributes to your understanding of 7:24-8:30 as a whole.

Lesson due midnight, October 11 (F). Post in the Office.

Group Consultation

1. Send to Team members via Team Center.
2. Post 200 word responses to the paragraph interpretations of the dialogue partners in your E&F Team. Indicate 1) the most important methodological or interpretive insights you see in your partners' work; 2) the main questions you have about the work you reviewed; 3) two practical applications to contemporary life you would preliminarily draw from this unit and 4) an encouragement for the work. Due 10:00 a.m. October 14 (M).

October 15 - 21 / Week 7

Mark 8:31-9:32

Lesson VII

1. Read or Review these presentations:
 - Foundations #07. Segment survey instructions (content, structure, strategic passages)
 - Mark Study #07. Sample Survey and Analysis, Mark 3.7-35.
 - Hermeneutics ##10 &11.
2. Survey the segment, Mark 8:31-9:32, guided by the instructions and sample in Foundations #07 and Mark Study #07.
3. Analysis-Interpretation
 - a. From your segment survey select the set of interpretive questions you want to deal with. Begin with full definition and/or a "What is involved in...?" question.
 - b. Answer inductively, by drawing inferences from evidence cited mainly from this segment itself.
 - c. Move to "why" and "implication" questions as well, as you have time, grounding your answers inductively in the text or other evidence cited.
 - d. Interact critically with a major interpreter of your passage.
 - e. Summarize the results of your interpretive work.
4. Survey and interpretation due midnight, October 18 (F). Post in the Office.

Group Consultation

1. Send to Team members via Team Center.
2. Post 200 word responses to the segment surveys of your E&F Team partners. Indicate 1) the most important structural insights you see in your partners' work; 2) the main questions you have about the interpretive work you reviewed; 3) two or three practical applications to contemporary life you would preliminarily draw from this segment, and 4) another prayer for each other and the class. Due 10:00 a.m. October 21 (M).

October 22 - 28 / Week 8

Mark 8:31-9:1

Lesson VIII

Read this Mark Study

- Mark Studies #09. Mark 4:10-12

We will begin interpretation of this paragraph by observation that will generate specific questions to pursue. Then we will return to our survey of the segment and questions raised there to see how what we have discovered will also answer any of those questions, to integrate further our grasp of this paragraph and the segment.

Survey Analysis of the Paragraph

1. Select text mode
 - a. Multiple English Versions/without Greek (for those without Greek training).
 - b. Multiple English Versions/with Greek (for those with Greek training).
 - c. Greek alone (for persons with considerable facility in Greek).
2. Structure. Divide the paragraph into clauses/sentences and discern the structures (Semantic, Rhetorical) which bind these to each other within the paragraph.
3. Strategic area. Identify the strategic area(s) of the paragraph, probably of clause or verse length. Provide rationale for your selection.
4. Interpretive questions. Select one or two structures which you judge are most important to an understanding of the paragraph. Adapting the standard interpretive questions to the specific materials here (Appendix III), address a coherent set of interpretive questions to these structures and the materials involved in them.

Analysis (Interpretation)

Answer the interpretive questions raised above, by gathering evidence as follows:

1. Preliminary Definition of Key Terms. Lexicon or dictionary definitions w/o inference. Very brief investment here.
2. Context: immediate, segment & book. Major investment here. Analyze the paragraph, clause by clause. Probe with particular depth the clauses most involved in the structures from which you are approaching the paragraph, but dealing well with them all. Attend not only to these clauses in this paragraph context but also to the relationships they have with the segment and, as you have time, book contexts.
3. Word meaning. Define key terms a) by use or b) by consultation with other interpreters. Time will probably dictate reliance on others here.
4. Social, historical contexts. As necessary get at these contexts through the data in the passage itself or through other interpreters (Bible encyclopedia/dictionary, commentary, article).
5. Other relevant determinants (sources of information)?
6. Other interpreters. After you have done your own interpretation, and prior to your final summaries, consult critically a respected interpreter of your passage (Remember App I:35-39).

Synthesis (Synthetic Interpretation)

Note questions from your segment survey most directly related to the paragraph you have studied. How do your findings here respond to those questions? Or, reflect on the ways your increased understanding of 8:31-9:1 contributes to your understanding of 8:31-9:32 as a whole.

Lesson due midnight, October 25 (F). Post in the Office.

Group Consultation.

Post 200 word responses to the paragraph interpretations of the dialogue partners in your E&F Team. Indicate 1) the most important methodological or interpretive insights you see in your partners' work; 2) the main questions you have about the work you reviewed; 3) two or three practical applications to contemporary life you would preliminarily draw from this unit, and 4) a prayer for each other regarding these applications. Due 10:00 a.m. October 28 (M).

Group three: IX - XI 25 %

October 29 - November 4 / Week 9

Mark 9:30-10:52

Lesson IX

1. Read • Mark Studies #15. Mark 8:31-9:32
2. Survey this segment by using the segment survey instructions in Lesson VII for Mark 8:31-9:32.
3. Use the same lesson to guide your interpretive work in this unit.

Lesson due midnight, November 01 (F). Post in the Office.

Group Consultation.

Post 200 word responses to the paragraph interpretations of the dialogue partners in your E&F Team. Indicate 1) the most important methodological or interpretive insights you see in your partners' work; 2) the main questions you have about the work you reviewed; 3) two or three practical applications to contemporary life you would preliminarily draw from this unit, and 4) a prayer for each other regarding these applications. Due 10:00 a.m. November 4 (M).

November 5 - 11 / Week 10

Mark 10:41-45

Lesson X

We will again begin interpretation of this paragraph by observation that will generate specific questions to pursue. Then we will return to our survey of the segment and questions raised there to see how what we have discovered will also answer any of those questions, to integrate further our grasp of this paragraph and the segment.

I am tempted to apologize for the repetitive nature of these assignments. They are essentially the same, because the work of interpretation is essentially the same. The difference and variety and challenge is not in the task but in the text. Each text is different. Each paragraph has its own challenges and makes each one different. So hang on.

Warm Up.

1. Review:
 - Hermeneutics #11. Answering Interpretive Questions: Sources of Information Beyond the Text; Using Secondary Sources
2. Read
 - Mark Studies #16. Mark 9:30-10:52
 - Hermeneutics #12. Evaluation: Discerning the Cross Cultural Significance of the Text
 - Hermeneutics #13. Application: Appropriating the Gospel for Contemporary Faith and Practice
3. Interpret this astounding paragraph, 10:41-45 by applying the directions in Lessons VI and VIII to it.
4. State clearly and fully the most significant claim of this text as you understand it from your interpretive work.
5. Evaluate this claim in light of the canonical dialogue to determine the ways in which it speaks to other times and cultures.

Synthesis (Synthetic Interpretation)

Note questions from your segment survey (9:30-10:52) most directly related to the paragraph you have studied. How do your findings here respond to those questions? That is, reflect on the ways your increased understanding of 10:41-45 contributes to your understanding of 9:30-10:52 as a whole.

Lesson due midnight November 08 (F). Post in the Office.

Group Consultation.

Post 200 word responses to the paragraph interpretations of the dialogue partners in your E&F Team. Indicate 1) the most important methodological or interpretive insights you see in your partners' work; 2) the main questions you have about the work you reviewed; 3) two or three practical applications to contemporary life you would preliminarily draw from this unit, 4) your prayer for each other in light of these matters. Due 10:00 a.m. November 11 (M).

November 12 - 18 / Week 11

Mark 11:1-12:44

Lesson XI

1. Read • Mark Studies #17. Mark 10:41-45
2. Survey this segment by using the segment survey instructions in Lesson VII for Mark 8:31-9:32.
3. Use the same lesson to guide your interpretive work in this unit.
4. Because of the length of this segment devote 70% of your time for the lesson to survey of the segment as a whole. Reduce to 30% of your time the amount you invest in the interpretive phase of the lesson.

Lesson due midnight November 15 (F).

Group Consultation

In the Team Center post 200 word responses to the paragraph interpretations of the dialogue partners in your E&F Team. Indicate 1) the most important methodological or interpretive insights you see in your partners' work; 2) the main questions you have about the work you reviewed; 3) two or three practical applications to contemporary life you would preliminarily draw from this unit, and 4) your prayer for yourself in view of these teachings. Due 10:00 a.m. November 18 (M).

READING WEEK ON CAMPUS, NOVEMBER 22-25.

Group four: XII - XIII 30 %

November 19 - December 2 / Week 12

(includes fall reading week on campus)

Mark 13:1-37

Lesson XII

1. Read • Mark Studies #18. Mark 11:1-12:44
2. Survey this segment by using the segment survey instructions in Lesson VII for Mark 8:31-9:32.
3. Use the same lesson to guide your interpretive work in this unit.

Lesson due midnight November 29 (F). Post in the Office.

Group Consultation

In the Team Center post 200 word responses to the paragraph interpretations of the dialogue partners in your team. Indicate 1) the most important methodological or interpretive insights you see in your partners' work; 2) the main questions you have about the work you reviewed; 3) two or three practical applications to contemporary life you would preliminarily draw from this unit. Due 10:00 a.m. December 2 (M).

FINAL TWO WEEKS. Lessons XIII and XIV will constitute “final” lessons for us and will, therefore, not be done with team consultation. Send these final lessons directly and privately to me in the Office Center. Do not post this work in the Discussion Center or the Team Center. After the conclusion of the semester, Friday, December 13, 5:00 p.m., you are welcome to share them with each other as you may wish.

December 3 - 09 / Week 13

Lesson XIII

Mark 14:1-16:8/20 Segment Survey

1. Read • Mark Studies #19. Mark 13:1-37
2. Survey this section, showing your best understanding of unit survey method and of the unit itself. Make full use of all the resources of this semester's instruction that bear on these matters. Unlike the other segment surveys we have done during the latter half of the course, do not proceed to do an interpretive analysis of some aspect of the segment. You will not have time for that this time. Concentrate on doing your best survey of this large unit.
3. Very Briefly analyze the addition(s) 16:9-20. Approach this analysis with an eye toward discerning features of the endings which may help you decide whether they should or should not be considered authentic parts of the Gospel of Mark for purposes of our study. On the basis of these analyses and other observations you may make, reflect on the possible significance of these verses for one's understanding of the 14:1-16:8/20 and the book of Mark as a whole.

Due: 10:00 a.m. December 9 (M). Post to Office.

December 9-13 / Week 14 (Finals Week on campus)

Lesson XIV

Mark 15:33-41 Paragraph analysis, interpretation, evaluation, application.

1. Review
 - Mark Studies #17 and #17.1, on the interpretation and evaluation of Mark 10:41-45 and
 - Mark Studies #21 on Mark 14:1-16:8/20 to provide pattern, resources and background for your detailed interpretation of this strategic passage.
2. Interpret this paragraph in its context, demonstrating your best interpretive method and your best understanding of Mark's work here. Make full use of all the resources of this semester's instruction that bear on these matters. Give particular attention to 15:37-39, but aim at an understanding of the paragraph as a whole. Resist carefully the temptation to pour all of the rest of the New Testament's teaching about the death of Jesus into this paragraph in your interpretation of it. Work at discerning Mark's specific contribution to this important topic of the death of Jesus.
3. State as clearly as you can Mark's chief understanding of the death of Jesus, based on this paragraph as you understand it in the context of Mark's gospel.
4. Evaluate these understandings in light of the New Testament's larger teaching on these issues, determining how this text speaks cross-culturally and cross-temporally.
5. Make brief but significant application to the present world.

Because of the end of the semester this work is due in my office by midnight, Friday, December 13.

The following Mark Studies can be accessed after December 14 for instruction and comparison with your own work.

- Mark Studies #21. Mark 14:1-16:8/20
- Mark Studies #22. Mark 15:33-41
