

A LARGE HOPEWELL SPEAR FROM HENDRICKS COUNTY, INDIANA

by
James Tharp
631 E. Buchanan
Plainfield, IN 46168

This large Hopewell spear was purchased at an estate auction. It has penciled on the blade September 1953 as the year found.

Such spears are from the Hopewell Culture which manifested itself across the northern part of the United States from the east coast to Missouri with large centers in Ohio, Illinois, and southern Indiana. Hopewell epitomizes the Middle Woodland period and many archaeologists believe it was the most advanced culture in North America.

This Indiana spear is $7\frac{1}{4}$ inches long and $1\frac{5}{8}$ inches wide. As is normal with Hopewell flint artifacts, there is little or no basal grinding. It appears to be made of Dover flint.

Figure 1 (Tharp) Dover flint Hopewell spear from Indiana.

A GREEN GRANITE PLUMMET

by Robert Coyer
PO Box 123
Clarksburg, OH

This highly polished plummet was a personal find in a harvested soybean field in the late 1980s. It is $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches long and $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches in circumference. It was found near Clarksburg in Ross County in a field overlooking Deer Creek.

Figure 1 (Coyer) Granite plummet found in Ross County.