

Julia Driver of Washington University speaking about individual responsibility and collective action in sustainability

Steve Vanderheiden of the University of Colorado speaking about individual responsibility and collective action in sustainability

Audience members listening to presentations during the Spring COMPAS Conference, “Realizing Sustainability”

An audience member asking a question during the conference

Moderator Tristram McPherson and panelists Steve Vanderheiden and Julia Driver speaking about individual responsibility and collective action in sustainability

An omnibus panel discussing the future of sustainability during the conference

Noah Dormady of The Ohio State University moderating a panel on markets and regulation in sustainability

Former U.S. Representative Bob Inglis of The Energy and Enterprise Initiative discussing markets and regulation in sustainability

Panelist Jones discussing markets and regulation in sustainability

Panelist Michael Vanderbergh of Vanderbilt University discussing markets and regulation in sustainability

The "Great Acceleration"

- 1945 (post WWII) to the present
- ppm CO₂ from around 300ppm to 400ppm
- Human population – from 3 billion to over 7 billion
- World projection is 10 billion in 2050
- About 50% of the total number of vertebrate species have disappeared since 1970 (WWF report)
- About 50% of the world's coral reefs have disappeared since 1970

John Gowdy of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute presenting on institutional design and behavior economics in sustainability

Panelists John Gowdy and Jason Shogren and moderator Ian Krajbich discussing institutional design and behavior economics in sustainability

Jason Shogren of the University of Wyoming presenting on institutional design and behavior economics in sustainability

Robyn Wilson of The Ohio State University presenting on motivating sustainable behavior

Matthew Nisbet of Northeastern University presenting on motivating sustainable behavior