

James Fearon, Theodore and Frances Geballe Professor in the School of Humanities and Sciences at Stanford University, spoke on "A Simple Political Economy of International Relations Between Democracies and Autocracies" on Monday, April 6, 2009, at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies.

James Fearon talks with Mershon Center faculty members after his lecture on April 6, 2009. From left to right are John Mueller, Woody Hayes Chair of National Security Studies; Fearon; Daniel Verdier, Associate Professor of Political Science; and Richard Herrmann, Director of the Mershon Center. Fearon and Verdier were in graduate school together at Berkeley.