Durham E-Theses

The fascist element in A.M. Ludovici's defence of conservatism

Scholtke, Paul Ernest

How to cite:

Scholtke, Paul Ernest (1980) The fascist element in A.M. Ludovici's defence of conservatism, Durham theses, Durham University. Available at Durham E-Theses Online: http://etheses.dur.ac.uk/7431/

Use policy

The full-text may be used and/or reproduced, and given to third parties in any format or medium, without prior permission or charge, for personal research or study, educational, or not-for-profit purposes provided that:

- a full bibliographic reference is made to the original source
- a link is made to the metadata record in Durham E-Theses
- the full-text is not changed in any way

The full-text must not be sold in any format or medium without the formal permission of the copyright holders.
Please consult the full Durham E-Theses policy for further details.
(I) 'THE FASCIST ELEMENT INA.M. LUDOVICI'S DEFENCE OF CONSERVATISM"
(II) by Paul Ernest Scholtke, B.A. (Hons.)
(III) Master of Arts
(IV) University of Durham
(V) Department of Politics
(VI) 1980

The copyright of this thesis rests with the author
No quotation from it should be published without his prior written consent and information derived from it should be acknowledged.

Paul Ernest Scholtke "The Fascist Element in A.M. Ludovici's Defence of Conservatism."

By the study of the writings of Anthony Mario Ludovici, his affiliates, and other fascists, it is demonstrated that it is the traditions of ideologies that are incommensurable, not ideologies per se.

That it is not logically impossible for fascism to be introduced into a party system, which it intends to succeed, through rendering the ideology of an established political party commensurable with fascism.

That fascists have attempted to render established ideologies commensurable with fascism, and have succeeded. The study of the doctrine of Anthony Mario Ludovici demonstrates the latter in relation to conservatism.

That the fascists who rendered established ideologies commensurable with fascism, like Anthony Mario Ludovici and his affiliates, contingently falled to get their innovations accepted by the adherents of established ideologies. They failed because ideologies are traditions, and the respective traditions of established ideologies are incommensurable visions of how nen should be associated and authority and power distributed. Incommensurable ideologies are both cause and consequence of the political divisions of party systems whose political parties deploy them as the language of their adherence. The practical success of an innovation in any ideology is always and everywhere decided by its contingent acceptance or rejection by the custodians of the traditions of an ideology, political parties and their constitutents. Political ideologies tend to inertia because they are traditions that are incommensurable. It is this inertia that the fascists who rendered established ideologies comensurable with fascism, could not overcome.

Ludovici and his affiliates never succeeded in getting themselves regarded as conservatives because the traditions of conservatism, and the consensus among conservatives about its meanings as its traditions, created safficient inertia that the innovations which the former sought could not be effected in the contemporary party system, If they had succeeded conservatism would have become commensurable with fascism.

TABIn OM CONTENS

Ghapere:
$\frac{\text { Pase: }}{6}$
Lutor ..... 38.
 ..... 45
Retco ..... 82
 ..... 91
Yom Gocin ..... 155
Augube Rodim ..... 159

+ 410 R0\% ..... 167
Singutup John and Erodeser Cosctrolo ..... 167
Nocon ..... 171

4. THE DEGERLTAEE EOTHD ..... 191.
Lacsoducbion. Aceion and SErugic - The Eritacipleo of ..... 196 Hotsory nad iniso
RBa Coyoco of Dogomescey:
B. Reciol: Miocogenarion ond Dyecuhic fating ..... 218
 ..... 230 dee Furzequan
5. adcolocien.
廿abobotine on Gochotice ..... 242
Beszigusion Roesomedom ..... 246 socrabie Ruanasion ..... 255
FChintion ..... 262
Hosoocouna Romaricician ..... 281
GOCzoner WC2 ..... 291
&. Imocituciomal: Dcaocrocta covertmene ..... 298
Comerbotaa ..... 305
notroo ..... 307
 ..... 336
The Rovolutiom ..... 336
 ..... 346 Primetpioc of Gotocerzo bracdith

 ..... 366
6. Tho Ricecochoow feble ..... 383
7. Mnchovonhon Ronhou ..... 391
Chapeor: ..... Rogo
Bo fodicion ..... 398
5: Pomalion ..... 407
8. Tocofiticarioniom ..... 422
 ..... 436
Comelvoions and Conopocevo ..... 453
Morco ..... 461
 ..... 492
Notao ..... 515
CONGLUSRORS ..... 523
APPERDKS: Anchomy Max io cudovie ${ }^{\circ} 0$ Unpubl sobed Rapero ..... 526 (0xC Monuocsigico
BEBRZOGRAPEY: ..... 528
Athekomy Masio Lucovicis Rsinasy Sourcco ..... 528 anthnoy Mne io Rudovicz: Secondary Sobecco ..... 551
 ..... 554
 ..... 556
GramicotPoocion: pelmory pousceo557
Doucsom: socomony musech ..... 563
Cogoorvoczon: Erames Bowseco ..... 579
Comocrvotion: Sccondary Soureco ..... 582
Miocel homeorno ..... 584.

The copyright of this thesis rests with the author. No quotation from it should be published without his prior written consent and information derived from it should be acknowledged.

CHAPTER I, TYPOLOGY OF GENERIC FASGISM

This chapter is divided into tro sections. The irst deals with the oxigins of fascist Idoolocy before lyorld fax $\mathrm{I}_{\mathrm{j}}$ tho wocond with the motifis of fascism, a tom wich gained cuxrency aftor World Hax Io

Fascism is an ideology which oceurred in liberally constituted political systems whose traditional ideologies and parties wase the Objects of its attach. Extreme nationalists befors Horld War $I_{0}$ who were later to bs regarded as fascists, attempted padical innovations in the ideologies of the party systems with which they were disillusioned. Their extreme nationalism drew from all the extremss of the party systems which they intended to succeed. They attempted to onlist the support of socialists in an authoritarian socialism; they attempted to enlist the support of conservatives in a serolutionary conserpatismo Always, they attempted to seconcile what had been regarded as oppugnant political ideals in movements to overthrous the party systems which they belfeved, led to the degeneration of theire respactive nations. To onllst the cooperation of political oxtremes they identified them selves as : the proponents of all ideologies but nover with theis parties. They called themselves socialists, conservatives, Liberals, ar the proponents of any established ideology as ofrcumstances prompted with the object of uniting the political extremes, but never aligned themselves with the traditions of established ideologies. Thelps was to be a novel socialism, liberalism, conservatism wationalism, or anarchism。 It uas one that linked all politicel oxtrames in militant allegiance to the nation. In continental Europe, from the latter decades of the arneteenth century, they drou upon contemporenoous movements of thought which repudiated the legacy of the Enlightenment with its rationolism materialism positivism $_{9}$ and burianism. The kniluone of the chonglag conception of gace. Darwinism and the discovery' of the minonscions by prychologiots diroced against ostabllohod icoologion aspelally litaralini and cocialism, and the modionsty of an industrial sociotyo These protom Rascist expressions of discontont fith domocsaes and the legacy of the Enlightemment occupred. prineipally, in Gormany, Franco and italyo

In cormany. from the latior part of the ninotoonth conturyo Intellectuals claiming to bo padical conservatives! arguod that 1ibaralsm and soculasism had brought about the decay of socistyo Theis opposition to the ideas of the Enilghtenment and the Froach Rovolution wai accompanied by appals for the militant regenaretion of the nation. They oxtelled oblood and mysticimm opposition to rationalismo Their advocacy of ritugglo and heroic action tes conjoinod with the aniforationolists ideas of occult and spiricualis circules rinich wery in the rogue toweres the ond of the century suoh es Theosophy ${ }^{2}$ 。

Nany of those Volkial theoris'ss woro associated with tho contemposameous youth movements and their atterpts to abandon the poisonous influence of materialism and return to nature. They linked the human soul with nature and the nature of the soul of the Volls was regarded by them as determined by the native landscape。 Thus, the Gextians were preised as deep, mysterious, and profound sas thoy lived in dark. miatoshrouded forests. Conversely, the Jows were denigrated people as a shallow, axid, 'dry'/ devoid of profundity and totally lacking in creativity as thoy tero a desort poople ${ }^{3}$ The eity, bocause of its association with materialism and progress, symbolised decay of the Volko

Associated with the revolt againat reason tas the changing cono ception of rece. Hhilst the primaey of an inturtive vitalismwas to onduro，It becan ettroliod to tho idoa of the nation as a sace and docline of civilartion changer to that of 出它 regoneratlowo Gobinean ${ }^{0} \mathrm{~B}$ recism portrayed dooadence，disorder and degenerationa as tho the axtistocratic and traditional society be ideallsed．But，Houstor Storart Gbambslaja，in pasticular，after boing influencod be Hagner a它 Bayserth，doployod ais rearst theory as one of regeneration mich could sseured therough the fictory of the carmens and Teutons over the degenarain spirit of tho Jews．Human will ereates the national waity which is the indisponsable condicion of the ereation ared perpatarition of the race against the Manionsas forces of degeneration ${ }^{5}$ ． His bilier that intuition and instinct，not geason，wo tho bast gusdes to regoneration，la fypical of the myticism and antiosationalism that kes deploged to oppose positivian at the ond of the conturyo

The 1deology of Erest Haeckel and his Monist laague，fa which tha laws of biology／wereensiorred to the social roaln and the primitive forces of nature doffiod，was representaty of these streams of thought。 Radical recial mationalise was coupled with an ageossive douial of the polfitical and social assumptions of libasalsem．It tras claimed that the communty should absorb，not liborate，the total onergies of the indifidual．The late of biologr wore presented as the standasd of judgement oxclusively appropriato to politics．The organie racial state would be mans seltation from what was docriod as the tendency of a sociaty governed according to liberal ideals． man＇s alionafion in a socioty that is dovoid of sategrabion In tho organic rachal state，man would be sestored to the mystionlly apprea bended forces of natures and of sace．Class basmory was to be secured through the cessation of industrialisation and urbanisation. This policy would enable a strong and biologically superier Germany to subdue inferior races ${ }^{6}$.

Contemporaneously with the social strains that accompanied rapid urbanisation and industrialisation of Germany, a vicious anti-Semitism developed that stereotyped the Jews as the instigators of liberalism and degeneraey ${ }^{7}$. Anti-Semitism was adopted and developed by numerous movements at the turn of the century which, draving from both the 'left' and the 'right', expressed national grievances about the influx of foreign labour into the industrialising regions of Germany and Austria. Indeed, the programe of one of these movemente, the Deutsche Arbeiterpartei, of August 15, 1904, blamed democracy and capitalism for the ills of the people, used the word 'movement' to describe itself and was presented as both anti-Maryist and anti-ciapitalist, antiforeign and anti-traditional ${ }^{8}$. Raciallsm, that had already assumed a fixed relation between the physical and moral natures of men, gained credence by the impaet from Russia of the Protocols of the Elders of Zion and the doctrine of the proto-fascist Union of Russian People. (Black Hundreds) which, like its Austrian and German counterparts, fused political extremes?. As early as 1903 Iudvig Woltmann in his Politische Anthropologie synthesised the extremely incongruous beliefs of Marx, Darwin and Kant, in a doctrine justifying mass racial struggle. Like J. Lanz von Liebenfel's anti-Semitic and Nordicist Ostara association, founded in 1905, which advocated racial struggle by the Volk, they afforded the pan-Germanic circles doctrinal cohesion ${ }^{10}$.

Paradoxically, it was in France that the ideals of the French Revolution were to be subjected to the most trenchant attacks, especially after the debacle of the Franco-Prussian war in 1870. Conservativism was conjoined with notions from the redicel traditiona Ernost Renan and do la Tour du Pin adyocated a total break with libsrelism and idealised a cosporate state dopoid of social and antagonisms．Tho latter，a conservative，bacame rabidiy antloSemitic during the Dreyfuss Affaisil．Edouard Drumont in his very populax book of 1886 ，fa Exance Jivive repeatod a familiar conspiracy theory that the Jour wore responsible for France＇s degeneration and，although a conservative witer ${ }^{18}$ o typical of protoofascists hailing from conservaithoism described socialism as＂very noble ${ }^{13}$ 。 They contributed to the trenso formation of the theory of nationalism in France from its assocfation with reason and liberalism to its conjunction with notions of eas authoritarian stafe attacking social imjustices in the name of group solidaxity．Nationalism and conservativism ware synthosised with socialism。

Maurice Barres，another conservative writer ${ }^{14}$ ，concerned uith the relative－decline of France after the Franco－Prussion wax formulated a nationalism synthosised with notions of elitism．He advenced the cult of energy，ection and bitter anti－Semitism．The desideratum of hesoic regensration was contrasted kith the inaction of democracyo He concelved democracy deficient in vitality and force．His preoccupation uith decadence reflected a wide日pread intellectual mood of the fin de siecle and the revolt against positivism ${ }^{15}$ ．During the Dreyfuss Affairs Baxyes substituted racial for cultural rootedness and adrocated a emotion against reason as the bostguide to the beshe truths of our existonce and assimilatod manis mature to that of the animal wosld in his assertions that etruggle was a ravitalising forco against decadence．He was a theoreticlan of that nou populist and socialist ＂right that crystallisod during the last jears of the ninotoenth centuryo Opposed to parliamentory domocracy，he appailed directly to tho pooplo and called for direct action to mobilise against the triumphant bourgooibie。 zie anti－Semitism comented the＂prolotesiat＂ Lito the aitional comunity．Froach workors were to ba protectod from finenco and capitallsmo

Boulangism and antioDrayfusard nationelism combinod tho right＇ whith a thole assemblage of Ideas from the＂left and anelganatod political autboritomianism somantic anti－libsealism，and ancto Semitka．Bopresentative of this trand was anotber putative consoro vative ${ }^{1 y}$ ．Chasles Margrass，who contributed his visulent intellect to one of those antioDroyrusard nationalist movements，the Action Francaise。 He thought the nation should break with domocracy and attain the spirit and ideal of classi人 the static and pariect orders， hierarchical，authoritemian and untainted by any foreign olement． Hie doctrino wes a panogyric of uar．Anereliyo Jowry，and Gormany consifituted France ${ }^{0}$ s enemies $2 n$ his Manichean vision of the world．In his glosification of beroic action，ixrationalisa，and synthesis of conservative and populist ideas he $r$ dsove conservetiviem boyond the Limits dividing it from incipient fascism＂${ }^{18}$ ．

France was not unique in this questioning of the thole body of institutions charactorsstic of industrial civilisation and those Falues inherited from oighteenth century rationalism。 Many thinhers In the olghtooncainetios ware to doxigrate the world of mattor and reason，materialism and positivism，the mediockity of hat thoy regarded as bourgeoss society and the＂mudder of parliamontaxy democracs．The consequence was a popular and authorftexian nationaliom that profigured the omotionel and sontimantal fascist ornos．it had the same cult of gouth，adventure and herossm，the game hatrod of bourgoois values，and the same faith in the power of the unconscious．

The sem gomaticism and the mystique of action and bostilsty to

 Counded in 1886, blamed democracy for the dogoneration of the nation and rinoso vocabulaxy of rovolt omptiod of its mumaismo against the Roprblic ${ }^{19}$ 。

As the preceding thinkers changed the notion of nationalisin in France, Grorges Sorel ad the syndicalisers wro to transform socialismo Sorel sair sationalism democracy and utilitarianism as aymptoms of doclining atrongth, sonility and exchaustion. He had an ambiguous selationsaip to both the 'lait' and the 'gight' as he placed his faith in the elite of the "proletariet' to realise mational regonerationo Decadence was depicted by Sorel as the natural tondency of civils action against whichmen must pospotrally struggle theough the invocation of mighe oroking meritant action and heroismo. His omphasis on my cohered with tis entiosational ovaluation of ren. The Jown vaso anathome to Soral as he bolfeved reconciliation bstween groups through compromise and negotiation, impossible。 Together with some of his orosyndicalist pollowers to collaborated in a number of exirsmist authositaxian revians, to which monarchists, mationalista, militants, anti-democrats, and antiohumanitamians of all kinds contributed. gaul Bourget and Marsice Barres, two of the most oxtreme traditionalists. authomitamians, and nationalists in France, were ontbe oditosial council of 1 Tradopondonces of rith Sorel was comeditor from 1911-1913 ${ }^{20}$.

Revolutionery syadicalism did not have a proconceived theory or an integrated doctrine, it was prasented as a philosopy of action and movement. Its revolt was linked to the wider revolt againat reason that occurred duxing the three decades fron appromimately 9890 of bocial thoughto mhich had bitherto been rettonelismo were obanged to the asbumptions that man and society were not characterised by reason and intelligence. It was increaningiyclaimeds by social thinkers, that the artribution of rationality to man and society wes exponeouso Honry Pergson. Viler odo Pereto and Sigmund Freud are a fev of the thinters associatod with this transformation. Fascism was the most acute expression of this revolt against reason and shared obvious similarities with revolutionary ayndicalisnis denegraction of democracy, b:ourgears society, and the capitalist economy. Italian fascisn was. to an extent. a fusion of syndicelism and nationalisio.

Both Soxel and the prewar nationallsts linked the extreme of ${ }^{0}$ right ${ }^{0}$ and ${ }^{0}$ lefe $^{0}$ in their common attecks on rationelism. democracy, and the bourgeoiste. In france before vorld War I, netionalist and socialist symbols were being syxthesised in e new and strange form. In 1903 a National Socialist Party was founded by a foxmer socialist, Pierse miotry, and in the following year the Federation Dationale dos Jaunes do France wes founded advocating cepital and labour collaboration a strong stato, antiosemitism and ellitsm. More lmportanto the Cercle Proudhon was founded in Docember 1911 and was presided over by Charles Haurras:s with Georges Sorel as itios moving spirit. It embraced both nationelists and symdicelists belonging to the Action Fraceise. The butt of its tirades vere against democracy and oapitalism. Symbolic of its ideological oclecticismo

Meurress doclared there was: $\mathrm{m}_{2}$ form of socialisa when stripped of its danocratic and comopolitan aceretions, would fit in with nationalism just as a well mado glove fits a becestiful hand.n ${ }^{22}$ At his instigation the Action Francaise made a considorable ploy for the support of the workers promotiag their dissaffection from the liberal state。

A similar paitern of events cen be traced in Itely. Anti parliamentiarianism of a sytomatic charactor hed alroedy beens expressod in the olite theories of cactano Mosea and Viafrodo Pareto in the eighteen eighties. This was indicative of the contemporeneous influerice of social Dawinisa which conferred respectability on anticdemocretic ideas. Significantiyo Robert Finchels one of these elitists, was to become a fascist aftex Horld War $I$ as his political sympathies changed from humanitaxian sociallsm to those of authoritarianiem and nationalism. He considered the Itelian rescists to be a nev and more vigorous political leadership-replacing an erhoustod liberal elite, tho were incapable of stemming the drift towards anarchy and sociel decline. ${ }^{23}$ He contributed to the climate of dissillusionment with democracy from thich fascism benefitted as he claimed that it conceeled the fact of minority ruling. These ideas. and thome of Gustave le Bon on the fundamental ixraicionality and suggestability of humen nature ${ }_{0}$ "became common media of intellectual exchange anong the most radical elements of Itelian socielismon 24

As in Frence and Germany, the Itelian nationalist mowement turned to the workers and peasants whilst remaining militantly ani-democretic. ninrico Corredini。 though vehemently anti-Memzisto considered his netionalist doctrine to be socialist as he declared to the Frist Congress of Detionalists in December 1980 in Florence, when he apoke of "aur national socielismio 25 ertolled war and heroisp 2s necessary and selutaxy facts of huan life warecognised by democrets and liberals. Tho cless struggle should be transerred to the intexnational arene as Italy was a oproletaxian nation A coxporate atate resolving class antegonism would, he believed, create the indispenseble conditions for an aggressivo nationelism.

Ferumisu also contributed to the dissillusionment with liberaliam and positivismo From the beginning it was an aspect of the new aggressive Italian mationalisu that egitated agensi socialism and clericalism, Hesonxy and all intexnational orgenioationso Phical codes were reduced to such herole Firtues as wax and struggle presented as the motives of progress. Blind love of denger and the inordinate worship of action were estolled in Frefueist apto Intuition in its unconsious vivacity is what sends the poet dom the streans of motion They considered war and Biruggle to be the only remedien for personal and nationel degenrationo But, for Maxinetti indicative of the changes being mede in nationalism, national regeneetion cansot be explainod rithout the action of socialism ${ }^{\circ}{ }^{26}$

I Italian pragmetiom chailonged positivisa thich it clalmed reduced life to factso For Giovanni Pepinio the leading preanar pragmetist in Italyoflaith modifies reality o we believe and we Qctg we act and wo transformo The anciorational element in pregnatigm was developed by men sceptical of the power of reasond and optimistic with regard to the power of belief in creating the truths by which we live. Ais a pallosophy of action pragnatism reached its extrene limit o mder Giovenni Papini and Guisseppe Prezzolini in the blind exaltation of action, which, dowoid of any cribexion of ends liberals would regard as ixretional. They worshipped action as and in itself. This form of pregmatism eppeared in Futurdsm. ${ }^{27}$ Action was the key word. The sphere fas a minor considerations. they celled themselves philosopher wolves and professors of energy diter a decede of pele 1ost Itlien and suicides. This pregmabistezaltation of action mes inbibod and doveloped by byndacaliats and netionalists diollumionod wth the effects ox Itelyo vesifleetion ond Iiberal constiteriono The exfect tes to unite the ertremeties of gyndicalism, which domanded a purification of the torld. and nationalism which called for waro
$D^{\prime}$ Annungio embelished netionelism by margying it to refinement and sensuelity. He borrowed the figure of the "supernan. from Metrsche and identified this with the masterful man of actiono capable of controlling multitudes and shaping events by the strength of his will. $D$ Annungio perceived the world through myths and symbols as visual inage follows visual image in his worka, until the reader can see the scene rising before his eyes. These images nere combined with an ezaltation of action. Ono of these symbols was the "flame of Life symbolising personal and national Pegeneration. In d'Annunzio ${ }^{\circ}$ g poetry and esseys the heroic passons, closeness to naturo, poter of till are contrasted with moderm degeneracy. He contrasted them with the greyness of bourgeois existence and the inaction and compromise of parliamentary government. The Asditi tho canc to form the nuclema of Annungio's legion ot Fiume vere called the "black flame" indicating fire and steel forging regenoration. fir words addreseed to the multitude had only the object of heroic deeds and action which could redeen Italy from degenoration ${ }_{0}$ words are feminine and deadd are mesculine. ${ }^{28}$

Syndicalism was the agency of changes in socialism that complenented those in netionslism. It was of great influence in Itelian socialist circles, and sam the strugglo against liberal democincy as the first and most inportanit objective of socialism. Ardent rebellion ves to be lod by the elito of activists. Beforo Vorld Var I aydicalism and nationelism. narico Corredini observed, hed a ncommon love of conquest' ${ }^{2}$, they vere both" imperialist ${ }^{2} .9$ The writings of Agostine Langillo, who considered war and struggle to be a source of humen redemptiono sevoal the same contlguity betweon syndacalion and nationalismo.

The political career of Insselinio and many other fasciats. was representative of this plase of intollectual history then the legacy of the maligetemment uas opposed and the political citcromes fused. Mussolini's preatro beliefs wera a synthesis of policical extremess the anerchisn of Mes Stimer ${ }^{31}$. which fitted well with his eccentric 'socialist belief that society is a field of struggle; nationalismo authoritarian and elitist categories of thought derived from his knowledge of Pareto and Mietzache ${ }^{32}$ 。 Hio avoulal and development of the doctrine of fascism tes but a nominal transition fron his preotar beliefs one of nome. Indeed, the ide. logy that was to bo called fascism after Worid Har I was, to an extent, the result of international chenges that occurred during the preceding decades. The sfgnificance of World War $I$ is that it wes a cetalyst. The important conclusion to remember about the preceding part of this chapter is that there were ideologists before World War I who had already evolved fascism by trensforming tho meansings of eristing ideologies and linking them with all political extremes in an aggressivo nationalism. True, they were unsuccessful, and this I meintain is becauso they /ed still consider themselves to be making transformations in existing ideologies and not seting independertly of them。 They were attempting to make transformationsin egiaing ideologies that noither could sustain, because they are traditions whose inertia they could not ovoreome. Only Horld Har I provided the dissilluaionment uith their Ereditions upon which $\mathrm{C}_{\mathrm{a}} \mathrm{scis}$ could sustain an identity independent of treditional ideologies. and succeod. It is the motiss of fascisn thich geined currency after forld ther $I_{0}$, that I shell proceed to describe。

Typically, fascists described the world as degonerete and cominted themselves to the militant regeneration of the nation. The liberal regime was seen as decayed rotten, $_{0}$ and would heve to be totally eradiceted. They considered that they had plumbed the dopths of what they regarded as the gicknese of liberal bourgeois democracy. Gilles. a novel urititen by the French fascist Picrre Drieu Ls Bochelle takes decay as $i t s$ theme and abounds with images of death annibilation $_{0}$ and putrefaction. The mood of those intellectuals the were to become fascists wes one of dissillusion and despair. The heroic ex-servicemen in Coline ${ }^{\circ}$ s Journeysto the Bnd of the Night trying to sloe decedonce realises that decay and putrefaction is alloporvasive and disavorss his youthrul ideelismo. Indeed, the works of intellectuals assoclated with fascism are filled with inagery of a decadent and diseased civilization. They portrayed the Hortd as divided into the flanichean forces of degeneration and those of regeneration. Indeed, the "demonological tradition" has been traced through such apocalypitic ayths as the Protocols of the Plders of zion into the structure of fascismo 34 The British Fasoists. a group founded in 1923 by Fiss Rotha Linterm-Orean, conceived the love, atheism, and the trade unions, which the nembers tended to lump together into a single migisterious entityo ${ }^{35}$ In contrast the realism of fasciam is evident in its vitalism。 Fascists regarded their ideology an one of life and movemento They described themselves eas 岛ovemontis' sather than ${ }^{\circ}$ partios ${ }^{0}$ wo they challonged whet they considered to bo the inertia and degeneretion of traditional political structures. Fexcists gas themselven as liberating the world from that they regerded as the borrgeois spirit, and avolrening a dosixe for regeneration thet vas gimulatanoousiy spiritel and phyaicel. sociel. noral. and politicel. Thoy procelaimod themselves as engegod in a revolution to sevo the netion and fnaugurate 2 new era of national selfoesserition. It wos presented on a countereciviliantion, a meescist centryy ${ }^{10} 36$ as Fussolins called it, or a "new civilisation 37 as Osuald Hosley called it. fussolini claimed that fascists pould make a total break with the ninoteonth centuryg the "century of the indivieual". and inaugerate the collective century, the centary of the Stateo 38 In every possible tay fascists opposed themselves to the ancien régine. The militant regeneration of man that fescists proposed Has frequently depicted as rejurenetion of the body, since for fascists ments payche is tholly dependent on the condition of his body. Pascista substitured for that they denounced es the pacific ideals of liberals, the militent ideal of thie barbarien knights of the Middle agee. $\Delta g$ on alternative to the oconomic man of liberal and the Merxist materialism, they offered a brand of noooidealien, that put the spiritual above the material.

Eroservicemen plajod a leading role in the rescist movementsorthe combatantard heroic qualities that fascists extollod and thoir advocacy of perpotual struggle appealed to them as guardians of the nation's heritago and greatness. Their intention was to mould gociety ea a fighting unit。inculcating in it the fighting coldiers heroic virtues of discipline , sacrifice $_{0}$ self-denial, and brotherhoodo They considered themselves above preceding generations, parties. classea. The elite of the fascist sevolution fould be neturally selocted through battle and conquest os thoy considered themselves 8 militant order distinguished by secrifice. dovotion, and nolfodenial. Leon Degrello, leader of the Belgien Rozister considered himsolf one of otho hondful of meroes and saintshat will undertake the Reconqueot. 39 They doveloped a cult of dutyo sacrifice, and heroism. Mussolini said of fascism: 时e are againot the cesy lixem.

 which entailed otrongtio willingnces to serve. obedience. authority, selfodenial. Adventure and living dangerously through the cult of strength were the ideal ways to live in sympathy with health, blood and virilityo War put man to the test and mede potent his primal virtues and basic instincts. War is my Patherland" seid Gilles the hero of the novel by the same name by Pierre Drieu Le Rochelle。 41 Fascists substituted the ideal of the primitive instincts and the primal enotions of the barbarian for the sophisticated rebionelist bwenism of the civilisation they were rebelling againsto This thes the corollary of the cult of tar and physical dengex, brutality, strength and se malltyo which treated gnyone Who belioved in reasoned arguments with contempe. Man was to be reconciled tith nature, saved from a lingering death and physical decrepitude by eresting his body and soxuality. The iedeal of virility, for Robert Bresillack, who was fot peculiex among fascist satirists, was best portrayed by sexual imagery. The exergy and virility of fascist nan is contreated with what thoy regarded as the impotent bourgeois. Iiberals and socialigts. Powero spoed. vigour o toughess, $_{0}$ solidity and effectiveness were to be Sascists qualities and it is no coincidence thot the value placed by the funurists on moderadty vas readily incorporated into Sascism. Whe are the perty of speereq2 pierre Driteu la Rochelle declexed to convey the activists spiryt of the reselib moverent. whilst Mussolini chose the phaseg nemschan is a dymano. 43 The ragcist belies in the onapotence of the will and the capacily of tho atrong man with faith to txiumph over natarel obstacles. bad, as its corollary a devaluation of the wholo aphere of Uelitearian motives. Sacrifice in the service of the nation was to be absolnte。 According to Hussolini fescism meonceives of life as a strugele ${ }^{44}$ and: "believes neither in the possibility nor the utility of perpetwal fubwrist propogende ${ }_{0}$ the strong and the heroic have an absolute right to rule. Ardengo Soffici desired a "plunge into refreshing barbasism and the restoration of the condition of "the rudimentary and gevage booxds of prehistoric tines.m46 Hitlers eutobiogrephyo Jein qeinof. is an elaboration of these notions. the suevival principle is e fundamentel las of nature as it was related to individuels and nations. as nature destroys the weak in order to give place to the strongo Cuxziopisleparte applied these motions to government. He believed modern states are orally captured and defended by ouccessive elites who cynically manipulate power. ${ }^{47}$ Central to fascism is a beliof in virility and force and, as a consoquence. a hatred of docadonce. The nationals had greatly declined in courage and masculinity from earlier times, when they had been rugged, vixile fighters. The $j$ ev wes evil. because he symbolised rationalism, liberelism, materialism and bedonism. Robert Brasillach declared that the only justice there is in this world is wthat which reigns by foxee wo ${ }^{48}$ For Alfred Rosembere: "combat is the father of all things" 49 Pierre Drieu La Roehelle equeted passion with force and nationel regeneration which could be beat sexvod by fascism, the most antiorational and forceful of all European ideologies. 50 He wrote: Mife is alvays a goddess of vex. covered with barbaric ornements and wiving her bloody lancea 51 Ze gloricied mens animality, an espousal of a kind of neompinitielsm.

Pronchen wero docadont, boecuse they had been teught to value dis embodied rationaliom over physical instimet, the cerobral over the primitive civilisation over animality. Polifical problems twere amalysed by him in texas of animal otraggle。 If all warfere were ebollohed, one of mane major cies vith nateroe rould be sevored, and osio of his major sources of virility destroyed. History. he believed, vas not a constant progression tourards greater human progresa, happinecs and uisdmo but insteed it was a cyelical process marked by repetitive struggle which left the nature of things wnaltered. Human struggle did not creat a utopia but gave max an opportunity to express the vital forces within himo Charecteristically, he cellod his sytem of thought the 0Philosophy of the Force". Grat leaders emobedied force in theix very persons and practiced it in their actions. Regeneration could only be achicyed through the will: impleanted in terms of virility, courgigeo athletisismo and action. He urged thet a society dedicated to inaction should breats with its main characteristic by reconditioning the body and restoring thought and action to their proper relationshipo By glorifying force he hoped to undermine that he dismissed as the debilitating rationelism and pale idealism that had dominated modom Europe until fascismo ${ }^{52}$

Fescists emphesised pragnatism and action in their struggle to save the nation. Their ideology oreates the image of action, life, and movement. The.irstas an ideology subordinatod to action and pregertism. As Mussolini urote to Fichele Bienchi on the occesion of the opening of 2 fescist school of propogende in Milan in the summer of 1921:

Italion fascisc on pain of death, or vorse. suicide, must give itself e body of doctrines. They till and must not be khiris of mail that bind us to etemity - for tomorrou is mysterious and unpredictable - they must constitute a nom of orientetion for our for our dajy political and indixidual activiby. ${ }^{53}$ Crussolini promulgeted an ideology that vould bo elosely linked to action, both by inspiring and reflectingit. de developed the theoxy of the ranity of thought and action. Fascist called thengelves movements and had animense thirst for action, and not just action ainod at ovorthrowing tho astablished oxdex. but action for action's nalko dil wero to act with blind pession and to think of life in texas of fist fights and mactine gun fire there the vexy principle of life could be rediscovered in action wad otruggle。 In the iascint vien man rodiscovered his essence in ertreme situations there risk could be eralted against socupity, inspiration against rules. Indeed, intellectvally the cone of 3thalian rascist ideology was a belief in the pxinecy of unreflecting action, life andinspired creativity over reason and "dead" systems of thought. Fascism was claimed as a movemant liberating itself Srom intellectual preconceptions, in which praetice tas subject to theory instead of the converse. The social Darminist concept of the life force $0_{0}$ and the suxvivel of the fittest, tere converged with ectivism to form a movenent of dymanm. According to Jose Stroel: "you must come on board, let yourself be carried by the torrent: in other words you must act. The rest will take care of itselfor ${ }^{5} 53_{b}$

Giovanil Gentile, sam las and institutions in a negative lighto as obstacles to the free activity of the spirit, as he thought the State existed only as an internal reality which was constantly created through action. Violence appared es creative apontancity freed from legal and institntional regulation. These idego served as justification for the avoidence of rational discussion and Prussolinis reluctance to comit minself to a clearly defined doctrine. According to C. Pelliai: wthe thinker of fescism is and remains Fonito Fussolini, since he hes thought and thinks Fescisn in making iso 54 sccompanying their plee for direct action, fascistserelted feeling, emotion, end violence, thich were to replace Buropean retionalisin. They doveloped a cult of the body, healtho and the outdoor life, as an elternetive to a civilisation that conceived education as an education of the intellect. For the Belgian Rezist Jose Streel fascism was a "state of mind" ${ }^{\text {Ps }}$ something spiritual and mystical. ${ }^{55}$ It was againgt eighteenth century rationalism. which forms the basis of liberal ideology with its inagery of natural rights, individualism matterand reason, that the fascists rebelled. For Mussolini Censile. feeling mes prior to thought and the basis of ito ${ }^{20} 56$ They opposed what they dismissed as the dry and gres argumentation of liberal politics with appoals to feeling which were part of the great campesgns to conguer souls and hold them. Essentially populist in its appeals and its essence, fascism addressed itself to the sentiments, deeply rooted prejudices and intuitions, not to mant rationality. Rational appeals axe aceassible to the ainoxity: They are also subjedt to cxiticism. Reasoning invites examination speculation, and disagreement. Feelings can be shared axguments seldom, and then only by few. Intellectual argument and its essociated deliberation is by definition an agent of division where toleration and compromise prevail, not maninity。 Fascism ecquired the character of an anti-intellectall reaction thich pitted the powers of feeling andemotion, and anti-rational forces of every kind egainst the rationality of democracy. It claimed to have rediscovered instinct. the cult of physicel strength, violence and brutality. Takon together the attontion paid to scenarios by all the fascist movements, the care lavished on decors the great ceromonies, the parades, mado up a gee liturgy and political stylo Where delibeeation and discussion were gupplanted by song, torches.
and march pasits.

Fescism assumes the anti-xationelity of human meture - thet human action and will is gaidod by instincto intuition, and feolings. Sochety is founded on nonoretional foctors. The peculiaxity of fascist ideology is that it does not posseos a coherence that is consciously sybtemeric but has an unconceious comerence. Its emphasis on myth eccompanies its anti-rational plea. All political and historical idoas aro myths as historical interpretations aro fictionel constructions destined to disseppear before the deeds of the moment which break through the temperal pattern of history. Common action is all: ratiocination and discussion otiose. The inherent vagueness of fascist ideology. when considered in practical terms, accords with the Sorelian notion of ${ }^{9}$ myth ${ }^{0}$, which in order to mobilise the masses should be distant and incapable of immediate realisation. Vill redo Pareto。 Whose sociel and political thought contributed significantly to the moveraents of thought which cxystalised in fasciam mede a significant reflection on the mythical natura of fascism just before bite demise after the accession to power of the Fascists in Italy . He claimed the the sucess of fascism would depend on its affording a satisfactoxy mfalth ${ }^{5} 5_{0}^{57}$

The immediato success of Itelian fescisn was advanced rather than hindered by its lack of definition. The open-erded character of fascist ideology facilitated the winning of converts. Hovel ariong political movements it deliberately fntended to exploit anti-xationality. The promptings of the unconscious, the race, the blood, the reveeled saith, are axnoured egainst critical examination by the assertion that they are highex forms of tunuleder which zoeson is iamerently uable to appreciate。

The nources of cerbeinty are held to be eollective or supematural creations，hence the inability of the individuel to criticise theno Emphasis on dyth ves oxplicitly acknowledged by Pierre Driou Le Rochelle：WA man who disbelieves in his acts and tho emehatins his acts according to one myth is very succincto 58 The ideal in：who find ninilism before ones tabula rasa，and inere supported，abolish every category of the liniting decrepitude of reeson turned on rationialism and of morals turned on hypoeracy． 59

Alfred Rosenberg elso extolled mysticism and＂inwardneas＂instead of reason．as each race has a unique soul the task of the trentioth contury $⿴ 囗 十$ The life of a rece cannot be comprehendod by andgically developed philosophy＂of cause and effect，but as a＂mystical synthesis． an activity of sorilo which cannot be emplained rationally． 60 His policy towards axt was that non－dogenerate art subsisted in the suprerational creation of forms and patterns that have a simple and unsophisticated relationship to very aspect of the life of the Volk：particularly as this life represented the unfolding of the collective subconscious into concrete forms．petterns and relationships ${ }^{61}$ Gregor Strasser spoke of the munconscious sentimentri ${ }^{62}$ of the people opposed to rationalism，the characteristic of urbanise ation．Hitler preferred that the petriot sought the wlife forcea， the irrational impulses ${ }^{63}$ ．rather than the degenerate reason of civilisation。

This relience on the non－rationel kes led nany to claim thet fascism is less a doctrine then a faitho mysticalo clondy，and freqnetly not just non－rational but consciously anti－rational。 Anci－intell－ ectuallsm was a dominant note of the movements as they opposed retionalism，the idea that by abstract reasoning man is able to axpive at one and the same truth。 Fascism looks inverd to the Instinct or soul and is mdressed to the foelings，not to the intellecto The Poscist ethos is emotionel and sentimental： at that level the ands of action count less than the action itselfo $\Delta l 1$ Bhropean fescisus give the improesion that the movemont vas opon endod in a contimpons Hiotaschean ecstamyo Primo de fivere，the founder of tho Spenish Palango，believed that mpople havie never been moved by anyone savo the poets ${ }^{64}$. Hhilst Leon Degrello the Belgtem fescist loader，called Kitlero Mussolini and Codremen＂poets of revolution ${ }^{65}$ ．Fitler thought Seeling decided more accurately then reason ${ }^{66}$ ；and Jomen Dronnan called fascism＂an insurrection of feeling＂，as＂the opposition between fascism and social democracy is the opposition betrean life and theory，men and intellect，betreen blood and papero ${ }^{60} 6$

Foscists considered manipulation of totel power by an elite es the agency of national regenerationo Potentially all nembers of the nation were equal but the elite were outstanding because of their service to the nation．This provided the rarionale for totalitarianian，the systen in which the youming for leadership and authority cyystalisod into monolithic undty there no plureliam was tolerated and no sector of society was immune to the ultimate definition and control of the elite．as the distinction betreon the fascist movement，the stete and society was embiguons so the Ioaders Hould be a netracal olite ${ }^{0}$ dravn from all ranks of societyo As Hitler declaxed： $\mathrm{mNO}_{2}$ 国y pexty conrades．we ghell not discuss the grouth of a new upper class．We shall create $1 t_{0}$ and there is only onevay of oreating $i t_{0}$ battle。＂ 68 The oleadershippinciple ${ }^{\circ}$ as understood by fascists moant the unrestricted quthority of every leader over his subordinates and the lattery unquestioning obedience replacing the domocratic principlos of parliamentamy representetion andshared reeponsibility。 69 Eurthernore。 施is elibism tas to be populas as fascists posturated the ebsoluto identity botween people and leadership which wes substituted for the liberal duelisn botween stato and society! 70

41l tho French fescist movoments hed en outhoritarian and intolerant tone as they emphesisedthe necessity of a disciplined unity which overrode elass difforences and political divisions. 71 The Onaturel elite ${ }^{0}$ for Lto- Col。Casinix Do La Bocque the leader of the Cxois do Eeu, were simply the Har votcrane? $7^{2}$ Gottriced Peder spole both of a comity of the Folk and the rise of a new elite, but wes anbiguous as to the distinctions betreon the tioo. ${ }^{73}$ Finally, Rofo Darre took the notion of a Orietural ${ }^{0}$ biological elite to its extreme: "one cannot very well ereate ${ }^{\rho} 2 \mathrm{aristocrac}{ }^{0}$ without somehow subjecting it to the principlee of breedingo. ${ }^{74}$ 'The duty of the elite tras to sweep aside the constitutional。 procedural, and other obstacles to the instantaneous attainment of popular desires. Tha destruction of liberal institutions is a necessary means for protecting the nation and effecting the popular vill as they are sean as in the gxip of the ${ }^{0}$ encmy ${ }^{\circ}$. Plebiseitary democracy, or populisu, was to liberate the nation from corruption and intervening institutions betreen the government and the sooiety such as the legislatiare. the older political parties, and the courtb. All these must be abandoned as they dave been corrupted by the "money potser" or other allen and nonopopilar influence? An authoritarian one party state disregarding a liberel constitution in direct contact with the popular will is regarded by fascista as necessary for liberating the people from the alien or other Heniohean corrupting influence. Typical of this are the writings of Eaxa Pound who thought constituional democrecy was "under orders from the иงupocrecy"?6

In its efforts to peconcile populism with elitism fascism comferrod upon the modern world $a$ theoxy of govemment that wes intolerant of all opposition - totalitarianismo Fascian सas called totalltarian as it attenpted to cncompess the wholo range of huma metivity within the sisero. It would ponetrete overy sector of life as it intended to create a nev type of gociety and a new type of max. Tho individual was considered a function of group life。 An Mussolini said: "the fascist Wiek of life stresses the importance of the State and accepts the individual only insofer as his interests coincide mith thoae of the State, which stands for the conscience and the universal will of man as an historical onity. ${ }^{40} 77$ The individual had no rights as in a democracy, for nations were living organic totalities which were an end in themselves unlike individualso and which possess a hierarchy and articulationof their owno

Fascism ertolled the value of tho national collectivity as it wes a vision of a coheront and unitod people and this wes the reason for its emphesis on merch pests, peredos and uniforms. It comprised a national liturgy appropriate to national selfe representation. Polifics and life must penetrate each othero and this means all aspects of life become politicised. Literature. art, architectural, and even the environment are seen as symbolic of political attitudes? ${ }^{78}$ The original and vitel force of the people through the organisation of the State realises itself fully in the comanal life of the nationo Activism was directed into destroying the existing order so that the otemnd verity of the Volk oxmetion could iriumph。 Fescism pould and class struggle and inaugerate class cooperationo Indeed. frote Marcel Deato this was the very meaning of totalitarianism: Protalitarianisa is conciliation, a reconcilietiono 79 Pierme Drieu la Rochelle defined liberty as：whe power a man receives from being bound to other meno ${ }^{80}$ Mands personal self－realisation oam only be fulfilled through the groap $p_{0}$ and consequently he respects cohenian，discipline，and authomity。

Fascisn waged an implacable wax against everything that tended to divide or differentiate，or which was associeted mith diversity or pluxalism；Iiberalism，democracy，parliementarianism maltio party systoms．Unity was to find its expression in the quasiospcred figure of the leader who embodied the apiryto will and virtues of the people This entailed the primacy of political action． Private enterprise。 for example，bas only pernissable if it cooincided $⿴ 囗 十 ⺝ 丶 t^{\prime}$ the national interest．The moral life of the individual was organised by the collectivity as the citizen tas totelly identified with the purposes of the Sjateo Glowanns Gentile，for exomple，considered politics to be＂pedagogy on 2 gread scale ${ }^{81}$ By insisting on the identity of theught and action he excluded 211 criteria whereby political actson could be eriticised．It could not be called athoritaxien or conservetive as idealogical unaninity was the end which coexcdon should serye． The masses were mere instruments animated by the＂thought＂of ${ }^{10}$ fer guiding spirits－indeed one ．She Duce． 82

The British Fascists doclered that they were＂not altogether constitutional＂． 83 They disavowed identification with what they regarded as a corrupt party system and advocated unconstituional defence of the government．Govemment oney $_{0}$ thought．ghould be omipotent in order that it could struggle against the omipresent Sorces of degeneration．The Imperial Fascist Lebgue，renegades from the British Pascists，was admipingly deacribed an on espression of intolerancen．${ }^{84}$ They advocetod an omnipotent government those deliberesive assenblios tould be merely acrisory． 85 Oswald Mosley，the leador of the British Onion of Fascists，thought posterity would regard مă \＆curious and temporary eberretion of the muman mind that great netions should olect a Covernment to do a job and whould then elect an opposition to stop them fron doine $1 t_{0}{ }^{86}$ Pascist or fotalitasian government is intolerant of minorities as unaminy is the idcel and govermment is the locus of action not of delibaretion or coupromise．The mass are regerded as ignorent and indecisive whilst the government should be strong and decisive。 Toleration is regarded as fostering the degeneration of the nation． Plupality aid automony should be overriden on behalf of popular welfare as freedon is a collective and not an individual achievement． In the Foscist State govemment will hace complate liberty to act and crust discension ：wopower ${ }^{0}$ is the monopoly of government．${ }^{087}$ The popular revolutionexy elite will concentrate power，if necessaryo unconstitionelily ${ }^{88}$ 。to control all social。 political and economic actiqity．Total national regenoration can only be secured through unlimited authorityo discipline and lossalty\％${ }^{89}$ as they regaxded the natuxal tendency of liberal society to be one of dissolution they thought national salvation depended on the walinited powes of revolutionary oleaders：90 Total waninity was regarded as an indispensable condition for this salvation，consequently fascist govemment ：muill rout out every party in the land． 991

Whe fascist movememts realisedthose chenges of the ideological spectrun that had beon attempted before World Wer I by inational socialists＂＂euthoritarian socialists？and ${ }^{\circ}$ rovolutionaxy conservitists．${ }^{\circ}$ Theirs wes an ideological synhmosis and recruitnent from both the＂left＇and the＂xight＂。 They did not fallo party labels in parliamentary democracy to stend for serious differences of opiniom。 Both Rendeit do Hera．President of the Belgian Workers ${ }^{\circ}$

Party, and Horcel Doet, bocialist in the inter war years. welcomed the cessation of the parlianentexy regine in 4940 as theythought it provided the indispensable condition for socialising tive netion or mationalising socialismo 92 Indeed. the two largest fascist mowoments thet doveloped in Prames. Jacquen Doriotos Parti Poprlaire Francaise and Harcel Deatos Rasseablenent National Populaire, were both largely staffed by wen dissolusioned uith the ${ }^{0} 1$ efto $0_{0}^{93}$ The fascism of planning and modernise that sought officiency and technical progress in the interest of the commity was a legacy of their socielism. In the ideology of fascian Praxism and liberal democracy are rejected for a modernisod, national, and authoritarian nocialismo Stato omipotonce required that parliamentarianimm and the party systen be abandoned for the militant regeneretion of the nation. Meny neo-socialists, like Oswald Mosley, had ahifted ideolo ogicelly from what they deprecated as democratic impotence to protect the nation from the international economic exises of the inter warr years. The masses must be mobilised for a more compelline roality - the netion iall classes should coooperete as the opposition was no longer between the proletarian and the bourgeoise, but the nation egainst those alien forcet that have thwarted the popular will through their control of the politicel parties in a democracy, such forces as the Jews and intemational finance. According to Jose Streel opposition was between the "workers of all classes" and "banking capitalism or mypercapitalism"94 Socialists must abandon their allegiance to the class strugglo and militantly affim total allegiance to the netion.

The national socialism that had been developing since the end of the preceding cextury bad cxystalised in the fascist novements with their objective of wating the national and the sociel． incorporeting both socialisn and netionalism in one movement． merging the＂righto and the ${ }^{0}$ lofto．Fussolinio for instance． 6 monthe axter the Ferci di Coribatimento wes formed，indiceted欵尤论 vas：
－a little difficult to define fascists．Thoy aro not republicans，socialists，democrats，conservatives． nox nationeliste．They reprecent a synthesis of all the negations and the axitrmations．。 thile they renoynce all the porties．they are thoir fulfill－ mert． 95
The fluid nature of fascist ideology is indiceted by Mussolinis volte－face in 1922 then be placed fascisn in the contert of a world wide epochal reaction against democracy，first．Erankly espoused the reactionary tradition which nationalism had alvays admitted，and advocated the restoration of a nore authoritarian government ${ }^{96}$ Frascist ideology is fluid，open ended，and frequently inconsistent if one analyses it for formal doctrinal content．Fascisa ${ }^{0}$ eclectic functionalism ${ }^{0}$ is revelatory of its appeal to all social groups and political tendancies in the nation as it combines and synthesisespolitical extremes．Mussolini， after affining allegiance to all political antinomies claimed that fascista are：Mlegalists and illegalists，according to the circuma stances of the moment，the place and the environmento ${ }^{097}$

Fascists claim to be an antioparty，both antithesio and synthesis of existing idoologies．Typically，Maurice Eardeche，a contempory French fascist，claims that fascism is impossible to define outside the cribes of democracy and the impotence of the party system．He claimod that it is：whe party of the nation in urathon98 Italian fescism was careers open to the calents，never free from ideological disunity because the numerous factions it encompassed were committed to different goals ${ }_{0}^{99}$ But it can be said of it what Peron said of his doctrine．＂It is an ideological position，which is in the centre，on the righto on the left according the specific politicel circumstances．${ }^{100}$ Bondrits de Plan＇s politicel career is bypicel of those whose disillusion with the perty syster leads to acquiescence with fascism．As he disavoued orthodor socialism he developed a sense of the necessity for a popular elitte that sould dominate an＂authoritamien socialism＂ which abandons democracy for the unity of the nation．${ }^{101}$

The elassic case of this transition is that of the ${ }^{\text {orevolutionary }}$ conservatives ${ }^{\circ}$ of the Veimax Republic in Germany tho，on the ertremities of conservatism，developed under the shador of Garmany ${ }^{0}$ defeat and her subsoquont financial crice日．Some called themselves National Bolshevists．They were extreme ${ }^{0}$ right ists ${ }^{\circ}$ 。 or ertreme ${ }^{\circ}{ }^{0}$ leftists ${ }^{\circ}$ 。 or indeed both。 Plaintive of the inefficacy of bourgeois values they developed a conservatism that was radical．This ${ }^{0}$ movenent ${ }^{0}$ uas to challenge the compromise and＇deliberation of a multi－party system。 Osuald Spengler s spoke of an＂instinotive socialisn＂${ }^{102}$ peculiar to Germeny which is＂Illiberel and anti－denocratic the representative of which wes Fredericks $I_{0}$ not Maxar．${ }^{103}$ He desired a＂Caecerism＂ that would be the nemesis of the civilioation me mocked，and that mife would govem reasonano4 Emst Junger，another of these ${ }^{0}$ conservative revolutionaries ${ }^{0}$ 。 opposed internationalism with nationalism，Pacifism with ${ }^{0}$ heroic realism ${ }^{0}$ ，the middle class desire for security with the spirit of wax and adventure which he believed was primary to life．What tere traditionally regarded as the opposite extremes of the political spectrum became fused as the noo－conservative and neoosocialist ideas becane thoroughly intertrined in Hational Socialism．

Womer Sonbart transcendod consomatism and labelled hisideal
${ }^{0}$ German Socialism ${ }^{0}$ in which discipline fould extend ofrom a aingle central point systematically over the entire social lifor ${ }^{105}$. imposing ${ }^{0}$ obligatory noxmi ${ }^{106}$ othnare Spann ${ }^{0}{ }^{\circ}{ }^{\circ}$ consexvatismo wes alco ropresentative of thia fascist fusion of politicel extremes. ${ }^{107}$ These ${ }^{0}$ conservative revolutionaries ${ }^{\circ}$ wexe explicitly elitist. Spenglex rephrased Eantos eategorical imperative thus: "actas is the maxim you practice should become, by your willo a law for allo 108 Theix ideology, like that of the National Socialist, was so eclectic that they even adopted the liberal idea of democracy in personnel selection.

Hoeller van den Bruck was one of these ©revolutionary conservatives ${ }^{0}$ those attempt to transmogrify conserfatism spanned many decades before Forld Wer I uatil the rise of the fascist movements. He believed national destiny, like that of great leadoxs, unfolds through struggle and that the most vital and energetic nation has a right to dominate others. France and Britain hed achieved "civilisation" andcompleted the possibility of their development whilst the Germans are a ${ }^{8}$ young ${ }^{8}$ people. The biological analogy aohieves its purpose in that destiny is non-rational and can only be apprehended through instinct. He thought that the race had disintegreted and that only through the nation could its dostiny be fulfilled. The political ortremes should be fused in contempory Germany as the social ideal willbe realised through revolutionary means but bound by conservaitive principles. ${ }^{109}$ He regarded liberalism as the enemy. Life should be beroic and society anchoxitarian ox ${ }^{\circ}$ Casexist.0 His main impact was to come in 1923, when mass dissolusionment with the ideologies that constituted the political spectrum and the partios associated with then provided min with an opportunity to exploit the drift toriards estremists nationalism, with his book Des Drithe Relch.

The chaptex headings of the latter are very significant in terms
 ＂Democretic ${ }^{\circ}$＂Proletarian＂；${ }^{\circ}$ Reactionary＂；${ }^{\circ}$ Consexyetive？： The Third Reich．Real resolution can only be that in which the Gormen apixit can be onbodiedo $1 t$ can only be mode by comservatives the ideal socialist is be tho accepts the conservatives judgenent on the vaiue of a close knit and powerful nationel life。 Liber\}lism is dismissed as an agency of national degeneration． 110 The only 0 emocracy ${ }^{0}$ condoned is that consistent with national selfoassextiono 114 Ideological divisions should be overcone，and unminity achieved，by the conciliation of all ideologies with a consexvatisn that draws from all the political extremes．Only conservatives，who cen anlist the unamons support of the whole nation are able to resolve the social problem which derives from the relative power of the netion。 the Germans are a＂proletarian nationo fational regeneration can only be realised by：＂IThe co－operation of the ertreme Right and the exireme Left． 112

It is sigaificant that this discussion on the motifs of fascism has been completed on the sumject of the＂revolutionary conservatives＂ of Germany．They demonstrate the fact that even after Horld Wax I there were attempts to trensform the meaning of 2 traditional ideology，in their case conservatism，into fascism by synthesising it with all political extremes in an extreme nationalismo It acquires further significance in xelation to this thesis as this is precisely Hhat Anthony Massio Rudovici was attempting to do in relation to English conseryatism。 The ${ }^{\text {B }}$ revolutionary conservativeso and Anthony Maxio Ludovici，like the ${ }^{0}$ national socialists＂and＂authoritarian socialists ${ }^{\circ}$ before，and after World Wer $I_{0}$＇fere fascistso True，some of the latter wrote before the term＂Pascism＂gained currency，or chose not to adopt the appellation rescisto then it did gain curroncy, after Horld Hex Io Nevortbelose the motife of their ideology are the same as those tho did ofter Horld War $I_{0}$ adopt the identity ${ }^{0}$ fascist. ${ }^{\circ}$

Although this thesis permits only a synopsis of genexic fascist ideology I think the conclusionsof this chapter accord uith the abundant literature listed in the bibliogrephyo It presents a paredign of fescist tdeology with which we cen proceed to identify Ludovici's political convictions.

 4960

 Conerto Sene 1850

 Vis)

 601

 Do 结化880

 703m 39. (\%men 1967): 2030

 Ext90 $8939 \% 000730$

 186\% Do \%

 $338 C_{00}$ DODCO
 Swamaldo sumoo bojo

630 Cont

 9000。
 20 $27 \%$

 $20013-740$

 [.0.30 (

 $(1962)_{0}$ bo yruo

 \%

 Jo Conce IDEGo Dode

So whot

 20300

 Woto boge andoo mo jogajo

 Guondo arocuo 1933 o boced ion $y_{0} i$

 $\therefore 291303969030100$

 $3 n 0$
100. A.
 Tus,

Conoxic conservatism is generally regarded as the beliof which donioy that nanb reasoa and will is exticiontly poworful to trensfoxm human naturo and socloby according to some ideal of perfoction. ss ideology in which imperfection is presented as constiturive of the humen condition it is opposed to any exfuments justifying attenpto to effect total or radical change. rines, its adherents are comittod to a lisited style of politics. Accopting this central belief, in the main conservatives regard erfoting society as the bect of all possible vorlds and themselves is its netural custodians? Consexvatism is according to one comentators wthe rationalisation of axisting institutions in terme of history, God, neture and mando wh

As the content of consexvative ideology is genexally regardod as pecullar to the time and place of its origins ${ }^{4}$ I shall concentrate on the contert of modern British consexvatism. I would suggest that the generse concerns of this conservativigu axe present in the beliofs that inequality is natural or inelimineble $0_{0}$ and that clase and atructural differentiated are requisite for both national coherion and economic success. Indeed. Robert Hecleshall is of the opinion that this is the loitmotiv that has under pinned the diversity of modern British conservaitive thoughto It is present in all Conservative policy discussions in contempory British polibics ${ }_{0}^{5}$ It has persisted throughout their advocecy of laissezfaire in the early parct of the period: thoix subsequent acceptance of e State regulated econony and extension of the public sectors finally, and quite recently, their revived belief in laissezofaire ftrough their adoption of moneterism and new misgivings about the State as an entexprise and wolfare associationo ${ }^{6}$ This judgement is reinforced by Nigel Hexris＇s analysis of modern British consexvarism which，although the period it surveys preceded the recent trend towards the readoption of laisseqofaire by British conservatives，canc to the same conclusion as Robort Blelesballs letest survey．${ }^{\text {Ex }}$ affirms for the period which he studied， that the fundamental belief in inequality provided coherence to an otherrise diverse history of successive policy and ideological changea by the Conservarive Party as British society chenged from one dominated by a market economy to one in which the public sector fas large，and the buremuctacies associated fith oligopolistic enterprises are predominant？Further studies have concluded that the justification of the stratification of society is the conservative＇s central concern ${ }^{8}$ 。 or that the Conservative Party identifies itself甘ith the existing class structure？Organicism ${ }^{9}$ scepticism ${ }_{0}$ treditionel－ ism，and either religious or secular grounds for believing in man＇s imperfection are fundamental to the ethos of conservetiamo ${ }_{0}^{10}$ One conservative wrote that the＂upper classes＂have been selected for their ability to govern as：meredity is no Tory invention but a scientific fact，a class system ${ }_{0}$ ．o becomes at bottom a moral and real necessity。 ${ }^{1011}$

Cohering with their notions of imperfection and their belief that inequality is inelimineble is the scepticism of modern conservatism． They agree with frume in seeing no source of redemption in reasono ${ }^{12}$ Harold Begbie wrote of conservatism：WIt is of all schools of political thought in the world the most prectical．It has no liking for pedentsi it is conteng tuous of cranks：and it will heve no truck with political emotionalists or ${ }^{13}$ This leads to the conservative contention that politics orught to be the province of those priveliged by experience．${ }^{14}$ The same convictions can be Identified in the rxitinge of Ludovici．He believed thet both netrure and mum nature is governed by oternel laws thet nobody． could ohenge．${ }^{15}$ Menleind is by neture conoervetive through its Move or safety，．．．tondoncy to indolonce，and o．．preference or the lunetic ${ }_{0}$ ，would deny this truth ${ }^{17}$ He regrotted that politics had been rolegated to irresponsible opportwnists？${ }^{18}$ Ludovici despised those politicians tho could procure their return to Pexliament by releifing their central political organisations of any erpenses in their election，and by using their own means to nurse the constituency thich they select．He claimed to have heard it said by one prominent politician that he could undortolk with ten thousend pourde to wis any constituency in the kingdom．Ludovici called this an＂obuse＂of the Constitations＂that is leading more and fiore to the total discredit of Perlimentary institutionison ${ }^{19}$ Ludovici thought to be a conservative meant to entertain no notions about the alloged redical goodness of muman nature：＂he is mot prono to imagine utopies or deel states，which，in order to be successiful， must be meintained and supported by angels of virtur and self－effacemento ${ }^{20}$ Ge believed the recent political history of Europe afforded abundent proof of the negleot of this conservative principle。 Mere＂hawkers of ideas＂。 journalists not statesmen ${ }_{0}$ pamphleteers not politicians bad risen to power：denin，Trotsky，and Prussolini． Wo should not look gladly upon joumalista ${ }^{\circ}$ who have acceded to power for they appeel to popular tastes，which spells opportunism and irresponsibility．And the example afforded by these buccessful ${ }^{0}$ journalists＂statesmen ought to warn the politician of the future against＂socealled ${ }^{0}$ nen of action ${ }^{0} 0^{121}$ Ludovici believed that it is the role of the Conservative Parity to oppose such dangerous subvorsives as it is among the chief duties of the Conservative Party to preserve the Constitution in Church and State。 ${ }^{22}$ He was moxtified that the House of Lords，which Englishmen regarded as "part of the bedrook of their Constitution", had boen severely curtailed by the porlienent act of $1911_{0}^{23}$ Wrough the latter both the Constitution and Parliamentaxy govermment had been imperilloc: ${ }^{24}$

Ludovici discredited rabid antia semitism an a device of agitators to provoke unitod action and common feeling against a common enemy. It pointed to a unique cause of all existing suffering, oppression, esploitation and injustice, without implicating the national minself. He called anti-.

Semitisi "despicable" as then purely English people ilone were operating in England there tes chronic exploitation of tho weals and defenceloss. ${ }^{25}$ Hot more than seventy years axtor the expulsion of the Jews in 1290, a priest, John Ball, was driven to the leadership of an open rovolt emong the peasants as a result of the doplorable hardships they hed to endure, begen preaching a sort of conmunism which was inspired less by contemplation and thorght then by the spectacie of the sorrou and want about him. Iudovici derived from this, and other instances of native oppression, tie conclusions:
ooFixst. that in the period 1290 to 1656 there wos in the land a spirit persistently trying to break loose. which for lack of a more popular term I have called individualistic and a social, the prevalence of thicho despite much legislation caloulated to suppress it. constantly impeded the establishment of the mutuality esential to a sound cultures and secondiy that this spixit increased rather than decreased as time uent ox (his itallics). 26

Ludowics thought that it was not without significance that $\mathrm{t}_{0}$ at the very end of the 365 years of the ebsence of the Jeus in Fhglando that is, in the fifth decade of the seventeenth century, Thomas Mobbes, shaping wis cosmogony from the world about himo as Denvin wes later to do with his notion of the istruggle for eristence: areived at the momoreble conclusion that the natural state of man was a bellum contra omnes ${ }^{27}$. As he believed exploitation of the English throughout the Industrial Revolution and after, was not due to the Jews, anti-Semitism was devoid of reason ${ }^{28}$. Ludovici regarded anti-Semitism as one aspect of man's native wickedness. He believed man's imperfections could not be eradicated by being conjoined with superior intelligence, education, or material resources ${ }^{29}$. Those who proclaim the contrary, "as Julien Benda has ably shown [In his anti-fascist The Betrayal of the Intellectuals], betrayors rather than saviours of their generation". 30

Perhaps the most thorough study of modern British conservatism has identified to fundamental strands in the fabric of its ideas, these two strands are collectivism and libertarianism. The former strand is associated with: "humanitarianism; noblesse oblige; piecemeal concession; radicalism; and the reaction to economic crisis" ${ }^{31}$. The advocates of the libertarian strand form two groups: "the adherents of a more or less orthodox laissez faire and free trade doctrine; and the supporters of the modified position which draws a firm distinction between social and economic intervention, the former being permissable, and the latter generally is not" ${ }^{32}$. The following discussion of the policy of modern British conservatism constitutes a modification of Greenleaf's thesis as I synthesise it with other analyses of modern British conservatism, and my study of the thought of individual conservatives. Nevertheless, the outline of this discussion will conform, in part, to a brief study of those conservatives that Greenleaf nominates as the conservatives whose thought is the most felicitous expression of modern British conservatism.

Conservative thinkers whose policy exemplifies the libertarian strand during the latter days of the nineteenth century conceived their libertarian conservatism as a defence against the rise of socialism which, they believed, represented a threat to liberty. Conservatives adopted that had been proviougly rogerdod as 1 borel velues. This trend vas to culminate in the syotematic antiosocialist position of W. Finallocko by consexvativen to the aloption of liboral values. He seloctively incorporetod prilitarianism into consexvariom in his adrocecy of progress and ves concermed, lite liberals, with efficient government and administraition However $_{0}$ there remained within his thought antiedemocratic strands, like the assumption that power preceded liberty in that progress tias in many instances the outcome of the foree of a minority applied to the conduct of an ingorant and inert mass. 33

Further evidence for the claim that conservatives adopted liberal values correlatively with the rise of aocialism de afforded by Michael PintoDuschinigky ${ }^{0}$ recent study of Lord Solisbuxy ${ }^{0}$ political thought which concluded 解伦 the ultimete reformee for the latteris political thought were Benthanito principlea. ${ }_{\circ}^{34}$ Lord Salisbury bolieved that such moral and meterial inprovement as was possible dependod on the individual ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{B}$ free and rational exorcise of his faculties. All that the statomans could afford to the poor man was to shape matters that the greatost possible liberty prevailed under the les to facilitate progress 35

From the latter decades of the nineteenth century conservatives: adoped liberal values as a reaction to the ertension of the suffrage and gocialism which they belioved constituted a throet to the socicty which they sought to conserve. Two prominemt conservatives, Henxy Sumner Maine and $H_{\circ} E_{\circ} H_{0}$ Lecky respectively, thought that the externsion of the gurfrage would either occasion tyrany by the beaurocracies of pertico whose constrtronts axo the porpertylose 36 or plovol dows quite as much as it levels upor ${ }^{37}$ Denocreey would be the moneais of liberty: as politicel equality would be tho first atep to "real Equallty which it is wholly impossible onteblish without "deatroysing 3ibor'ty"。 38

Lord Hugh Cecil maintained that charity, on a compulsory basis was inconsiatent with the munificent ethic of Cheistianity es reaponaible agents could only realise their capecity for goodnoss in a 日ystem that promoted charity on a voluntary basis. Thup. conservatives could only sustain their identity as anthentic Charistians in a competitive aystem which Lord figh Cecil bclejved promoted beneficence. 39

The Liberty and Properity Defence Liogue, founded in 1882, propogeted a doctrine which was representative of this trend for conservatism to becomo associated with liberal values. Though the major souxce of its doctrime was Herbert Spenser by the turn of the century it ties regarded as an asbociation for the propogation of congervatism ${ }_{0}^{40}$ It hexmonised the doctrines of liberty, evolution, naturel selection, science, efficiency and progress. One of its idcologued urote:

We should be very carseful ${ }_{0}$ lest in combating poverty by the aid of authority, we fall into alawery. Then we involio the aid of authority to combat evils other than poverty, we should beware lest we play into the hands of those who vould involve us in slawery 4 in their misteken efforts to put an ond to poverty.

Perheps the most sustained and coherent diatribe of collectivism to cone from a conservative was that of the prolific HoHollellocko

He was both a vigoxous parphleteer of the wborty and properity Doforco League and wrote profusely for the London Hunicipel Society

Hotionellock sybtembically opposed socialism by a isctentificio economic justification，theorctical and atatioticalo of a capitalist elite，stressing that ellteis efficiency in producing well being for all and hence social stebility．Tho modern developiant of Lonowlodge．of industriall methods end machinery．Mallock wrote． only arose from the operation of oligerchy or，in other wordo． from the erexcise of exceptional ebility by great individuels． We urote that no commanity can become or remain civilised which does not rovard these great men adequatelys ${ }_{0}^{43}$ lis conviction wes that society was essentially atomistic，spontaneously generating competition and individual achievemento rather than naturally fostering cooperation like the relations of reciprocity and dopondoncy of the members of an oxganismo ${ }^{44}$ Fillock completed his defence of conservatism against socialism by elaborating those premissea based on utilitarian psychology，the individualist neture of society，and the primary isportance of competition． The presence of wealth within society。for Mallocts，was like a developing solution passing over e negative which reveals inequalities but does not cause them ${ }_{8}^{45}$ He contradictod the Marrist arion that capital is fossilised labour by assexting that it is rather，fossilised business ability。 However，these liberal values were combined with thought of a more pessimistic and authoritarian kind．After being influenced by Robert Fichels． Mallock argued that political democracy was impossible without the cooperation of oligerchy ${ }_{6}^{46}$

There is abundant evidence that the libertarian conservatism of the preceding thinkers was representative of a trend for liberal values to be succesofully combined with conservatism，as it is a conservetive stendpoint that has been sustained。 Even during the deptas of tho economic depression of the interoware years．then maintaimed that adherence to the conviction that selfobelp afforded the only hope for popular welfare constituted the exitorion of authentic consorvetism $0_{0}^{7}$ And Aubrey Jonos definca conservatigm as the ndoctxine of freedom in the extonath of World Wax II when popular qcclanation of the notion of a Welfaxe Stento and maneged economy Hexo widespreado

Yidoed. in the postowar ore libertarian conservatism has flowed Pathar than ebbed as many conservatives belioved Hoxld Wax II had discreditod totalitarianiano a Oneo-liberal school has developed among conservatives which maintains that political and economic liberty nes indivisible becouse coomonc and political spheres are inter-rolated 49

The tryo most important and aystematic advocates of the libertarian strend of modern British conservatism in the postevar ore heve been Michael Oakeshott and Enoch Powell. The latters advocecy of libertarian conservatiam is exemplified by his belief thes government intexvention should be restricted to mon-economic fields like dofence, health and edocation, as mholly autonomous conomic processes are the condition for progress 50 His conviction that the tems "free economy" and "free society" are interochangable is typical of the reocliberalso. 54

The presence of liberal values Hithin Michacl Oakeshott's conservatism is so aalient that he has been called a 'Iibertarian thags'0. His libertarian conservaifsm is found at its most felicitous in his essay ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{O}$ n the Charecter of a Hodern European State。 53 He contrasts two corms of associations That of "societas" in which men are related in texin of legelity and not a comon substentive puxpose\% and ${ }^{0}$ aravereites" in which man recognise themselves to be engeged upon the joint enterprise of seeking some comon want in a state is understood in terms of the lattex, which Oelseshott thinks it commonly and aistokenly io govemment may be seid to be vieleocrabier. 54 He ovaluates the latter as an inherently compulsory asgociation in which : OEech is the property of the associabion, an iten of its capital resources. 55

The libertarian consemptisn of Oakonott and powell is ropreso entative of a fair consensus among modern British conservativeg. Tlmothy Reison Peckons thet Conservatives should put more eaphasis on competition, which he believed the only souxce of sociel maxmony and progress. ${ }_{0}^{56}$ This hes been reifereted by David Rowell ${ }_{0}^{57}$

Rhodes Boyson bes implored his fellow conservatives that the cause of Britain's crisis is that of an overbearing govermmento Finally. Lord Hailshou, another contempory British Conservative, has contrasted "olective dictatorship"。 which he believes the paradoxical exfect of nodorn democrecies, with his jdeal of limited govermment. the acompaninext of a society in mhich power is diffused. For the promotion of this liberal ideal: "conservaitveso. who were the natural enemies of the libarals in the nineteonth contury, are? or rather should be ${ }_{0}$ their natural allies in the twentieth" 59

The progenitor of the collectivist strend of modern British conservatism and its most significant exponent ras Benjenin Disreeli. As the leader of Toung Fogland ${ }^{\circ}$ o Disranli adwocated a populax and socially responsible soxyism appealing to the massed through patemalistic roform though he never crystalised this inactiono ${ }^{60}$ Ho identifued tho Toxy Perry as the nationel and democratie party. 61

Lord Rendolph Churelill developed tho colloctiviats strand of modern British conservetion that Disracli hod initiatod. 62 Floreover. Cuecomis dispaxafement of the wirr of classosin and his tixades ageinst what he regarded as the mexcomay erealtation or bywanicel coorsion of tho working clessen by capitaliats 63. was representative of tho petomalism that had become entablished es an authensic consexvative otand point by the latter decedos of the nineteenth century.

Rether than provide a detailed narretivo of those comservatives Whose prescriptions afford a felicitous espression of the collactivist strand of modern British consexpatism I think the little space that this thesis permits on ludovicit conservative contempories is better expended on those conservatives tho expressed admiration for fascism。 This digression is appropxiate to this contert because the British conservetives that did expross edmiration for fascism were, like Ludovici, those those conservatism is locetod in the collectivists strend. Plerse Loftus, whose conservatism io representative of the latter, complained that after Sadlex 0 Ostlex, and theix friends had possed avey, Toryism had become associated with plutocrets whom, he thought, had ebnogated the duties that possession of wealth should entail. ${ }^{64}$ Like a fers others whose consorvatism tras in the collectivist strand during the internar years, he was to make his brand of conservatism look like fascismo He wrote that Toryian appealod "to the subconscious tether than the conscious ${ }^{65}$ and that the "Nocational Senators" and Mizistocracy of Talent of a corporate state。 eschering a multionarty system is the organisation of society most conducive to populex velfare ${ }_{0}^{66}$

Among British conservatives of the interavar yoex. Cheistopher Dawson ${ }^{\circ}$ consamatism and that of ToSobiot tere $0_{0}$ permaps the most contiguons to fescinmo SoB. Bliot lanented tho ovenosconeo of whet we celled "oxganic society" and its ${ }^{\circ}$ orgenic relationships" between poople as socieny he thought. had dernorased in its inverd and outverd menixostations ${ }_{0}^{67}$ He atributed this to that ho celled the ege of Iree exploitation and libexelisa, that bo hoped bed passed. ${ }^{68}$ ToS. Eliot believed that only in a aciety that possessed the ordered articulation of classicism in contrast to the "waste lend ${ }^{0}$ of contempory society, could his strictly classical ideal in literature wa the arts be attained o the precondition for a flourishing and intergrated cultare. He thought the ideologies of totalitarian states were incompatible with his velues, but their practices "might be more ox less tolerable ${ }^{0} 69$ for his ideal of an integrated culture. Indeed, he irrote:

It is a part of my thesis that the culture of the individual is dependent upon the culture of a group or class, and that the culture of the group or cless is dependent upon the culture of the fhole society to which that group or class belongs. 70

Nevertheless, ToS. Eliot did not advocente a uniform culture which is one of his many conservative qualixications to his admiration for fascismo Rather, culture should be stratified and the creationof hereditary co-operative classes integrated by "a continuous gradasion of cultural levels ${ }^{20}$, with corresponding gredations of power: 71

Christopher Dawson hoped that fascism wes the nomesis of laissez-faire: ${ }^{72}$ Be deprecated the liberal regiae which it succeeded, for its immorality, irresponsibility, and individualismo 73 If totalitarian practices for crobting unanimity were applied to a revived Christianity mans salvation could be realised:

Better perheps that the State ahould orrenise oure culture then thet it should bo left to the mexcemasy leadership of the populare press and the finencial erploitation of its intelloctual and moral weaknessea. 74

> He denired a conirolled and anthoritarion direction of culture? 75 As he thought the totalitarian regimes offered man a deeper apiritual life they vere prefereble to a constitutional denocresy. 76

Waltor mlliotis assertion that "roryism is not and cannot be a creed of logic ${ }^{777}$, and his assimilation of Bexgson ${ }^{\circ}$ n notion of the ${ }^{17}$ ife force into his conseryatism medo it guspiciously resemble fascism. He wrote that the dry bones of oxganisation which the corporate atete entailed had come together in the felsh of the Italian Fascist movement。 78

It might be contended that these firtual panegyrics of fascism by conservetives during the internar years should be excused as contemporaneously fascism had a different meaningo This if plausable for the nineteen \{wenties ${ }^{79}$ when even the special coxrespondent to the Daily Mail regarded Mussolini's Itely':0s Europes saviour from bolshevismo 80 However, it is impleusable for the subsequent decade. 81

Furthermore, the collectivist strand of modern British conservatism Hes in sone cases reconciled withthe advocacy of a corporate state that is, , $_{0}$ unificetion of what had been self goveming industries by anationel committee representing them and other interests, including the State. 82 They were intrigued by corporatism as a model of netional unity olthough they mere repelied by aspocts of fascist politics which had aocompanied ito They tantod a form of political oxgenisetion that would establish order and hierexclay in the national lifen not just in the coonony．Hovever，they sers mo need for a fescibt party or movomonto or for a campaign to destroy an intemal onony．Thoy balievod thet neither tho advocacy nor the impleantation of corporatist organisetion necessitated fascist disregard of the eatablished law and constitution。

Both Sir Arthur Selter ${ }_{0}$ a former high ranking civil servant ${ }^{83}$ and Hugh Sellon an aspiring Conservative politician 84 ，welcomed What they regarded as the end of laissezofaire and advocatod ortensivo planningo Lord Erstace Percy，who had been Consorvative Minister for Education between 1924 and 1929．claimed that the significence of the revolutions in Italy and Germany resided in their being the revolt of mon who had rebelled ageinst the shan equality of both democracy and socialism。 Fascista had recreated thoseconditions $0_{0}$ emongst their fellow nationals which setisfied mand primal yeaming for authority and equality．Ho suggested that fascist or totalitarian government affoxded many examples，in which the principles of authority and equality had been realised，on which Conservative politicians should model the govermment of Britain．${ }^{85}$ Subsequently $y_{0}$ he wrote that ： ＂in days of criais．．．Tory principles sanction and indeed requixe。 an exercise of leadership and compulsory authoxity more far reaching than the principlesof any other school of thought．${ }^{86}$

Roy Glenday，economic advisor to the Federation of British Industries． outlined a system of govemment in which＂the mass would have ity leader：the leader would act on his own responsibility．The dictatorship would have a popular Soundationo 87 He advocated

3 new forn of comampl life in which the suppression of individualism foold be a necessary phese. 88 In 1935 Leo Amery. in a book sympathetic to Phasolini and Pascist Italy $y_{0}$ reckoned thet Britain must meconcile hexself to a morld thet wes receding from laissezofaixe and becoming increasingly characterised by isolated and controlled national economies. 89 Even Gir Hinston Churchil1. In the Romenes Secture of 1930. doubted if institutions based on adult suffrage could reach the right decisions upon the intricete propositions of modem businegs and finance, which gowemment was increasingly concerned with ${ }_{0}^{90}$

However, I am not claiming that the conservatives who expressed admiration for fascism in the inter-war years, ore those who advocated corporatism ${ }_{9}$ are fascists。 But ${ }_{0}$ that their conservatism is located in the collectivist strand of modem British consexpatinmo Furthemore 0 this does not mean that all collectivist conservatives in the interowar yearg either exprossed admiration for fascism, or one of the most significant contributions to the collectivist strand of modem British conservatism, claimed in 1927 with other Conservatives that the Conservative Party nust increasingly be identified with policies of collectivism fox both electoral and governmental success. $_{0}$ as the opoch of laissez-faire had passed ${ }_{0}^{91}$ By 1933 he had thoolly accepted the idee of extensize govemment planning as a prearequisite for national economic success ${ }^{92}$ A fundamental axiom of his conserpatism vas: "the colloctivo rosponsibility of all citizens of a society to each citizen individually. 93 Furthermore be operated among a group who from the nineteen twenties were known es the "Young Conservatives', the more prominent members of which were Duff Cooper Bnthany Edon Noel Skeltono Olivor Stanleyo Hob Kudsono Bobert Boothoy, and later Terence $0^{\circ}$ Comox. 94 meix collectivism fructified in the Industrial Charter of 1947.95

Indeed, the collectivist strand has beon ospacially ovident ins the post-war exe with tho accoptance by conservetives of expended governont cotivity and the Holrero Stato. In 1947. David Clerso wrote that the govemment should get the objectives and the otandards of inductriel activity ${ }^{6}$ whilsto iss 1948 . Bernerd Braine thought Conservative policies should match the needs and espirations of the peoplc. 97 Porhaps the nost significant contribution to the colloctiviat strend in the postowas cies has been that of R.A. BeButler. with his concern that: "the need in our modern democracy is to associato tho Tory with progressive and humane concerns" 98

Although this thesis does not perait a thorough investigation of the collectivist and libertarian strands of modern British conservatiom I think it worth mentioning that Joseph Chamberlain With his perception that political power had shifted to the working classes provided impotus to the colloctivist strand. $A$ similar impetus was affozded to the libertarian strand during the interotar years with the ailing fortunes of the Liberal Party and the defection of many of its supporters, including Ernest Benn, into the ranks of the Conservative Party.

This dichotery of modern British Conservatism into colloctivism and libertexianiom has been similexly recognised by Sexuel Beox ${ }^{99}$, Haxvey Glicloman ${ }^{100}$ and Sir Ernest Barker ${ }^{101}$. Unlike B recent atrady ${ }^{102}$ I would loceto madovicin conscrvatism within the collectivist otrand of this dichotomy. In his A Defonce of Aristocracy. A textobook for Rosios. ludovici tells us that the legislature tolerated nthat lesiest, stapidest, and crucllist of all principles, leissesfaire": unlitse the wise ebeck it had received in earlier Tudor and Stwart trona. ${ }^{103}$ ge oubmitted thet it was on the battlefields of Edge Hill. Maxston Hoor and Haseby that trade first advanced in open hostility against traditiono quantity against quality, capitalistic industry ogeinst agxiculture and the old industry of tho grilde, wagexity against tredo, machinory ogainst exaftanship. ${ }^{104}$ All contempory wglimess and vilgarity vere mbeptised Puxitan and Hom-conformiss in the blood of the oavaliers sacrificed on the bettlefield of the Grand Rebellion. 105 Byen the reforms that shaftesbury secured were terribly belated. Thousands were mained ${ }_{0}$ crippled and killed before the evils which be discovered were suppressed ${ }^{106}$ the old consciencesstiller thich Daxwin and hia school flung to thee conscienceostricken, by telling then that all the aching misery and the cruel otruggle led invariably to the surwival of the fittesto should cease and no longer be believedo ${ }^{407}$ Charles I did not fight for despotism but fer the welfare of the people。 He opposed the fighters for parlianentery supremaey becouse it was:

> oosimply coveted for the liberty which it geve to those in power to indulge their lusts of private gain and priveto greed. unfettered by a xuler who while standing apart from all factions, could rulo for the benefit of all. 108

Corolated with the above was the development of mechanical science. with its contrivences of all kinds calculated to inorease the raplaity of production without concerning itself in any way uith the eharacter of thew,kmen tho were to operate these machines. 109 The Long Parliament was not an assembly of decent mon ont a $_{0}$ pack of mercenaries. ${ }^{110}$ It represented the ruthless force of rapacious Fulgarity and trade. ${ }^{111}$ The anomoly of the Grand Rebellion is that it vas a fight against the poorer people and the King. for the ${ }^{0}$ Iiberties ${ }^{\circ}$ of the people. ${ }^{112}$ For Ludovici the Industrial Revolution wan: "the inhunan and bideous brotality of tho onslepenent by one rece of its on members. 113 Be attributed part of the blame for its occurrence on the Finglin nobility whose lack of public spiritedness contributed to rather then discouraped ition Conly Cherles $I_{0}$ the whole of his govomment and lieutements were inspired by the sacred wetch word of prblic apixitedness: wo Respect the Burden 00115 the dignity of Health and the social duties of property had repeatedly been desecreted by generations of plufocrats since the Grand Rebellion。 116 fudovici believed Ticount Bolingbroke would have confinned his contention that: Wthe ruler is essentially a protector ${ }_{0}$ and only where men see or exercise superiority do they always see and experience protection. Superior power is and always has beon the sheltore of thoteako 117 Axistocracies tho imagine that they can rule hedonisticelly and egotistically vithout the consent of the people are bound to foil and bo swopt away. 118 only Charles I satisfied Ludovicion aristocratic ideal by his insiget, dannless courage, fearless and desperate sense of duty to the peoples. 119

If I may digress D $^{\text {Ludovici }}{ }^{0}$ predilection for aristocracy is consistent rith his lineage. His ancestry, as the nome implies, were of Ttalian origin from Bologra. Under Pope Gregory KV (who was Alexander fudovisi) his family was ennobled, and attained to great power as members of the Venctian nobility. This line continued umtil it became extinct in the person of undovicio Prince of Piombino. General of the Pleet of Galleys of the Kingdom of Neples, tho left an only daughter, Princess of Piombino。 who married Ludovisi of Rome. Then the lime proceeds.

The original coat of arns (Bologne) is a shield with alternate stripes of red and gold, which becomes the top or chief of shose of Rome.

Thet of the net indovied of Picmbino is the Becond quartering with the hion of Tenice as the chiof and the mota broken belowo The aignificance of the broken theel is unknow. The third triartoring, a white eagle, is a coat of ougnentetion granted for sone pervonal sexvice. The fourth quartering is the seme as the first. repeatod for the sake of symmetry. ${ }^{120}$

In his A Dofense of Conservatism, Ludovici claims thet for five hundred gears the Rnglish peoplo had looked to their gentlemen to lead and to defend their liberties. ${ }^{421}$ Fe quoted Diaraeli to indicate their mutual belief that:

Abstract

"The proper leaders of maglend are the gentlemen of England. If they are not the leadors of the people I do not see thy they should be gentlemen. Yes, it is because the gentlemen of England have been negligent of their duties and unmindiul of their station that the system of professional agitation, so ruinous to the best interests of the country. has arisen in England. 122

So effectively did Charles I bind the populace to the cause of monarchay that his successors on the throne were able to indulge in the worst abuses without bringing monarchy imto discredit. ${ }^{123}$ He was the staunch dofender of the qualitative values that had been the paramount preoccupation of the Middle Ages. Horkmen and tradesmen combined to maintain a standard of quality in the work or goods they produced and purfeyed. The grilds which were the outcome of these combinations punished breaches of technical conscientioumess,$_{0}$ or of foir-dealing with severity. The craft guildsmen ofthe Middle Ages insisted on maintaining qualityon for the honour of their guild ${ }^{100}$, and their system of regulations was Qwintended to check fraud and maintain the corporate good name of their crafto ${ }^{10}{ }^{124}$ Charlea $I_{0}$ whom Ludovici thought was the first great Tory, strovo to secure the trelfare of the people throughout his reign. This aim has chaxacterised the best consexvatives down to Disraeli who maintained: oppower has only one duty: to secure the welfare of the peopleo ${ }^{100} 125$ For Ludovicis the conservative should believe in private property, but not privato property divorced from responsibility. ${ }^{126}$ Ludovics censorod Conservatives for their tendancy, duringthe preceding 50 years. to identify themselves vith capitalists and coooperate with Liberals. He conceived it as one of his political tasks to correct their deviation ${ }^{127}$ Conservatives should follow the lead of the greatest conservative, Charles $I_{0}$ who secured the personal freedom and happiness of the people by protecting them from the rapacity of their employers in trade and manufacturing, but also against the oppression of the mighty and the greato In this paternalism Charles I revealed the only attitude which constitutes the means for preserving the nations identity. 128 The Toxies should have kept to their public-spirited tradition. of which Charles I was the opitome, end ensured the welfare of the working classes. Ludovici commended the factory measures of 1874, 1878. 1891, 1895, and 1901, which all tended to improve the condition of the worker, and to protect his life and limb。 But, he castigated the Conservative Party as these measures were belated and mainly inspired by private individuals. The only redeeming feature was the presence of two Tories. Michael Thomas Sedler and Lord sshley, among the pioneer agitators for factory reformo ${ }_{0}^{129}$ The only important treatises on conservatism that Ludovici thought Englishmen were responsible for, are those of Bolingbroke and Discereli. ${ }^{130}$ The line of cleavage in English politics is betrseen the Tories plus the people on the one hand, and the Liberals plus the manufacturers, the big traders ${ }_{0}$ and the exploiters of the people on the otbero ${ }^{131}$ Therefore, Hinston Churchill ${ }^{\circ}$ s claim at

Tho mo of tho Coneral Exiko that society is divided into those tho stand for capital and those tho atand for gocialism ves inaccurete：

> -ooperticularly, as then he anounced itg he drot the unjustimieble conclusion that the political fight of the future tould be betweon a coslition of Conservetives and Liberals on the one hand. and labour on the othero 132

Indeed，the line of cleavage in Rnglish politics could not according to ludovicio lie between capitalism and socielisms
> －ooIt lies between the Tories plus the people on the one hand，and the toiberals and Socialists of all classen plus the exploiters of tabour on the other． for that Socialists are the exploiters of the people。 whatever they may say to the contrary is clearly to be read from theic docirine．They simply stand for a more machineolike orgenisetion of the industrial community．They rob，the people not only of their belongings but also of their character． 833 ．

We are told that Lord Fixle，an aristocretic hero in Whet Woman Wishes，held Disreelian beliefs．He thought his brothers ${ }^{\circ}$ actions，Eupert had gone to merica and Henry to China，and their refusal to enter politics ${ }_{0}$ were unpatriotic and a selfish desertion of the Consemvative Party：${ }^{134}$ After hearing
 ${ }^{990}$ Its the best thing I＇ve heard since ${ }_{0}$ as a boy。 I listened to Disraeli discussing the Compenaetion for Disturbance Billono 135 Againo this locates ludovicis ideal of conservatism in the Disraelian tradition。

Ludovicẏs collectivist conservatisn is evident in his notion that privete property should always be associated with duty and responsibility。 He praised the ancient Greeks for their reluetance to grant or admit absolute individuel onnership as readily as the Romens dido The compulsory reodjustment of wealth and property in ancient Greece, unlite the Agresian Laws of the Gracchio were successfully maintained. There were inumerable public services which the wealthy were called upons and erpected to perform. Although wealthy Romans also performed prolic sexvices, they were more voluntary than those of the Greeks and prompted by ostentation. 136 Iudovici attributed this to the absence of Asistotlo"s "balanced view in Rome Aristotle. in his Politics defends privete omership as being economically superiox because all men regard more what is their om: as being a source of pleasure; and as being more conducive to the development of character. However he insists repeatedly on the desirea ability of blending private with commal omershipo 137 Iudovici acceptod Aristotle's position 138 and tumed to history to vindicate his collectivist notion of property as it vill: "at least enable us to see the different institutions of civilised mankind in the process of workinge and to judge of their vienility and worth by the extent of their endurance ${ }_{9} 139$ After the retum of the Jewish eriles from their captivity is Babylon in the sixth century $B C_{0}$ and their reknilding of the Temple $e_{0}$ it was found that the community they formed in Jwdan developed all the injustices and symptoms of approssion that Ludowici believed inseparable from uncontrolled conditions of wealtho ${ }^{140}$ It was left to Nehemiah to forbid usury and affect a re-distribution of property confiscated for debts. The speed fith which similar evils called forth similar remedies fudovici believed, is shown by the fact that not later than the fifth century he in china, ebout a century after the introduction of moncy, and therefore of the neans of accumalating wealtho the Chinese were already recommending the control of capital.

Anciont legislatures such an Solon. Perielen. Ifeurges. and Acis, bed recourse to reodiatribution to try to avert catastrophe ${ }_{0}^{81}$ maroughout the history of Athens tre are constancly rominded of the conditionel nature of the original proprietary rights and of the sonnd prejudice ageinst eacessivo accumalation by the innumberable services imposed upon and expected of the rich. The Athenian democracy financed its administration from exactions from the Wealthy and also tried to provent gross eccumulation of property in private hands.

Whe development in Rome was slightly differento according to Ludovici. The history of Rome reveals a steady encroachment of absolute privato omership upon conditional ownexshipo ox ownership bound up with duties and obligations, with a consequent accurulation of large fortunes in the hards of a feto and all the resulting evils of such 2 conditions ${ }^{142}$ Although the bulk of the ultimate private omers of the land had either descended, or had bought their land from the Possessores (men who had only conditional or usurxuctuexy rights granted by the commanity as a thole) when the two Gracchi attempted by their Agrarias Laws, to oxfect a re-distribution of land, these mere possessores. Who had no right of private ownership in the lando protested as if Tibexius and Gaitu vere perpetuating an act of robbexy. The reforms attempted by these brothere came to nothingo and by 111 BC mearly all the land, which hed been public property, had passed into private hands. Rome, after 167. BC was able to abolish the Eributum civivm Romenomm and gradually to complete the conversion of conditional or commal，into private land tennre．without ceusing an insurrection anom its despoiled and inporerished citizens，thom it fed and mused gxatuitowsly．only a small re－distributions of land occurred under Cecosm，Heme and Septimins Soverue while the last remeins of cultivated public Iands in Italy were sold to be given avay by the Flavian Emperora。 bilenise，England，thanks to the enomous developnent of her industries and wealth，begen to be able after the sixteenth century．to support a huge and increasing population of dispossessed people $⿴ 囗 十$ ithout too much material hardshipo or． at any rate，without enough of it to cause an upheaval． 143 With the decay of feudalism ${ }_{0}$ the system of responsible proprietoxy rights，which recelved so important an impoross from Henry VIII and has lested to the present day，was firmly resisted by Elizabeth and Charles I each of thom took firm steps to control capital。 to prevent it accumulating in a few hands． and to impose upon the new，independent rich onertain duties $^{\text {on }}$ towards the commuity．Ludovici believed Charles I had sacrificed his head in the prosecution of these collectivist eims．Bowever． the party in favour of laissezofaire won the day： －ootith rapid strides，the foundations of the present capitalistic system were completed，and in the feef years that separated the Long Paxlienent struggle vith Chaxles I for a free hend 0 and the passing of one or two statutos in Charles XI＇o reign． which extended the capitalists policy to the land．
the net era was successfully launched． 144

Ludovici concludes from his survey of the history of proprietary rights that great civilisations have uithout axception beon obsorvers of the right of private property。 But that： ${ }^{0}$ everythere this right gas been to some ertent linitodo particularly in regard to the lando 145 believed thet capitalism or the ixresponsible administration of wealth combined with large accunulations of it in a fev hands. then accompanied with a vast multitude of disinherited or destituto poople, led to recurrent abuses and oxrors. 146

Charles I and his supporters fell, and he ultimately died in the struggle with the factions tho wöre ultimately responsible for laissez-faire。 Though Charles I died es a self-professed "maxtyr of the people? those of his prominent and influential supporters who survived him, attempted the continuation of his benoficont policies, and in so doing bocame knotm as the party essociated with the Crows brhus began the Tory tradition of supporting the Crown and championing the popular ceuse $0^{00} 147$ Indeed, Ludovici proclaimed, cen te wonder at the anger of venal shopkeepers, merchants and tradesman, and the more unscrupulous among the governing elasses, when all the measures of Charles $I^{0}$ s patriarchal rule are reviewed - his opposition to the rapacious lords and the country gentry, his intolerance of the theft of the Church and poor funds by provincial magnates. his firm resolve to sustain the spirit of the working masses against those who wished to depress and oppress them ${ }_{9}$ and his determination to administer justice irrespective of rank and powers "For it was persons of the highest quality who were daily cited to the High Commission Court "for incontinence? or some other misdemeanour in their liveso ${ }^{148}$

Mro Thomas Seftoncsmith in Poet's Trumpeter, finally succeeds ${ }^{\circ}$ in the comercialised literary vorld after a life of obscurity. He soon becomes negligent of his duties to his family and domestic servant, Mary Barkex. Cne night, then stricken with worry about his neglect of Mery Barkera he accidentally distarbs an oil lamp and perishes amidst his unpublished poetrya 149 an obituary appears in the Meteor, a liberal evening newspaper, uritten by Sebastion Squeeze a supercilious, untalentod and jealous mival of Nro Seftonswith。 It ues a hursiedly uritten production consisting of faint abuse of the poet and veiled abuse of his supporters. It hinted at his lack of educationg suggested that the enthusiann over his work would prove to nave been eraggerated. and acknowledged his merits only in guerded terms. ${ }^{150}$ However. Mary Baxker had memordised iall Sefton-Smith ${ }^{\circ}$ s destroyed poems. The BBC sends her a letter offering her money for broadcast recitations. But, Iry, Mr. Seftonosinith's deughter ${ }_{0}$ had destroyed it through her greed. Subsequentlyo it transpires thet as Mro Sefton-Smith ${ }^{\text {'s }}$ poems were unpublished Mary Barker has sole xight to theix copyright. ${ }_{0}^{151}$ Through ber extreme kindliness she gives eighty sewen per. cent。 of the royalites from the publication of her decoased masters poetry, and tijolve and a half per. cent. from her recitations and broadcests to Mr. SeftonSmith's family. ${ }^{152}$ Ivy Seftonasmith receives her nemesis:

> Meanwile, Ivy chastenod by all that had happened since the night of the fire, and having somehor learnt that a policy of rigid individualism and a keen eye to the main chance did not in the long run pay among civilised mortals, had passed through a long period of shame and confusion from Hhich she had at last anerged a saner and viser person. 153

When Hx. Seftonosmith had auddenly risen to feme Professor Bevington, a scientist and longatasding admirer of his $p_{p}$ and the members of the poets family, who deserved no commendetion ${ }_{0}$ Here $a 11$ mentioned as among those who had long known of the high quality of Mr. Sefton-Smithog poetryo Mary Barker, the dutiful servant Who was the fixst and most energotic admirer of Mx. SeftonoSmith ${ }^{0} s$ poetry and had been responsible for his recognition received no credit ${ }^{154}$ Just before hor mastex had "perished in a conflagration fed by his own life worls ${ }^{155}$ 。 Professor Revington had diamissed his feckless housekeeper, Mrs. Hexight, and appointed Mary Berker. tho had been noglectod during the period of her master's ${ }^{0}$ buccess? as her replacement. Ludovici comments: MHor important it is for hwan beings to be treated as if they matteredó 156

Iaxdovici was agerieved that work for the vast mejority of Westerners meant doing not only what they dislike, but activities that were an affront to dignity and a menace to healtho ${ }^{157}$ From its origins, Western civilisation had acted on the presupossition that no matter hou many disagreeable new or old fatigues its many complications might require to be done, the necessaxy personnel to do them could always be found on threat of starvation. ${ }^{158}$ Indovici advocated a way of life in which forced labour would not be part of its axrangementso ${ }^{159}$

Fundamentally, as Ludovici believed that English history, sinco the Grand Rebellion, bore no trace of the ethic of noblesse oblige what could he be conserving? His works comprise a tirade against the record of the Conservative Party in English historyo He urote in his A Defense of Aristocracy A text-book for Tories that during the nineteenth century and ofter the Fories bad great opportunities to take the place of the Crom in England es the patriarchal rulers of the commanity, and Findicate Disraelis promise that: "power has but one duty: to secure the social welfare of the peoplean 160 They failed the people:

Bry they missod their opportunity。 probably they did not ewen see ito for there ace some of them even todey who will be found to declare thet such statements as I have just quoted fron Disreeld are Radical，and not suaceptible of adoption by Tories in any way thetsoever8：Thue thoy allorsed things to go their om vayo and obeyod the stupid indolens behest ileishorseireo 861

Iudoviof recomated an experionce of his in 1915．when the joumal Land and Watos which contained a revien of his A Dofonce of Axistocxecy．A text book for Tories came into the hends of his colonel．Ludovici claimed thet he would not easily forget the indignant and suspicions manaer in Which his colonel questioned Ludovici on that subject： ＂In his thinly veiled reprimand，there wes all the idealian and romastic allusions of the first decade of the century and yet be regerded himself es an out－and－out＝Consexvative； 162

Indovici scverely reprimanded Conservative leaders in the early months of 1922 for their aequiescence in the Coalition Government led by David Lloyd－George。 Their disinclination to break with the Coalition Goverment indicated their＂utter bankruptcyo＂The Conservative Party hed shom it vas incapable of leading： 163
It lacked momentrum becaune it had no programme： 164 If Lord Balfour ${ }_{0}$ Lord Birkenhead，and Mr．Austen Chamberlain wore in the least inspired by a strong conservative reith they could not have thus abandoned their party：＂fe may therefore conclude that the official Conscrvative Party，as represented by its old figureoneads is as dead as the Liberal Party which used to oppose it．${ }^{165}$ He belfeved the field of consermative ideas，and conservative solutions to modern problems ${ }_{9}$ lay practically unexplored。 166 ludovici reiterated this claim in his A Defense of Conservatism and oited it as one of his reasons for believing that conservatism had failed in Thgland． 167 The Consexvative Parby kad been imonant of consexvetive principles theoughout its history．${ }^{168}$ Here ${ }^{0}$ joumalists ${ }^{\circ}$ had fillod the paccuvn that had been created by the absence of any conservative political thought in England：The failure of Consomative riatoomen and thinkers to meintain the high stemderd of realism requisito for sustaining conservatism as a practical and sound politicel policy，had led to much confusioss and to the framing of much unconsorvative legislation on the part of Conservatives thenselve日．Ludovici thought the Tory reader of hatoxy 1 ike himself；could only be astonished to find his party comitting thenselves to progranmes and policies ertremely remote from the tenets of his political creed．${ }^{170}$ Significantly；Chapter III of his A Defense of Aristocracy

A text book for Tories is onti仑led：WThe Raglish Axistocrat as a Failure in the Iutorship of Rulinga＂${ }^{171}$ Whilst Chapter IV of his A Defense of Conservatism is entitled：＂A Criticiam of the Conservative in Practiceo ${ }^{0172}$ In the latter bools he asserto that the Toxies did nothing to shicld the notion from the worst consequences of the Industrial Revolution ${ }^{173}$ Never was there a better opportunity for applying the fundamental principlos of Toxyism，buto

> The misery of the people ultimately compelled The people to seek their salvation in self government. That is the best conment on the tay in which Toryism availed itself of the chance it had been givens towards the close of the eighteenth end during the first decades of the nineteonth century (his itallics).

The fact that that public bealth was virtually unrecognised by the legislature when Victoria ascended the throne。 Iudovici thought adequately demonstrated the neglect by Tories of their sacred duties．${ }^{175}$ The Tories never understood one of their most elementary duties o the eare of the body and of hoalth anong the poople－and paved the Hay for popular discontent and revolt．${ }^{176}$ caly in 1860，efter the inspiring exanple of privato individuels like Sir Edrin Chedriols and Sir John Simon, did a Conservative governmento lod by Lored Derbyo pass the Sailtary Acto ludovici thought its belatedness indiceted that the concept of sound Conservative governient had deteriorated ${ }_{0}^{177}$ With regerd to fectory legislation Iudovici thought it ress notoxious that, despite the enornous changes which had taken place in the social condition of the people $e_{0}$ aince the accosion of George III, $_{0}$ and which demanded the wise interference of the legislature, no Tory administration took any effactive steps to mitigate the evils created by the Industrial Revolution. ${ }^{178}$ Conservatives have, according to Ludovici, concerned themselves too little with ideas of any sort whatsoever. and have telsen pride in distrusting intellectualism as such, when thoy hed neither taste nor character to fall back upons ${ }^{179}$ Indeed, Ludovici thought the charge of stupidity which he believed was so often and so frivolously levelled against the Conservative Party of the nineteenth century. represented a certain portion of the truth ${ }^{180}$ For: when it is soid thet Conservatives have sufferred for many generations. either from ignorance or a total lack of doctrinal guidance, we have a good deal of evidence to subscrantiate our claim."181 In the vitel department of government conceming public health, so essential to a sound Conservative administration。 Ludovici thought England might well heve been without any Mory or Conservative administration until the late nineteenth century ${ }_{6}^{182}$ He thought it impossible to absolve the Toxy Party of the chief blame for social strife, because they are the only party those principles might have enabled them to save the situation. ${ }^{183}$ The fact that the Tory Party failed to see itself as the national and popular party, and failed to see this task as necessary: "is probably the best evidence we have of its universally alleged lack of intelligence and ideas. ${ }^{184}$ The threat of Mrodsquith to the House of Lords, that they either pass the Paxlinnent Bill or he tould create peers wholesale, used by Hasley's Tory administration in 1711。 ${ }^{185}$ Buto this was not the only respect in which Iudovici thought Conservetives Gere implicated in the "crine" of 1911. They wero also implicated:

> -othrough their lack of political acumen and historical knowledge, thich allowed them to look on more or less cowed and helpless while they were being identified with the Gradgrinds of the Liberal Party and the Whig chauffers of the Capitalistic Juggernaut whose car had flattened dom the working classes in the nineteenth century. 866

Ludovici wrote of the axrogance of Consexvative leaders which induced them to omit to organise a thinking body of conservatism. In consequence, they were devoid of sound ideas and policies. 187

Owing to their indolence and selfeconfidence , $_{0}$ the Conseryatives under lord Derby had already set the precedent for adopting the ideas of other paxties; by cutting the ground under Gladstone's foet and introducing a Reform Bill:

Now the policy of trying to defeat your opponents and rivals by imitating and filching their ideas ${ }_{2}$ might be justified as between manufacturers, retailers or even caterers, but then it is pursued by allegedly opposed political perties, one of thich pretended to stand for the conservation of all that was institutionally prescious in the nation, it is catastrophic. For, in the end, it can only culminate in driving the more radical and more socialistic party to ever greater extremes of Leftish policy, in order still to have something fresh to offer its supporters ${ }_{0}$ which its opponents ${ }_{2}$ the Conservatives, had not yet filchedo 188

Ludovici believed that in this wey, through their indolence and ideological bankruptcy 0 $_{0}$ Consexvatives had been the instigetors of extremes in the Labour Party's plans and outlook, which they deplore 189 The Conservatives were at best a body of indolent opportunists tho are only cepable of immitating the ections and performances of their more alext and better equipped competitore． Tndeed，for Indovicio conservatism had been absent from modern British politics for over a century ${ }^{190}$ He hoped that stauneh consexvative,$_{0}$ like he claimed to be，would doubt the oredontials of modern Conservetre governments to be in any respect the orponent of conservetism．He thought one of the Consexvative Party＇s inveterate and fundamental shortconings was that in the social levels from thieh its leading recruits，and administrative officers had been dram，the distinguishing vices had always been sloth and ignorance：

Too comfortable to see any urgency about enhancing their reputetion in the country：Too well fod，housed and clothed to be driven by misery to scan the horizon anniously for competent pilots and nevigators of the ship of State，and touncritically loyal to the old school，college and Paxliamentary associates to exercise stern discipline over thate friends in Office，or to esact from them a minimum standard of brain－povero efficiency and even informationo Conservative admin－ istrations heve for generations been so lecking in political wisdom，prescience and ability and so defective in their grasp of their Rerty＇s histoxy． doctrine and function that had a large section of the population in the comercial industrial and propertied classed，not believed that thelr bank belances and other assets were better safeguarded byaParty ostenoibly hostile to Socialism then by one properly wedded to it． they would have been suept from the political scene long ego．

This is why Ludovici belioved Conservatives had dravm＂theix ${ }^{\circ}$ policies from anywhero．Even their most famous nineteenth century leader，Disraell，was reckoned by Ludovici to be guilty of plagiaxism．He recounted a personal expexience of his at a luncheon party at which be，and others ${ }_{0}$ were advocating a return of A。J。Balfour to power：${ }^{\text {＂NGOd forbid }}{ }^{n}$ be exclaimed with great feeling。＂that would mean my hunting＂。 191 Ludovici thought this accorded with their tradition of ignorance．The elder Pitt， anongt other Conservatives，admitted the only history of Ringland
he had ever read vess Shakespearo 19 ？ a fet of the severe criticisms of Conservatives that ludovici accepted，he agreed with both Beatrice Hebb＇s and Lord Morley＇s vordiate that both A。J．Balfour and the Dake of Northumberland were of deficient intellect．Ludovici concludes his survey of the telents of modern British Conservative statesmen： ．ofrom Lord Broughern．Who in 1835 sald er the 施glish ruling caste．＂The want of sense and reason，which prevails in these circles is wholly inercusable ${ }_{p}$ to Mir 。 T．C．Vorsley who 105 years later，speaking of the Public Schools that roar the buik of the recruits to the Conservative Party，said：＂the result has been to saddle the nation tith a body of loaders those understanding of the world they live in is wholly inadequaster，and tho added that the same body of men＂have landed us in the present mess＂
（meaning of the state of England just before Horld Har II） 0 the verdict is always the same．Nor can it be said that Mro Worsley＇s treatise（Barbarians and Phillistines，London，1940）where these strictures appear is unduly biassed． 193

Ludovici ${ }^{\circ}$ g＂great frankness＂in indicating the defects of the Conservative Party that he alleged，was recognised by his conterapories．${ }^{194}$ In What Homan Wishes．Ao Mo Landressy，addressing the 1900 Club，explained why the Conservative Party had groum so appallingly weak．He explained that it was due in the first place to the arrogant incompetexce of its ideological mentors． the Cecils：but secondly，and chiefly，to the fact that for years they had no constructive principles or programmes．${ }^{195}$ Again in his Mane An Indictment，Ludovici reiterates his olaim that the Conservative Party is bankyupt of ideas． 196

As Ludovici ropudiated the Conservative Parity for their corruption his task was to forgo a nety conservatism．His atiempt to transform the meaning of conscryatism is mainly to be Sound in his A Defense of Axistocracy．A text book for Tories． and his A Defonce of Conservesisin in thich he defines his tesk as the elucidation of na Consexvative philosophy of the futures. 197 He made no attempt to conceal the fact that his was a novel consexvatism:

Abstract

0.0 although the philosophic attitude of Conservatism is at bottom quite nossailable and, then noundly understood and wisely implomented, its principles can defy all scrutiny and criticism, let us not make the ratal mistake of confounding it with what for generations han passed as Conservativer in Fingland. 198

In Ludovicis novel of 1921. What Homan Hishes a Thory movement is founded by its aristocratic heroes called the Friends of Order. Its headquarteris in Pall Nall is described thum:

In the outer office there wes a small square uriting table for a clerko and another larto and heary round table, on which lay the cuxrent Toxy periodicals, a few books on political subjects, and one or tho torks of reference. In the inner offlee, on the other hand, there was long leathor covered table, with leather covered chairs all around $i t_{0}$ and a blotiong pad to each chaix: the wells were concesled from comice to akirting by bookshelves containing almost all the litereture of the countore revolution from the nerfous and forct ble uritings of the Syndicalist-Royalist Georges Sorel, to the cold and austere treatises of the post-Nietrscheans. There was even a corner for the peotsp and one whole bookshelf over the mantelpiece was alotted to the modern Chinese and Japanese school of reactionaries: Ku-Hung-Ming, Okakuraskakuzo, etco 199

The first notable event connected with the Friends of Order was the publication of A Handbook for Anti-Bolshesists 200

At the beginning of the novel the hero, Loxd Chiddingly, who lashed the Lower House with ill-concealed contempt, is arising yourg Tory. But, after having lost his seat in East St. Patricks to 2 Liberal in the General Election of 1918 , he was endeavouring fith the help of his lather ford firle\% and Arthur Masimillian Landrassyo to reconstiture the Conservetive Popty. In the Vex Porliemento to which he had been elected in 1915, he had attomptod to toech the House the habits of thinking and ecting on aristocratic lines. and to defend and protect the messes. He had just begun to ama the tithe of Lord Ceorge Bentinck Redivivus when the 1918 election discem any possible "eure" for the condition of the classes in Fingland, until late in 1919 he bed come ecross a book by Arthur Maximillian Landrassy called A Vindication of the Rule of the Bestio 202 Me leanod from Landrassy that his recognition had been the first thet he had received: ${ }^{10} \mathrm{I}$ heve been weiting for years. My miafortune had been the stupidity of the Tory Party. ${ }^{\circ}$ And then he [Lendrassy] added with a sigh: ${ }^{0}$ it is aiso their misfortune。8m203 Thereafter: Lord Chiddingly saw to it that Landrassy vanted for nothing, and that his fome spread. roxd Chiddingly, with the help of Landrassy, begins to become regerded as promising a constructive Tory Pariy. They confer, and agree. thet the Cecils" "Brain Trust' has too long dominated English consexvatism for the worso ${ }_{0}^{204}$ Lord Firle, the father of Lord Chiddingly, agrees to Landrassyas plan to form a society called the Friends of Order $y_{9}$ and gives his pledge to Landrassy that he will be its Presidento It was on November $11_{0}^{205} 1920$, just as the bustle and crush of the Armistice Anniversexy was beginning to subside that Landrassy rose in the large and crowded dining room of the 9900 club to address the members on his scheme for combating modern disorder. The Marquis of Firle introduced Lendrassy to the well lenom Unionist and Tory peers who were present, and the large number of Unionists $M$ 。 $P_{0} s_{0}$ and he proclaimed that the author of The Vindication of the Rule of the Best was at last getting a hearing from the people whom he could teach somethingo 206 Landrassy thon declared to those assenbled that while the chief aif of the Society of the Fxiends of Order would be to create a comprehensive programe which could stem the spread of socialism ${ }_{0}$ its national object would consist in： 00 solving current problens on Conservative lines and in giving a policy to the Tory Partyo 00207 Lator in the novel，whon the Society of the Friends of Order gaing momentum，Lord Chiddingly． its leader，found nimself becoming one of the most prominent and most talked about young politicans on the Tory side。 And the more alert among the Conservative Party mere beginning to look to him as one of their most important figuresg if not as their future leader：

> ○．o．troken，discredited and impoverished as they were， thanks to the very much enervated family $y_{0}$ whose leading member is Mr．A。J。Balfourg it was naturally uith some excitemont and selfacongratulation that the Toxies saw returning to them，in the persons of young men of the type of the future Marquis of Firle，Aubrey St．Maur of Too Old for Dolls．（London：Hutchinson 1920 ）$]_{0}$ Captain Bigerdyke $[$ of French Beans，（London：Hutchinson？ 1923 ）$]_{0}$ etcos a kind of strength thich had not been theirs for nearly two gencrations．Indeed，so accustomed had they become to the overseaning importance of the Cecils＂． that it was almost with incredulous wonder that they rubbed their eyes to descry the virile and magnetic group of young men that was beginning to take the place of these giants of high falutin ${ }^{\circ}$ blandishments． 208

Iudovici wrote that the field of conservative ideas and＂solutions＂ to modern problems lay practically unexplored．He suggested that an ＂unofficial＂elite of thinkers should ovolve a new conservatism and constitute a centre from thich all public indoctrination in conservative ideas would have to emanate ${ }_{\circ}^{209}$ Ludovici believed that without the evolution of a new conservatism，that he proposed ${ }_{0}$ the Conservative Party would be discredited and its only fate that of political extinction．${ }^{210}$ As Dr．Hales in The Taming of Don Juen，Bays to his protege，Gilbert Milbum，after succeeding in getting him adopted as wofficial Conservative candidate for the Northern division of 4 e日gess ${ }^{00}$ as your party is absolutely bankrupt both in ideas and good leaders now is your chance to ousline 2 new Conservative policy. $001 \%$. It will comprise the subject of the ensuing chepters to describe the radical changee the Judoviei desirod in conservatien. It will be meintained that Judovici rendered consoriatism comensurable with fascism.

To aco

 $\therefore$ Cose 89100 Do 0
 DOPO

170 Ame Do 10
130 27500020030350
19. atardar po3?

$2 \% .5600070890$

 Catramarataratorator

27. 903.03 .178.
20.230? 2 2. 18

 20.2F\%

 Bo 20 P .
 cmancoor phontanto

A?

 2030
 FMST 2083:

 DDe art
 D. 0
 Sanay30 196\% Do Dit.

$50.8760 \% 0250$

 Gontavo pocido buta

 (03tra pobto D. 29

 W0, 020 my to 10030 0.

 Doll.

650 5ten Do 92.590
6o sinta nuene

 63029290.1080

$760-83000$ 79. $06=57$
 3190. 9987 0.30

习习 mo 86

 03501010.
85. Lord Eustace Percy, Government in Transition (London: Methuen, 1934), p. 15.
86. Lord Eustace Percy, "The Conservative Attitude and Conservative Social Policy," in Conservatism and The Future, edited by T. Cook (London: William Heinemann, 1935), p. 24.
87. Roy G1enda y, The Economic Consequences of Progress (London: George Routledge and Sons, 1934), pp.218-219.
88. Idem, The Future of Economic Society (London: Màmillan 1944), p. 244.
89. Leo Amery, The Forward View (London: Geoffrey Bles, 1935), p. 319.
90. Sir Winston Churchill, Parliamentary Government and the Economic Problem (Oxford University Press, 1930); p.9.
91. Robert Boothby, M.P., Harold Macmillan M.P., John de V. Loder; M.P., Oliver Stanley, M.P., Industry and the State: A Conservative View (London: Macmillan1927), pp.19-20.
92. Harold Macmillan, Reconstruction: A Plea for a National Policy (London: Macmillan, 1933), p.18.
93. idem, The Middle Way (2nd ed., London: Macmillan, 1939), p. 30.
94. Wind of Change, 1914-1939 (London: Macmillan, 1966), pp 177-178.
95. idem, Tides of Fortune, 1945-1955 (London: Macmi11an, 1969), pp. 302-303.
96. David Clarke, The Conservative Faith in a Modern Age (London: Conservative Political Centre, 1947), p. 29.
97. Bernard Braine, Tory Democracy (London: Falcon Press, 1948), p. 65 .
98. R.A.B. Butler, The Art of the Possible (London: Hamish Hamilton, 1971), p. 29.
99. Samual Beer, Modern British Politics (2nd ed., London: Faber and Faber, 1969), p.300ff.
100. Harvey G1ickman, "The Toryness of English Conservatism," Journal of British Studies, Volume 1, No.1., (November 1961), p. 14 .
101. Sir Ernest Barker, Political Thought in England from 1848 to 1914 (2nd ed., reprint: Oxford University Press, 1959), p.109ff.
102. Rodney Barker, Political Ideas in Modern Britain (London: Methuen, 1978), Pp. 200-201.
103. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), pp.43-44.
104. ibid., p. 50.
105. ibid., p. 51.
106. ibid., p. 51.
107. ibid., p.83.
108. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), pp. 130-131.
109. ibid., p. 131.
110. ibid., p. 151.
111. ibid., p.155.
112. ibid., p. 161.
113. ibid., p. 234.
114. ibid., p. 101.
115. ibid., p. 105.
116. ibid., p. 288.
117. Viscount Bolingbroke, no source given; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., pp. 7-8.
118. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p.14.
119. ibid., pp.161-162.
120. Albert Ludovici Jnr., An Artists Life in London and Paris, 1870-1925) (London: T. Fisher Unwin, 1926), p.9.
121. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 29 .
122. Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield, quoted in Money and Buckle, Life of Disraeli, Volume III, p.101; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 30.
123. Anthony Mario Ludovici ibid.
124. Alfred Milnes, From Gild To Factory, p.45; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p.43.
125. Benjamin Disraeli, Ear1 of Beaconsfield, quoted in A. Ponsonby, Religion in Politics, p.10; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 58.
126. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p.59.
127. ibid., pp.75-76.
128. ibid., p. 80.
129. ibid., p.128.
130. ibid., p.132.
131. ibid., p. 213.
132. ibid., p. 214.
133. ibid., p. 216.
134. idem., What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921]), pp.27-28.
135. Anthony Mario Ludovici, What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921], pp.83:
136. idem, The Sanctity of Private Property (London: Heath Cranton, 1932), p.15.
137. ibid., p.17.
138. ibid., p. 18.
139. ibid., p. 19.
140. ibid., p. 20.
141. ibid., p.22.
142. ibid., p. 23.
143. ibid., p. 24.
144. ibid., p. 28.
145. ibid., p. 30.
146. ibid., p. 31 .
147. idem., English Liberalism (London: Eng1ish Array, [1939]), p. 26.
148. ibid., p. 21.
149. David Valentine pseud. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Poet's

Trumpeter (London: Jonathan Cape, 1939), p. 254.
150. ibid., p. 260.
151. ibid., pp.275-276.
152. ibid., p. 282.
153. ibid., pp. 283-284.
154. ibid., p. 192.
155. ibid., p. 263.
156. ibid., p. 249.
157. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Work in Western Civilisation," Hibbert Journal, Volume 55, (October 1956), p. 30.
158. ibid., p.31.
159. ibid., p.34.
160. Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield, Sybil (London: Longmans Green & Co., 1889), p.312; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p.102.
161. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 102.
162. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (2nd ed.; London: Constable, 1933), pp.xi-xii.
163. idem, "The Conservative Programme - A Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, new series Volume 111 (June 1922), p.948.
164. ibid., p. 49.
165. ibid., p.952.
166. ibid., p. 969.
167. idem. A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 25.
168. ibid., p. 26.
169. ibid., p. 35 .
170. ibid., p.75.
171. idem. A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), pp.77-103.
172. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), pp. 129-168.
173. ibid., p. 88 .
174. ibid., p. 94.
175. ibid., p.97.
176. ibid., p. 98.
177. ibid., p.99.
178. ibid., p. 124.
179. ibid.,p. 131.
180. ibid., pp.136-137.
181. ibid., p. 137.
182. ibid., p. 139.
183. ibid., p. 166.
184. ibid., p. 167.
185. ibid., p. 195.
186. ibid., p. 197.
187. idem., "In Defence of Conservatism," South African Observer, Volume 1, No.2, (June 1955), p.6.
188. ibid.
189. ibid.
190. Anthony Mario Ludovici; "In Defence of Conservatism," South African Observer, Volume 1, No. 2., (June 1955), p.7.
191. idem., "Britain's Conservative Statesmen," South African Observer, Volume 1, No.4., (August 1955), p.5.
192. ibid.
193. ibid., p. 6.
194. R.B. Kerr, Our Prophets
R.B. Kerr, $\frac{\text { 1932), p.95. }}{}$ [Studies of Living Writers $]$ (Croydon:
195. Anthony Mario Ludovici, What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921], p. 81.
196. idem., Man: An Indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p. 244.
197. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p.v.
198. idem., "In Defence of Conservatism," South African Observer, Volume 1, No. 2., (June 1955), pp.6-7.
199. idem., What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921]), pp.94-95.
200. ibid., p. 108.
201. ibid., p. 23.
202. ibid.,p. 24.
203. ibid., pp. 24-25.
204. ibid., p. 26.
205. ibid., p.79.
206. ibid., p. 81.
207. ibid., p.82.
208. ibid., p. 133.
209. idem., "The Conservative Programme - A Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series, Volume 111, (June 1922), p.961.
210. ibid., pp.961-962.
211. idem., The Taming of Don Juan (London: Hutchinson, [1924]), p. 297.

For one whose fathex and grandfather were both famous artists not suxprioingly Anthony Iario Ludovicios initiel concems wore ertiatic. His grandfather. Albert Ludovicio who had enimeated to England from Italy was a painter in London of domestic subjects and became a member of the Royal Society of British Artists in 1867. He vas a pupil of Monsieur Drolling in Paris during the eighteen-forties. and sollow student of the celebrated painter Hexnex.: exbibited a totel of 323 pictures in London between 1848 and $1891^{2}$, one of his works being bought by Napoleon III from the Selon des Refuses in $1863_{0}^{3}$ He diedinVexey in Switzerland on September $10,1894^{4}$ after being a member of the Royal British Academy for the greater pari of his life?

Anthony Mario Ludovici ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{s}$ father: Albert Ludovici Jnx。 (1852-1932) was born in Prague on July 10, 1852'。 He was educated in London and Genever and uas a landscape and genre paintex, he ves electod a member of the Society of British Artists in $1878^{6}$ and exhibited at the Royal Academy from 1880. He came under the complete hypnotism of Whistler, and was Whistler's:"most orthodox and uncompromising honchman ${ }^{19}$ in Britain? He lived mainly in Paris, but also in London. ${ }^{8}$ Anthony Mario Ludovici ${ }^{\text {'s }}$ mother Marie Cals, whom his father maxried in Paris in August 1875, wes alse associated with the world of art and culture?

Anthony Mario ludovici started life as an artisto illustrated various books, and was Auguste Rodin's private secretary for part of 1906 , a post which he secured through his fathers personal influence, to whom he had elready expressed his wish to become a mriter. Due to his rejection of contempory art，he left graphic arts to pursue a Focetion as a witer．As a young man he was disturbed by the bewildering inconsistency and contradictariness of the opinions on hide vork be was able to elicit from the artists whose judgement he valued：his father，Rodino Seutor and Histler．He decried tho absence of all of authority，or at least of unanimity among authorities：

> This was roughly about 1898 。o．ever since then ${ }_{0}$ on and offo my thoughts have turned upon the why and Wherefore of this confusion and lack of standards and upon its disastrous consequences．More especially have I alvays felt the danger of a pervasive charlatanism in 2 sphere where，ouing to the absence of established carions and standards，everything is alloved． 10

It was this anarchic subjectivity and lack of unifying style and canon in the arts that constituted the chief objection Ludovici raised to his parents and others ${ }_{9}$ to the adoption of the graphic art as a calling．

From his dissatisfaction with modern art he attempted to discovor the cause of its degeneration and to overcome the subjectivity which he thought had destroyed over a century of art．He turned to Nictescheism as an authority that could give art a real and vital justification。 In the only place where he provides his reasons for his early repudiation of art as a vocetion，Iudovici clamed that the absence of standards in art arose from our loss of a homogeneous culture ，which he thought：＂the only culture worthy of the neme according to Nietzscho． $0^{2}$

However，Ludovici did not merely adopt Nietzscheism in hia views on art and culture。 Above all others，Nietesche was the thinker to whom Ludovici owed most of the ideas in his social and political thought．Although it is not the purpose of this thesis to compare Nietzsche＇s and Ludozici＇s socjal and political thought ${ }^{\prime}$ throughout this thosis，toboll allude to the ideas they share。 It is extremely important to recocnise Ludovici＇s eulogy of the ${ }^{0}$ philosophy ${ }^{0}$ \＆personality，of Friedrich Netzsche。 Ludoviei wrote three mejor commentexies on the＂philosophy＂of Exiedrich Nietascho，and wes one of the most significant disciples of Nietrsche in Britain from the first decede of this centuryo．
We know that Indovici joined the New Age。 in 1911。 and colleboreted with its two brilliant Nietzscheans，JoMoKennedy and Dro Oscar Levy。 Ludovici first met Dro Oscar Levy，perhaps the leading Nietaschcan in England at the time，in the late sumer of $1908_{0}^{12}$ Dro Oscar Levy was already contributing to the New Age by that time。 with Jomo Kennedy ${ }^{13}$ ，and it vas probably he who recommended Iudovici to A．R．Orage who，with Holbrook Jackson，had acquired joint omer and editoroship of the New Age in the spring of 1907 Iudovici had met and was very impressed with AoR．Orage ${ }^{14}$ when he was preparing his lectures on Nietzsche at University College，London over two years

[^0]Before the first evidence of his actually contributing to the Ners Age。＂

Ludovici vas the prolific ${ }^{1} 2 \mathrm{ar}^{\circ}$ critic of the Now Ags betreen 1912 and 19140 Hoveror，he contributed very little to Ners Ase during World War I bocause of his active service，much to AoR．Orage＇s dismay． 15 Indeed，he did not contribute anything to the New Age arter the midot920s：which may have been due to the fact that in October 1922；A．R．Orege renounced tho editorship of the New Ageo or that Ludovici was too preoccupied with the writing of his books it was his most prolific periodo Anyway，when A．R．Orage returned to Fingland in 1931。 after a most bizarre hiatus spent in exploring mysticism he founded the New Bnglish Weekly in April of $1932_{0}$ and Ludovici became a regular writer of reviews for that joumal． Although $A_{0} R_{\text {．Orage }}$ died on November $5 \%$ 1934，Ludovici continued as an occasional contributor to the New Engligh Weeklyo A review of public affairs，literature and the arte，through its mergor with the old New Age．A weekly record of Christian culture social sexvice end Iiterary Iife，to form the hybrid Wew English Weekly and Neu Age， etc：in Jonuaxy 1939 its reversion of name to the New English Veekly。 etc．in April 1947。 and the latter＇s final demise in September 1949。

Wevertheless ${ }_{0}$ although Ludovici tas one of the New Age Nietzscheans ${ }^{16}$ and it is true that the Nev Age reacted against liberalism and romanticism during and after Horld War $I^{17}$ ，it was a predominantly socialist joumal。 It advocated guild socialism ${ }^{18}$ and later became a mouthpiece for the social credit schemes of Llejor Douglas ${ }^{19}$ from Which Ludovici always kept aloof ${ }^{20}$ ．It is possible that Ludovici

Which is Anthony Mario Ludovici＂s，＂Rewier of MoHalevy ${ }^{0} s_{0}$ The Life of Friedxich Nictrache，transleted by JoM．Hone，with an introduction by TM．Kottle（ToFisher Unoin）＂New Sge，volume VIIIo No．17．February 23．1911．pp．402－3．

Imbibod the guild socientism that the Nets Age ves advocating and adopted it in his adrocacy of corporatism and feudal ideal of totalitarianism, which is discussed later in this thesis. However, in his contributions to the Nerf Age bo novor displayed any sympethy with the guild socielism it edvoceted.

The importance of the Hew Age to Judovici was that it helped to establish him in the literary world. He also gained a great deal of notoriety in his dissemination of Nietzscheism in the Ner Age. He earned some unflattering comments for his outspokenness. The following is from Wyndham Leris: "He is obviously a fool it is worth noones while to noticeooohis dismal shoddy rubbish is not even anusingly rediculous. " 21 Whilst D.E. Hulme called Indovici a charleten $^{\text {a }}$ of Nietzscheism ${ }^{2}{ }^{2}$ little cockney intellect which would have been more suitebly employed indexing in a lawyers office". And for maliciously denigrating the art of Jacob Epstein he suggested a little personal violence would be appropriate: "But the unworthy sentiment of pity for the weak, which, in spite of Nietzsche ${ }_{0}$ still moves us, prevents us dealing drastically, with this rather light-weight superman. " ${ }^{22}$

We know that hefore Iudovici translated six volumes of Nietrache he had spent some time in Germany, and there got acquainted with the witings of Schopenhauer and Nietzache, who were his inspiration for the rest of his life。 Undoubtedly, Ludovici adoptod a good deal of his anti-feminism from Schopenhauero ${ }_{0}^{23}$ Whilst. Nietzscheism is profuse throughout Ludovici's A Defence of Aristocrecy A tert book for Tories. Trn the latter Ludovici claims that Nietzsche ${ }^{\circ}$ s recognition of the need for a transvaluation of values was prophetic. $f$ for only then would the people be able and willing to recognise the claim of superior lifeor ${ }^{24}$ Only an elite of "taste and discrimination" is able to save Western civilisation from unrelieved degeneragy by a trensvaluation of values ${ }^{25}$ :

MIn Anthony Mario Ludovici's, WArt: The Caxfax the Suffolk and the TuentyoOne Galleries", New-Age volume KIV. No. 7, December 18, 1913, p. 215 。
oothe modern world has in Fietrsche?s stupendously courageous enquiry into the broad question of sick and healthy values. an outline of its task, and a signpost as to the direction it should pursue, which it can ignore only at its om hurt and peril. 26

In Ludovici's A Defence of Conservatism we are told that the conservative is a definite otypo. 27

Kudovici eulogised Nietzsche for his healthy realism thich wrenched the mask from the dangerous face of romance. ${ }^{28}$ He had realised that it is not traditional institutions that are degenerative but values, hence the dire need for a transvaluation of values ${ }_{0}^{29}$

Just as Nietzsche philosophised the real and the vital so did Ludovici, indeed, it under pinned his social and political thought. The prePlatonic Greeks, according to Nietrsche, "had before themselves Life in a luxuriant perfection", unlike us who are "muddled with the disunion engendered by the wish for freedom beauty, fulness of lifeg and the love of truth that only asks: What is the good of Life at all? 130 Nietzsche, for Ludovicig overcame Schopenhauer ${ }^{\circ}$ s pessimism by discovering an object in life. the elevation of man and society. 31 The question of life-promoting "taste" plays an important part in Nietzsche ${ }^{0}$ s writings $0_{0}$ as it does in Ludovici's ${ }_{0}^{32}$ Buto Ludovici was to make his owm application of Nietascheism. Interestingly, Dr. Oscar Luvy warmed Ludovici not to make Nietischeism popular when it ought to be esoteric: "Why not act up to your Machiavellian principles ${ }_{9}$ and rather lecture on the dram, socialism, folklore, the sins of the upper classes, or the sanitation of Mayfair?i 33 And that Ludovici should be propogating Nietzscheism; not a race. 34
ludovici thought that just as Schopenheuer hed turned in horrox from mants blind will to live in the midst of Life，and an life reached selfoconsciousness in man it is for man to neutralise it． so Nietzsche had turyed in horror from Schopenhauero 35 He had realised that man may attain to superman 36 ，improve his race ${ }^{37}$ ． and play a bold part in the geme of lifeo ${ }^{38}$ Hitherto the pree requisite to be＂philosophical＂had been＂tediousness ${ }_{0}$ longrindedness $0_{0}$ drymess－anaemiemo with our Eants。 JoS．Mills and Sidguicks：Now Nietzsche is a man who wrote uith his blood． who made philosophy as palpatatingly interesting as the most thrilling romance．＂ 39 It was to Nietzsche＂s credit to heve seen that＂active，creativo，Dionysiac＂values belonged to the＂mester morality ${ }^{0}$ ，whilst the 0 slave morality＇is passive and defensive。 40 Wietzsche deliberately spoke coldy and deliberately on matters on which the multitude spoke with teaxful voices，to give the impression of benevolence ${ }_{0}^{41}$ For Ludovici，Nietasche was an exception who escaped from the general degeneracy of Europe，its unscrupolous praise of ${ }^{0}$ progress＇s and volgar levity in the face of effeminency and decay，and voiced the hope of a real world，regenerated and reorganised on a soundex． more virile and more orderly basis，＂if only the stupendous revolution of a transvaluation of all values were made possible． $0^{42}$ Ludovici reckoned that Nietzscheism must avoid becoming a＂merely intelnectual movement＂。 and that Nietzsche ${ }^{0}$ s followers must build upon his＂taste in Sociology．${ }^{43}$ Nietzsche was eulogised by Ludovioi as the greatest thinker of the nineteenth century 44 We should call our history a triumph of man，face life with positivness，and not shrink from life as Schopenhauer suggested that ve should ${ }_{\circ}^{45}$ In 1941。 Ludovici proclaimed that he was：

[^1]For Ludovicio values arcentirely metters of taste and prejudice. not of truthé It was Nietzsche who had discerned the truth that human teste or values, could be either lethal or lifeopromoting, and that valuing life tras anong the most vital of humen functions ${ }^{48}$ Ludovici reckoned the task of "philosophy" is to apply what is knom to an intelligent conduct of the affairs of human lifeo Howeven. instead of pursuing and searching for wisdom, "philosophy has become bogged in the quagnire of epistemologyo" It was to Nietzschers credit to claim ${ }^{\text {² }}$ more vital, a more $\mathrm{flesh}-a n d-b l o o d$ function for the philosophero.. and to interpret lnowing along biological lineso 449

Ludovici only claimed to diverge from fietzsche on two matters. Firstly。 Ludovici regarded Socrates as the gxeatest transvaluer of all time: By substituting humanism for mans old heal thy monism. Once monism had been contradicted by Socrates every sort of degeneracy, and apology for degeneracy, became possible. 50 Thus, four hundred years before Nietzsche's JerishoChristian transvaluation every essential principle which made it possible had been established by Socrates. Ludovici thought that in this matter he was justified in charging Nietzsche with "confusion and a lewk of consistencyo 51 Secondly, Ludovici thought that in failing to see hou and why the conduct prompted by pity could be and often is ignominious. Hietzsche had not reached Schopenhauex ${ }^{0}$ s degree of clarity about it $5_{0}^{52}$ Ludovici believed pity provided a relief from envy, and reckoned of all modern thinkers. Schopenhauer, "probably the greatest psychologisto if not the greatest philosopher Europe has produced ${ }^{\text {m }}{ }^{53}$ got nearest to the truth in this matter, although he never elaborated this trutho Schopenhauer maintained: "WPity is the opposite of Envyoun 54 According to ludovici, Nietzsche's failure to discover the relationship between pity and envy, together fith his equally serious oversight concerning socrates, "constitute the two mejor blemishes which in my opinion max his philosophtcal outlook. 55

Although there are traits of Nietzachelsm in most of Ludovici's uritings I reiterate that it is not the object of this thesis to demonstrate it. Nevertheless ${ }_{0}$ it is a matter of importance and I think if essential to allude to some of the copious evidence that could be adduced to demonstrate this. In Ludovici's novel of 1918. Mansel Fellowes, we are told that the Nietzschean Dr. Mel Hado said an intellectual ${ }^{10}$ Yee to Life'pootholesale acceptance of Life ${ }^{1}$ s most cruel and most beautiful behests ${ }^{\prime \prime}$, and was but the spiritual counterpart to Mansel Fellowes's physical fight to achieve the consumation of her vital female destiny - marriage to Richard Latimero ${ }_{0}^{56}$ When Richard Latimer is converted to Catholicism by Fether Jevington and renounces Mansel Fellowe-s, DroMel Hado, was tooessentially a "philosopher of the open air and of Life" to ignore the appalling tragedy of it. ${ }^{57}$ In Ludovici!s Mans Descent from the Gods: or , the complete case against prohibition of 1921, the struggle is between ${ }^{0}$ Dionysians ${ }^{\circ}$ and ${ }^{\circ}$ Prometheans $0^{\circ} 58$ Similarlyo in Hudovici's novel of 1919, Catherine Dovie: the romance of a thrice-married lady we are told that the hero\% Jomes Gordon was busy in a very profound exposition of the Nietzschean doctrine of -eternal recurrence。 59 Although the latter are just a few of the innumerable instances where Ludovici obviously refers to Nietzscheism ${ }_{p}$ in the remainder of this thesis, there space and relevance permits. I shall indicate where the ideas of Ludovici and Nietzsche are contiguouso

Above 211, however, the most obvious adoption of Nietzscheism by Ludovici is to be found in his views on the vital role of art and culture. He reckoned Van Gogh and Gaugin, recelved no help from philosophy in regenerating art and culture ${ }_{0}$ and bringing it closer to Life, except from Nietzsche. It was not until Nietzsche's intensely vital doetrine of Mart for lifes sake was formulated that ＂the cause of art actually found a philosophical talker who thoroughly understood that he tas talking about．＂ 60 Hietzsche bad presaged a rejuveneted and purified culture ${ }^{61}$ that would promote uifo and not podontio knorledse ${ }_{6}^{62}$ Art is but a weapon in the service of mens ${ }^{0}$ will to powar． 63 Mans joy or pain in life is detemined by the artist who values life and the woxld for the ＂acclinatised herd ${ }^{64}$ Hietasche rould have us believe that the Dionysian artist＂cannot look out upon life without transfiguring ito hallowing it，blessing it，and making it appear better，bigger，and more beautiful．${ }^{10} 65$ For Ludovici。 Nietrsche saw the truth that art is not distinct from the values and conditions prevailing in the 66 It was Nietzsche ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{s}$ ambition，throughout his life，to regenerate European culture，and initially in Wagner he thought he had found the man to do $i t_{0}^{67}$ However，he realised that the regencration of German culture，of European culture，and the transvaluation of values thich would be necessary for regeneration， lay off the track of Wagnexism。 Judovici reckoned thet Nietescheg disavolal of Wagner was due to his realisation of the iruth that： > －othe principles of art are inextricably bound up with the lais of life，that anaesthetic dogma may therefore promote or depress all vital force ${ }_{0}$ and that a picture $e_{0}$ a symphonyo a poem or a statue，is just as capable of being pessimistic． anarchic 0 Christian or revolutionary，as a philosophy or a science is．

To speak of a certain class of music as being compatible with the decline of culture，therefore，was to Nietasche a perfectly warrantable association of ideas，and that is why，throughout his philosophy＂and Ludovici ${ }^{9} s_{0}$ so much stress is leid upon vital qesthetic considerations． 68 Hence Niotzsche ${ }^{8}$ s dismissal of Hagnerian music。 In Wagner ${ }^{0}$ s music． Nietzsche saw the promotion of decadence and degeneration． 69 ludovici egreed with Nietzsche that Wagner had supplied the＂heshish and morphien to conceal the dull ugliness of our civilisation 70 Only the classical artists of the mineteenth century ${ }_{0}$ such as Heine, Goethe, Stendhal and Gobineau, were conscious of what was wrong with them, and possessed the will and the strength to overcome their illnesso ${ }^{71}$ Wagneris romanticism just like Gothic architecture was the outcome of inner discord and weakness ${ }^{72}$ He was a "splendid romenticist" because of his inner disciplines ${ }^{3}$, and his success was due to the craving of the modern world for romanticists able to conceal the degeneracy that prevailed。 In a romanticist like Wagner "Iifeotheory and lifespractice" could not co-incide, whereas in a great leader lise Nietzsche they must. 74

Ludovici's most obvious avowal of Nietasche's vital ${ }^{\circ}$ aesthetic ${ }^{\circ}$ is to be found in his Nietzsche and Arto published by Constable in 1914. In the latter Ludovici claims that he strictly confines himself to Nietzsche ${ }^{\circ} s$ acsthetic 75 , and adopts it as the basis for a new, and vital, valuation of art ${ }_{0}^{76}$ He reckoned Nietzsche ${ }^{\circ}$ s works are full of the evidence of an artistic temperament that laid great stress upon the creative act as an alleviation of life: Mo could have been an atheist out of his lust to create? ${ }^{77}$ In attacking Wagner as the embodiment of romanticism, Nietzsche merely personified the movement to which he felt himself so fundamentally opposed. Ludovici conceived himself as continuing $M$ ictasche's task of asseiling romanticism 78 In Ludovici's novel of 1919, Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thricea married lady, Gerald Swynnerton recalls that James Gordon, Nietzschean and Egyptologist, pointed out the granite sculptures of the Egyption gallery in the British Museum, and they agreed that if the artists who

[^2]carved these classical masterpieces were to recur they would think it worthwhile again. ${ }^{79}$

For both Ludovici and Nietzsche the only criterion of good art is that which promotes life. The Nation received Ludovici's interpretation of Nietzsche's vital 'aesthetic' with unconcealed hostility, for confusing art with politics and life: "When Nietzsche, and Mr. Ludovici after him, speak of the danger that may come to life through art; they speak as philosophers and moralists, not as artists. ${ }^{180}$ Ludovici's adoption of Nietzsche's aesthetic vitalism provided the basis for his critic of modern art. He derided the democratic inclination of modern art. 81 Contemporary European art was just "the taste of the masses" and the artists themselves actually confirmed and submitted to this mob rule. ${ }^{82}$ Their pursuit of truth was indicative of the paralysis of will that had overtaken art. ${ }^{83}$ They were absolutely democratic and vulgar; ${ }^{84}$ like scientists they merely ascertained facts. 85 Ludovici thought that just as the Grand Rebellion in England was a matter of Roundheads and Cavaliers, of people who were Puritan and negative to life, against those who were Pagan and positive to life, the "Hundred Years" Rebellion in Art" also had its Roundheads and Cavaliers. Before the Counter-Reformation, Ludovici thought art was always understood to possess a vital meaning: "to mean practically life expressing herself, or a certain kind of life expressing its view of all life:" The artist was the advocate of life He received his brief direct from life, and his pleading had some direct relationship to 1ife. The effect of the Reformation and Protestantism was to separate art from life:

... For who doubts that the Impressionists, the Neo-Impressionists, the Post-Impressionists, the Futurists, the Cubists, the Synthesists, the Pointillistes, and their ancestors the Transcriptists, Naturalists, Pre-Raphaelites, etc., are anything else than the Puritanical Baptists and Amabaptists, Methodists, Wesleyan Methodists, Plymouth Brethen, Quakers, Unitarians, Presbyterians, and Congregationalists of a Grand Rebellion in art? ${ }^{86}$

Beneath all these anaemic artists concentration on mere technique only impoverished life spoke. 87 The artistic world concentrated its attention upon the palette and nature when it was human life that was crying out for a cure. They regarded art from the craftsman standpoint, "the proletariat of the studio", as a mere matter of technique, and continued along that line only in the discovery of ever never conventions for the rendering of impressionso ${ }^{88}$ The examples of the post-impressionists became a canon for a legion of mediocre people who merely immitated. Pot-boilers came into ascendancy who heralded the dissolution of art, "and their colour is the colour of decomposed tissues and of putrefyng corpses." 89 The people of taste, the artists, had abetted the triumph of ugliness by their inaction: "How many painters, sculptures, or Architects, have ever started even a militant movement against the abuses of a capitalistic, industrial, and commercial State?" The Eugenics movement was not one composed of artists, alarmed at the uglification of the race. Indeed $0_{0}$ artists did less than silently acquiesce in the tasteless innovations of industrialists and exploiters of mankind, they became commercial men themselves. 90

Ludovici believed the impressionists were quite mistaken in supposing that because high finish happened to be connected with the sterile painters of the Graeco-Roman school, that itwas therefore a quality to be wholly condemned. It ues this mistake of the improcsionists that Ludovici believed opened the sanctuary of art to all。 But, the cure was not to abolish finish as the impressionists had done. Rather: "The cure was to correct their scheme of life, or the scheme of life of their nation." Ludovici thought the mistake of making slight attention to finish had also been perpetrated in music, literature, and in architecture. 91 Above all, Ludovici thought that rather than censure the anarchy of the cubists and futurists, condemnation would be much better spent on something much vaster - the "system", and of which the section of pictorial art was only a small and neglected parto ${ }^{92}$

The role allotted to the artist in modern society wes reprehensible。 The sincere and vital artist who undertool to probe the deep mystery of that particular part of life to which he was attracted by his individual taste and abilities was virtually foredoomed to dementia by the circumstances of his occupation：＂amid the racket and thunder of the crowded thoroughfare of modern life ${ }^{193}$ Not only did the artist have no place alotted to him but the very position he tried to conquer for himself was hedged round with petty obstacles and minor personalities 94 History did not necessarily＂place＂a man or even a whole age and give to them their proper level．Time frequently passed over those in silence who ought to have had a lasting claim upon the respect and appreciation of their fellows ${ }_{0}^{95}$ Ludovici thought this was especially likely to happen today when the world is largely governed by the commercial principle which places quantity before qualityo ${ }_{\circ}^{96}$

For Ludovici，the revolution in art of the nineteenth century had been the cause and consequence of this cormuption in art，which culminated in impressionism．The purpose of art was tacitly assumed to be to obtain as faithful a transcript of nature and reality as they were felt to be by anybody and everybody．Peasants，＂innocento and ＂unsophisticated＂，seemingly belonging to nature and not to tow or ＂artificial＂life，were included in the category nature，from which it was legitimate to make a transcript。 Whilst．in the category reality， cafe scenes ${ }_{0}$ scenes of tow life，glimpses ${ }^{9}$ behind the scenes ${ }^{\circ}$ provided their＂artificiality＂and＂unnaturalness＂were mitigated by a certain ＂character＂，were deemed as legitimate sources for transcxiption。 All of this was done not because the peasant or scenes of town life were linked up with any definite scheme of lifeg but，because。 all life passions，＂all life schemes were at an end＂，and anything was good enough for these artists，whose scepticism drove them to technique as their only refuge ${ }_{0}^{97}$ These preoccupetions usuxped the place of the rapidly venishing "subject in pictures. It was the lest vestige of an historical period in which men had been inspired to express their relationship to life by something higher and greater then both themselves and their art:

> ooo In faot, it had alseys flourished in periods when humity had known of a general directiono a general purpose in life, and of a scheme of life which geve their heartbeats and their breath some doeper meaning than they have at present.

The impressionists completely overlooked the truth that the deficiency of their academical contempories was of a scheme of 1 life and faith in life, and not of technique。 Their "artistic instincts" were not strong enough to make them see that the uninspired subject picture was the most poignant proof that could be found of the fact that mankind no longer possessed to any passionate degree, that which made the subject picture possible - a profound faith in something greater and more vital either than the artists themselves or their art, something which gave not only art, but also life, a purpose. 98 In abusing the degenerate subject picture, these innovators wero simply inveighing against a pathological symptomo. Mere matters of technique had usurped the place of higher and more vital aims. 100 The ecadenic school was bankrupt, lifeless; and exhausted. It no longer consisted of artists with an exalted ideal and the fire of creation in their bearts but of slavish immitators of the classic painters and sculptiors : ${ }_{0}^{101}$ Ludovici thought the impressionists were typical of both modern opportunism and democracy which had torn down every institution which is discredited, not mhrough any fault inherent in its nature ${ }_{0}$ but through those who mismanage it. whether it be aristocrecy, monarchy, or religion, instead of reconstituting and constructively restoring it. 102 He spoke of the "scattered and heterogeneous heaps of refuse ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ which constituted Westem aesthetics and the place of aesthetics in its civilisation: 103 No art-canons existed, and modern axt-criticism rested on no accepted rules and

The moment in history when the first fundemental blunder was mede in art was about 1860 in France, the advent of the first impressionists. The opportunity to effect desirable reforms was obviously favourable: "for the classic conventions of the Academiciens had certainly lost touch with Life, and they included many timemserving mercenaries destitute of genius." But the impressionists could not effect 2 cure as they had not made a correct diagnosis. They mistook a symptom for a cause and imagined that the shorteomings of the Academicians ${ }^{0}$ technique were the sole ropt. of the trouble. Fere changes in technique could neither improve inspiration nor create artistic passion where both were defective ${ }_{0}^{105}$ Admittedly, the first impressionists gave the artist the technical equipment to be more arresting and convincing than theretofore" "better able to pass on to the beholder at least some of the vital spark received by his closer touch with Clature。" But, there gradually developed a fanaticism in $_{0}$ connection with technical changes alone ${ }_{0}$ which superceded all vital considerations. These changes were foolishly expected to regenerate art overnight:
o.owhether the human material to hand were or were not more gifted than that which had produced the Academicians of the classic convention, or whether or not our present world, Life, Faith in Life, and the Love of Humanity, still had the potency to procure adequate inspiration for the artist. 106

The impressionist doctrine that the subject did not matter gave a permanent licence to subjectivity in art - for no ultimate reference existed. This ill considered dismissal of the 'subject' in art culminated in modern abstract art。 ${ }^{107}$

Ludovici thought Kant's reckless statenent in his Kritik Dox Urteilskraft that the subject should be disregaxded in assessing a. work of art $\mathrm{a}_{\mathrm{p}}$ and only its design or composition should be considered, was of supreme importance in the genesis of abstract arto 108

Unfortunately，Kant was followed by Hegel and Schopenhauex，who were responsible for a grossly exaggerated valuation of music． 109 Hegel emphasised that music was＂wholly abstract＂end amore＂intello ectual＂means of approach to human feelingo ${ }^{110}$ Whilst Schopenhauer claimed that music＂represented the very essense of Life。＂ 111

Iudovici thought the regrettable effect of the above was to fill all aesthetes ${ }^{0}$ minds with a veneration for art of a non－representational and romantic kind．Whereas，the artist should contemplate some aspect of life and represent it。 ${ }^{112}$

Ludovici thought the early origins of the movement which culminated in the acceptance of abstract art in England，are to be sought in the peculiarities and careers of Walter Pater，Oscar Wilde ${ }_{0}$ and James MacNeill Whistler．Walter Pater exhortedgraphic artists to try in their works to approximate their methods and manner to those of music and emphasise the total negligibility of the subject ${ }_{0}$ and the supreme importance of the composition and arrangemento ${ }^{113}$ There was only one man in England $\alpha_{0}$ courageous and aesthetically exudite enough to expose the＂Puritan aesthetics＂of Pater，Wilde and Whistler，and that was Ruskin。 However，he failed the cause of vital arto ${ }^{114}$ according to Ludovici，we have only to read Whistler＇s Ten O＇Clock in order to see how he slavishly repeated all Waiter Pater＇s aesthetic doctrine to a startled audience，which included Ludovici＇s＂poor infetuated father ${ }^{19}{ }_{0}^{115}$

Ludovici ${ }^{9}$ s reaction to the collection of Whistler ${ }^{9}$ s paintings at the Tate Gallery in 1912 was one of depression and fatigue to their ＂sordid lack of life，health，and colour：by their black and white austerity，like the garb of Charles the First＇s murderers．＂Whistler＇s greys poured from his palette with all the profusion of a＂tropical Puritanism＂。 If Kant had finished what Luther had begun then，for Ludovici，Whistler had put the coping stone upon the morbid edifice of Puritanical axto One did not require to have read Mro Whistlex's Ton OClocko in which he proscribes arit from life, but just a little vitality and one hour in Room No. 5 at the Tate Gallery, to reach the same conclusion es udovici about Whistler ${ }^{0}$ s impressionism:

> The breath and blood that issue from these grey abysses is the foetid breath of impoverished life, the weak blood of the anaemic patiento The love that is revealed in these pictures is the only love that is left to the Puritan - the love of things that can be contemplated vithout desire or interost (of the senses). the love of things that lure one neither to life now to any form of love.

In lifting pictorial art into the undefiled realm of symphonic music Whistler discovered the picture for Puritanismo He would have been better advised to have explained his Kantian aesthetic to Puritans rather than to artistso ${ }_{0}^{196}$ Wistler, like the earlier impressionists and secessionists from the Academy, far from seeing that the chaos of values and the decline of man had led to the decline of arto proceeded not only to concentrate upon technique, but proclaimed that the subject in a picture or sculpture did not matter. Ludovici was not suprised that among the secessionists of the impressionist period there should bave been found thistler, an American, whose Puritanical treditions inclined him wholeheartedly to embrace the new negative art creed. He exalted variegated schemes of blacks and greys to the rank of subjects in his pictures. 117 Just as the impressionists in France of the latter half of the nineteenth century and Schopenheuex $x_{0}$ triumphed due to the pessimism which no longer wished to be reminded of man and life ${ }_{0}$ so the success of Whistler in England was due to the latent Puxitanism of his outlook, and the Puritanism of those to whom he appoaled. 118 As it was unlikely that Thistler, the American Puritan, had ever read Kant, the German Puritan Ludovici attributed their common aesthetic doctrines to their "Scottish blood"。119 Their reckless fiats opened the way to the extrovagances of postoimpressionism cubism $_{0}$ futurism and the defient obscurities of abstract peinting. 120

Ludavici ${ }^{1}$ s tirade against the artistic establishment is most evident in his pseudonymous novel of 1939. Poet's Trumpeter. In the latter, the Society for the Study of English Verse, to Which IIr. Thomas Seftonosmith, the hero, submits his poetry, is led by a Mr. Danethorpe. Ho is described as a successfully retired businessman ${ }_{p}$ who $\mathcal{O}_{2}$ because he was raised to a position of safety, opulence and pover by the age, believed in its every taste and judgement. ${ }^{121}$ Also in the Society is a journalist. Sebastion Squeczo. who had learnt prosody at University and mocked Sefton-Smith for his lack of scholarship. Sefton-Smith had been no more than a postman, and his wilful ignorance of prosody compounded the jealosy of his rivals, who thought his chances of success should be nil 122 Professor Bevington, an admirer of Sefton-Smith, attributes the latters dismissal by the artistic establishment to its liberalism and romanticism:

> For the last three centuries we have been building up an authority for science' he replied oand have built up none for art! It has been left to the charlatans and astrologers, just as science was, when three centuries ago we rescued her. and that is why in art today no-one can ray this is so and thet is so, or why nobody is believed when he says such things. 8123

The aspiring poet's son and daughter, Ivy and Jack, could barely be civil to him ${ }^{124}$, whilst his sister-in-las nad her husband, Mr. Edward Rivctt, who had acquired great wealth and was utterly unintellectualo pitied Mr. Sefton-Smitho ${ }^{125}$ Mr. Danethorpe ${ }_{p}$ a prominent member of The Society for the Study of English Verse ${ }_{0}$ despite his condemnation of socialism and favour of awholly uncontrolled individualism of which he imagined himself a prime product, was one of the most humble puppets of mess suggestion. ${ }^{126}$ Drawing largely upon bis friend's eminent and scholarly criticism, Dr. Lenyardhistler of Oxford, he conceded that there was something in SeftonoSmith"s poetry - "some feeling for Naturo ${ }_{8}$ some deeper consciousness of the power behind phenomena ${ }^{\text {s }}$ However, he was afraid that the frequency of strained rhymes, the absence of enjambiments，the heavy rhytha，and the constant use of everyday phraseology，made the whole read little better than rhymed prose。 He expressed his，or rather Landyardowistler＇s，disaproval of the lack of romanticism in SeftonoSmith＇s poetry．${ }^{127}$ To which Mro．Seftonmsmith tinidly inquired if whether or not Fir．Danethorpe ${ }^{\circ}$ s romantic aesthetic would exclude Poe and Baudelaire．He replied that Poe and Baudelaire raise us to 199 those lofty altitudes where the joy over existence assumes a pure，ethereal foxm not to be confounded with a grosser emotion of a lower plane。＂128 Sefton－ Smith，on the other hand，relied on feeling rather than rules，when criticising another＇s poetry。 ${ }_{0}^{129}$

Ludovici confused his artistic，political and moral categories．He traced the deterioration of art to the degeneracy of man：

> oooving to the prevalence of sickness, debility and nervous exhaustion, there is no longer any lofty criterion concerning what is, and what is not, necessary, inevitable and desirable in art production. Iracsibility, as I pointed out 15 years ago [Anthony Mario Ludovici, Mietzsche and Art, (London: Constable, 1911)], but which only recently I have learnt to ascribe to fauldy bodily coordination, by givine the modern generation a sense of injury and a general lack of well being, causes everyone to feel that he has isomething to express. 130

From its inception his diagrosis of the condition of art was Nietzschean．
He believed that if everybody had a right to every judgeint and every joyo if a certain slavish truthfulness to nature and reality had wrecked higher aspirations；it was because the fundamental principles of christianity were no longer latent but active and potent in our midst．${ }^{131}$ For Protestantism was neither more no less than a general rebellion against all authorityo ${ }_{0}^{132}$ The Holy Catholic Church，by its rigorous discipline and firm establishment upon hierarchical principles． suppressed for a while the overweening temper of christianity，and all claims of individual thought and judgement．${ }^{133}$ However，according to Ludovici three doctrines detrimental to art and culture were to burst forth through the impact of Martin Luther and the Reformation which Nietzsche had identified as the cause of the paralysis of will in Europe：${ }^{134}$ They were：equality：the general depravity of human nature； an absolute truth which could be made conmon to allo 135 They wore 136 fatal to the artist who demanded obedience and procured reverence． Art should have waged the most forcible opposition to liberalism．${ }^{137}$ However ${ }_{0}$ once the spirit of individual liberty and judgement had invaded that department of life which heretofore had been most sacred． religion，it was bound to enter and dofile less sacred sanctuaries． 138 The insignificant majority got more freedom than was good for them Whilst the noble minority，the artists，were deprived of their birth right： 139 The attitude of the Gnristian ideal to Life。 to the body，and the world was an entirely negative one。 The classic feature and form of body surely and permenently vanished from the wall decorations of the fourth，fifth and sixth centuries $A_{0} D_{\circ}$ ，and the Christian＂type？ asserted itself with ever greater assurance．${ }^{140}$ For Ludovicig beauty and voluptuousness，smoothness and charm were very naturally regarded With suspicion by the promoters of the Christian ideal：＂for beauty． voluptuousness and．shapeliness lure back to Life，lure back to the flesh．and ultimately back to the body。＂ 141 He thought the ugliness of Gothic style lay in its contempt of the body and of Life。 142

In Ludovici ${ }^{\text {s }}$ s novel of 1922 ．The Goddess that Grew Up，Gyril Basheield Streeter prefers the Latin to the German school of music．The melody of the Latin school of music，is the symbolic musical representation of one voiceabove the many，the crowd：${ }_{0}^{143 \text { ；whilst the German school of }}$ music is recognised by the rule of harmony，which is the overwhomiag of the one voice by the crowd．Modern music，which is chiefly German music，rises historically with the Protestant Reformation，the proclomation of the principle of democratic controls．However L （tin music．reaches back to the unique reign of authority in Europe－to purely

Catholic times ${ }_{0}^{144}$

The graphic arts are。for Ludovici, dependent art. Today, the axtist can turn nowhere to find the ${ }^{\circ}$ type ${ }^{\circ}$ worthy of his pictorial advocacy ${ }^{145}$ In Ludovici's novel of 1919. Catherine Doyler The Romance of a thriceomarried lady, Gerald Swymorton recounts to Knowles a conversation he had with James Gordon. Egyptologist b $_{0}$ in the British Museum. James Gordon had inquired if whether or not Gerald Swynerton had realised that museums are confessions of yeakness. They are but the signs of our present incompetence and impotence. He felt weak and insignificant as he valked through the Elgin room. If modern men were not degenerate they would have pounded these relics into a pulp, and used it as a mortar for braver things, for mesterpieces of their own。 But they did not have the requisite confidence in themselves. The Renaissance artists destroyed the monuments of old Rome, Mehenet Ali robbed the pyramids to build his magnificent mosques. but:
$0.00^{010} 0$.ove must have museums, because, although we are over 500 millions of living creatures in Europe today, our culture is as dead as these stones, and can create nothing: because in our heart of hearts we are convinced that we are a pack of incompetent fools! in 146

Gerald Suynnerton further recounts to Knovles his agreement with James Gordon's adverse opinion of the Cothic, but he otill folt it superior to anything his age could produce. ${ }^{147}$

For Ludovici, axt products reveal the condition of the Society in which they are produced ${ }_{0}^{148}$ He thought there were two explanations of the stultification of acedemic art from 1860: "(a) The fact thet the modern men of Europe had ceased to be inspiring, and (b) the chaos of valueso. 149 Man's expression in art is alvays the externalisation of whet is in himo ${ }^{150}$ The prohibitive ugliness of modern poetryo graphic and plastic arts, was "due to the scarecrow ugliness of our poets, artists $\boldsymbol{o}_{0}$ sculptors and musicianso ${ }^{80} 91$ We cannot hope to repeet what happened in art, literature, exchitecture, interior decoration and fumiture design in the century or more that followed the birth of Thomas Hood'c grandfather who was an agrictultural labourer. ${ }^{152}$ It is idie to expect anything like that brice English Renaissanco to spring again from Englend's 'proletariaing which was so well bred that the Spaniards were aghast at the dentition of Wellington ${ }^{\circ}$ s soldiers:

In vain can we hope for any feats remotely equivalent to the Architectural and Architectural Work of the Adams Brothers, the Furniture of artists like Sheraton and Chippendale, and the poetry of such labourers grandsons an Burns and Thomas Hood. 153

This, for Ludovici, was the oversight of the impressionists. They mistook the nature of the plague of the Academicians, which was really the degeneracy of man. From arts bankruptcy we may infer the degeneracy of men, they had ceased to be inspiring. ${ }^{154}$. At a time when the chaos of values and the degeneracy of the modern European made a lofty axt tendency impossible , impressionists, $_{0}$ who thought themselves the only hope of the art world, concentrated upon problems of technique ${ }_{0}^{155}$ They did not graze the surface of the actual cause of the trouble, which was still operating: We still have the cheos of values, only intensified; and we still have degenerate manhood, but more degenexate。" ${ }^{156}$ Their exaltation of light, atmosphere, colnur harmonies and mere patterms to the rank of subjects in their pictures pleased the Puritan and pessimist, but revolted those who wanted life ${ }_{0}^{157}$. They did not realise the truth that the salvation of art and the salvation of humanity are identical as problems ${ }^{158}$

Another cause of the degeneration of art that Ludovici, and Nietzsche. denegrated, was science and rationalism which, they believed, pursued the same ideals as Christianity: Universal libertyand equality: devotion to the truth that can be made common to all; the depression of the value and dignity of mano ${ }^{859}$ The empiricists，Frencis Bacon．Hobbes and Locke，Here among thesirst by their teaching， to level a decisive blow at the man who knows and who is the measure of all things，the artisto they reduced all knowledge to that which can be nade immediately the experience of ell． 160 Liberals；from Benthan to John Stuart Mill and Sidgwick，by，taking the greatest number as their norm，ably reflected the Christian principle of the equality of souls in their works ${ }_{9}$ and drew their values from mediocrity，which is constantly in need of values dram from supermediocrity for $_{0}$ its love of life and reconciliation with drabby reality． 161 Ludovici saw in the rise of science the collapse of human wisdom．For it is humanity＇s axtists the most sensitive men of the commuity，those art is the crystalised herbinger of facts that will become patent to all in the concrete world of politics and national lifé ${ }^{162}$ Ludovici lamented that when suffering and grave physical degeneration arise in the＂Art of Life＂it is the scientist Who is called upon to advise in our＂Pronethean civilisation＇。 who has to take the place of the artist，of the man who knows． 163 The scientist ${ }_{0}$ by aiming at a general trath for all。 depresses Life ${ }^{164}$ ：

If the world grows ugly，and Life loses her bloom：
if all winds are ill winds，and the sunshine grows sickly and pale；if we turn our eyes dubiously about us，and begin to question the justification of our eristence，we may bequite certain that this man the realist，and his type，axe in the ascendency，and that he it is who is stamping his fist upon our millenium。 165

The devotea of truth depreciates Life。 There are necessary＂grey studies＂to be mede，necessary uglinesses to be described，but they should be kept within the four walls of a laboratory，until the time comes when，by their collective meang，man can be raised and not depressed by them．Science should work behind the scenes of tife it should not promalgate the values concerning life，but be the modest hand maiden of art ${ }^{166}$

Following Nietzsche，Ludovici thought Christianity and science reached their zenith in the last half of the nineteenth centuryo and culminated in a discovery which infected the whole atmosphere of Burope：The evolutionary hypothesis of Darsin and Spencer．${ }^{167}$ A more depressing conception could not have been conceived。 ${ }^{168}$ It could become the common possession of everybody。 ${ }^{169}$ In its description of the prime motor of life as a struggle for existence，and above all in its unprincipled optimism ${ }_{0}$ it bore the indelible stamp of shallow－ ness and vulgarity！${ }^{170}$ If becoming were a reliable hypothesis ${ }_{0}$ it must be supported by different principlesfromthose of the Darvinian schools and Nietzsche was the first to sketch these different principles： 171 Ludovici thought that when we try to discover the influence of Christianity and science upon the world，＂we wonder not so much why Art is bad，but why Art has survived at all．＂ 172

All Ludovici＇s denigration of contempory art is underpinned by the conviction thet it has become divorced from life．romantic． Modern art is remote from experience，fantastic，unpractical，dreamy Grandeur or picturesqueness or passion or irregular beauty have been preferred to finish and proportion．It is unreal，subjective， and fabricated。 Under the term＂abstract art＂we are invited to cxpoct and accopt pictorial productions quite dovoid of any specific content．meaningless in their message，and consisting simply of arrangements of arbitrary and unintelligible forms presented in a riot of colours having no relevance to the form in question．Moderm artists are independent of rules for the execution of their works， Whether of observationdraughmanship，or colour teohnique，and are free to produce wholly indecipherable dispositions of forms and colours，which have no greater significance than those to be found in carpets，wallppapers，tartans，and the like．${ }^{173}$ Modern art romanticallybanishedall representation of such natural products as bore Wietzsche's ${ }^{1}$ will to power ${ }^{0}$ - and in fact every aspect of life。 Indeed, abstract art threatened to eliminate all trace of life ${ }^{174}$

Ludovici believed the delight which the Englishman feels at the sight of an uncouth landscape, tangled brushrood, bracken, brambles and rocks, has a moral and not an eesthetic valuation behind it: "It is a delight in the presence of chaos, of anarchy, or over a lack of restraint, design or purpose " A delight in the very reverse of the pillars of culture and civilisation - authorityo ${ }^{175}$ Following Nietzsche closely, Ludovici thought he knew of the conditions associated with romanticism, that which is "fantastically different from reality". These conditions are to be found in democracy thich is conducive to their cultivation, they are: The right of selfo assertion granted to everybody, and the consequent deterioration of the interpretation of life owing to the fact that the function of interpretation is claimed by mediocrity; the belief in a ceneral truth which can be made common to all; a democratic dislike of recognising the mark or stamp of any particular human power in the things interpreted。 ${ }^{176}$ If art: is created by "hunger" it is likely to be either true to nature, uglier than nature, or absurdly unatural. The first is the product of the ordinary man, the second the product of that man below mediocrity and the third the outcome of the sufferer:

> oowho wishes to reak his revenge on all that thrives, and is beautiful and happy, and which bids him weave fantastic worlds of his owm away from this one, where people of his calibre can forget their wretched ailments and evil humours and wallow in their own feverish nightmares of overstrained, palpitating and neurasthenic yearnings.

Ludovici, again following Nietzsche, called the first "poverty realism or Police Art"; the second, pessimism and incompetentart; the third, romanticismo ${ }^{177}$ Romanticisms fundamental features are its worship of the abstract principle of liberty, enarchy and the absence of culture

Which rude nature exemplifies on all sides: and it was a moral or liberal spirit that animated it. whether in Rousseau or his followers: ${ }^{178}$ Modern romanticism could not bear the "fierce light of an art that is intimate with Life and inseparable from Lixeon ${ }^{179}$ It vas not an artist who first said that mountains and rugged scenery were beautiful. It was Rousseau. 180 Ludovici associated romanticism With "vagueness, looseness of thought, a tendancy to a nonotragic super-mundane outlook, sentimentality and liberalismon ${ }^{181}$

To the romanticism of modern art Ludovici contrasted the classically real. He desired fidelity of representation, truth of nature ${ }_{8}$ insistence upon details: the showing of life as it is without glossing over what is ugly or beautiful。 Art and culture should be life like, realistic, true to nature. He maintained that the graphic arts, from the beginning of civilisation and even before it in late barbaric times, had always been representative. Their very raison detre, their aim and function, had been to register and perpetuate the real. ${ }^{182}$ In Ludovici's novel of 1918, Mansel Felloves, Richard Latimer ${ }_{0}$ after divesting most of his didactic in the writing of text books, turns his hand to fiction ${ }_{0}$ and determines to conquer the stage-loving public with realist plays ${ }^{\text {p }}$ "unmarred by the psychological and scientific excrescences of a selfoconscious school of neurasthemics." ${ }^{183}$ Dr。 Melhado, Richard Latimer's Nietzschean mentor, complements him on his choice. Realist drama is the medium of expression that demands the most restraints, ${ }^{109}$ the most tyramical lews ${ }^{0 n} 0_{0}$ and does not attract female aspirants ${ }^{184}$ Later in the novelo when in France, Richard Latimer discems his classical ideal in French histrionic arto which uplifts him. He felt that, Iike the language of France, with its lack of the tonic accent and its dependency on quantity for emphasis and rhythmo the French drama was the only classical thing the world had seen since the decline of Hellas: Me used to point out to

Frenchmen that their language was the only guide we now possess to the pronunciation of classical languageo 185

Ludovici claimed to adhere with Nietzscho in regarding classical realiom as the means of luxing nen to life。 186 He thoughto in Nietzsche ${ }^{\prime} \mathrm{s}$ ，and his om view，that romanticism could have no place in art。 it suggests something that is not real．The artist＇s view of the world should be＂extremely real＂，it should depict life in all its horrors and beauties．Only the classical artist can face and place tragedy whereas the non－classical mind flees from life in all its powerful manifestations to＂the romantic and the wildly fantastic ${ }_{0}^{18}{ }_{0}^{187}$

The impressionists ${ }_{0}$ instead of pursuing art for arts sake，should have agitated for a closer relationship to life，and formed＂the nucleus of a new party wishing earnestly to regenerate and re－vitalise art by connecting it once more with the highest form of life－man himself． 188 Quality art is that which seeks its subjects more living and nearer to life，than those of romanticisn 189 It should be the constant endeavour of the classic artist to make his expression of life as adequate as possible to life itself．He should bo forcvor striving to attain to a high degree of finish which will yield the closest approximation to the vigour of his original conception．${ }^{190}$

In Ludovici＇s novel of 1923 ．French Beans，the hero，Andre de Loudon could not read modern novels；they struck him as being too momantic． Reading Montesquieu＇s Lottres Persanes，hovever，he was transported back again into the atmosphere he loved most－＂the masculine atmosphere of pre－Rousseauesque Europe。＂191 In Ludovici＇s pseudonymous novel of 1939．Poets Trumpetero we are told that Serton－Snith＇s poetry was not ＂all bubbling brooks，frarbling birds and smiling valleys＂。 but incorpoxated all the features of $1 \mathrm{ife} \mathrm{o}_{0}^{192}$

Most importantly it is the principles of classical realism which are most lifealike and should，therefore，according to Ludovicio be the principles of conservatism。 This is found most explicitly in Ludovici＇s $\triangle$ Defonce of Conservatism the second chapter of which is called＂Conservatism and Realismo＂ 193 Classic craftsmen set about their work on the elementary principle that nothing lasting can be produced if those tho produce it have no sense for qualityo Permanence，which was the aim of Greece and Rome，was achieved to the extent to which this principle was observed． 194 For Conservatives it is of importance to observe the productions of the classical world， Whether in thought or material things as they are concerned with permanence。 Judovici defines the classic as that which is realo in the sense that it is based on eternal laws．That which survives must bo real as it depends on nothing transitory or fantastic．Thus，in material productions ${ }_{0}$ the building which depends ${ }_{p}$ as the classic building does ${ }_{0}$ wholly upon the eternal law of grevityo is real in the sense that the principle on which it is constructed is true for all time？ 195 Likewise，in the grandfather clock man has discovered a time piece Which，for relative permanence，must excel the bracket olock for all time Because the grandfather clock depends on two eternal lawso gravity and the pendulum，for which it can depend for its durability： Whereas the bracket clock depends on only one eternal law－that of the pendulum．In the bracket clock，in which the action of gravitation is supplanted by a spring whose resiliance is ephemeral，＂man has discovered something less permanent，less real。 less classic than the grandfather clock．＂ 196 Ludovici also claimed to be able to trace the same clessic principle in the bistory of thought。 classic or realist thought is that which survives because it is in harmony with some eternal lew of the human mind．He thought Acsop＇s fables are eternally valid：some of Pluto ${ }^{\circ}$ s and Aristotlo ${ }^{\circ}$ s writings． especially the eighth book of The Republic；and the same might be said of much that Homer．Aristophaneg．Horace，and Tacitus， seid ard urote。 Similarly Aristotle ${ }^{\circ}$ a poetics contain a canon for dramatic poetry which can never be surpassed for its psychological analyesso In that which is classic we may expect to discover the reality that has secured its permanence，and that reality will be the eternal lem which it exemplifies and applieso＂Clessicism is thus realism o the profoundest realism（with quality of matter， expressiong material and treatment always understood in its concrete examples）＂Since Conservatists are concerned about the problem of permanence，they must be both classicists and realists． 197

Ludovici，in his A Defence of Conservatismo opposes classical realism to romanticism the creation of the Middle Ages and Christianity，when mon vas trying to achieve an impossible compromise between life and a religion which might have been addressed to disembodied spiritso The Roman world $d_{0}$ during the first four centuries of our eras in attempting to carry out these reats．＂had gone almost mad＂．The Holy Catholic Church，by reinterpreting her doctrine less ascetically could only assuege and not eliminate the radicel conflict between the Christian ideal and＂the life of this world＂． 198 The expression of the civilisation created by this conflict between the Church and Life was romanticism。 199

Its romanticism consisted in the fantastic flights to which the attempt to reconcile the life of the real world and the ＂life＂indicated by the ideals of the Church necesserily led． 200 Bren though it was superceded and died，its influence，and the elements which gave rise to it have not disappeared from our midst： oostrainedo unreal。 fantastic psychology is still a factor in our midst：it still colours the speculations of politiciens and sociologists；and even in its modern garb this Romanticism can be recognised for what it is o that is to say，something unreal，the antithesis of Classicism or realism． 20

In the graphic arts a Ludovici had shom elsewhere; be thought it possible to irace all through the early and later Middle Ages the influence of the same fantastic conflict. The body of man was transformed by degrees into the eccentric ${ }^{\text {type? that seemed }}$ compatible with the unvorldy ideal of asceticism. She Gothic figure became ever more and more tenuous, more emaciated, and ever more morbid. The ephemeralness of this non-vital "type" expresses a fantastic conflict between the permanent and the impermanent. the real and the unreal. It was ${ }_{0}$ however ${ }_{0}$ in the architecture of the period that Ludovici thought the equation "Unreal - Romantic a Impermanent". finds its most convincing expression ${ }_{0}^{202}$ Romanticism ${ }_{9}$ and its fantastic ideal, were crystalised in the "fantastic architectural feats" of the Gothic edifice. ${ }_{0}^{203}$ Liberalism could also be traced in the history of thought, according to Ludovici, to the influence of the romantic mentalityo It is the unreality, the ultimate impracticability of the fundamental principles of liberalism, their ignorance of eternal laws, that makes liberalism romantic.

The conservative, on the other hand, according to Ludovici; is a realist in thought and action, he finds the only truth to be that of life: The classical truth of life is hierarchy, which cannot be squared with any unreal notions about human equality. Thus, the conservative is a supporter of order $r_{0}$ subordination, authority and discipline. He believes in time and its relation to quality, and vice versa. He does not build on the romantic idea that greatness of any sort is independent of causation. He organises society on lines in which time and quality can work their reciprocal effects in human beings and in things. 204 And, being a realist, the conservative is averse to popular control, because he cannot believe that everybody is endowed with the necessary judgement to decide what is in his best interesto ${ }_{0}^{205}$

BAnthony Mario Ludovicio Nietzsche and Art, (London: Constable, 1911) $\mathrm{pp}_{0} 176-183$.

Ludovici desired a ${ }^{0}$ militant realism0 ${ }^{206}$ which would overcome anarchy and cheos by simplification, adjustment, and transfiguration ${ }_{0}^{207}$ It would be of a kind which is forced upon the powerful classical artist who, in a world upholding values other than his own is obliged to bring forward his ideals with such a preponderance of characteristic features as would seem almost to represent a transcript of realityo ${ }_{0}^{208}$

In Ludovici's novel of 1919, Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thrice married lady, we are informed that the Egyptologist, James Gordon, lived for a revival of Egyption classicismo ${ }_{0}^{209}$ Whilst, in Ludovici's novel of 1920. Too Old for Dolls, Lord Henry Highbarn assexts to the company he is addressing that they should disabuse their minds of the idea that poetry is romantic. ${ }^{210}$ Poetry!s most important characteristic is that it adopts a mnemonic form, which conduces to remembering "Pimportant, vital things ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{m}_{0}^{211}$ A man who casts his thoughts or his emotions into a poetical or mnemonic form, implies that he is dealing with thoughts or emotions thet are important or vital enough to be remembered. Only romanticists have neglected this truth:

> TThe works of your Wordsworths, your Tennysons, your Brownings, your Mathew Arnolds cried lord Henry above the noise, might be distilled down to one quaxter of their bull and nothing would be losto 212

Ludovici desired that art be entirely unassailable from the strictest realism, in order to make it quite plausible and true to life。 ${ }^{213}$

However $r_{0}$ Ludovici did not merely desire a realism that would be true to life－it was to be of vital importance in life。 In his Mietzsche and Axt，he says art should raise the value of Life for mens ${ }^{214}$ The soul of man rises or ralls according to the nobility or baseness of the meaning which he himself puts into life：＂And just as．in this matter，he may be his own regenerator，so，also， may he be his orm assassin．${ }^{2} 215$ Ludovici thought that Nietzsche＇s realisation that life must be valued was the recognition of a ＂biological need＂ 216 All humanity，in the pellemell of becoming， cried out for a meaning，interpretation，and scheme ${ }_{0}$ that would make Life their property．Life could only be made possible when it had． been vitally ordered and arranged $d_{0}^{217}$ It was humanity＇s artists who gave Life a human meaning in order to subordinate it to man＇s power：${ }^{218}$ The vital artist snatches a comer of Life from the eternal flux and torrent of all things into decay or death，and carves it in an unchanging form for the layman，in spite of a world of becoming ${ }_{0}^{219}$ Just as the musician cries＇Time：＇to the cacophonous medley of natural sounds that pour into his orm，and assembles them rythmically， so the graphic artist cries＇Times＇to the incessant and keleidoscopic procession of things from birth to death，and places in the layman＇s arms the eternalised image of Life ${ }_{o}^{220}$

[^3]Thus, in Attica of the fifth century $B C_{8}$ where many foreign slavea were to be counted among the population, the idee that beauty was a relative term first occurred to the ${ }^{0}$ talker${ }^{0}$ socrateso ${ }^{223}$ The vitel artist should depict life, his people, their regulexity of form and feature, Which is indicative of a certain regular mode of life。 and in so doing affim the vital values of his people. ${ }^{224}$ But。 before art for the sake of Life can be discovered man $_{0}$ the highest object of art must be regenerated ${ }_{\circ}^{225}$

Art, according to Ludovici and Nietzsche, had only been divorced from Life during the Christian era. In the early Christian paintings of the catacombs the Saviour was depicted with all the beauties and charms of the classical god or hero, whether as a Hermes, an Apollo. or an Orpheus ${ }_{\circ}^{226}$ But, by the seventh century, the greatest paradox the world had ever seen, a god on a cxoss in his death agony; was portrayed for man's eyes to beholda ${ }^{227}$ Such, for Ludovici is the vital reaction of art on Life, that as Westerm Europe received its religion and its ideal 'type' from Christian-Roman art, we should not be surprised:

> ooif today, in our ball-rooms and drawing-rooms we are often confronted with tenuous, flame=like swan-neck creatures, that recall Bume Jones, Botticelli, Duccio and Segne to our minds, we know to which values these slender people owe their slender, heaven-aspiring stature and their long sensitive fingers. 228

The clustered pillars of Gothic churches and cathedrals volatilize mass and volume, as though they have been spiritualised and dissipated. They are the "germ" of Protestantism in stoneo. ${ }^{229}$ Gothic architecture's ugliness lies in its contempt of life and the bodyo 230 We should not even expect too much of the Renaissance, which vas nothing more nor less than man's convalescence; after an illness that had lasted centuries ${ }^{231}$ : "To expect the recovering invalids to impart something of themselves to Life。 to enrich her and to transfigure her ${ }_{9}$ would be to expect the impossibleoro 232

By contrast，the Greeks＇classical conception of beauty acknowledged that life was a blessing to which it was vorthwhile to be seduced in the bloom of Hellenic art，from the sixth century $\mathrm{BG}_{0}$ to two distinct races of men who strove for mastership in Greece ${ }_{\circ}^{234} \mathrm{He}$ attributed the fall of Greece to the triumph of that race with the lethal＇ertowill＇。235 Ludovici also attributed the perfection of Egyption clessicism to the fact that in the days of King Khophren they were racially pure，thanks to their isolated position on the Delta of the Nile。 236 He interpreted the statue of King Khophren as the apotheosis of a＂type＂which was the product of the vital values of his people．${ }^{237}$ Similarly，adopting Nietzsche＇s＇aesthetic ${ }^{\circ}$ vitalism，Ludovici reckoned that modern art could not be restored until the race had been purified：${ }_{0}^{238}$ A man＇s＂taste＂is in the roots of his constitution： 239

Claiming to have followed the principles of Nietzsche＇s aesthetic exclusively，Ludovici reckoned the great need was for a definite canon and statement as to the vital purpose of art in Lifo：the establishment of an order of rank among tastes＂．The latter would permit the opportunity of exercising some choice in Lifes A choice of＇type＇in manhood；a choice of vital values ${ }_{0}^{240}$

Art and life react upon each other． 241 A picture，like a sonneto like a sonnata，and like a statue，should claim the attention of those who are most vitally concerned with Life and humanity：＂every breath of Art comes from the lungs of tife herself $\rho_{2}$ and is full of indications as to her condition．${ }^{10} 242$ This notion of the inter dependence of art and－Life，which Ludovici adopted from Nietasche。 is to be found throughout his works．In his A Defense of Aristocrecyo A text book for Tories he says beauty is essentially the regularity， symmetry and grace of figure which is gradually acquired by a stock pursuing for goneretions a regular，symmetricel existence undor the guidance of the particular vital values of the race。 ${ }^{243 \text { ．In the final }}$ chapter．＂That is Culture？＂he suggests that the object of dissila usioned conservatives should be a culture that will rear a racial elite。 It is a Nietzscheian culture，not＂idealistic and romantic＂。 But one that would allow conservatives to face all the good and evil of their choice，provided they get that they regard as good o life。 244 Adherence to this vital culture would restore beauty as a constant quality in the external world，and in the internal world of the emotions．as all one－sided rearing of＂squeamish ideals＂could only eliminate all greatness and character ${ }^{245}$ only a Nietzscheian culture could make life possible and desirable． 246

The greatest possible virtue of art is for it to be positive to life and particularly to human life： 247 The artist is the most intense manifestation of life：＂He knows what life，human life，wants in order to flourish，because he himself is a flourishing specimen of life，and his taste is life＇s taste，$"^{248}$ Tf a， 1 ，the artists painters were ablo to exercise their vital taste and power of selection among a population the size of modern England，England would have a periodical and authoritative statement from the men of vital taste in their country， as to who are the elite ${ }_{0}^{249}$ An important work of art is something in the nature of an amputation，a loss of blood from the artists life ${ }_{0}^{250}$ For Ludovici a beautiful poem is only that which cen be linked， ＂consciously or unconsciously＂0 with things which are desirable in humanity，or in a certain kind or part of humanity．All beauty，theno leads back to life，to human beauty，all ugliness is human uglineas．

No healthy people，according to Ludovici，has ever considered youth as ugly；because youth is the vital promise of human life and of a multiplication of human life。 Conversely，no healthy people has ever considered gangreneous limbs，or decay in any fom as beautiful：Pecause decay is the death of human life and the reduction of it．If it were not for the lethal notions of the＂beautiful consumptive＂and the＂captivating cripple＂ which are to be found in the works of romantic English writers． who hail from the over－Christianised north－west of Europe，the Eagenics Society would have been superfluous ${ }_{\circ}^{251}$

Art is of such vital importance to Ludovici that it is life herself looking upon her soul and her forms．It is life pronouncing her judgeent upon herself： oo．Where life is sick and impoverished，her voice． speaking through the inferior man condemns herself， and paints herself bloodless and dreary，probably with the sky above depicted in a lurid and mysteriously fascinating fasion，calculated to make the earth seem grey and gloomy in comparison．Where life is sound and exuberant，her voice，speaking through the sound man．p extolls herself and paints herself in bright． brave colours；which include even bright and brave colours for pain and the like．

The vital artist looks about him for that thing in life on which he can expend his passion to speak of life itselfo and life in its highest manifestation $-\operatorname{man}_{0}{ }^{252}$ The＂type＂most adequate for pictorial advocacy isthat which promises the most life，the biologically sound。 253

Aesthetic values find their place in life and the race。 In Iudovici＇s novel of 1919．Catherine Doyle：the romance of a thxice－married lady Gerald Swymerton describes the heroine，Catherine Doyle，as neither the woman of a picture by Rubens，nor the women of a Botticelli： ＂OThe first is the taste of the Jew the second of the Englishmano＂ Rather，she was more like the woman of a picture by Van Dyck，the ideal English woman of the Stuart period．${ }^{254}$ Indeed，so closely entwined is art with Life that Ludovici speaks，in his The False Assumptions of＂Democracy＂0 of aesthetic survival velues which he prefers to mere survival values．They would have made a higher and more lasting civilisation possible ${ }_{0}^{255}$ This notion recurs in Ludovici＇s fian＇s Dascent from the Gods．ore the complete case against prohibitiong In the latter，Ludovici maintains that each race of men must answer not merely the question of how it is to survive ${ }_{8}$ vital－survival－values，but how it is to suxvive in a desirable form ${ }_{0}$ aestheticosurvival－values ${ }_{\circ}^{256}$ The degeneracy of the population of industrial Europe was due according to Ludovici。 to their exclusive observation of vital－survival－values ${ }_{\circ}^{257}$ The only check on the＂Prometheans＇who led mankind dowhill to degeneration and death with their＇progress＇was the number of Nietzscheian＇Dionysians＇to oppose them。 ${ }^{258}{ }^{\text {D Dionysians＇would }}$ have carefully observed aesthetic survival values ${ }_{\circ}^{259}$

In Ludovici＇s novel of 1922．The Goddess that Grew Up，Peter Oliver was aghast at the novels and literary pictures of the day．They did not reflect the degenerate state of society as he knew ito ${ }^{260}$ If they had been true to life they might have afforded him some vital guidance in life as to the desirable wife：
$\ldots$ ．．．It is true that $t_{0}$ here and there，he lighted upon a novel in which illness was mentioned；but when this was so，it was always treated in a spirit so romentic and unreal，as to be represented as emobling，uplifting and purifying，－ in fact，to judge from the influence it was alleged to exert， as something almost desirable。 261

For Ludovici，the possession and expression of beauty should be made a part of national：life。 Beauty should be cultivated in the human body as a factor in a happy life ${ }^{262}$ The national life is so sensitive to culture that Ludovici claimed to be able to trace

Christianities bias in favour of abnormality in history of art to its influence on popular values and dysgenic mating。263

Culture，insofar as it is harmony ${ }^{\&}$ order，is the product of the race that in pure．Ludovici cited as evidence for this thesis that all earlier cultures arose in naturally or artifically confined areas．in islands like Creto，and Japan，peninsulas like India，Gxeece，and Italy，naturally enclosed areas like Perno Fesopotomia and Egypt，and more or less artifically enclosed areas like Chine and Palestine。 In the only cultures that have left a permanent mark upon the world we find not only inbreeding but a conscious tendency to segxegate． $264^{\circ}$

So inextricably does Ludovici see the valuations of art as bound to the processes of life that he reckoned they influenced human mating．Every healthy race should postulate its elite as its vital standard of absolute beauty and pronounce the word ${ }^{8}$ ugly＇in regard to all other xacial standardsoof beauty，otherwise its yital mating judgement would amount to the evanescence of its om life？${ }_{0}^{265}$ He desired a racial aesthetic to check civilised man＇s tendency to extend his notion of beauty outside racial or national ideas ${ }_{0}^{266}$

Perhaps Ludovici＇snost bizerxe illustration of his thesis of the vital interdependency of art and life is to be found in the third chapter of the second part of his The Choice of a Hete，＂The Female Leg and the Influence of Dress on Morphology and Memperament．＂${ }^{267}$ In the latter he argues that our Christian civilisation had imbibed a lethal culture that was peculiar to the Greeks in the period of their decadence？${ }^{268}$

Whis thesis recurs in Anthony Mario Ludovici＇s，The Choice of a Mate，with an introduction by Dx．Norman Haire，（London：John Lene。 1935）o po 51 if。
"Raste ${ }^{0}$ is healthy-or unealthy according to whother it tends to an ascent or a descent in the line of life。 The Greeks, in their decadent male-homoserual bias, did not depict the normal female trunkeleg ratio in their arto ${ }_{0}^{269}$ Ludovici then proceeds to discuss how this ideal, by having been acquired and followed by Europe, especially since the Reneissance, has affected our choice in mating and influenced the morphology of women. Especially in Protestant countries; with their more ascotic and primitive form of Christianity, there was nothing to resist this culto Indeed, the early Christian ascetic ideal of human form in general, could only have exacerbated the "late Greek, wholly male-homosexual ideal of human form ${ }_{o}{ }^{\text {qip }} 270$ Lduovici attributod the recurrent feminism of Europe since the decline of ancient Greece to a morphological anomoly that had been created in life through Greek decadent art assimilating the male form to the female form:
 The lethal ${ }^{\text {taste }}$ which Greek male homosexuality generated in regard to the female figure, by influencing mating, had been responsible for the creation of viragoes, Ludovici desired that the ancient Greek ideals of female beauty and form be routed out from our "life-habits" ${ }^{272}$ by the development of an aesthetic cult freed from Hellenic bias。 ${ }^{273}$

The oriterian of beautyo for Ludovicio is that which is a lifepromoting force. ${ }^{274}$ In Ludovici's pseudonymous novel of 1939. Poot's Tmmpeter: Professor Bevington says to Thomas Sefton-Smith ${ }_{8}$ that he hopes that out of all the chaos of modem literary criticism a sane humanity will eventually emerge。 Posterity should destroy all literary criticism which deals only with petty problems about manner，and develop a vital canon for art that promotes life and asks of an artist＇screations：＂Wwas it vital？Was it consonant with menkinds continueng as a pleasing phenomenon on earth？Was it consonent with menkinds wishing to continue？on Professor Bevington then procecds to complement Sefton－Smith on the vitality of his poetry．It made him wish to see humanity continue in a pleasing formo ${ }_{0}^{275}$ Sefton－Smith opines that grod art should be a lofty expression of Life ${ }_{o}^{276}$

Ludovici thought culture sustained a race．He reckoned all that was needed for the death of a particular race was not necessarily the disease or violence introduced by another race，but merely the dependency introduced by the imposition of a new culture，which undermines their will to live ${ }_{0}^{277}$ He reckoned that Indian culture by resistine Western culture and not allowing it to deflect them from the paths of their racial ancestors promised to regenerate even the social usages of the Indian people：
$\therefore 0$ Above $a 1_{2}$ ．it promises to resuscitate their arts and crafts－the＂material aspects of their civilisation－ by repairing the damage suffered from their impect with a civilisation like that of Europe thich long ago divorced arts and crafts from any metaphysical source and made mass－production not only possible but indicated ${ }_{o}^{278}$

Democracy，Ludovici believed，could only arise in a people that had lost the＂instinct of workmanship＂，with its sense of quality。 Only these＇types＇。artists and poets，who possess a sense of vital quality，can regenerate a race。 But，reciprocally，their art can only flourish in a common culture where racial values are absolute。 In an atomised society like the West，with conflicting values，artists can only add to existing confusion and anarchy．${ }^{279}$ The art which integrates a race，which harmonises with the values governing a race's taste, conduct and outlook, is not the product of the artist or poet. It is the work of great creators who first established the homogeneity of racial values which, expressed in their vital arto "mokes it as much a part of the whole as a flower is of the plant on which it grows." Only then does the distinction objective and subjective disappear and the artist: speaks to those of his race serenely under the influence of the same vital values "which all observe in every choice of their $^{\text {w }}$ active life." ${ }^{280}$ Eigh culture and art. can only be the outcome of the man of racial purity in whom there are no bodily parts independently inherited from disparate parentso Ludovici claimed that this is why all great cultures vere the outcome of inbred and segregated groups and who ${ }_{0}$ in addition, possessed ${ }^{\circ}$ culture potential ${ }^{281}$ The "tasteful and sanitary administration" initiated in ancient Greece by Solon in the early sixth century BC required over a century to build up in the nation all the virtues and gifts which came to flower in the architecture of the Parthenong the sculpture of Pheidias, the creation of Euripides, and, a decade or two later, in the works of Polycleitus and the plays of Aristophanes. It took over a century before: "the Way of Life established by the new regime had succeeded in producing a people almost uniformly sturdy and wello constituted, and able to supply its artists with types of surpessing beauty。"282

Interestingly, if I may digress here $\mathrm{o}_{0}$ it is extremely important to appreciate the importance which Ludovici ascribed to art and craft。 He desired a vitel culture that would vivify, quicken, and vitalise men through creative generation. Ludovici claimed to agree with Bergson that life ${ }_{0}$ organic life, is creative. The thole joy of living is epitomised in creation. $I_{n}$ deed, the whole of life is an act of creation the greater the number of active adaptations the higher the lifeo The "lust of creation" is behind the very organs of sight, hearing, and toucho $2_{0}^{83}$ Reflecting a typically antirational fescist argument Ludovici reckoned that the enjoyment of life is largely a question of aestheties: "Is not our emotional nature competent to decide upon a question of taste or pleasure? ${ }^{00}$ It is our emotional and aesthetic sense that decide which road to lead in Life's many possibilities。 284 Liberalism and science merely pean us from our love of life and the value of life ${ }_{0}^{285}$ They merely succeed in making both life and the body vile, whereas "life is very largely an aesthetic phenomenon。" 286 Ludovici ${ }^{\circ}$ s most important writings on life as a creative experience are to be found in his Cxeation or Recreation written for the English Mistery in 19340 In the latter he spoke of a conflict of unprecedented gravity and magnitude between the forces of creationg or lifes and those of recreationo ${ }^{287}$ The ${ }^{0}$ solution ${ }^{\circ}$ of mass unemployment created by automation through the further intensive application of machinery Was to be rejected as it enforced no reciprocal duties from the idle and also enabled them to fill their otherwise unnocupied lives with cheap amsements. 288 The notion of "colleges' of leisure crafty financed at great public expense, would merely enable the unemployed to be idile in an innocent and decorous manner: ${ }_{0}^{289}$ Similarly, communism is no answer as it still accepts the most romantic ideals of nineteenth century liberalism in believing in the unmixed blessings of machinery, the desirability of intensive production, and the ideal of increasing leisure for allo ${ }_{0}^{290}$ Likewise, Major Douglas's 'social credit' scheme accepted the increasing application of machinery to industry and its consequence, mass leisure, and argued that the unmixed blessings of these have been denied to the masses by the present system of wealth distribution. ${ }_{0}^{291}$ Ludovici proceeds to elaborate a solution to mess unemployment. He suggests that our notions of work and leisure are corrupto derived too exclusively fromthespectacle of the urban wage earner on the one hand ${ }_{2}$ and of the ${ }^{\text {Mayfair loafer }}$, on the other: ${ }^{292}$ our notion of work derived from theindustrialwage earner, except when he is a craftsman or highly-skilled man, has the following features: It allows him no opportunity of expressing his higher impulses; is frequently only a small part of a division of labour vhich is infinitely repetitive and incapable of being a source of local prestige; may be accomplished by a machine to which the wage earner may be merely an attendant; It may be actually unhealthy: and, if it is absolutely clean work ${ }_{0}$ may be wholly unproductive except of profit to the employer $\mathrm{m}_{0}$ and wholly sterile ${ }_{\circ}^{293}$ Ludovici thought that what characterised all this work is that it is uncreative. Because no higher impulse can be enlisted, as either nothing at all is produced, or nothing is produced in its entirety. ${ }_{\circ}^{294}$ Conversely, we have come to connect leisure, the peculiar possession of the privelliged classes. not with creative impulses or creation, or with recuperation following the latter, but with recreation pursued as a vocation 295 Ludovici thought we should rid our minds of these corrupt notions of work and leisure, and appreciate that a vital human baing has no natural inclination for perpetual accreation, "but a native and irrepressible inclination to be constantly creative " These higher impulses of creativity are the heritage which man has inherited from his differences from the animals, through man having for thousands of years developed the habits of productive labour. We turn to creative activities not merely instinctively as a bird adopts a form of nest buildingg but as a gregarious act which gives us our raison = détre in the community? 296 Our advance from the bestial state isthehistory of the creative impulse, which every man possesses. The discontent of the working classes in all countries, where it has not proceeded from gross oppression, and the "rostlessness, neurotic pursuits, and sickness of the privelliged classes ${ }^{10}$, is due to their common divorce from their higher cxeative impulses. 297 Ludovici cites as further evidence for his thesis that if any healthy man finds a tesk that appeals to him and stimulates his particular endoments he will be active. Secondlyg that intellectual porer is a development of muscular sense and that the connection between hand and brain in man may be regarded as the source of a laxge proportion of what we know as the higher mental faculties ${ }_{0}^{298}$ Thirdly, as the universal spring of human action is Nietzsche ${ }^{\circ}$ s 'vill to power': the conscious extension of individuality through creativity is one of the most profoundly satisfying activities of the human species. Fourthly, every healthy man engaged in some non-creative activity tries to rodeen his selfoesteem and to indulge his higher impulses by pursuing some creative activity as a pastime ${ }_{0}^{299}$ Finally, no man can survive in happiness and contentment unless he is productive and creative: "that your life is enriching Lifeo" Thus ${ }_{p}$ for ludovicig the real problem of the eight million he expected to be unemployed through technological innovation by 1940 , was whether they were to be forcibly prevented from adopting productive pastimes. As more of those who would be deprived of employment by mechanised industry indulge their "lust for productive pastimes" and further glut markets it is questionable whether any law would be able to prevent them from doing so ${ }_{0}^{300}$ And, once the world had reneved its acquaintance with hand made goods it would not be easily persuaded to accept goods produced by machinery. Nor would it be likely that the home artisans themselves, Phaving once agein tasted of the joys of handicraft"。 would ever wish to relinquish it for machine minding。 Ludovici deduced from this projected tendency the inception of a wholly unprecedented necessity ${ }_{9}$ the liquidation of whole classes of mechonical plantso 301 Ex cepting those industries no amenable to handicraft smelting, foundryowork certain classes of machine manufacture, havlage, and the like a liquidation of mechanical equipment would be inaugerated. Even the "lingering death" which would be vouched saied to large masses of factory equipment as long as the export of shoddy goods was continued to uncivilised peoples not yot aware of the undesirability of such products and of the form of their production ${ }_{0}$ would be breif. And the stage in history would be reached when the majority of mankind would do deliberately and with a clean consciencewhat the Luddites were executed for doing in $18123_{0}^{302}$ Indovici thought that some of the "more wise and independent of European rulers" had already paved the way for the forced of popular creativityo Hitler with his Ehstands Darlehn (State Loans for Young Proletarians Wishing to Marry), had arranged that advances of State money to prospective bridggrooms should consist partly of small cheques payable only to home-craft workers, so that ${ }_{0}$ wherever possible ${ }_{8}$ mass-produced home-ware and articles of domestic use would not be purchased by the poorer newlymodded couplos of Natzi Germany. Ludovici hoped that the creative "instincts of the Finglish masses"。 always opposed to machinery, would be similarly confirmed, and that the wisdom of rulers like Edward VI, Elizabeth, James $I_{0}$ Charles $I_{0}$ and of thinkers like Cobbett, Ruskin and Samuel Butler, would ultimately be vindicated 303 However $x_{9}$ he thought before this ideal could be reached, great and bitter wars would have to be waged between the two belligerant 'types' of humanity, the 'Creationists' and the 'Recreationists 304 Behind the former would be found the elite of the working masses who would be resolved to legalise their position as home producers, artists, and the more enlightened and human of the economists; philosophers, and psychologists ${ }^{305}$ Behind the ${ }^{\text {R Recreationists' }}$, howevex $x_{0}$ would be found 'vested interests'。financial and othervise, representing established mechanical industries, who saw their power menaced by the paid unemployed; and those elements of the masses and middle classes who had been totally demoralised and deteriorated by two centurios of industrialism and commercialism, who had none of those higher impulses which insist on creation as the sine qua non of eristence。 306 The ensuing struggle would rage over several decades, but the "Creationists" would wing provided they possessed a sufficiently large body of leaders who wore convinced of the existence in 0.11 normal and healthy men of their impulsc to create ${ }_{0}^{307}$

Similarly 0 as Ludovici addressed the English Mistery in the following year, 1935 , he stressed that they were engaged in creation and should, like the blacksmitho and the builder, reapply the levelo the square and the plumbrine to their creation. The fact that they should find it necessary to apply the plumb-line and the rule in order tomako sure that they had not departed from their original design should convince them that they had under their hands something living, creative, "and that is growing" 308

Now, as can be seen from the preceding discussion, for Ludovici art and culture had degenerated because the life of the race had degenerated, and art and culture could be regonerated only by increasing the vitality of the race; Conversely, and idealistically, life can decline or ascend aceording to art's valuetion of life. Therefore, for Ludovici, art and life are interdependent, From these premisses he proceeds to derive a rationale for a totalitarian culture. Of course, it may appear that the importance that Ludovici assigns to art is explicable in terms of his being a conservative, as it is not unusual for conservatives to make analogies between the practice of art and politics. Conservatives regard politics es a crafts the practice of which is peculiar to the historical experience of each society。 Successive generations ere apprenticed to a tredition which embodies the political wisdom of that which has been tried and found to be viable.

Statesmanship is a skill acquired through the experience of attending to the traditional arrangants of a society; not a corpus of scientific laws which can be acquired independently of a practice the nature of whose application is alvays and everywhere the same. However, Ludovici's notion of the "art of politics? is quite extraordinary for somebody who claimed to be a conservative. Indeed, I consider his confusion of his political and aesthetic categories to be evidence for the substantiation of my thesis that Ludovici is a fascist。 It is one of the primary characteristics of fascists to conceive of no limitations to the sphere of politics. They politicize all aspects of life. As Ludovici says in his A Defense of Aristocracyo A text book for Tories it is not only in the matter of establishing order that good government excels. He calls this the "simple "craft" of goveming". He appends to this what he calls the vital second quality of good rulcrship:
0.0 that virtue which sets the tone of the people. gives it a criterion of choioe, and guides its passions. And this second virtue of good rulership might be called the 'tutorship" of governing, as opposed to the 'craft' aboe-mentioned. 309.

The elite must find a willing medium for their 'art' 310 , fulfill the roles of both the craft and tutorship of governings and establish a certain vital 'taste' or 'art of life' in the race? 311 The "artist's legislator ." 312 dictates the type of "flourishing life" to which the character of the nation or race must approximate, which constitutes the sound and stable basis upon which a permanent creation may be built by the aristocrat if he chooses ${ }_{0}^{313}$ He writes of how deeply "higher art" and social order and conservation are related through beauty in the human body alone, which brings about the conservative desire for permanence? 314

According to Ludovici-s aesthetic vitalism one cannot be an anerchist in the matter of pictures or the metter of ones taste in scenery, without involving oneself in wishing to subvert society. $\Lambda$ romentic or liberal attitude which condones anarchy and chaos in scenery, or in art cannot but bear "on our attitude towards life ${ }^{i 734}$ one cannot with impunity foster and cultivate vulgarity in onc's architecture. one's sculpture. ones paintings. one's music and literature: "without paying very dearly for these lururies in our respective national politics, in our family institutions, and even in our physique。" ${ }^{316}$ only a vital culture and taste can achieve anything great in every aspect of lifes including politics morality, and lawo 317 However he declines to connect all these things together, and to show their inevitable interdependency, although he thinks this "perfectly possible though arduous undertakingo 318

Iudovici believed that an important aspect of politics, that had been neglected by most political philosophers after Aristotle, is the creation and the control, or "vardenship' as he preferred to call it, of culture: "Surely, the imponderabiliag the unwritten laws governing a peoples choice in all things, in furniture。 architecture, mates, even in sentiments, ideas and opinions, should form a part of govermment and, therefore, of thephilosophy of politics." Only one prominent recent political thinker hado according to Ludovici, not been guilty of this omission Coleridge. Coleridge argued that even the Royal Society should be a department of the Church, as well as every branch of science, including all the sages and professions, whether in philosophy or law Coleridge spoke, according to Ludovicis of the members of a Church thus constituted as resident guides and guardians and instructors, distributed all over the lendo Coleridge had seeno although Judovici did not agree with his "solution"。 the vital need of restoring to the idea of goyernment the function of safeguarding and developing a people's, or racels, culture ${ }_{\circ}$ Ludovici thought Coleridge sould only have conceded to the contention thet his ideal for culture is totalitarian, which it is, if only it could be proved that the sentiments, ideas, opinions and criterion of taste, of the masses, were not dictated to them by wholly irresponsible and incompetent parties; and if the masses in any nation could evolve their own culture and do so admirably. Only then would Coleridge have conceded that the culture of a people should not be created and controlled by government 319

Iudovici desired an authoritarian direction of culture. The terms and grammer of art should not be matters of individual choice, but of general convention. Only when the 'scheme of life' is at an end, as it is today, is there a state of anarchy in the vital direction of arto Although, anarchy of form is a lesser kind of anarchy than that of direction, because it is not concemed with such $\forall i$ tal things as direction, but with the means of expressing directiono 320 This is the reason for Ludovici's hostility to the futurists, he thought they were anarchists of direction, the most vital issue, besides being anarchists of form. Their direction as well as their attitude to direction was utterly opposed to the vital direction and attitudes towards form of the elite principle which is the only means of attaining to any permanence of sound flourishing life: "because sound flourishing life is a process of selecting and rejecting correctly, and only very few can set the canons for this process." 321

Luidovici reckoned the Holy Catholic Church succeeded in establishing one of the conditions necessary to all "great Art"。 which is: "unity and solidarity lesting over a long period of time, and forming men according to a definite and severe scheme of values." 322
His ideal of a common culture is most clearly found in his introduction to The False Assumptions of "Democracy" entitled "The Confusion of Language and its relation to Revolutiono ${ }^{1023}$ In the latter he proclaims that a common language is contingont for its vital potential as a unifying factor on a common culture that provides a design of life into which every word of the language fits like a piece of vital mosaic. Vital abstract or general terms. with which Ludovici thought ve guide our lives, should stand for very precise ideas, and should mean the same things to all men of the same race or nation ${ }^{3} 324$ What perturbed Ludovici most about a confusion of language, in which words of an abstract and general nature have fallen out of place in the desire of life, is that it did not only mislead, but made it no longer possible to lead. 325 Ludovici thought a national art is only possible under the control of national values. An integrated culture, in which the same values invade and pervade every sphere of life, has immense advantages over a chaotic culture according to Ludovici: there is no division of vital opinion concerning what is good, beautiful, or right ${ }_{0}^{326}$ What the mass needs for leadership are "objective realists" prepared to establish uniform values and a language that would have a common vital meaning for all - a homogenoous culture ${ }_{0}^{327}$

Predictably, from his totalitarian notion of culture and art, Ludovici generated prescriptions about the order of society appropriate to the vital culture he desired. The route of all beauty, he thoughto is power in some form. It is the power of a long, uninterrupted tradition. or eccunulated effort which gives rise to something beautiful in life, a particular and orderly set of features, pleasing to that race to whom that particular tradition is familiar. ${ }^{328}$ He found the ideal ainthoritarian conditions for the perfection of a racial aesthetic to prevail in India, where:

○.oThe excellence of the body at leasto was well provided for while the system of casts and guilds (sreni) tended to enphesise end preserve whatever good was derived from the more or less hereditary system of brood occunations. 329

This, evidently, is a notion that confirms Nietzsche's influence on Ludovici ${ }^{\text {a }}$ The former wrote:
> -ove must accept the cruel sounding truth, that slavery is the assence of culture, which leaves no doubt as to the absolute value of Eristence. This truth is the vulture, that gnaws at the liver of the Promethean promotor of Culture。 The misery of toiling men must still increase in order to make the production of the vorld of art possible to a small number of Olympian men. 330

In his commentary on Nietzsche's aesthetic. Nietzsche and Art of 1911. Iudovici attempts to demonstrate that to bestow admiration on a work of "democratic painting" and at the same time to be convinced of the value of an aristocratic order of society, is to be guilty of e confusion of ideas which, ultimately, can lead only to disastrous results in practical life. 33 . He identifies 'Ruler Art' as the art of plenjtude and claims its production to be dependent upon four conditions Which are quite inseparable from an aristocratic order of society. "and which I therefore associate, without any hesitation as Nietszche does, with Higher Man." These conditions are: Long tradition under the sway of noble and inviolablo values. rosulting in an accumula ation of will power: leisure which allows of meditation: the disbelief in freedom for freedons sake, without a purpose or an aim; and, an order of rank according to which each is given a place in keeping with his value, and authority and reverence are upheldo 332

In the following I intend to demonstrate what Ludovici meant by ${ }^{\circ}$ Ruler Art". and his vital purpose for art in life. In Ludovici's Nietzsche and Art, whexe he claims to confine himself strictly to Wietzsche?s eesthetic tudovici attempts to show that the highest arto ${ }^{\circ}$ Ruler Arto ${ }^{\circ}$ in which culture is opposed to natural rudeness. selection to natural chaos, and simplicity to natural complexity. can be the product only of an aristocratic society which observes in its traditions and active life the three aristocratic principles o culture, selection, and aimplicityo 333 Only the Ruler Artisto. according to Ludovici's and Wietssche's philosophical idealism, can make the world and life full of form and attractions, as a valuation, and make it possible for man to become master of the world ${ }_{0}^{334}$ It was the "will to power" of the powerful that organised, ordered and schematized the world, and it was their will to prevail which made them proclaim their order and scheme of life as that which must be regarded as creation itself. 335 once reality had been vitally interpreted by the artists mind, creating and naming actually became the same thingঃ "For to put a meaning into things was clearly to create them afresh - in fact, to create them literally." 336 Thus, the world became man's work of art and nature was reduced to bis chattel. It was man ${ }^{9}{ }^{0}$ will to power ${ }^{9}$, which became creative in his highest specimen, the artist, which transfigured reality by means of human valuations and overcame becoming by falsifying it as beingo 337 And, to create a thing in the minds of the people was to create that people to: "for i.t is to have values in common that constitutes the people。" ${ }^{338}$ The artist, following his divine inspiration to subdue the earthand to make it his became the greatest stimulus to Life itselfo ${ }_{0}^{339}$ It matters who interprets life as only the few can make a people think that life is really worth livingo ${ }^{340}$ It is not a question of truth in the Christian and scientific sense, but of finding that belief, whether true or false which most conduces to an exalted form of life.A people become the creation of the artist whose greatest delight is to feel that his eyes. his ears, and his touch have become thoir eyes; and their ears, and their touch ${ }_{0}^{341}$ Their elation consists in seeing the world through his vital "artistic prism:s"。 and in allowing "their higher man, to establish their type" The artist justifies his life by roising the comminity to its highest poser: "by binding it to life with the gloxies which ho alone can sec, and by luxing it to the heights which he is the first to scale and to explore."342 The 'Dionysian artist', the prototype of all gods, exalts life, puts ugly reality into an art form ${ }_{2}$ and makes life desirable for humanity ${ }_{0}^{343}$ The function of art is the function of the ruler as it lures a people to a certain kind of Life ${ }^{3} 34$ The vital values we hold concerning life are either determined by art, or art lays stress upon certain vital values already established ${ }_{0}^{345}$ The values beautiful and ugly, which the graphic arts either determine or accentuate, are butthe outcome of other more fundamental values "uhich have ruled and moulded a race for centuries." As the artist accentuates or determines the qualities beatiful and ugly. he bears an intimate relation to the past end possible life of his people ${ }_{0}^{346}$ Spurred by anarchy, his inspiration is government - to make things reflect him. But his will to stamp the nature of stability on becoming is a feeling of gratitude towards Life, "which makes him desire to rescue one beautiful body from the river of Becoming, and fix its image in the world." It is not the desire for being of Christianity which is based upon a loathing for Life and a weariness of it. The artist finds his greatest attraction in ugliness, by which Ludovici means disorder, and by converting it into beauty, or order, reaches the zenith of his pover. 347 In the graphic arts, which either determine or accentuates the vital values ${ }^{9}$ ugly ${ }^{0}$ and 'beautiful' every artist who establishes his notion of what is subject-beauty, like every lover about to marry, either assails or confirms and consclidates the vital values of his race or peopleo 348 The beauty of a person is the outcome of a long observance through generations of the vital values peculiar to a race or people 349 Ugliness in the subject of art is the decadence of a＇type＇：

> oo Tt is the sign that certain features belonging to other people (hitherto called ugly according to the absolute biological standerd of beauty of a raco) are beginning to be introduced into their type. Or it may mean that the subject to be represented does not reveal that harmony and lack of contrast which the values of a people are capable of producing. 350

Beauty，in any person，being the result of a long and severe observance by his ancestors of a particular set of vital values． always denotes some definite attitude towards Life。 ${ }^{351}$ The ixuler artist＇is he who，elevated by his love of Life，says＇yea＇to his own 0 type ${ }^{\circ}$ and，in so doing，determines or accentuates the vital values of that type。 352 His power lies in his vitally intimate association with a particular people。 Art of any importance，must be based upon a race＇s or peoples particular group of vital values otherwise，it is divorced from life ${ }_{0}^{353}$ The＇Dionysian artist＇cannot look at life without enriching her。 He periodically smashes Being in order to endure Becoming for the＂joy and destrinction of creation．＂354 A Superhuman spirit，he apotheosizes the＇type＇of a people and stimulo ates them to a higher mode of life 355

Ludovici Sound his ideal of＇ruler art＇ 0 the bondage of art with Life，in Egyption classicism．Not because he regarded a return to the＇type＇of ancient Egypt as the only possible salvation of the graphic arts，which he dismissed as sheer romanticism，but because he saw in the spirit which led to Egyption classicism，which he regarded as necessary to all great achievements，either in politics $a_{0} \mathrm{ar}_{0}$ or religion，that which we ought to prize and cherish and which we now possess in only a decadent form．It is the spirit which will establish order at all costs，whose manner of exploiting ${ }^{\text {ohigher man }}$ is to look upon Life through their transfiguring vision ${ }_{0}^{356}$ In ancient Egypt
we find the belief that restraint is necessary，and part of the axt of life ${ }_{2}$ and in order to heve one group of advantages ${ }_{2}$ another group must be sacrificed．This principle，sacrifice，is that which goes to rear a great people as all vital values，all arto and $2 l l$ life are dependent on its＂it is the principle of all great arto ${ }_{0}$－ and it is the principle of all great life。＂ 357 The people this principle of cacrifice reared，the ancient Fgyptians，who bonded this lifemprinciple in their art，communicate little to the modern age through their vital axt。 Buto according to Ludovicio as every great artist and legislature should know，it is precisely upon the principle of sacrifice ，that all great art and life repose．The symbolic representation of this life－principle，secrifice ${ }_{0}$ and its bondage in art，was achieved by the ancient Egyptians in the pyramid 358 Even their realistic portrait statues，which appear anomalous in the vital art of Egypt，can be explained．They were never intended to be works of＇Ruler Art＇。 established to underline and emphasise the vital values of a race of people． 359 They had a definite purpose， but quite foreign to that of vital art，－death：＂with underground tombs and sarcophagi。＂${ }^{360}$ Othervise．Egyptian art is the apotheosis of a particular＇type＇。 They are what all art should be，a stimulus， and a spur to a life based upon a definite set of vital values． Tuncrici saw the Egyptiand＇wedlock of Art ond Sociology＂＇symbolised in the pyramid，the greatest artistic achievement that had been achieved，which in its form embodied all the highest qualities of great art，and all the highest principles of life？With all its six thousand years of age it stands on the threshold of the desert， on the threshold of choos and disorder，where none but the wind attempts to shape and to form，＂and reminds us of a master will that once existed and set its eternal stamp upon the face of the world in Egypt．so that mankind might learn whither mankind had risen or declined．＂In its synthesis of the three main canons，simplicity． repetition and varioty, nothing has ever excelled it in its ${ }^{0}$ mystic utterance" of the condition of the ideal state ${ }_{0}$ in Which every member takes his place and ultimately succeeds in holding ${ }^{\circ}$ higher man ${ }^{\circ}$ uppermost: and in its revelation that man can attain to some hoight if he choosec $0_{0}^{362}$ Ludovici thought Egyption classicism vas the product of a people reared by a definite set of inviolable vital values. Although, Ludovici did not think it could be revived in our democrecy he did think it was the best example of Ruler Arto in man's history, and thet the vital culture of Egypt at least afforded a criterion according to which contempory art was putrescento ${ }_{0}^{363}$

Howewer ${ }^{2}$ the contempory art critic's duties were useless as a practical pathology. It is the role of some greater pathologist, 'ruler artist' to discover what is wrong with life itselfo Art is the bloom of life. If one objects to the bloom it is no use correcting that alone: one must correct the root o life. The task of correcting the root of art, life, belongs to the "artist legislator " The art critic or minor patholorist, ought to vrite his report and, send it up to a higher pathologist, a pathologist not of arto but of life。 We all grow on a particular social tree whose art, whose blooms, are the inevitable outcome of the treed natwre, It is futile to fulminate against the wrong blooms because they are the inevitable outcome of the tree, or living thing, from which the critic himself draws his sape ${ }^{364}$ It was industry and commerce, the vulgax despotism, that had led to the spurning of all that constituted flourishing and desirable life. The last 'rulex artist' in England was Charles $I_{0}$ who opposed the uncontrolled movement of lethal taste that flouted all that made for desirable humanityo Artists, since the death of Charlos $I_{9}$ should have formed themselves into a select aristocracy "in a population of hogs" and rofused ell intercourse with the hawers and chapmen of the market place．Morever．the tendency among artists had been to abet rather than to oppose the grand movement of vulgarization exploitation $_{0}$ and degeneracy which roached its zenith in the last fifty yoars of tho nineteenth century and became businossmen themselveso ${ }_{0}^{365}$ But，in essence，the artists were only partly to blame The graphic artist．does not create an order of existence．＂a scheme of life＂。 which is the role of the ＂poet－or artist legislator ．＂The graphic artist is impelled to his work through his exuberant joy over the order of life that the vital ${ }^{\circ}$ artist－legislator ${ }^{\circ}$ creates $_{\rho}$ and over the spirit which animates it。 Therefore ${ }^{2}$ in an age without the ${ }^{\text {a }}$ artist－legistator there is neither architecture，sculpture or paintingo In such a plight the artist literally does not know what to express．Wheno in 1860 ，the subject picture was proclaimed to be dead it was not the artists who were at fault ${ }_{\text {o }}$ It was rather，due to the absence of a really exalted vital＇arcist－legislation ${ }^{\circ}$ in Europe． 366 And the remedy sought by the graphic artist of the time，the regalvanisation of the graphic arts by awakening a feverish interest in a new techniqueg was feeble and futile；becouse it did not go to the root of tife，the real root of the trouble。 Divorced from a general ruling scheme of Lifeg the graphic artist，drifted upon the seas of life like a rudderless derelicto Bhey should have laid down their palettes and declared art to be impossible，unless a vital＇artistolegislatior，axose to give a fresh faith to a purposeless humanity ${ }_{0}^{367}$ when the graphic artist is not animated by a great scheme of life graphic art loses its vitality，the subject picture dies，and painting becomes merely a means of expressing the ideosyncracies of individuals divorced from any great vital arrangement or scheme ${ }_{0}^{368}$

Jife is a procens of choosing and discarding correctly．To choose and discard correctly leads to a permenence of flourishing life。

Whereas，to choose and discard wrongly leads to death．Jen choose and reject correctly only when they are guided by men of vital 0 taste ${ }^{0}{ }_{0}^{369}$ Indeed，Ludovici regarded all great religions as sacerdotal attempts at perpetuating and preserving the vital ${ }^{9}$ taste ${ }^{\circ}$ of a fow great men。 Societics are established systems guided by the vital selectings and rejectings of a few founders． The members of such societies see in their vitalstaste＂the only hope of conservation：
－oond where the selectings and rejectings，which constitute a scheme of life，have through the centuries proved thoir value as preservers of sound life，there is naturally a tendency in the people observing them to be intensely and obstinately conservative。

Only when the＂taste＂of a founder has through the centuries failed to prove its value as a preserver of sound life are the people who have observed it revolutionary．The graphic artist is not，however，and never has been，responsible for the foundation of a scheme of life。 Therefore，the graphic artist is essentially a dependent of the ＂artist－legislator＂。 The graphic artist is no more than a civic arrangement，or a scheme of life become or becoming self－conscious． The graphic artist simply expresses the will behind it，he is not the will behind it．The minor artists（architedts，sculptors，painters． musicians）are inspired by the vital＇artist legislator＇，whose scheme of life gives the minor artists their direction their vitel＇taste＂ for selection and the spirit of the interpretation of the life about them．The content of their work consists of the portion and kind of life chosen $0_{0}$ and its interpretation in terms of the great living order to which the artist belongs 370

Ludovici hoped for the awakening to the truth that the artist，the architecto the painter，and the poet are bankrupt unless some vital aim and aspiration animate their eye ${ }_{0}$ inspire them in their work and kindle in them the passion for a particular＇type＇of mano on which they may lavish their eloquence, their chromatic, musical and architectural shetoric. with conviction and power. 371 The direst need of modern times is the artist legislator: "Foro in order that fresh life and fresh type cen be given to art. fresh vigour and a fresh typa muct first be given to life itselfo. 372

Ludovici placed bis hope for the regeneration of society and art in the promise of Nietzschean ${ }^{0}$ ruler artists", able to integrate and vitalise the nation through their culture。 Subsequent generations, he hoped ${ }_{p}$ would realise that the present plethora of social reforin had one curious and universal trait o great unhappiness ${ }_{o}^{373} \mathrm{But}_{0}$ for ludovici, it is not a question of the quality of happiness failing anythere, but its qualityo ${ }^{374}$ Quality is quite as scaxce above as it is below, although, it first began to leave the superior stratum, who had been scouting it for two hundred and fifty years with the advent of uncontrolled commerce and industry. Their favoured child hed been quantity which could not provide joy or happiness in life. The power that discriminates between quality and quantity is taste - the vital power of the artist. By artist Ludovici does not mean "the commercial gang who now dubrthemselves artists", but the man who naturally knows and is the measure of all things for two centuries and as hall he had been deprived of power by those who usurped his place at the top. The true artist is the loving guardian of vital quality: "He rejoices in $\mathrm{it}_{\mathrm{p}}$ thrives on $\mathrm{it}_{\mathrm{p}}$ knows $\mathrm{it}_{9}$ detects it, represents $i t_{0}$ sings for it, dies for ito" Until the martyrdom of Charles $I_{9}$ those at the top were guided by the dictates of vital taste. They, and their colleagues, the artists, were the depositories of quality through the ages and invoked its high euthority at every moment of choice. This was the "most vital" function of aristocracy, and when it ceased the aristocrats themselves ceased to beo And, when it did cease their darned in England an epoch in which no qualitative tradition, no qualitative example, any longer descended from the leaders to the followers in society ${ }_{0}^{375}$ Ludovici's remedy lay in rogenerating the elite as ${ }^{\circ}$ rulerartists ${ }_{0}^{376}$ It is most evident in his A Defense of Aristocracyo A text book for Tories. He wrote that human life, like any other kind of life, produces some flourishing and some less flourishing specimens. And ${ }^{2}$ in order that flourishing life may be prolonged, multiplied, and enhanced on earth the vital 'wants of flourishing life, its optimum of conditions, "must be made known and authoritatively imposed upon men by its representatives. 1377 Ludovici reckons the true representative of flourishing life are the artists, the men of vital taste. No comittees or deliberative assemblies can form a substitute for him in this vital functiono If one's choice of ways and means, or on's 'taste', is such that when they become general tastes they lead to an ascent in Life, then 'unconsciously' one's body which is a specimen of flourishing life, is uttering the credo of flourishing life。 But, if onés tastes are such that when they become general they lead to a descent in life; then one's body is a specimen of impoverished life, and pronounces the lethal doctrine of decline ${ }_{0}^{378}$ By artist, Ludovici does not mean a painter or a musician or an actorg but a man of vital taste who unhesitatingly knows what is right and wrong, and whose vital type only occurs two or three times in every generation of minor artists 379 The people can only flourish if it is given a sound taste for disceming good from bad, that which is beneficial from that which is harmful, and healthy, vital conduct from sick, degenerate conduct. It is through the neglect of these principles of Life that lethal taste prevails today ${ }_{0}^{380}$ Real beauty is impossible without regular and stable living, lasting over generations:
ooreal Art is impossible without surplus health and energy, the outcome of generations of careful. storing and gamering of vital forces, and without that direction and purpose which the supreme artist the tasteful legislator - alone can give to the minor artists ${ }_{9}$ be they painters, architects ${ }_{0}$ or musiciens within his realm。 381

For the unbroken tradition, on which these things depend ${ }_{0}$ to be established $d_{0}$ there must be great stability and permanence in the institutions of a race, and it is the direction of flourishing life alone, that can reveal the vital taste and judgement necessary for the preservation of such stability and permanence: "For stability and permanence are desired only when beauty is present." then a people have achieved real beauty and caught a glimpse of this beauty in all departments of their social life, they must cry for conservation rather than change. 382 It is only then that change is dreaded; for change threatens to rob the beauty from the face, the limbs and trunk of their civilisationo 383 The "tutorship of ruling" involves the responsibility of establishing a great and vital culture that is sufficiently powerful to integrate a whole people, and ensure the inevitability of its expansion over the face of the earth ${ }_{0}^{384}$
'Ruler artists" like Manu, Moses and Mohamod, "arch-geniuses in the art of pia fraus", thoroughly and subtlely contrived to weave a. vital religion into the hygiene and food of a people so as to build up a fresh humen physique that might be called oithor a truo Brahmin, a true Israelite, or a true Nohammeden 385 They effected a deep racial act of consolidation through their vital art ${ }^{386}$ and bound the race or poople by an intemal relationship, based upon the most elaborate prescriptions of general conduct, hygiene and spiritual. occupation, until ultimately this internal relationship was stamped upon the faces and bodies of the people ${ }_{0}^{387}$ Life, the process of livingo is a matter of constantly choosing and rejectingo 388 whis choosing and rejecting in life is a matter of life and death. There can be only one opinion that is right and another that is wrong. Fox some mens' opinions on vital questions，by being exroneous，must lead to death．Therefore，＇taste＇，which is the power of discerning the right from the wrong in vital matters is the greatest power of life as it leads to pemanence of life。 in those who possess it and can exercise it ${ }_{0}^{389}$ The elite that Ludovici says possesses vital ＂taste＂in his A Defence of Aristocracy A text book for Tories are the＂ruler artists＂。 the exemplars of flourishing life。 The only source to which we can turn for the needs，the desires，the likes and dislikes of flourishing life，is not the mass ${ }^{390}$ ，but the eremplar of flourishing life：＂His voice utters the taste of flourishing lifeg it is the canon and criterion of all that leads to permenence and resistance in life－it is Taste．＂ 391 The art and culture of the minor artists without direction from the＂ruler artists＂，from above，without a grand scheme of life providing the vital taste forthe minor artists＇ ＂interpretation of life－such art is mere make believe ${ }^{\text {P mere affected }}$ fooling（his itallics）＂＂For the architect，the sculptor，the painter， the poet，the musician and the actor are essentially dependents－
＂dependants on the superior man who is the artist legisletore＂If the ruler artist．or＂artist legislator＂。 is non－existent，as Ludovici thinks he is today，his dependants no longer have that momentum． direction and guidance in vital taste which their function requires to promoto lifo：
> oo．That is why their function becomes meaningless and erratic，and their aims become anarchicel，unless there be that in their life and their nation which gives their art a meaning，a deep necessity and an inspiration． 392

Domocracy means death because it does not take into account the vital element of＂taste＂．It meant inviting Life＇s adversary to the council－ board ${ }^{393}$ ，for＇taste＇is a power of life． 394 Ludovici reckoned that the healthy regimen of the Catholic，with his fast days and lenten abstinance，and his festivals of dionysian indulgence，is following the canonised vital ${ }^{0}$ taste ${ }^{0}$ of some of the greatest specimens of Elourishing life that arose during the Middle Ages? ${ }^{395}$ The course traversed by a developing culture cennot be traced to evolution, which has no set plang but is founded in the vital taste of its leaderss. 396 Iudovici reckoned that artists are the only kindred spirits to the aristocrat in the whole of a nation beceuse of their common recognition of the vital importance of 0 taste $\pi_{0}^{397}$ He lamented What he regarded as the groving breach betwecn aristocracy and culture, the first signs of which were visible from the eighteenth century? 398

Ludovici's notion of vital 'rulex artists' is also found in his A Defence of Conservatism。 In the latter he clains that the phenomenon of a 'culture potential' explains the fundamental divergence between the men who incline instinctively to vital qualitative values, and those who incline instinctively to lethal quantitative values, and the sooial form which each evolves. a nation divided between these two "types" cannot find a compromise. a complete fusion of the two social forms is never possible and the result is internecine warfare The body of people inclining to quantitative values, tend to instability and futile chenges because it never perceives the necessary relation between time and qualityo Its conservatism will be largely self-interest; and if it possesses nothing, its conservatism will be feeble。 on the conservative side, the members of this body will be unreliables and on the non-conservative side, anarchicalo. Their culture potential will reach its limits in commerciel work. 399 The body of people inclining to qualitative values, which will also draw itsrecruits from every social class will, on the other hand, tend to stability and preservation, "not only of things but also of family traits and strains". Its conservatism will not be merely selfminterest, it will consist of a wish to retain a stable enviroment．often against selfwinterest．for the maturing of its seeds of quality．on the merely conservative side the members of this body will be principled，and on the aristocratic side they will be patrons，selectors，and cultivators of lasting and beautiful thinss．fhether in the persomel or chattels of the nationo The culture potential of these qualitativists will reach its limits in perfection of social organisation and in the beauty of the people and of their environmental conditions。 The relatively small concem about material success which characterises the latter body． the concem which is largely swamped by the primary impulse to quality and beauty，would lead to their death at the hands of the ＂quantitativists＇。 And，then that part of the nation which supplies it with its most valueble vital quality，and therefore its chief equipment for conservation，would tend to die？ 400 It is only through the rule of vital qualitativists，the elite e $_{0}$ that a nation＇s conservation can be ensured．Zudovici demonstrates the latter by the following simple parable：

Beauty contemplating her features in a mirror knows but one devil．which with all her might she vishes to cast out，and that is Change：To the skilful beautifying surgeon who offers to improve the line of her face by an operation，however slight，she promptly shows the door．And she is right（his ita．lics）． 401

Ludovici thought only a fev contempory artists approached his vital ideal of art．They were the following：－

Van Gogh and Gaugin：
Ludovici reckoned thet in the works of Van Gogh and Gaugin something much more vital was on view then a mere collection of modern works of art。 At last the Cavalier element was beginning to recover some of its former strength and he thought it but a forecast of future events in the concrete world of politics and national life。Or． at least when Ludovici left the Sonderbund Austellung in the middle of July 1912，he reckoned that anidst the smell of gunpowder and ebove the scrimace he saw Van Gogh and Gaugin，like two gallant veterane，directing the cause of flourishing life。 For they were deserters fron tho other side，andmev their opponents weakest points． But，it was not victory that Ludovici saw，rather it was a very slight change in the fortunes of battle：＂a mere wave of enthusiasm and trust on the Cavelier side－a mere wave of depression and greater exhaustion among the Roundheads．＂ 402

Those who persisted in their negative attitude to lifes the ${ }^{9}$ Roundheads？ and the Puritans，lost heavily in the post－impressionist movement． It was in this movement that the world of art first realised the great vital need，a closer relationship to life。 The technique of the post－impressionist revealed a tendancy to sacrifice values to colour．Apert from the fact that purc colour and line－technique is associated with Egyption and Greek classicism，Ludovici thought it compels a painter to practice three desirable virtues：A pure colour technique forces the painter to a more masterly expression of reality： it deprives him of compromise and of＇democratic＇blending，and leaves bravery the ability to face and control onntrasts，as the only alternative；In as much as it betrays a love of brightness，it is a sign of a more positive attitude towards life。

The manner in which Van Gogh and Gaugin replied to the question of what was the good of impressionist technique without the subline inspiration of a worthy object and purpose constituted them deserters from the ranks of cheir old fellows－＂the insurrectionists，the Roundheads．＂But ${ }^{\text {o }}$ in claiming that man was the only fit subject for： pictorial rhetoric they-realised the great deficiency of their age: "Now where was the man or the race of men in their day who could inspire the artist with a passion for man? ${ }^{403}$ Gauging in despairo actually migrated to the Marqueses Isles and to Tahitio and there not only painted negresses, but, to his cost, also fought vectern culture whenever and wherever he could 404

Van Gogh's art, for Iudovici, was a bridge leading out of the "negative revolution" of the latter balf of the nineteenth century o impressionismo ${ }_{0}^{405}$ His fame is all the greater as he lived in a degenerate age。 The principle figures in the "Grand-Rebellion drama" of art, in the preceding century, were themselves innovators, renovators and subvertors. But, they revolted against sicleress in an age of sickness, and assumed the title of rebel with both pride and dignity! 406 Ludovici then proceeds to locato Van Gogh in the "revolutionary drama' of the preceding century. He concedes that though Van Gogh wes an impronsionist, Van Gogh strove to surpass Manet, Monet. Renoir. Degas and Thistler. Though the latter's art proceduce may have been superior, Van Gogn's aims were higiner and more vital; he realised more keenly what was wrong and what was desirable? 407 Van Gogh was an instinctive artist, absorbed in nature, and thoroughly a.t ease as her interpretor 408

Iudovici selectedVan Gogh ande attle before him-his frimp Gauging as the only two artists in the impressionistic and postoimpressionistic movements of the late nineteenth century, that he approvod ${ }_{0}^{409}$ Both Van Cogh and Gagin were artists of "sound instincts" as they had recognised the lack of the "great legislator" 410 . They realised that beauty can only be traced to man: and without man beauty could not exist on earth? 411

The beauty of Ven Gogh ${ }^{\circ}$ s technique and the charactoristic thet Ludovici chiofly admired in his works is the glorification of colour and neglect of values. He admired colour more than values beceuse technique should be important only as a means of betreying how a men approachos and deels with realityo All thevirtues of a good technique are traceable to vital human standards and virtueso He reckoned that if one compares Van Gogh's pictures with the funereal:work produced by the Glascow school:

00 you will be convinced of the difference between the brightg laughingg yea-saying attitude to life and the dark, gloony, negative, churlish, Puritanicalo and, in many respects, essentially British attitude to life? 412

Van Gogh turned his back on the negative love of landscape, in which man or the hand of man in entirely absent inspired $^{\text {in }}$ by romtics like Rousseaus and Schillero After much tribulation and the gravest and most depressing doubts, Van Gogh realised the fundamental truth that art can find its meaning only in life, "and in its function as a life force." Therefore, the highest art must be that which seeks its meaning in the highest form of life, and Van Gogh again realised the truth that the highest form of life is man. ${ }_{0}^{414}$ He realised that art was an expression of life itself. 415 From a negative impressionist, Van Gogh became more positive to life, and this healthy development led him to the inevitable - man himself. 416 But, Van Gogh, was desperate. he was doubtful of the existence of man with the greatest promise of life. Van Gogh turned to the peasant as he could find no other "type" worthy of his vital pictorial advocacy ${ }^{417}$ His splendid tribute to Christ as a marvelous artist, a modeller and creator of meno was according to Ludovici, the halforealised longing that $2 l l$ true vital artists must feel for that sublime figures the ruleroartist:
0.0 the artistolegislator who is able to throw the scum and dross of decadent civilisation back into the cmucible of life. in order to make men afresh according to a more healthy and more vigorous measure. 418

Besides Van Gogho Gauginoknew thet there was something nobler than the peasant, but did not lnow where to find himo And, in doing this they were only doing what the whole of Europe would soon be doing, as axt and life are intimately related the former indicating the direction life is teking: Gaugin was a man who felt more keenly than any other European of his day, according to Ludovicio the impossibility of consecrating his powers to the exaltation of the modern white man with whom he was contemporaneous. Comparatively early in life he faced the truth that the modern Eraropean。 could not and must not, be the "type" of the future. His parched thirst for a more positive 'type" drove him like a haunted explorer all over the world ${ }_{o}^{420}$ His influence was deep and lasting on Van Gogh ${ }^{421}$ Since Gaugin perceived the degeneracy of the highest subject of art, the civilised white man, he was really a vital artist without employment. Nevertheless, Gaugin and Van Gogh had probed deeply enough to see thet the wrongness of man had something to do with the wroneness of art itselin2

But, for Ludovici, although these two exceptions, "Van Gogh and Gaugin. saw the root of the cause of the degeneracy of art, impoverished life, they, and the impressionists, ${ }_{0}$ secessionists, and post-impressionists, had come and gone, without modifying the chaos of velues and degenorate manhood. This could only be remedied by 'ruler-artists" - which only Van Gogh and Gaugin saw the need of ${ }_{6}^{423}$

Auguste Rodin

Ludovici's great admiration for Van Gogh and Gaugin was. perhaps. over shadowed by his even greater admiration for the heroic personality and cesthetic vitalism of Auguste Rodin. $H_{i s}$ enconium of Auguste Rodin is chiefly to be found in Ludovici＇s Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin．published by John Plurray in 1926。 Chapters two to six of the latter were previously published by the Cornhill

Mepazine in July end August of 1923．December of 1925，and January and February of 1926＂

For Ludovici，Auguste Rodin＇s art was distinguished by its closeness to life．The Salon Committee were so puzzled by the extreme realism of the treatment and the perfection of Rodin＇s＂The Age of Bronze＂． that soneexpressedthe suspicion that the statue had been made from castes taken direct from life ${ }^{424}$ His＂Balzac＂statue cleaves the air like a living thing naturally springing from the soil 425 Ludovici writes of Rodin＇s＂Thinker＂statue as massive，powerful，and vital。 The big upper limbs hang heavily from the shoulders as if they were really of flesh and bone，＂the whole effect is one of prodigious though restrained vitality．${ }^{\text {i4 }} 426$

Ludovici also admired Rodin personally。 Especially，as his nature was one of＂a peculiar mixture of apparently irreconcilible extremes．＂${ }^{427}$ On the one hand，Rodin had strong monarchical sympathies 428 and on the other hand he revealed the most tender concern for the character and

Mnthony Mario Ludovici＂s＂Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin I＂。 Cornhill Magazine，Volume LV o No．325，New series，July 1923． pp． $1 \times 13$ wes reproduced as＂The First Impressions of Rodin＇s Home＂． Chapter If of his Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin （London：John Murray，1926），ppo 45－67；MPersonal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin II＂，Cornhill Magazine，Volume LV，－No． 326 ，nev series， August 1923．ppo．131－143 was reproduced as＂Rodin＇s Criticism of the Age＂Chapter III of Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin（London： John Murray，1926）ppo 68－89：＂Further Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin $I^{i \prime}$ 。 Cornhill Hagazine，Volume LTX - No． 354 ，New Series， December 1925，ppo $745-766$ was reproduced as＂Rodin as a Collector＂． Chapter IV of Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin（Iondon： John Murray，1926）pp．90－112；MFurther Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin II＂。Comhill Piagazine，Volume LX－No． 355 ，New Series， January 1926，pp．111－126，reproduced as＂Rodin as a Draughtsman＂。 Chapter $V$ of Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin（Londun： John Murray 1926）ppo 113－140：＂Further Personal Reminisconces of Auguste Rodin IIT＂Cornhill Marazine Volume LK－No． 356 ，New Series， February 1926，po． 213 －226，reproduced as＂Rodin the sculptor＂。 Chapter VI of Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin（London： John Murray，1926）。 pp。141－164． welfare of the comon foll：rather like Villiam Cobbetto and socialists，according to Ludovici．${ }^{429}$ In regexd to modern democratic assemblies，Rodin was as ruthless in his criticism as the＂most hide－bound Tory＂${ }^{430}{ }_{\circ}$ but appalled at the conditions of the working classes． 431 Rodin maintained that＇progress＇is society＇s wowst form of canto accordine to Ludovici＇s recollections of him ${ }_{0}^{432}$ Sometimes，according to Ludovici，Rodinn views would recall those of Cobbett，Ruskin，William Morris，or Sernuel Butlex．Particularly． When be spoke of the influence of machinery upon the masses of all modern industrial communities． 433 Rodin possessod a＂cold and logical realism？${ }^{3} 34$

Critics might have accused Rodin of not achieving a fidelity to nature。 but Rodin would have told them that he saw nature more vital，more highly energetic．than they did：＂He saw it as it is o that is to say alive with the sap of life running through its form（his itallics）o＂ In his＂La Pensee＂．Rodin had left the marble block on which the head reposes in a rough state，to see whether he could make the head so exuberantly alive，that it imparted vitality even to the inert mess： of marble beneath it． 435 In order to make his busts quiver with life， as though blood were pulsating beneath them Rodin deliberately added little nodules to them ${ }^{436}$ Ludovici joined Rodin，as his privato socrotary， When Rodin was sixty six years of age and yot ho still possessed the capacity to feel and to respond freshly and powerfully，in spite of advancing years，to the harmony of life and artion ${ }_{0}^{437}$ Rodin，like Ludovici，found his ideal in Greek classicism。 ${ }^{438}$ He was also an exnest and enthusiastic admirer of the Gothic 139 Ludovici reckoned that the evolution of sculpture from the ancient Greeks，via the Romans， to our own time，had reveeled，except for periods of decline，an evorincreasing fluidity and nervousness of form。 Rigidity and vigour gradually diminished，until vith Donatollo a more delicato and supple form was attained: "It is as if Christian civilisetion had multiplied and rarified the soul of humanity and enebled man to see certain things more sympathetically and less simply. 1440 Gudovici reckoned thet although Rodin appreciated this truth and aspired to the Greek clessicism of Pheidias in meny of his pieces. his natural vain lay in the direction of the Gothic ${ }^{441}$ in Rodin's sculpture there is a movemento a swing, a froedom which is more Gothic than classic. In Gothic sculpture, according to Ludovici o there is an intensity of animation and expression a restlessness of form and line, which is never encountered in the Greek or Roman. They, and the growth of natural science, represent part of the asceticism of $\operatorname{man}^{0} s$ grasp of life and nature for which the soulsearching cre ed of Christianity was responsible.4. The quality of repose in the sculpture of the ancient Greeks was a manifestation of the serenity which belongs to a people not yot disturbed by selfa doubt and self-contempt。43 Everything that had appeared in Europe since the fall of the Roman Enpire was more disturbing and nervous. Ludovici, thought Rodin was a supremely gifted exponent of this "strange accretion" received by the mind of man after the age of classic Greece。

Ilowever, Rodin saw life more piercingly that his predoccosore He discovered through hard manual toil and the incessant study of nature ${ }_{0}$ a "magic means" whereby what he saw could be adequately communicated o The first of these requires the understanding thet sculpture has been produced by a process the exect converse of nature 444 Nature works from Hithin, outwards ${ }_{\circ}^{445}$ This fact. recognised by Rodin, taught him Where the pitfalls in sculpture lay. Sculpture is the production of a form by periphoral processes, and is therefore the converse of nature's methoda A sculpture of a man is an object which has acquired shape from the outside, as if by coxrugations of its periphexy, whereas:
"A man is a conglomeration of cells ; that have grolm and pushed the air aside from an inner necessityo" Rodin reckoned that all ordinary sculpture retains the signs of having been formed from the outside. rather then of having cleaved the air in expanding. ${ }^{446}$ Rodin's object consisted in menipulating the medium of empression so as to produce by art a form that seemed to be created by natural lawso Rodin informed ludovici that it was only when he had succeeded in appreciating the difference between life and sculpture that he had begun to produce living sculpture:
.o. "Liook at every part of a given form", he would sayo "as the limit of a thickness rather than a surface in length, and every point in that fom as the extremity of a diameter directed at you, rather than as a slope or plain stretching across your line of vision and you will have grasped my method of seeing what I am modelling。"447

According to Rodin's criterion, Ludovici claimed to be able to distinguish between the flat sculpture of a poor sculptor and the work that breathed life ${ }_{p}$ that conveys vitality cubically - in thicknesses. 448 Rodin had not merely discovered a successful technique, but wrested a secret from life itselfa 449

Ludovici reckoned that superimposed on Rodin"s first "vital principle". that the sculptured form should have the qualities of natural form which consists in having grown outward from a centre of having invaded space from an inner necessity, which he achieved by disciplining himself "to feel and understand all the suxfaces of a form, not as planes in length ${ }_{0}$ but as extremities of diemeters pointing at him, as thicknesses vibrating with life through their whole form", was a second life principle - that of movement 450 His figures, already vital as the outcome of the first principle, are given the additional semblance of animation by being represented as carrying through a bodily movement 451 The sculptor seems doomed to represent only imobility: becuse apparently he cen seize only one movement in progression, and hes to give the anatomical conditions of that one movement. And。 if this is so, one of the principal cheracteristics of life is wholly beyond the reach of the grephic arts. But, Rodin had resolved it by realising that any atterpt to seize one movement alone in progression was fatal to the illusion of movemeni $i_{0}^{452}$ The method of the photograph is the wrong one if the object is to give the illusion of life and movement by a single image. The eye differs from the camera in being able to record without confusion the merging of one movement into another, the blending of one movement in progression with another movement. Two positions, therefore, conceived as one, give the impression of movement even in the static sculpture or in the draw outline. 453

With these vital artistic formulae Rodin could not fail to achieve extremely real representations of life. 454 Despite the extreme mobility of the features of Rodin's statue, "Victor Hugo", Ludovici writes.thatatevery point on its surface one is conscious of the diameter directed at one and receding backwards through living matter; the poriphcry of it appears to press outtrards from an inner necessity, and gives the illusion of life, although it has been formed from outaiacos 455

However, Rodin did more than study life sedulously and apply its principles to his art and urost from the living form the secret of its vital make-up, he vorshipped human beauty. ${ }^{456}$ Never does he present us with anything sick or degenerate, the exhausted ${ }^{\circ}$ type' of the modern world, which is freely chosen quite uncritically by less vigilant modern sculptors, All of his figures are patterms of health and vigover! ${ }^{456}$ They breathe youth and unspent energy. His 'taste' was healthy as he preferred gross splendour in human stature, rather than delicate and morbid-refinemento Iudovici culogised tho "power and quivering vitality of Rodin's art"458 He reckoned that it must be obvious to the student of Rodin's works that a diaperity exigts betweon the style of his plesters and bronzes and that of his marbles. This is due to the fact thet the marblos are chisselled interpretations by other artists, and do not come direct from Rodin's own hands: "The latter [marbles] are always smoother, bristle less with life, and show a shade less vigour than the former [plasters and bronzes $]$ - They retain his quivering vitality as through a veil." 459

Ludovici reckoned that as an artist Rodin ranked as the most thoughtful performer of his century。 $H_{i s}$ naturally robust constitution drove all his natives gifts to the limit of their development. Rodin became an "engine of such formidable power" that he casily towered above the greatest of his contempories ${ }^{460}$ As a sculptor Ludovici thought Rodin was certainly the freatest product of the purely Gothic tradition. And his works the finest exemple, in his century of the successful attempt to free the plastic medium from the limitations inherent in it. 461 He portrayed the living form os no other sculptor of his century succeeded in portraying it. 462

Ludovici cautioned us not to confound Rodin's opposition to official art with that of the impressionist painters ${ }_{5}^{463}$ Rodin was much too earnest an admirex of Creek classicism to be able to desire the impressionists ${ }^{\text {a }}$ prescription。 He was, however, an avowed encmy of the pseudomGreek classicism of his day? 464 hilst technical reforms took a very valuable and inportant place vith Roding unlike the impressionists" they were used for the purpose of attaining to greater fidelity in the representation of the living form: whey aimed at rescuing the living form from people who had become mere caricaturists in merble and stone. 4045 Rodin never dignified technical innovations withthestatus of ultimate desiderate。 They were always subordinated to his greatest object, which wae the artistic representetion of life itself. Rodin did not mock the academicians tho hed made the subject picture and the subject sculpture an absurdly inadequate representation by banishing the subject altogether $\mathrm{r}_{0}$ as the impressionists had, but showed how the subject picture could be so reverantly treated as to be honourably restored to its proper place in the plastic arts. ${ }^{466}$ He rescued the discredited subject from the ignominy into which it had fallen, and in so doing ultimately triumphed in teaching the ${ }^{\circ}$ Graeco-Iatin ${ }^{8}$ academicians what true Greek clessicism was. He embodied in his sculpture the "principles which made not only Greek but also Gothic sculpture the living thing that it is o" 467

The impressionists were typical of their age. opportunists and democrats. who sacrificed evexy institution that is discredited not through any fault inherent in its natureg but through those who mismanage it, rather thanreconstitutingit and constructively restoring it In contrast, Rodin never claimed that he had introduced anything fresh, but that he had rediscovered what the Greeks and the Gothics had possessed, and what his contempories entirely lacked: "He read the secret of the life that animated the antiqueor 468 Rodin had played the most valuable and important part in the great movement Which, beginning about the year $1860_{0}$ continued until the advent of the oubists and futurists, because it led back to life and humanity, and, above all, to a healthy view of both 469 Rather than call Rodin the sculptor of impressionism, Ludovici preferred to class Rodin as a mediacvalistic reactionary:
oovho, with all the thoroughness and ardour of the medjeeval artist in his constitution, strove to reoostablish in modern France the spirit rhich hed ruled his ancestors of the thirteenth and fourteonth centuries. 470

Frije 701e,
Ludovici reckoned Bmile Zola, with his "robust realism", had long bofore the twentieth century supplied the clue to tho solution of the role of the subject in art when, in 1866 , he had said: "UTne oeuvre d'art est un coin de la creation va a travers un temperamento" Ludovici claimed that Zola had described the first essential stage in every artistic inspiration. A part of life as seen through an artist's temperament is indeed the detonator of the whole concatenation of events culminating in the completed work and giving art its validity 471

Augustus John and Frederick Catchpole

Iudovici liked the art of Augustus John because he sought for represen tation the finest and healthiest 'type' of men or women, and found joy only in the expression of that "type". He declered his vital
'taste' in humanity。 Similarly, Ludovici thought Frederick Catchpole perticularly good becauce of the vitality of his ants "He has a great command of his medium and his people are all breathing and alive." 472

Now, as I hope to heve demonstrated in this chapter, Ludovici adopted his vital aesthetic from Nietzsche, and it formed the basin for his critique of modern art. He conrused his political with his "eesthetic" cetegories in a totelitarian concention of culture and art which is fascist. He believed that culture and art are peculiar to different races and of vital significance to their life。 The latter comprises Ludovici＇s rationale for an authoritarian direction of national culture and art。 He intended that his fascist conception of culture and art be regerded as conservative．

I shall conclude this chapter by demonstrating that Lidovici believed his desiderata of culture and artwere fulfilled in Netional Socialist Germeny．Ludovici thought that one of the elements in national socialism which owe their inspiration to Nietasche＂＂and bear in mind not only adolf Hitler＇s sincere and emest admiration of Nietzsche＇s philosophy and his great friendship with Frau Forster－Nietzsche Nietzsche＇s sister，but also Alfred Rosenberg＇s strong sympathy with the Nietzscheian outlook＂。 was its ideal of culture．${ }^{473}$ Ludovici believed that in the National Socialist view of culture we are left in no doubt regarding the profound influence Nietzsche was exerting over his native country ${ }^{474}$ At the Nuremberg Opera House on September 9．1936，Ludovici thought Hitlerhadmade it quite clear that he could not regard art as an international affair：
> $000^{\prime \prime} 211$ this chatter of internationalism in Art is as idiotic as it is dangeroust＂．He argued that since Art is the expression of e people＇s life and the bloom on the tree of their values，and that ＂ro man con boar any intimato rolation to any cultural achievement which does not have its roots in his ow origins and soil＂it is as ridiculous to expect a notional Artoproduct to heve international validity or to make the same appeal everywhere，as to suppose that a Geman or an English national can feel the same emotions when reading another nation＇s history as when reading his own。475

Bitler concluded thet culture is invariably the product of discipline andauthority within a particular national unit．ludovici thought thet Fitler in upholding thet culture invariably springs from the work of the legislator who fixst establishes the vital valucs of a people, that culture is the "civilised product of political leadership" ${ }^{\text {and }}$ "just as a Christian Age could have only a Christian Art, so a National-Socialist Age could have only a National-Socialist art'", was a pereectly consistent Nietzscheano 476
Ludovici believed that Hitler, in explaining the truth that any art which is independent of the vital values of the people anong which it finds its being is of minor importance, was following Wietzsche:
"No people could live", said Nietzsche, "that did not in the first place value。 If it ©ould mointain itself; however, it must not value as its neighbour doth... velues did man stamp upon things only that he might preserve himself."

To have the same art as everybody else, therefore ${ }_{0}$ would be to value as everybody else values, and this to a people means their deatho the idea of an internationel art in present day conditions is erroneous: homogeneity of "type" and values is still remote: "rwhat does all art do?" Nietzsche asks. "does it not praise? Does it not glorify? Does it not select? Does it not bring into prominence? In each of these cases it weakens or strengthens certain valuations?n947. According to Ludovici, Hitler had made it plain that his om and his colleagues ${ }^{\circ}$ efforts were concentrated on restoring to the German people the traditions of their nation, their characteristic institutions and values, out of which a National-Socialist art would necessarily grow. as did a JudaeomGraeco-Christian art out of a Europe made homogeneous in spirit by the Hellenistic, Jewish and other values spread by the early Churcho Here again, Ludovici thought Hitler and the NationalSocialistswere fulfilling Nietzsche's promise, and quoted Nietzsche to reinforce his claims:
"The essential thing in heaven and earth": said Nietzsche, "is apparently that thexe should be long obedience in the same direction: that there comes about and has alwoys come about in the long run somethin which has made life vorth living - for instance, virtue, art, music, dancing, 000 spiritualityo etcoo... Even the beauty of a race or family, the pleasentness and kindness of their whole demeanour, is acquired by effort: like genius it is the final rosult of the accumulated labour of generations。10478

Again, in Hitler's insistence on beauty in his same address of September 90 1936, at the Opera House in Nuremberg, Ludovici thought Hitler revealed the Nietzschean influence in his vital outlook:

> We of the National-Socialist Paxty love health". he declared, "The best of our nation"s stock, in body and soul gives us our standard, and all we demand from our art is the glorificiation of this standard. The first precepts of our beauty will always be health. 479

Ludovici thought Nietzsche was writing the same as the above as early as 1888:
From the physiological stand pointo everything ugly weakens and depresses man. It reminds him of danger, decay, impotence... Ugliness is understood to signify a hint and a symptom of degenerations: that which reminds us however remotely of degeneracyo impels us to the judgement ${ }^{0} u g l y$ "。oo A certain hatred expresses itself here. What is it that man hates? Nithout a doubt it is the decline of his type. In this respect his hetred springs from the deepest instincts of the race: There is, however caution. profundity and faroreaching vision in this hatred o it is the most profound hatred that exists. On its account alone Art is profound. 4880

Ludovici thought that the emphasis Hitler made on this prerequisite beauty, the way he linked it up with the demands he made of a vital national art, and his idea that the best of his nation's stock should be the vital standard glorified by the national art, warranted his acceptance as a Mietzschean: :
.oo.ll the elements in his memorable address. dom to the very notion of a national Art as the gloxifier of a type, reveal him and his associates not merely as a new and potent force for the sanitation of Euxopean humanity (a force which is ceven now inspiring our oim people), but also certainly as followers of Nietzsche. or , to put it moderately as influenced by the poetophilosophers teachings. 481

1. Albert Ludovici Jnr., An Artist's Life in London and Paris, 18701925) (London: J. Fisher Unwin, 1925), p.9.
2. Frederic Bouse, Modern English Biography (2nd impression; London: Frank Cass, 1965).
.3. Richard.Sickert, "Mr. Albert Ludovici Jnr.[Obituary]," letter to The Times, March 26,1932, p.15.
3. Frederic Bouse, op.cit.
4. Grant M. Walters, Dictionary of British Artists; Working 1900-1950 ( (Eastbourne: Eastbourne Fine Art, 1975).
5. Albert Ludovici Jnr., op.cit., p. 70.
6. Richard Sickert, loc.cit.
7. Grant M. Walters, op.cit.
8. Albert Ludovici Jnr., op.cit., pp.53-54.
9. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "The Crisis in Modern Art [Review of Professor Wladimir Weidle's The Dilemma of the Arts (SCM Press LEd)]," New English Weekly, Volume xxxiv, No. 13, January 6, 1949, pp. 152-153.
10. ibid., p. 152.
11. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Dr. Oscar Levy [Obituary]," New English Weekly \& New Age, Volume xxx, No. 7 , November $14,194 \overline{6,}$, 49 .
12. Philip Mairet, A.R. Orage: A Memoir, (London: J.M. Dent, 1936), p. 50 .
13. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "A.R. Orage [Obituary],"New English Weekly, November 15, 1934; quoted in Paul Selver, Orage and the 'New Age' Circle, Reminiscences and Reflections (London: George Allen & Unwin, 1959), pp. 88-89.
14. A.R. Orage, "Letter" to Anthony Mario Ludovici, May 18, 1917; quoted in Wallace Martine, The New Age under Orage (Manchester University Press, 1967), p.194.
15. Rodney Barker, Political Ideas in Modern Britain (London: Methuen, 1978), pp.128-129.
16. Wallace Martine, op. cit. p. 213.
17. Philip Mairet, op.cit. p. 42 .
18. ibid. p. 109.
19. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Social Credit Today and Tomorrow," 1etter to the New English Weekly & New Age, Volume xvii, No. 1, April 25, 1940 , p. 15 .
20. Wyndham Lewis, "Epstein and his Critics, or Nietzsche and his Friends," Letter to the New Age, Volume XIV, No. 10, January 8, 1914, p. 319.
21. T.E. Hulme, "Mr. Epstein and the Critics," New Age, Volume XIV, No. 8, December 25, 1913, p. 252.
22. R.B. Kerr, Our Prophets [Studies of Living Writers] (Croydon: R.B. Kerr, 1932), pp. $84=85$.
23. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p. 261.
24. ibid., p. 262.
25. ibid.
26. idem, A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), pp. 38-39.
27. idem., "Review of M. Halevy, The Life of Friedrich Nietzsche; with an introduction by J.K. Kettle and translated by J.M. Hone (J. Fisher Unwin)," New Age, Volume VIII, No.17, February 23, 1911, p. 403.
28. idem, "Art: Nietzsche, Culture and Plutocracy," New Age, Volume XIV, No. 13, January 1914, p. 412.
29. Friedrich Nietzache, Early Greek Philosophy & Other Essays, translated by A. Mugge, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Oscar Levy, 18 vols., (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1911), Volume II; p.80-81.
30. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Notes"! to Friedrich Nietzsche, Thus Spake Zarathustra, translated by Thomas Common, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols., (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909), Volume XI: p.421.
31. ibid. p. 419.
32. Dr. Oscar Levy, "Introduction" to Anthony Mario Ludovici's Who is to be Master of the World? An Introduction to the Philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche (Edinburgh and Loñdon: T.N. Foulis, 1909), pp.ix-x.
33. ibid., p.xii.
34. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Who is to be Master of the World? An Introduction to the Philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche, with introduction by Dr. Oscar Levy, (Edinburgh and London: T.N. $\mathrm{Fo}^{\mathrm{u}} \mathrm{lis}$, 1909), p.74.
35. ibid., p.86.
36. ibid., p. 77.
37. ibid.,p. 82 .
38. ibid.,p.111.
39. Anthony Mario Gudovici, Nietzsche: his life and works, preface by Dr. Oscar Levy, (London: Constable, 1910), p.46.
40. ibid., pp.91-92.
41. idem., "Translator's Preface" to Friedrich Nietzsche, The Twilight of the Idols, the Antichrist, Eternal Recurrence, Notes to Zarathustra, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18. vols, (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1911), Vol. XVI; p.x.
42. ibid., p.xv.
43. idem., Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition (London: William Heinemann, 1921), p. 224.
44. idem, Woman. A.Vindication (London: Constable, 1923), p. 10.
45. idem, "Army Officers and Saluting," New Eng1ish Weekly & New Age, Volume XVIII, No. 21, March 13, 1941, p. 241.
46. idem, "Social Values," Letter to the New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XXI, No. 22., September 17, 1942, p.180.
47. idem., "Values," Letter to the New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XXI., No. 22, September 17, 1942, p. 180.
48. idem, "Dr. Dewey on the Responsibility of Philosophy [Review of Dr. Dewey, Problems of Man (New York: Philosophical Library, 1946)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Volume Xxx, No. 2, October 24, 1946, p. 17.
49. idem, "My Main Divergence from Nietzsche," Appendix 1 of Enemies of Women, The origins in outline of Anglo-Saxon feminism (London: Carroll & Nicholson, 1948), p. 175.
50. ibid., p. 180.
51. idem., The Specious Origins of Liberalism; the genesis of a delusion (London: Britons, 1967), p.175.
52. idem., "Public Opinion in England (XVI)," South African Observer, Volume XII, No.5, (February 1967), p. 14.
53. Arthur Schopenhauer, Complete Works, Volume V, Chapter VIII, Paragraph 14; quoted in ibid.
54. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Specious Origins of Liberalism; the genesis of a delusion (London: Britons, 1967), p.175.
55. idem, Mansel Fellowes [A novel], (London: Grant Richards, 1918), p. 252 .
56. ibid., p. 269.
57. idem., Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition (London: William Heinemann, 1921), p. 221.
58. idem, Catherine Doy1e; the romance of a thrice-married lady (London: Hưtchinison [1919]), p.16.
59. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "The Sonderbund Exhibition at Cologne -II," New Age, Volume XI, No. 15, August 8, 1912, p. 348.
60. Friedrich Nietzsche, On the Future of Our Educational Institutions. Homer and Classical Philology, translated with an introduction by J.M. Kennedy, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols., (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909), Volume III: p.4.
61. Friedrich Nietzsche, Early Greek Philosophy & Öther Essays, translated by Maximilian A. Mugge, in The Complete Work of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols. (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1911), Volume II; p.77.
62. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Translator's Preface" to Friedrich Nietzsche, The Will to Power, Books III and IV, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols. (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1910), Volume XV; pp.xiii-ix.
63. ibid., pp.xiv-xv.
64. ibid.: $\mathrm{p} . \mathrm{xv}$.
65. idem, "Translator's Preface" to Friedrich Nietzsche, The Case of Wagner, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols., (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1911), Volume VIII: pp.ix-x.
66. ibid., p.xi.
67. ibid., p. xiii.
68. ibid., p. xiv.
69. idem., "Translator's Preface" to Friedrich Nietzsche'spreface to the thirdvedition of his The Case of Wagner, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols., (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1911), Vol. VIII; p.xxi.
70. ibid., p.xxii.
71. ibid., p.xxiii.
72. ibid., p. xxxv.
73. ibid., p.xxv.
74. idem, Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p.viff.
75. ibid. p.4.
76. ibid. p.5.
77. ibid. p. 12 .
78. idem., Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thricemarried lady (London: Hutchinson [1919]), p. 17.
79. Anon, "Nietzsche's Criticism of Wagner Review of Friedrich Nietzsche's The Case Against Wagner and Nietzische contra Wagner, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, (T.N. Foulis) $]$," Nation, July 9, 1910, p. 534.
80. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Nietzsche and Art, (London: Constable, 1911), p.15ff.
81. ibid., p.21.
82. ibid., pp.99-100.
83. ibid. p. 103.
84. ibid., p.119.
85. idem., "The Sonderbund Exhibition at Cologne," New Age, Volume XI, No. 13., July 25, 1912, p. 307.
86. ibid.
87. idem., "The Sonderbund Exhibition at Cologne - $\mathrm{II}_{\mathrm{s}}$ " New Age, Vọlume XI, No.15., August 8, 1912, p. 348.
88. idem., "Art: The Pot-Boiler Paramount," New Age, Volume XII, No.3., November 21, 1912, p. 67.
89. idem., "Art: The Royal Institute of Oil Painters and the Royal Society of Painters in Water Colours," New Age, Volume XII, No.4, November 28, 1912, p. 89.
90. idem, "Art: A Question of Finish," New Age, Volume XII, No. 21, March 27. 1913, p. 508.
91. idem, "The Hundred and Forty-Fifth Royal Academy," New Age, Volume XIII, No. 4; May 22, 1913, p. 96.
92. idem, "Introductory Essay on Van Gogh and his Art," in Vincent Van Gogh, The Letters of a Post-Impressionist, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, (London: Constable, 1912); p.xi.
93. ibid., p.xii.
94. ibid., p.xv.
95. ibid., p.xvi.
96. ibid., p.xviii.
97. ibid., p.xix.
98. ibid., p.xx.
99. ibid., p.xxxii.
100. idem., Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin (London: John Murray, 1926), p.168.
101. ibid.,pp.190-191.

103, idem., "Ananda K. Coomaraswañy," New English Week1y, Volume XXXII, no., 9, December11, 1947, p.83.
104. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Confusion in the Arts," Contemporary Review, Volume 192, August 1957, p. 106.
105. ibid., p. 107.
106. ibid., p. 108.
107. ibid., p. 110.
108. Immanuel Kant, Kritik Der Urteilskraft (Bruno Erchmann Edit; 1880 ), pp. $39-45$; cited in Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Public Opinion in England (XXIV)," South African Observer, Volume XIII, No.5, February, 1968, p.12.
109. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p.12.
110. George F.W. Hegël, Vorlesungen Neber Aesthetick, (Dritter Abschnitt); quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid.
111. Arthur Schopenhauer, Die Welt als Wille und Vorstellung, Volume I, Book 3, Para.52; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici., ibid.
112. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 13.
113. idem., "Public Opinion in England (XXV)," South African Observer, Volume XIII, No.6, March 1968, pp.12-13.
114. ibid., p. 13.
115. ibid., p. 12.
116. idem., "Cant at the Tate Gallery," New Age, Volume XI, No. 17, August 22, 1912, p. 404.
117. idem., Personal Reminiscences of Augusta Rodin (London: John Murray, 1926),pp.178-179.
118. ibid., p.81.
119. ibid., footnote to p.182.
120. idem., "Confusion in the Arts," Contemporary Review, Volume 192, August 1957, p. 108.
121. David Valentine [pseud. Anthony Mario Ludovici], Roet's Trumpeter (London: Jonathan Cape, 1939), p. 31.
122. ibid., pp.68-69.
123. ibid., pp. 76-77.
124. ibid., p.25.
125. ibid., p. 27.
126. ibid., p. 32.
127. ibid., p.33.
128. ibid., p. 34.
129. ibid., p. 63.
130. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), pp.232-233.
131. idem., Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p. 51.
132. ibid., p.47.
133. ibid., p.45-46.
134. ibid., p.37.
135. ibid., p.43.
136. ibid., p. 45.
137. ibid., pp.46-47.
138. ibid., pp.49-50.
139. ibid., p. 52.
140. ibid., p. 176.
141. ibid., p. 181.
142. ibid., p. 187.
143. idem., The Goddess that Grew Up (London: Hutchinson, [1922]), p. 247 .
144. ibid., p. 248.
145. idem., Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p. 189.
146. idem, Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thrice-married lady (London: Hutchinson, $[1919]$ ), pp.22-23.
147. ibid., p. 222.
148. idem, Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin (London: John Murray, 1926), p.170.
149. ibid, p. 173.
150. idem, "Ananda K. Coomaraswamy," New English Week1y, Volume XXXII, No.15, December 11, 1947, p.83.
151. idem, "Personality in Statesmanship," South African Observer, Volume 1, No.7, November 1955, p. 12.
152. idem, "Public Opinion in England (XXVII)," South African Observer, Volume XII, No.8, June 1968, p. 12.
153. ibid., p. 13.
154. idem, Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin (London: John Murray, 1926) p. 170.
155. ibid., p. 174.
156. ibid., pp.174-175.
157. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin (London: John Murray, 1926), p.81.
158. ibid., p:80.
159. idem., Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p. 54.
160. ibid., p. 55.
161. ibid., p.56.
162. idem, "Introductory Essay on Van Gogh and his Art," in Vincent Van Gogh, The Letters of a Post-Impressionist, translated by Anthony Marióo Ludovici, (London: Constable, 1912), p.xvii.
163. idem., Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition (London: William Heinemann, 1921), p. 84.
164. idem, Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p.93.
165. ibid., pp.94-95.
166. ibid., pp.95-96.
167. ibid., p. 57.
168. ibid.
169. ibid., pp.57-58.
170. ibid., p. 58.
171. ibid., p.59.
172. ibid., p. 60.
173. idem, "Public Opinion in England (XXIII)," South African Observer, Volume XXXIII, No.4, January 1968, p.13.
174. idem, Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), p. 163.
175. idem, "Art: Raw Material at the Dudley Galleries," New Age, Volume XIII, No.24, October 9, 1913, p. 703.
176. idem, Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p.vii.
177. ibid. p. 143.
178. ibid.,p. 162 .
179. ibid., p. 168.
180. idem, Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin (London: John Murray, 1926), p. 171.
181. idem, The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), pp.253-254.
182. idem, "Public Opinion in England (XXIII)," South African observer, Volume XIII, No. 4., January 1968, p.13.
183. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Mansel Fellowes [A novel] (London:
Grant Richards, 1918), p.44.
184. ibid., p.48.
185. ibid., p. 159.
186. idem., "Nietzsche and Art," Letter to the New Age, Volume IX, No. 19, September 7, 1911, p.455.
187. ibid., pp.454-455.
188. idem, "The Sonderbund Exhibition at Cologne - II," New Age, Volume XI, No.15, August 8, 1912, p.348.
189. idem., "Art: The Little Gallery and the Fine Arts Society," New Age, Volume XIV, No. 1, November 6, 1913, p. 24.
190. idem, "Art: A Question of Finish," New Age, Volume XII, No. 21 , March 27, 1913, p.508.
191. idem, French Beans (London: Hutchinson, [1923]), p.186.
192. David Calentine [pseud. Anthony Mario Ludovici], Poet's Trumpeter (London: Jonathan Cape, 1939), p. 90.
193. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), pp.38-76.
194. ibid., p.46.
195. ibid., p.47.
196. ibid., p.48.
197. ibid., p.49.
198. ibid., p. 50.
199. ibid., p. 51.
200. ibid., p. 52.
201. ibid., pp.52-53.
202. ibid., p.53.
203. idem., Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p.185;
quoted in ibid., p.54.
204. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 55 .
205. ibid., p.56ff.
206. idem., Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p.viii.
207. ibid., p. 125.
208. ibid., pp.144-145.
209. Anthony Mario Ludovioi, Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thricemarried lady (London: Hutchinson, [1919]), pp. 32-33.
210. idem, Too 01d for Dolls, A novel (London: Hutchinson, [1920]), p. 200.
211. ibid., pp. 200-201.
212. ibid., p. 201.
213. idem, "Young Woodley," English Review, Volume 46, May 1928, p. 556 .
214. idem, Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p.63.
215. ibid., p. 66.
216. ibid., pp:69-70.
217. ibid., pp. 70-71.
218. ibid., pp.74-75.
219. ibid., p. 120.
220. ibid., pp.120-121.
221. ibid., p.128.
222. ibid.,pp. 128-129.
223. ibid., p.131.
224. ibid., p. 32 .
225. ibid., p. 168 ff.
226. ibid., p. 177.
227. ibid., p. 179.
228. ibid., pp.180-181.
229. ibid., p, 186.
230. ibid., p. 187.
231. ibid., p. 190.
232. ibid., p. 191.
233. ibid., p.199.
234. ibid., pp.209-210.
235. ibid., pp.211-212.
236. ibid. , p. 218.
237. ibid., p.219.
238. ibid., p. 235.
239. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p. 18.
240. ibid., p. 24.
241. ibid., footnote to p. 24.
242. ibid., p. 24.
243. idem, A Defence of Aristocracy, A Text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p.317.
244. ibid., p.431.
245. ibid., pp.430-431.
246. ibid., pp.431-432.
247. idem, "Art: The Gordon Craig Theatre," New Age, Volume XI, No. 21, September 19, 1912, p.498.
248. idem, "Art: Mr. Bergson's Views," New Age, Volume XI, No. 23, October 23, 1912, p. 548.
249. idem, "Art: The Modern Society of Portrait Painters at the Royal Institute," New Age, Volume XII, No.15, February 13, 1913, p. 358 .
250. idem, "Arts Over Production in the Graphic Arts," New Age, Volume XIII, No.22, September 25, 1913, p.639.
251. idem, "Introductory Essay on Van Gogh and his Art," in Vincent Van Gogh, The Letters of a Post-Impressionist, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, (London: Constable, 1912), pp. xxix - xxx.
252. ibid., p.xxxv.
253. ibid., pp. x1iii-xliv.
254. idem., Gatherine Doyle: the romance of a thricemarried 1ady (London: Hutchinson [1919]), pp.127-128.
255. idem. The False Assumption of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921], pp. 204-205.
256. idem, Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition (London: William Heinemann, 1921 ), p. 232.
257. ibid., p. 235 ff.
258. ibid., p. 236.
259. ibid., p. 241.
260. idem. , The Goddess that Grew Up (London: Hutchinson, $[1922]$ ), pp. 29-30.
261. ibid., p. 30.
262. idem., Lysistrata; or, Woman's Future and Future Woman (London: Kegan Paul, [1924], p. 110.
263. idem., Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p. 298.
264. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Eugenics and Consanguineous Marriage," Eugenics Review, Volume XXV, No. 3., (October 1933), p.147.
265. idem, The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), p. 168.
266. ibid., p. 189.
267. ibid., pp.344-387.
268. ibid., p. 348.
269. ibid., p. 356.
270. ibid., p. 362.
271. ibid., pp.365-366.
272. ibid., p. 375.
273. ibid., pp.484-485.
274. idem., "Thorstein Veblen [Review of Thorstein Veblen and this America, by Joseph Dortman (New York: Viking Press 1940)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XXVII, No.6., May 24, 1945, p.61.
275. David Valentine [pseud. Anthony Mario Ludovici], Poet's Trumpeter (London: Jonathan Cape, 1939), p.75.
276. ibid., p. 105.
277. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "India and the Western World," in K. Bharatha Lyer ed., Art and Thought. Issued in honour of Dr . Ananda K. Coomaraswamy on the occasion of his 70 th birthday (London: Luzacs, 1947), p.238.
278. ibid., p. 239.
279. ibid., p. 240.
280. ibid., p. 241.
281. ibid., p. 242.
282. idem., "The Essentials of Good Government," South African Observer, Volume X, No.6., (January (1965), p. 14.
283. idem., "Art: The Gordon Craig Theatre," New Age, Volume XI, No. 21, September 19, 1912, p.498.
284. idem., The False Assumption of "Democracy"(London: Heath Cranton, [1921]) ; p. 117 .
285. idem., Lysistrata; or, Woman's Future and Future Woman (London: Kegan Paul, $[1924]$, p. 25.
286. ibid., p. 26.
287. idem., Creation or Recreation (London: The First of St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, 1934), p.5.
288. ibid., p. 10 .
289. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Creation or Recreation (London: The First of St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, 1934), p.11.
290. ibid., p.12.
291. ibid., pp.12-13.
292. ibid., p. 15.
293. ibid., p.16-17.
294. ibid., p.17.
295. ibid., p. 20.
296. ibid., p. 22 .
297. ibid., pp22-23.
298. ibid., p. 23.
299. ibid., p. 24.
300. ibid., pp.26-27.
301. ibid., p. 30 .
302. ibid., p. 31 .
303. ibid., p.32.
304. ibid., p. 34.
305. ibid., pp.34-35.
306. ibid., p. 35 .
307. ibid., p. 36.
308. idem., Recovery, The quest of regenerate national values (London; St. James.'s Kin of the English Mistery, 1935), p. 3.
309. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p. 6 .
310. ibid., p.7.
311. ibid., pp.16-16.
312. ibid., p.17.
313. ibid., p. 23.
314. ibid., p. 181.
315. idem., "Art; Raw Material at the Dudley Galleries," New Age, Volume XIII, No. 24 , October 9, 1913, p. 703.
316. idem., Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), pp.v-vi.
317. ibid., pp.9-10.
318. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), pp.v-vi.
319. idem., "The Politics of Charles A. Beard [Review of Charles A. Beard's The Economic Basis of Politics (Alfred Knopf, New York)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XXVIII, No. 10, December 20, 1945, p.94.
320. idem., "Art: An Open Letter to my Friends," New Age, Volume XIV, No. 9, January 1, 1914, p. 280.
321. ibid., p. 281.
322. idem., Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p. 171.
323. idem., The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921], pp.11.-27.
324. ibid. p. 12.
325. ibid., p. 14.
326. idem., "Introductory Essay on Van Gogh and his Art," in Vincent Van Gogh, The Letters of a Post-Impressionist, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici. (London: Constable, 1912), p. 171.
327. idem., "Review of Woman, Theme and Variation, by A. CorbettSmith (Noel Douglas), "New English Weekly, Volume I, No.7., June 2, 1932, pp. 155-156.
328. idem., "The Arts and Crafts Exhibition at the Grosvenor Gallery," New Age, Völume XIT, No. 13., January 30, 1913, p. 305.
329. idem., "Art: The Art of India - III," New Age, Volume XIV, No. 19, March 24, 1914, p.599.
330. Friedrich Nietzsche, Early Greek Philosophy & Other Essays, translated by Maximilian A. Mugge, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche; ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols., (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1911), Vol. II: p.7.
331. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p.v.
332. ibid., pp.vii-viii.
333. ibid., p.vii.
334. ibid., p. 75.
335. ibid., pp.75-76.
336. ibid., p.76.
337. ibid., p. 77.
338. ibid., p. 79.
339. ibid., p. 80.
340. ibid., p. 87.

```
341. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p.88.
```

342. ibid., pp.89-90.
343. ibid., p. 91.
344. ibid., p. 96.
345. ibid., pp.114-115.
346. ibid., p. 115.
347. ibid., p.118.
348. ibid., p. 130.
349. ibid., pp.131-132.
350. ibid., pp.134-135.
351. ibid., p. 135.
352. ibid., p. 137.
353. ibid., p. 140.
354. ibid., p. 148.
355. ibid., p. 169.
356. ibid., pp.ix-x.
357. ibid., p. 223.
358. ibid., p. 226.
359. ibid., p. 228.
360. ibid., p. 229.
361. ibid., p. 232.
362. ibid., p. 234.
363. ibid., pp.234-235.
364. idem., "Art: White Roses at the Stafford and the Carfax Galleries,"
New Age, Volume XI, No. 25, October 17, 1912, p. 596.
365. idem., "Art: The Poster-Impressionist Exhibition," New Age,
Volume XIII, No.18, August 28, 1913, p. 521.
366. idem., "Art: The Goupil, The Alpine Club, and the Dorien Galleries," New Age, Volume XIV, No. 5, December 4, 1913, p.152-153.
367. ibid., p. 153.
368. idem, "Art: The Curtax Street, the Suffolk Street; and the Twenty-One Galleries," New Age, Volume XIV, No. 7 , December 18, 1913, p. 213.
369. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Art: An Open Letter to my Friends," New Age, Volume XIV, No.9., January 1, 1914, p.279.
370. ibid., p. 280.

371. idem., "Introductory Essay on Van Gogh and his Art," in Vincent Van Gogh, The Letters of a Post-Impressionist, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, (London: Constable, 1912), p.xx.

372. ibid., p.xxxvii..
373. Theognis [pseud. Anthony Mario Ludovici]," Happiness and Social Reform," Oxford Fortnightly, Volume III, No.9., November 13, p.6.
374. ibid., pp.8-9.
375. ibid., p.9.
376. ibid., p. 10.
377. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p.3.
378. ibid.,p.4.
379. ibid., footnote to p.4.
380. ibid., p. 24.
381. ibid., pp.27-28.
382. ibid., p. 28.
383. ibid., pp.29-30.
384. ibid., p. 98.
385. ibid., p. 169.
386. ibid., p. 170.
387. ibid.. p. 171.
388. ibid., p. 240.
389. ibid., p. 241.
390. ibid., p.242.
391. ibid., pp.244-245.
392. ibid., p. 248.
393. ibid., p. 251.
394., ibid., p. 254.
394. ibid., p257.
395. ibid., pp.395-396.
396. ibid., p. 418 .
397. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p.419.
398. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 40 .
399. ibid., p. 41.
400. ibid., pp.41-42.
401. idem., "The Sonderbond Exhibition at Cologne," New Age, Volume XI, No. 13, July 25, 1912, p. 307.
402. idem., "The Sonderbund Exhibition at Cologne - II," New Age, Volume XI, No.15, August 8, 1912, p. 348.
403. idem., "Art: The Royal Institute of Oil Painters and the Royal Society of Painters in Water Colours," New Age, Volume XII, November 28, . 1912, , p. 90.
404. idem., "Introductory Essay on Van Gogh and his Art," in Vincent Van Gogh, The Letters of a Post-Impressionist; translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, (London: Constable, 1912), p.x.
405. ibid., p.xvii.
406. ibid., pp.xx-xxi.
407. ibid., p.xxvii.
408. ibid., p.xxi.
409. ibid., p.xxvii.
410. ibid., p.xxix.
411. ibid., pp.xxxi-xxxii.
412. ibid., p.xxxi,
413. ibid., p.xxxiii.
414. ibid., p.xxxiv.
415. ibid., p.xxxvi.
416. ibid., p.xxxv.
417. ibid., p.xxxvii.
418. ibid.
419. ibid., p.xii.
420. ibid., pp.x ${ }^{1} i\left(-{ }^{1}{ }^{1 i i}\right.$.
421. idem., Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin (London: John Murray, 1926), p.176.
422. ibid., p.175.
423. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Personal Reminíscences of Auguste Rodin (London: John Murray, 1926), p. 12.
424. ibid., p. 31.
425. ibid., p. 38 .
426. ibid., p. 59.
427. ibid., p.59-60.
428. ibid., p. 60.
429. ibid., pp.60-61.
430. ibid., p. 61.
431. ibid., p. 81 .
432. ibid., pp.81-82.
433. idem., "Review of Rodin, Immortal Peasant, by Anita Lesley (Herbert Joseph)," New Pioneer, No.13., December 1939, p. 314.
434. idem., Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin (London: John Murray, 1926), p. 71.
435. ibid., pp.71-72.
436. ibid., p. 89.
437. ibid., p.96.
438. ibid., p. 144.
439. ibid., p.145.
440. ibid., p. 146.
441. ibid., p. 148.
442. ibid., pp.148-149.
443. ibid., pp.149-150.
444. ibid., p. 150.
445. ibid., pp.150-151.
446. ibid., pp.151-152.
447. ibid., pp.152-153.
448. ibid., p. 153.
449. ibid., pp.154-155.
450. ibid., p. 155.
451. ibid., pp.156-157.
452. ibid., pp.157-158.
453. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin (London: John Murray, 1926), p.159.
454. ibid., p. 160 .
455. ibid., pp.161-162.
456. ibid., pp.162-163.
457. idem., "Auguste Rodin's Art [Review of The Sculptures of Auguste Rodin, 119 Reproductions in Monochrome Photogravure, with a life and review of his work by Somerville Storey, and a Catalogue Raissone by Georges Grappe, (Allen & Unwin, 1939)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XVIII, No.22, March 20, 1941, p.258.
458. ibid., p. 259.
459. idem., Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin (London: John Murray, 1926), pp.163-164.
460. ibid., p. 164.
461. ibid., p. 164.
462. ibid., p.184.
463. ibid., p. 185.
464. ibid., p. 187.
465. ibid., p. 188.
466. ibid., p. 189.
467. ibid., p. 190.
468. ibid., pp. 198-199.
469. ibid., p. 199.
470. Emile Zola, Mes Haines, Chapter III; cited in Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Confusion in the Arts," Contemporary Review, Volume 192, August 1957, p. 109.
471. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Art: The Goupil the Alpine Club, and the Dorien Galleries," New Age, Volume XIV, No.5., December 4, 1913, p. 153.
472. idem., "Hitler and Nietzsche," English Review, Volume LXIV, No.1, (January 1937), pp.44-45.
473. ibid., p. 45.
474. Adolf Hitler, Speech at the Nuremberg Opera House, September 9, 1936; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici ibid., pp. $45-46$.
475. Adolf Hitler, ibid., quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 46 .
476. Friedrich Nietzsche, no source given; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p.47.
477. Friedrich Nietzsche, no source given; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici "Hitler and Nietzsche," English Review, Volume LXIV, No. 1, (January 1937), p.48.
478. Adolf Hitler op.cit.; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici ibid.
479. Friedrich Nietzsche, 1888; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici ibid., p.49.
480. Anthony Mario Ludovici ibid.

Fundamental to Ludovici ${ }^{0}$ s social and political thoughto as with all fascists, is his conviction that tho world is degenerate。 As he writes in his A Defence of Aristocrecy. A text book for mories: "Look about you now: observe the myriads of plain, ugly and asymmetrical faces in our streets; observe the illness and botchedo ness about you: ${ }^{18}$ England had degenerated from her former greatness? Even a Liberal. Mroliloyd-George, after his own perusal of the statistics of illohealth supplied by the Ministry of National Service, confessed thet he was stertled at the number of Grade II and Grade JII men throughout England ${ }_{0}^{3}$ In his A Defence of Conservatism, Iudovici wamed those who gloried over the fact that the recent General Strike could be overcome without violence or bloodshed that it indicated silent decay. 4

In his condemnation of degeneracy Ludovici was regarded by his contempories as "dressing up in smart modern clothes the old Manichean heresyoio 5 It is a conviction that he shares with his mentor, Nietzsche: "Paralysis of will: where do we not find this cripple sitting nowadays!. ${ }^{6}$ Manliness rotted and danger dwindled as sleep seemed to be the greatest accomplishment. 7 Men had succumbed to a mood of utter despair and subscribed to Schopenhauer ${ }^{8}$ s horror and loathing of life and the world. 8

In Ludovici's novel of 1918, Mansel Fellowes, the Nietzschean Dr. Melhado complains to Father Jevington that the union of Richard Latimer with Mansel Fellowes fits a vital and deeper age: It does not fit this one? Dro Melhado detested the prevalent plainness of moderm men and women, and even in acclaimed beauties he was prone to discover but a memento, a pale reminiscence. of what he considered genuine, vitel beauty: "For beauty to him always implied a specific modicum of intense vitality, or, to say the least - exuberance." ${ }^{10}$ In Mrs. Felloves's lodging-house, the other two lodeers besides Richerd Letimer, one male and one female, are described as lifelessolooking specimens of humanityo ${ }^{11}$ The male ${ }_{0}$ a printer"s manager by the name of Topple greatly adrired Richard Latimer, as did the female, a typist by the name of Miss Carruthers, "all opal-grey from head to foot, even to her cheeks and faded hands." To their degeneracy is contrasted the vitality of Mansel Fellowes. But, the degenerate traditions of Richard Latimer's nation, family, and class, he was a barrister and successful writer, nover led him to suppose that Mansel Fellowes was beautiful: For that she was little too vital and fieryo ${ }^{12}$ In all Ludovici's uritings there figures the typical Manicheanism of fascism。 It takes the familiar form of the eternal struggle between the forces of lifo and those of death or decay. We are informed that when Richard Latimer ignores Mansel Fellowes for Gladys Morrison, a great and mysterious force steadily and stealthily worked along its usual inevitable lines, to mould her destiny. It was a force that worked slowly and deliberately, "like rushing water in a hard soil." It is the force of death and decay. ${ }_{0}^{13}$ Sho foltaccortain becoming diffidence and modesty in acknowledging that Richerd Latimer had vitalised something "deeply interwoven with the hidden actuating power of her life". Her Life had awakened at the time when Richard Latimer had first come into her life ${ }_{0}^{14}$ His absence had begun to have a vitel. life or death, meaning for her ${ }_{0}{ }^{15}$

In Ludovici's novel of 1920 , Too 01d for Dolls, the hero, Lord Henry Highbarn, questions the desirability of his role as a healer of society's nervous wrecks. He thinks he can be doing no good by relieving the principal victims of the disastrous mess Westem civilisation had made of life ${ }^{16}$ What Sir Joseph Bullion a great "success" of the system which is rotten and iniquitous to the core ${ }^{17}$. lauded as 'progress' was really man's further receding from a true understanding of human life and its most vital needs. But, Lord Henry Highbern is so perturbed by England's degeneracy that he contemplates quitting his country for China. It is too late to reform。 ${ }^{18}$ Ee declines offers of money from Six Joseph Bullion to remain in Enciland and treat Mrs. Delarayne, their mutual friend ${ }_{0}^{19}$ Later in the novel. Aubrey St. Maur, a friend of Lord Henry Highbarm, asks him why he is going to China. Lord Henry Highbarn gives his reasons as, firstly, curiosity to see how the Chinaman has escaped the degeneracy that is fast overtaking Europe, secondly, he could not bear to witness his country's decline, thirdly, and chiefly:

```
    Bool feel that it is the duty of all enlighte ened Western Europeans, who have seen the madness of European civilisation, to hasten to the last heal,thy spot on earth and to preach the Gospel of Europhobia, - that is to say, to warn the qise
East against our cximinal errors, and to save it from being infected by our diseases. If the world is to be saved, a cordon sanitaire must be established round Europe; for Europe has now become a, pestilence. }2
```

Similarly, Lord Henry Highbarn's father, Lord Firle ${ }_{0}$ says to the Vicar, Mr. Powers, in What Woman Wishes, that the word 'eccentric' can have no meaning nowadays as there is no centre from which to deviate. 21

Ludovici attributed most of the hostility towards established and traditional institutions, which he saw it as his role to conserve, not to any defect in the principles of the institutions themselves, but to the physical and nervous exhaustion of those who represent this hostility. ${ }_{0}^{22}$ We according to Ludovici, who are but a faint memento of life, a pale shadow of vitality, cannot but question the value of life ${ }^{23}$ In Ludovici ${ }^{\circ}$ s novel of 1923 . French Beans .
Sir Thomas Braintree, scientist and bankero immensely wealthy, learned, and having the air of one thoroughly disillusioned, would have given all his riches and property if he could have spent onehour in the company of his ancestors of the ${ }^{\circ}$ Colden Agee 24 Whilst, in Ludovici ${ }^{\circ}$ s novel of 1924. The Taming of Don Juan, Dr. Hale, the hero, says to Frances Yardgrove, the consumptive son of Sir Jonathan Yardgrove a patent food manufacturer, that modern humanity is incapable of revolution as in revolution there is life and vigouro ${ }_{0}^{25}$ After succeeding in getting his protege, Gilbert Milburn, adopted as the unofficial Conservative candidate for the Northem division of Wessex, only to be defeated by 'vested interests ${ }^{0}$ in the General Election, Dr。Hale's despair deepens:
${ }^{9}$ I'm afraid Sir Jonathan Yardgrove was right' ${ }^{\prime}$ he said, 'and if we substitute for the word evolution in his remarks, the word degeneration, we shall find that they apply exactly。 There is certainly nothing more ludicrously pathetic than the figure of one insignifcant individual trying at the present day to stem the irresiotable tidc of degenerative changes. The world seems to have made its fatal choice. The leading horses of civilisations chariot have their heads all tumed towards the abyss, and nothing can now alter their direction. Poor old Wessex: Poox old Englands how romantic have been my allusions and my long struggle: 26

Iudovici called our cra one of fourthorate bodily joys ${ }^{27}$ and the people sub-human ${ }^{28}$ Disillusioned, our ultimate discovery that Life has lost its value dogs the heels of our civilisationo ${ }_{0}^{29}$ Perhaps Ludovici's most trenchant criticism of national degeneracy is to be found in his The Secret of Laughter, which developed from a paper which Ludovici read to the English Mistery on December 8, $1931{ }^{30}$ As fast as the clamour for humour hed swelled the quality of national achievement had depreciated ${ }_{0}^{31}$ Modern degenerate mankind demanded laughter with "neurasthenic insistence" ${ }_{0}^{32}$ Ludovici supposed that laughter, or showing teeth: is the signal of superior adaptation ${ }_{0}^{33}$ The over indulcence in humour was compensated for the prevalent feeling of degeneration and inferiority ${ }_{0}^{34}$ Even for the minority of the healthy and sound. Life had become so complicated, that they took refuge in the sphere of nonsense ${ }_{0}^{35}$ Ludovici adopted his theory of laughter from Nietzoche, althourh, he merely acknouledged that Nietzsche had anticipated it: '"Perhaps I know why man is the only animal thet laughs", said Nietzsche. And, he added: "He alone suffers so excruciatingly that he was compelled to invent laughter." ${ }^{36}$ The "neurotic fury" with which the average man and woman defended their sense of humour presupposed a decadent and inferior age ${ }_{0}^{37}$ Laughter had become no more than one of the many anodynes with which moderm men were rocking themselves into a state of drousy insensibility。 38

Ludovici saw in modern man's reckless introduction of a violent factor into his life, the placing of "a lethal juggernaut like the internal combustion locomotive on our streets", thus restoring to his highly civilised town and rural thoroughfares dangers far more terrific than those of any jungle or desert, a sympton of an epoch in history which was the most anarchical and inconsiderate of constructive values ever know on earth ${ }_{0}^{39}$ In typically Manichean imagery, Ludovici reckoned that in England since the Great Rebellion of the seventeenth century: "Tt is as thonch for and the Thevil hed changed places by slow revolution. " Life had been assailled by the force of death ${ }^{40}$ In order to spare the sensibilities of those who came into contact with institutions for the degenerate, like reformatories, lunatic asylums and work houses, they were given euphemistic names. Urbanisation was called 'development' and incipient bolshevisation PoE。Po. Physjeal degeneracy and increasing juvenile delinquency was called 'freedom? 41 No national cast of countenance united the English $_{8}$ pervasive sickness was their only bond ${ }_{0}^{42}$ Ludovici even reckoned the high speeds attainable in motor cars may have been a princinal factor not only in masking the prevailing morbidity, "but also in relieving the pullulating feelings of inferiority which naturally afflicts a people riddled with organic defectso ${ }^{1043}$

Now, it is the purpose of this chaprer to examine the causes tros Iudovici cited for the degeneracy which he saw about himo I can think of no better way of introducing this study than to discuss the principle which underpins all fudovici ${ }^{\text {'s }}$ political and social thought, and whose neglect he thought was the primary cause of modern degeneracy:-

Introruction:
Action and Struggle - the Principles of History and Life

One of the principel notions to be found in the fabric of fascism is that of struggle。 Now, it is often claimed that fascists were principally exaservicemen. This is, in the main, true。 However, I think the exaltation of militancy and combatancy in Ludovici's writings, who was a veteran of World War $I$, is also to be found before his martial experiences. It can only be clained that Iudovici's:martialexperiences intensified the notion of stmggle in his writings after world War $I_{9}$ When he was at his most prolific. Indeed, his commentaries and interpretations of Nietzsche are profuse with the exaltation of combatancy well before World War $I_{0}$ And Ludovici's A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories although first published by Constable in 1915, was written before World War Io Nevertheless it is true that World War I served as a catalyst in crystalising what was later to be regarded as fascism. In this sense Ludovici's martial experiences were of immeasurable importance, as they were to most fascists, in strengthening already held convictions.

Howevers if it was not for the intervention of Anthony Mario Ludovici＇s father，he may not have had any martial experienceso Albert Ludovici Jr 。 reminded Lord Kitchener of his school days at the Geneva pensionnat，when inquiring as to why his sons had not heard from the lar Office，although they had passed the necessaxy examinations as interpretors，and riding tests at Knightsbridge Barracks，regarding active service。 They suspected this might be due to their foreign sumame．Within twenty four hours of this inquiry Anthony Mario Ludovici was ordered to leave for the Fronto ${ }_{\circ}^{44}$ Anthony Pario Gudovici arrived at Antwerp a few days before the Germans bombarded and took the town ${ }_{0}^{45}$ Only when Ludovici was at Le Havre，in charge of the German prisoners，did the suspicion of his fellow officers at his foreign name evaporate when，from a Punch＇s Almanack circulating among them，they discovered he was an English author ${ }_{0}^{46}$ Ludovici served as a field－gunner during World War $I_{0}^{47}$ Only when he was in hospital with trench fever，in the early part of 1917，did the Army Authorities belatedly take note of his command of French and German，and second him from the Artillary for service under Military Intelligence at the War Office in London． 48 He was attached to the Intelligence Staff，War Office，in April 1917 and attained the rank of General Staff Officer． 3 rd．Grade，March 1919。 According to Who＇s Who ho was demobilised in Ootober 1919．However， Ludovici frequently called himself＂Captain＇。 and was addressed as such in publications．Indeed，according to his nephew，John Ludovici，he frequently donned military uniform and was a member of British Military Intelligence throughout the inter－war years and the early years of World War II，until Military Intelligence became，somewhat belatedly。 suspicious of his poli．tical identity， 49

Although the fixst edition of Ludovici＇s A Defence of Aristocracy A text book for Tories is fascist and addressed to youth ${ }^{50}$ ，the typical trait of fascist ex-servicemeng but was written before World War $I_{g}$ in his preface to the second edition, in 1933, he reckoned that most premar political beliefs were incompatible With his end made the first edition seem fantestic to his contemporaries. In the postar ere he thought the reception to his ideas was more favourable as the Great War had effected a transformation in political convictions ${ }_{0}^{51}$ Typical of veteran fascistswas Ludovici's bitterness against the 'old-gang' and nons combatants generally, who had cynically acquiesced in the bloody sacrifice of young manhood. In Ludovici's novel of 1918 , Mansel Fellowes the young Richard Latimer, like Iudovici, deplored the "cymicism of age all about him" 52 He was especially disillusioned with Paris, it was rather like meeting one ${ }^{\text {s }}$ older brother; for that was the relation of France to the rest of Europe. Paris tasted of the morbid pessimism and scepticism of age ${ }_{0}^{53}$ After World Var $I_{0}$ Ludovici spoke of the insolence, sterility and exhaustion of the old 54 Ludovici could have no mercy for the "freakish stupidity of the "brass hats" " and the "clamour made by our fattist and oiliest old poultices for the war to go on "until the last young man"。" 55 In his preface to The False Assumptions of "Democracy" of 1921, he proclaimed that the Great War had left Europe with its ideals and respective liveral princioles shattened and destroyed. The old era he proclaimed was dead. He saw it as his task to develop the "ideology of our new and brightly illuminated age" for those who hed doffed their khaki ${ }_{0}^{56}$ Indeed, it was a task that Ludovici set himself for the rest of his life a propogating fascism。 He intended to punish the politicians who were responsible for the disastrous pace and who bungled the great task of reconstruction ${ }^{57}$ Politicians like LloydGeorge, during Vorld War $I_{\text {, }}$ had not even scrupled to draw invidious comparisons between male courage and women working in munitions factories, to promote female suffrage o They forgot the "xiver of blood that our young troupes wexe pouring over the ramparts of the Westerm Front alone." 58

Iudovici's novel of 1924. The Tamine of Don Juan, could be partly autobiographical. It is profuse with his bitterness at World War I and is introduced with a poem called "A Post-War Maiden" reflecting the grief of post-war women who had lost all hope of a full life by the sacrifice of husbands and young men in World War $I_{0}^{59}$ In the novel Gilbert Milburn, Dr. Hale's protege, volunteers as an artillary observer Dr. Hale is outraged and proclaims that English civilisation could not justify the sacrifice of anything. The masses of old people and spinsters, who talked glibly and confidently about the necessary and noble self-dacrifice of the youth of England, were not worthy of the sacrifice of more than a single toad ${ }_{0}^{60}$ Gilbert Milburn writes to Dr. Hale from the Front, and declares that in spite of the misery, the discomfort, and the monotony of the trenches, war is to be exalted as it brings out the 'natural man' in the combatance。 Danger - imparts the capacity to go to extreme lengths and men appear more attractive, fuller, and rounder ${ }_{0}^{61}$ After a few months at the Front Gilbert had 'hardened' where he was inclined to be soft, and where his nature had consisted of good metal it was toughened and rendered unbreakable. Nevertheless, the more sensitive chords in his nature inclined him to feelings of revolt and loathing at the horrors and misery he witnessed, he questioned whether any prize could justify the abject misery he saw about himo ${ }_{0}^{62}$ One of the lives wasted is that of Frances Yardgrove。 son of a patent food manufacturer, who, like Gilbert, volunteers for active service, but is lost in an observation balloon and dies. Gilbert, more fortunate, is captured and taken prisoner. Two years later Gilbert returns to England and, whilst in a train going to London, with several other officers, he engages in a conversation with a civilian of sleek and opulent appearance:

> ooThe officers, who were all young men, looked somewhat pale and draw, while the civilian, a man well past middle age, presented by his florid and bloated features, a striking contrast to his companions. He smiled constantly, and there was about his whole person the air of one thoroughly contented with his lot - nay wildly jubilant about it. 63

The civilian expleined，vith a smile，that he had lost three sons during the war，and if he had had a dozen he would gladly have sacrificed them all．Gilbert replied that if he had had a fathero he would have gladly sacrificed himo ${ }_{6}^{64}$ Gilbert，flushed and angry。 ＂stared the old civilian out＂as he made hastily avayo Having been through the worst of the war and pierced through its＂clumsy shams＂ Gilbert had acquired a cynical view of humanity．${ }^{65}$ He complained to Almina Underhill，who was perturbed at the dearth of young men who survived the war and the frequently insipid character of the few that had survived ${ }^{66}$ ，that priveligedsections of the community like the old are immune to the principle of sacrifice that the tropps had suffered． 67 Ludovici deplosed the power of the old．${ }^{68}$ He thought the mirage of internationalism that loomed in the sky for a few brief years in the carly twentieth century，had been irrevocably skattered by the Great War． 69 clearly the cynical view of man that Ludovici had learned through his martial experiences coloured his view of life，as will be seen．

According to IJdovici struggle is at the root of all Life。 In his A Defence of Aristocracy。A text book for Tories，Iudovici idealizes the militant elite of the samurai：Whilst，in his A Defence of Conservatism he delineates Life as struggle ${ }_{0}$ and proposes it as a conservative ideal．He says in national life，as in the lifeof nature， there are two forces which constantly conflict with the inclination of all creatures to prefer stability before instability in their environmento They are，first，the renewal of the whole of the nation＇s personnelg or the redistribution of all nationel roles with each fresh generation；secondly，the chafing of certain sections of the nation under circumstances which make adaptation impossible？ 71

Ludovici refers to a third life force which conflicts with stabilityo but one which comes from beyond a nation＇s frontiers，which impels， or threatens to impel。 change against the nation ${ }^{\circ}$ s will：＂Pxamples of its action are to be seen in the sudden invasion of Peru and Mexico by the Spaniards，and in the appearance of the Boers and ourselves among the Bush men and the Zulus of Africa，etcoo ${ }^{172}$ The first of these life forces tends to introduce change by means of peaceful invasion to because the new arrivals representing this force are either above or below the standard required by the stable environment： the second life force tends to introduce change by means of individual or group revolt，because the creatures representing this force are unhappy： 73 As all flourishing life means not only growth，but through growth，expansion，the politics of a flourishing nation is not merely national preservation，but national expansion．To deny this is to deny that the life of a nation should continue？ 74 If expansion is the extending of a nation，conservatism will become part of the process of expansion！ 75 Ludovici reckoned that Charles II had realised the vital importance of this principle of identity in expansion and had adied a good deal of territory to the Britich possessions overscas ${ }^{76}$ The one feature that distinguished the Tories from their political opponents．from the end of the eighteenth century and after is that they became more imperialistic in their aims．＂and thus expressed that essential aspect of Conservatism which consists in providing for national expansion。＂ 77 In a limited area like that of the globe， in which many different people wage a struggle for existence，and the nature of whose lives imposes expansion as a necessary consequence of health and vigour，invasion and expropriation of territory is inevitable。

As Ludovici supposes the principle of human equality, and of the equality of human races in particular, is fantastic. a superior race has a natural mandate to spread at the cost of an inferior race. In healthy conditions there is a natural tendency to sacrifice the inferior: $7^{78}$ an isolated commanity, with one thatcher and 20 ploughmen, selects the ploughman or less desirable creature to perform any acts which involve the risk of life that are essential to the preservation of the community 79 Likevise ${ }_{0}$ in the situation of a world shortage of vital food the reality of starvation would reveal the error of the notion of human equalityo and one people rould take the lead in a struggle for food. Life gives the mandate for such a procedure ${ }_{\circ}^{80}$ Christian objectors to the identification of might with right must also object to democracy as it is the same principlee: And the Christion who argues that the spread of England and of Christianity through might has been a blessing to the people whose territory has been invaded and expropriated is a hypocrite。 The inhabitants of Canada, Australia and Tasmenia were wiped out. ${ }^{82}$

Ludovici's interpretation of life as strucgle is certainly consistent with his advocacy of Nietzscheism. According to Nietzsche a living thing seeks to discharge its strengtin - "ife itself is d Will to Power". 83 To refrain mutually from exploitation and violence, and to make it the fundamental principle of society, is tentamount to a denial of lifee 84 Life itself is essentially appropriation injury, conquest and suppression of the weak. Even in an organisation in which individuals treat each othes as equal it must, "if it be a living and not a dying organisation", do all that towards other bodies, which the individuals within it refrain from doing to each other. Because it lives, and life is "vill to powerp it will endeavour to expand as＇will to power＇belones to the nature of the living being as a primery organic function． Will to Life is the fundamental fact of all historyo 85 According to Ludovici，Nietzsche hed set out to show that the life principle。 ＇will to power＇。 is the prime motor of all living orgenisms ${ }_{6}^{86}$ Hietzache，with his intense realism $0_{0}$ had realised life is the mandate for violence and struggle：＂Life means struggle battle－ wax．Where it ceases to be that，itsstandard falls：i．t degenerates． the attacks that life survives，as a rule，leave it stronger．＂${ }^{87}$ Mietzsche had defined life as it really is ${ }_{0}^{88}$

It is the capacity for Life that distinguiskes the heroes in Ludovici＇s novels．In Mansel Fellowes o Richard Latimer＇s features are described as promising a substantial enjoyments of life＇s fruits ${ }_{9}^{89}$ Mansel Fellowes lived an intense life．Her eyes revealed a concen－ trated expression of eagemess and vitality，like those of a cat， whilst her canines were prominent among her vell－tended teeth ${ }_{0}^{90}$ She had a feline vitality that baffled analysis．The＇flame of life 0 in her was intensely and fiercely real．${ }^{91}$ She promised Life？${ }^{9 ?}$ Firs．Fellowes persuades Richard Latimer to see her daughter＇dying ${ }^{8}$ of her thwarted affection for him．She could not bear her daughter to be spurned by life？Kichard Latimer，after visiting Fiansel Fellowes and noting her immediate recovery，is very depressed over his choice between Mansel Fellowes and his future fiancée，the non－vital Gladys Morrison．He takes some relief by a sojourn in Europe。 He first visits Paris，but the romanticism in his nature，which the Nietzschean Dr。Melhado had never succeeded in eradicatingo was stunned by the bold realism of the French girls attitude to life ${ }_{0}^{94}$ When he visited Italy he found that everybody lived and realised that a great literature like that of France，Fngland and Germany。 is a sign that lives are rarely being lived ${ }_{0}^{95}$
Mansel Fellowes and she ${ }^{0}$ dies $^{\circ}$ ．Dr．Melhado perceives that the full life was a matter of life and death to her．${ }^{96}$ In Catherine Doyle：the romance of a thricemarried lady Gexald Suynnerton says to his confidant：Knowles，that even after he had gone on an Oriental cruise to relieve himself of his＂appetite ${ }^{0}$ for the intense vitality of Catherine Doyle vho，apparently，had jilted him，the＂flame of life＂still possessed him：＂PI wes only too well aware of the small piece of live coal that still glowed within my breast，and knew that the slightest indulgence in the way of deep breathing would stir it into flame againos：17 In Too 01d for Dolls we are told that Leonetta Delarayne gave the impression of aggressive vitality。 Her quivering freshness gave a soft shimmer to her skino ${ }^{98}$ In her faultless teeth the life philosopher could see the life hunger they revealed and＂the full deep bite and fast hold they would take of Life＇s entrailso＂This largeocaninedvirgin had more feelings than seIfcontrol．${ }_{0}^{99}$ Mirs．Edith Delarayne exclaims to Lord Henxy Highbarm that Leonetta is more determined to live than her elder sister． Cleopatra。 ${ }^{100}$ Lord Henry Highbarn is perceptive enough to realise that Cleopatra＇s＇illness＇had been occasioned by her jealousy of Leonetta＇s superior vitality ${ }^{101}$ Leonetta is the acid that is corroding Cleopatia！＇s life．${ }^{102}$ Cleopatia attempts to shoot her sister through jealousy，when she is in a shooting－party．She failso Lord Henry Highbarn takes the blame for Cleopatra and dissimulates that it was his shootingoaccident。 He knew that Cleopatra would act through thwarted passion，over her younger sister＇s success with Denis Malster，either against horself por against Leonetta， ＂＇you would proceed to violence。＂${ }^{103}$ Leonetta was not to be told the truth about the incident until she was old enough to see how ＇natural＇it was。 ${ }^{104}$ In What Homan Wishes o when Lord Chiddingly and Janet Perkins，the working class heroine，declare their mutual attraction and enter into a turbulant romance，never before had the upper class hero felt so deeply that he was drinking life to her dregs．Never before had he felt danger at every second，it imparted a lack of deliberation and recklessness as though in a life－and－death situation that provided the impetios for ${ }^{\circ}$ extreme lengths ${ }^{\circ}$ 。 Danger is life＇s most precious saviour：${ }^{105}$ In The Taming of Don Juan，we are told that the hero Gilbert Milburn was impelled by the force of life ${ }_{0}^{106}$ His girlfriend，Almina，is also described as vibrant with life：

> ooothe plain check tailor-made frock she wore, and the soft felt hat, resting voluptuously on the rich folds of her hair, seemed like the skin of a beautiful animal, so thoroughly vitalised were they by her exuberance. 107

Dr．Hole，later in the novel，was not surprised to hear from Firs．Dart that the jilted Frances Platt had throw the missile which injured Gilbert at a Conservative Association meeting，disrupted by opponents： ＂＇the chemist of life knows that natural forces are not to be played with，not with impunity，at any rate：${ }^{108}$ In his Homan。 A Vindication， of 1923 ，Ludovici says the immensely vast and intricate activities which go to make a moderm nation serve but one＂force＂（his italics） for which it is organised，which gives the city，the country beyond， and all the activities which we see，a genuine meaning－Life ${ }_{0}^{109}$ This notion is of immense importanco for the social and political thought of Iudovici，it is the theme that sustains most of his contentions．Most importantly it commits him to what liberals would regard as a nons rational theory of man and society and extends the domein of politics and govermment to a total concern with all areas of social activity。 Furthermore，Ludovici generates a justification for total revolution from it．The following is an extremely importent passage。 He conceives＇Life＇as the supreme force： It should not be forgoteen that industry， commerce，the professions and the Civil Service are but institutions organised for the purpose of tife。 The moin strean of Iife certainly muns through them, and derives its security, its relative memanence and its fluency from their hormonious function fut they exist for life, $^{2}$ and not Life for them. It is I,ife that is important, the channels through which it flows are only simificant, as auxiliery to the main purpose。 110

If they do not fulfill this purpose, which Ludovici thinks they do not, they should be dispensed with. The purpose for which our organised State, and to which all activities and complex situations do but minister, is the stream of Life. The Government, like the bus service, is only an instrument servine the most important thing of all-Life. ${ }^{111}$ Our civilisation stands or falls as a whole. The intricate adjustmentswich constitute its fabxic are so interdependent and mutually subservient, that it is impossible to lay hold of any important portion of it, with a view to condemnation. without thereby condemning the whole: 112 And this sole purpose Life, for which the whole of our society should be organised, is a continuous process of inter-xacial and intra-racial struggle, with no principles except the one of more life in each race or species, goveming the whole: ${ }_{0}^{113}$

According to Ludovici society cannot escape from violence as it cannot excape from Life without extinguishing itself. 114 Life outside human society is neither more nor less than a process of preying and mutual suppression and incorporation. Every species behaves as if it alone had the right to prevail, and it endeavours by every means in its power $=$ self-preservation, propogation, rapine and parasitism o to make its oum kind proponderate on earth:

> ooWe open the stomach of a shot leopard and we find in it the mangled remains of some other animal or birdo When we kill a bird and inspect its viscera, we discover the remains of insects. small quadrupeds, or smaller birds.

And there are few people who upon dying a sudden death, would not betray their violence towards the lower animals by the contents of their stomach or intestines. Violence is an essentiel factor in all life, even in human life ${ }_{0}^{115}$ Indeed, $2 s$ violence is at the very portals of life, in childbirth, a society cannot exist in which violence in some form, will not appear. ${ }_{0}^{116}$ With the free operation of the right of parenthood every society incorporates a piece of lifc in its organisation, and having done this, cannot hope to eliminate fron its organisation the violence which attaches to the operation of all natural and vital laws ${ }^{117}$ He reckoned that most of the apparent injustices, asperities and disabilities of human society are the inevitable repurcussions upon individuals of the incessant working of the primitive act of violence at the basis of the social edifice - childbirth ${ }^{118}$ As the violence of the procreative act reverberates through society and the world, someone or some group must suffer. ${ }^{119}$ Curiously, of the book in which the above vindication of struggle is to be found. The False Assumptions of "Democracy", Ludovici proclaimod that it is "really Conservative in spirit." 120 Similarly, in his book of 1928, The Wight-Hoers: or, the case against histh-control and an alternative, Ludovici says that if our actions are not to be controlled by the old people in our midst, then we are to be a self-affirming people and regard the future as belonging solely to the thelish and their multinlication. The English should cynically recognise the truth that human sacrifice is inevitable on thos globe, decline to be the party that has to be sacrificed, and demonstrate in word and deed that they have a natural mandate to supersede all other peoples ${ }_{\circ}^{121}$ As Life means sacrifice of some or many, the charge of inhumanity against any scheme which merely proposes to shift the point of incidence of the sacrificial axe cannot be sustained ${ }_{0}^{122}$

Ludovici's most brillient panegyric of strugcle is to be found in his Violence, Sacrifice and Var, read before the St. James' Kin of the Bnglish Mistery in October 1933. It was greeted, by some, 2 .s destroying the "superficial logic of the warosick reader". 123 He says that man used to be part of the mortal straggle of natuxe His fixst. longest $_{0}$ and probebly fiercest strugele against violonce consisted in his wars with the large beasts of preyo for thousends of years the sacrificial saviours of the tribe were probably those individuals, chiefly women and children, who fell back in the tribes fight for life: ${ }_{0}^{124}$ The violence originating from predatory animals, however, was long ago settled. Similarly, the violence of the weather and of the cold in winter was eliminated as fire and shelter acquired perfected forms of application. Though not altogether:

○opeople are still killed and their homes urecked by thunderstorms: cistems and water pipes still get frozon to our cost in winter, and people and their cattle all over the world are still affected by droughts and floods, while seamen still suffer from the violence of the sea., though even this has been neutralised to some extent by the recent feats of giant shipbuilding。 125

Earthquakes and volcanic emuptions remain as forces majeure and like thunder and lightening allude the control of sciencea ${ }^{126}$ The cruelles $t$ and most persisting form of violence, however, has been that which afflicts one group of men at the hands of another hostile group. Hitherto, powerful European countries had succeeded in localising to some extent the incidence of this violence by limiting, concentrating and specially selecting the defense, both as regerds sex, age, and the scene of the conflict. However, recent developments had made it no longer possible specially to select the victims to be sacrificed to it. ludovici thought it would not be altogether desirable to eliminate this form of violence from humanity until the best, and highest race is in complete possession of the world. ${ }_{0}^{127}$ Nevertheless, man had succeeded in neutralising or eliminating almost all her forces in his environment which might unexpectedly deal violently with him: 128 There is. however, one form of violence which a,ll through history hes been a fundamental source of mischief to humanity, and cennot be elimineted like that part of uncontrolled nature like thunder. lightening and the wind。 It is that part of nature in ourselves which partakes of the quality of lightening and earthquakes, and is as unscrupulous as they are - the reproductive function. 129 Although those born are not foreignors, they do precisely what foreignors would do. They displace many of the previous inhabitants, compete with them, or otherwise make claims upon them. The violence of the reproductive function is a peaceful invasion, and, in its essentials, as much an act of violence as any other form of invasiono Even in a comunity in which space and food are more than adequate, the forcible introduction of a person who outclasses the older inhabitants subjects some to an act of displacement. Even subparity may be a menace, in modern states, as those unable to support themselves exercise violence upon the existing members by extorting their life-keep from them。 If technical progress keeps abreast of human expansion, so that food will always be plentiful by cultivating space on planets, through the discovery of means for traversing inter stellar space, the introduction of new people into a community would still remain as an act of violence and demand sacrifice: "Even to be forced, for lack of space, to pack up and leave for Saturn or Mars, is to submit to an act of violence." 130 The lesson of history is that vital expansion has with monotonous repetition introduced fresh violence into human communties, and since violence means the sacrifice of something or somebody, one of the perpetual problems of human society has been how to shift the ultimate effect of this violence upon a group or community other than the one in which the violence actually originated: and if this was not possible how to sacrifice portions of the community itself so as to neutralise the violence. ${ }^{131}$ If there is no decimation of the population by warg the people themselves instinctively resort to some means of decimating themselves. ${ }_{0}^{132}$ Rome, like Greece, in addition to sexual perversities, wars and ilfanticide, further neutralised the violence generated by her peoples' reproductive function, by unloading i.t on other peoples. The prolific Funs and Vandals did the same by tbe Roman Empire。 Similarly, the violence generated by the reproductive function of the British people between 1760 and 1840 led to the partial extermination of three or four and the complete extermination of at least two peoples. 133 The portion of violence generated by a peoples'reproductive function that can be shifted in this way depends upon the strength of their nation. Even when England was most active as a force destructive of other peoples lives, throughout the latter part of the eighteenth and almost the whole of the nineteenth century, she was torn with dissension at home through the violence generated by her peoples reproductive function, of which each class tried to shift the sacrifice on the heads of another:

Abstract

In fact, one might sum up the history of all social reforms, of all poor laws, of most revolutions and rebellions, of all the struggles for the extended franchise, and of all confiscatory taxation for the benefit of one class, by saying that they are merely events in the eternal struggle on the part of one class to shift the violence demanded from reproductive violence from one section of the community to another. 134

If an unwise ruling class retains power, as i.t did in the case of the ancient aristocracies of Greece, Russia, France and Fingland and elsewhere, the sacrifice was without scruple demanded almost wholly of the ruled class. The noment, hovever, that the ruled class was able to reverse the balance of power, the sacrifice was then demended of the lives of the former rulerso ${ }^{135}$ Violence is the inevitable concomitant of life, Sacrifice and violence are complementary features in life. To attempt to avoid violence and sacrifice is to avoid life itself. Therefore, if life is to be lived, so violence end sacrifice can only be overcome by the man or the nation that is prepared to live dengerously. Wo amount of renunciation of conquest will ever remove violence from the core of human societics as there is a form of violence that is inseperable from human life, even within a peace-loving and unwarlike community, childbirth ${ }^{136}$

In the second section of Ludovici's Violence, Secrifice and Vare "Pacifism, Intermationalism and Nationelism" ${ }^{137}$, he asserts that the pacifists object in avoiding the terrible sacrifice of human life which war involves is based on an illusion. Even if the pecifist could stop war forever, he could not achieve the abolition of terrible sacrifice of human life。 ${ }^{138}$ Healthy human life presupposes multiplication. A healthy race necessarily increases and expands. To wish to limit the healthy expansion of a nation is to wish for an unheal thy nation. The pacifist is ${ }_{0}$ therefore, a dysgenist。 ${ }_{0}^{139}$ The pacifist is a destroyer of his own nations potential offspringo And, if the pacifist belongs to a superior race he is a vandal ${ }^{140}$ Pacifism conceals and continues degeneration, not standing armies or war. Wi.thout armies and the prospects of war, standards of physical efficiency would decline and propel the nation to degeneration. 141 Nothing in the pacifists programe of activities reveals a fraction of the zeal about the nations health which military authorities and military nations have always revealed, ever since the time of Sparta:
...The military standards of old demanded great endurance, energy, health and vigour in men: it also set certain minima as regards height, development, dental soundness, etcoi the military authorities had some idea of the hardships, trials and tests to which a soldier's physique is subjected in war. 142

It is the capacity for life and struggle that Ludovici idealises. He thought the capacity for struggle was particularly evident in the history of the Jevso Crushing defeats at the hands of the Philistines forced the Jevs to act in unison, and fight as one nation. Saul, their "great military hero", led his people first against the finmonites and then against the Philistines，defeated them，although only temporarily。 Eowever，half a millenium after the Bodus the Jews succeeded in establishing themselves in Palestine at the expense of the settled inhabitants．who were better armed and orgenised then themsclves．${ }^{143}$ Their ultinate success proves their strugele had rendered them feroicious and resolute；their repeated wers and privations must repeatedly have winnowed the weaker from their stock： 144 Thilst thoy were aware of their distant relationship to the peoples lying north and east of them and of the people they were driving out－ the Canaanites－the lesson they had learnt from Foses，and the certainty he gave them of their favour at the hands of their deity Yahweh，fortified their belief that they were specially privileged to the land they were invadingo 145 Judah，the southern kingdom，after struggling for its existence against Assyria and Egypt in turng and subsequently against Chaldea，ultimately succumbed to Nebuchadnezzar， King of Babylon。 Jerusalem was sacked and the elite of the Jews were taken into captivity in Babylon。 After a lapse of about 70 years． Persia conquered Babylon，and Cyrus，Kins of Persia，set the tribes free to roturn to Judah．Once açain there was rigorous selection by circumstances of the Jews of highest stomina and most patriotic sentiments ${ }_{0}^{146}$ and，throughout the Middle Ages in Burope，the fate of the Jews was very much the same．Everyvhere the position of the Jews was more or less insecure，and yet everywhere they survived owing chiefly to the tremendous power of their law and religious traditions， their exceptional stamina，their inflexible will to maintain their unity in dispersion，and their capacity for adaptation． 147 Their stubborn＂primitive desert traits＂repeatedly moulded their history， despite their thousands of years of separation from desert life。 ${ }^{148}$ The early Semites were hardened and sharpened by the merciless life of the desert：
oooa people fitted by milleniums of privation, uncertainty and simple living, to become formidible in any close strugcte for existence with a type less hard and hardened; and a people accustomed to wait to endure, and to be masters of their oum destiny. 949

Their history 'proves' that only a people capable of imposing the groatest hardships upon thenselves, and capable of the greatest bravery, can survive the struggle that is life ${ }_{0}^{150}$ They are formidible exponents of the Nietzschean 'will to power' ${ }^{151}$

Ludovici identifies five possible ways of restricting population when it exceeds the power of the soil to support its A proportion of the males may be castrated and their sexuel function sacrificed: homosexual practices may be encouraged, among males; selective infanticide; female sterilisation; female homosexualityo ${ }^{152}$ Ludovici thinks that all of the latter, including birth control, are undesirable as they inflict sacrifice on the native population: ${ }_{0}^{153}$ However, sacrifice of something or somebody is inevitable as "sacrifice of some kind is implicit in organic life as it is found on the globe』" 154 He then proceeds to identify those whosesacrifice is desirable: The inferior foreign races who limit the multiplication of English life; the infanticide of degenerates and the prohibition of the marriage of degenerates; the prohibition of immigration and cancellation of existing naturalisations. 155

It is significant that I have desisted from labelling Ludovici as a social Darwinist in the preceding discussion。 I think it is a question that deserves caution. In Ludovici's The False Assumptions of "Democracy", of 1921, he says that Life's activities have a gravito ating or descending tendancy. In a large number of organisms, acquired embellishments or acquired faculties and qualities have to be dropped in the course of generations ${ }^{156}$ This is a conviction to be found elsewhere in his writings, especially in his interpretation of Mietzsche。 He thought Nietzscheans, like himself $\hat{P}_{0}$ should regard the hope that better things will perforce arise from allowing things to take their course unguided by human endeavour as pure romanticism ${ }^{157}$ There is a curious ambivalence in Ludovici's attitude to social Darvinism, I do not think that Ludovici should be simply regarded 2,5 a social Darvinist, that notion that progress is the consequence of competition between men, although, he does, on occasion, subscribe to the view that survival is the survival of the fittest. In the main, following Nietzsche, he ridiculed the Darwinian faith in the blind force of nature ${ }_{0}$ working automatically through the survival of the fittest. ${ }^{158}$ Nietzsche thought social Darwinists, like Herbert Spencer, had mistaken the true nature and function of life, which is 'will to power' ${ }^{159}$ He ascribed all the importance to the 'lifeouill' of the organism as the motive force of evolution. ${ }^{160}$ Nietzsche transformed the Darvinian 'struggle for existence', which is passive and involuntary, into the 'struggle for power': which is active and creative. ${ }^{161}$ Economy is not one of life's principles: "The blind Will to Power in nature therefore stands in urgent need of direction by man." 162 Although Ludovici concedes that Nietzsche's works bear the unmistable stamp of the theory of evolution 1 as taught by Darwin, they differ seriously in respect of the question of the lines upon which the process of evolution worked. Nietzsche's theory involves a new development hypothesis. If the evolutionary process be a fact; if things have become what they are, and were not always so; then, Nietzsche contends, we may describe no limit to the aspirations of mand ${ }^{163}$ The 'progress' of the Darvinians is by no meians elevating. The environment, in conditions of spontaneity, is the [^4]determining factor, and if its means are bost met by the degenerate then they will be the 'fittest', and survive"' 164 Even the Puritan who opposes music halls and theatres, is more pregnant with promise for the future, though not from any deep philosophical motive, because he is preaching against the moasures which threaten to adapt us to degenerative conditions. 165 Nietzsche objected to Daruin's mechanistic explanation of evolution and supplanted it with the "will to power' as the more fundamental life motor ${ }^{166}$ Darwinists Weave too much romance into life with their scientific formulae for a moral order of things. 167 Upon the basis of the "vill to power" Nietzsche developed a cosmogony which assumes that species have been evolved, but at variancewith Darwin, and points to an inner creative will in living organisms which makes environment and natural conditions subservient and subject。 ${ }^{168}$ Nietzsche, unlike the optimistic Darwinists, did not believe that out of the chaotic play of blind forces the best and fittest would survive. 169 Such faith in autonomous forces Nietzsche regarded merely as the survival of the old Christian belief in a moral order of things: 170 Arrested devclopment or a. retrogression along the evolutionary ladder is a common source of degeneracy, according to Nietzsche and Ludovicio ${ }^{171}$ Provided that more life comes into beingo nature is impartial towards the multiplication of species whether in a progressive or regressive direction. ${ }^{17 \text { ? }}$ the quality of those who survive depends upon the kind of survival value that prevails. Consequently, to allow the extreme effects of the struggle for existence to eliminate the 'unfit' of today, would amount to rearing a race who happers to succeed best in a comercial and industrial age. ${ }^{173}$ Evolutionary processes do not possess either the infallibility or the reliability for progress which social Daminians suppose. In the animal world the great majority of evolutionary changes hitherto heve been in the direction of degeneration, and by far the ereater portion of living species are degenerate encostorg of superior ancestors. ${ }_{0}^{174}$ Nevertholoss, Ludovici, on occasion, contradicted himself and reverted to social Daminism:

> In natural and rolatively. stable conditions, the struccle for eristenco or power, rigjd adaptetion, and the absence of artifical medical aids, tends to create a standordised type Aberrations are usually eliminated, whether sub-nornal or conspicuously superanormal, unless either stete means better adaptationso And this process is so rigorous that the youne, whether human or animal, set loose to choose, can hardly err. 175

However, I think Ludovici's attitude to social Daminism is ambiguous, in believing that 'evolution' covers millions of cases of retrograde metamorphoses ${ }^{176}$, because he wished to exphasise the life and death, or vital, importance of the intense struggle to succeed. Therefore, any slackening in the struggle to become more and more potent is the beginning of the retrograde development:

0 .To assail the desire to becone more and more is therefore tantamount to a conspiracy against life it is tantamount to a denial of the healthy instinct of the species. 177

This ambiguity towards social Darwinism recurs in Ludovici's last book devoted to Nietzscheism, Religion for Infidels of 1961. He says struggle is the mandate of life. Humanity still undergoes unprovoked violence from the attacks of wild animals; from insects, poisonous or disease bearing; from parasites, whether internal or external, and the micro-organisms of lethal illnesseso ${ }^{178}$ From the first moment of organic life on earth, slaughter and mutilation under the crudest conditions has been the order of the dayo ${ }^{179}$ The

'life force' is the power behind phenomena:

.o.Given a high degree of sensitiveness and intelligence. $i t$ is conceivable that even a confined townsman might, without the panorama of vital phenomena as it is unrolled in all its rich manifoldness along the countryside, reach fairly shrewd notions about the basic trend of the invisible forces directing living things on earth. 180

Ludovici proceeds to describe the attributes of the life forces： First，they are cynical in the treatment of the living；second， they are indifferent regarding quality and show no＇taste＂or discrimination；third，they do not favour an upward trond in the evolution of living things；fourth，the forces goveming life＇s processes have inplented in all their creatures a will much more convulsive than the mere ${ }^{\text {Prill }}$ to live ${ }^{181}$ Animals and plants do not merely sustain their orm lives，they obtrude themselves on other lives，even other lives belonging to their own species． 182 A striving after power or supremecy is the basic trend of all nature，whilst Schopenhaur＇s＂will to live＇and Damin＇s notion of the＇strugrle for existence＂，give an inadequate idee of the life force．${ }^{183}$ only the Nietzschean＇will to power＇，the dynamic factor informing all living matter，is able to contend with and often defeat the degenerate trends implicit in the first three characteristics of the lifeforces， as previously enumerated。 The＂will to power＂has accounted for all those triumphs of the evolutionary process。 including man himselfo 184 Life is cynical it has no trace of any morality：＂every kind of thuggery，deception，fraud，duplicity and mendacity，finds its ablest and most unscrupulous exponents in Nature。＂${ }^{185}$ Natural selection is not nature＇s discriminating choice of those races held worthy of survival，but a blind indiscriminate fevouring of winners who，by favourable chance variations and their ability to adapt themselves to an environmental influence，have come victoriously out of the struggle for cxistence．${ }^{186}$ Ludovici belicved that only when the Nietzschean ＂will to power＇is free to operate in the elite of mankind will the degenerative attiributes of the life forces be counteracted：

```
oooNor is it insignificant that in all periods of decline among the highest product of evolution - Flan - will to pover should be revjled in its hichest manifostations only where surrepticiously, and in a manner unobscrved by ordinary men and women, it does most harm; i.e., in women, children, the sick, the crippled, demented and the degenerate in general. }18
```

In society the "rill to nower" must invoke the life force to operate constantly against the omninresent threat of degeneration. for in nature, there is no similar influence, "and degeneracy is just as likely as repeneracy to supervene"。188

It is because Enrland had ceased to be governed in accordance with the principles of life that ludovici thought it had degenerated. I shall now proceed to explain, in detail, the reasons why Iudovici thought Encland had degenerated. The causes of degeneracy:-

1. Racial: Miscegenation and Dysgenic Mating

In his A Defense of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories Ludovici agrees with Gobineau that there is inequality between the races of men, and that borbarity is the inevitable and permanent state of certain races with instincts incorrpatible with any other condition, whist civilisation is the creation of races with other instinctso 189 Races are destroyed through the extinction of those particular instincts constituting their identity, through miscegenetion. ${ }^{190}$ The gradual decay of the great cultured nations of antiquity :ras always oynchronous with laxity in matters of race pride and prejudice towards the foreignere ${ }^{191}$ at times of promiscuous cross breedine instinct and will become confused and are no longer reliable。192 The only thing that destroys cheracter permanentiy is the miscegenation which becomes the rule and custom in democratic times. ${ }^{193}$ Until the time of Elizabeth I the Fnglish were fortunate in their crosses; for their crosses were With closely allied races who could not introduce a very disturbing or degenerative element into their character. 194

In his A Defence of Conservatism Iudovici proclaims thet diffuse miscegenation is inconcsitent with conserving the identity of the nation. 195 Each race has a "culture potential': by which is meant a certain peoples capacity to evolve up to a certain plane of cultural orgenisation and not heyond ito The culture potential of the negro soon made havoc of the white culture imposed upon it in Liberia. ${ }^{196}$ As the preservation of the identity of the nation throughout change is the object of conservatism, the fecilities afforded to foreign settlers in England should be the object of very jealous and severe attention. The mixing of blood hes so often throughout histoxy proved the principle cause of a nation's decay, that a haughty attitude of aloofness towards the foreignor is justified. 197 Because a "strong Conservative attitude" based upon considerations of ethnicity was unrepresented in the governing body, in 1656 Cromwell allowed the Jews to return to Englando ${ }_{0}^{198}$ Hitherto, from Richard II onwards, a series of measures restricted the freedom of foreign merchants to trade within the realm。 By Act 32 nd $_{8}$ Henry VIII $_{8} \mathrm{c}_{0} 16_{8}$ para. 83, all leases, whether of a dwelling house or shop, within the realm or any of the Kings dominions, held by any stranger, artificer, or handy craftsman, born out of the King's obeisance, and not being a denizen, were null and void, and the person taking such 2 lease was punished: 199 The fact that no amendment of this law took place until the Act 7 and 8, Victoria, c.66, in the year 1844, when aliens were allowed to take a lease of real property for the purpose of residence or business for 21 years $_{9}$ though they were still forbidden to hold real estate, Ludovici believed spoke "highly for the conservative spirit of England" ${ }^{200}$ It was not until the Naturalisation Act of $1870_{0}$ under Gladstone's first administration that the civil diaabilities of aliens were completely abolished and that naturalisation was made easy and inexpensive, and subsequent legislation was meroly complementary to this measure 201 He thought those who marvel at the change that has come over the self-reliant and independent nature of the Bnglishrnan, should bear in mind the influx of foreign blood that had, he believed, undermined the Englishman's character and physique. 202 Regrettably, Disraeli's proclamation that ""all is xace ${ }^{\text {mi }} 203$ had little meaning in Pnglish politics, otherwise Disraeli himself would have had no status in Fnglish political life ${ }_{0}^{204}$ It is hopeless to conserve a nation's identity if the blood of its people, and the unity of its culture, are exposed toalieninfluence on a large scale Conservatives ignored the real nature of their creed: "We look in vain for any intelligence Conservative comment on these problems throughout the nineteenth century." ${ }^{205}$ The Tories, although they consistently resisted the measures that vere proposed to remove the disabilities of the Jews in the nineteenth century did not, as they should have, base their objections on the question of race. ${ }_{0}^{206}$ No-one seemed to recognise the real conservative principle that a nation with individuality is a segregated ethnic unit, and that if its identity is to be conserved, it must be protected from the influence of other segregated peopleso ${ }^{207}$ The object of conservatism is to conserve the identity of the nation in every sense, not "to be pleasant, hospitable and open-hearted at all costs" ${ }^{208}$ Vague feelings of revolt moved the Conservatives to oppose the admission of the Jew to civil rights, but they never properly understood whether it was desirable to allow the Jew to influence English culture and a character by miscegenationo ${ }_{0}^{209}$ In the debates on the Naturalisation Bill, both in the Commons and the Lords, not a sign of the "old Tory spirit" was manifested ${ }^{210}$

Ludovici was most perturbed by the immieration of unprecedented numbers of Asiatics and Negros into Britain in the post war era. He thought to understand the "supine inactivity" of the Government in rogard to the 'problem' of miscegenation requires a knouledge of what had hapnened in Theland since 1939. He thought this all the more necessary seeing that during most of the period covering this black immigration，an alleged＇Conservative Party＇had been in charge of the nation＇s dostinies．The reason is that ever since 1939，the Consorvetive Party had felt itself compelled to embrace the opposition to facism．lnd，in so doing had surrendered＂the Wisest and most valuable Conservative principles＂。 Like the politiciens of other parties，the Conservetives，shouted＇Nay！＇to evory Nazi＇Yea， 9 to Life，and subscribed to a number of socialist beliefs，which with the traditions of the fmpiro behind them，were quite novel and strange．${ }_{0}^{211}$ When，therefore，from the standpoint of conserving the nation＇s identity，foreign races poured into Fngland from her colonial possessions，Ludovici clained that genuine＇conservetives＇ Iike he claimed to be，were perplexed。 In the cese of the determined opposition to Nazi racial laws，Ludovici thought English＇conservatives＇ hed not forgotten the lies that had played thoir part in hostilities ${ }^{212}$

Ludovici＇s racial diagnosis of degeneration was certainly not inconsistent with the beliefs of his mentor．Mietzsche． 213 In Mancel Fellowes，the Jewish Nietzschean，Dr．Melhado，proclains that the glory of ancient Egypt still survives in his racial memory，and his hearto filled with its after glow，sickens at the sight of modern Burope。214 In What Uoman Wishes we are told that one of the heroes，Lord Fixle， believed in the principle that England at her zenith had been the creation of the national oharacter：

○ooForeign blood，or foreign influences，however exalted they might be in their own home，could． if imported into this country，only dilute or destroy the national character，and ultimately undermine the febric of the Fmpire． 215

In Iudovici ${ }^{\text {s }}$ Man＇s Descent from the Godsi or，the complete case against prohibition，of 1921，he interprets the＇myth＇of Prometheus as embodyine the truth of an actual racial cross．He reckons the gods of the myth were descended from a superior race that had condescended to effect a union with an inferior race, and hed, therefore, already experienced some degeneration. The natural attitude of a bealthy superior race is one of aloofness and contempt to all other races ${ }_{0}^{216}$ Zeus, was one of the trueobrea off spring of the cross, who resembled in every particular the superior, immigrant race. Frometheus, on the other hand, was a perfect blend of the two races, and therefore very much bigger then the men of either the superior or the inferior race ${ }_{\circ}^{217}$ The HoIy Bible informs us that after the sons of God had taken the daughters of men as wives there were giants on the earth ${ }_{0}^{218}$ Ludovici believed the moral effects of racial crosses is that whereas fertility and size are increased, character is destroyed:

-o.Thus Eurasians and Elulattoes and cross bred Europeans and Chinese are proverbial for their unreliability, shiftiness and even dishonesty. There the blend is perfect, obviously both moral characters axe destroyed; both inherited moral attributes tend to neutralise each other $\mathrm{p}_{0}$ and leave but a residuum of savacre primary characters behind, denuded of their usual overlap of social and aesthetic inhibitions. 219

Prometheus, therefore, appears as of no moral character in the myth ${ }^{220}$ The right to fetch fire from the superior race ${ }^{\text {o }}$ which was originally in possession of kindling it, was subject to rules wisely laid down by zeus, as he knew of the deleterious effects of fire on food ${ }^{221}$

However, Promotheus the demagogue, had promised the inferior race concessions from Zeus, stole fire, and brought about evil for the inferior race ${ }^{222}$ Ludovici then proceeds to identify the gods of anciont myth. He reckons Uranus was of the same race as the God of the Sernites - the Jehovah of the 01d Testament. This race must have been sufficiently large and widely distributed to heve had representatives both in Asia and Europe. 223 They are the 'Dionysians' rather than the 'Prometheans', who spamed Westem civilisation. The 'dionysian type? ${ }^{\circ}$ the "men-gode" ${ }^{224}$ 。are the ancestors of the Cromacnon race who reached their zenith in the Paleolithic Age, were artistic, and becane absorbed by other peoples in the Neolithic Age. They were the gods of the Jews, Greeks, Pergians and Indians. They were the greatest xace on earth and became absorbed by the Aryans. 225 Uranus wes a Cromagnon. When, therefore, Aeschylus makes Prometheus say that he has lingered thirty thousand years in chains, after being punished by Reus, he shows that he was aware of the vast antiquity of the myth。 ${ }^{226}$ A similar process of 'reasoning', applied to the first and second verses of the siyth chapter of Genesis would lead, according to Ludovici:g to the conclusion that the God of the Jeus and Christians was also a Cro-Magnon. ${ }_{0}^{227}$ The modern Buropean, the product of the miscege enation between the Cro-liagnons and Aryans, is very much inferior to the Cromagnon race which existed over fifty thousand years ago: ${ }_{0}^{228}$ The fact that the Cro-ilagnons have not survived, despite their superiority, demonstrates both the extreme danger of miscegenation and that the "strucsle of life is indiscriminate" 229

The democratic contempt of blood and fami 1 y , which is based upon the belief in equality, and leads to miscegenetion on a universal scale ${ }_{0}$ must be reckoned among the deep causes of modern degeneration, according to Ludovici ${ }_{0}^{230}$ In his Violence Sacrifice and Var, he defines a netion as consisting of either a pure race, or else a compound of two or more races which have attained to homogeneity through long segregetion and inbreeding. 231 Everything else is a mere population or biological proletarian, examples of which are:
...the Levantines, the hybrids of Haiti, Liberia., South Anerica, North America, and South Africa, and the mongrel hordes which inhabit all the large trading ports of the world, such as Shanghai, Hong Kong, Columbo, Alexandria, Port Said, Cape Torn, Zanzibar, and Pfarseilles.

In contrast, the ancient Fgyptians, the Hindus, the Chincse, the Jevs, the Greeks, the Romans, the Figlish and the Japenese, are nations. Only they can contribute to culture and civilisation. To break dow frontiers in ordor to merge people in one fraternat embrece would be to convert them into "monfel hordes thot ooobram like chattering monkeys from Babel。" 232 The instinct of eloofness in the races, whether pure or mixed, which became tbrough their geogrephical position, or their artificial boundaries, serregated and inbred, and which produced the great civilisations and cultures of the world, was a special manifestation of the instinct of selfpreservation, to preserve what was precicus in the blood. ${ }^{233}$ People Who heve long followed different lines of development, liveddifferent lives, pursued different ideals, and evolved different characters, cannot unite without causing serious disharmonies both of physiology and psychology in their offspring. Especially. Ludovici believed, since the bodily parts of both parents are inherited independently ${ }_{0}^{234}$ In Ingland by 1760, according to Ludovici, the wholesale miscegenation Which began chiefly in Cromell's time, had so far altered the fibre of the nation that she began to make successive mistakes in her domestic, colonial and foreign policy. But, still the gamered strength of her centuries of isolation and inbreeding allowed her to continue in military and naval supremecy until the ime of Quetm Victoria's Diamond Jubilee, in 1897, when at long last the inferior blood in her people caused the tide to turno 235

Miscegenetion conceals and spreads illohealth and all qualities, desirable or undesirable, diluting and mixing themo ${ }_{\circ}^{236}$ Ludovici believed the chief effects of miscegenation on the constitution are: Degeneracy, by inducing reversion; dysfunction and disease, by the production of individuals whose bodies are discordant jumbles of unrelated parts from various unlike stocks; increase of national morbidity, owing to the spread of disease among sound stock ${ }_{0}^{237}$ He regretted that too little attention is paid in modern civilised societies to disparities of race in mating', and their effect on child birth。 238

Ludovici's racial diagnosis of degeneration is most evident in his oseudonymous book of 1938, Jews, and the Jews in Engrand. Fe asserts that the Jews are a highly selected exoup of the Semitic race 239 Segregation。inbreeding, and long periods of communal life led under the rule of the same values, the conditions essential to the production of a race, were reveatedly imposed upon them by themselves or by their enemies ${ }_{0}^{240}$ Indeed, from a common primeval source, mankind ultimately became differentiated into Mongoloids. Megroids, Australoids and Caucasians, by segregation of groups, inbreeding, and the specialisation among these groups that comes from meeting different difficulties, different climatic conditions, and obsorving different dietary and other values over long periods ${ }^{241}$ In the Jews of the Great Dispersion, Europeans were still confronted with the members of a homogeneous race ${ }^{242}$ ficcording to Ludovici's monism es the Jevi has survived as a 'type', there could be no question of the Jews not constituting a distinct racee ${ }^{243}$ The expulsion of the Jevs from England by Edward I was right and necessitauso ${ }^{244}$ But, many noor Jews settled in England, probably accepted baptism and were thence forward reckoned as English and adopted English names. Ludovici believed this constituted edequate evidence for assumins an influx of Semitic blood into the medieval Fnclish population, and accounts for the marked Jewish 'types' living as Rnglishmen, passing amons their fellous as Enclishmen and claming to be of purely Anglo-Sexon or Celtic encestry. 24.5 The Jews inherited from their originel state as nomeds a complex of mental habits, erotions, gifts and tester, such, for instence，as their inobility to become，or to Seel ronted to any terribory，hence their lack of appreciation and capacity for a territorial national＇s attechment to a particular soil and environment．Guch，too as their inability to understand property as a privelige involving dutios and responsibilities；their incapability of building up a society in which the relations of the various clesses and of their members are based on co－operetion ${ }_{0}^{246}$ Owing to the Jews＇characteristics inherited and acquired from their Asiatic Bedouin origin，their long association with civilisation and big cities，and their hard struggle for that naxrow isthmus of land which included all the princiral trade routes bet：een three continents in the ancient vorld，theyo according to Ludovici。 naturally tend to scom the more laborious and slower methods of accumulating wealth．The individualism of the Jew inherited from his ancestors，and combined with his native＇hardness＇，render the Jews incapable of understanding property excent as individual possession free from all oblichtions and duties． 247 The rapacity of the Jews is prodictable，according to Ludovici，when we bear in mind their derivation from a desert people：
－o．For how can an independent nomad，moving with all his personal family and goods from pasture to pasture and from oasis to oasis，conceive of any gregarious attitude towards property，or of any obligations implicit in his possessions，other than those he feels porhaps towreds his own children？ 48

The Jews are an ethnic＇type＇whose physical composition is difforent from that of Englishmen。 Difference of morphology means they are incompatible as regards＇culture potential＇．A truth regretably disregarded by the English legislature of the nineteenth century which liberated the Jews from civil disabilities and permitted their intrusion into Fnglish public Iife。 249 When the Jows oppose Furopean conservatism they are oblivious to their own＂fits of Conservatism＂ in the past，out of expediency：

That Esra did in Jerusalem in 485 BC ，what Nehemiah did in the same city in 445 BC 8 is conven－ iently forgotton，if it is a matter of ridiculine the actions of a Tory like the Parl of Malmesbury in opposing the Bill to repeal the civil disabilities of Jews or if it is important that the National Socialists of Cermany should be refuted and ridiculed．

On the othor hand，when it is a matter of a Jew trying to get himself accented es a conservative，nobody can speak in a manner more persuasive about the fundamental principles of consexvatism that Iudovici thoucht actuated German National Socialism，then Disraeli himselfo The Jews have a tendancy to convert a society based on a mutualistic conception of property，and on a system of greded service with protection of the subordinate in returm for his obedience，into moderm capitalism。 And，they ultimately have a tendency to meet the inevitable disintegration of capitalist society，by suitching to communism。 ${ }^{251}$ For these reasons Ludovici thought prudence dictated a policy of exclusion of both the Jew and his influence from all those departments of Bnglish life in which Jewish influence may alter the identity of the nation otherwise，it could not be conserved：

There can be no doubt that，from the standpoint of a strictly Conservetive attitude the Jew should be precluded from too much control over our institutions and customs，because as they are not an extermal expression of his type，his intervention as a pover over them cannot fail to modify them in an unomglish way。 252

Ludovici submitted that when once a well－defined national character has established the institutions and customs suited to its peculiar testes，capacities and virtues，these institutions can be modified only by attacking the national＂type＂or stock． 253 He regretted that truths readily acknorledged in the breeding，health and satisfactory nurture of enimals，are hardly ever applied to man ${ }^{254}$ A segregated people in a state of nature tend to become uniform in their somatology and psychology and conflictsof a physiological and psychological order are gradually eliminated through natural selection. If they mix With others differently constituted such standardised people becone dishamonious and disproportionate, unabalnced and, therefore. functionally faulty。 255 The Mnglish wore once, and for a lonc period of their history, stendardised. 256 Thoy degenerated because in the mechanisms governing heredity throughout animal life, including humanity, mixture of races causes the offspring to inherit the disparate bodily parts of their parents: 257 One of the major consequences of miscegenation Ludovici believed, is reversion; that is, the reversion towards a stage of development which each of a mongrel's parents has already surpassed and left far behind ${ }^{258}$. According to Ludovici, the prodigious increase in demented, neurotic and maladjusted person, has occurred because of the reckless miscegenation, whether of races, 'types' ${ }^{\text {' }}$ or merely occupational family strains, that had been going on for over three centuries. 259 The urgent need felt by the members of the Establishment to revile and reject every feature of Nazi Germany, especially the race measures which Ludovici believed most faithfully reflected the attitude of the Inglishmen who established the British Empire, had meant that the British public had everyvhere been inculcated with prejudices which even their aunts would have rejected out of hand at the turn of the century:

The result was that fashionable opinion in England soon began, simply on the grounds that a point of view or a policy savoured of the Third Reich, to condemn out of hand many a sound judgement and attitude which the Buglish nation at home and abroad formally championed with all their might, and which in Thackeray's day would have been stoutly advocated by Thackeray himselfo And, foremost amons such attitudes was the rooted. objection to miscegenation.

Ludovici thought one needs merely to think of the lethal consequences to a patient if blood of the wrong group is introduced into his bloodstrean to realise the mendacity of the opponents of racial discrimination: 260

However, Ludovici's reasons for believing the race had degenerated were not merely confined to misccenation He cited indiscriminate breeding within the race as another potent cause of degeneration. In his A Defence of Aristocracyo A text book for Torien he eulogised a caste system ${ }^{261}$ and regretted the tendancy of Englishmen not to marry those to whom they are consenguineous ${ }_{8}$ especially relatives: ${ }_{0}^{262}$ His novel of 1918, Mansel Fellowes, is a diatribe against indiscriminate breeding. Both Mansel Fellowes and Richard Latimer, the heroes of the novel, are specimens of "flouxishing life", but the latter gets engaged to Colonel Morrison's daughter. Gladys. who is described as degenerete: 263 Richard Latimer did not have the perception to appreciate that Mansel Fellowes gave the greatest promise of Iife ${ }_{0}^{264}$

Ludovici laments:

> ooothat a ghastly thing it was that the taste of men was such thet this beautiful virgin could have been overlooked for one instance, while inferior girls were being chosen by the score! that was the real tragedy! that was the real crime: it was the gruesome tragedy of all precious things in an Age that was graduolly compessing its own doom by methodically and consistently choosing the wrong thingo ${ }^{265}$

In The Goddess that Grew Up, Peter Oliver never, unfortunately, transo ferred some of the bitterness he coneumed in private over his marriage to the non-vital Maud, to a society which disregarded the eugenic aspects of marriage: 266 So accustomed was the world to the smeotacie which Peter Oliver's household presented, and to the 'normality' of lives blighted by imperfect health that nobody in his circle was aware of any sorrow in his life ${ }^{267}$ Later in the novel lirs Oliver's desire to live fades, her "spring of life had gone", and she dies. ${ }^{268}$ Againg in Ludovici's novel of 1923. French Beans, although the "fire of life aparked and leaped" within Domina Biggadyke, she was less successful with men than her private secretaxy, Catherine Urquhart, who, frailo delicate and friable, aloof from the physical concerns of life, had many pressing admirers, so thoroughly misled were men as to the desirable mate ${ }^{269}$

Ludovici thought a tendency whereby opposites are married. according to which, dark crossed with fair, tall with short, and the sick with the sound ${ }^{\text {s }}$ is neither more nor less than a recipe for degeneration ${ }^{270}$. That happens to the body of the offspring of dissimilar types is necessarily reflected in its nervous controls and ganglia. If, therefore, there is conflict in the former, as there must be in people random-bred from disparate parents and stock, it also follows there is conflict, of varying decrees of gravity, in the psychological equipment. ${ }_{0}^{271}$ Mongelisation does not merely occur then races mix. Ludovici thought that in England this is now probably its rarest manifestation:
> oooIt occurs chicfly in healthy, sound stocks. moncrelising thomselves by mating with unsound weedy and tainted stocks; or in well-constituted and sood-looking stocks meting with ill-constituted, bady-grom, and repulsive stocks; or by the matine of wholly disparate types - short and stumpy with tall and slim, fat and heavy with spouses whose endocrine balance is nommal; vigorous and hard mating with weakly and soft. So that ugliness becomes not merely the hereditary feature of a family line, but is created afresh in every generation and family by the confusion and chaos resulting from the jumble of incompatible traits inherited independently fron wholly disparate perents (his italics ). 272

Ludovici even sucgested that actual race mixture was now a comparatively rare occurrence, at least in Western Europe. However, the very same consequences which result from race mixture, also result from whato in Westem Eurone, was, Ludovici thought, now so common as to be almost universal, the dysgenic nating of different types which accountod for the prevailing morbidity ${ }^{273}$
2. Relicious: The Christian Bthic。 Frotestantism, and Puritanism referred to was the prevalence of the Christien ethic and Puritanism in Encland. In his A Defence of Aristocracyo A text book for Tories, Iudovici says that the relation of the ecclesiastical body to the people in Furope had deleterious influences by being independent of the govomment or feudal ruler. By ministering to the hearts of the people, not for a national or racial purpose, but for a purpose that lay beyond races and nations, it undermined the jealous love of race and nationality, and , by divorcing the idea of aristocracy from the noble duty of caring for the hearts of the masses undermined the 'ruler-aristocrat'? ${ }_{0}^{274} H_{i} s$ diatribe against Puritanism is to be found in Chanter $V$, "The Protamorphosis of the Bnglishman of the Seventeenth Century 275 , in which he asserts that Puritanism, by reducing the Englishman's love of life, prepared the way for industrial capitalism。 ${ }_{0}^{276}$ Fnglishmen had to learm that vital beauty which leads and lures to life, to the joy in life and to the multiplication of lifes is neither essential nor helpful to the factory. The profound problem with which England began blindly to grepple in the Scventeenth Century was to discover the religion essentially allied to trade and commerce. The religion that vas to consolidate the masters and rear the slaves for capitalism wes Puritanism ${ }_{0}^{277}$ Puritanism, hostile to the flesh, necessarily suppressed the highest spirits, vigour, and energy, of the working classes ${ }_{9}^{279}$

Thourh Puritanism did not become an organised force until the Seventeenth Century in England, the Puritan had always existed sporadically, individually and locally, "just as sick animals represent a certain percentage of all animals born evory year."279 The puritan, sick in body and mind, camot lead a full life。 Calvin was:

[^5]Essentially, the Puritan is a 'boy" who has acquired a noral stendard of judgement, and transfers his inadequacies to the rest of mankind ${ }_{0}^{281}$ Commercial morality became and remained united vith the morality of the Furitans. They shared a profound suspicion of flourishing, healthy and robust life; indifference to beauty Whether in the human body or an art; hostility to sexuality and high spirits; a preferance for meekness $\boldsymbol{\beta}_{8}$ inferiority of vigour and vitality; and a deteriorated love of life and joy of life, which rendered millions not merely resigned and submissive, but ectually content in town, factory and office surroundings. 282 According to Ludovici, the metamorphosis of the Englishman into a devitalised creature that accepted capitalism, was accomplished by Puritanismo Which met the requirements of human profit and greed. 283 The Puritans' depressing and life-sapping creed initiated a general decline in vitality by promoting industrial capitalism。 ${ }^{284}$ The first direct attack that the Puritans made upon the dietetic habjits of Englishmen consisted in an attempt at suppressing the consunption of wholesone alcoholic beverages: 285 They promoted the introduction of the life-sapping drugs which contributed to the physical impoverishment of the working classes of Fngland - tea and coffee. ${ }^{286}$ Ludovici proclaims as "one who has written so much about Nietzsche the Antio Christ, and who has been engaged for so long in propogating his doctrines". that the English working classes could expect little justice or mercy from the Puritans. ${ }^{287}$ The life-despising rorality of the Puritans and Wigs had been paramount in England since the last upholder of good taste and popular liberty, Charles $I_{2}$ was overthrown and murdered by them in the fifth decade of the seventeenth centuryo 288

Nevertheless, not all of Ludovici's allusions to religion are deprecatory. In his A Defence of Conservatism : he concedes that the earliest guilds were religious guilds inspired by the Holy Catholic Church, which in itself was an aristocratic institution with a strict hierarchy, although deprived of blood descent, and was largely responsible for the cooperative orgenisation of labour and trade, as it was for the greater part of the Middle Rges. Despite its nono pagan creed, Catholicism retained much of what was valuable in the classic vorld, including the insistence upon quality ${ }_{0}^{289}$ However. Ludovici's attitude tovards Catholicism was ambivalent. This ambivalance was never conferred on his attitude to Puritanism and Protestantism。 He thought the Puritans were the worst of the Christians, because they prepared the way for the Industrial Revolution, by inaugerating an era of bodily neglect and hostilitty to bodily concerns and concerns of beauty ${ }_{0}^{290^{*}}$ In Chapter $V_{9}$ "Religion and the Constitution" ${ }_{0}^{291}$ Ludovici reckons that through the Reformation, an attempt at fortifying temporal authority against the international force of Catholicism, a stimulus was unintentionally given to a division of authority in the land by the creation of the Frotestant Church. The Tories, as hereditary supporters of the Crow and Church, were saddled with a religious institution which, "from the standpoint of the Tory belief in authority, subcrdinetion and order", was a pure anomaly. ${ }^{292}$ Protestants establish thedoctrine of private judgement which, while it was ultimately to be deployed as a means of opposing the authority of the Pone, became the great corrosive of authority and tradition in matters unconnected with religious controversy. ${ }^{293}$ The principle of the right of private judgement soon became a disruptive and subversive influence in national life. ${ }_{0}^{294}$ Ludovici believed English Conservatives had been most unfairly handicapped by the ecclesiastical polity which they had been obliged to carry along with them for four centuries. At least Co.tholicism was more corpatible than Protestantism with authority in general ${ }_{0}^{295}$ The possession of such doctrines as primitive Christianity offers，coupled with the right of private judgement，did not induce the English，or any other Protestant people to political stability：＂least of all does it confirm them in their native and instinctive conservatism。＂296

Of course，in decrying Christiantty，Indovici was continuing the task of his mentor，Nietzsche，who had written that Christianity was the cry of the sick and the degenerate，those＂who suffer from life as from a disease＂ 297 The Jews performed the inversion of valuations，which shunned life and led to Christianity＇s＇slave－ insurrection＇in morals．${ }_{0}^{298}$ Christian values represent the descending line of life，and with themg man must perforce degenerate ${ }_{0}^{299}$ Nietzsche could hear the weary and those incapable of the struggle of life，cry Christianity\％${ }_{0}^{300}$ In Christian values．Nietzsche read nihilism， decadence，degeneration，and death．They were calculated to favour the multiplication of the least desirable on eartho 301 Nietzsche＇s charge of falsehood against Christianity vas not a moral one but a charge of an error that led to humanity＇s degeneration ${ }^{302}$ That Christianity had＇lied＇was a subject of alarm to Nietzsche，not on grounds of morality，but because it was hostile to life ${ }_{0}^{303}$ In Mansel Fellowes，although the Nietzschean Dr．Melhado concedes that the Catholic Church stands for order ${ }^{304}$ ，he protests to Father Jevington that the socialist revolutionary discovers from the Christian source of Catholicism that God has chosen the base things of this world and the things thet are despised．The masses learm that they will be called to judge angels later on，and that therefore how much more can they judge the things that pertain to this life。 This was the discovery of thefirst Protestants，the first insolent Catholics。 Thus，disorder springs from the creed of the Church itselfo ${ }_{0}^{305}$ That is why Dro Melhado， Who wishes to see his fellow men＂＇more certain of the essential truths of Life'", cannot trust the Catholic Church. It led to Protestantism once, and might do so again ${ }_{0}^{306}$ Richard Latimer, who consciously disavowed Christianity, still unconsciously, like thousands of his heretical followers, felt and thought like a Christian in his choice of a mote, and other vital matters 307

Nevertheless, he still saw about him all the degeneration that Dr, Melhado traced to Christien influences:

> oo He sav plainly the havoc Christian influence had made of human beauty, human health, and lof iy human aims; he realised now almost acutely as Felhado himself, how dangexous had been the doctrine that lays such emhasis upon the soul and so little on the bodyo he sav how successfully two thousand vears of Christianity with its usly child Trotestantism and the latter's still uslier abortion Puritanism had reduced the whole world to a huge conmercial combine without either aesthetic aims or an aesthetic justification. 308

However, Richard Latimer's unconscious Christion bias made him suspicious of his temptation for Mansel Fellowes's vitality ${ }_{0}^{309}$ In his choice between Mansel Fellowes and his non-vital fiancée, Gladys Morrison, he was sure that Dro Melhado's insistence that he should marry Mansel Fellowes was right; but, he wavered, his doop rospect for Father Jevington's insistence on loyalty to one's fiancee, and a growing doubt as to the finality of his atheicm, made him question whether the standpoint of Life could always prevail ${ }^{310}$ Indeed, Richard Latimer is finally converted to Catholicism and renounces Mansel Fellowes. On this occasion, Dr. Melhado says to Father Jevington that life and he have lost, as usual, against Christianity ${ }_{0}^{311}$

In Wat Homen Vishes, Mir.A.N. Landrassy excleins to Lord Tirle that his sons, Lord Chiddingly's, political ideal, that children should be taught that not every man has a right to his orm opinion, and to say that he has is a dangerous and senseless lie would, recrettably, be recarded as an atteck on the Church, though not on the Holy Cotholic Church? 312 Faud Oliver, in The Goddess the $t$ Grew Un, becones porfectly adapted to hex carcer of illness once she adopts Catholicismo 313
With all Seter Oliver's health, his vigour, and bis youth, she becins to pity hor husband, that much had hor edoption of Ronan Catholicism done for her:

> oo From a position of humble and pitiable helplescness, from which she had looked up to her husband's enormous vitality and health as somethinc beyond her roach, and deeply to be envied, sho had nov been transfonced into a creature who could pity him, who covld afford to indulge hiss smallest whim, and smile peace fully nind corpassionately over his triflinc pleasures. 314

Sir Thomas Breintree, in French Peans, informs Andre de Loudon thet Christianity, which does not value a man's and a. voman's value according to the extent to which they guarantee in their own person the survival of the race in a desirable form, is one of the primary causes of contempory degeneration? 315

Puritanism can deal with life only"by amputating and limiting itno ${ }_{0}^{316}$ Christianity had exerted a powerful influence in favour of usliness, degeneracy and disease ${ }_{0}^{317}$ The English neople were misled by their prelates who vociferated according to Iudovici, against the relatively benign and creative regime of German Mational Socialism, whilst pretending there was anything or anybody worth respecting in the Govermment of modern Russia ${ }_{0}^{318}$

There were in the Puritan attitude all the prerequisites of a democratic ideology, thought Ludovici。 It appealed to the natural meanness of those who wished to exploit their fellows and who chafed under controlled conditions, particularly to those members of the governing classes who wished for a free hand in their relations with the working classes. It prepared the way for the rule of laissez-faire in every department of English Life ${ }_{0}^{319}$ The English Reformed Church was riddled with Furitans, and since their doctrines had political implications, their followers were determined to fight for what they called freedom and independence, not only in religious but also in political matters. From the beginning Charles I opposed the demands of Puritanism, determined to continue the policy of those Kings who had protected the masses and been "the cradual socialisers of their particularist people", he tried to confirm the best features of medieval lecislation ${ }_{0}^{320}$ Ludovici thought the need for 211 these measures on the part of Charles I shows that the old values which, in the past, had placed national before private interest, were beginning to be undermined ${ }_{0}$ and his efforts to restore medieval feudal principles infuriated the powerful Puritans ${ }_{0}^{321}$ However, the Puritans ultimately succeeded, and by executions on the block removed the obstacles to their nefarious schemeso Once Charles I had been eliminated, the face of Pngland changed completely as laissez-faire, exploitation and fraud, became rampant ${ }^{322}$ The Calvinistic olement of hostility to the body and to the flesh, compounded with the license everythere allowed, in both the food industries and the condition of labour, led to a general decline in the national health. Materjal prosperity became the aim, even at the cost of national degeneracy ${ }_{0}^{323}$ Puritanism implies a contempt of the body and is, therefore, negative to Life ${ }_{0}^{324}$

What least ingratiated Ludovici to Christianity was the benevolence it prompted. In his A Defence of Conservatism, Iudovici says that many Christian doctrines and valuations, when once they are divorced from the firm and orderly framework of Catholicism, become susceptible of being used for revolutionery purposes:

○osuch doctrines and valuations as the equality of men: the hostility to riches; the desirability of 'unselfishness'. the virtuousness of sacrificing the greater to the less: the notion that thore, is such a thing as a univorsal and immanent justice (which in the popular mind appears to be violated when one child is born in a slum and anothor in Paxk lane): and the duty to do unto others that which we would they should do unto us. 325

Extreme liberalism or socialism are indebted to the steady incalcation upon the nasses, by Frotestantism and its ropresentetives in Bngland。 of the doctrine of Divine Revelation plus the right of privete judgee ment ${ }_{0}^{326}$ The developmont of Catholic doctrine had been the work of interpretors who claimed that their interpretation of the New Testement was valid for all believers. However. Protestantism ovex threw Catholic interpretation and restored priraitive Christianity to the faitheul. A soon as the New Testament became once more tho sole source of religious inspiration, the right of private judgement led to the same result as in the age preceding the complete establisho ment of Catholic doctrine - communismo ${ }_{\circ}^{327}$ The immediate effect of Protestantism in Germany was so terrifying thet Luther himself turned against the peasants whose contumacy he had helped to provoke with his doctrines ${ }^{328}$

These vieus are consistent with those of Ludovici's mentor, Nietzsche。 Christientty made life endurable for the 'slaves' 329 The religion of pity and patient toleration allowed parasites to survive in our midste 330 Eroism in him who is phyaionceically hotched. meant the promotion and enhancement of an undesirable element in society 331 According to Ludovici, the steady infedtion of the healthy mass of the people by the Christian perpotuation, preservation and propogation of the nation ${ }^{\circ}$ s unhealthiest elements, has acted as a gradual poison in four ways: As a depressing spectacle and a destroyor of joy to the sensitive: as an unnecessary burden upon the healthy, exacting too heavy a toll on their energy and good spirits; as a source of deterioration to the healthiest elements in the race; and by making it difficult for the desirable percentage of very successful creatures to be born, those creatures who, "by their beauty, grace and wanton spirits, ennoble life, by holdine up a lofty example of Life's highest possibilitieso" 332 Fumanitaxianism is merely an inverted form of cruelty; instead of directing their cruelty against the undesirable, humentarians sacrifice the hale to the physiologically botched ${ }_{0}^{333}$

In Iudovici's novel of 1924. The Taming of Don Juan, he laments thet Almine Underhill did not feel as miserable as Iudovici thought was natural whenever she accompanied her aunts to the Underhill Home。 Nevertheless, she always felt a shudder of 'instinctive' loathine when her aunts made her shake hands with the most nauseating and hopeless incurable among her audience:
-o.The only influence which had hitherto forced her resolutely to conceal this attitude, had been her om innocent conviction that she was really being good in behaving in this way, and that her aunts also vere good, and the thole of Fncland was good in concentrating all assistance, all succour, and all charity upon life's most hopeless products, while the growing minoxity of life's successes were harassed with ever increasing difficulties and obstacles334

All the 'natural' impulses in her that tended to make her the adverse critic of her aunts she regarded as selfish, impure, and bad. She began to feel uneasy in her conscience if she was aware of any revolt: against the charitable work among the sick, the feeble, and the defective تhich her aunts imposed upon themselves and her. 335 However later in the novel, when Almina, inherits her Aunt Clara's fortune, she was stagrered by the vast sums she hed to pay in merely continuing her Aunt Clara's extensive charities, and frequently, in consultation with her solicitor, becan to question Christian pity and whether the claims on her resources might not be reduced ${ }_{0}^{336}$ She had witnessed so much harroving poverty among the people of the surrounding villages, and so much misery amone desivable people, that charity for the undesirable began to appear illogical to hero 337 Life with ber aunts had sufficiently wakened her to the danger of Christian benevolence: "the slow but steady degeneration of all vital impulses into mere useless and selforcatifying appetitos." 338 This chenge in Almina is encouroged by the return of Gilbert Hilbum. the hero, from the trenches of World var Io In conversation with Almina, about the principle of sacrifice, he upheld the the curse of modern magland is the Christian principle according to which no-one hesitates to succour the degenerate and the undesirable ${ }_{0}^{339}$ Gilbert persuades Almina that Christianity is the sociological formula for degeneration 340

According to Ludovici, the Christian principle according to which all human life is protected, is supplemented by modern medicine which maintains a vast multitude of sub-normal and undesirable people ali.ve. It does not endow them with a fresh joie-de-vivre, or with a capacity for leading full lives, but just about sustains thom and allous them to rultiply and perpetuate their decadent stocks 341 The consecquence was that "waste human material", consisting of idiots, defectives, lunatics, incurables, cripples, and the physiologically botched, constituted a gratuitous penalisation, an intolerable limitation, upon sound life。342 Christianity had imposed pity, in the sense of an 'irrational' reflex at the sight of suffering, so that it must be forthcoming whether its oxpression promotes or hinders the welfare of the nation ${ }^{343}$ Christianity revealed an incufficient grasp of the nature of sound government, by stressing the duty of pity, charity, and unselfishness in the ruler, rather than inculcating on all believers the fundemental truth that the 'virtues' of charity were, in all but erceptional circumstances, alien to a healthy state of society? ${ }^{344}$ The resources of the nation were lavished on preserving what innrudence should have beon discarded:
ooeven Royalty, when time hones on its honds can think of nothing better to do than to grace a hospital, a home for crinples, the denf and the dumb, and the blind, with its eugust prosence. nowore malies a cesture, much less a bequesto which micht promote the multiplication of the sound and desirable stocks still surviving in our midst345

Perhaps Ludovici's most trenchant criticism of Christian benovolence is to be found in his Religion for Infidels, of 1961. We reckoned that even if the "army on defectives" that Christian benevolence had promoted did not contaminate and infect the sounder elements, it handicapped them, imposed limits on their capacity to multiply and thus jeopardised their survival ${ }_{0}^{346}$ There was but one reason for contempory indiscriminate pity - Christianity enjoined its practice 347 The fact that in the nineteen-twenties a Church of Bngland prelate was tolerated on the council table of the Eugenics Society, Ludovici thought, indicated that there was no understanding of the essentials of the 'problem' of degeneracy, Tncidentally, Ludovici declined an invitation to join the eugenic society because be could see no chance of realising its aims so long as its council could retain Dean Inge on its Board ${ }_{0}^{348}$ The compassionate plea for the least prescious specimens in the nation was revelatory of the powerful hold that Christian morality had on the impulses and sentiments of modern people? ${ }^{3} 49$ The contempory prevalence of merely 'medicated survival' was only explicable as the deleterious influence of Christianity which rendered all indifferent to human repulsivoness. 350 Prone as modern people were to declare themeelves agnostics, or even atheists, acknowledging alleciance to no denomination of the Christian faith, the majority of professedly emancipated Christians were still champions of the most deleterious of Christian moral preceptso ${ }^{351}$ Ludovici's hostility to Christianity adequately sumaxised in his "Tiy Testament" to his Relirion for Infidels, Post no prieot beside my litter: Carve no cross upon my bier! As a Christonhobist bitter Iet me poss unchurched Erom here

00000000000000000000000000000

Buen if I be instructed To appear before the throne. Where a cod head has conducted Vorld affairs since time unknown:

If moreover he engares His recording angel there, To recite a few score papes Of my sins let him bevare!

I will rance his whole creationg From the tapeworm to the $f \mathrm{Il}_{0}$ And await his evnlanation As to why, and why, and why?

So invoke no Heavens dauchter When I'm laid beneath the swerd, And don't waste your holy-vater On my oak-stained coffin-board: 352

3o Ideological: Liberalism and Socialism

Indisputably, Ludovici believed the major cause of England's degeneration was liberalism. Some of his most virilant attacks on liberalism are to be found in his English Liberalism, written for the English Array movement in 1939。 He believed in all countries liberalism had. meant: The uncritical misunderstanding of all change as progress; the utmost extension of frecdom to all whether for good or evil in determining the destiny of their nation , which ontails the deterioration of the national standard and tradition as only the elite can elevate the mass ${ }^{353}$. the acceptance of an extreme individualism in which private interests will take precedence over the national interest: the acceotence of the principles of indenendence and separateness ${ }_{0}$

Which assumes the possibility of privato rights in property。 The consequences of these principles of liberalism has areryvhere beeno according to Ludovici, "the disintegration, decay and degeneration of the societies in which they have prevailed" 354 The eccretions Fhglish liberalism received from such English and French thinkers as Locke, with his false assumption regarding the supposed equality of mankind; Bentham, with false assumptions regarding the contentment and happiness necessarily secured by democracy; Rousseau, with his false assumption thet man being born good, the evils of society must be due to environnent - only augnented liberalism'sjpocious plausibility, they never succeeded in correcting its fundamental unsoundness 355 The denial of the value of good blood and good stock, by liberals, aggravated the havoc already wrought in Bngland's health and stamina by the Puritan contempt of monism。 A further specious cleim of liberalism, according to Ludovici, is its unealanced advocacy of humanitarianism as a means of mending the damage done to the masses by poverty, illohealth, and the general neglect of bodily concerns 356 Concenital liberalism had become a reality. Although the many who were afflicted by ito particularly women, might imagine that their: liberal beliefs were the spontaneous products of their owm private cogitations, they were really little more than the victims of an atmosphere infected with it ${ }_{0}^{357}$ Ludovici thought England was faced with a colossal task of reconstruction and restoration - the exadication of liberalism. It meant restoring real liberty to the working masses: recovering the health and stamina of the nation; calling a halt to uncontrolled humanitarianismo reviving agriculture, the oldest and most essential industry in the country:\% rewestablishing the old 'grecarious' attitude towards property; creating a fresh elite, who could inspire their followers to the reversal of the deleterious effects of liberaligmo 358 He wrote-one other book purportedly dealing with his decryal of liberalism，The Specious Origins of Liberalism；the genesis of a delusion，of 1967，which was his last published book． Its twenty nine chapters coincide，approximately，with numerous articles and sories of articles he contributed to the South African Obscryer during the preceding years．＂He reckoned words such as Iudovici＇s The Specious Origins of Tihoralimp the genesis of a delusion vill hereafter be abbreviated to $\mathrm{S}_{0} \mathrm{O}_{0} \mathrm{I}_{0} \%$ the South African Observer will be abbreviated to $\mathrm{SoA}_{\circ} \mathrm{O}_{\circ}$ ；＇approximately coincides with＇will be abbreviated to aocovo。 In his series ＂The Specious Origins of Liberalism＂（No．1）SoA．O．，Merch 1961，Volume VI。 No，11．pp．8－9 a．ocowo＂the Liberal Prescription＂Chapter III of S．O．IO．pp．32－36：（No．II）S．A．O．O Lipril 1961，Volune VI No． 12. po．12－13 a．cow．＂Rulership and Responsibility＂，Chapter IV of Dro $9-10$ ，a cowo＂Phantom Life－Aelts＂，Chapter VI of SoO．TA，

 $a_{0} C_{0} W_{0}$ ，＂The Sanctity of Private Property＂，Chapter VII of $\mathrm{S}_{0} \mathrm{O}_{0} \mathrm{I}_{0} 0$
 ＂Liberalism and The Reformation＂：Chapter VIII of S．O．L． $\mathrm{pp.58-63:}$

 S．A．O．September 1961，Volune VII，No．5，ppo $10-12$ a．cowo＂Leftoling $^{\circ}$ English Utopia＂，Chapter K of $\mathrm{S}_{0} \mathrm{O}_{0} \mathrm{~L}_{\circ}, \mathrm{ppo} 74-78$ ；No．VIII S．A．O． October 1961．Volume VII。No． 6 ，ppo 12－13 20 cow 。＂Religious and December 1961。Volume VII，No．7，ppo 11－13 aocov。＂Cloud－Cuckoo January 1962，Volume VII，No． $8, \mathrm{pp}, 11-12$, 2．cow。＂Heredity and February 1962，Volume VII，No．90 ppo 9－11，a．cow。＂The Tone－Setting
 Volume VII，No．10．，pp．11－12， $2 . c \mathrm{cow}$ 。＂Constitutional Monarchy＂。 Chapter XV of $\mathrm{So}_{0} \mathrm{O}_{0} \mathrm{I}_{\circ}, \mathrm{pp}$ ．99－104；No．XIII，$\underline{Z}_{0} \mathrm{~A}_{0} \mathrm{O}_{0}$ 。 April 1962，Volume VII， No． 11 ．pp． $13-14$ a．cowo＂Quality in Human Heredity＂。 Crapter XXI of S．O．L．${ }^{2}$ pp． $133-137$ ；No．XIV，S．A．O．May 1962，Volume VII，No． 12, ppo 11－12，a．cowo＂Primogeniture and Selection in Matrimony＂．
 Volume VIII。No． 1, pp．11－12，a．cow．＂Primogeniture and Selection in 1962．Volume VIII，No．2，ppo $\overline{10-11}, a_{0} \mathrm{cow}$ 。＂The Profanation of Private Property＂，Chapter XXIII of S．O．L．，pp．149－152；No．KVIII，S．A．O． November 1962，Volume VIII，Toof，ppo 12－13，aocow，＂Privelige and Decermber 1962，Volume VIII，No．5，ppo 10012, a．cow．＂Indiscipline in January 1963．Volume WIII，No．6，pp．12－13，20．cow。＂Habitual Anarchy＂，
 Volume VIII，No． 6, ppo $13-14$ ，a．covo＂Psychological Myopia＂， Chapter XXVII of $$_{5.0} 0_{0} L_{0}, ~ p p .166-169$ ．In his series＂The Importance of Racial Integrity＂，No．XVII，S．A．O．August 1959，Volune 5，No． 4 ， pp．12－13 a．c．W。＂Louis KV＂，Chapter XTX of G．O．L． Fp ．124－127（of）：

＇fascist＂，＇nazi＇，＇reactionory＇，and even＇tory＇，had acquired pejorative meanings which wero beginning to associate them with guilt andshame，through the prevalence of liberalism ${ }_{0}^{359}$ He thought liberals had stepped into the vaccuum left by the abuse of monarchical and aristocratic government，and mistakonly believed their position was permanentthrough defect in the aristocratic system of government per se ${ }^{360}$ Liberals had severely limited the sphere of government． They overlooked the truth that government is not merely a matter of erecutive functions connected with the nations relation with other countries，its arned forces，its maintenence of law and order，and the control of public finances，but essentially a matter of establishing a desirable way of life in the nation：
．o．the cry that did not fail to go up in the late nineteenth century and was enthusiastically taken up by men like Horatio Bottomley－I refer to the cry for a Government of Business Men－is evidence of how vulgarly limited the idea of Government was in the Liberal confraternity。 361

Liberals pronounced man fundanentally good and ignored his instinctive aggressiveness，self－indulgence and secret indifference to the public good when it was incompatible with his orm advantage ${ }_{0}^{362}$ With the democratic superstition，liberals deliberately associated all officially imposed discipline with＇fascism＇，so that it was generally fromed ppo 117－120（ox）：No．XIV S．A．O．，Nay 1959，Volume 5。iNo． 1 ，ppo 12－13． a．c．N．＂Louis XIV＂，Chapter KVIII of S．O．L．\＆ppo 115－117（of）；No．XIII。 S．A．O．O April 1959，Volume IV，No．12，ppo12－13 a．o．Covo＂The Bourbon Dynasty＂，Chapter XVII of S．O．L．，ppo 113－114（of）；No。XII，S．A．O． March 1959，Volume IV，No．T1，pp．10－11，a．cow。＂The Bourbon Dynasty＂，
 Volume IV，No． 10 pp． $12-13, a_{0} c . w_{0}$＂Royalties Sins Mgeinst Itself＂， Chapter XVI of S．O．L．，pp．106－110（of）Ludovici＇s Western Burope＇s Social History a in one word＂，S．A．O．，Volune VIII，No．12，July 1963.
 Finally，of Ludovici＇s series＂The Rssentials of Good Government＂． No．I，S．E．O．O Volumie IX，Na．2，September 1963，pp．12－14，a．cowopp．9－10 of＂Lristocracy and the Mob＂，Chaptex I of S．O．I．${ }^{\circ}$ No．III，S．A．O． 0 Volume TX，No．5，December 1963，a．cowo ppo $\overline{14-18}$ of Chapter I of S．O．J．． ＂Aristocracy and the Mob＂；No．IV，S．A．O．，Volune IK，No．7．February 1964．pp．10－11 a．c．w．pp．19－21 of＂Uristocracy and the Mob＂， pp．13－15 a．c．foppo21－25 of＂Aristocracy and the Mob＂。Chapter I of S．O．I．。 upon by all those who wished to appear good democrats ${ }_{0}^{363}$ Ludovici
thourht the latest liberal hoak was that racial differences are quite insignificant and that racial discrimination is both wrong and superstitious peculier to fascists ${ }^{364}$ It bok the clarity of a caustic foreipner, Oswald Spenglex, to roalise the cause of the degeneracy of murope, liberalism:

That we recognise as order today and express in Liberal Institutions, is nothing but anerchy become a habit. Ve call it democracy, parliomento arianism ${ }_{1}$, national grovernment, but in fact it is the non existence of conscious responsible authority o a govemment. 1365

All the liberal misunderstandings of human nature and its plea for democracy could not possibly fail to pervert and corrupt the nation and wipe out all the accumulated treasure in virtue and sanity which had been fostered and stored during former, more rational and tasteful times:

> oothe Civilisation of Liberalism may be said to be still resting on human qualities cultivated in bygone times and is likely to survive only so long as the store of virtue and ability remains not vholly corrupted and frittered awey. 366

I shall now proceed to examine the constituents of liberalismand socialism that Ludovici thought the potent causes of Fngland's degeneration:o

Utilitarian Rationalism

In his A Defense of Conservatism, Ludovjci says that since the nation is a vital organism, constantly growing, it cannot remain in a position of stasis. Newcomers are either above or below the standard to which thoy axe born. Therefore, they desire temporary instability and change. Eowever, if the desire for change comes from the degenerate and it receives such euphemistic titles as 'The Fight for Progress' or
'The Struggle for Fuman Adancement' or 'The Battle for Light's a moral quality is inparted to their endeavours which of ten paralyses or disarms those who resist their proposals as vicious ${ }_{0}^{367}$ Charles I's opponents, who were the lineal ancestors of the whigs and modern Liberals, never cared for the happiness and contentment of the people ${ }^{368}$ Although the first Factory Act was passed under a Jiberal administration it :ras chiefly the work of two men, Wichael Thonas Sadler, a Tory, and the aristocrat. Lord Ashley; and the whole of the Whig-capitalist section of the nation, including men like John Bright, Sir John Graham, Lord Brougham, Pir. Gladstone, and Richard Cobden, were fiercely opposed to it ${ }_{0}^{369}$ He believed the chief cause and consequence of the disease of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries was a "completely uncontrolled and unceasonipg : Liberalisn ${ }_{0}^{370}$ As the Nietzschean 'will to power' is fundamental to all life, no trace of realism is to be found when liberals speak of 'eternal peace' or a future 'living concord' for all mankind, or of any state in which violencerg oppression and discord, have been eliminated:

To hold typically liberal views, therefore, and to assume that if we like we could all settle dom to love one another and live in perfect amity and harmony together, is possible only to those idealists who are congenitally blind to the true character of all life371

In his A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories, Ludovici opposes his anitorationalist theory of human nature to that of liberalism and utilitarian rationalism. He says, as Bergson hed shom conclusively, man, in acquiring an infintely greater range of adaptations has depended very laxgely upon his intellect, his rationalising faculty; "and this has been developed at the cost of his instinctso ${ }^{372}$ Men had been cut adrift from a large mass of ancestralselectings and rejections of vital significance to life, and came to rely upon his inferior intellect ${ }^{373}$ Life is a. factor in the world process with which we can only be acquainted through the living. ${ }^{374}$ The 'taste of flourishing life' cannot be reached by merely taking thought or deliberating ${ }^{375}$ The strong man is only directed by the＇inner voice＇of his ruling instinct；the environment merely provides an anvil with which those who possess the instinct of ruling beat out their destiny，＂beneath the racket and din of its titamic action．＂376

Ludovici reckoned no ${ }^{9}$ truth＇could be attained in which race，family， cless，and traditional bias or prepossession does not play its part． He neither conceded nor advocated the desirability of subordinating emotion to reason．He regarded the two as complenentary and mutually limiting．This，he thought，explained the attitude of his mentor， Nietzsche，towards Socrates．Nietzsche thought Socrates had made a tyrant out of reason when the Greeks were suffering the dis solution of their instincts ${ }_{0}^{377}$ Nietzsche had asserted that behind all logic there are valuations，＂physiological demands，for the preservation of a certain mode of life。＂ 378 The criterion for the validity of an opinion should not be whether it is true，but how far it is life－ promoting and lifc－preserving。 379

Richard Latimer，in Mansel Fellowes，though no longer a Christian． still＂unconsciously＂。 like thousands of his heretical followers， felt and thought like a Christian in all vital matters，although he was an avowed Nietzscheano 380 Gerald Swynnertono in Catherine Doyle： tho romance of a thrice－married lady tells his confidant 。Knowles， that at first he could not understand the marriace of James Gordon， Egyptologist，with Catherine Doyle，tea girl，due to his liberal disposition and city prejudices，＂except in the way in which a coldoblooded scientist examines the throbbine entroils of a creature he is operating upon，can understand what is taking place beneath his scalpel？${ }^{11381}$ Later in the novel，he proclaims that he pities men Who arrive at broad synthetical judgements concerning life，who beleive that experience and the knowledce of facts form the best equipment for philosophising. 'Philosophical' judgements are already embodied within us. Facts and experiences are but load stones drawing us away from the treasures that lie embodied within us. The facts of our experience are but an insignificant teneer which thereatens to conceal the vital instinctive knowledge that lies hidden within us. He despised English rationalists, from Locke to Spencer, who "'have been but children padding in water which they have only helped to ronder turbid and muddy by their movements. 11382 Janet Perkins, or 'Jimper', the working class heroine of that Uoman Wishes. Was not analytical where her strongest wishes were concerned. Then she goes to the offices of the Friends of Order in Pell Mell to look for Lord Chiddingly, whom she had first net fleetingly in Prance, she was not in the least conscious of the tme motives actuating her ${ }^{2}$ but only felt a longing to increase the interest of her life by becoming acquainted with Lord Chiddinglyo Judovici praises this lack of deliberation:

How happy is the mass of menkind in not knowing the ture nature of the motives that actuate them: how simple it makes their conduct appear, how opon and ingenuous their most venal actions, and how unblushing and innocent their most life-promoting! perhaps a good deal of the joy of life would vanish if everyono knew his own and his neighbour's tive motives, and perhaps the so-called Art of Life itself consists precisely in the concealment of the true reasons behind the bulk of humenity's apparently most innocent activities. 383

Tudovici's Man's Descent from the Godsi or, the complete case against prohibition is, perhaps, his most antimerational book. In the lotter he exemplifies a typical fascist claim that history is a myth, a supro-rational myth that cannot be questioned by the individual's reason. The 'nyth' of Prometheus is the narrative of a vast act of miscegenation that took place in premistory. In the introduction, ＂Mn Myths in General。 and on the Prometheus Myth in Particular＂${ }^{384}$ ， he seys that the myths of entiquity cmbodied truths about natural or cocial phenomena as tho mon of the past，from whom we have desenerated，hod renarkably good menorios 385 Ludovici then proceeds to an interpreation of the Pronetheus myth of the Greeks，and assumes that Prometheus，Zevs，and the other gode of Olympus，liko the gods of the Indians and Pexuvians，and the gods of some Vestern Asiatic peoples，were derived rather from deified strangers then from ancestors of the same race．His reason for holding this belief is the traditions contained in the early myths themselves．The Rarth． or the people of the earth，are the men and women who are regarded as everyday occurronces of the race perpetuating the myth．The gods that mingle with the daughters of the earth，are the new stock possessed of unaccustomed qualities ${ }_{0}^{386}$ The alleged crossing of the earth with the gods records an actual cross which took place between an inferior race，in the myth of Prometheus the remote ancestors of modern Buropean people，and a race so much superior as to appear divine to the inferior race．Thus，in Greck mythology，Uranus，first ruler of the world，marries Ge，the Earth．In Indian mythology Dyaus（Heaven）marries Prithivi（the Rarth）。 In Semitic mythology，＂the sons of God saw the daughters of menooog and they took their wives a．ll of which they chose＂${ }^{3} 887$ Ludovici regards the main features of the myth of Prometheus as true． 388 He reckons the lower races complicity with Prometheus in the theft of fire，is probably why Zeus included them in his general condemnation through the agency of Pandora＇s Box ${ }_{0}^{389}$ He then proceeds to identify tho man－gods ${ }^{390}$ the＇Dionysian type＇。 as the descendants of a race which reached its zenith in the Paleolithic Age，which was simple，artistic，and degenerate in early Neolithic times；and which became absorbed by other peoples early in Neolithic times．They were a people numerous enough to extend over Europe and Asia and to supply a representative who became the Cod of the Jevs, representatives who became the Gods of the Greeks, and still more representatives who became the Gods of the Persians and Indians. This race was a according to Ludovicio the Crommgnonso 391 It became absorbed by an inferior rece, the Aryans ${ }_{0}^{392}$ Iudovici had no dount that the process of "reasoning" which he applied to the myth of Prometheus, when applied to the first and second verses of the sixth chapter of Genesis would Lead to the conclusion that the God of the Jews and Christians vas also a Cro-Magnon 393 Eve and Pandora were sent by the Cromachon to punish men for their theft of fire, which led to the cooking of food with its associated debilitation, and modern degenerate civilisation。 Satan and the Devil are archetypal 'Prometheans': Whilst Epymetheus and Prometheus, with both of whom Pandora became associated, belonged to the worst results of the cross between the Cromagnon and Aryanso 394 Although it would be inappropriate to explain the import of Ludovici's interpretation of the myth of Prometheus here, it should be noted, that his interpretation of the myth generates conviction for the fascist belief of racial purity, anti-feminism, homeopathy, and primitivism, ofrom suprarational premisses. It is this deployment of myth as a suprarational belief that liberals would regard as non-rational.

Iudovici decried what he considered to be the "rationalistic prejudices", of Western Europeans. ${ }^{395}$ In Iudovici's novel of 1923. French Beans, when Dr. Glandry of the Wonens'Independence League questions Domina Biggedyke as to why she has left the VoIoLos she complains that it is the weakness of women to have their reasoning centres bound up with their emotional and sexual controls: ' You can see that when you dissect the female trunk and follow the ramification of the longer norves. ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ It prevents them from being guided by pure reasong which men can achieve without any promptings from the body． Domina recounts that pure reason can lead nowhere，because all direction begins with a bias or promptingo BReason＂is always subordinated to pre－conceved notions or bias ${ }^{396}$ wi Isn＇t that Why＂，Domire continued，＂the modern world doemn＂t know whet its 2bout，or whither it is goinc：because there is too much of this dieembodied reason about？${ }^{107}$

Ludcvici thought that all the vital actions we perform in our lives are the outcome of correlations of bodily perts sending instructions to our brain。 In all vital actions we are＂utterly unconscious＂of the real springs of our action 398 lis woman is closer to Life than mang man must regard her as a creature who is constantly being actuated，unconsciously。 by Life． 399 The will of animals and humans is inseparable from the instincts to which either their racial memory or bodily parts give rise！ 400 The intellect，as Schopenhauer observed，is the servant of the body！ 401 One of Ludovici＇s criticisms of feminism was that he believed a vital department of human life is dependent upon the voluntary cooperation of the femalc vith Life＇s scheme。 She can only play her part in Life＇s scheme if her emotional equipment is unimpaired：
．o．From the day of her betrothal to the moment when she takes her last grandchi？d to her arms． all the trials and difficulties of her role in life are allevieted and taken as a matter of course because she approaches them，not with cold and intellectual detachment，but with deep emotional impulses of all kinds．

Thus，to impose upon her a pemanent preoccupation in which intelle ctual detachment is an essential prerequisite，such as voting，is to develop e side of her nature which will prove an obstacle rather than an aid in her vital functioning ${ }_{0}^{402}$ Ludovici thought no criticism of liberalism could be complete without appreciating the infirmities of the human mind wich play havoc with popular governmonto Gustave le Bon, Georges Sorel, and other 'social psychologists' had revealed the rooted foibles of human nature which wrecks any nation that meddles with democracy。 Man's nonorationality is execerbated in crowds. In most of the deliberations on which popular govermment depends, according to Iudovici, from those conducted at election meetings to the 635 IPs in the Commons during the Iife of a Govemment, the mental state and judgement of those present is inevitably inferior as regards intellicence, objectivityo rationality and civilised impulses, to what they are when the average member of either of these ${ }^{\circ}$ crouds ${ }^{\circ}$ deliberates alone: 403

In his Religion for Infidels, the sixth conclusion that Ludovici reaches regarding the life forces is that life and intelligence are comextensive ${ }_{0}^{404}$ There is intelligence in every particle, every cell. of living matter ${ }_{0}^{405}$ When we recognise the necessity of seeing intelligence wherever there is life, accordine to Ludovicis no matter how mysterious this co-extensiveness may seem, we take an important step towards a bettex understanding, even if we lack "a clear explanation", of most natural phenomena:

> oove get an inkling of the reasons for the prodicious versatility and resource of lature whether in the vegetable or animal kingdomg we appreciate the unlimited possibilities of inventiveness operating without hositation through the vast amies of cells, all endoved with sense and sensibilities (my underlining) ${ }_{\circ}^{406}$

The fundamental problems of adaptation to ambient conditions, variation and natural selection, as these processes occur in nature to effect the evolutionary march of life, are inexplicable without assuming intelligence in living matter. ${ }^{407}$ What Nietzsche properly denounced as the Darwinion theory, the absence of any allowance for the role of mind in evolutionary processes, suggests the solution to the problem of variations and mutation。 Unless we allov for the operation of mind in a11 living matters we cannot hope to discover how the variability, on which natural selection depends for its effects, ultimately arises 408 Iudovici reckoned thet prayer was an instance of how men may enlist the cooperation of the formative, improvisatory and imovatory forces of living matter. although the life forces are unamenable to the "conscious mental faculties" 409 Clearly, Ludovici is elaborating an anti-rational theory of human nature in the above. He reckoned creatures lower. than man, not knowing, for instance, that fins may be changed into limbs, leave the means to the life forces, but in "imagining" successful adaptation contribute to its positive force ${ }_{0}^{410}$ He thought there was nothing non-rational in considering life and intelligence as comextensive:

> oothere is nothing mystical or magical in the intervention of the formative and improvisatory posers latent in livinc matter, in order to produce the organic changes needed for a, successful response to an environmental change. It is simply the slov operation in Nature of processes observed to occur smonteneously and consequently on a much less elaborate scale in haman being subjectod to hyonotismo or practicing passite auto-sugastion.

Ludovici thought the difficulty of the improvisatory life forces acting through man was due to his lively consciousnesso 412 He believed the practice of traditional prayer is instinctive, its musculer adjustment compatible with the supersession of volition is a vestige of man's practice of enlisting the life forces in his evolution:
oo. vigorous age-long and immortal vestige of that instinct in animals which, operating in response to an untoward environmental chenge pleces them in imogination in touch with the life forces and erable then to mobilise formative and improvisatory povors that secure inproved adeptation. 413

The imagination is the mental medium to be employed, rather than the willo to contact, intuit, and mobilise the life foreess 414 Iudovici cites the phenomerie of telepatby, clairvoyonce, the knom injuries or lethal effects of curses pronounced and prosecuted by the shameas, medicine men and witch doctors of primitive sociéties。 as instances of using prayer, or its equivalent, with the object of stimulating the improvisatory and fomative powers of the life forces to operate outside the person of the petitioning agent. ${ }^{415}$

Socratic Fumanism

In his A Tofense of Aristocracy, A toxt book for Tories Ludovici says that recklessly, and to great national peril, Bnglishnen have allowed the Christian doctrine of the soul to mislead and corrupt them on the question of human value 。 However, the truth remains that there can be no good spiritual qualities without beautiful bodily qualities ${ }^{416}$

What is cruel, what is inhuman, is to rear poople on the sentimental and quasi-merciful belief that there is nothing degrading and 'unclean' (the good 0ld Testament adjective applied to disease) in disease and bungledom. but that a beautiful soul justifies everything: and then, when the world has got into such a state of physical degeneration through this doctrine, to suggest the organisetion of a preo nuptial check on all unions contemplated under the influence of this belief, without making any attempt to alter values. 417

Centuries of humanism had killed healthy man's natural inclination to avoid the imperfect, the foul of breath, the ugly and the deformed ${ }_{0}^{418}$

Ludovici's hostility to Socratic humenism was shared with his mentor, Nietzsche. 419 Ludovici even saw humanist values in the prohibition movement in America. He thought the proper reform was to purge modern beers, wines, and spirits, of their adulterative and deleterious elenents, not to prohibit a portion of our daily diet which had been an essential factor in producing all the greatest oivilisations the $t$ had ever existed: "Otherwise, on that principle we should get rid of human life itself; for has-not Christianity with its abortion Puritanism despoiled and blighted life as well."420 Two thousand years of humanism and its consequent debilitation, during which the resisting powers of exuberant health had been steadily worn down, had effectively impaired the ability of recent generations to face the institutions of their forefathers with their forefathers' spirit, health and understanding. $0_{0}^{21}$ Christian humanism had been exacerbated in Anglo-Saxon countries by the overlap of romantic obsessions, which had made a realistic view of primitive and natural needs almost impossibles. ${ }^{422}$ The preponderant values of the Bnglish population were those in which all stress is laid upon the soul, in which the severe standards are soul standards and in which the body and its completeness are almost entirely overlooked ${ }_{6}^{423}$ A nation ultimately becomes the image of its values ${ }^{424}$ :

.o.the spiritual environment of all modern subhuman peoples is the outcome of our fundamental values, as also is their sub-humanity: and that this spiritual environment is characterised by a tendancy to neglect and despise the body and bodily considerations. 425

Modern degeneration, science, feminism, Puritanisn, and the increasing cleavage between the sexes was the logical outcome of these bodydespising values. 426 If modern man felt no horror at the spectacle of degeneracy and disease, if he could be thoroughly ill, the victim of a fonl disease, and yet thorouchly respentable it was due to the prevalence of Socratic humanismo ${ }^{427}$ Although these values were not necessarily Christian, Christianity had been their chief inculcator and purveyor:

○o. By zealously garnering most of the morbid. foetid. and decrepit elements in antiquity, Christianity has been a sort of cold storage depot for almost every decomposed vestige of the ancient world, and has thus doled out from its refrigerators to every generation the worst products of Pagan decay. 428

Amidst the decay of Greek culture there developed a tendency to exhort the soul at the expense of the body. 4.29 The degenerate Socrates detorinined to create velues by which he himself and his type could be regarded as desirable. 430 He transvalued the valuos of the Greeks by ensuring then there was no visible connection between a, man's visible and invisible aspectso ${ }^{331}$ Hencofomard, people had been propared to forgive stigmata which are nobody's fault whon assessing their mates, and in thus forgiving forgot that he or she was cruelly foisting an undosirable parent in his or her offspring ${ }_{\circ}^{432}$ When this Socratic humenism is added to Christian pity, which is quite indiscriminato and makes people react with love and charity to all who suafer, irrespective of their value to posterity, Ludovici thinks this a combinetion of evils which makes complete degeneracy a culpable certainty ${ }^{433}$ He called his exa one of socratic degenerates. 434

Neither industrialisation, urbanism, or feminism, could have prevailed had their not existed a fundanental tendency to treat bodily questions and therefore bodily differences as of no importance. This fundamental tendency, due to the influence of ocratic values, hed coloured all men's lifo:

> ooif we do not look with horror upon a man or woman under thirty who has false teeth; if we have ceased to regard foul breath as an arcument against an alleged 'pure soul', and if we inagine that hurnan rubbish and foulness can give us good laws, good poetry, good music, and good art it is wholly and exclusively due to Socrates and his influence. 43

Thanks to his own requlsive features in the midst of a population of beauty venerators, Socrates found himself forced in self-defence to diccovor a dialectical method to excuse every kind of physical degenerecy and putrescence ${ }_{0}^{436}$ Hodern Europe, accordine to Trudovi.ci., had fallen completely under the sway of Socrates ${ }_{0}^{437}$ In the excoss of the nomentum of Socratic humanism which ultimately removed slavery from Rome man had been carried to unvholesome extremes in charity and compassion, which had culminated in the infection of all hunan stocks, and universal degenerecy: The avorage man was so ifnorant of the sicns of houlth life, the 'points' of an efficion't animel breeder, and his taste was so defective, especially uith the exagerated attention to 'spiritual' qualities, that he was prone to prefer a degenerate girl 439 Althoufh socretic humanism in the working classes was neither deeper nor more intractable than in their "economic superiors", it was often more lethal, because it was untempored by contact with scientific thought in eny fors, and in the values and atmosphere of their urban life there was little to check it:

The loss of all contact with the lives and living problems of creaturos other then Ifen. through decades of urbanism, and the steady: inculcation upon them of the duty of indiscriminate commiseration towards every kind of physical defect, has not unnaturally led to an attitude or subnormality which, by implying condonation, involves blind acceptance. 410

The position established by Socrates was the duality of man into body and soul: the soul's independence of the body, the soul's superiority to the body, the despicebleness of the bodys the immortality of the soul $0_{0}^{441}$ A cripple, a hunchbeck, any degenerate, became as desireble as a normal man because, on Socratic principles, it could always be argued that his blemish was not himself, and that his invisible or 'real' self redeemed everything。 For humanity it meant pollution ${ }^{442}$ In the first chapter of his Enemies of yomen, The oricins in outline of Anglo-Saxon feminigm, "The Influence of the Prevailing European, or White Nan's Philosophy" ${ }^{443}$. Ludovici says the 'philosophy' of the white man originated with Socrates ${ }^{444}$ It pleased and flattered many ${ }^{4.45 \text { : }}$ degenerates could greatly enhance their prestige by pessing as persons with superior souls. ${ }^{446}$ The feminists, whether in Hellenistic Greece or in Renaissance or seventeenth century Furope, seized with alacrity the argument Socrates had afforded them。 If bodily differences did not matiter, iff the soul alone counted, the visible or physical differences between men and vomen were also negligible, Indeed, the more one adopted feminism, the poorer man become, because the less man was considering the despiceble body 0 the vessel of Iife. 447

Owing to the catastrophic socratic humbug about the alleged superiority of the "soul' and the negligibility of the body, health。 stamina. and hereditary soundness rapidly dwindled without causing the slightest alarm among those who displayed the symptons of decadence. Their neglect of physical quality also made them incapable of extruding a biological elite copable of leading them ${ }^{448}$ By directing the eye and the taste of mankind from the visible attributes of a fellow-being, and by minimising the significance of their visible attributes, Socratic humanism protected the illconstituted from the repudiation which, in matrimony, would otherwise have caused them to be eschewed as procreators of the race: 449 Ludovici thought only the "'lethal chanber" solution was the appropriate means for relieving society of the crushing burden consisting of its biological trash and dregs. and of protecting the national stock and protecting it from further contamination. But nothing vas done because of modern Socratic sensibilities vhich "cannot endure the thought of sacrificing so much as a single hair of a reving maniec's head. Thus, the problem of purifying English stock and relieving the precious minority of the sound, of the crinpling burden imposed upon them by the prevalence of sickness, defect. incapacity, deformity and dementia, through which their oum 'desirable' multiplication and survival are in peril was postponed sine die。 Ludovici reckoned his mentor, Mietzsche, had realised that the 'problem' was fundamenterlyone of values:

ooothot had happoned ves that the prewocratic and wholesome values relating to man had been reversed, turned upside dom, and that althoughoo. other influonces may have contributed to this voltooface, the principal present agency causing these tonsyo turvy values to exert their sway, was Christionity with its baneful Socratic heritage conceming body and soul. health and sickness, pity and altruismo 450

Ludovici thought the scourge of Socratic humism was peculiar to Protestant countries, not to Catholic countries. Catholicism, according to Iudovici, had retained its Aristotelian influence. Despite the errors of Socrates, Aristotle was still able to hold to the ancient "hoalthy" view that mind and body could not be separated and that any change in the one indicated a change in the othor: 451 Socrates, as a tomenen, was essentially a romantico Ludovici expressed no suprise that urbenisation followed the Reformation, Which was a turning away of Christianity from Aristotle in favour of Socrates. ${ }^{452}$ Iudovici disariminated between three types of Christianity: Extreme Socratic Christianity; modexate Socratic Christianity; Aristotelian Christionity. Tho lotter, vhich preveiled in the Middle Agos, "vas compatible with a hish degrec of biological sanity" 453 In countries where Protestentism, "Socratism untempered by Aristotles sanity", had permeated the life and sentiments of the people, the sex phobia arising out of the bodydespising doctrine had pronoted feminismo 454 Iudovici attributed the relative failure of feminism in Southem and Latin Burope, as compared With its success in Figland and America, to the powerful Aristotelian tradition which is a heritage of their long adherence to Catholicism:

[^6]Christionity's bequest to posterity had been the humanism of Socrates. 456 However, amongst the most fomidible of Socrates's opponents vas Aristotle。 He insisted on restoring to credit ancient Creek monismo 457 Fortunetely, for Cotholic Burope, despite the Socratic elements tincturing the faith, it was Aristotle's teaching that saved medioval Europe from at least the more damaging effects of Socrates's attacks on old Greek monismo ${ }^{458}$ Aristotle's influence on Catholicism by reinstating Greek monism enabled Europe。 despite her morbid Socratic heritage, certainly up to the Reformation, to act and think wholesomely. The Reformation meant a rementhronement of Socrates and a revolt ageinst Aristotle. Ludovici thought this explained why, after the Reformation, there should heve arisen, not only Puritanism, together with an increasing tendency to neglect bodily consideratiors, but a steady and substantial declime in the beauty and stamina of Buropeans: 459 Christianity remained wholesome and sanitary, before the influence of Gocrates was restored. Aristotle exerted a benign influence through the Eoly Catholic Church, and encoureged by the realism of a population employed in agriculture which knew the essential needs of flourishing life, made the medeival authorities imrune to an unreasoning favouritism for that which was defective and biologicalydepraved:

> ooIt vas, for instance, well recognised that, in times of famine and epidemics, the sound had to be considered firsto If secrifice was called for, it was the unsound and those who could give no promise of perpetuating the rece in a desirable form, vho tere regarded as obvious victimso Thus, in periods of distress, the populace would clamour for the extirpation of useless mouths - that is to sey, all lepers, cretins and idiotsooos so that there should be enough to sustain the sound and all those biologically precious to the comunity (his italics). 460

Only the unfortunate resurrection by the Reformation of the influence of Socrates, led to the reversal of this husbandman's attitude to life, especielly in Protestant Buropo. ${ }^{\wedge 61}$ Protestentism revived the morbid and porverted Socratic principlos deeply rooted in Chxistianity, with their "predilection for tho foctid air of hospitalsooog and their weakness for the bitter taste of corpsespe 462

Feminiom

In his tirade against modern feminism ludovici was regarded, by sone, as uriting "in the spirit of a stout Pascismo, who challenges Mill and Liberty and the rest of it with a bold manly gesturco ${ }^{04} 463$ He deplored the effeminisation of men as the cause and consequence of voman's progress in the scheme of things. In the maing for "inwardly thinking of a masculine renaissance" and an "English Fescismo" ${ }^{464}$ 。Ludovici was mocked as "beating a dead horse". 465 Álthough he was ridiculed by most for believing that there is an eternal struggle between the sexes ${ }^{466}$, some, or, at least Hutchinson Publishers when advertising one of his anti-feminist novels never to be published, "Rew Virginity", applauded him for his intense realicn in deploxing the preponderence of woman. 467 There are good grounds for believing that Ludovici's antiofeminism is derived, or, at least consistent, with that of his mentors, Schopenhauer and, especially. Nietzsche ${ }^{468}$

Ludovici's antiofeminism is not merely explained by his belief that feminism leads to man's degeneration, but reciprocally, that man's degeneration is the condition for feminism. In Ludovici's novel of 1918, Mansel Fellowes , the degenerate man, Richard Latimer, had not the vitality with which to confront Mansel Fellowes on even equal terms. Mansel Fellowes was like a tropical and voluptuous island that lay some distance south of the course Richard La,timer instinctively nuraved, and millions of his contempories pursued, in a temporate zone ${ }^{469}$ He could not navigate Life. He was a man of an era, of whom even the best are but misereble fracmonts Richard ratimer was merely a protext on which to train a hopo and a trust that took its root in more viggorous and more vitel encestors. ${ }_{\circ}^{470}$ The moment liansel Fellowes ${ }^{\text {s }}$ lifemoving instincts receive their first disastrous check, when Richard Latimer gets engaged to Gladys Morrison, the obverse of her positive and lifeoloving instincts manifested itself at once in a desire for oblivjon: "in a voluntuous alliance uith thoughts of the gravo. 471 The Nietzschean Dr. Melhado docs not believe that contempory mens' weaknesses are the outcome of deliberate restraint ${ }_{0}^{472}$ He pursues, that fenerations of will-less men and Protestantism, with its doctrine of the sanctity of individual judgement, had made women impossible to master. ${ }^{473}$ Firs. Fellowes confesses to Richard Latimer that neither she, nor the world, could give her daughter that for which she is most gifted and equipped, love - "I mean not by anybody thet you can call a man (his italics ) op 474 When Richard Iatimer visits France the realism of French women semed curious to himo as a romantic, who believed in the possibility of "çames and pleasant pastimes with full-grown virgins, free from arriere - hopes, and of slightly feverish conversations with pretty discontented younc wives free from unladylike intentionso" ${ }^{475}$ Dr。Melhado warns Richard Latimer not to reject Mansel Fellowes as she is of a 'type' that is becoming increasingly rarer, as modern men are not worthy of such women. ${ }_{0}^{476}$ However, Richard Latimer rejects Fiansel Fellowes. The Nietzschean Dr. Melhado had given him the 'philosophicel' formula for Life, but the physiological equipment of Richard Latimer had neutralised it. Richard Latimer's submission to Father Jevington indicates his degeneracy, as only the degenerate man requires assistance from outside to direct him when bo is devoid of 'taste" in matters of choice and selection. He vas incapable of all vital decision ${ }^{477}$ Iife had called out to Richard Latimer in Mansel Fellowes, and cured its instmunent of every flaw in order that Richard Latimer should respond. Richerd Latimer flouts it. and it is because of his and other mens" degeneracy that these vital women vere becoming extinct in England. The climax of the novel is when Six Robert Vorrison, representing his daughter and wife, relinquishes his daughter's engagement to Richard Latimer. The latter then belatedly decides to pursue Mansel Fellowes who, thinking that she has been forsaken, comits suicide.

In Ludovici's novel of 1920 , Too 01d for Dolls, Mrs. Delarayne's eldest daughter, Cleopatra, had eagerly extended her hond to Life for all that Life had to offer, but was embittered thet her outstretched hand had been filled with nothing satisfyingo at the age of twenty-five her worldy wisdom answered 'nay' to the many whose proposals of marriage she had been compelled to refuse ${ }_{8}^{478}$ The fault Cleopatre found with the modern world was that it did not offer one man whole or complete but only a series of isolated manly characteristics ${ }^{479 \text { : }}$
.o.The kind of fire that led to elopements, to wild and clandestine love-making, could now, with too few exceptions, be found only among ne'er-dodvells, foreign adventurers, cut-throats or knaves: while the stability thet promised security for the future and for the family, seemed generally to present itself with a sort of tiresone starchiness of body and jejuneness of mind, and thought $i t v$ childish to abandon itself to any emotions. 480

Halfoconsciously, accordjng to Ludovici, she divined that only 'fire' purified and sanctified the transition from girlhood to womanhood. Lack of a great passionate momentum, that carried everything before it, seemed to her something distinctly discomfiting.

She was realistic rather than romantic. Jer "taste" inclined to the adventurous idea of love, to the impromptu element, to the wild ardour of first embraces, then to the kind of groduated pession thet beơins with conversction proceedr to a pubic ongagemont, and ends with the still more neasured tempo of a church weddine. All the deliboretion that these slow steps involved, ran counter to her deopest feelings, that her love must be a sudden kindling of two fires, "the buming not of green rood but of a volcano. 481 Cleopatra's mother, howover, reckoned that es. matrimony is entirely a matter of flesh and blood, provided a man kas a clean mouth and "ithe teeth of an African negroin 182 , then he is eninently suitable. She accuses Cleopatra of being romentic in rejecting Denis Dalster, chief private secretary to Sir Joseph Bullion, who appears to meet these requirements. Cleopatra objects that a man ought to 'fire' a woman with something more erciting then the consideration of his means and dentition. Irs. Delarayne rejoins that men in their class can no longer sct afirc' to entrthinge and that modem civilisation had reared men wo can crercise selfacontrol. Ludovici reckons that Mrs. Delarayne berself, a widow, is sufferinc like all modern women, from receiving no sure and reliable guidance from men: 483 Lord Henry Highbarn, the hero of the novels advises Mrs. Delarayne to entrust her exuberant daughter to a continental husband, where they master women better than in migland 484 Iudovici ${ }^{4} \mathrm{~s}$ doscription of Guy Tyrell in this novel is typical of his indictment of tho modern Fnelish male as degenerate. He vas of a 'clean-minded ${ }^{\text {a }}$ and healthy "type", who loved all sports and believed in the possibility of being a compenion to a girl。 His age was twonty-seven. ${ }^{485}$ Ludovici compleins that in a man who displays all these characteristics there is no display, side by side with his mastery of gennes and his deep understonding of cricket in particular, of that mastery of life which would constitute him a desirablo mate: $0_{0}^{86}$ Frs. Delarayne confesses to Lord Eenry Wighbern that whon she first met him, she had felt what all modern women longed to feel, the inferiority of modern men suddonly relieved by an object they were willing to serve and obey. She had retained him as a therapist for her 'nervous illness' for this roason: "He women suffor today because we have no such men as you to look up to. ${ }^{487}$ The climax of the novel is that Mrs. Delarayne's eldest daughter, Cleopatra, and Lord Henry Highbern get engaged to marry.

Lord Firle, in Ludovici's novel What Homan Vishes, unveiling the War Memorial on the village green at West Claughton on Farch 18, 1920, declares to those assembled that despite the recent war nodern men are effeminate. The fact that in World War I women were able to take over mens' work could only mean that Englishmen were womanly and feeble ${ }_{6}^{488}$ As he says to Lord Chiddingly, his heroic son, even before the war the English wore the mockeny of Furope. They preferred to rule half the world rather than to rule thoir women: "men are no longer male enough to subjugate the male in women 1488 Dr . Thackeray in The Goddess that Grew Up , is debcribed as a 'man' with the tired, slightly effete appearance of one who had spent too much of his life pouring over books, rather than living, cven if he had the capacity for it. indowed rith the bare minimum of vitality upon which life could be continued, he could not master his wife's contrasting liveliness 490 Mro Truck, an omothologist, sugests to Mr. Peter Oliver that the removal of his cock birds is going to cause a very interesting phenomenon arnong his hens, and which throws a considerable amount of light on the feminist movement. The phenomena referred to is that one of the hena vill develop male characteristics. ${ }^{991}$ Later, one of Fr. Oliver's unattached hens does, indeed, begin to crow like a voteran farmyard cock, only then does PTr. Oliver realise that irso Truck was indirectly referring to his possossiveness towards his mature daughter, Basilia, 492

In Ludovici's novel of 1923. Fronoh Boans Sir Thomes Braintree's only son, Denis, was, on his Pathers admission, admittedly dutiful and clean-living. However, he vas lustreless and dospite all his hard living, haxd riding, and single-minded concentration upon sport, "he could not rid his person of a certain ofiness and serephic, almost feminine, steetness", which Sir Thomas lnew was unlikely to impress Domina Biggadyke who was the product of his training; 493 Domina, s father , Jemes Bigsadyke, friend and colleague of Sir Thmas Braintree. informs the latter that his deughter has a theory which is not altogether unscientific or improbable, that the trond of modem civilisation is ultimately to dispense with the human male 494 Mis daughter then proceeds to explain har theory, as the inevitable outcome of our 'progress' in controlling diseese, famines and wars and redually over populating those aroas shich are not yet under culdivation:
0.0 and then we con oxpect to sce the worst war of all - the war for food stuffs. It will be continuous, desperate, and brutal。 It will first involve contincits, then homispheres, and, finally.
whon light at last appears, it will be a sex war.
For the women will want to save the food for theix children, and being able to run the world by that time, they will realise that, as millions of men are a superfluous luxury, it vould be to the advantace of all to proceed to thejr elimination.
after tho manner of the slauchter of the dronos in the hive 9495

Selective breeding, would enable the victowions womon to survive with only one sixteenth of the present male population. Sir Thomas Braintree reckons that if the supersession of man erises it will be becouse men have desired their om extinction 496 Iudovici describes a similar course of events in Chanter III of Ivsistrata: or vomans future and future voman, "Ioman's Future" 497 He reckons that bitter rivalry between degenerate men and vital mom-will lead to riots and savage street-fighting, in which, because morel indignation will be on the aide of the women, the 'men' are certain to be routed, and to lose credit besides lives. The female domain will corrode that of the male, men will cease to be enployers altogether, and become the poorestopaid workers in an industry run ontircly by women. 498 There would be a revol.t against cohebitation and the act of fertilisation will be consumated in surgery. 499 Seduction and rape vill be punished by means of emasculation; and "men of vigorous sexuality will be eliminoted in order to make way for a generation of lowsexed, meela, and sequacious lackeys."500 With unusual prescience。 Iudovici anticipated that the fertilised ovum will be cultivated in embryonic tissue-juice, independent of the uterus, and would nature as chickens do in incubators. Triumphant feminism would reach its zenith with this discovery, and in a few generetions women would appear the only vestige of whose sex would be her smooth face and primary genital glands. Men would then be frankly regarded as quite superfluous ${ }_{0}$ and their numbers would be felt as a source of irritation ${ }^{501}$ On the occasion of a threat of starvation, a few of the leading women would perceive with apocalyptic clarity that the reduction of the male population to the barest minimum indispensable for the purposes of fertilisation would releive the food crisis, and obviate forever the danger of a masculine or slave rising. 502 A sex fight at the distributing station of a large store would suffice as the spark for the inevitable conflagration in which the legislature would support the popular fury, and proceed to systematic slaughter of meles, until, with the help of the regular troops, it would be found necessary to protect and preserve a small nucleus for fertilisotion 503

Retuming to French Beans, Sir Thomas Brointree proclaims that he is witnessing a decline of the male in Europe? ${ }^{504}$ He declares that fominism
is the revolt of women who see the degeneration in their potential mates. Domina Biggadyke's, and other womons' revulsion of feeling at modern man expressed itself in 2 wish that men may be superceded 505 Captain Fmest Bisçadybe, Domina's brother, avarded the ITC and DSO for gallant services during World War $I_{\text {g }}$ is described by Tudovici as a. typicar public school Bnglishmano 506 Not particularly handsome。 but honourable, humorous, benightod and good ot all gemes, his attitudo to women was one of abject vencration:
> -ood lump alvays began to form in his throat when he pronounced. the word "women', and his moral code, formed on the lines of cricket, forbade any action or scheme of life in thich their wes amy danger of 'cutting' an 'unsporting' figure beside the fair sex. 507 Andre de Ioudon, a foreigner who, on becoming engaged to Mildred Hight, a confidante of Domina Biggadyke's, dissuades his fiancéefrom continuing to be a member of the Wonens' Independence Leegue, represents a contrast to the deceneracy of Finglishmen? 508 He suggests in conversation with Sir Thomas Braintree, that England needs a masculine renaissence. 509 Sir Thonas Braintree thought the youthful 'fire' of Andre de Loudon's finely-chiselled foatures was an anachronism. He rejoiced in Andre's stimulating warmth and vitality ${ }_{0}^{510}$ The contrast between Sir Thomas Breintree's son, Denis, and Andre do Loudon is striking。 The French man's eyes had greater 'fire', his mouth and nostrils quivered with vitailty, and his physique had a "tigerish resiliance and flexibility"; the Englishman lacked "inner heatoro $0_{0}^{91}$ Sir Thomas Braintree says to Andre de Loudon that Bngland is now a mat rierchy due to the demenerations of mena ${ }_{0}^{512}$ I though decent and wise women will admit in private how often wonen need violont haodingo it is nos condemned by everybody in furope especially in modech England ${ }_{0}^{513}$, Six Thomas Braintree oxplains to Domina Bigadyke that the 'fire' of the red-blooded man is too strong for him to resort to mere insults if his mote lapses, therefore, ho will instinctively resort to violence. Despite the fact that Domina, Bmost Bicgadyke, and Mildred Yicht, clain that life on those lines would be intolerable, Sir Thomas Pursues, "Is not love itself an act of violence? ${ }^{\prime \prime}$, and would not the numerous discontented young wives accept i.t as such if, as a consequence, lifeand love were more thrilling $5_{0}^{514}$ It is due to the deficiency of traric natures that mekes its deepest wents a matter of lifo and death that life is becoming a desert of tedium and lassitude, according to Sir Thomas Braintree ${ }_{0}^{515}$ He erclaims to Mildred Hichto referring to Domina Bipgadyke, that such vital women mother causes instead of chilaren because men are too dwarfedand enasculated through comrexce and industry: "They find no mates with creater mesculinity then they possess themselves." 516 Selfocontrol is merely a euphamism for lack of passion ${ }_{0}^{517}$ However, the English woman's wilfulness did not suceed with Ahdre de Loudon as it did with Inglishmon. When Mildred Hight abandons Andre de Loudon she challenges his "all masculine energy to action", and he beats herro ${ }^{518}$ As Dominia Bigcodyke encounters Andre de Loudon she realises hov easily she is outstretched so that she was filled with a new humility, spontaneous and natural, that dissueded her of her feminist convictions which she had acquired by measuring her owm mind and knowledge of things against that of Englishmen $\int_{0}^{519}$ Andre was hard and metallic in his wilfulness. 520 When Domina Bigeadyke and Andre de Loudon become engaced to marrys Andre's and Sir Thomas Braintree's belief that the mesculine Fnclish woman completely unbends when under the impelling inclucnce of a Dersonality moxe masculine then hexs, is vindicated ${ }_{0}^{521}$ Andre, unlike the man of northorn blood, did not feel a sense of selfmeprosch when impelled by any undue excitement to trangress sociel conventions. However, when the northerner oversteps these bounderies he blundcrs through his lack of practice in "hoater and violent expression"。 and a sensc of unlawfulness is induced in him which is equivalent to feeling himself in the wrong. Hence the exaltation of what Iudovici calls 'parliamentary' or deliberative language in Fngland。 He reckoned old English writers and speakers were accustomed to an 'un-parliamentary' mode of expression when they wore provoked. That was when "blood was wamer"in Fingland, before the deepening of Puritanical influences and the consequent "cooling of the blood of the nation". To remain moderate and tepid where excitement and great indignation were indicated, became the mark of good manners 522 However, Andre was not aware of its being any more unbecoming to show violent feelings of anger when provoked then it was to remain serene when his mind wes at peace:
> $\therefore$.o. he had no concern with the preposterous rules of so-called 'Parliamentarian' temper, which came in with the worst form of Parliaments in the nineteenth century: he vas moreover practiced in violent feeling? and it was not unfamiliar, untrodden ground to him. 523

In Pngland's Puritanical atmosphere the lack of 'fire' and vigorous exdour stifled emotion and caused it to tempo rise indefinitely. Sir Thomas Braintree, who belonged to a generation that had not felt this mood, regarded it as a bastard charecter in his son, untrue to his stock and taking no root in his family line。 It never occurred to him that since the whole prejudice of nodem meland wo to avoid denger a generation of young men had been produced who lacked 'fire' and ardent impulses. However, he realised how frivolous it was to Grant the title 'manly' to his son. Denis, who could only aspire to the modern hoax of "tweed and golf-stick virility" 524 Tragically, Denis commits suicide after Domina Biggadyke disputes his virilityo Lady Freemon, after pronouncing a few conventional regrets ebout the deceased to Sir Thomas Praintree coments, rather insensitivelyo that she does so miss Andre de Loudon: "hifter seeing such a lot of himp as I used to do, my life-seems a perfect blank nowadays. He was such a vital creature，so full of stimulating thought and fire ${ }^{8} 1{ }^{5} 25$
Initially，Six Thomas Brointree was croatly disturbed by his son＇s suicide，and greatly shaken in his own vigorous a．ttachnont to life ${ }_{0}^{526}$ Buto after some thought，he realises thot his son＇s effeminacy is by no means unique amond young men ${ }_{5}^{527}$

Gilbert Milburn，in The Toming of Don Juan o the seventeon year old protege of Dr．Hale，is responsible for the illicit pregnancy of Miss Frin。 Dro Hale comments to Frances Yerdgrove，thet his protege is a vital contrast to the average degenerate man： －oo＇Of course Nature took the wortd by stom when she made him［Cilbert liliburn］，and，what is more，sho intended to take it by storm．But imagine the imbecility of these absurd parents who，because the average young man of today is safe as a marble statue，fancied that they could let their young pussies run wild with him！Can you thints of anything more foolhardy？Isn＇t it strange how one vital figure can demonstrate the inanity of any smug and slightly anoemic social organisation？Every girl in this area is as froc to wander in the ficlds．or in the woods，with her particular apology for a youns man， as I an to walk up my staircase。 Evecyturng is steked unon the subnomelity or tameness of the male．．． 528

Gilbert，for his impropriety ，had been dieaissed froat his job at the local＇milk factory＇for producing pasturised milk，owned by four spinsters－the Tinderhills，The Underbill Datry business was immensely successful 529 to the ultimete distress and consternation of the local farmers，but not of their wives．The local fermers dosisted from revolting against the Underhill dominion beceuse they were dominated by their uives，who had been released from butter－making，cheese－meking， and other dairy work，by the innovations of the Underhills．The women could not be expected to realise the morbid features of this chance． and it was they who had built up the Underhills＇fortune．As Dr．Hale frequently observed，it was ultimetely the nens＇faults＂ffor if they had hod their wonem under proper control Underhinl Itd．could never heve doveloped。:11530 Dr. Hale accuses Mr. Tring a famer. of being mastered by his wife ${ }_{0}^{531}$ fro Prin timidiy retreats from Dr. Hale's charge that ho, like the othor famers, have as much mesculinity os "gelded porkers'"。 Although Fir. Trin knew thet his wife's health would have been better if they had produced their $0: m$ butter. he had desisted from supporting Dr. Hale's movement for the overthrov of the Underhill 'milk factories' bocause his wife had not permitted him ${ }_{0}^{532}$ only the woinen of this novel possess vitality. Frances Platt, a friend of the Underhills' niece; Almina, possesses a "vicious curiosity about life": One who could reməin after darls at the mouth of the drain, down which an unfortunate fox had taken refuge, for the kill: and one who could never complain of the hareb plaintive ary when she had been out coursing with the menfolk of the locality ${ }_{9}^{533}$ Dr. Hele explains to her that modern commerce, industry, and politics, have no masculine brevery or love of danger left in them, and thet soon the only manly job left will be burglaryo. 534 Then Gilbert Milburn contests the constituency of the northem division of Nessex, in the General Election of November 15, 1922, as an unofficial Conservative candidate with a programme for the prohibition of patent and 'artificial' foods, he is opposed by a band of militant viragoes 535

Tudovici believed the only hope for the world lay in e masculine renaissance. 536 a group of men endowed with a vigour of intellect and will which would moke 211 attempts at a comparison between the sexes a. piece of foolexy; and who would make it one of their finst constructive duties to repeal the female franchise clouse of the Representation of the People Act of $1910_{0}^{537}$ It isthedegeneration of man that is the cause of women's mal-adaptation ${ }_{0}^{538}$ Because woman is Ife's uninterrupted stream 539 and custodian she cannot help feeling miserable a.t the muddle that man has made of life. The historical fact thet feminism is undeniably a phenomenon of male degeneration. "the swan-song of male constructed societies shows how inevitably Life comes forvard at the last moment in order to save itself when all else is failing 540 However, feminism cannot lead to selvetion for woman is only equipped to carry on Life's business not for ordering it:
oo You cannot be a thing and above it, or out of it, at the same time. The part is not greater than the whole And as Voman is inmersed in Tife, she has not the dualism that is necessary for placing and orderine Life. She knows, because she feels, when Life is going to mieces; she lnows when life has been outraged, when hostility to Life is working havoc with Iife's material; but she can only ascertain the facto she can only protest against the fact; she cannot remedy ito 541

Woman's respect for man, must of necessity fall to pieces when the order which it is his duty to establish by means of his 'social instinct ', either collopses or in any way proves inadequate ${ }^{542}$ When woman becomes positive to the 'sociel instinct' it donotes a decline of her power as the breoder, tho mothore the custodian of Lifes 543 Thelend's ereat part hed left en inhoritance of thousends of virile womeng but, owing to the decencracr of nen, trere were not the males to hond with which to mat:e these women. 54.4 Feminism is dangerous because woman, like nature, is unscrupolous in her promotion and preservation of Life, and thus irmoral ${ }_{0}^{545}$ Nature's cry is for more Life irrespectivo of whether the success of the struggle fall.s to the suporior or inferions 546 Unfortunetely the Anglo-3rynen and Teutonic races are too firmly wedded, according to Judovici, to the liberal doctrine of individual capoxionce to learn from the accumalated history of mankind that the intrusion of wonen into public life must lead to degencrationo 547 Feminisn vas particulamly dangerous becauge it struck close to the roots or Iife ${ }^{548}$ Ludovici prophesied an increasing degeneration of life in England thet would reach its nadir

With the zenition feminine influonoc ${ }_{0}^{549}$ Tuman nature is in molleable, and the freaks of its adaptation so manifold, thet i.t hed not proved ingossible to convort woman into a creature with masculine aspirations which must, horsover, cone into conctant conclict with a non masculino physima and a nonaranculine necial history. 550 It was not woman that wes in need of trensformation but man himself for the return to the "eternal seçacity of Neture "551 One of the effects that Ludorici bolicvod feminism hed caused yos a decline of the ohivalrous spirit. Iren and women were competitors. equals, in the strugele for existonce, resenting cach other's rivalry。 Men had declined in sensitiveness of 'natural' reaction in the presence of women: "The development of nodem feshion in womens' mornine, afternoon and workine attire alone is a sicn that far more potent stimuli cen be borne without prompt reaction than forrer ly." Ludovici thought the constant association of young men and women vould be impossible if this were not so. One of the effocts of feminism on women thonselves was the destruction of their vexsatility, as they enter tho narrov specia? isation of what had proviously been melc callings, and do not escape their besottingeffects 552 Through their improved economic resources and lack of tradition in money control, as also through their increased freedom, women acquire a pronounced accentuation of their hedonistic impul.ses. Eheposure to the asperities of the strugele for existence brings out the combative, predatory and latent side of female nature and reprosses its sequacious side. One result of feminism affecting men is that selection operates in favour of mon of inferior attractiveness and vitality. In a,ll businesses, industries, and public offices selection operates in favour of the moro or less unattractive male at the cost of men more vigorously endowed and naturally alluringo whilst, owing to the mesculine aopirations of feminism, the exorbitant demends made on young bones and muscles by boyish athloticism led to a premeture oscification of tho polvic structures ond to norbid rigidity in the pelvic and upper femoral regions in the adult female ${ }^{553}$ Sterility and agonising confinements were the inevitable outcome of these conditions. /nother effect of women neglecting domestic interests and pursuits, eccording to Ludovici, was the appearance of patent and proprietary foods which are a poor substitute for the natural foods of our ancestors. One of the social results which Ludovici enumerated as a result of fominism was a marked increase in luxurious tastes in every class. Emancipated the modern woman was like a nouveau riche, tastinc expensive idleness for the first time, with the consequence that luxuxy and excitement were the order of the day ${ }_{0}^{554}$

Ludovici believed feminism, which touches the very heart of lifc。 was preparing disasters for future generations ${ }_{0}^{555}$ weminist reiormerc did not realise the limitless end to which they were tending as the facts of evolution show little is impossible in the matter of fresh oceptations and their resulting transformetionc: When once the ond desined is clearly presented to consciousness, there is hardly any modification, within roason, which slow developnent may not bring about." 556 The enfranchisement of yomen was tantamount to depriving them of their vital emotional direction by fietting them for political participation ${ }_{0} 57$

As all life is a striving after power, and powor only extends so far as the point where it meets with effective resistance, the cxtension of wonens' powor nust be cormensurate with man's weakness ${ }_{0}^{558}$ Feminisra coincided with the dounfalls of Athens and Sparta. 559 The rise of female power does nothing and can do nothing to check or cure the vicos in a civilisation which are contributing to its dowfell. least of all can the rise of forme power lead to the production of anyrhing creat by women, or bring about the only condition which can restore health to a peonle's institutions, namely, a regnneration of manhood: -.o.Greece and Rome never recovered, and France had the good fortune to be saved by a genius, who was a stranger in the nation, and whose virile lead alone restored the vigour of her male population。 560

The unadantedness of women, their frce exprossion of their maleness at the cost of their femaleness, was a sign of male degeneracy, beceuse it meant that their menfolk had not remained sufficiently beyond them in male characteristics, to make their masculinity recessive ${ }^{561}$ The manly man in England's effeminate civilisation was unocapted and could only find escape in burglary:
.oohaving no taste for the effeminate callings open to a full-çrown and able-bodied men in our grossly over-urbanised and safe civilisation, insists on pursuing a celling in which he can find danger, risks and the vicissitudes of the chase or of war. But he is not a degenerate. 562

Ludovici reckoned that the harin done to women and the race by making mesculinc stendords, whether in rospect or ideals, occupations, pas times, morphology or sezuel habits, the only standard, was immense ${ }_{0}^{563}$ Ludovici even attributed the dominance of pecuniary values in Anflo-Saron culture to feminismo 564 Similaxly, he ascribed what he regarded as the excessive and deleterious humanjtarionism of the Inglish to the influence of the ferinist movement. 565

Ludovici believed the 'White Man's ideolocy' originated with the degenerate Athenions of the firth century $B C$ who, being honosczual. could obtain little stimulation from women. Therefore, they sought their stimulation, both in art and ver, in the male ${ }_{0}^{566}$ Bspecially in countries afflicted by Protostantism, which was influenoed hy Socrates and the worst in Creeco, there arose a tendency to exhort the boyish figure in women, and insensibly to accept a masculine eccent over every aspect of civilisation. The Greek honosexual tradition made men choose masculinized women as mates. Hence selection hed been in favour of viracoes ${ }_{0}^{567}$,ith our effeminate manhood there was an automatic tendency for the male components in the female to cease from being recessivc ${ }^{568}$ owing to the Puritanical. tradition in Anclo-Saxon countries, there was an abundance of men who lacked 'fire' and that mastery over life and over sex which mekes wonen feel gratified for being women, thus women revolted against their role in life. ${ }^{569}$ Feminism was merely a phase in the degeneracy of the rale which had brought more misery, disease and death than satisfaction and joy to the majority of vomen ${ }_{0}^{570}$

Ureban women hed, according to Ludovici, travelled a vast and dangerous distance fron a realistic view of life and especially of themselves, owing to the degeneracy of the male? ${ }^{571}$ He believed that once yomen had got a firm hold of the guiding reigns of civilisation, there would immediately follou a dogonerative tendoncy townds tow life pominine influence had led to the deconerative multiplication of tormand cities in Fingland, and the migration of the rural population to urban districts during the nineteenth century ${ }^{572}$ Feminism, by increasing womens' power, had also contributed to the omancipation of the child, and thereby made sound education or discipline more difficult ${ }_{0}^{573}$ Britain had become a womanised society, according to Ludovici. 574 Women had striven to obliterate as far as nossible their biological differences from the male, and striven to make their semal lives conform to the life-pattern of the male. An axmy of apparently sane Inglish women in the nineteenth and twentieth centuriesked been so hard driven by their neurotic contempt of femaleness as to question the palpably obvious interest all women heve in preserving the home as the ideal site and scene for the renroductive period of their lives fith dire results:
oothe increcsing stupidity of the nopulation resulting from the Feminist vey of life, the considerable loss of native genius due to the sere ceuse, and the increase in aparchy and crimo which, with the best will in the wolld cannot be separated from the iovement led by the viragoes of recent times and their predecessors of the 18 th and 19 th centuries, those clamours culminated in the clomioh militancy of a. precocious dement like irs Pankhurst and her deluded followers. 575

Due to their hetred of the male women showed between the two lorld Vars, according to Tudovici, an irresponsible loathing of the leading dictatorships because of the masculine ascendancy they implied, and did nothing to emulete what was commendable in those polities: "nothing, for instance, to raise the status of the mother and houserife, or to increase the prestige of comestic duties, which at least the Gorman Dictatorshin did succeed in doingo" 576 Although their sox is the foremost custodien of Infe, emencipated Fnglish Women did nothine to check the doncerously mistoken attitude of their society to the psycho-physical shortcomings of the population. Indeed, by the way of life evolved by feminisin, they notually added to the fectors causing racial deterioration. Judovici mentioned one possible sphere of action - the elite of vomanhood were drafted into occupations doomine them to infertility: "earmarked for a sterile life by such vast modern industries as the Films, the Stage, including Bellet, and Heute Couture (models and mannequins) , besides the Call-Gir] troffic." 577 Vomen, animeted by their secret loothine of the masculine accent over the dictotorsbips, fiercely opposad appeasement in the months preceding Vorld wer II and created e mood. conducive to Britein's engegemont in a debilitatine var. According to Tudorici, the enehncement of womens ${ }^{\text {P }}$ porrer had been coterninious, not only with a steady decline in Finglish prestice, prospority, and standerds, but also with World Wer II ${ }_{0}^{578}$ Indovici cven beljeved modem vonens' reluctance to breast feed their children hed contributed to the "ioronization of modern helend", es cous milk is deficient in lecithin, a brein builder. ${ }_{0}^{579}$ Women's unreflectingo uncritical., imperious inpulse to succour, protect and feed hor offspring is essential to Life。 She will spring eagerly into action and blindly perform all the Life-preserving duties that devolve upon her. Unfortunately, however, the same saving srace of non-discrininatory maternal care, nay also act in a menner favouroble to reversions and decenerate procecces. Iudorici deduced from the above thet the female is biologicellyconditioned to he looking in discrimination and taste, This is mostly favourable to survival in desirable formg but, when unchecked and uncormected as it now was in human life, it favoured degenerate chences; thilst, in its operation as a sociel influence, it had gravely untoward consequences: "This is shom not only by the preveding ugliness and volcarity of our age and even of the hieher arts of our Ace, since women have seized the helmo ${ }^{580}$ "nimen were especially resnonsible for the untoward state of the modem world since they were now paramount in the home and the adultsformative years ${ }_{0}^{581}$ Owing to womens' dislike of male ascendency, and aversion to lone-term reforms, they favoured the scrapping of old and tried, and the improvisation of new and untried, institutions, rather than offorts to improve the men who control old institutions ${ }_{0}^{532}$ The femalo taste in mating also tends to valgerity: because of the importence life forces her to attach to adequate noans of support for her progeny when free to choose her mate women is congenitally prone to favour the affluent male, regardless of his other qualities, if any. 583 Due to the absence of 'grit' and realism throurhout all quarters of national lifo fathers had been handicapped in undenstanding the essentialsof child managenent.

They had abandoned every attempt at erercising their formor richts over children to yomen. This abdication by most mon of the roze of leaders in the home hed contributed to the grouth of anerchy and lewlessness in modern ragland。 according to Ludovici ${ }_{0}^{584}$

Rousseauan Ronanticism

Ludovici believed the conservative reformer hed a vircin field in deprec ating the "complete and romantic ignorance into which the bulk of the nation has sunk" ${ }_{0}^{585}$ In his A Defence of Conserratism. Iudovici says that with the delusive banner of 'progress' at their head, the romantic forces of disintceration and disorder ain constantly at inaugerating more change without ever giving a thought to the direction in which changeismoving, whether towards decomposition or hieher organisation ${ }_{0}^{586}$ Impossible ideals are associated with liberalism. It is opposed to conservatism, because liberals inagine that the preservation of the nation's identity throughout change can be achieved otherwise than by the observance of etemal lawso Liberalism takes its origin in romanticisa, the fantastic, hence the preposterous nature o: i.ts principles. It reveals a neglect of sound stock and lineage. Liberalism is in favour of elective offices as opposed to hereditary offices; it seizes on those instances in history when heredity seems to have failed in human families, without considering whether the conditions which alone enable heredity to operate successfully, were or were not fulfilled in the instances it adduces ${ }_{0}^{587}$ By unwisely rejecting the hereditary principle, liberals have relied on the romantic principles that virtue and character come from nowhere, and have therefone incited the world to a degree of miscegenation, both between stocks, nationalities, and 'types", or occupationally distinct families, which has diasipated the character and capacity of every fortern nation ${ }_{0}^{588}$ Ludovici belioved nothing could be more fantactic then the assertion that every man is the best judge of his ow interest, and that the cumulative effect of everybodys dirocting his energies to the securing of his orm interost makes a nation hopry and prosperous ${ }_{0}^{589}$ The romantic principle of the equality of mankind colours the whole mentality of thinkers like Jocke and Rousscau, and is equally fentestic with the rest of their principles 590 : "It is taken direct from the early Christian doctrine that oreated Rowanticism; it hes no basis in fact; i.t is contrary to nature, and it is useless as a principle except for the purpose of creating sociol disorder." 591 The romantic condemnation of authority and discipline by botr: liberals and socialists had led to the parlous decline of disciplines 592 Liberals suppose, fantastically, that a nation may be preserved if those responsible for its govermmont pay no heod to the health of its people, that the body is or no concem - which is incoupatible with permanence of any kind 593 While liberals shirk the protection and guidance of the poople, it is theire fantastio belief that it is impossible to give the people too much political powers 594 Another fundemental principle of liberalismo according to Iudovici, is its fantastic belief in the radicel goodness of human nature Liherals construct their schemes as if angel: and not venel, acquigitive and egotistic human beings are the object of themo 595 The preference for democratic before aristocratic control is based upon the romantic assumption that man in the agregate is better and wiser and more trustworthy than mon in small exclusive bodies selected from the eli.te of a particular generation. However, it does not and camot lead to permanence in the institutions of the state which gives it practical expression ${ }^{596}$ Socialism goes even further than liberalism in its romentic flights. Fancy and not a sound knowledge of human nature directs the supporters of socialism in the framing of their utonias． 597 In the pure romance of socialism it requires a good deal of the vicarious experience of the failure of socialist eettlements to dogtroy its minchievous illusions．Tudovici lamented trat the majority of able witcrs were either liberal on socialist for they，being fantestic and romantic，offer more scope to the imaginetion：
－ooFrom Locke to Merbert Syencer，there has been not one true follower of Aristotle in the domain of realism and sound humen psychologry Everyuhere we can discerm thet strain of loose thinking which inclines so readily to the fantastic notions or equality，the redisal goodness of bumen nature， lihertyg and the whole of the noneensical rignarole of romanticism。 598

Iudovici oven condomod Burlse and Disraeli for thoir myoticiono The proponderatine influence of a romantic and fantastic ideology in Turope ever since the domfall of the realistic pagen world，had made tho tasl：of conservatism in modern Europe an extremely difeicult one： 600 Ludovici hoped a great disaster，the nemesis of romanticism，would bring ell eberrant elements sherply to their senses．＂end dissinato their morbid draame．＂601

Even before the dam of the eighteenth century，the very principles that were at the base of Buropean life and aspirations，like the principle of liberty for liberty＇s sake，the principle of the pursuit of general truth，and the principle thet experience a direct appeal to nature was the best method of furnishing the mind，had been leading steadily to one conclusion，romanticism，and this conclusion Rounseau Was the first to embody in his fulminating orotest against culture， tradition，human power and society。602 Mrs。Delarayne，in Too old for Dolls，mother of Leonetta，a vital youth，asks Lord Henry Highbarm， the hero，why grom men are so susceptible to＂rat flappers＂${ }^{603} \mathrm{He}$ replies that it is occasioned by romanticismp the trend of nodem sentiment and prejudice. Henco, too, the contempory oxeltation of childhood as everythine immature or uncultivatod is secrosent. according to romantics ${ }^{604}$ Denis Malster, Joseph Bullion's private secretary, is attracted to IIrs. Delarayne's youngest deughter。 Leonetta, due to his romanticism. But, it was not entirely his feult: "We are all threatened with infection. They had it in the ei.ghteenth century in Frence ${ }^{\circ}{ }^{605}$ In Ludovici's novel of 1921. What Yomen Wishos, ve are told that Lord Chiddingly, apart from the reputation he had won in the Var Parliament as a powerful and fearless champion of the people, had discovered a number of unsuspected causes behind social unrest. The most striking of which vere the romantic assumptions lying at the basis of liberal and socialst thought, and ignorance of realistic principles concerning life and humanity 606 He maintains that the masses are striving to realise three conditions which are utterly fantastic and unattainable - liberty, equality. justice ${ }_{0}^{607}$

Ludovici's The False Assumptions of "Democracy" is devoted to his denunciation of romanticism。 He procleins, in the latter, thet one of the reasons for our present degeneracy, besides the decline of a common and uniform culture, is romantic literature and journalism ${ }^{608}$ He believed that both the French Revolution and the Russian Revolution were the outcome of a romantic confusion of language ${ }_{\circ}^{609}$ The French Revolution was traced by Ludovici to the radical misunderstanding of three words, nature, freedom, and men by Jean Jacaues Rousseau. Aftex baving formed a totally fantastic and false conception of nature, Rousseau began to speculate upon the unhappy contrast that humen civilisation presented in comparison with the fairy like fignent of his mind ${ }_{0}^{610}$ He lacked the realism to see nature as it really is: immorel, hard, merciless and tastoless 611 then Rousseau proceeded to plant his "natural men" dom in the 'utterly fanciful scenarios of Rousseavesque "nature", he drew a picture even more distorted of humanity then he had already dram of nature, and thus proceeded to his ultimate romentic conclusion thet man wes born free and good and overyyberehe isinchains: 612 He poisoned his own country and the world ${ }_{0}^{613}$ Iudovici then proceeds to re-define nature. freedom, and man, in accordence with what he regards as a realistic outlook on life and hunanity. He says, cynically, that if we contemplate the world as a whole, there is no justification for postulating a moral order of phenomena, 614 Romantics, like vordsworth and Rousseau, by ignoring the cruel suffering of animals and insects in nature, were able to present e false picture of life to the world. Iuch demage had been caused by their "pleasant lies" 615 The violence Which the socialist deprecates as the power that one man can exercise over another, in determining his occupation and in exacting sexvice or else food from him, still remains even in their proposition that the state should exact the service and not the individual: 616 Furthermore, so long as the individual'sright to parenthood is accented as inviolable, society will. continue to be perturbed by an uninvited access of one or more mouths from certain individuals 617 Thus in a healthy society, which is an expanding society, procreation is not merely a trensitory but a perpetual source of violence。 It is a fundamental truth of life and, therefore, it would be romontio to devise any new scheme of society in which it is not alloved for: 610 This orifinal act of violence, procreation, is rooted in tife and enters into every form of human society willy-nillys and its reverberations must proceed rythmically throurhout all the sections of any human community. 619 What romantic socialists bad forgotten is that since procreation and its consequences are part of the originel olements of life and neture, which are allowed to persist in the more or less artixicial arrangements called society, then these arrangoments must partake of the harshness, the inequalities and the apparent injusticos of life and nature ${ }_{0}^{620}$ Ludovici implores us to accept Life $2 s$ it is:
.oon its shadow side it may appear harsh, but seriously would we heve it otheryise? and are not those who pretend it can be othervise merely romenticists who want all life to be the perpetual white glare of a noonday sun without any noonday shedow?621

Fren conceding procreation's inevitable repurcussions, inequality and injustice, the free operation of the individual's right to parenthood has immense advantages:

In nature it is the violence and inexorable character of the forces at play thet give life its menifold beauties and contrasts, the mountain and the valleys, the rivers and the lakes, the toble land and the gorge, the forests and the open plain。 622

Much of the joy of life springs from the thirst and thrill of adventure, from the consciousness of being an individual trying to establish one's right of citizenship among people who are sufficiently unequal to one to introduce an element of uncertainty and 'sport' into the undertaking. The vast repertory of different virtues and powers which inequality alone makes possible cives life its choms, its light and shade ${ }_{6}^{623}$ Therefore, to inveish against the necessary consequences of life, as socialists and communists do, is to open war ageinst Life itself. Socialists are the advocates of a principle of death ${ }^{624}$ After all socialist reforms , there would still romain a residum of violence in all civilisations, which it would be impossible altogether to eliminate, so long as nctions recognise the individual's inviolable right to parenthood. These truths of realism should be carefully remembered and reckoned with as a defense against the Pousseaven romanticism of liberals, socialists, and communists ${ }_{0} 625$ Iudovici hoped an enliefhtened generation of historians would one day arive who will regand it as thoir mission to infora mentind concerning the ropeated instances in the pest when "ronantic illusions" alone, have led to disastrous upheavals in the life of the race ${ }^{626}$ There the desiderate striven and struggled for have boen wholly chimorical a romanticization of life has ensued Which, "like all romenticism, hes to be paid for very heavily, and the price of which is frequently the peace, order and hapiness of centuries. ${ }^{697} 7$ madovici thought the extreme denger of the ideology now prevalent in murope and America is that it is replete with romanticism of this kind, it is a catalogue of chimerical hopes. objects, and desiderata. Superficial statesmanship was due to the prodisious ronanticism of our era. ${ }_{6}^{628}$

In Ludovici's novel of 1922. The Goddess that Grev Up, on the occasion of Mr. Peter Oliver's complicity in the death of his daughter's suitor, Cyril Rashfield Streeter, by giving him an unsafe mount. Tudovici says that cynical writing is denlored. unfortunately, by modem ronantic Vestemerso 629 The "olites of the five villaces" would never acknowledse publicly that the sudden and tregic demise of ITr. Streeter had occasioned them eny secret pleasure . When the local newspaper, the East Kent Mercury, declared that this tragic occurrence had cast a gloom over the whole noighbourbood, none chellenged its trustrorthiness as a purveyor of accurate informetion, and "caused a luip to rise in throats which, only a day or so previously, hed been accompenying the openetion of the composite Evil. Tye with a strong implicetion upon Irx. Strceter's hecdo" Iudovici nermetes, cynically, such as humanity, but those who paint a more pleasing and romantic portrait, " touched up with lies and illusions"。 about their fellow inen, are the real favourites in the world's literature. 630

Ludovici believed that one of the best indications of the effoninacy of mer was the spread of socialism and communism all over Burope: 631 If covetousness and envy wore the principal enotional factors behind the socialistt attitude, the modern world would have nothing to do.rith ito for the moderm world, unlike the world of clessical antiquity wes obsessed chiefly by monal considerations. The modern world had no conception of the intellectual cleanliness of the populaces of classical Athens and Rome wo were covetous endhad the courege of their infirmities, and a clean conscience in their immoralityo ${ }^{632}$ If the modern man wished to indulee in the infirmities of covetousness and envy he clothed them in a moral and romantic garb which would appear to provide him with a motive more exalted than cupidity, and at the same time supply his opponents with virtuous reasons for capitulatingo The issue between them, far from being a trial of strength in which the more powerful must prevail, becones a dual of casuistryo 633 The moral justification of socialism is tho plea of justice However, socialists had not yet realised that the 'justice' which forms its moral justification is "a pure illusion, a meaningless fable, the most elaborate 'eyemash' that has ever been contrived by man." 634 This same notion recurs in Iudovici's novel of 1923. French Beans. Andre de Loudon, the hero says that the monace of the covetousness of socialism is that it has a moral basiso 635 He thon procoeds to assert that universel justice means simply nothing at all。 it is a eignento 636 Sir Thomes Braintree thanks Andre de Ioudon for his "ilucid analysis of the greatest hoax of modern times 10637

Iudovici deprecated the demand, among liberated :omen, for fictional and romantic literature。 He thought it wos a "nourotic solution" Which amountod to a fantastic escape from reality, as their is a tendency, both in these novels and those who read them, to hold a. view of life which is unrealistic and false. 638

Irdovici's Violence, Sacrifice and Ver of 1933. was welcomed as an attempt to disillusion the prevailing mentality of Britain's inter war statesman. He had realised that the inter war age was afraid of the truth, to desert the dogmas of jus eighteenth century liberalism that man was bom free and noble, and that nature is opposed to struggle ${ }_{0}^{639}$ Ludovici regretted that what had characterised all romantic reformers, hitherto, is that they had invariably regarded the sacrifices imposed by the elite upon the ruled, not as the outcome of a naturally generated form of violence, procreation, which must find sacrifice somewhere, but as a form of violence generated wholly by the vices of the rulers themselves or by their iniquitous laws. Iudovici called the latter charge romantic. It was true to life only to the limited extent that some rulers had intensified the sacrifice, or deliberately restricted it to a section of the community other than their own or made it fall on the sections of the community least deserving of imolation. It vas not real in the sense that. without an elite, violence and the need for sacrifice would vanish. Overlooking the sacrifices which procreation entails, romentics had been too hypnotised by the fact of human suffereringto see the inevitability of itg and had always tumed to the quarter of privilege as the source of the violence occasioning the sacrifice. Ludovici saw fascism as the elites realistio denial of this mistake of romenticism:

The aristocratic revolutions against kingship, insofar as they were partly prompted by compassion for the masses, were characterised by this mistake。 The bourgeois, or middle class, revolutions against the aristocracies were the same. And the present movement of proletarian or mob revolutions against, the middle clusses which finds its counter-current in such middle class organisations as Fascism and Nazism are the same.

The socialist and communist idea the the abolition of capitalism and capitalists can ever remove violence from human society was purely illusory. ${ }^{640}$ the promotors of all revolutions hed been ignorent and ronentic enough to imegine a condition of no violence and no sacrifice ${ }_{0}^{641}$ The intemationelistsand pacifists ideal of eternal amity and concord on earth overlooked reality and was a pure romantic illusion。642

Judovici bclieved the advent of a saner world would be ensured only if a suficiciently large body of people were persuaded of therrornantic the nebulous Liberal or Boleshevistic fantasies" of the last two centuries 643 In his The Child: an adults problem of 1948, Ludovici attributed the growing adoration of childreng those "unthumb marked by life ${ }^{644}$. and aversion to their discipline, to the influence of romanticism. ${ }^{645}$ Indeed, among liberal politicians and ideologues, as also in the schemes and programmes of socialism, Tudovici thought we everyohere encountered the determination to frame policies and to legislate on the hasty and sunexficial assumption that Rousseau ras right:
-o. Mo attempt is first made to justify Rousseau by careful examination of the date, or by an assiduous study of human psycholocy. It is assumed off-hand, presumably because the assumption pleases, thet Man is born good. 646

It vas this romanticism, that had eivously affected the disciplining of children, according to Ludovici: 647 Thus, a school of romantic educetors had arisen who advocated an absolute minimum of adult interfexence with the wiles and wills of children. Fy means of the Wordsworthian and Rousseeuen romentic standpoint rith its implied moral superiority of the child the perent or educator was rendered passive, with ultimate detriment to their charges: "A degree of frecdom is thereby securedfor the permanent fixation of childike teadencies in our erowing population. $0^{648}$ The wholly false and

Abstract

romentic vien of childron a reveclod in Vowsporth's "Thtinntions of Imortality ${ }^{\prime \prime}$, undemaned the armath confidence in bis risht to novld childrens' chenctore for itirade the adult appear tho chilat inceriors ${ }^{6 n 9}$ Ludovici dianicsod the monantic belief in the fundamantal goothese of mun as nave 650

Sociolist uelforiem
Tudovici thought tho conservative should question whether many contempory evils are not to $a$ very srodt cxtent the cutcome of a too heavy burden of kumen incapacity and wreckece that had been imposed won each fresh generation of efficient and sound citizens: 61 The burden of social welfare hannered the whole machinery of national endeavour more or less equally as it rested quite as heavily on the hearty and sound among the workine classes as upon the more desirable members of the elite Iudovici thought the heavy toll thet wes leviod on the people by the dissolute aristocrecy of eishteenth century Frence war nothing comprad withthetoll thet was exected by humanity's wreckaye fron the sumivine porcentace of sonnd oitimens in Britaino 652

In his A Defense of Conservetism Tudovici claims thet he is ameneble to the system of statemaided voluntary effort in education that existed bofore eighteen seventy。 653 Wowever, not to Irro Forster's ETomontary Education Bill which beceme lev in eighteen seventy and ofected three redical refoms: It placed the builoins and support of oleaentary schools unon the retes; it instituted the princinle of comyluion; and it mede elementery education practical.y free. 654 The nrinciples laid dow in the Act of eightcen seventy vere never deperted from; on the contremy subsequert Bills her been merely complementary to them. 655 That nerturbed Iulovici. was that Conservatives supportod Mr. Forstor quite as enthusiastically as modereto Inberels:

Shus, Tord Gendon's Bill of 1876, which merts the contribution of the Conscrvetive Porty to the netional syoton of educc.tion, for $\operatorname{rrcm}$ roveroing the policy of 1870 . confimmed and oxtended it, end the only modification it enbodied voc to talke a furthor step tomards universal direct compulsion. 656

Ludovici questioned whether the Public Health Act of 1876 , which establishod an efficiont control over nuisances of all kinds and obliged local authorities to instituto such services as the public health required, was more Thig than Toxy in its conception Although sound conservatism must ondoevour to presorve the nainonel heal th, it should also be committed to the policy of preserving the national character. One of the most valuable elements of the Anglo-Saxon charecter, according to Ludovici, was its independence and selfo reliance, Therefore, to introduce the principle of mratuitous medical service was a dencerous innovation. It was antioTory. The practice of defraying the cost of a slicht service in order to enoourage its use, wrs to initiete the indinect subsidisation of industry out of the pockets of the whole community - it vas cradually to undermine the character of the worling population。 657 It would have been preferable to have demanded a small fee for the service, and rbere poverty forbade the use of the service, to have started then and there en enquixy into the provailing system of weges with a view of discoveringoy workers were insufficientily remunerated to bo able independently to provide for their om medical nocds. 658 Tho latter would hove been the real conservative policy because it would make industries and their wonkers solf-supporting and at the seme time conocrve character. Seeing that the patuity people relievod industrielists of the ones of raising vagen, che to rpond part of the money due to the wonkers before it actually reached their pourets, it vas olno Thie in its conception besides being unconsexvative. This vicious principlo :Va ortended throughout the latter half of tho ninoteenth century until with Inoyd Ceoree's Insurance Act of 1912, the method of spending a poxtion of the poor man's wages for hing berore it ronchod his noclret, wes osteblished on e prodisioun soole. 659 Enwover this vicious Liberal principle of fovouring industry and not coring for the character of the peonle wa one already endorsed by Conservatives and Tories alike. It rovoalnd the Conservative Party as inadequately equipner in the knowlcdee of tineir om princinges 660 No Conservative ought svec to have boen perty to a Liberal noasure Which vent enymy toverds establishing free compulsory education, which undermined charscter. 661 The free labourors unlike the sleve, can develop character traits such as indenendence, selfwreliance, selfwespect, and thrift, which are ultimately useful to the nation as a whole. 662 Ludovici believed it was natural for the Liberals to Bot the enslavement of the :orling people hy welfena schemes for not only vere they the petrons of the to:ms and of industries and thes interester in keeping dom weges, butg in their fantastic attitude they vere not concerned with preserving anything so reel as the character of the people: 663 He thought that as the Conservative Party neither took steps to control foreign imagnation or attempted to cecure a foir compotonce for the working masses, this "is the best demonstration of the supine indifference of the ninoteenth century Conscrvetives of the rxinciples of their norty。"664 The eany course res to englawe the workors through State onforced services, and this we: poceeded with:

Thus torley, wo find ourselves seddled with a proletariat largoly deteriorated in charcctor through the enslaveneat they have suffered. and Uith ell this tho aroblem of wares still remoins uncolved. So we are practiontly in the seme position fith rerund to tho condition of 1 nbour as we were in 1860 , plus a proletariat whone moral fibre hes been vitiated and completely trensformed. 665

Althoush, it is important to get the reasons for this degencration that Tudovici cited, in proper perspective. He reckoned thet the cormuption of Rnglish character and self.relisnce had only been paatly due to welfare legislation. It was mainly due to the passing of the Nordic element in the country and its reolacement by Neditteranean stock through indiscriminate immigration。666 Nevertheless in his A Defence of Conservatism, Ludovici reckoned trade depression and unemployment were ultimately caused by the financial burden of the degenerate and unproductive on the sound and ablombodied. 667 He found It deplorable that money which was intercepted on its way to the pockets of wage earners was spent on the sick, degenerate, and crippled. 668

Judovici is correctly regarded as employing the doctrine of liberdy in the defense of hierarchy and orthodory and egeinst the velfare State. Te complained of the effects of sociel roform:

- o "its two fold effect in character deterioration and in penalising the more industriousp thristyo responsible and selfareliont members of the pomulation for the seke of the indo? antis unscrupolous and least disciplined." $669^{\circ}$
For Iudovici, socielism was the bitter effluvia of deeth 670 it wes the morbid indolence of the sick. Socialism was a force of decay and disintegration for private property is a principle of Jife ${ }_{0}^{671}$

Development describes the changes of a species that has from in the sense of becoming cumulatively capable of multifexious activities and adaptations: ${ }_{0}^{672}$ As development implies becoming more and extending identity it is a principle of higher life。 When applied to humanity it means thet the ascending line of life by physically striving to become more and more extends identity. To asseil this desire to bocome more and more is therefore tantamount to a conopiracy ageinst

Iife: "It is the hand of death outstrotched across the escending road of the animal man (his itelics ) ${ }^{19} 673$ Private property is so closely identified with individual extension thet aven wonen and children have been included in this cetegory. The individual of a species cannot manifest this incessant, striving to become more and more, which is the conscious counterpart of the physica, evolution of the race, except by means of private property. 674 Socialists are the convinced and determined opponents, not only of a particular class. but of Iife itselfo 675 The morality of development identifies grovth in the individual with the general growth of the species, and therefore sanctifies the 'instinct" of selfoextension which is the 'instinct' of private property。 Those who assail the principle of private property paralyse the life 'instinct' of their fellows and limit their life on the globe ${ }_{0}^{676}$ The institution of private property was not an evil in itself, only its present distribution ${ }_{6}^{677}$ The desire to eradicate the institution was the resort of sick and exhausted people, who were incapable of reparing or recreating anything: and the action of people who were not merely hostile to private property, but to fife in general. 678 Ludovici thousht the elite on which the successful survival of the race depends were being sacrificed for the comfort, ease, and daily welfare of the defective, the Iunatic, the incurable, the half-witted, and the blind。679 Socialist welfarism had led to the desire to live by 'unselfish' mutuel support and dependency, instead of by the virile qualities of self-help and individual enterprise. 680

According to Ludovici, personal liberty and freedom, the spirit which once made England Ereat would vanish under socialismo 681 Socialist welterism was the canker that was destroying overything valuable and great in our cjvilisation:

```
-ooro lorg as it is desinario for the life or ons dosineble and frasent remily to be roneliact even to the ertent of sirnence \(b\) yeor, in order to maintoin humen mbbish in cuisterce. so are oboyine the value rhich demonds, when secririce is neconseryg that tho rreator should be offored un to tho ?ess. Tie hove obeyod this value too lones and it hes necescerily lended us in dicestor. 682
```

Todovici thought that past experience and the common verdict of menkind indicated privato ownership as a desirable institution for the following reasons: It is the first prerequisite of individuel freedon: it is the first prerequisite in the formetion of character and tho proctice of selfodisciplino; it is tho fioct nrorequisite in the orercise and develoment of testo; it is onsentiol for purposoful leisure: it is economically supenior besides nronoting the nobler side of human nature in generosity and patronare, by providing a condition for energetic and ambitious activity: 603 The wise man should follow iristotle's reply to Plato, that whorover commanm is applied, a condition in rhich the best administretor of monerty is assumod to be the contral covomnent ${ }^{684}$ weste irefficiency: daily robbery of the national crehequer, and above all chronic deriliction of duty in all ranks and dopartmontss preveils. 685

In contempory welfare schemes it was the most competent and healthy person who lost. "rhile the deeonerate who is cepohlo of producing nothing but degenerate offspring has the public purse at his disyosel." 686 Ludnvici deplored the spoctacle of a national Govemicnt spering no pains to foster and pamper "bunen mbbish", and seorificingthe sound to that end 687 Fe believed the danger of the lie?fore State was that it contributed to the decline of the stock of dosiroble pople in Britaing and attracted immigronts. 688 The British had dereneratod from a proud, independent, thriftys and self respocting rece into one that hod beccre exnert in shifting its lecjtimete kuphens onto its neishbours.
in battoning on charities expected fron its fellow men, and expecting Stete aid and compensation even for perfoming the primitive function of procreation. 689 It was unjust to penalise self-controlled, industrious and responsible people in oxder to succour contomorariesmose lack of responsibility and reckless hedonism, dissolute habits and sloth, hed reduced them to a pitiable condition. Iudovici also deplored reckless benevolence towards criminals, particularly murderors, as undermining discipline and order:

> It is unjust to allow people who have deprived others of the sweetnoos of lifo to continue enjoving the sweetness thomsclveso Themefone the just man disregarding the relief from envy vouchsafed by the spectacle of the murderer avaitins the heng men in the condomod cell of joil, end not wholly forgetting the man's victim, deprives the murderer of the benefits of which he has shom his victim, and leaves it to tre mob hien and low to wallow in their charitable griefo 690

He believed abuses of the compulsory charities extorted from the responsible, thrifty and industrious clements in the populetion occurred With disturbing frequoncy. Socialist welferism had also contributed to overpopulation in Britain 691 Lucovici attributed socialist welfarism in pert to what he celled the 'parti hontoune' in pi.tyo which Schopenhauer, but not Wietzsche, had discemed. Wherever envy is widespread people's peace of mind is disturbed by the spectacle of any marked superiority in a neighbour. Only the spectacle of any inferior plicht in a neighbour and the consequent pity and charity evoked relieves the ache of envy. 692 It was manifested in the prevalcnoe of indiscriminate charity, and its degenerative effects:
ooobchold all the unwise and reckless benevolence end charity in modem Bneland wich is now undermining the will to work in the masses, ond convexting our prisons into second-rate boerling houses: .o. ebout us ell the inevjtable results of the concessions thet h:ve been made to populer aelfo indulfonce mad lack of self-restraint。 693

Indovici cleims his purpose in witine A Mefence of Aristocracy. A toxt book for Tories is to conclude thet anistocracy meens lifo and that denocrocy moms death? 694 is liîe is a matter of choosing and rejecting correctly, there is ono opinion on vital matters that is richt and another thet is urone Denocracy is therefore a condonation of suicirle for some mens' opinions on vitel questions, by beirs erroneous, must lead to death. Democrady also involves a condonation of murder, for those who hold and act upon lethal opinions will not only ceasc to exist as men either in their on or subsequent gencrations, but they nay stand in the way of the life of others ${ }_{6}^{695}$ Tudovici attributed the gradual crescendo of "emotionzlism and claptrap" in the speeches of politicians, particularly Lloyrd-Gcorge. aftex tiee extension of the franchise in nineteen-cighteen, to the pemictons of ectis or dernocrecivo It is difficult to sustrin a sexious and grofown political role in a corocracy sithout thereby forfeiting, through the lons of pornler foxum, the very orvortuitity and nower me may have of contributing to the wiae covernmont of the country. 697 Democracy forbade the presentation of sound and for-ieaching roforms in a shane sufficiently attractive and garish to movoke popular onthusiasm ${ }^{698}$ in his A Deferce of Conservetisn, Iudovici urote that in a degenerate age the majority of newomers to a country fall belos existing stondards and are, therefore, antiaconservative。 Their clain for the modifications they nropose an 'prosress' is oracorbated in a democracy there their lethal and morbid influence is not limited. 699 Democracy anounts, in practice, to a. failure to distimaiob between changes which are domended by wiesirable, and those which are domended by degimable alcuments in a notion 700 Under democratic influcnce, bulk and numers begin to take the place of quality in every department of the nationel life. 701 The competing political parties are inherently opportunist in their competition for popular support:

- oothe practice, so much favoured by Consemvative politicians in the past, of storling the clothes of the Thiberals or the Radioals or cven the Socialists, while these gentlemen are away bathing. becones the highest wisdom, and party differences become mere make-believe。 702

Democracy ronderod it impossible to distinguish in the confusjon of the polls; between the clemour for change which was regressive and that which was progressive - the task of conserving the nation's identity becomes impossible: 703 Liberals were wrong in thinking that where democracy is witheld the intelligence of men stultifies and their capacities decline. The people of selfogoverning Encland vere no more intelligent than the people of Figlenc a hundred and fifty years before ${ }_{0}^{704}$ Contrary to what romentics believed, political activities are the most corrupting a man can engage in 705 The multiplication of State controllers fer from improving the control. deprociates its quality. ${ }_{0}^{706}$ Demncratic institutions tend inevitebly to destroy the belief in netionel purity and good stock: "iscecenation might even be regerded as the peculier device of तemocracy. 1707 No class in the community feels its interest are seticfactoxily secured by democracy because of the power of the caucus, and of the party leaders over the body of backbenchers in Parliomento 708

Ludovici believed democracy brought the 'slaves' to power, 709 In denocracy no real strugele for mulership took place as there was no desire to master. 710 Iudovici shared his belief that democracy cases deseneration with Mietzsche, who reckoned democracy "the anhilation of all higher aims and hopeson 711

The inherent vice of demooratic control was that it ultimately degraded politics into a matter of emotional appeal through the instrumentality of demogogues. Politics had become a matter of divisions, Conservative and Labour, without any attempt to make a unifying appeal. Ludovici cited as an example of the increasing bitterness and the fantastic nature of the promises made by the candidates the election of the young Labour MP Oswald Mosely at Smethwick, commenting on which The Tines said "personalities played a bigger part than politics." 712 Not only did democracy contribute to national decline, but as the ignorant masses formed a powerful body of opinion in a democracy, it became increasingly difeicult to get the country to regard the fact of national degeneracy as a problen. Hence the reluctance to take "drastic steps" to arrest national degeneration 713

One of Iudovici's reasons for admiring Hitler was that he believed $H_{i} t$ ler was fulfilling Nietzsche's anti-democratic bias in actiono Ludovici eulogised Hitler's belief that democracy is the precursor of anarchy and communism because as the suffrege is extended to the ranks of the ignorant, subjective, and foolish, who cannot see beyond the limits of their own self-interest, the democratic form of government necessarily leads to a chaotic clash of self-interested groupss who are prepared to see their country perish before they will yield what they concieve to be their immediate advantage. Similarly, Nietzache believed democracy is wrong because the elite are swamped by the mediocre and inferior mass: "II am opposed to parliamentary govermment and the power of the press", he said, "because they are the means Whereby cattle become masters." 714 Hitler emphasised the value to Germany of having rid herself of democracy, her 'talking institutions", "chatterboxes', and the voice of degeneracy at her council table.

By condennine the 'chatter' of democrecy and its defercis of the liberties of degenerate nonentities. Ludovici bolicved Fitlor uas a laudable inietrschoan:

```
-oovron, t'orefone, tho Tuchrer reneatedly ansures Gemmyy of the benetits of her silence, it is only a therepeutic moasvee, and noints to the adventage which.
as e silent nation, she now enjoys ovemp,ll the vociforous and chettering nations of restem denocrecy, he once more reveals, if not the Njetzscheon influence, at least a deep sympathy vith the ideas of the latter-day Cermen sage.715
```

The denocret, motivated by sick and deenerate values, by participating in the nation's affeirs occasions its death! 716 The onty ifreodom' thet democrecy confers on the people is to $2 l l 0$ their imonance and stupidity to be erp?oited by domogogues: 717 The Control Comission in dexeated Nazi Gemmeny failed to see that whilst condemanes national socialism they wore engagod in putting acrose anotbor ideolo马y by propocenda - the democratic. They should have reclised. as Jr. Salaner of Portugal did, that: "Onc of the crectest fallacios Thrifish democrecy vere araptable to evcry hacopean comotryour 71 e Denocracy arounts to a condition of suicide and dooth to tho notions that adopt it because a majority are not merely incepoble of voicine the tarte of flourishing life but nake selections ancorse to flourishire life, or actually lethal! 719 The canacity to distincuish good from evil indoctrine, diet, conduct, form, statwe, eppoomence, and the daily routinc of humen life - taste - is essential to the connorvation of a people The people who lose their eliteg who cen excroise this vital teste, are thus doomed. Only an elite of flourishin: lifo can give their people life-pronoting values concemins a, 17 the vitel altematives of life? 720 Tudovici thought democracy vos a pernicious form of "mass nourcsis" which afflicted civilisod commonities in ther decline: 721 Thder popular govemment the peoples cumpotive influenco ultimately has a degenerative effect on all standerds, whilst the machinery of democracy, with its elusive sources of control. allows of opportunities for syayine the illwinformed and emotional populace in any direction that may seom expodient to powerful. and alien, minorities ${ }^{722}$ unforturetely, so carcfully had the mass been indoctrinated by the fanatical and 'interested' chompions of democracy, "with their dark insinuations about Fascism", that they fromed upon any critics of democracy: 723 Damocracy millitated ageinst the recomition of national decadence:
0. Moone, who like myself, has hod much experience of public debetingo can fail to have noticed thet it is not the truthful realict, dwelling on unpalatible facts, who is acclaimed, no matter how eloquently he may speak; but the speaker who leads everyone to believe that evcoythine is all-wicht. or, as even the so called educated prefer it today: quite all richt。 724

Democracy was the political institution of a sick generation. Beforo men could devise it the elite dom to the meanest operabive had to undergo a marked deviation from the nocuol and fonget a more golden ase'. Men possessed of forest stemine, with bouyent honlth and high spirite, aro irmune to the infirnity of envy and the inotitution the t anpeases it-denocracy. 725 Democracy was in the control of every unscrupolous and skilled 'vire-puller' who, once he hed acquired control of publicity channels, had secured tho means whereby the pathetic apathy mental indolence, indiscipline and ontimontality of crowds could lead to any majority decision' he dosired. 726 Jicence masquaraded as liberty, discipline declined, and the nation's fibre slowly softened as anarchy spread beccuse of democracy: "Can anyone doubt that the basic evil of our system reaults from Perty Government and the bitter rivalry it fosters? $7_{0}^{727}$ The most elementary knowledge of human nature should suffice to warn of the inanity of assuming that political pexties will consider the national interest before their chance of minning an election; ane that the electorato in estimatine the merite of a porty's policies, will always forego immediete benefits in order to serve tho best interesto of the nation 728 mo wise, intellisont and discriminating menbers of the comunty almay constitute an elite。 2hus, majority mule muat moan eovemnent by the least eble and least gifted elements in the population: "Can ve wonder theng thet Wherever today nomocracy is established things co from bad to worse and that chaos and anorchy are bocomjer universal?"729 focording to Tudovici. we condemn what the patablishrent had tavent us to regard as the fascist and nawi slogen thet might is risht, yet in our denocracy wo unhesitatingly accept that right rosidos where there is popular misht. 730 Democracy attecks aristocracy, and the world is left with plutocracy, a grandiose device for appeasinc envy However, plutocrecy is but, a stage in a process torards the total elimination of all causes on envy. Sristotle forctold the inevitable tranefomation of democracy into sociolism and finaly comunism over two thounand. yecrs ago in his Politics ${ }^{731}$

The conclusion to which Ludovici's reasons for the dereneration of the world constantly refer is that the natural hierarchy and order of nature has been inverted. Lt the becinning of Chapter III of his A Dofenco of hristocrecyo a toxt book for Toriers "Mpe Fngish Aristocrat as a Tailure in the rutorship of Rulinger 732 Ludovici says that whilst the Bnglish ariotocracy hod failed honelessly in the 'oraft', or protection of the populeces of thein minge nis oherse arainet then in rogerd to the 'tutornhip' in roverning is even more sovero. Tor centuries the Lords had neglected the pincinle of flourishine life: "Respect the burden."" 733 Since the midale of the eichteenth contwry, but for a for brillient exceptions, such as the seventh Herl of Sheftobhury the voice of flourishin: life had beon entirely sinent in Pnond:
oocll the confusion and dubt which ve now see ohcut uo, all the velinosng vilganty, minomy ard unoontrolled Wodoniam hish now mevail. em notking but the outcoue of the fedt thet tho voicc of impotomiswed life of iminion life.
has been prectically the ony guiding voice in our island for one hundred ond fifty years. 734

The nisery of tho lower ordons uns metohed by the of the 'anerion' orders who hed lost all sense of a crond scheme of life, and who we unconfortable in thoir position of meroly meteriel superiomty 735 Conscrvatives showed themselves incmpable of even the elenentery selfpresorvotive enution of preseming the hoalth of the elite and tat of the people, which would howe followed. They comittod thein party to an unprincipled opportunism! 736

Ludovici shared his conviction that all goverment hed lapses 737 with Wietrsche ${ }^{738}$ Alf sense of gradation and rank hod hoon lost in our democratic age, acconding to Iudovici; the virtucs of modeaty and humility had to be preached as a corrective against the volgar pretentions of "uretched nobodies" 739 Iord Henry Highbarm, the hero of Too 01d for Dolls, says to Aubrey St. Waur that tho elite has decayed: "'where are the great men today?" 740 Tudovici found it deplorable that everybody imagines the they not only enjoy but elso exercise the right of private judgenent 741 He reckoned the low taste, intellectugl inferiority, and indolont hedonism of the decenerate elite had gradually diffused to'lower'strata in the populationo Everythine despicable today wes present in gexn poncrations aro in the elite, and needed only time to reach tho omulatory messes:
-oovhereas in 1860, a Salvation Army for the 'Upper Ten' yould probahly have sufficed to regenerate the whole nation - a fact entiroly missed by Villiem and Chorlns Booth - todey the inperative noed is a Solvation Army for the whole penuletion, a much more difficult miertaring:74?

The record of aristocracy in Encland had, except for a fev individual nobles, been one of deplorable incompetance, hedonism, and selfindulgence ${ }^{743}$ Throughout the classes high and low, or the affluent and the less affluent, no elite existed ${ }_{0}^{744}$ The limitation of the pover of the 'aristocrats' who comprised the personnel of the House of Lords had been due to the fact that only exceptionally were they aristocrats at 0,1745

Indeed, in speaking of figland alone it is no exageeration to say that for a period of 1100 years - from St. Boniface to Asquith and the Parliament Act of 1911, which was a mude conge hurled at the heads of Bhgland's worthless aristocracy - we know of no age in which the English ruling class, as a body subordinate to the sovereign, displayed even the minimum of wisdom and prudence which would have assured their retention of the national leadershipo 746

Ludovici thought it would be worthwhile , before the ultimate reckoning arises, for those unfamiliar with the sociol history of Fngland, to ponder on the centuries of inarticulate surfering before the old French word "dencier', sienifying dominion, authority, jurisdiction the relation of a $L_{0}$ rd or master to his dependent or subordinate, with all its undertones of protective benevolence could, through the behavious of bogus aristocrats, have become a waming of imminent injury ${ }_{0}^{747}$ The absence of an elite had been responsible for England's degeneration:
.ooit must be obvious that it is the complete absence from our present day Vestern societies of any elite able to set a high standard of decency and good tone, that is chiefly responsible for the steady deterionation of our way of life and the decay of our civilisation 748

Conclusion

Ludovici is a typical fascist in condemning all the extremes of the political spectrum, and their associsted perties, as contributing to the deceneration of the nation．In tho lotter pert of Ghapter 2 T have described Tudovici＇s condemnation of the Conservative Partyr whilst throughout this Chapter，the Conservative Party，in either thought or action，is invariably inplicated by Tudovici as having some complicity in the various causes，which he alleges，of Molend＇s degeneracyo Similarly，in his tirades aceinst miscegenation the Christian ethic，rationalism，humana，Rousseauan romanticism， socialist welfarim，democracy，and the like，Indovici condemned the heritere of both liberalism and encialism，Tndeed，his condemnetion of the established idoolories of the party system overlans．To aspect of the politicel spectrum of the partir system cscaped his denunciation．His is a fascist diarnosis of netional degeneration。

Tn the followins chapter I shell demonstrate that Iudovicj smothosises the political extromes of the party system，which he intends to succeed，in an extreme nationalism。 It will be maintained that by rendering conservatime commoncurable with frocirm he intended to regenerete Fingland。

Notes to Chapter 4: The Desparate World

1. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p.3.
2. ibid., p. 168.
3. David Lloyd-George, The Times, September 13, 1918; cited in Anthony Mario Ludovici "The Conservative Programme: A Further Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series, Volume 113, (April 1923), p. 601.
4. Anthony Mario Ludovici., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 175.
5. H.J. Massingham, "Values and Nature," Letter to the New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XXI, No.23, September 24, 1942, p.187.
6. Friedrich Nietzsche, Beyond Good and Evil, Prelude to a Philosophy of the Future, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, translated by Helen Zinmern, with an introduction by Thomas Common, (4th ed., 2nd impression; London: George Allen & Unwin, 1967), pp.144-145.
7. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Nietzsche: his life and works, Preface by Dr. Oscar Levy, (London: Constable, 1910), pp.59-60.
8. ibid., p.61.
9. idem., Mansel Fellowes [A novel] (London: Grant Richards, 1918), p. 229.
10. ibid., p.16.
11. ibid., p. 41.
12. ibid., p. 42 .
13. ibid., p. 91.
14. ibid., pp.91-92.
15. ibid., p.92.
16. idem., Too O1d for Dolls, A Novel (London; Hutchinson, [1920]), p. 48 .
17. ibid., pp.48-49.
18. ibid., p. 49.
19. ibid., p. 52 .
20. ibid., p.117.
21. idem., What Woman Wishes (London; Hutchinson, [1921]), pp. 165-166.
22. idem., The False Assumption of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921]), pp. 27-28.
23. idem., Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition (London: William Heinemann, 1921), p.115.
24. Anthony Mario Ludovici, French Beans (London: Hutchinson, [1923]), p.7.
25. idem., The Taming of Don Juan (London: Hutchinson, [1924]), pp.143-144.
26. ibid., p. 304.
27. idem., Lysistrata; or, Woman's Future and Future Woman (London: Kegan Paul, [1924j), p.29.
28. ibid., p.12.
29. ibid., p. 29.
30. idem., The Secret of Laughter (London: Constable, 1932), p.6.
31. ibid., p.14.
32. ibid., p.16.
33. ibid., p.88.
34. ibid., pp.109-110.
35. ibid., p. 112.
36. Friedrich Nietzsche, Will to Power, authorised English translation by Anthony Mario Ludovici, Volume 1, p.74; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 113.
37. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., pp.113-114.
38. ibid., p. 115.
39. idem., Violence, Sacrifice and War (London: St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, [1933]), p,3.
40. idem, Some Reasons for Fear, English Mistery Leaflet, No.3., 1936, p.3.
41. idem., "The Political Misuse of Words," New Pioneer, Volume 1 , No. 2, January 1939, p. 47.
42. idem., The Quest of Human Quality, How to rear leaders (London; Rider, 1952), pp.132-133.
43. idem., Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), p. 82.
44. Albert Ludovici Jnr. An Artist's Life in London and Paris; $1870=$ 1925 (London: J. Fisher Unwin, 1926), p.193.
45. ibid., pp.193-194.
46. ibid., p. 194.
47. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition (London: William Heinemann, 1921), p.vii.
48. idem., Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), p. 260.
49. Interview with John Ludovici," March 18, 1980.
50. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p.432.
51. ibid., (2nd ed; London: Constable, 1933), p.xi.
52. idem.
1918), Mansel Fellowes $[$ A novel $]$, (London: Grant Richards,
53. ibid., p. 160.
54. idem., "Conscience and Fanatacism [Review of Conscience and Fanatacism: An Essay on Moral Values, by George Pitt-Rivers (Heinemann)]," New Age, Volume XXV, No. 24 , October 9, 1919,
p. 395.
55. idem., "Review of The War Diary of a Square Peg, by Maximilian A. Mugge (George Routledge and Sons ltd., 1920), New Age, Volume XXVII, No. 26, October 28, 1920, p.370.
56. idem., The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [192I]), pp.ix-x.
57. idem., "The Folly of Feminine Franchise," English Review, Volume 37, November 1923, p. 571.
58. ibid., p. 575.
59. idem., "A Post-War Maiden (To Agnes Birre11) [A poem]," in his The Taming of Don Juan (London: Hutchinson, [1924]), pp.6-7.
60. idem., The Taming of Don Juan (London: Hutchinson, [1924]), p. 164.
61. ibid., p.189.
62. ibid., p. 190.
63. ibid., p. 202.
64. ibid., pp.202-203.
65. ibid., p. 203.
66. ibid., p. 236.
67. ibid., pp.272-273.
68. idem., Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p.299.
69. idem., Violence, Sacrifice and War (London: St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, [1933]), p. 27.
70. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p.363.
71. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 6 .
72. ibid., footnote to p.7.
73. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), pp.6-7.
74. ibid., pp.15-16.
75. ibid., p. 16.
76. ibid., p.83.
77. ibid., p.88.
78. ibid., p. 251.
79. ibid., pp251-252.
80. ibid., pp.253-254.
81. ibid., pp.254-255.
82. ibid., p. 256.
83. Friedrich Nietzsche, Beyond Good and Evil, Prelude to a Philosophy of the Future, translated by Helen Zimmern, with an introduction by Thomas.Common, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, (4th ed., 2nd. impression; London: George Allen & Unwin, 1967), p. 20.
84. ibid., pp.225-226.
85. ibid., pp.226-227.
86. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Translator's Preface" to Friedrich Nietzsche, The Will to Power, Books I and II, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18. vols., (Edinburgh and London:T.N. Foulis, 1909), Volume XIV: p.ix.
87. idem., Who is to be Master of the World? An introduction to the philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche, with introduction by Dr. Oscar Levy, (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909), p.114.
88. idem. Nietzsche: his life and works, preface by Dr. Oscar Levy, (London: Constable, 1910), p.65.
89. idem., Mansel Fellowes [A novel], (London: Grant Richards, 1918),
p. 20 .
90. ibid., p. 34 .
91. ibid., p.42-43.
92. ibid., p. 58.
93. ibid., p. 150 .
94. ibid., p. 160 .
95. ibid., pp.162-163.
96. ibid., p. 220.
97. idem., Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thricemarried lady (London: Hutchinson, [1919]), p. 201.
98. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Too 01d for Do11s. A novel (London: Hutchinson, $\left.{ }^{[ } 1920\right]$ ), p. 64.
99. ibid., p. 65.
100. ibid., p.92.
101. ibid., p.i76.
102. ibid., p. 191.
103. ibid., p.282.
104. ibid., p. 284.
105. idem., What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921]), p. 236.
106. idem., The Taming of Don Juan (London: Hutchinson, [1924]), p. 207.
107. ibid., p. 240.
108. ibid., p.310.
109. idem., Woman, A Vindication (London: Constable, 1923), p. 236.
110. ibid., p. 264.
111. ibid., pp.236-237.
112. ibid., p. 249.
113. ibid., p. 306.
114. idem., The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921]), pp.98-99.
115. ibid., p.99.
116. ibid., pp.107-108.
117. ibid., p. 110.
118. ibid., p. 111.
119. ibid., p. 113.
120. idem., A Defence of Conservatigm (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 130.
121. idem., The Night-Hoers; or, the case against birth control and an alternative (London: Herbert Jenkins, 1928), pp.234-235.
122. ibid., pp.238-239.
123. John Green, "Youth Speaks Out II, - A Political Writer [Anthony Mario Ludovici]," National Review, Volume 103, (August 1934), p. 221.
124. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Violence, Sacrifice, and War (London: St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, [1933]), pp.1-2.
125. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Violence, Sacrifice and War (London:

St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, [1933]), p. 2.
126. ibid., p.3.
127. ibid., p.2.
128. ibid., p. 3.
129. ibid., p.4.
130. ibid., p.5.
131. ibid., p.6.
132. ibid., p.7.
133. ibid., p.9.
134. ibid., p. 10.
135. ibid., pp. 10-11.
136. ibid., p.12ff.
137. ibid., pp.17-31.
138. ibid., p.18.
139. ibid., p.19.
140. ibid., p. 20.
141. ibid., p. 22.
142. ibid., pp.21-22.
143. Cobbett [pseud. Anthony Mario Ludovici], Jews and the Jews in England (London: Boswell, 1938), p.31.
144. ibid., pp.31-32.
145. ibid., p. 32 .
146. ibid., pp.34-35.
147. ibid., pp.41-42.
148. ibid., pp.65-66.
149. ibid., p. 67.
150. ibid., p. 68.
151. ibid., p.90.
152. idem., Enemies of Women, The origins in outline of Anglo-Saxon Feminism (Iondon: Carroll & Nicolson, 1948), p,144ff.
153. ibid., pp.146-147.
154. ibid., p. 149.
155. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Enemies of Women, The origins in outline of Ang1o-Saxon Feminism (London: Carroll & Nicolson, 1948), p. 150 .
156. idem., The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921]), pp.32-33.
157. idem., "Nietzsche and Art," Letter to the New Age, Volume IX, No. 19, September 7, 1911, p. 455.
158. idem., "Review of Nietzsche et les Theories Biologiques Contemperaines, by Claire Richter, (Paris, Mercure de France )," New Age, Volume IX, No. 20, September 14, 1911, p.473.
159. idem, "Notes" to Friedrich Nietzsche, Thus Spake Zarasthustra, translated by Thomas Common, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols. (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909), Volume XI: p.434.
160. ibid., p.439.
161. ibid., pp.439-440.
162. ibid., p.454.
163. idem., Who is to be Master of the World? An introduction to the philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche, with introduction by $\overline{\text { Dr. Oscar Levy (Edinburgh and London: T. N. Foulis, 1909), }}$ p.87-88.
164. ibid., pp.92-93.
165. ibid., pp. 161-162.
166. idem., "Nietzsche and Science," Letter to the Spectator, January 8, 1910, p. 52.
167. idem., Nietzsche: his life and works, preface by Dr. Oscar Levy (London: Constable, 1910), p.64.
168. ibid., pp.69-70.
169. ibid., pp. 71-72.
170. ibid., p.72.
171. idem., Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), pp.144-145.
172. idem., The Night-Hoers: or, the case against birth control and an alternative (London: Herbert Jenkins, 1928), p. 65.
173. ibid., pp.66-67.
174. idem., Health and Education through Self-Mastery (London: Watts, 1933), pp.8-10.
175. idem., The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), pp. 10-11.
176. idem., The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921]), p.33.
177. ibid., p.34.
178. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), p. 91.
179. ibid., pp.92-93.
180. ibid., p. 149.
181. ibid., p.149-152.
182. ibid., p. 152.
183. ibid., p. 159.
184. ibid., p. 161.
185. ibid., p. 163.
186. ibid., p. 194.
187. ibid., pp.228-229.
188. ibid., p. 277.
189. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p. 296.
190. ibid., p. 302.
191. ibid., p. 309.
192. ibid., p. 319.
193. ibid.s p. 325.
194. ibid., p. 326.
195. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 4 .
196. ibid., pp.39-40.
197. ibid., p. 115.
198. ibid., p. 118.
199. ibid., pp.120-121.
200. ibid., p. 121.
201. ibid., pp.122-123.
202. ibid., p. 123.
203. ibid., p.133.
204. ibid., p. 134.
205. ibid., pp.147-148.
206. ibid., p. 150.
207. ibid., p. 151.
208. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p.4.
209. ibid., p. 155.
210. ibid., p. 158.
211. idem., " A British Conservative looks at the Black Invasion of Britain," South African Observer, Volume 1, No. 3, July 1955, p. 5.
212. ibid., p. 6.
213. Friedrich Nietzsche, Beyond Good and Evil, Prelude to a philosophy of the future, translated by Helen Zimmern with an introduction by Thomas Common, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, (4th ed., 2nd. impression; London: George Allen & Unwin, 1967), p. 122 .
214. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Mansel Fellowes [A novel] (London: Grant Richards; 1918), p.112.
215. idem., What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921], p. 60.
216. idem., Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition (London: William Heinemann, 1921), pp.43-44.
217. ibid., p.45.
218. Genesis, vii.4, cited in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., pp. 45-46.
219. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., pp.47-48.
220. ibid., p.48.
221. ibid., p.56.
222. ibid., p. 57.
223. ibid., p. 172.
224. ibid., pp.179-180.
225. ibid., pp.181-182.
226. ibid., p. 184.
227. ibid., pp.184-185.
228. ibid., p. 185.
229. ibid., p. 194.
230. idem., Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p.304.
231. idem., Violence, Sacrifice and War (London: St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, [1933]), pp. 22-23.
232. ibid., p. 23.
233. ibid., p.24.
234. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Violence, Sacrifice and War (London: St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, [1933]), pp. 22-23.
235. ibid., p. 30 .
236. idem., The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), p. 72.
237. ibid., p. 135.
238. idem., The Truth about Childbirth. Lay 1ight on maternal morbidity and mortality (London: Kegan Paul, 1937), p.172.
239. Cobbett pseud. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Jews, and the Jews in England (London: Boswell, 1938), p. 14.
240. ibid., p. 15.
241. ibid.
242. ibid., p. 17.
243. ibid., p. 125.
244. ibid., pp.53-54.
245. ibid., pp.60-61.
246. ibid., p. 67.
247. ibid-, p.79.
248. ibid., p. 180.
249. ibid., pp.93-94.
250. ibid., p.109.
251. ibid., p.l13.
252. ibid., p. 115.
253. idem., English Liberalism (London; English Array, [1939]), p. 1 .
254. idem. The Four Pillars of Health. A contribution to postwar planning (London: Heath Cranton, 1945), p.14.
255. ibid., p. 20.
256. ibid., pp.21-22.
257. ibid., p. 23.
258. idem., "The Importance of Racial Integrity (II)," South African Observier, Volume 1, No.4, (May 1958), p. 12.
259. idem., "The Importance of Racial Integrity. (IV)," South African Observer, Volume IV, No.3, (July 1958), p. 19.
260. idem., "Public Opinion in Eng1and (VIII)," South African Observer, Volume XI, No.7, March,1966. p. 13.
261. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories, (London: Constable, 1915), p.345.
262. ibid., pp. $384-385$.
263. idem., Mansel Fellowes [A novel] (London: Grant Richards, 1918), pp.14-15.
264. ibid., pp.238-239.
265. ibid., p. 278.
266. idem., The Goddess that Grew Up (London: Hutchinson, [1922]), p. 30 .
267. ibid., p. 31.
268. ibid., pp.264-265.
269. idem., French Beans (London; Hutchinson, [1923]), p.9.
270. idem., The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), p. 102.
271. idem., The Child: an adult's problem (London: Carroll & Nicho1son, 1948), p.215.
272. idem., The Quest of Human Quality. How to rear leaders (London: Rider, 1952), pp.94-95.
273. idem., "The Importance of Racial Integrity (III)," South African Observer, Volume IV, No.2., June 1958, p. 13.
274. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915)., p.26.
275. ibid., pp.162-237.
276. ibid., p.172.
277. ibid., p. 173.
278. ibid., p. 175.
279. ibid., p. 177.
280. ibid., p. 178.
281. ibid., p. 180.
282. ibid., p. 183.
283. ibid., pp.188-189.
284. ibid., p. 204.
285. ibid., p. 206.
286. ibid., pp.218-219.
287. ibid., p. 234.
288. ibid., p. 235.
289. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Conservatism (London:

Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 46 .
290. ibid., p. 66.
291. ibid., pp.168-207.
292. ibid., p. 171.
293. ibid., p. 172.
294. ibid., p. 173.
295. ibid., p. 176.
296. ibid., p. 180.
297. Friedrich Nietzsche, Beyond Good and Evil, Prelude to a Philosophy of the Future, translated by Helen Zimmern, with an introduction by Thomas Common, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, (4th ed., 2nd impression; London: George Allen & Unwin, 1967), p.82.
298. ibid., p. 114.
299. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Who is to be Master of the World? An introduction to the philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche, with introduction by Dr. Oscar Levy, (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909), p. 137.
300. idem., Nietzsche: his 1ife and works, preface by Dr. Oscar Levy, (London: Constable, 1910), p. 53.
301. ibid., pp.56-57.
302. idem., "Translator's Preface," to Friedrich Nietzsche, The Twilight of the Idols, The Antichrist, Eternal Recurrence, Notes to Zarathustra, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols. (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1911), Volume XVI: p.xii.
303. ibid., p.xiii.
304. idem., Manse1 Fellowes [A novel] (London: Grant Richards, 1918), p. 103.
305. ibid., p. 110.
306. ibid., p.111.
307. ibid., p. 144.
308. ibid., p. 180.
309. ibid., p. 236.
310. ibid., p. 237.
311. ibid., p. 286.
312. idem., What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921]), p. 167.
313. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Goddess that Grew Up (London: Hutchinson, [1922]), p.99.
314. ibid., pp.100-101.
315. idem., French Beans (London: Hutchinson, [1923]), pp.191-192.
316. idem., The Secret of Laughter (London: Constable, 1932), p. 47 .
317. idem., The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), p. 165.
318. idem., "In the Worker's Paradise [Review of The Rabbit King of Russia, by R.O.G. Urch (The Right Book Club)], "New Pioneer, March 1939, Volume 1, No.4, p. 105.
319. idem., English Liberalism (London: English Array, [1939]), pp.18-19.
320. ibid., p. 20.
321. ibid., p. 21.
322. ibid., p.22.
323. ibid., pp.22-23.
324. idem., The Four Pillars of Health. A contribution to post-war planning (London: Heath Cranton, 1945), p.128.
325. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), pp.176-177.
326. ibid., p. 177.
327. ibid., p. 178.
328. ibid., p.179.
329. idem., Who is to be Master of the World? An introduction to the philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche, with introduction by Dr. Oscar Levy, (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909), pp.46-47.
330. ibid., p. 143.
331. idem., Nietzsche: his life and works, preface by Dr. Oscar Levy (London: Constable, 1910), pp.92-93.
332. idem., The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921]), pp.173-174.
333. ibid., p. 174.
334. idem., The Taming of Don Juan (London: Hutchinson, [1924]), p. 84.
335. ibid., p.85.
336. ibid., p. 234.
337. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Taming of Don Juan (London: Hutchinson, [1924]), p. $2 \overline{34}$.
338. ibid., p. 236.
339. ibid., p. 271.
340. ibid., p. 272.
341. idem., Man: an indictment (London; Constable, 1927), p. 162.
342. ibid., p. 175.
343. ibid., p. 281.
344. idem., The Quest of Human Quality. How to rear leaders (London: Rider, 1952), p.193.
345. idem., "Personality in Statesmanship (III)," South African Observer, Volume 1, No.8, December 1955, p.6.
346. idem., Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), p. 68.
347. ibid., pp.69-70.
348. ibid., pp.72-73.
349. ibid., pp.76-77.
350. ibid., p.81.
351. ibid., pp.130-131.
352. ibid., pp. 134-135.
353. idem., English Liberalism (London: English Array [1939]), pp.4-5.
354. ibid., p.5.
355. ibid., p. 28.
356. ibid., p. 29.
357. ibid., pp.30-31.
358. ibid., p. 31.
359. idem., The Specious Origins of Liberalism; the genesis of a delusion (London: Britons, 1967), p.8.
360. ibid., p. 36.
361. ibid., pp.50-51.
362. ibid., p. 68.
363. ibid., p.78.
364. ibid., p. 136.
365. Oswald Speng1er, The Hour of Decision; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici ibid., p. 163.
366. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Specious Origins of Liberalism; the genesis of a delusion (London: Britons, 1967), p.180.
367. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), pp.8-9.
368. ibid. p. 58.
369. ibid., p. 125.
370. idem., The Future of Woman (London: Kegan Paul, 1936), p. 137.
371. idem., Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), p. 160.
372. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p. 240.
373. ibid., pp.240-241.
374. ibid., p. 245.
375. ibid., p.246.
376. ibid., p. 314.
377. Friedrich Nietzsche, Twilight of the Ido1s, pp.14-15; cited in Anthony Mario Ludovici "Conscience and Fanatacism. A reply to Mr. G. Pitt-Rivers' 'The Sick Values of a Sick Age (A reply to A.M. Ludovici's review of G. Pitt-Rivers' Conscience and Fanatacism ) of November 13, 1919'," New Age, Volume XXVI, No. 10, January 8, 1920, p. 156.
378. Friedrich Nietzsche, Beyond Good and Evil, Prelude to a Philosophy of the Future, translated by Helen Zimmern, with an introduction by Thomas Common, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, (4th ed. 2nd impression; London: George Allen and Unwin, 1967), p.5.
379. ibid., pp.8-9.
380. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Manse1 Fellowes $[A$ novel $]$ (London:
Grant Richards, 1918), p.144.
381. idem., Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thrice-married lady (London: Hutchinson, [1919]), p.37.
382. ibid., pp.70-71.
383. idem., What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, $[1921]$ ), p. 106 .
384. idem., Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition (London: William Heinemann, 1921), pp.1-12.
385. ibid., pp.7-8.
386. ibid., pp.42-43.
387. Genesis, vi.2; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p.43.
388. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 64.
389. ibid., pp.57-58.
390. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition (London: William Heinemann, 1921); pp.1-12.
391. ibid., p. 181.
392. ibid., p.182.
393. ibid., pp.184-185.
394. ibid., pp.218-219.
395. idem., The Goddess that Grew Up (London: Hutchinson, $[1922]$ ), p. 215.
396. idem., French Beans (London: Hutchinson, [1923]), p. 205.
397. ibid., p. 206.
398. idem., Woman, A vindication (London: Constable, 1923), p. 41.
399. ibid., pp.42-43.
400. ibid., p. 44.
401. ibid., p. 58.
402. idem., "The Enfranchisement of the Girl of Twenty-One," English Review, Volume 44, (June 1927), pp.653-654.
403. idem., "The False Assumptions of Democracy (XI)," South African Observer, Volume III, No. 6, (October 1957), p.13.
404. idem., Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), p. 171.
405. ibid., pp.176-177.
406. ibid., p. 180.
407. ibid., p. 193.
408. ibid., p. 206.
409. ibid., p. 210.
410. ibid., p. 219.
411. ibid., pp.219-220.
412. ibid., p. 230.
413. ibid., p. 237.
414. ibid., p. 241.
415. ibid., PB.249-250.
416. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (London: Constab1e, 1915), p. 333.
417. ibid., p. 337.
418. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p. 345 .
419. Friedrich Nietzsche, Early Greek Philosophy & Other Essays, translated by Maximilian A. Mugge, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, 18 vols, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1911), Vol. II: p.170.
420. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Wine and Spirits Review of Wine and Spirits, by Andre L. Simon, (Duckworth)]," New Age, Volume XXVII, No.2, May, 13, 1920, p. 24.
421. idem., The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921]), p. 27.
422. idem., Woman. A vindication (London: Constable, 1923), p.137.
423. idem., Lysistrata; or, woman's future and future woman (London: Kegan Pau1, [1924]), p.14.
424. ibid., p. 16.
425. ibid., p. 20.
426. ibid., p. 74.
427. idem., The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), pp.20-21.
428. ibid., p..21.
429. ibid., p. 22.
430. ibid., pp.22-23.
431. ibid., p. 24.
432. ibid., p. 25.
433. ibid.
434. ibid., p. 476.
435. idem., The Future of Woman (London: Kegan Pau1, 1936), pp.33-34.
436. ibid., pp.34-35.
437. ibid., pp.36-37.
438. idem., "Slavery, Life and Revolution," New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XIX, No.1, April 24, 1941, p. 8.
439. idem.; "A Study in Human Responsibility [Review of Infant and Maternal Mortality in Relation to Size of Family and Rapidity of Breeding, by C.M. Burns, with preface by Lord Eustace Percy (Department of Physiology, King's College, University of Durham)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XXII, No. 13, July 15, 1943, p. 14 .
440. idem., "The Worldly Philosophy of the English Working Classes," New Pioneer, No.9, August 1939, p. 222.
441. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Enemies of Women. The Origins in outline of Anglo-Saxon Feminism (London: Carroll & Nicholson, 1948), pp.5-6.
442. ibid., p.8.
443. ibid., pp.1-31.
444. ibid., p.11.
445. ibid., p.13.
446. ibid., pp.13-14.
447. ibid., p. 14.
448. idem., "Personality in Statesmanship (III)," South African Observer, Volume 1, No.1, December 1955, p.6.
449. idem., Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), p. 69.
450. ibid., pp.128-129.
451. idem., The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), p. 239.
452. idem., "Review of England and the Farmer, A:symposium, ed. H.J. Massingham (Batsford)," New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XIX, No. 26, October 16, 1941, p. 241.
453. idem., "Review of The Defence of Democracy, by John Middleton Murray, (Jonathan Cape)," New Pioneer, Volume 2, No.14, January 1940, p. 332.
454. idem, Enemies of Women. The Origins in outline of Anglo-Saxon Feminism (London: Carroll & Nicholson, 1948), pp.22-23.
455. ibid., p. 102.
456. idem., Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), p. 100.
457. ibid., p. 111.
458. ibid., p.112.
459. ibid., p. 113.
460. ibid., pp. 117-118.
461. ibid., p. 120.
462. ibid., pp.120-121.
463. Austen Harrison, "Woman Understood [Review of Woman, A Vindication, by Anthony Mario Ludovici]," English Review, Volume 37, (September 1923), p.339.
464. idem., "The New Anti-Feminism," English Review, Volume 38, (January 1924), p.84.
465. ibid., p. 86.
466. Hutchinson Publishing Co., "Review of Anthony Mario Ludovici's "Raw Virginity"," in Anthony Marío Ludovici; Too 01d for Dol1s, A nove1, (London: Hutchinson, [1920]), p. [296].
467. R.B. Kerr, Our Prophets $[$ Studies of Living Writers], (Croydon: R.B. Kerr, 1932), pp.91-92.
468. cf. Friedrich Nietzsche, Beyond Good and Evil, Prelude to a Philosophy of the Future, translated by Helen Zimmern, with an introduction by Thomas Common, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, (4th ed., 2nd impression; London: George Allen & Unwin, 1967), p. 187.
469. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Mansel Fellowes [A novel], (London:
Grant Richards, 1918), p.43.
470. ibid., pp.92-93.
471. ibid., p.94.
472. ibid., p. 106.
473. ibid., p. 107.
474. ibid., p. 150.
475. ibid., p. 162 .
476. ibid., p. 222.
477. ibid., p. 281.
478. idem., Too 01d for Do11s. A novel (London: Hutchinson, [1920]), p. 23.
479. ibid., p.24.
480. ibid., pp.24-25.
481. ibid., pp.25-26.
482. ibid., $\mathrm{p}, 79$.
483. ibid., p. 82.
484. ibid., p.94.
485. ibid., p. 106.
486. ibid., p. 107.
487. ibid., p. 122.
488. idem., What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, $[1921]$ ), pp.36-37.
489. ibid., p.59.
490. idem., The Goddess that Grew Up (London: Hutchinson, [1922]), pp.61-62.
491. ibid., p. 118 .
492. ibid., p. 186.
493. Anthony Mario Ludovici, French Beans (London; Hutchinson, [1923]), pp.10-11.
494. ibid., p.13.
495. ibid., p.14.
496. ibid., p. 15.
497. idem., Lysistrata; or, woman's future and future woman (London: Kegan Paul, [1924]), Pp.74-99.
498. ibid., p. 86.
499. ibid., p. 88.
500. ibid., p. 89.
501. ibid., p.93.
502. ibid., p.94.
503. ibid., pp:94-95.
504. idem., French Beans (London: Hutchinson, [1923]), p.16.
505. ibid., p.17.
506. ibid., pp.25-26.
507. ibid., p. 26.
508. ibid., p. 23.
509. ibid., p. 34.
510. ibid., p. 41 .
511. ibid., pp.42-43.
512. ibid., p.73.
513. ibid., p.74.
514. ibid., p. 91.
515. ibid., p. 95.
516. ibid., p. 109.
517. ibid., p. 115.
518. ibid., pp.122-123.
519. ibid., pp.173-174.
520. ibid., p. 180 .
521. ibid., pp.98-99.
522. ibid., pp.223-224.
523. Anthony Mario Ludovici, French Beans (London: Hutchinson, [1923]),p. 224.
524. ibid., p.262.
525. ibid., p. 288.
526. ibid., p. 291.
527. ibid., p. 298.
528. idem., The Taming of Don Juan (London: Hutchinson, [1924]),
pp. 17-18.
529. ibid., p. 35.
530. ibid., p. 36.
531. ibid., p.77.
532. ibid., p.78.
533. ibid., p. 86.
534. ibid., p. 143.
535. ibid., p. 302.
536. idem., "The Need of a Masculine Renaissance," English Review, Volume 37, (August 1923), p. 199.
537. idem., "The Folly of Feminine Franchise," English Review, Volume 37, (November 1923), p. 579.
538. idem., Woman, A Vindication (London: Constable, 1923), p.x.
539. ibid., p. 29.
540. ibid., p.35.
541. ibid., pp.35-36.
542. ibid., p. 61.
543. ibid., p. 66.
544. ibid., p. 161.
545. ibid., pp.301-302.
546. ibid., p. 306.
547. ibid., p. 361.
548. ibid., p. 362.
549. ibid., pp.365-366.
550. ibid., p. 367.
551. ibid., pp.367-368.
552. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Woman's Encroachment on Man's Domain," Current History, Volume 27, (October 1927), p. 22.
553. ibid., p. 23.
554. ibid., p.24.
555. idem., "The Enfranchisement of the Girl of Twenty-One," Eng1ish Review, Volume 44, (June 1927), p. 651.
556. ibid., p. 652.
557. ibid., p. 655.
558. idem., Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p.xiii.
559. ibid., p.72.
560. ibid., p.77.
561. ibid., p.89.
562. idem., The Choice of a Mate (London; John Lane, 1935), p. 78.
563. idem., The Future of Woman (London: Kegan Pau1, 1936), p. 135.
564. idem., "Thorstein Veblen [Review of Thorstein Veblen and this America, by Joseph Dor fman, (New York: Viking Press, 1940)"" New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XXVII, No.6, May 24, 1945, p.61。
565. idem., "Review of English Saga 1840-1940, by Arthur Bryant (Collins and Eyre and Spottiswoode), "New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XVII, No.23, March 27, 1941, pp.265-266.
566. idem., Enemies of Women. The Origins in outline of Anglo-Saxon Feminism (London: Carroll and Nicholson, 1948), p.32.
567. ibid., p.37.
568. ibid., pp.65-66.
569. ibid., pp.68-69.
570. ibid., p.73.
571. ibid., p. 138.
572. ibid., p. 140.
573. idem., The Child: an adult's problem (London: Carroll and Nicholson, 1948), p. 130 .
574. idem., "Woman's Contribution to Britain's National Decline (1)," South African Observer, Volume 1, No. 10, (February 1956), p.9.
575. ibid., p. 10 .
576. idem., "Woman's Contribution to Britain's National Decline (II)," South African Observer, Volume 1 s No. 11, (March 1956), p.11.
577. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Woman's Contribution to Britain's National Decline (II)," South African Obseryer, Volume 1, No. 11. (March 1956), p. $\overline{12}$.
578. ibid., p.13.
579. idem., "Woman's Contribution to Britain's National Decline (IV)," South African Observer, Volume II, No.1, (May 1956), pp.11-12.
580. idem., "Woman's Contribution to Britain's National Decline (V)," South African Observer, Volume 2, No. 2 , (June 1956), p. 12.
581. idem., 'Woman's Contribution to Britain's Nationa1 Decline (VI)," South African Observer, Volume 2, No.3, (July 1956), p.3.
582. idem., "Woman's Contribution to Britain's National Decline (IX)," South African Observer, Volume 2, No.6, (October 1956), p. 13 .
583. idem., "Woman's Contribution to Britain's National Decline (X)," South African Observer, Volume 2, No.7, (November 1956), p.13.
584. idem., "Education in Modern England (XIV)," South African Observer, Volume 6, No.10, (February 1961), $\bar{p} .12$.
585. idem, "The Conservative Programme: A Further Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series Volume 113, (Apri1 1923), p.612.
586. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber and Gwyer, 1927), pp.v-vi.
587. ibid., p. 61.
588. ibid., p. 62.
598. ibid., pp.62-63.
590. ibid., pp.63-64.
591. ibid., p. 65.
592. ibid.
593. ibid., p. 67.
594. ibid., p. 68.
595. ibid., p.71.
596. ibid., p.72.
597. ibid., p.73.
598. ibid., p. 132.
599. ibid., footnote to p. 132.
600. ibid., p. 135.
601. ibid., p. 261.
602. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Nietzsche and Art (London: Constable, 1911), p. 160.
603. idem., Too 01d for Do11s, A Novel (London: Hutchinson, $[1920]$ ), p. 157 .
604. ibid., pp.157-158.
605. ibid., p. 158.
606. idem., What Woman Wishes (Tondon: Hutchinson, [1921], pp, 133-134.
607. ibid., pp.166-167.
608. idem., The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921], p. 15 .
609. ibid., pp.16-17.
610. ibid., p.17.
611. ibid., pp.17-18.
612. ibid., p.18.
613. ibid., p.19.
614. ibid., p. 51.
615. ibid., pp.52-53.
616. ibid., p. 101.
617. ibid., p. 102.
618. ibid. , p. 106.
619. ibid., p. 108.
620. ibid., pp.108-109.
621. ibid., p. 116.
622. ibid., p. 117.
623. ibid., p.118.
624. ibid., p. 119.
625. ibid., p. 125.
626. ibid., p. 179
627. ibid., p. 183.
628. ibid., p.184.
629. idem., The Goddess that Grew Up (London: Hutchinson, [1922]), p. 255.
630. ibid., pp.255-256.
631. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "The Need of a Masculine Renaissance," English Review, Volume 37, (August 1923), p. 195.
632. ibid., pp.196-197.
633. ibid., p. 197.
634. ibid., p. 198.
635. idem., French Beans (London: Hutchinson, $[1923]$ ), p. 33.
636. ibid., pp.33-34.
637. ibid., p. 34.
638. idem., "Woman's Encroachment on Man's Domain," Current History, Volume 27, (October 1927), p. 23.
639. John Green, "Youth Speaks Out II - A Political Writer [Anthony Mario Ludovici]," National Review, Volume 103, (August 1934), p. 222 .
640. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Violence, Sacrifice and War (London: St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, [1933]), p,10-11.
641. ibid., p. 14.
642. ibid., p. 22.
643. idem., The Future of Woman (London: Kegan Paul, 1936), p.141.
644. idem., The Child: an adult's problem (London; Carroll and Nicholson, 1948), pp.15-16.
645. ibid., p. 39.
646. ibid., p. 41.
647. ibid., p. 47.
648. ibid., p.55.
649. idem., "Education in Modern England (IV)," South African Observer, Volume V, No.12, (April 1960), p. 12.
650. idem., The Specious Origins of Liberalism; the genesis of a delusion (London: Britons, 1967), p.172.
651. idem., "The Conservative Programe: A Further Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series, Volume 113, (April 1923), p. 606 .
652. ibid., p. 607.
653. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 111 .
654. ibid., p.113.
655. ibid., pp.113-114.
656. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Conservatism (London; Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p.114.
657. ibid., p.139.
658. ibid., pp.139-140.
659. ibid., p. 140 .
660. ibid., p.141.
661. ibid., p. 143.
662. ibid., p. 144
663. ibid., pp.144-145.
664. ibid., pp.145-146.
665. ibid., p. 147.
666. ibid., p.156.
667. ibid., p. 230.
668. ibid., p. 239.
669. idem., The Specious Origins of Liberalism; the genesis of a delusion (London: Britons, 1967); quoted in Rodney Barker, Politica1 Ideas in Modern Britain, (London: Methuen, 1978), pp.200-201.

670:. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921]), p.28.
671. ibid., p.32.
672. ibid., pp.33-34.
673. ibid., p. 34.
674. ibid., p. 35.
675. ibid., pp.35-36.
676. ibid., p.36.
677. ibid., p.37.
678. ibid., pp.37-38.
679. idem., Lysistrata; or, woman's future and future woman (London: Kegan Paul, [1924]), p. 105.
680. idem., Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p.223.
681. ibid., p. 230.
682. ibid., p. 341.
683. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Sanctity of Private Property (London: Heath Cranton, 1932), pp.35-36.
684. ibid., p. 31.
685. ibid., pp.32-33.
686. idem., Some Reasons for Fear, English Mistery Leaflet No. 3 , 1936, p.11.
687. idem., The Four Pillars of Health. A contribution to postwar planning (London: Heath Cranton, 1945), p.11.
688. idem., "Subsidised Sloth and Subnormality in the Socialist State," South African Observer, Volume V, No.8., (December 1959), p.13.
689. idem., "The Essentials of Good Government (VI)," South African Observer, Volume IX, No.9, (April 1964), p.15.
690. idem., "Public Opinion in England (XVI)," South African Observer, Volume XII, No.5, (February 1967), p.5.
691. idem.; The Specious Origins of Liberalism; the genesis of a delusion (London:Britons, 1967), pp.171-172.
692. ibid., p. 175 .
693. ibid., p. 177.
694. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories :
(London: Constable, 1915), pp.viii-ix.
695. ibid., p. 241.
696. idem., "The Conservative Programme - A Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series, Volume 111, (June 1922), pp. $954-\overline{955,}$
697. ibid., p. 955.
698. ibid., pp.955-956.
699. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), pp. 10-11.
700. ibid., p. 22 .
701. ibid., p.21.
702. ibid., p. 27.
703. ibid., p. 32 .
704. ibid., p. 69.
705. ibid., p. 71.
706. ibid., pp.72-73.
707. ibid., p. 157.
708. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 200.
709. idem., "Mr. Chesterton and Anarchy," Letter to the New Age, Volume XI, No.7, June 13, 1912, p. 167.
710. idem., Who is to be Master of the World? An introduction to the philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche, with introduction by Dr. Oscar Levy, (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909), p. 170 .
711. idem., Nietzsche: his life and works, preface by Dr. Oscar Levy, (London: Constable, 1910), p.80.
712. The Times; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Woman"s Encroachment on Man's Domain," Current History, Volume 27, (October 1927), p. 25.
713. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p. 181.
714. Friedrich Nietzsche, no source given; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Hitler and Nietzsche," Eng1ish Review, Volume LXIV, No. 1, January 1937, p. 51.
715. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 52.
716. idem., "Review of The Defence of Democracy, by John Middleton Murray (Jonathan Cape)," New Pioneer, Volume II, No. 14 , January 1940, p.331.
717. idem., Enemies of Women. The origins in outline of AngloSaxon Feminism (London: Carroll and Nicholson, 1948), p.138.
718. Dr. Antonio de oliveira Salazar, no source given; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Quest of Human Quality, How to rear leaders (London; Rider, 1952), p.30.
719. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 36.
720. ibid., p. 36 ff .
721. ibid., pp.46-47.
722. ibid., p.48.
723. ibid.s p.50.
724. idem., "Persona1ity and Statesmanship (IV)," South African Observer, Volume 1 , No. 9 , (January 1956), p.14.
725. idem., "The False Assumptions of Democracy (XII)," South African Observer, Volume III, No.7, (November 1957), p.15.
726. idem., "Feelings Masquerading as Thoughts in the Modern World (I)," South African Observer, Volume VIII, No.9., (April 1963), p. 9.
727. idem., "The Essentials of Good Government (XI)," South African Observer, Volume $X$, No,2, (September 1964), p.13.
728. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Public Opinion in England (XII)," South African Observer, Volume XI, No. 12 (August 1966), p.13.
729. idem., The Specious Origins of Liberalism: the genesis of a delusion (London: Britons, 1967), p.13.
730. ibid., p.92.
731. idem., "The False Assumptions of Democracy (III)," South African Observer, Volume II, No.10, February 1957, p.10.
732. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), pp.77-102.
733. ibid., p.78.
734. ibid., pp.78-79.
735. ibid., p.79.
736. idem., "In Defence of Conservatism," Seuth African Observer, Volume 1, No.2, June 1955, p. 6.
737. idem., "Review of The Mastery of Life, by G.T. Wrench (Stephen Swift), New Age, Volume XI, No.5, May 30, 1912, p. 112.
738. Friedrich Nietzsche, Beyond Good and Evil. Prelude to a Philosophy of the Future, translated by Helen Zimmern, with an introduction by Thomas Common, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, (4th ed., 2nd impression; London: George Allen and Unwin, 1967), p.84.
739. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Translator's Introduction," to Friedrich Nietzsche, Ecce Homo, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols., (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1911), Volume XVII: p.viii.
740. idem., Too 01d For Do11s, A nove1 (London: Hutchinson,
p.115.
741. idem., The Child: an adult's problem (London: Carro11 and Nicholson, 1948), p.190.
742. idem., The Quest of Human Quality, How to rear leaders (London: Rider, 1952), p. 56.
743. ibid., p. 68.
744. idem., "The False Assumptions of Democracy (X)," South African Observer, Volume III, No.5, (September 1957), p. 14.
745. idem., "The Essentials of Good Government (X)," South African Observer, Volume X, No.1, (August 1964), p.13.
746. idem. ; The Specious Origins of Liberalism; the genesis of a delusion (London; Britons, 1967), p.38.
747. ibid., p.47.
748. ibid., p.97.

Re Rovo minn

 with tho loged oymen and englod corroctivon. Such refoma had degenoroto and yot posbese日 the neans for han recencration. bevors

 $8 t 20$ mot in uoncsion nctore to bo invontavo or to moto exoct thoro io an oxtomettro to the dogonombinon doverthod in tho

 Easken [iotorya wheh bo so adrocosiaco To oupooste that tho word conturlong whon thoy woro pure brod, eorld bo colloctod towether zoar the nound inotinetivo ogusment ros compot and rolieble buman oondues that fano hed notyot come ludovici then quentionod the tho

 2880608ys

> -ootho diaxugtion of clanozos antiquidy yon 0no. The downcill in assopp of noxthow outatde Husoge ve lan: Shot Confuctun nomo at o horcons of arovo dicuordor in Chane whan tho old foudes gondstiono rore brontine un and tho fobos. too mpeocroid ot junt buch o moment in tho blotory of be seco, and no doult ombsod 0 socorino 15

 of a weth vale

 Gy whele o bubjoot pooplo cen rid thomeodoon of sestojons mutera whoco gusdence won dogeroratedo?

 bus of alocornmom in chargor ro clovotod boyend stb populor and ozotoric omancitionsp wad mast

Thonoconconto

 cbovo edi with the meintonanco of bin nation ${ }^{\circ}$ g paycheophysiced were so be concoxvods

-. $\mathrm{PO}_{0}$ over sinco tho dem of thoir orshotonceg baek th the 97 th combury, thoy hevo not ondy conotartly diefioultion by not ovon eerdne obout the payehow and rolicion ahove ing groordinoted to thot one. ${ }^{32}$

 O&

 a bottor gonozethon of nem. so modexn manstad 30 too domemerbio to Exeklo tho probleng thet vuscound it getionoctomily the reorgandection

 prockeai and porioctly poonzio solution capaio of coxetn furilnont."39

 280,

 thoy wore too opotwo to pwher Ehent obout on osd and some negotide when offoot. foreo whuld bo at hema and ha 0 poostion to $20 \xi_{0}$ boo not 200 ony or Revere ln tho yone 4004 .

 they oen tstin the clacety of Southemore thet thio whth a fotcen it must conosit of astrong party wholoneo, blow fow blow and whet wea the reoult?
 2lact. 59
 rococh

 Go 2octime

[^7]

 nothan ono ony wetbers ene that cetione ono

 3154009 yous 608 tho ${ }^{100}(0)$ poyideco ary diotinction betwoon tho dolibozetyo an activo ordo

Tatsoductions

$$
\begin{aligned}
& 000 \text { Tho ore Eumtemser relsor thet it to noscthlo to buvo o } \end{aligned}
$$

to bo rococradoed cor whet it 10 o that 30 moscly o

 Bollovod thes th our witcl sunctsonc wo ero zofther moro now loon than and who kad not tho nows to do 50 gonle obtala fron the coverneat popescitas condsucans

The notube to tho bumsego omtanet wo doos of tho conom crousd botroca thom wos Andiontod by tho sumbinge

 O62

 w

[^8]

 cervoctod 0 sobura to prosmocretic valugo whicho by bonno dogonoregys

 Sox moxble or abnoxand ardotonces and to propered to percour tho 2attor frroapocityo of tho cont to tho nound wheh tho shise Roden bad tennovaluod:
un modicci coreixicato is a conartiton of axy maxrioge"o owd IJHobrochoo "endorood by tho oddroesed to the partion and two modicos ofsheopn masis bo ancrorod (comily hiotordoo) on and he medo tho donend fors sho mazepgeo of tino futuro
Gha har olroady bon roeitoed nosiolabiyolyo 0000 in modora Corinomyo 94

[^9]

 cocoothan ceoos ondy 2fconsumated with a pooplo thooo will and

OR Conasyyeblomo dudovici auyb congorvetian is dooizoble beceuro 14 In only in 0 getalo onvizomont thot tho olo:g :oze of hozodity or artiflcieliy ancloood aroon 3iko robonotomin. Ghing ad rermo that croot pooplos and gront costuros bevo tonded to ariveo parity bobouoc of the groctest cbilety of environmont thet ean bo cocurod conduoton or mixture of rece日 requires juse puch an onvironmont as those countrion texo eble to provido for mony nentuxions

- © Constant chango, and intcreorenco from otrongors tho habituotion to oimilas cireunetanceng whets ia umbaly accompanied by on cbocnce of mized bzoeding with Ioreignore, beeros precisely the requibite conditlons for the formettion of an orfcinal and pororful notional outlook and toaperamont.

Above all. theso conditions creato a etrong tendency toverda becauge thoy hed becn loast dobeuched by miecogonation: io6 it woo Ampoosible to oongorvo the identity of the English nation if Jews wero allovod to modify ito inotitutions and blood:

> - . Truo Gonservatives, thezefore ghould advaýs show thomolver firmly hootile to (a) the pxinetple of Joulish oncocipetion which oneblec tho Jow ultimatoly to influenco our notionsl polielics and our cultures and (b) to any onsourcagmont of e mingling of the two peopledo Jews and whe $14 h_{0}$ sheough nexrsiego. 107 ingland ${ }^{\circ}$ ohernotorg culturo and inctitutiono could not bo conservod oscopt by concoxplue ito othnde typoo rodozvol ingland wes tzuly consorvetive in ita ottitude to the Joth by nover ancouresing thom to sottle, and in 1290 , altogethor expelilnp thom. By ozoluding tho foroica ${ }^{T}$ conoompetyon sould bo aetine ta accose with the tax

 Qteontion ohould Do nolieqted nad drem to tho poeribility and uscont mecoundty of onoroachung the incilish nopulation "problen" from tho guelithtivo otandpolst. Comoorvotivo mosouson ahould aim ot probect oxiating dotnd and nomm atock from the chonee of poliuthon and dotoxiozetion threwh pigellinnceg and combeot with docedent or poldutod ofonontr in tho pomistotions miohs mbino buey we not acuto onourin to find thexy why into asylumo asd howns noverthedono connettuto it three to tho wece 45 allowed to multwiys and 4 thight even be necessaxy to Inorooso for one ox tyo genemathonc the oxyenditure on mbisic aspistarits, iss ozer to iboiate aud cerreceto lanfe numbere of meople certiciod to bo holswitutod or tainted ulth noun lind or horeditexy oidment, oitrax of the oyon. come or fonomed consty tutdon which woct meiso tho mbopogotion of their kind maleotreble. 11 conocruing tho dandy of of tho Gomen poonle tho intex mosedofo of whombremy som argand who ano or a moro sobubt bertyo 106

 the aritel at the expense of the nen". ${ }^{110}$ Zudoviad tolle wo that

 Gedaingly had not berriea through love', as they lnow of the assastrous conseguoncos of cemrlagesconsummated by love 120

Iulovici 's novel of 1922, The Goddess that frev In, ta an olaboration of his ideal of incestuous wating, (ircunstancos had choked in Ieter Olivar, tho fuls and natural expression of marital devotion. The ill-hemith of bis wife, wad, had blifted bis maried life. As he wes a low-abiang nan, the cmotions which eloo would have found theis vent in the exporiences of odult pacsion had tumed with preternatupal foree in the nevitable direction of hio daughter, Basilia. ${ }^{q} 21$ Even as a maturine schoolgirl, though Sasilila oliver was not a shining, lieht of lecrning and industry, ass a personality, os the exanple of a "deairable kind of life", and for comeliness and Erace, the hosumea a natural jead. ${ }^{122}$ Ghe was thitrac ied to the vibul Roger lambie, whose young oyos vero alredy lambent with 'fire'. Re promised life, but Roter 0iver teralnated the selationship. ${ }^{123}$ Beter Oliver observed the unmistalkable sirne of onconing womantibod in his daughter. They filled bim oith fear and anounced to hin a tem to his life. ${ }^{124}$ rater in tho novel. Bagilia is nowerfuly attracted to the vigorous and elemental re. Gyril Bashfield Btrceter:

[^10]
 conbution 80380300.825

 93500 cas

 conime zedianco. 038

2020 6

 o38ingotoda 939

[^11]

万o

eginion 0

Gombengurnoch wheado do bie thac breocomo

[^12]

 ent

 cugure smonio

```
soolobed vonme0.:70
```

 50gomorotion thet wo norooodso

To rao Bollo or tom are vemon

 and 608.800

 Sacaco

 p0008580.00 093

 82 203

```
000000000000000000000000000000000000000
```

```
wollm"o wor lowe to wold omalyou
Ta onecreasmse baxdm at labis
```

```
omorod whon omplondrandyendby. hoyoormod.-.
```

```
O Rovive of comycothon coon to tw wemo o.
```

```
O& Ber digno
```

 Dlenyosina - that ta to noy tho man thea IT belbovo to wavo boca tho orsemel or tho goe postreyod in blo inomo A windsontion of 1923o filo thonis ta the indodsbly on hor bodyo to celatevo two petnesy adoptationn os thet fromereod as Vown obviousiy 100 un to how blouddoses in tho buaineas of inso and 260 masiplicetsons lot it bo acid plainly and unoguivocesty 0 d thero whe boch hoz thert cay oblar unolncos 10 hor businobo ail thome tho In frea of the Q3en ma of nodoze preblomo

 30 בumasy a macocatozs

 Soto on a phoctebor to posns to the paino the the dionode and tio poroxty thet lenk the mesn tho why toll wee whet ovorybody oluc 80010 o

 Glotice

 as work outole the home whould wo oreluoivoly rocosvod 80 mosso modern noexotyo manosch aracooto thot thoy axo too bital to bo

 by Eona

Tho onis admerabio botution yiou $ra tix disoctions mot ox chencing nomen - torit voude bo gusodial to tho opoctos o but in Inditing hoz
 Po zodorlnodo Res ophore move bo ozeo occin oonimxtod rma olrouncoribod, $2 x$ hor plsci cnd

 ingo Ewn obyoces

 actionc. 85 oho resloctod it vould proouppoco incetiono Chly how cantional acpeasty io copable of disecting tho uncollecting forinc of cetton thet tho demanda of hiso inpose upon howo "A aistrese of Goolincg theroforo, wo cannot oxpect hor to bo 50 porfoct ot Lndicoriminetely puspueo ise and ito multhplicetron at ell conts. 253 to the survivol of o vost nutibor of uncoolrablo hunon boinge. nethowh dogenoration ${ }^{25 A}$ thuo thomen mude be restorod to the chargo of mon. 255

Ludovici reelsonce wonco ohonid not bo onfronehibod bockuco ao the 020802805323060304000

abruacetyo 20

 $6028 y$ nocount.620bor 265

 courao of ovolution oncia aos had ovolved inotincto onotiono and montel povercs rolotod to the ithad of 14 te that it vould beve bo load 257 Th

 $10 n t 2060$ and to lood $2 m$ ovosymbise 269

domone xpon tiono 24

ED E00

inco otop utin hio fornorong neriela and into hexnomy with bio omonemos disco. 2ht not bo of healthy mothoni ${ }^{206}$ Iudovied odvoceted roaderine ciborthon

 80 上uns odreneo man bottomoped turned to practical use, or remembered, which came into daily use throughoutlife

 20cacatoro

-oober tackith of thote oyo th tho coothotien of tho nocsisteods neweho tho bonorsto of whtoh cuot haovitebly coneluco

 rinolo ond doosmino33 son coremat riwn ${ }^{20}$

 0 Wwanc. 200

 ORo:

 - unvourcy and scectontion

[^13]tho ontondond fobgendeo os to demoz? d cons yon omderand by tixo matrot bnopoctor at a rooswenio 80 m 3 tho ando of mbly monty od ovo the giviurol.

 owne clscon wamon

 coosthy supulioo

 sollgion bonod upon a percoptlow of tho pouos bohind phomezonal exood

 Cespotan noolse

3. Fnomavolisan Resisom

 In Suropo on tho relotlon of pollelen to peiveto nosility has bocs nocsers

 nnocreatablos

 Contortides

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { ooothothot thoy axo in Pooping with tho ebomat }
\end{aligned}
$$

blona bocm to nutt tho ong gangios os manarodo of nedora biscojechnod Dencen。39/

```
comstuathen or twmen movoo to nutalt to
```

 Saty

 naturel Iowe wheh agetcusture ontokn upon thoco oncaced in ito tho nollused jodo. tuborevionid dong not giods

 Rho

 cho moducon 2 nogurditson contrento are divozgent

 Hovan that bisio hloreo cosoluoson wao furned tpon inuzos

 Gbo tosivedo Bea to troopman onooothto vCD dao ho wis biout to do tho gave wanc fox bibiel a so020mo 427

 Motwor tho neot pownotes

 ro1108.429

- ancon tho Inerve acsulvora to tho coty tho comwent hud tha ottomg tre? tho onamplaro

Objoctb or haoge cocte voce thon Raviosble to tho nove themsu2ven ofr no taryeg feavoge

4. 13203

留

 Netunoretno 249

 Crativaraidrata 400
onvio $1 t$ to bo loved by teo lanceratg whough procadely tivu bexdongy bo obrtared movaituy und raxom on biry abuntry abs 2006?

 smodicto Bonction or on cisto

 Boliopo that mon azo ogualo and advocetod the prectico of dollwanto

Consectlan as opoohs a pewty a nation on two

 G.

 do orberanelo

 nownex by tho nernoors

 Materath

[^14]

 wntion to cll elaccos of tyo notione 496

 no onntreinto Jomal or othomioe cospite the inmono dirficulty of tho gtrangioc

 201中mar of cuotma tro oe the 1 oos resteray Sotaron of tho watag combuys

```
wawtesotic yol3cyo5ez
```

 Whtoliod tho roon monemoos

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { ood. }
\end{aligned}
$$

Th 施 gloctu:0.

 Somanae theo ont somdto suiodio.

 If I faon of e wey by which ting mition mate coudt ho bevod. do you buppose wasi I snovid di we ond on the nurber on voctox intorectos would bo disticult to fulizil tox tho nownopoxe and public modio are controlled by tho seso "routori abozote" whed eciamon nuliticel lond acolourable varment to tho othomico cbsurd propocale of noctelinta the Sollowitg Grocting the cot of Invitins tho peolotardet to ongro to onglewoo

 to tivo ct nemoowe tioch nom mest bo $100_{0}$ thoy sndustelal coctotyo govomod by moncyod intocoutir 20 oould not risorous for tho toroctho mong the rich and wollotoodo on Tor the clews pooplos

"Cogencrator ingtead of tolng eppliod to tho typo comoreo and induetry aro brocdingo io oonotantly robust to onduxe tho efr sthat in broethod in officon dasly contcot with tho Dpponito aor unthort nubile obligethons than ony medtely elam theno had ovor boong only

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { ORSDOS }
\end{aligned}
$$

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \therefore \text { abo cid }
\end{aligned}
$$

 rooealimingo 533

20 poumeo

```
hugetem twebyo in tho wholo ow tho ?oboum mad
```

```
0mand.0.4
```

 commentom tho inovitable rocestan to thic divorce of dity whewoso of the cattont to whek thoy had boen bubjoctod to Jowith or moderm canitcilan to comanaums

[^15]

 EO undion

2monmadeovo

[^16]

 2000303

C. Cotastemingion

 8012000.59

 012 exnown to profor

 concedeczos

 ar mate dowito the realto of his revolution to ondure and at that recurcing throughout hiotory of tro tevoluthoncy tho ultinately a blizo of pextyy ought to bo opposod to Concorvetivo only es a sien pooltion of thooe tho sax frois being nozoly oppood to chenga, wioh prumo themos 990 Eudovics proceodo to odvoctito a modoxn fouded and tho kirys at thons boed, were porfoctly red awomo

 Goxinu

Whoso io oniy orn kind of eroodom that een bo roclicodg and thet lo tho froedon to orohame a bondego conpatiblo witho out atsonfertbe7 smpluoc for a bondago they harmonigen uith then.

 tho ecreloos. to docso wh should and showle not livo but to tho oximilodox and abnomanityo should be deatroyod and with on anaxche

Samisico and yor, Iudoviel aryegtod thet bxtherto tho ineidonco of ohatge arong the population. for advocted an are of selective at lecst et homo wowld be the object of much honorse and publig pasieo and socemstiono and just an tho necobsexy so to thein doom and public cembondora

 Gevon mith cany 6.3

 and ooctoty cocordac to the deerco of potomel sox consorvetion

 amotrocrevion。

 "onogneto froedon and asgasty to tho zndividurso and to provido for tho adoquato dovelogemt of chosectozo 642 zasovidedo donidorate vors

```
to tho m, fomity theoo vozy bonovition whioh om the
```

```
omombhtp as tw incusoutromo
```

 on poogzo 6 .

 proventy

 of veivon ${ }^{\circ}$ aluoumro $0^{6 y}$

 thoy wow whobly treonponesblo and 880 not ancuor fox whe thotr

 (tho tes rototixas to tha Thhordtence of Endod Jigoperity) whion

 Ghem that ho gousd koeg his imd in a propos ototo. dudovici bowher and uold in tiso ofen manleto 656 orgeniood on the principlo of mandity and the reoondtion of the of urgont emotructamoli nolvego achonoo.

 $\operatorname{cosen} 2 \pi 3$ cooth ic on? whon ohoon will have outpneed our ofronte to intocreto tho nation and to dive it os gingle will to no itsens is ordoz that an inczuctendo necocijity. 659 boomo mo whth tho poongo and hat wogn to gocialise then, the Geithre and ofrisiontion cano to $110_{0}^{662}$ biner the guidenco of

 Bo bhess
 owado hy thon Iondoze into o notion phow doprecened ath the many roctures of o betlum contre, raos, chat hois bhey honers to mitse place and function in guedety and thexerose e coribeln dignity axising ustuations

Avovo $02 \%_{0}$ curas to hic [tae whasoblo ] the felanedo wero. Sowventacidn played the como of thoir lives in the rett:odo no caploys wo got box. 649

 cremos of the nm. 6 me

```
woren mast hevo found fict tho ftcitionsty 2890
```

 406m;90

 tho nomplex olenonto of tho nestron [Ehouse oondstion peovetixne ompockaly in tho muzkot an*

```
Do 00chode 'i Do0 the dop ogma's whte trovituoto food conditions of the country! 706 dobatimg noclosy by procloimine thei berox amellpor vaceination elthough thougands dicd thone who memainod vero ablo to itve with thoir conntitationc unimpelrud arad uncontaminated. Oniy e Eow Horking mexn ot tho bock of the villaco holto opploudod hime whetot Canon Torcenco who fire hruck oppowod thought ho hed add tho pogt peoplo'
```

- od Wh know to what ertont modern deblility the goneral lack of robust hoelth $=I$ do not opoalt or netual digeose and lilneac obut tre coneral absence of bowyant, wanton hoelth and vigour, mey not be due pertly to tho repeeted poisonding in emall doseg of ovory Eeneretion of bapêe日 26 they argives 707

The quotod a pabarge Exom Hozbort Gpencor to the effoct tint tho propogetion of aubdued corme of conotitutional diceeno through Faccination bed becn dyaconic. The audience was avon more shockod whon ho $x$ rantily otetod that tho roduction of costalition from omolipors veccinatione vould loves tho vitcy rondotanco of the reco to diveado. 708 It novos occurrod to thom onpecialdy doctoss that whet veo noedod was a rulo or Iffe and a donotitution that could dinponso rith modictno aserother? 709

227nobo:

-ootho Lusaxious and 3ntweeto pentilontialmoch of tho offocts dile tho operont rame iod frove' 2to intsudias wondritrs bato avory noole mu oxemmyo zoqusto to bo witulons so cehlowo thin ond 36 moodo from cay to deyo without reaplto, uithout anc intoreolo momed nollobodngo of atcany ottrithoa verch day by doy vocra dom aty nymothyp nis emperty fox intereot and compencion thois exndumly doyolopo the influcnce of a oommpesne onvironmontoll 71 thet concurption 40 coupod by otthor tho inoblitity of the alpontaxy cenel to acolnilato tho foode neconexy sor the bodyo or cloo it heo not bocn eivon this vital food in auficiont quantity or qualityo Lio osplonntion for the higa invidonco of tuborculooin in guener in the Lettor ${ }^{73}$ ond an comy reovei lat tho cornoction of the orgos in your body a sod 1000 d by plonty of rood Sood and tha ultimmo docpomito cey os "pors from yous formpo 0718 manstetel Gonconvetivo ecndideto goz tho nowhom divicion of Thux cryy ${ }^{0}$ Gilborit osxinotnod ${ }^{\circ}$ hes got to be Five ioed for the leondos and tho bubimorntor of all froudaliont advortiocmonto which leod tho and induotales roodo thet are efther wombhione ow ploir thet ous onjootlve 20 the thprevoment of tho nettonel piayblauo onot by tho doubeful and ermonoive method of ingroaging the numbor of doctore ore by plecine; houth mithan the reach of aiso on tho

 1921. It bxomo from a cobato besd at tho boneme Glub in tondon on anovomber 304999 to which indovici wes invitod in order so oppooc tho Bishop of :1plondeng who wes to onvoceto the pronsbetion of elcohol
 Sho nyth polmto to tromotwousp thert of firo as havin; beon o thort of fito yeduction nity botod and neutrentinod. inomothous vero eogent rongons for believing that the rint to foteh firo from civont of the Levtoutan theob, two Gotholic Ghasela rolezod tho

 Socona, whon at tho battlo of tho berac da toxld fise I tho food for 038250808000

```
Lox's thooo who mo otall robnet swe bocthiby
```

```
whet \(x\) monno 730
```

 ono with mothoro 732 Dignyniua weu bro sunvelion doity of tho producitve invicosetingo orerfloting and intoricetins, power of wore the adroet romit of the poiponing of tho onco preso old alo thot mado sheland whet oho wa wer gonith ha tho axteonth cxino byoccasioningef the cootsme of sood wab tho anuso of appailing tribuletione fow the wom of tho encootore of the chestont creeth, tesumbed ivo fonder tho women wore bo gratifleds no wonder they wero ofvilinetion on to ento 1180 mot ondy pocelblo. bat also joytal and Vigouroug ${ }^{746}$ sudovies thourtat those was a vital meanings in the Grooflagnon's ropronentotion of momon with child. thoy were proo

 (weokn to bo deand with who. ${ }^{30}$ shet bondan tho doofroblity of lusto motherhood. zoprocuction and foxtilliy. "cood mane rofer to zovavance for tho body and a proposceadon in revour of health and prejudico ocimot bickneons

Wo alco coll good the loathing of velinoons and tho deasro to gupuroog iti so thozotoro cpprevo of deep nubpicion towares whlized and 212 nob . and toman evorythene and eweryhody theit ottongts to divo welinose and lilnoes sho sovadeng and ouphemitutle nomo.

To collo "bed" tho rlacing of oxevaco on oxtchuatran cirounstancob should be recorded with repugnaneo? ${ }^{51}$ Tho momont phyobolocicel acronity coen and a function cobers to bo a pleasuro tho veluo of

- a bocmued having mactorod ous bodion mad nolvod wo mhell no longor bo in tho dicflcult dilomma of borealo who with nogloced end medy Emetionine playaieuoc. thy to anticipato born on carth tho rwo dijoct of rodeos roconcol ohould revo boon to moko modieino funcotunise,

oonmo mapor mocoduro would obvioucly bo to diononco zoodncuto tho sout ty orgas o whethor it wes on ofo

 Sntroduced into the modem womed wion in thenpenons sron the rooulto echicvod thet te th gefe to loeve theoc problowe eroeted by ehenge to blind ovolutionosy peococcon so nolvo. 767 Givilinetion Antroduced

 Onsy when otviltrod men matos thoncolven by corroct phynten
 An onhencement of conores tono and vigoux to tho only ronedy for neurosie and prychoses $7^{70}$ 3ut, tho corroct uno of sols in not a

a. . For while it holas out viatea of the hatebto to which a man can obtein if only ho angeo hithetr and concentraterio st a300 oapoon han so hingole an a creature no mbentheast dreoter whento. so ouseationg tho then? of tas moongelous thes 1t conetituzen tho neveront woblo that oculd ponsibly bo odghandorod to bis metde. !umough it once separetod hen tren tho bower hno dentel ceac.
 thone its catbing worc than ryeoch oloze that abthopogan os oven tro boegta of tho tholde forcos of tin oxemed to thene of tho dubudo yozid. bat it when the vitnaty in ovory pont etory dey for this obuotert. 774

 A vital bodily cunotion puoh an ohs1d-bleth should bo pleasumablo ${ }^{781}$ ou Ludovici believod it wos arong primitive wonen? ${ }^{73}$ Fo thought latont Ty Soulty vodily coordinotion, the nowal and neturel relations of and tho nownd of tho nood fore cotion 980 and hod nedo an wrocraon in gmonncions my honorogion fon whonsingins nitumats to aronoman hamele or wn doably an Fones tho ooobswerty and anmaty on tho nerteran notion.

 cingo oo 2 it almayo woul 93

 wollo aso not ungetuscily elngiod out on tho exueo of tho fonosol dyctandus 03 certelindy of thone tho happent fo stond birh and dxy ebove the moro dntolerable eonditions impobed by themsoivon onto a body whick can bo txathrully cealgretod ot locot a part ounco of tho troublo. It is obvious that thia 20 ordy o hesfotrath. 799 beeauco of tho diesiculty of polocting anyone foz bentomont is the did not refuto 600 Imdovicl ath19 bolloved nontol and phyolocl heelth doponded or reciel purity ${ }^{801}$ Fowever 00 tho errondont randonsoroeding in tho nodorn worid, tho miring of wholly defforcnt types and gtocke within the deme poople or netiong ven regardod with conploto oquentrity, Judovich thought it would bo mivo otrasing of who axo not hozoditasidy truo molishmos, auch as tho Joun. Bonideso es orthodors modicino and gonothon did not aproctoto the ortant to unolvod ond bo left to tho teote of the individuel in ofthor comunity ${ }^{13}$ zadovicis nt hio mont tolexanto thought oniy the cocsicl

Cteberonto and witu thin be gonclucocs ber bolioved eoplonilomo

 If tho Jots dat not ootelo cluomoro, mich Tudowed prosorrod, thoy the eocednat particulaxiot custuro voluon thet oro indopendent of vealth. ${ }^{305}$

Whey [the Jows] juas be Aully prepriod to toko bovore neosureo agahet thooso individuelo in thoir oum people who, willy-nisly, rosuse to ehendon those tantinots and gifte which havo ardo tho so cainently succesoful in particulariot docietioc a the instinct to nako privato property a wholisy private and unrelatod phenomenon, the instinct to dxive a haxd bargain with the denorint and noedys the inotinet to dincover there meed in prencing in ordcr to turn it to personel proftt: the dmpuloe eren to eroato nueh a nood whore none exinto and to rorobtcill is needy purchaner, ane, above oll, the denorgite shroudnens to thontify thonnelvee with the mon-Joush olomovioza for ilberty, mon all thio liborby may coen io the cobsence of wico hindrencen to the zuthloon and oubonatic action of cometdition or aupply and decaen. $60 \%$

The Jou who aceepted the abovo ahould bo propared to banteh thowe who Qo not. Only thon tudoviol boliovedy oould the Jowlah 'problem' bo solvod. 80 the latter in the closest sudovich over camo to ropudiating Gascisag but it otill bears ite manatakablo braitac. Soricos, is voc probobly gronptod by expedioncy. Dio lanonted. in Cotober 1957s that tho anticdemocracy of both the fosciot nations and tho Begish 'right' auffiood fox thele completo sdontity to bo absumed by the Stote) and above ally of the erover of the gonomel public outade. ${ }^{\circ}$
 'ryche ho vec subjooted not onty to nuppl chon but "many indscaitmon

 Grozything the happoned and evorythang ho road in tho intervel had Onches only to pozuce the renemben muber of articlos which he botoro hia docth et tho apo or efohymine to appectato the [^17]

a follod ana Throufhout hia lifetimo ludovici wers olthor dinniosed influonco tro britioh public and blaned it on tho contros of maon comuncetions by tho Eatobliohnonts to onfintion the weition Eublic about the pitrasio io whein theis lagh of poychologicas inodent comotrutly osposion thomo and I may bseliy clatn the I havo provebly het more axdeleo asd lottoze

 Ghestendowo wor nothing o aboolutoly nowhers to over oilzowod to reech tho eyeo or the Imsters Fable that tho Boteldoment think vorla mot

bo cood sox thoms
In hopod the tho would of loede bo brodtad my a nozo onlighonod and cmancipotod pontorlity uith having ainclo hendod and againot

 $0 z_{0}$ to $2060_{0}$ by pootorityo politicel afPlizecc. Ti will bo mointained that thoyo liko Budovicio comentrusable wibl seocson.

1. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy, A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p.viii.
2. ibid., p.87.
3. ibid., pp.95-96.
4. idem., Lysistrate; or, woman's future and future woman (London: Kegan Paul, [1924]), p.96.
5. ibid., p.97.
6. ibid., p. 101.
7. idem., Recovery. The quest of regenerate national values (London: St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, 1935), p.11.
8. ibid., p.12.
9. ibid., p.13.
10. ibid., p.16.
11. ibid., pp. 17-18.
12. ibid., p.18.
13. ibid., p. 20.
14. ibid.
15. ibid., p. 21.
16. ibid., p. 22.
17. ibid., p. 24.
18. ibid., p. 25.
19. ibid., p. 27.
20. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p.430ff.
21. ibid., p. 254.
22. ibid., p. 266.
23. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p.v.
24. ibid., p.vi.
25. ibid., p.6.
26. ibid., p. 12 .
27. ibid., p.14.
28. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "In Defence of Conservatism," South African Observer, Volume 1, No.2, June 1955, p.5.
29. ibid., p.6.
30. idem., "Translator's Preface," to Friedrich Nietzsche, The Will to Power, Book III and IV, in The Complete Works of Friedich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols., (Edinburgh and London): T.N. Foulis, 1909), Volume XV: p.xviii.
31. ibid., p.xiv.
32. idem., Who is to be Master of the World? An introduction to the philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche with introduction by Dr, Oscar Levy, (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909), pp. 98-99.
33. idem., The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921]), p. 216 .
34. ibid., p. 199.
35. ibid., pp.201-202.
36. idem., Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against probilition (London: William Heinemann, 1921), p.238.
37. ibid., p. 247.
38. idem., Man:san indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p.358.
39. ibid., p. 359.
40. idem., The Night-Hoers; or, the case against birth-control, and an alternative (London: Herbert Jenkins, 1928)., p. 256.
41. idem., Recovery. The quest of regenerate national values (London: St. James's Kin of the Eng1ish Mistery, 1935), P.4.
42. ibid., p.5.
43. ibid., p.6.
44. ibid., p.8.
45. idem., The Future of Woman (London: Kagan Paul, 1936), p.141.
46. idem., The Quest of Human Quality. How to rear leaders (London: Rider, 1952), p. 207.
47. idem., Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), p. 78.
48. idem., "Review of The Fascist Movement in Italian Life, by Pietro Gorgolini (Fisher Unwin, 1923)," English Review, Volume 37, October 1923, p. 487.
49. ibid., p. 488 .
50. ibid., pp.488-489.
51. Benito Mussolini, quoted in Pietro Gorgolini op. cit., quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p.489.
52. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Review of The Fascist Movement in Italian Life, by Pietro Gorgolini (Fisher Unwin, 1923)," English Review, Volume 37, October 1923, p.490.
53. ibid., 491.
54. ibid., pp.491-492.
55. ibid., p. 492.
56. Benito Mussolini, loc. cit., quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid.
57. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid.
58. idem., Woman, A vindication (London: Constable, 1923), p. 328.
59. idem., Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thrice-married lady (London: Hutchinson, [1919]), p. 14.
60. ibid., pp.48-49.
61. ibid., p. 89.
62. idem., Recovery The quest of regenerate national values (London: St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, 1935), p.7.
63. ibid., p.8.
64. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p. 328.
65. Friedrich Nietzsche, Early Greek Philosophy & Other Essays, translated by Maximilian A. Mugge in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols. (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1911), Volume II: p. 51.
66. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Mansel Fellowes $[A$ novel $]$ (London: Grant Richards, 1918), p.16.
67. ibid., pp.243-244.
68. idem., Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thrice-married lady (London: Hutchinson, [1922]), p.36.
69. idem., Lysistrata; or, woman's future and future woman (London: Kegan Paul, [1924]), p.18.
70. ibid., pp.110-111.
71. idem., The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), pp.241-242.
72. idem., The Truth about Childbirth, Lay light on maternal morbidity and mortality (London: Kegan Paul, 1937), p. 233.
73. Cobbett [pseud. Anthony Mario Ludovici], Jews and the Jews in England (London: Boswe11, 1938), p. 92.
74. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Four Pillars of Health. A contribution to post-war planning (London: Heath Cranton, 1945), p.9.
```
Notes to Chapter 5
```

75. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Four Pillars of Health. A contribution to post-war planning (London: Heath Cranton, 1945), pp.13-14.
76. idem., "Hitler and the Third Reich (III)," English Review, Volume 63, No. 3, September 1936, pp.231-232.
77. ibid., p. 232.
78. ibid., p.233.
79. ibid., p. 234.
80. ibid., pp.234-235.
81. ibid., p. 235.
82. ibid., p. 236.
83. ibid., p. 237.
84. ibid., p. 238.
85. idem., "Hitler and Nietzsche - II," English Review, Volume LXIV, No. 2, February 1937, p. 197.
86. ibid., p. 198.
87. ibid., p. 200.
88. Martin Luther, no source given; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 201.
89. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid,
90. ibid., pp.201-202.
91. ibid., p. 202.
92. idem., "Hitler and Nietzsche - I," English Review, Volume LXIV, No.1, January 1937, p. 44.
93. ibid., pp.50-51.
94. Friedrich Nietzsche, no source given; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 51.
95. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p.321.
96. ibid., p.324.
97. ibid., p.326.
98. ibid., pp.346-347.
99. ibid., p.347.
100. ibid., p. 384.
101. Anchony Mario Ludovici, "The Conservatiye, Programme; A Further Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series, Volume 113, April 1923, p. 606.
102. ibid., p. 613.
103. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London; Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 2 .
104. ibid., p. 3.
105. ibid.
106. ibid., pp.4-5.
107. ibid., pp.116-117.
108. ibid. , p. 117.
109. ibid,., pp.156-157.
110. ibid., p. 230.
111. ibid., p. 232 .
112. idem, "A British Conservative Look at the B1ack Invasion of Britain," South African Observer, Volume I, No.3, July 1955, p. 5 .
113. idem., "Notes" to Friedrich Nietzsche, Thus Spake Zarathustra, translated by Thomas Common, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols., (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909), Volume XI: p. 435.
114. idem.; "Art: The Art of India [ Review of The Arts and Crafts of India and Ceylon, by Ananda Coomaraswamy (T.N. Foulis), $]^{\prime \prime}$ New Age, Volume XIV, No.15, February 12, 1914, p. 475.
115. ibid., p.475.
116. idem., Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thrice-married lady (London: Hutchinson, [1919]), $\mathrm{pp} .87-88$.
117. idem., Too 01 for Do11s. A nove1 (London: Hutchinson, [1920]), p. 25.
118.i.ibid., p.39.
118. idem., What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921]), p. 28.
119. ibid., pp.56-57.
120. idem., The Goddess that Grew Up (London: Hutchinson, $[1922]$ ), p. 15.
121. ibid., p. 103.
122. ibid., p. 130 .
123. ibid., p.159.
124. ibid., pp.199-200.
125. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Goddess that Grew Up (London: Hutchinson, [1922]), p. 245 .
126. ibid., p. 262.
127. ibid., pp.274-275.
128. ibid., p. 281.
129. ibid., pp.291-292.
130. ibid., p. 304 .
131. idem., French Beans (London: Hutchinson, [1923]), p.53.
132. ibid., pp.191-192.
133. ibid., p. 193.
134. ibid., p.194.
135. idem., The Taming of Don Juan (London: Hutchinson, [1924]), p. 93 .
136. idem., Woman. A vindication (London: Constable, 1923), pp.102103.
137. idem., Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p. 304.
138. ibid.
139. ibid., p.344.
140. ibid., p. 349 .
141. idem., The Night-Hoers; or, the case against birth-control and an alternative (London: Herbert Jenkins, 1928), pp.50-51.
142. ibid., p.61.
143. ibid., p. 250.
144. ibid., pp.252-253.
145. ibid., pp. 253-254.
146. idem., Violence, Sacrifice and War (London: St. James's Kin of the Eng1ish Mistery, [1933], p.28.
147. ibid., pp.29-30.
148. idem., "Eugenics and Consanguineous Marriages," Eugenics Review, Volume XXV, No. 3, October 1933, p. 151.
149. idem., The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), p. 10.
150. ibid., p. 66.
151. ibid., p. 90.
152. ibid., p. 103.
153. ibid., p. 130 .
154. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), p. 10.
155. ibid., p. 152.
156. ibid., p.154.
157. ibid., p. 203.
158. ibid., pp.212-213.
159. ibid., p. 213.
160. ibid., p. 379.
161. ibid., p. 383.
162. idem., The Four Pillars of Health. A Contribution to post-war planning (London: Heath Cranton, 1945), p.9.
163. idem., "Artificial Insemination," Letter to The Times, July 4, 1945, p. 2.
164. idem., The Quest of Human Quality. How to rear leaders (London: Rider, 1952), p.91.
165. ibid., p.93.
166. ibid., pp.115-116.
167. ibid., p. 130.
168. ibid., p. 137.
169. ibid., p. 140.
170. ibid., p. 142.
171. ibid., pp.144-145.
172. ibid., p. 145.
173. ibid., pp.146-147.
174. ibid., pp.148-149.
175. ibid., p.149.
176. ibid., p. 168 .
177. idem., "Personality in Statesmanship (III)" South African Observer, Volume I, No.8, December 1955, p.5.
178. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 62 .
179. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London: Constab1e, 1915), pp.376-377.
180. Ralph de Pomerai, Marriage, Past, Present and Future: An Outline of the History and Development of Human Sexual Relationships (London: Constable, 1930), p.vii.
181. ibid., p. 317.
182. ibid., p. 315.
183. idem., "The Latest Form of Poisonous Hate," New Age, Volume XII, No. 2, November 14, 1912, p. 33.
184. idem., "The Latest Form of Puritanical Brutality," Letter to the New Age, Volume XIII, No. 1, May 1, 1913, p. 19.
185. Friedrich Nietzsche, Early Greek Philosophy & Other Essays, translated by Maximilian A. Mugge, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche; ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols. (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1911), Volume II: p.23.
186. idem., Beyond Good and Evil. Prelude to a Philosophy of the Future, translated by Helen Zimmern, with an introduction by Thomas Common, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, (4th ed. 2nd Impression; London: George Allen & Ưnwin, 1967), pp.186-187.
187. ibid., p. 182.
188. ibid., p. 189.
189. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Notes" to Friedrich Nietzsche, Thus Spake Zarathustra, translated by Thomas Common, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols., (Edinburgh and London; T.N. Foulis, 1909), Volume XI: p. 414.
190. ibid., p. 415.
191. idem., Manse1 Fellowes $\frac{\text { 1918. }}{\text { p. } 36 \text {. }}$ (Lovel $]$ (London: Grant Richards,
192. ibid., p. 222.
193. idem., Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thrice-married lady (London: Hutchinson, [1919]), p.142,
194. ibid., p. 149.
195. idem., Too 01d for Do11s. A novel (London: Hutchinson, [1920]), pp. 5-7.
196. ibid., p.12.
197. ibid., p. 13.
198. ibid., p. 121.
199. idem., The Goddess that Grew Up (London: Hutchinson, [1922]), p. 27.
200. ibid., p. 267.
201. idem., French Beans (London: Hutchinson, [1923]), p. 16.
202. ibid., p. 38 .
203. Anthony Mario Ludovici, French Beans, (London: Hutchinson, [1923]), p. 16.
204. ibid., p.130.
205. ibid., pp.130-131.
206. ibid., p.l99.
207. ibid., p. 236.
208. idem., The Taming of Don Juan (London: Hutchinson, [1924]), p. 32 .
209. ibid., p. 153.
210. idem., Man's Descent From the Gods; or the complete case against prohibition (London: William Heinemann, 1921), p. 212.
211. ibid., pp.212-213.
212. ibid., p. 215.
213. ibid.
214. ibid., p.216.
215. ibid., p. 217.
216. ibid., pp.218-219.
217. ibid., p. 220.
218. idem., "The Folly of Feminine Franchise," English Review, Volume 37, November 1923, p. 578.
219. idem., Woman. A Vindication (London: Constable, 1923), pp.viiviii.
220. ibid., p. 28.
221. ibid., p. 29 .
222. ibid., pp.30-31.
223. ibid., p.41.
224. ibid., p.42.
225. ibid., p.47.
226. ibid., p. 56.
227. ibid., p. 60 .
228. ibid., p. 68.
229. ibid., p. 81.
230. ibid., p. 166.
231. ibid., p. 167 .
232. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Woman. A Vindication (London Constable, 1923), p.172,
233. ibid., p.189.
234. ibid., pp.193-194.
235. ibid., p, 231.
236. ibid., p. 237.
237. ibid., p. 247.
238. ibid., pp.251-252,

240, ibid. p. 264.
241, ibid. , p.267.
242, ibid., p. 269.
243. ibid., p.271.
244. ibid. , p.276.

245, ibid., pp.277-278.
246. ibid., p.278.
247. ibid., pp,334-335.

248, ibid., p. 335.
249, ibid., p, 344,
250. ibid. , pp, 280-345.
251. ibid, $, \mathrm{p}, 307$.
252. ibid. p. 310.
253. ibid., pp,321-322,

254, ibid., p. 324,
255. ibid., p. 345.
256. idem, "Feminine Franchise - A Reply to my Critics," English

Review, Volume 38, March 1924, p. 372.
257, ibid., p,376.
258. idem., Lysistrata; or, woman's future and future woman (London:

Kegan Paul, $[1924]$, pp,99-118.
259. ibid., p,106.

260, ibid.
261. ibid. . p,108,

262, ibid. ${ }^{2}, 116$.
263. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Lysistrata; or woman's future and future woman (London: Kegan Paul, [1924]), pp.99-118.
264. idem., "Reply to A.E. Linton," Letter to the Eng1ish Review, Volume 45, August 1927, p. 250.
265. idem., "Anti-Feminism," Letter to the English Review, Volume XLV, July 1927, "p. 2.
266. idem, "Matriarchy and the Mothers [Review of The Mothers; A Study of the Origins of Sentiments and Institutions, by Robert Briffault, 3 volumes (Allen & Unwin )]," English Review, Volume XLV, November 1927, p. 602.
267. idem., Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p.15.
268. ibid., p. 16.
269. ibid., p.18.
270. idem., The Night-Hoers; or, the case against birth-control and an alternative (London; Herbert Jenkins, 1928), pp.54-55.
271. ibid., pp.58-59.
272. ibid., pp.124-125.
273. ibid., p.129.
274. ibid., p.137.
275. ibid., p.141.
276. ibid., p. 223.
277. ibid., p. 229.
278. ibid., pp.275-276.
279. idem., "The Importance to Women of a Youthful Marriage," Marriage Hygiene, Volume 1, No.4, May 1935, p. 396.
280. ibid., p. 397 .
281. ibid., p. 402 .
282. idem., "The Case Against Legalised Artificial Abortion," in Abortion, by F.W. Stella Browne, Anthony Mario Ludovici, Harry Roberts, (London: George Allen & Unwin, 1935), p. 61.
283. ibid., pp.61-62.
284. ibid., p.93.
285. ibid., pp,100-101.
286. ibid., p,104.
287. ibid.
288. idem., The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), p. 113.
289. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), p. 469.
290. idem., The Future of Woman (London: Kegan Paul, 1936), pp.22-23.
291. ibid., pp.78-79.
292. ibid., pp.151-152.
293. idem., "Hitler and Nietzsche -II," Eng1ish Review, Volume 64, No. 2, February 1937, pp.194-195.
294. Friedrich Nietzsche; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 196 .
295. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Truth about Childbirth. Lay Light on maternal morbidity and mortality (London: Kegan Paul, 1937), p. 163 .
296. idem., "Prostitution [Review of Prostitution, by Dr. Tage Kemp (Heinemann)]," New English Weekly, Volume XI, No.25, September 16, 1937, pp.368-369.
297. idem., "Equal Pay [Review of Equal Pay: What is and what it means, with a foreword by Lord Percy (Aims of Industry)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XXVI, No.8, December 30, 1944, p.69.
298. David Valentine [pseud. Anthony Mario Ludovici], Poet's Trumpeter (London: Jonathan Cape, 1939), pp.57-58.
299. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Enemies of Women, The origins in outline of Anglo-Saxon Feminism (London: Carroll & Nicholson, 1948), p. 119 .
300. ibid., p. 162.
301. idem., The Child: an adult's problem (London: Carroll & Nicholson, 1948), p. 133.
302. ibid., p. 134.
303. idem., Woman: A vindication (London: Constable, 1923), pp.13-14.
304. idem., The Child: an adult's problem (London: Carroll & Nicholson, pp.15-16.
305. ibid., p. 89.
306. ibid., p.123.
307. ibid.; p. 205.
308. ibid., p. 221.
309. idem., "Woman's Contribution to Britain's National Decline (VI)," South African Observer, Volume II, No. 3, July, 1956, p. 13.
310. idem, "The Conservative Programme - A Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series, Volume 111 , June 1922, pp.958-959.
311. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Art: The Royal College of Art," New Age, Volume XIII, No.16, August 14,1913, p. 463.
312. Friedrich Nietzsche, Early Greek Philosophy & Other Essays, translated by Maximilian A. Mugge, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18. vols. (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1911), Volume II: p. 78.
313. Anthony Mario Ludovici, What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921]), p. 134.
314. idem., The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921]), pp. 126-
315. ibid., p. 127.
316. ibid., pp.127-128.
317. ibid., pp.130-131.
318. ibid., p. 149.
319. idem., The Night-Hoers; or, the case against birth-control and an alternative (London: Herbert Jenkins, 1928), p.154.
320. idem., The Quest of Human Quality. How to rear leaders (London: Rider, 1952), p.25.
321. idem., "Education in Modern England (IX)," South African Observer, Volume VI, No. 5, September 1960, p. 13.
322. idem., "Education in Modern England (X)," South African Observer, Volume VI, No, 6, October 1960, p.13.
323. idem., "Education in Modern England (XI)," South African Observer, Volume VI, No.7, November 1960, p.12.
324. idem., "Education in Modern England (XII)," South African Observer, Volume VI, No.8., December 1960, p. 12.
325. Arthur Schopenhauer, Sammtliche Werke; Dr. Griseback's Edit. Volume VI, Chap. VI and Volume V, Chap. XXVIII: cited in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 13.
326. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Public Opinion in England (II)," South African Observer, Volume XI, No.1, August 1965, p.14.
327. idem., Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), p.8.
328. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), pp.99-100.
329. ibid., p. 262.
330. idem., "The Conservative Programme: A Further Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series, Volume 113, Apri1 1923, p.612.
331. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 10 .
332. ibid., pp.18-19.
333. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 95.
334. ibid., p. 230.
335. ibid., p. 233.
336. John Green, "Youth Speaks Out II - A Political Writer [Anthony Mario Ludovici]," National Review, Volume 103, August 1934, p. 223 .
337. ibid., pp.223-224.
338. Friedrich Nietzsche, Beyond Good and Evil, Prelude to a Philosophy of the Future, translated by Helen Zimmern, introduced by Thomas Common, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, (4th ed. 2nd impression; London: George Allen & Unwin, 1967), p. 59.
339. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Notes" to Friedrich Nietzsche, Thus Spake Zarathustra, translated by Thomas Common, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, $1 \overline{8}$ vols. (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909), Volume XI: p. 408.
340. ibid., p. 409.
341. ibid., pp.433-434.
342. Friedrich Nietzsche, no source given; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 434.
343. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 436.
344. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Who is to be Master of the World? An introduction to the philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche, with introduction by Dr. Oscar Levy, (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909), pp.43-44.
345. ibid., p. 181.
346. ibid., p. 184.
347. ibid., p. 194.
348. idem., Nietzsche: his 1ife and works, preface by Dr. Oscar Levy, (London: Constable, 1910), p.42.
349. ibid., pp.42-43.
350. ibid., p.44.
351. ibid., pp.46-47.
352. ibid., p.47.
353. ibid., p. 56.
354. ibid., pp. 56-57.
355. ibid., pp.90-91.
356. idem., Manse1 Fellowes, $[$ A novel] (London; Grant Richards,
357. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Mansel Fellowes
Grant Richards, 1918), p. 220 novel $]$ (London:
358. ibid., p. 237.
359. idem., French Beans (London: Butchinson, [1923], pp. 191-192.
360. ibid., p. 305 .
361. idem., Lysistrata; or, woman's future and future woman (London: Kegan Paul, $[1924]$ ), pp.104-105.
362. ibid., pp. 110-111.
363. ibid., p.111.
364. idem., Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), pp.100-161.
365. iVid., p. 340 .
366. idem., The Night-Hoers; or the case against birth-control and ani alternative (London; Herbert Jenkins, 1928), pp.75-76.
367. ibid., p. 242 .
368. ibid., p. 248.
369. ibid., p. 249.
370. ibid., pp.250-251.
371. ibid., p. 256.
372. ibid., p.38.
373. ibid., pp.78-79.
374. idem., "Self-Righteousness and the Refugee Problem," New Pioneer, No. 10, September 1939, p. 247.
375. idem., Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p. 205.
376. ibid., p. 212.
377. ibid., p. 338 .
378. idem., Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961)) p.9.
379. ibid., p.31.
380. ibid., p. 55.
381. ibid., p. 275.
382. ibid., p.276-277.
383. ibid., p. 277.
384. ibid., p.83.
385. ibid., pp.84-85.
386. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), p.89.
387. ibid., p. 130.
388. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy. A Text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p. 284.
389. ibid., p. 285.
390. ibid., p. 286.
391. ibid., p. 287.
392. ibid., p. 288 ff .
393. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p.v.
394. ibid., p. 19.
395. ibid., p. 20.
396. ibid., p. 60.
397. ibid., p. 64.
398. Viscount Bolingbroke, On the Spirit of Patriotism (T. Davies Edition, 1775), p.8: quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p.73.
399. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 73.
400. ibid., p. 77.
401. ibid., p. 78.
402. ibid., p. 79.
403. ibid., p. 168.
404. ibid., pp.248-262.
405. ibid., p. 257.
406. ibid., p. 259.
407. ibid., p. 261.
408. ibid., p. 262 .
409. idem. 'The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921], p. 25 .
410. ibid., pp. 44-60.
411. ibid., p. 51 .
412. ibid., pp.51-52.
413. ibid., p. 52.
414. ibid., pp.55-56.
415. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The False Assumption of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [792T]), p.25.
416. ibid.
417. ibid., p.57.
418. ibid., p. 58.
419. ibid., p.59.
420. ibid., pp.62-63.
421. ibid., pp.64-65.
422. ibid., p. 69.
423. idem., French Beans (London: Hutchinson, [1923]), p. 117.
424. ibid., pp.117-118.
425. ibid., p. 118.
426. ibid., pp.119-120.
427. ibid\%, p. 120.
428. idem., Violence, Sacrifice and War (London: St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, [1933]), pp.11-12.
429. ibid., p. 12.
430. ibid., p. 14 .
431. ibid., pp.14-15.
432. ibid., p.15.
433. idem. , The Child: an adult's problem (London: Carroll & Nicholson, 1948), p.44.
434. ibid., p.49.

435, idem., Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), p. 229.
436. idem., The Specious Origins of Liberalism (London: Britons, 1967), p.67.
437. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p.viii.
438. ibid., p.x.
439. ibid., pp.2-3.
440. ibid., p. 76.
441. ibid., p. 244.
442. ibid., p. 264.
443. ibid., p. 329.
444. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London Constable, 1915), p.427.
445. idem., "The Conservative Programme - A Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series, Volume 111, June 1922, p. 956.
446. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p.1.
447. ibid., p.8.
448. ibid., p.9.
449. ibid., pp.12-13.
450. ibid., p. 15.
451. ibid., p. 21.
452. ibid., p. 22.
453. ibid., p.23.
454. ibid., pp. 245-246.
455. Friedrich Nietzsche; Beyond Good and Evil. Prelude to a Philosophy of the Future, translated by Helen Zimmern, with an introduction by Thomas Common, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, (4th ed., 2nd impression; London: George Allen & Unwin, 1967), p. 129.
456. ibid., p. 223.
457. ibid., p. 225.
458. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Notes" to Friedrich Nietzsche, Thus Spake Zarathustra, translated by Thomas Common, in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, ed. Dr. Oscar Levy, 18 vols, (Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909), p.411.
459. idem., "Nietzsche and Science," Letter to the Spectator, January 8, 1910, p. 52.
460. idem.; Nietzsche; his life and works, preface by Dr. Oscar Levy, (London: Constable, 1910), pp.75-76.
461. ibid., pp.78-79.
462. ibid., pp.92-93.
463. idem., Mansel Fellowes [A novel] (London: Grant Richards, 1918), pp. 108-109.
464. idem., Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thrice-married 1ady (London: Hutchinson, [1919]), pp.90-91.
465. ibid., pp.91-92.
466. ibid., p. 92.
467. idem., Too Old for Do11s; A novel (London: Hutchinson, [1920]), pp. $41 \% 42$.
468. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Too 0ld for Dolls; A novel (London: Hutchinson, [1920]), pp. $\overline{42-43 .}$
469. idem., What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921]), p.32.
470. ibid., p. 62.
471. idem., The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921], pp.118-119.
472. idem., Eysistrata; or, woman's future and future woman (London: Kegan Paul, $[1924]$ ), p.78.
473. ibid., p. 108.
474. idem., "Reply to A.E. Linton," Letter to the English Review, Volume 45, August 1927, p. 251.
475. idem., Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p.335.
476. idem., "Hitler and the Third Reich," English Review, Volume 63, No.1, (July 1936), p. 35.
477. ibid., p.36.
478. ibid., p. 38.
479. idem.; The Future of Woman (London: Kegan Pau1, 1936), p. 54.
480. idem., "Army Officers and Saluting," New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XVIII, No.21, March 13, 1941, p. 241.
481. ibid., p. 242.
482. idem., Eng1ish Liberalism (London: English Array [1939]), pp.31-32.
483. ibid., p.32.
484. idem., The Four Pillars of Health. A Contribution to Post-War Planning (London: Heath Cranton, 1945), p. 1.
485. idem., "The Science of Social Adjustment [Review of Human Ecology, by Thomas Robertson (Glasgow, William McLellan)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XXXIV, No.6, November 18, 1948, p. 68.
486. idem., The Quest of Human Quality. How to rear leaders (London; Rider, 1952), p.89.
487. ibid., p. 199.
488. ibid., p. 201.
489. ibid.
490. idem., "Personality and Human Destiny," South African Observer, Volume 1, No. 6, October 1955, p.8.
491. ibid., p.9.
492. idem., "The Essentials of Good Government (1)," South African Observer, Volume IX, No.2, September 1963 , p.13.
493. idem., "The Essentials of Good Government (II)," South African Observer, Volume IX, No.4, November 1963; p. 16.
494. idem. , The Specious Origins of Liberalism; the genesis of a delusion (London: Britons, 1967), p.152.
495. idem., A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p.35.
496. idem., "The Conservative Programme: A Further Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series; Volume 113, April 1923, p. 665.
497. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), pp. 19-20.
498. ibid., p.24.
499. ibid., pp.24-25.
500. ibid., p. 39.
501. ibid., p. 68.
502. ibid., pp.154-155.
503. ibid., pp.201-202.
504. ibid., p. 220.
505. idem., Catherine Doyle; the romance of a thrice-married lady (London: Hutchinson, $[1919]$ ), p. 19.
506. ibid., p. 35.
507. ibid., pp.43-44.
508. ibid., p. 59.
509. ibid., pp. 127-128.
510. ibid., p. 104.
511. ibid., p. 138.
512. ibid., pp. 151-152.
513. idem., Too 01d for Dolls. A novel (London: Hutchinson, [1920]), p. 25.
514. idem., Whät Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921]), p.88.
515. ibid., p. 121.
516. ibid., p. 122.
517. ibid., pp.123-124.
518. ibid., p. 157.
519. Anthony Mario Ludovici, What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921]), p. 189.
520. ibid., p. 202.
521. ibid., pp.203-204.
522. ibid., pp.207-208.
523. ibid., p. 208.
524. ibid., pp.208-209.
525. ibid., p. 209.
526. ibid., p. 210.
527. ibid., p. 212.
528. ibid., pp.231-232.
529. ibid., p. 237.
530. ibid., p. 248.
531. ibid., p. 248.
532. ibid., p. 280.
533. ibid., pp.283-284.
534. idem., The Taming of Don Juan (London; Hutchinson, [1924]),
p. 90 . p. 90 .
535. ibid., p. 143.
536. ibid., p. 144.
537. ibid., p. 277.
538. ibid., p. 301.
539. idem.; The False Assumption of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, $\left.{ }^{1921}\right]^{1}$, p. 122.
540. ibid., pp. 122-123.
541. idem. Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition (London; William Heinemann, 1921), pp.242-243.
542. ibid., pp.244-245.
543. idem., The Night-Hoers; or, the case against birth-control and an alternative (London: Herbert Jenkins, 1928), p.67.
544. ibid., p.69.
545. ibid., p. 151.
546. ibid., p. 149.
547. ibid., p. 252.
548. idem., Man: an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p.323.
549. idem., Creation or Recreation (London: The First of St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, 1934), p.14.
550. ibid., p. 18.
551. ibid., p. 19.
552. ibid., pp.20-21.
553. idem., The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), p. 231.
554. idem., "Hitler and the Third Reich," English Review, Volume 63, No. 1, July 1936, p.41.
555. idem., "Hitler and the Third Reich - II," English Review, Volume 63, August 1936, pp.151-152.
556. Friedrich Nietzsche, no source given; quoted in Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 192.
557. Anthony Mario Ludovici, ibid., p. 193.
558. ibid., pp.192-193.
559. Cobbett [pseud. Anthony Mario Ludovici], Jews and the Jews in England (London: Boswell, 1938), p. 56.
560. ibid., p. 85.
561. ibid., p. 88.
562. ibid., p.95.
563. ibid., p. 96.
564. ibid., p.97.
565. ibid., p.98.
566. ibid., p.99.
567. ibid., p. 100.
568. ibid., pp. 100-101.
569. Benjamin Disraeli, Ear1 of Beaconsfield, Biography of Bentinck, pp.487-498; quoted in Cobbett pseud. Anthony Mario Ludovici ibid., p. 102.
570. Cobbett [pseud. Anthony Mario Ludovici] ibid., p. 104.
571. ibid., p. 106.
572. ibid., p.109.
573. ibid., p.111.
574. ibid., p.113.
575. ibid. ${ }^{\text {s }}$ pp.113-114.
576. Cobbett [pseud. Anthony Mario Ludovici], Jews and the Jews in England (London: Boswell, 1938), p.116.
577. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "The Politics of Charles A. Beard [Review of Charles A. Beard's The Economic Basis of Politics, (New York, Alfred Knopf)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XXVIII, No. 10, December 20, 1945, p.94.
578. idem., "The English Working Class," New Pioneer, No.5, Apri1 1939, p. 26.
579. idem., "Freedom and the Workers," New Pioneer, No.6, May 1939, p. 151.
580. idem., "Equality and the Working Class," New Pioneer, Volume 1, No.7, June 1939, p. 175.
581. ibid.
582. idem., "The Worldly Philosophy of the English Working Class," New Pioneer, No.8, July 1939, p. 200.
583. ibid., pp.200-201.
584. ibid., p. 201.
585. idem., "The Worldly Philosophy of the English Working Class (II)," New Pioneer, No. 9, August 1939, p. 222.
586. idem., English Liberalism (London: English Array, [1939]), pp. 29-30.
587. idem.; A Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories (London: Constable, 1915), p.ix.
588. ibid., p.1.
589. ibid., p. 25.
590. ibid., p. 263.
591. ibid., p. 372 .
592. idem., A Defence of Conservatism (London; Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 6.
593. ibid., p.7.
594. ibid., p. 12.
595. ibid., p. 15.
596. ibid., p. 16.
597. ibid., p.17.
598. ibid., p. 18.
599. ibid., pp.45-46.
600. ibid., p. 81.
601. ibid., p. 82.
602. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 137.
603. ibid., p. 160.
604. ibid., p. 162.
605. ibid., p. 166.

606: ibid., pp.166-167.
607. cf. "Religion and the Constitution," Chapter V of ibid., pp.168-207.
608. ibid., p. 183.
609. ibid., p. 186.
610. ibid.
611. ibid.
612. ibid., p. 190.
613. ibid., p.191.
614. ibid., p. 195.
615. ibid., pp. 206-207.
616. ibid.
617. ibid., p. 207.
618. idem., "The Conservative Programme - A Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series, Volume 1111, June 1922, p. 960.
619. idem., What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921]), p. 82.
620. idem., The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921]), pp.77-94.
621. ibid., pp.78-79.
622. ibid., p. 80 .
623. ibid., p.82.
624. ibid., p.83.
625. ibid., p. 85.
626. ibid., p.89.
627. ibid., pp.92-93.
628. ibid., p. 214.
629. idem., The Night-Hoers; or, the case against birth-control and an alternative (London; Herbert Jenkins, 1928), p. 243.
630. ibid., p. 250.
631. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Violence, Sacrifice and War (London: St. James's Kin of the English Mistery; [1933]), pp.15-16.
632. idem., The Sanctity of Private Property (London: Heath Cranton, 1932), p.v.
633. ibid., p. 10.
634. ibid.
635. ibid., p. 11.
636. ibid., p.14.
637. ibid., p. 15 .
638. ibid., p. 18 .
639. ibid., p.22.
640.- ibid., pp. 24-25.
641. ibid., p. 25 .
642. ibid., p. 26.
643. ibid., p. 27.
644. ibid., p. 28.
645. ibid., p. 30.
646. ibid., p.31.
647. ibid., p.32.
648. ibid., pp.36-37.
649. ibid., p.41.
650. ibid., p.43.
651. ibid., p.44.
652. ibid., pp.45-46.
653. ibid., p.46.
654. ibid., pp,47-48.
655. idem., "Hitler and the Third Reich," English Review, Volume 63, No. 1, July 1936, p. 37.
656. idem., "Hitler and the Third Reich-II," English Review, Volume 67, August 1936, p. 152,
657. idem.. "Review of English Saga 1840-1940 by Arthur Bryant (Collins and Eyre and Spottiswoode), "New English Weekly \& New Age, Volume XVIII, No. 23, March $27,19 \overline{41, ~ p .266 . ~}$
658. idem., "Political Misuse of Words," New Pioneer, Volume 1, No. 2, January 1939, p. 47.
659. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Political Misuse of Words," New Pioneer, Volume 1, No.2, January 1939, p.52.
660. idem., English Liberalism (London: English Array, [1939]),
p.7.
661. ibid., p. 10.
662. ibid., p. 13.
663. ibid., p. 14.
664. ibid.
665. ibid., p. 15.

666, ibid., pp.16-17.
667. idem: The Quest of Human Quality, How to rear leaders (London: Rider 1952) pp. $69-7 \pi$
668. idem., "The Essentials of Good Government (VIII)," South African Observer, Volume IX, No.11, June 1964, p.14.
669. ibid., p.15.
670. idem., "The Essentials of Good Government (X)," South African Observer, Volume IX, No.12, July 1964, p. 18.
671. ibid., p. 19.
672. idem., "Public Opinion in England (XIV)," South African Observer, Volume XII, No.3, December 1966, p.13.
673. idem., The Specious Origins of Liberalism; the genesis of a delusion (London: Britons, 1967), p.99.
674. ibid., p.53.
675. idem., What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921]), pp.79-80.
676. idem., The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921]), pp.212-213.
677. idem., Lysistrata; or woman's future and future woman (London: Kegan Paul, [1924]), pp.108-109.
678. ibid., pp.110-111.
679. idem., Man: an indictment (London; Constable, 1927), p.168.
680. idem., "Hitler and the Third Reich - II," English Review, Volume 63, August 1936, p. 151.
681. ibid., p. 152.
682. idem., "Review of England and the Farmer. A Symposium, collected and edited by H.J. Massingham (Batsford), "New Eng1ish Week1y & New Age, Volume XIX, No. 26, October 16, 1941, p.250.
683. idem., English Liberalism (London: English Array, [1939]), p. 15.
684. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Four Pillars of Health: A contribution to post-war planning (London: Heath Cranton, 1945), p. 133.
685. idem., Enemies of Women, The origins in outline of AngloSaxon feminism (London: Carroll & Nicholson, 1948), p.136.
686. ibid., pp.135-136.
687. idem., "Conditions in England (1)," South African Observer, Volume XV, No.I, December 1969, p. 14.
688. idem., Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thrice-married lady (London: Hutchinson, [1919]), p.21.
689. ibid., pp.191-192.
690. idem., Too 01d for Dolls. A novel (London: Hutchinson,
p.11.
691. ibid., pp.38-39.
692. ibid., p. 39.
693. idem., French Beans (London: Hutchinson, [1923]), p. 7.
694. ibid., p.8.
695. ibid., pp.100-101.
696. ibid., p.174.
697. idem., Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition (London: William Heinemann, 1921), pp.76-77.
698. idem., Health and Education through Self-Mastery (London: Watts, 1933), pp.21-22.
699. idem., "The Conservative Programme - A Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series, Volume 111, (June 1922), p.157.
700. idem., "The Conservative Programme: A Further Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series, Volume 113, (April 1923), p. 613 .
701. idem., Gatherine Doyle; the romance of a thrice-married lady (London: Hutchinson, [1919]), pp.263-264.
702. ibid., pp.264-265.
703. idem., Too Old for Dol1s. A novel (London: Hutchinson, [1920]), pp. 2-3.
704. ibid., p. 16.
705. idem., What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921]), p. 39 .
706. ibid., p. 144.
707. idem., The Goddess that Grew Up (London: Hutchinson, [1922]), pp.21-22.
708. Anthony Mario Ludovici, The Goddess that Grew Up (London: Hutchinson, [1922]), $\mathbb{P} \cdot 2 \overline{2}$.
709. ibid., pp.24-25.
710. ibid., p.28.
711. ibid., p. 29.
712. idem., The Taming of Don Juan (London: Hutchinson, [1924]), p. 9.
713. ibid., pp.25-26.
714. ibid., p.26.
715. ibid., p.49.
716. ibid., p.99.
717. ibid., p. 282.
718. ibid., p. 299.
719. idem., Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition (London: William Heinemann, 1921), p.viii.
720. ibid., pp.x-xi.
721. ibid., p. 58.
722. ibid.
723. ibid., pp.75-76.
724. ibid., pp.81-82.
725. ibid., p. 82.
726. ibid., p.83.
727. ibid., p. 95.
728. ibid., pp.112-113.
729. ibid., pp.110-111.
730. ibid., p. 116.
731. ibid., p.118.
732. ibid., p.119.
733. ibid., p.122.
734. ibid., p. 123.
735. ibid., p. 125.
736. ibid., p.135.
737. ibid., pp.149-150.
738. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition (London: William Heinemann, 1.921), p. 149.
739. ibid., p. 152.
740. ibid., p. 155.
741. ibid., pp.159-160.
742. ibid., p. 162.
743. ibid., pp.137-138.
744. ibid., pp.164-165.
745. ibid., p. 165.
746. ibid., p. 170.
747. ibid., p. 197.
748. ibid., p. 199.
749. ibid., p. 242.
750. idem., Woman. A Vindication (London; Constable, 1923), p.11.
751. idem., Lysistrata; or, woman's future and future woman (London: Kegan Paul, [1924]), p. 10.
752. ibid., p. 24.
753. ibid., p.99.
754. ibid., pp.117-118:
755. idem., "The Health of the School Child," English Review, Volume LXIV, March 1927, p. 347.
756. ibid., pp.347-348.
757. idem., Man; an indictment (London: Constable, 1927), p.317.
758. ibid., p. 318.
759. ibid., p. 320.
760. ibid., p. 348.
761. idem., The Night-Hoers; or, the case against birth-control and an alternative (London: Herbert Jenkins, 1928), p.199.
762. idem., Health and Education through Self-Mastery (London: Watts, 1933), p,xiii.
763. ibid., p.ix.
764. ibid., p.4.
765. ibid., p.7.
766. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Health and Education through SelfMastery (London: Watts, 1933), p.8ff.
767. ibid., p. 13.
768. ibid., pp.21-22.
769. ibid., p. 22.
770. ibid., pp.116-117.
771. ibid., p. 125.
772. idem., The Four Pillars of Health. A contribution to post-war plañing (London: Heath Cranton, 1945), pp.2-3.
773. ibid., pp.3-4.
774. ibid., p.7.
775. ibid., pp.142-143.
776. ibid., pp.143-144.
777. ibid., pp.144-145.
778. ibid., p. 145.
779. ibid., p.151.
780. idem:, "The Case Against Legalised Artificial Abortion," in Abortion, by F.W. Stella Browne, Anthony Mario Ludovici, Harry Roberts, (London: George Allen & Unwin, 1935), p.107.
781. idem., The Truth about Childbirth. LayyLight on Maternal Morbidity and Mortality (London: Kegan Paul, 1937), pp.70-71.
782. ibid., p. 153.
783. ibid., p. 42.
784. ibid., pp.212-213.
785. ibid., p. 237.
786. ibid., p. 238.
787. idem., "A Newton of Health [Review of The Universal Constant in Living, by F. Mathias Alexander (Chatterton Ltd.)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XXVI, No. 12, January 4, 1945, p. 104.
788. idem., The Choice of a Mate (London: John Lane, 1935), p.2/3.
789. ibid., pp.301-302.
790. idem., "Transform Society's Values," in Gentile and Jew; a symposium on the future of the Jewish people, compiled and edited by Chaim Newman, with a foreword by the Rt. Hon. Lord Strabolgi, (London: Alliance Press, 1945), p,167.
791. idem: "Public Opinion in England (XX)," South African Observer, Volume XII, No. 11, August 1967, p. 12.
792. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Public Opinion in England (XX),"
South African Observer, Volume XII, No.11, August 1967, p.12.
793. idem., "Caesar and Caesarism [Review of No other Caesar, by Felix Grendon (John Lane)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XIX, No. 15, July 31, 1941, p. 153.
794. idem., "Transform Society's Values," in Gentile and Jew; a symposium on the future of the Jewish people, compiled and edited by Chaim Newman, with a foreword by the Rt. Hon. Lord Strabolgi, (London: Alliance Press, 1945), pp.173-174.
795. ibid., p. 174.
796. ibid., p. 175.
797. ibid., pp.175-176.
798. ibid., p. 176.
799. ibid., p. 177.
800. ibid., pp.177-178.
801. ibid., p.178.
802. ibid., p. 175.
803. ibid., pp.180-181.
804. ibid., p. 182.
805. ibid., p. 183.
806. ibid., p. 184.
807. ibid.
808. idem., "The False Assumptions of Democracy (XI)," South African Observer, Volume III, No.6, October 1957, p.14.
809. idem., Thé Quest of Human Quality. How to rear leaders (London: Rider, 1952), p.9.
810. idem., "Public Opinion in England (XXII)," South African Observer, Volume XIII, No.3, December 1967, p.12.
811. idem., Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), pp.72-73.
812. H.J. Massingham, "Values," Letter to the New English Weekly & New Age, Volume XXI, No. 26, October 15, 1942, p.219.
813. R.B. Kerr, Our Prophets Studies of Living Writers (Croydon: R.B. Kerr, 1932), p.99.
814. Anthony Mario Ludovici, "Public Opinion in England (XI)," South African Observer, Volume XI, No.11, July 1966, p. 14.
814. idem., The Truth about Childbirth. Lay Light on maternal morbidity and mortality (London: Kegan Paul, 1937), p.xiii.

CHAPTER 60 LUDOVICI＇S POLITICAL AFEILIARIONS

The only evidence we possess that Ludovici had any connection uith the Conservative Party is that he dined with A．J．Balfour on Friday March 3，1922，at a dinner given by Lady Cunard in Carlton House Terrace，and that he found the experience disagreeable．If Ludovici was not a Conservative he was，howeser，the foremost ideologue of two fascist movements called the English Mistery and the English Array，a splinter movement of the former ${ }^{2}$ ；and associated with another，the Order of the Red Rose．

The English Mistery dated from a resolution of May 28，1930，and a formal declaration made by the founders on September 10， 1930 。 It was the personal inspiration of one man，William John Sandersomo The latter sas born in 1883 in Newcastle and educated at Marlborough and Jesus College，Cambridge，read for the Bar and was called by the Inner Remple in 1906。 He joined the North－Eastern Circuit but decided to go over to the Chancery side．At Lincoln ${ }^{0}$ s Ina he became associated with Crawford Cree，another member of the Horth－Eastern Circuit who had abandoned Common Law Hork．The latter，Sanderson and Lord Willoughby de Broke，allying themselves to no political party，founded their oum political movement called the Order of the [^18]Red Rose in 1913 which cortinued publishing their doctrino throughout World Wex I until 1923. However. Crewford Cree Was killed and ford Hilloughby de Broke died soon after peace Hes signed o Their object ves militant netional regenoretion and the Frglish Mistory recogaised thom as concemneds"to promulgate and develop those principles fhich later led to the foundation of the English Misteryon ${ }^{3}$

The significance of Gudovici's association with the Order of the Red Rose is that it sought, like Ludovicio to trensform conservatism into a doctrine indistinguishable from fascismo The Association of Axthur Marimillian Lendressy with the Society of the Friends of Order in Ludovici's novel of 1921. What Woman Wishes, is. I suggest. of aurobiographical significance。 The Socioty of the Friands of Order, like the Order of the Red Rose ${ }_{0}$ is devoted to the transformation of collectivist conservatism into fascism. The deucription of the leaflets of the Friends of Order ${ }_{0}$ and its orgenisation and membership, closely resemble that of the Order of the Red Rose. ${ }^{4}$ A.M. Lendressy ${ }^{\circ}$ s Vindication of the Rulo of the Best probebly refers to Ludovici's A Defence of Aristocracyo A tert book for Tories. Whilst the Friends of Oxder's first major publicationg A Hand book for Anti-Bolshevists, with its advocacy of legislation for the purification and proper preparation of common foodstuffs, and realist denunciation of ${ }^{0}$ justice ${ }^{0}{ }^{0} 1 \mathrm{berby}{ }^{\circ}$ "equality ${ }^{\text {® }}$ "social reform", and socialist diatribes egainst private property: matches Iudovici ${ }^{\circ}$ s The Falso Assumptions of "Democracy" of 1921. Indeed, we are informed that the former book wos the joint work of $A$. M. Landressy and Lord Chiddingly, the leader of the Friends of Order, thilst the Felse Assumptions of "Democracy" is introduced by Lord Willoughby de Broke, one of the leadexs of the Order of the Rod Rose. In his introduction to Ludovici's The Felse Assumptions of "Damocrecy", Lord Filloughby de Broke endorses Ludovici ${ }^{0}$ s denunciation of liberalism $2 s$ their generation had been sacrificed for its delusions on the battlefields of World War $I_{0}^{5}$ Reciprocally, in his A Dofenc of Conservatism, Ludovici recounta that whon he used to visit the 1900 Club in Piekering Place, Londono before World War $I_{0}$ he delighted in persuading Lord Willoughby de Broke that any speech supporting the Constitution was "humbug", especially after the edvent of the Parliament Act in 1911. ${ }^{\circ}$ He preised Lord Willoughby de Broke for his conviction that the repeal of the Parliament Act of 1911 should be the first object of the Conservative Party?

The Order of the Red Roses synthesis of fascism with collectivist conservatism is perfectly explicit in the following passage:

Toryism then holds the future of England in the hollows of its hand. But Toryism must purge itself of Whiggery and declare wer upon the money-grubbers. It must expose the conspiracy of exploitation which is the foundation of Radicalism. So shall the Radicel Party crumble to dusto Toryism must recognise that the trade unionist is the best man in the working classes. and declare war upon bureaucraoy in his nome. So shall Socialism be blom sky-high. Toryism must declare solidly for the tradition of Duty and the Protection of the Fit. So shall it:subdue the Intellectual. And lastly it must purchase a smattering of brains. So shall it become articulate。 8

Their repudiation of traditional conservatism wes such thot they reckoned even Vicount Bolingbroke, thom they regarded as one of the greatest of Tories, "speaks of the alien revolution of 1689 as the ${ }^{0}$ glorious revolution。 011 put, what could they be conserwing if they believedthat from this epoch the biologicel elite of the race had been neglected and "Jevish or trading traditions commonly called Whiggexy and Radicalism" were England's only traditions? ${ }^{9}$ They thought the accessionof William of Orange and the introduction of alien influences and alien finance had obliterated all ancient tradition that had been restored in part by the reigns of Elizabeth I and the early Stuarts up to the Givil Wax. Indeeds

The Iife of Bolingbroke shows that Concervatism vas practically extinct at the beginning of the eighteenth century... since Bolingbroke ${ }^{\text {s }} \mathrm{s}$ time Conservatism has as a matter of facto been fighting a losing battle against the forces of individualisn and enarchy. It has been recognised by the greatest Conservatives that in this country a constructive policy uas hopeless in the face of the suicidal philosophy of personal exploitation which held sway. Lord Shartesbury and the Young England Party made a stand with social reform ${ }_{2}$ and Disraeli tried at least to give them good severs and drains, but no-one born, since the death of Charles $I_{\Omega}$ attempted a constructive policy。 10
$H_{o w e v e r, ~ t h e y ~ l a m e n t e d, ~}^{0}$ the Tory revolt to the inhuman and intolerable conditions caused by laissezofaire in the nineteenth century only succeeded in introducing mere palliatives like the Factory and Truck Acts, and later the Compensation Actso ${ }^{11}$ They considered Bolingbroke to be the last and laest of the Tories. ${ }^{12}$ Indeed, Sanderson thought "Thiggery" had made Tory legislation impossible of accomplishment throughout the nineteenth century. as it had completely infected the Tory Party: ${ }^{13}$ He idealised a
"golden age" from which he believed England had degenerated:
The particular character encouraged was that which was best fitted for creating the wealth of the country by agriculture and protecting it by War. The party thich encouraged the productive characters the character which had power to produce and on which the life of the race depended ${ }_{0}$ the Tory Party, very naturally claimed to be the National Party of England. 14

However, the collectivist "conservatism" that Sanderson and the Order of the Red Rose advocated vas quite different from that of Disraeli as the ${ }^{80}$ submerged tenth ${ }^{\circ}$ should not be aided by public beneficence but either: "dromed instantly or gradually and kindly eliminatedo" 95 Their 'conservatism" entailed attending to the dictates of racial memory ${ }^{16}$ and regarding miscegenation as criminal ${ }_{0}^{17}$

When a race:
ooois struggling against otimatic conditions or in military exploits. it clings to a Conservative policy and acts very strictly on the lines of its ow experience, and it is only when life gets very much easier through the accumulation of vealtho that it is able to indulge in false ideas of republicanism and democracy。 18

Indeed, the doctrine of the Order of the Red Rose is unequivocally fascisto Sanderson, as early as 1913 . wrote that the motive of racial growth and perfection is the races acquisition of powero tradition of Fingland should be that of Wars $_{9}$ whose motive is unconcious. ${ }^{19}$ War is the sole creative force in history ${ }^{20}$ and its progress is unfolded in the development of the axt of wax. 21 He called aggression noble, it is enhanced in the face of danger and teaches discipline and cooperation in the task of enslaving other races through war, the only effective means of regeneration. ${ }_{0}^{22}$ $H_{i s}$ ideal was the warrior tho disregards comfort and meterialismo the creed of axrested development and "Semitism". 甘e thought the Jews should be exteminated as should all races that fail in the struggle for life ${ }_{\circ}^{23}$ The English are the elite of the Axyen race as only they would have the requisite qualities to invade her isolated positiono ${ }^{24}$ The demand for Hone Fule and Welsh dissestablishment was regarded by Sanderson as the cxy of conquered inferior races. ${ }^{25}$ Those who do not recognise the mystical origins of the patriot were deemed useless to the race and should be elimineted. ${ }_{0}^{26}$ Cless conciliation was advocated because it was deened as in the interest of the race ${ }^{10} 7_{0}$ the Gupreme criterian of political actiono The unfit and alien among the population should be eliminated, Sendexson deemed it nocessary for the regeneration of the English race. 28

Sanderson plaintivoly asserted that rationelism had aucceeded instinct and established a system thet threatoned the bealth and vigour of the Englisho ${ }_{0}^{29}$ He transuratod collectivist conservatism into fascist populism with his claim that exploitation ras Jowish and not English in origin* ${ }^{30}$ He believed magland mas undergoing a revolution and needed a greet leader to "save it from a sideous conflict between menipulatres and producerson3 The middlecelass did not eacape his condonmation for their subordination of efery racial and national interest to the pursuit of profitto 32 Usury and exploitation had been tolerated as England had degenerated from a tine then private property Wes merely the reward for aristocratic leaders who possessed the authority to command others and to oxganise society for the public good: The corruption of laissezofaire had thvarted the "natural" elite and facilitated control by international Jewxy, organised throughout the world to control and erploit nations by destroying their charactero ${ }_{0}^{34}$ Govermment in Angland bad become the instrument of alien control and capitalist exploitation not of the popular will. 35 Sanderson believed that the party system was controlled by an alien financial system that had occasioned the degredetion of the torking classes ${ }_{0}^{36}$ The Ordex of the Red Rose avoided identification with the party syotem 37 and typical of the ray established political paxties identified fascist movements ${ }_{0}$ Sanderson confessed that socialists had reviled the Order of the Red Rose as oldofashioned Tories whereas Tories regarded it as a dangerous varient of socielismo 38 Parliement did not aatisfy their active ideal of politics. They dismissed it as a otalking shopo 39 Action was their key word。 Language which did not lead to action was denounced as the prostitution of energy. ${ }^{40}$ the traditions which they sought to establish could only be founded through action, not through the Qtalk ${ }^{\circ}$ of Perliament 44

The Order of the Red Rose－conjoined the foregoing idees rith the familiar elitism of fascism。 Sanderson admired Villiam the Conqueror and the Papacy for they fulfilled the ensentials of the elitist organisation of society he desired：

The function of an uper cless is to orgenise society。 And to fit itself for its purpose it buat be divided into a priesthood with leisure and ability to think，and an aristocracy that is able to acto 42

Smaderson defined it as the purpose of the Order of the Rod Rose to rear leaders ${ }^{43}$ tho would supers ede the moribund elite vhich had promoted capitalism and esploitation． 44 The new elite would not be encunbered by the deliberation of democracy as the mass were deemed incapable by ${ }^{0}$ instinct ${ }^{0}$ of aspixing to statesinanship ${ }_{0}^{45}$

In his advocacy of total change Sanderson referred to Anthony Mario Ludovici ${ }^{\text {B }}$ s Mans Descent from the Gods：or ${ }_{\Omega}$ the complete case against prohibition for his intention to drastically change the breving industry to restore the health of the popalace ${ }_{0}^{46}$

Implementation of Ludovici＇s prescriptions concerning ale vould accompany revolutionary success ${ }^{47}$ which entailed absolute unanimity of purpose among the menbers of the Order of the Red Rose？they esplicitly advocated violent and＂fascist methods＂to secure their political objective $p_{0}$ even at the cost of their own life and libertyo if the necessity arose ${ }_{0}^{49}$ However，some ambiguity still remained as to the depth to which they intended to transform collectivist conservatism into fascism。 Although they believedcivilisation had gone past＂redomptios point＂．they advocated that the upper classea． as an altemetive to＂destructive revolution＂。 should：ingead and orgenise a revolution from the topo 50 ，Reir prescription w ${ }^{50}$ that England should evolve a＂new foudalism＂ 51 in which all privete property would be socialised by ensuring that it would be carefully administered in the interests of the race．Those landlords tho failed to maintain a certain nuinger of men fit for military service fould be doprived of their estetes. 52 Private land and industry would be strictly controlled in the interest of the netion, according to "ntlitary models"53 Senderson depreceted contempory socicty fox its urbanism individuelisa, and leged system. They had destroyed the instinets of the rape and were not conducive to "military ideals" 54 Sanderson thought that the only hope for: "the restoration of the health and prosperity of the race lies in the institution of a new feudalism $w i$ hh a sound motive propounded by a natural priesthood, and a genuine policy cnnunciared by a patriotic aristocracyo 55 In his advocacy of the above he made frequent references to Anthony Mario Indovici's A Defonse of Axistocracyo A tert book for Tories, a formulation which Sanderson believed could restore Fingland from the cormption of a centuxy and a half of lassaiz-faire. 56

Not surprisingiy by 1929 Sanderson tras contributing to the Fascist. the nevspaper of Amold Spencer Leeso $s$ Imperial Pascist leegue。 In his advocacy of fascism he crificisedthe party system for diverting attention from:its popular objectives。 Fascism vas a menace to Conservatives who had betrayed their trust and irfesponsible Liberals and servile Socialistso He called the party system absurd, a means of popular exploitation , whilst sascism would not dobate with fools but lead ${ }_{o}^{57}$ In one exticle he wrote a panegyric of war. It taught men to place their lives at the disposal of the nation ${ }_{0}^{58}$ Reciprocally, the Imperiel Fescist League advertised the published writings of William John Sandersom as recommended literature for fascists ${ }_{0}^{59}$

Sanderson proceeded to found the English Mistexy in 1930. Trpo of his books outlined its doctrinen The firsto That Which was Lost =

A Treatise on Freerasonyy and the English Mistery, elaborated the theory that all civilisations have a perbolic development, but that at any point in the parabola of progress and decline it is possible for an entirely nev impetus to be given by an effective political leado Which he saty as tho rolo of the mglish Mistery\% 60 Conjoined with the preceding were such fascist notions as the belief that "the greater part of knowledge is comprised by instinct ${ }^{61}$, and that the parties of the Parliamentary system were mercenaries of the ${ }^{0}$ moneyed interest that had secured the acquiescence of the people in their own exploitationo ${ }^{62}$ He referred to Anthony Mario Iudovicds Mans Descent from the Godsi or the complete case against prohibition to support his claim that people unaffected by miscegenation have sound instincts ${ }_{0}^{63}$ If Englishmen abandon safety and live dangerously an elite, thus created, could achieve more in England than had been done since Elizabethan times ${ }_{0}^{64}$ Unusual among other anitoSemitic groups the English Mistery accepted Freemasonyy as they thought it maintained the importance of selective breedingo 65 Sanderson wrote in the Freemeson that : wove, in fact, and common sense, implies selection ${ }_{0}$ and does not exclude hatred. ${ }^{66}$ The second book of Sandersons that outlined the doctrine of the English Mistexyo Statecraft - A Treatise on the Concerns of our Lord the King9 contained the assertion that reason was dangerous: 67 Any devotion to abstract thought such as reading and writing were detrimental to 0 instinct ${ }_{0}^{68}$ It advocated that the reak should be enslaved 69

Sanderson gave his reason for founding the English Mistery as Englend is degeneretion。 England had degenerated through tolerance and her regeneration could only be achieved through: "the most unpleasant ways ${ }^{17} 70$ He believed that if people's instincts or emotions iroubled them they ahould not suppress them with morality as Puritans do? He combined this anarchist notion rith the euthordtarian one that－bondage leads to freedom ${ }_{9} 2$ a combination of political extremes that is typically fascisto He thought society should be based on reciprocity through a baxter economy， that would render the ${ }^{0}$ noney porer ${ }^{\circ}$ ，which had corrupted political democracy，weak．Political democracy wes dismissed as：＂the result of tuming greed into a religious faitho ${ }^{7} 73$

The English Mistery？nane came from the phrase Crafts and Misterles． The latter implied a derivative from the word Mister in turn derived from Master or in Latin Magister，such as e master worker not an apprentice in the old medieval craft guilds？ 74 Their task was to synthesise collectivist conservatism such as that of Disraeli。 to whom they made frequent laudatory references ${ }^{75}$ ．with fascism。

They sought to restore poser to the monarchy and the aristocracy in a revived feudalisms

> As Englishmen te can say with Bolingbroke，the greatest of our exponents of Royelism，that we are free mon tho claim the right to look our King in the face and tell him that upon him，and upon him alone． devolves the duty to lead the nations 76

And in so doing，they closely identified themselves with the Ordex of the Red Rose．They shared a common attempt to restore collectivist conservatism ${ }_{9}$ which formed the matrix of their reapective doctrines． the kernel being fascism：

We tho are building this new institution to cherish an old tradition have taken over this task from those who fail in the first German War．They conceived that they wero rekindling the quonched torch of the Toxy Revolt，known as the Young England Party，overthrown under the leadership of Lord George zentinck in 1848.0

Indeed，Gerald Vemon Wallop，othervise knom as Vicount Lymington， Who was the executive leader or Chief Mister of the Finglish Mistery and from August 29。1937，the leader or Marshall of the Raglisb Arcay a splinter movement of the English Mistery，had been in and the winter of 1934 when he resigned．He gave as his reason for resignation from the Conservative Party that they had forgotiten to be＂Torles in the real sense＂and：＂re were conserving the $19 t h$ century Liberal ideas of lainsez－faire of devill take the hindmost in our solfoblind progress．To me it seemed that personal reaponsibility should be part of our philosophy。＂ 78 He felt himself：＂more and more in sympathy with the tragic sincerity of the dabour Perty． 79 Indeed，contemporaneously he was especially concemed at what he deened to bo the corruption of the Conservative Party besides that of the party system as a Whole：

Wo have，as a Conservative Party，a tendancy to inherit the thig accomplishments of the last hundred years ${ }_{0}$ and to forbear in attacking the Socialist changes of the last decade。We accept the Whigi value of vested interests；and because Disraeli thought （wrongly as we can now see）that the prolctariats ${ }^{\circ}$ vote would correct the selfishness of the moneyed vote．we accept the 2.11 in all of the Socialist idea of democracyo 80

After making derogatory speeches about Baldwin ${ }^{0}$ s leadership he wes approached by representatives of the English Mistery and accepted the offer to become its executive leader．Contemporaneously ${ }_{2}$ he justified this by claiming that the English Mistexy was an egency of＂Poryism＂that promised to restore the nation and＂the fullfilo ment of our traditions＂。 Indeed，the English Mistery represented for Vallop：＂\＆real and uncompromising retum of Toryismo 81

The English Mistery defined its purpose as that of national regeneration and the recercetion of the body politice ${ }_{0}^{82}$ Discipline was one of its emphatic objects．It was to be internally disciplined by the Syndicate of the English Mistery which consisted of the Lards of the Mistery and forty two Symdies the Chief Syndic being known as the Chancellor． Those allowed to take one step towards the Throne were called

Compansong and housd by oeth torect as servants of English Royalty. Those permitted to take two steps rexe called Proctors if they elected not to take the third step, whilst those tho took the third step were called fistors of Bhglishrys or simply Misterso Fach rank in the hierarchy was otrictly subordinato to their superiors: 83

They attributed what they regarded as the failure of modern politics to the invidious multiplicetion of doliberativo assemblies vhich compromised leadership and action. They considered total unaniaity as vital to the existence of society and believed there should be a single leader for the nation. ${ }^{84}$ Indeed, the Chancellor of the Bnglish Mistery performed "the essential service of ruling the motive of the fistery. ${ }^{\circ}$ Indicative of the power he uielded ${ }_{0}$ the Chancellox could only be appointed by the unenimous decision of the Lords of the Mistery. The latter consisted of: Princes of the Blood, Peers of the Realm, eldest sons of Pecrs and persons tho according to ancient tradition were fit to be creeted Peerso ${ }^{85}$ The Recorder acted an Secretary to the Symdicate and vas appointed by and responsible to the ChiefMister. appointed by the Lords of the Mistery, the Misters of Englishry and only one could be appointed by the Ghief Mister in those counties in uhich the Mistery operated. Indicetive of the authoxitarian organisation of the Finglish Mistery the appointment and removal of the Chice Mister of each Kin was in the hands of the County Syndios, who also recommended and selected for the approval of the Chancollor: a ViceoChencellor of the Kino 86

Besides their common doctrinal transformation of collectivist conservatism into fascism both the Bnglish Mistery, and the Order of the Red Rose, had the comm emblen of a fiveopetelled red rose which the Engligh Mistery placet on a black background symbolising mouming for the nobility which had been undemined By "Whiggeryo" The English Mistery intended to mount the five-petalled red rose on a Sto Georgeig flac as soon as the monareh had been restored as the 1 leader of the people. 87

The English Mistery rejected the recent history of England as being dominated by the "money power" whose baneful control vaw even tracéd to the press which imposed uniformity of opinion in the interests of its alien masters. It advocated total change. Each member of the Mistery was instructed to militantly oppose every aspect of contempory society, to battleagainst contempory degeneration ${ }_{0}$ and if society was unresponsive:ooofight without compromise, regardless even of the cost to yourselves and to your families. regardiess even of your lives, for the danger to your race is greater than it ever. was even in the blackest hours of war... the forces of death must collapse before the forces of life 88

Only those of English race vere eligible for membership of the English Mistery ${ }^{89}$ as progress was considered by the English Mistery to be the sole result of cooperation between those of the same race and ${ }^{0}$ unconscious ${ }^{0}$ aims ${ }_{\circ}^{90}$ They regarded themselves as descendants of the Nordic race and avoided $2 l l$ those whom they regarded as of mongrelized or other race, especially Americans ${ }_{9}{ }^{9}$ One member of the English Mistery thought thet the House of Lorde should only comprise men: "who are leaders in the application of racial values." 92 Jews were strictly excluded from membership of the English Mistexy, as they believed ${ }_{0}$ the best cocker spaniel could never make a good greyhound ${ }_{0}^{93}$ Accordinglyo they advocated the strict prevention of miscegenation ${ }^{94}$ Their monism led to their concern that the "yeomen" among England ${ }^{0}$ s ${ }^{\text {Mivestock" }}$ should be conserved through selective breeding. 95 Men must recreate and regain their "animel qualitien ${ }^{96}$, reject meason and live according to ${ }^{0}$ instincto ${ }^{2} 97$ They belleved that the spread of the Latin peoples and Christendom hed led to the domination of sciontific method，which they regarded as dangerous ${ }^{98}$ They actually claimed that science was devoid of explanatory power as to ${ }^{\circ}$ understand ${ }^{\circ}$ neant to stand under and worship something that could not be comprehonded．Thus． the English Pistery could not be explained but only unquestioningly supported ${ }_{6}^{99}$ Thought emanates from instincto they claimed．${ }_{0}^{100}$ Deliberation could only stultify action。 ${ }^{101}$ Indeed ${ }_{0}$ they exalted action．Each member of the English Mistery should deploy himself： ＂as an instrument for action and not for clever wito＂${ }^{102}$ They wexe instructed to express themselves in action rather than words．${ }_{0}^{103}$ Anthony Mario Ludovici＇s A Defense of Axistocracyo A tert book for Tories was recommended as it was considered a book to reflect in action，not to reason abouto ${ }_{0}^{104}$ Not surprisingly，the English Mistery greeted World Var II as a relief from degeneracy and the inaug uration of a new era that depended on action and not on deliberation ${ }_{0} 105$

Their desideratum of totalitarianism was portrayed as a government whose r egenerative action would not be encumbered by a parliament and other deliberative assemblies，whose role tould be merely advisory。 ${ }^{106}$ Indeed，debate was prohibited within the Kin of the English Mistery．They claimed to find their direction in oinstincto ${ }^{8}{ }^{107}$ Accordingly，no decision of the English Mistery was ever to be made by a majority vote。 108 They rejected constitutionalism as they thought no constitution could be effective their oriterion being action ${ }_{0}$ in conditions other than those of unanimity．${ }_{0}^{109}$ They liberated themselves from legal regulation by either claiming England had no constitution ${ }^{110}$ ，or if it did，it was alien，or ${ }^{0}$ Venetian ${ }^{0}$ ，and should be oradicated ${ }_{0}^{111}$ Furtbermore，they reinforced their rejection of the party system by advocating withdrawal of support from those candidates who wexe unvilling to organise their constituency on the basis of a functional representaition that accorded with Governmental omipotence ${ }_{0}^{112}$ They claimed Parliaments legislation conflicted with the interest of the race. ${ }^{113}$ Indeed, the English Mistery repudiated both the ${ }^{0}$ loftr and the righto ${ }^{114}$ es it believed both to be controlled by the "money powero ${ }^{0} 115$ The English Mistery was called a "movement" which transcended the party system and its associated ideologies. ${ }^{116}$ Socialism was dismissed as symbolising the end of party government and liberalismo 117

The English Misterydeemed that power and authority could not come from elections ${ }^{118}$, which were toally absent from their novement。 They thought responsibility could oniy rest on great leaders. 119 The 'natural' elite could only secure the regeneration of England by eschewing the corrupt democratic system and superseding the nobility tho had unfortunately $_{0}$ forfeited their salutary power to political parties and pamed their land to the Jewso Significently, all ludovici's books were recommended as guides to the creation of a new elite。 ${ }^{120}$ Government should be carried on by mon of power, celled Lords, who: "are recognised rather then made or unmade by authoxityo ${ }_{0}{ }^{121}$ Men can only be representative if their authority is derived from racial memories ${ }^{122}$ not from democracy, with its delegation and election, which was dismissed as a vehicle of destruction. ${ }^{123}$ Democracy either frustrated or eliminated the ${ }^{0}$ natural ${ }^{0}$ elites the "sahib class" ${ }^{0 \prime}$ the peasantry: the elite of the working class. ${ }^{124}$ The creation of a naturally selected elite supplied the motive for perfection ${ }^{125}$, which the English Mistery believed could be attained in two generations at leasto ${ }_{0}^{126}$ Thoy believed their ideal of govemmenthad already been realised in the

Portugel of Salazeax: 127

The English Mistexy ${ }^{0}$ s ideal of perfection was a new feudalisn from thich faction and autonomous spheres of social activity would be eredicated. To secure this they idontified themsolves as an antioparity that would sweep awey the party system ${ }^{128}$ and replace it with a monolythic corporate state that would unleash the popular, and governmental, will from all legal and institutional regulations ${ }_{0}^{129}$ The ${ }^{\text {oright' of private ounership would be contingent }}$ on the fulfillment of duties to a popular nonarcho ${ }_{0}^{130}$ In the elaboration of their ideal of a new feudalism it was stipulated that Anthony Mario Ludovici ${ }^{9}$ s Defence of Aristocracy. A text book for Tories and his The Choice of a Mate "should be omed by everyone and kept for constant reference. ${ }^{131}$ The executive would be chosen by and solely responsible to the monarch and $^{2}$ this elite vould govern independently of political parties through a corporate State untainted by alien influence。 ${ }_{0}^{132} I_{n d}$ deed, the English Mistery specifically sought the reconstitution of a nobility ${ }^{133}$ which would equitably adjust the conflicting claims of a revived guild systeno ${ }^{134}$ Furthermore, they had a very bizaxre and disciplined ceremony reminiscent of feudality, devoid of a constitution and delinerately contrived to be puzaling to liberals. 135

Undoubtedly, the Mistery received a major set back to its dwindling fortunes with the defection of Hellop, Ludovici, and others, to form the English Array in 1937。 An equally sexious blow was to come on April 15, 1941, then the Chancellor, William Sanderson died. He was succeeded by the Righ Steward. Lord Howard de Heldeno

Nevertheless，the ideological direction of Ludovici persisted after his departure．For example Henry Snell＇s explanation of laughter was teken almost verbatim from Ludovici．＇s The Secrect of Laughter ${ }^{136}$ The Mistery continued to advocate Rascism throughout Horld Has II。 It asserted that the Righth Army provided an olite which ${ }_{0}$ through selective breeding，could inaugurate England＇s racial perfectiono ${ }^{137}$ It also maintained that：wthe agitation againstMosley has been assiduously fostexed by aliens．0 138 Indeed，the members of the English Mistery continued their diatribe against the ${ }^{0}$ money porsere ${ }^{139}$ and party politico ${ }^{140}$ until aftor World War II。 However，evidontly an increasingly moribund English Mistery received its final set back with the death of its High Steward，Lord Howard de Halden ${ }_{0}$ on November 5．1946．

Much of the English Mistery＇s vigour was lost through the division thich occurred then a minority refused to accept an order of the Council of Strength removing William Sanderson as Chancellor。 This minority continued as the English Mistery whereas the majority relinquished ell past association with the English Mistery and on August 28 ，1937．Wallop proposed the name Axray，a word derived from the Gothic and implying militant response to duty，as their name．This was approved and on August 29．1937。 the new Keepers of the Array appointed Wallop as Marshall．Ludovici abandoned the English Mistery and joined the English Array ${ }^{141}{ }^{1}$ ，which proved even more racialist than the former and was supposed to have been involved in a plot to poison many prominent Jewso 142

According to Wallop war is indemic between races ${ }^{143}$ and its renunciation is tantamount to national degeneration ${ }_{0}^{144}$ He believed democracy propogated＂ueeds and vermin＂。 that should be eliminated．He did not＿conceal his advocacy of fascism。 ${ }^{145}$

Neither did the English Arroy，which greeted the Nagi conquegt of Czechoslovalia 146 as an indication of mankind ${ }^{19}$ natural and providential inclination to struggle，and cited Anthony Mario Ludovici＇s Jewn and the Jevis in England as affording further evidonce for this cleim． 147 ．

However，as Wallop despaixingly conceded，the English Arrayo like the English Mistery，despite ita efforts wes a force in British politics of no significance． 148 In his antobiogreaphy he confessed that both the English Mistery and the English Axray had provided the outside world with ridicule and laughtero 149 Thoy Here regarded as mear fascist ${ }^{10} 850$ Indeed，Wallop himself naxrowly avoided being imprisoned during World War II under Defence Regulation 18b。 of 1940 。 151

Wuite clearly Vallop ${ }^{\circ}$ s disaffection from the Conservative Party reflected his inability to persuade them to adopt fascism。 As early as 1931 in a book addressed to conservatives，Ich Dieno The Tory Path he attempted a synthesis of collectivist conservatism With fascism。 He complained that the ${ }^{\text {Pleaders }}$－of democracy spend their times＂walking with the crowd，not directing the marcho 152 He thought the democracy he was dissatisfied with should be superseded by the functional representation of a corporate state ${ }^{153}$ He thought Englend should realise Joseph Chamberlain＇s dream of imperial selfosufficiency，as it would be conducive to a strong nationalismo Whilst，a powerful House of Loxds would be a＂cure＂ for democracy：${ }^{154}$ Furthermore，in 1932 while still a Conservative M．Po he assexted in his Home Hoof and Como The Future of British Agriculture that progress could only be racial ${ }^{155}$ and that the pastoralisation of England would restore its peoplés oblood．0 156

However，it was in the years ambequent to his rosignation from the Conservative Party in 1934 that Wallop＇s avowal of fascism beceme more intensive。 Althoughe his conviction to trensforin collectivist conservatism into fascism persistedo He thought that noither：＂the rococo reconstruction of Bolingbroke＂s philosophy by Disraeli nor the arduous and all too short labours of Lord George Bentinole and his friends succeoded in arresting the inevitability of inertia．${ }^{157}$ In his book of 1938 ，Femine in Fhpland，much recommended by the Inperial Fascist League． Wallop maintained that the dregs of the ${ }^{\circ}$ blood ${ }^{\circ}$ congregated in the cities．He thought that the unexploited Dominions，whose soil was the means of regenerating English ${ }^{0}$ blood ${ }^{\circ}$ 。 were threatened by＂yellow and brown races＂158 Laissez－faire had also threatened the purity of the white races．${ }^{159}$ Subsequently， he asserted that the history of civilisation is that of its soil。 Like enimals，each race adapts to the necessities of its soil which moulds its physique，thoughts，and actionso ${ }^{160}$ Through his elaboration of his notion of ${ }^{\circ}$ blood and soil＇he concluded that the English vere an aristocratic race ${ }_{0}^{161}$ Monistically，he asserted that mind and body are indivisible and as the latter is older its instincts are more important than reasono ${ }^{162}$ He reckoned England should ongago in a mar of calculated and muthless aggression＂ to instil it with the qualities requisite for its racial regenerationo ${ }^{163}$ ingland had degenerated under the dominance of finance ${ }^{164}$ ．whose ${ }^{0}$ money power＇controlled democracy．${ }^{165}$ The contompory degenerate aristooracy and middle－class had been corrupted through the ${ }^{\text {Pmoney }}$ standard。 ${ }^{\circ}$ Wallop advocated their supersession by a popular elite created from the working classes Who，according to Wallop had：＂the good stock left that makes England thepivot of Vesterm civilisationo ${ }^{166}$ His ideal of govemment was totalitaxian, one that combined elitism with 167 populism. Government should be sufficiently powerful to initate the husbandman. It should protect the biological elite Irom "weeds" and "parasites ${ }^{168}$ by eliminating themo 169 Indeed, througin the rule of "blood and soil". and the sacrifice of those deemed biologically inferiox ${ }^{170}$, Wallop believed that if: $0_{0}$ we can regard the humen stock of mingland as we should regard her soil. there are no sumits whichshe may not reacho 171

Furthermore, Wallop was olected President of the British Council Against European Commitments in September $1938^{172}$ The latter was essentially a coordinating body for the National Socialist league led by Willian Joyce and John Beckett: the English Array; and the League of Loyalists an even smaller body: 173 Their programme wasisolationist, anattempt to immobilise opinion against war with lezi Germany which. Wallop asserted. could only mean aiding bolshevismol However, the venture amounted to little. ${ }^{175}$ The Council was allowed to lapse with John Beckeft leavingthe National Socialist League at the same time and join ing with the Marquis of Tavistock. (later the Duke of Bedford) and Wallop to Corm, in Mesch 1939, the British Peace Party (later the British Peoples' Party)。John Reokett was the General Secretary, the Marquis of Tawistock the President, and Wellop one of the members of the Bxecutive. 176 Its aims vere virtually identical with the British Council Against European Commitments, and was very antimSemitic。 They also shared a common insignicence. Several of the British Peace Party's members vere impriaoned under Defence Regulation $18 b_{0}$ in 1940 ! 177

Eovever, the monthly journal of the British Council Ageinst European Commitments, the Mew Pioneer edited by Hallop and John

Beckett，is of considereble Idoological significance．It wes ultra－patriotic and pro－Nazi。 Wallop urote of the New Pioneer：
＂Thile it cannot be held to be part and parcel of Axray doctrine． its use in spreading Array ideas in it should be very strongo ${ }^{17} 178$

Most importently，Irwdovici contributod nuwerous articles and book reviets to the New Pioneex．Indeed，Ludovici ${ }^{9}$ s social and political thought is quite representative of one vein of the doctrinal elaborations to be found in the New Pioneer．Besides its unconcealed adrocacy of fascism therecen be identifiod ${ }_{0}$ in the New Pioneer，a parellel doctrinal vein of thought which sought the synthesis of collectivist conservatism with fascism。 The Sollowing passage，taken from another contributor，is representative of the latter doctrinal vein which abounded in the New Pioneer：

The English people have their own corporatist traditionsoothich a large number of Tories，including Disxeeli，Cross，Loxd Milner and Loxd Robert Cecil wexe bighly interested in。o．

> The effort of Consexvatives such as Disxaeli． Oastler，and Cross whose spirit is still to be discemed in places within the modem Conservative Party，to restore the regulative intentions of govemment in industry have never been completely followed up by the modern Conservative Party．But if ever that Partyooodares to announce a programme aimed at regulation in a monner and to a degree which forces us to see similarities with the Guild regulative system then we may manage to awoid the coming disaster． 179

In the New Pioneer：Wallop advocated a truce with Nazi Gemany 180 and the extirpation of communist Russia，which he regarded as the agency of international Jewry．${ }^{181}$ Arthur Keith Chesterton ${ }_{0}$ cousin of Gokochesterton ${ }_{0}$ and a founding member of Oswald Mosley＇s British Union of Fescists and who spent two of his six years in the BoU．F． $2 s$ editer of Action，and was Onveld Hosloy＇s officiel biographere ${ }^{182}$ contributed prolifically to the New Pioneer．Fe contended that President Roosevelt rather than Hitler vas the enemy of the Fnglish working man as the former van the mouth piece of Jevry and the ${ }^{\text {money powero }}{ }^{183}$ Whilst the Eescist nations refused： ＂to remain in the power of gold ${ }^{\text {on }} 184$ John Scanlono who used to write for the $B_{0} U_{0} F_{0}$ undor the pseudonym John mory also frequently contributed to the Hew Pioneer．As did John Greene secretary and treasurer respectively of the British Peace Party． Both of the latter were imprisoned under Defence Regulation 18b。 in 1940。

All of the foregoing，including Ludovici，elaborated fascism explicitly in the $H e=$ Pioneer throughout the initial phase of World War II。 They agreed with its policy of isolationg that： ＂the golden hordes of the future（Jews and Communists）are Hatching with patient jealous eyes for the civil war of Europe－ England versus fermany，Bolshevism versus internal regenerationo or whatever form the struggle may take。＂185 Indeed，Joan Morgan wrote that Hitler was fulfilling the Nietzchean promise of the ＂Superman＇。 186 In the last issue of the New Pioneer．in Jenvary $\mathbf{4 9 4 0}_{0}$ she urote that＂Ghouls and Idealists＂had precipitated degeneration by their recipe of：＂Intemationalism，Federalisationo Collective Security，Mongrelisation。Soil Exosion，World Varo Civil War，Propoganda，Taxation，Armaments，Trustification also all sorts of vices and perversions．＂ 187

Finally，$w o$ of Ludovici ${ }^{1} s$ books were published by organisations whose clientele was fascist or extremely anti－Semitic．His Jews and the Jeus in England was published by Bosuello primarily the ereation of the Duke of Noxthumberland , Hich vas eventually taken over by the Britons Publishing Gociety. Ludovici's The Specious Oxigins of Liberalismo the genesis of a delusion was published by the latter in 1967. The Britons Publishing Society wes founded in 1948 by Henry Hanilton Eemish an antimsemise of some notorictyo It was a significant source of racialist and anti-Semitic pablications in England ${ }^{188}{ }_{0}$ from its inception. 189

Thus, the obvious conclusion of this firsel chapter is that Ludovici's political affilietions were fascisto Furthermore, and of major significance for this thesis his primary affiliations like Wiliom John Sanderson, Gerald Vernon Wallop, the Order of the Red Rosep the English Miatory and the English Array were, like Ludovicio attempting to transmogrify the nature of conservatism into a doctrine indistinguishable from fascism。 Indeed, Ludovici's dontrine provided direction for both the English Mistery and the English Axray movements, and provided a source of inspiration for the Oxder of the Red Rose。

1. Anthony Mario Ludovici, Religion for Infidels (London: Holborn, 1961), pp.214-215.
2. English Mistery, Orders of 1932, Ju1y 1, 1932.
3. idem., Recorder's Quarterly Guide, June 1941, p.1.
4. Anthony Mario Ludovici, What Woman Wishes (London: Hutchinson, [1921]), pp. 91-92.
5. Lord Willoughby de Broke, "Introductory Letter," to Anthony Mario Ludovici's The False Assumptions of "Democracy" (London: Heath Cranton, [1921], pp.vii-viii.
6. Anthony Mario Ludovici, A Defence of Conservatism (London: Faber & Gwyer, 1927), p. 187 .
7. Lord Willoughby de Broke, National Review, October 1911, p.208; cited in Anthony Mario Ludovici., ibid., pp.191-192.
8. Order of the Red Rose [William John Sanderson], Before and After, Red Rose Pamphlet No.1, 1913, p.44.
9. idem., The Body Without Soul, Red Rose Pamphlet No.5, 1914, p.22.
10. idem., Rosemary for Rememberance, Red Rose Pamphlet No.16, 1923, p. 24.
11. ibid., p. 35 .
12. ibid., p. 24.
13. William John Sanderson, The Industrial Crisis (London: Siegle Hill & Co., 1914), p.11.
14. ibid., p.6.
15. ibid., p.48.
16. ibid., p.14.
17. ibid., p. 16.
18. ibid., p. 17.
19. Order of the Red Rose [William John Sanderson], Before and After, Red Rose Pamphlet No.1, 1913, p. 10.
20. ibid., p.11.
21. idem., The Needle's Eye, Red Rose Pamphlet No. 8., 1916, p. 10.
22. ibid., p.17.
23. ibid., p. 22 .
24. ibid., p. 24.
25. Order of the Red Rose [William John Sanderson], Drones in the Hive, Red Rose Pamphlet No. 10, 1916, pp. 24-25.
26. idem., Before and After, Red Róse Pamphlet No.1, 1913, p. 39.
27. idem., The Body Without a Soul, Red Rose Pamphlet, No.5, 1914, pp.42-43.
28. William John Sanderson, The Industrial Crisis, (London: Siegle Hị11 and Co., 1914), p.49.
29. ibid., p.6.
30. Order of the Red Rose [William John Sanderson], The Cause of the Amble Miners, Red Rose Pamphlet No.3, 1913, p. 6.
31. William John Sanderson, The Industrial Grisis (London: Siegle Hill, 1914), p. 6.
32. Order of the Red Rose [William John Sanderson], Like a Thief in the Night, Red Rose Pamphlet No.12, 1918, p. 3.
33. ibid., pp.16-17.
34. idem., The Rule of the Rose, Red Rose Pamphlet No.13, 1919, p.11.
35. idem., Voluntary Insurance, Red Rose Pamphlet., No.7, 1914, p.4.
36. idem., The National Debt, Red Rose Leaflet No.11, 1916, pp.1-2.
37. idem., The Rule of the Rose, Red Rose Pamphlet No. 13, 1919, p.11.
38. idem., Private Property, Red Rose Pamphlet No.11, 1917, p. 54.
39. idem., A Red Rose, Red Rose Pamphlet No.9, p.17.
40. idem., The Body Without a Soul, Red Rose Pamphlet No.5, 1914, p. 22 .
41. ibid., pp.81-82.
42. idem., The Needle's Eye, Red Rose Pamphlet No.8, 1916, p. 74.
43. idem., The Rule of the Rose, Red Rose Pamphlet No.13, 1919, p.7.
44. ibid., p. 22.
45. idem., The Industrial Crisis and its Effect upon the Amble Miners, Red Rose Pamph1et No.15, 1921, p.7.
46. ibid., p. 24.
47. ibid., p. 32 .
48. idem., Memorandum on the Position and Aims of the Red Rose, Red Rose Leaflet No. 18 [1919]; p. 7.
49. idem.; The Order of the Red Rose, Red Rose Leaflet No.22, [1923].
50. idem., The Industrial Crisis and its Effect upon the Amble Miners, Red Róse Pamphlet No.15, 1921, p.7.
51. Order of the Red Rose [William John Sanderson], Before and After Red Rose Pamphlet No.1. 1913, p. 39.
52. idem., Private Property, Red Rose Pamphlet No.11, 1917, p.42.
53. idem., Rosemary For Rememberance, Red Rose Pamphlet, No.16, 1923, p. 23.
54. ibid.
55. ibid., pp. 25-26.
56. ibid., pp. 34-35.
57. Wi:11iam John Sanderson, "The Spirit of Fascism," in the Fascist (London: Imperial Fascist League), August 6, 1929, p.1.
58. idem., "The Duty of Military Proficiency," in the Fascist (London: Imperial Fascist League), September 7, 19 $\overline{29, ~ p p .3-4 . ~}$
59. Imperial Fascist League, Fascist, July 28, 1932, p.4.
60. William John Sanderson, That Which was Lost - A Treatise on Freemasonry and the Finglish Mistery (London: Constable, 1930), p.10.
61. ibid., p.11.
62. ibid., p.26.
63. ibid., p. 63.
64. ibid., pp.125-126.
65. George Thayer, The British Political Fringe (London: Anthony Blond, 1965), p.106.
66. William John Sanderson, "The Significance of the Roya1 Chair," in the Freemason, November 8, 1930.
67. idem., Statecraft. A Treatise on the Concerns of our Sovereign Lord the King (4th ed.; Wentworth: Roger Gresham Cooke, Recórder to the English Mistery, 1941), p. 13.
68. ibid., p. 64.
69. ibid., p.45.
70. idem., in the Recorder's Quarterly Guide (London: English Mistery), December 2, 1936, p.1.
71. idem., "Atonement in the Company of the English Mistery," supplement to the Recorder's Quarterly Guide (London: English Mistery), No. 20, March 1941, p.1.
72. idem., in the Recorder's Quarterly Guide (London: English Mistery), June 1939, p.3.
73. ibid., pp.3-4.
74. Gerald Vernon Wallop, Viscount Lymington, A Knot of Roots (London: Geoffrey Bles, 1965) p. 127.
75. English Mistery, Recorder's Quarterly Guide, June 1940, p. 1.
76. idem., Function and Composition of the Syndicate, Order of 1930, No.2, p.2.
77. idem., Recorder's Quarterly Guide, June 1940, p.1.
78. Gerald Vernon Wallop, Viscount Lymington, A Knot of Roots, (London: Geoffrey Bles, 1965), p.122.
79. ibid., p. 124.
80. idem., Ich Dien, The Tory Path (London: Constable, 1931), p. 118.
81. ibid., p. 123.
82. English Mistery, Constitution, Order of 1930, No.1, p.1.
83. ibid., p.4.
84. idem., Function and Composition of the Syndicate, Order of 1930, No.2, pp.1-2.
85. ibid., p.4.
86. ibid., pp.4-5.
87. idem., Orders of 1933, p.1.
88. idem., Rules of Conduct for Companions, Order of 1930, No.5, pp.9-10.
89. idem., Rules of Procedure for All Audiences of the Syndicate and Meetings of the Kin, Order of 1930, No.4, p.5.
90. idem., Rules of Conduct for Companions, Order of 1930, No.5, pp.3-4.
91. ibid., pp.8-9.
92. Bryant Irvine, "Is the House of Lords Noble?," National Review, Volume 101, (July 1933), p. 466.
93. English Mistery, The English Mistery, Leaflet No. 2, 1934, p. 2.
94. idem., A Description of the English Mistery, Leaflet No.5, 1938, p. 1 .
95. idem., Recorder's Quarterly Guide, March 1938, p. 3.
96. idem., Notes on the Orders, 1933, p.11.
97. ibid., p.6.
98. ibid., p.22ff.
99. idem, Recorder's Quarterly Guide, March 1938, p.4.
100. ibid., December 1938, p.1.
101. idem., Notes on the Orders, 1933, p.42.
102. English Mistery, Rules of Conduct for Companions, Order of 1930, No.5, p.8.
103. ibid., pp.10-11.
104. idem., Notes on the Orders, 1933, p.13.
105. Lord Howard de Walden, in the Recorder's Quarterly Guide (London: Eng1ish Mistery), March 1940, p.3.
106. English Mistery, Recorder's Quarterly Guide (London: English Mistery), March 1938, p.3.
107. idem., Rules of Conduct for Companions, Order of 1930, No.5, pp.3-4.
108. ibid., pp.10-11.
109. idem., Orders of 1931, Nos.1-6, p.4.
110. idem., A Description of the Eng1ish Mistery, Leaflet No.5, 1938, pp.9-10.
111. idem., Recorder's Quarterly Guide, September 1937, p. 2.
112. idem., Revised Orders of 1931: Nos. 1-8, second edition, pp.28-29.
113. idem., Orders of 1931: Nos 1-6, p. 26.
114. idem., Notes on the Orders, 1933, p.4.
115. idem., Chancellor's Index of Literature, first edition, 1936, p. 4 .
116. idem., Recorder's Quarterly Guide, December 1936, p.1.
117. ibid., December 1939, pp.3-4.
118. Bryant Irvine, "Back to Nobility," National Review, Volume 160, (January 1933), p.778.
119. English Mistery, Oxders of 1933, p.17.
120. idem., Chancellor's Indix of Literature, first edition, 1936, p.4.
121. idem., Recorder's Quarterly Guide, December 1936, p.1.
122. ibid., June 1938, pp.3-4.
123. ibid., June 1939, pp.1-2.
124. ibid., March 1939, p.1.
125. ibid., December 1937, p.1.
126. ibid., June 1940, p. 4 .
127. ibid., June 1938, pp.3-4.
128. idem., The English Mistery, Leaflet No.1. 1934, p.1.
129. English Mistery, The English Mistery, Leaflet No.2. 1934, p. 1 .

130, idem., The English Mistery, Leaflet No.1, 1935. p.7.
131. idem., The Chance1lor's Index of Literature, second edition, 1936, p.2.
132. idem., A Description of the English Mistery, Leaflet No.5, 1938, p.1.
133. ibid., pp.9-10.
134. idem., An Introduction to the English Mistery, 1944, p.8ff.
135. idem., Book of Ceremonial (London : English Mistery, 1938), p. 37 .
136. Henry Sne11, "Laughter," in the Recorder's Quarterly Guide, (London: English Mistery), March 1941, pp.1-2.
137. English Mistery, Recorder's Quarterly Guide, June 1943, p. 1.
138. ibid., March 1944, p.1.
139. ibid., March 1945, p.1.
140. ibid., June 1945, p.1.
141. English Array, Quarterly Gazette of the English Array, No. 1, September 1937, p.1.
142. George Thayer, op.cit., p. 106.
143. Gerald Vernon Wallop, Viscount Lymington, in the Quarterly Gazette of the English Array, No.2, December 1937, p.1.
144. ibid., No.3, April 1938, p.4.
145. ibid., No.4, July 1938, p.1ff.
146. English Array, Quarterly Gazette of the English Array, No.5, October 1938, p. 2.
147. ibid., p.3ff.
148. Gerald Vernon Wallop, Viscount Lymington, in the Quarterly Gazette of the English Array, No.6, January 1939, p. 1.
149. idem., A Knot of Roots (London: Geoffrey Bles, 1965), p. 127.
150. ibid., p. 129.
151. ibid., p. 185.
152. idem., Ich Dien, The Tory Path (London: Constable, 1931), pp.23-24.
153. ibid., p.31ff.
154. ibid., p. 120.
155. Gerald Vernon Wallop, Horn, Hoof and Corn, The Future of British Agriculture, (London: Faber and Faber, 1932), p.145.
156. ibid., p.170.
157. idem., Famine in England (London; H.F. & G. Wetherìy, 1938), pp. 42-43.
158. ibid., pp.201-202.
159. ibid., p. 203.
160. idem., Alternative to Death (London: Faber and Faber, 1943), p. 17 .
161. ibid., p. 29.
162. idem., Famine in England (London: H.F. & G. Wetherb.y, 1938), pp. 74-75.
163. ibid., p.18.
164. idem., Alternative to Death (London: Faber and Faber, 1943), p. 37.
165. idem., Famine in England (London: H.F. & G. Wetherby, 1938), p. 140 .
166. ibid., pp.17-18.
167. idem., Alternative to Death (London: Faber and Faber, 1943), p. 64.
168. idem., Famine in England (London: H.F. & G. Wetherby, 1938), p. 118 :
169. idem., Alternative to Death (London: Faber and Faber, 1943), p. 30 .
170. idem., Famine in England (London: H.F. & G. Wetherby, 1938), p. 208.
171. ibid. p. 209.
172. Anon.; News Review, September 15, 1938, p.7.
173. Robert Benewick, The Fascist Movement in Britain (London: Penguin, 1972), p. 287.
174. Gerald Vernon Wallop, Viscount Lymington, Should Britain Fight? The British Position and some facts on the Sudet en Problem (London: British Council Against European Commitments, 1938), p. 4.
175. Robert Benwick, loc.cit.
176. Mr. Jay, "Pro-Nazis Start New Party," in the Tribune, June 30, 1939, p. 11.
177. Robert Benewick, op.cit. p. 288.
178. Gerald Vernon Wallop, Viscount Lymington, in the Quarterly Gazette of the English Array, No.6, January 1939, p.1.
179. H.W.J. Edwards, "The English Guilds: And a New Outlook," in the New Pioneer, Volume 1, No.8, July 1939, p. 201.
180. Gerald Vernon Wallop, Viscount Lymington, in the New Pioneer, Volume II, No.14, January 1940, pp.319-320.
181. ibid., Volume I, No. 12, November 1939, p. 277 ff .
182. George Thay er, op.cit., p. 54.
183. Arthur K. Chesterton, "Addressing Mr. Roosevelt," in the New Pioneer, Volume I, No.4., March 1939, p.93.
184. idem., "The War of the Jews' Revenge," in the New Pioneer, Volume I, No.6, May, 1939, p. 146.
185. Gerald Vernon Wallop, Viscount Lymington, "Soil and Civilisation," in the New Pioneer, Volume I, No.3, February 1939, pp.77.
186. Joan Morgan, "Thus Spake Hitler," in the New Pioneer, Volume I, No. 10, September 1939, p. 243.
187. idem., "Macabre Tapestry," in the New Pioneer, Volume II, No. 14, January 1940, p. 341.
188. Gisela C. Lebseltzer, Political Anti-Semitism in England 19181939 (London: Macmillan, 1978), p.49ff.
189. George Thayer, op.cit., p. 99 ff .

CONCLUSIONS

The conclusions of this thesis are that it is the tradition of ideologies that are incommensurable, not ideologies per se. That it is not logically impossible for fascism to be introduced into a party system, which it intends to succeed, through gendering the ideology of an established political party commensurable with fascism. That fascists have attempted to render established ideologies commensurable with fascism, and have succeeded. The doctrine of Anthony Mario Ludovici and his affiliates: in which conservatism is commensurable with fascism, demonstrates the above in relation to conservatism. Indeed, history is profuse with instances of established ideologies being rendered commensurable with fascism, Especially before World War I in continental Europe, 'socialists', 'conservatives', and those disillusioned with traditional ideologies generally, repudiated the traditions of established ideologies and rendered them commensurable with all political extremes. Some, on oceasion, called themselves 'revolutionary conservatives', or 'national socialists'. Their innovations were intended for adoption by the adherents of political parties who were disillusioned with the traditions of their respective ideologies.

That the fascists who had rendered established ideologies commensurable with fascism, like Anthony Mario Ludovici and his affiliates, contingently failed to get their innovations accepted by the adherents of established ideologies, for whose adoption they were intended. They failed because ideologies are traditions, and the respective traditions of ideologies are incommensurable visions of how men should be associated and authority and power distributed. Incommensurable ideologies are both cause and consequence of the political divisions of party systems whose political parties deploy them as the language of their adherence..

The practical success of an innovation in any ideology is always and everywhere decided by its contingent acceptance or rejection by the custodians of the traditions of an ideology, political parties and their constituents. Political ideologies tend to inertia because they are traditions that are incommensurable. It is this inertia that the fascists who rendered established ideologies commensurable with fascism, could not overcome. Hence the obscurity of Ludovici and his affiliates.

Fascism is an ideology that could not be sustained in the party systems in which it arose. The inertia of political parties and the incommensurability of the traditions of their ideologies has overwhelmed those who have attempted to render the latter commensurable with fascism. Consequently, fascists renounced their original parties of affiliation. Oswald Mosley, after failing to render the ideologies of both the Conservative and Labour parties commensurable with fascism; Benito Mussolini and those fascists who were originally affiliated to political parties, renounced them. The 'revolutionary conservatives' of Weimar Germany, as their name implies, renounced all affiliations with conservatives and allied themselves with the National Socialists. Whilst Hitler and the National Socialists never attempted to operate within German socialist parties, they knew it would be futile. Fascists have succeeded in rendering established ideologies commensurable with fascism. However, they have found it practically impossible to transform the ideologies of their parties of origin and to get them accepted as commensurable with fascism. If they had succeeded in overcoming the inertia then the latter would have become what we now regard as 'fascist'.

Fascists only succeeded when they became associated in movements independent of the political parties whose ideologies they rendered commensurable in their eclectic ideology which drew from all areas of the political spectrum. Their ideology reflected their recruitment from persons, like themselves, who were disillusioned with political parties and the traditions of their associated ideologies. Their success has occurred with the crises of party systems, especially the immediate aftermath of World War I and the Great Depression which provided the disillusionment with political parties and their associated ideologies on which fascism was sustained. Nowhere have fascists succeeded as the adherents of the political parties whose ideological inertia they condemned.

Ludovici and his affiliates are obscure because they attempted to reverse this familiar pattern. They never succeeded in getting themselves regarded as conservatives because the traditions of conservatism and the consensus among conservatives about its meaning as its traditions created sufficient inertia that the innovations which Ludovici and his affiliates sought could not be effected in the contemporary party system. If they had succeeded conservatism would have become regarded by 'conservatives', and others, as commensurable with fascism. Nevertheless, the reasons for the failure of Ludovici and his affiliates are contingent. The prognosis of Harold Nicolson⿳ when noting the difficulty of launching a fascist movement where the political culture is governed by a party system, is not impossible of achievement: "The English mind functions only in a groove; get it out of that groove and it flops into panic distaste...... I also believe that if we ever have fascism in this country it will creep in disguised in the red, white and blue of patriotism and the young conservatives." The success of Ludovici and his affiliates could be posthumous.

[^19]Anthony Mario Ludovici died on 3 April 1971, aged efghty-nine years. His will specifies that two of his manuscripts be published from the moneys derived from the sale of his estate, and he published of a quality not inferior to that of his The Quest of Human Quality. How to rear leaders (London: Rider, 1952). The two manuscripts are: "The English Countryside", "My Autobiography (The Confessions of an Anti-feminist)". They have not been published due to the absence of any publisher willing to accept them as suitable for publication. ${ }^{1}$ However, the only surviving Executor, Mr. Thomas R.T. Manning of Manning, Ro11in & Co., Solicitors and Comissioners for Oaths, Park House, Mere Street, Diss, Norfolk, (telephone 0379-3555) is prepared to release temporarily the deceased's manuscripts, consisting of "several large files", ${ }^{2}$ to a responsible Repository for the purposes of bona fide study. ${ }^{3}$

Unfortunately, the deceased's papers have been lost to posterity. It was understood by the surviving Executor that the deceased's papers were sent by the deceased's nephew, Mr. John Ludovici of 1 Han's Place, London SWl, to Edinhurgh University's Department of Social Medicine. 4 The deceased's papers were indeed offered to the Department of Social Medicine of Edinburgh University. However, the Department of Social Medicine declined the offer. Subsequently, the deceased's papers, several teachests full, were lost, whilst in store, when John Ludovici, in whose permanent

[^20]custody they were, went to Iran for two and a half years. ${ }^{1}$
Misfortune, or perhaps deliberate misinterpretation, also blighted the deceased's substantial bequest to Edinburgh University. In his will, after sundry bequests, he goes on to bequeath the residue of his Residuary Estate in trust to the University Court of the University of Edinburgh. It was to be held in trust for the following purposes. Firstly, a sum of $£ 2,000$ was to be invested in trustee securities and the income thereof to be used to provide a money prize to be known as the "Ludovici Prize" to be awarded annually or at the discretion of the said University Court for the purpose of research into the influence of miscegenation on man's quality and well-being, such research being carried out under the auspices of the University Department of Social Medicine. However, the Department of Social Medicine chose to study Huntington's chorea rather than the effects of miscegenation - with Ludovici's financial bequeathment. I think the following is fair comment on the subject:

1. If we have universities refusing to carry out research because they fear that there will be a certain amount of popular criticism against them for doing so, then we have a degree of suppression of the facts of the case. Ludovici did not demand that they were to find that the white races should prove superior to the black races; or that the crosses would prove to be bad between the two stocks. 2 He merely asked that scientific research should be done.
[^21]
BIBLIOGRAPHY

ANTHONY MARIO LUDOVICI: PRIMARY SOURCES

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "The Adams Family of America," New English & New Age, Vo1. XXIII, No. 23 (September 23,1943), pp.173-174.
"A11 about the Family [Review of Nation and the Family, Alva Myrdal (Kegan Paul, Trench, Tribner & Co.)],"New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XXVII, No. 16-20 (August 30, 1945), pp.144-145.
"Ananda K. Coomaraswamy," New English Weekly, Vol.xxxil, No. 9 (December 11, 1947), pp.82-83.
"An Anti-Democratic Malgre Lui [Review of The Impulse to Dominate, by D.W. Harding (George Allen & Unwin) , New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XX, No. 13 (January 22, 1942), p. 121 .
"An Artist's Farewell to His Mistress [a poem]," New Age, Vol. XXIX, No.12, (July 21, 1921), p. 144.
"Anglo-American Co-Operation [Review of The Atlantic System. The Story of Anglo-American control of the Seas, by Forrest Davis (George Allen & Unwin) ", New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XXIII, No. 7 (June 3, 1943), pp.56-57.
"Army Officers and Saluting," New English Weekly & New Age, Vo1. XVIII, No.21, (March 13, 1941), pp.241-242.
$\delta$ New Age, Vol. XVIII, No. 24 (Apri1 3, 1941), p. 280 .
"Art," New Age, Vol. xII, No. 6 (December 12, 1912), p. 135.
"Art: A Dialogue Overheard at a Picture Gallery," New Age, Vol. XI, No. 27 (October 31, 1912), pp. 642-644.
"Art: An Open Letter to my Friends," New Age, Vol. XIV, No. 9 (January 1, 1914), pp.278-281.
"Art: A Question of Finish," New Age, Vol. XII, No. 21 (Märch 27, 1913), p. 508.
"Art: A Stroll Down Bond Street," New Age, Vol. XIII, No. 2 (May 8, 1913), p.42.
"Art Criticism," Letter to the New Age, Vol. XIII, No.13, (July 24, 1913), p. 374.
, Letter to the New Age, Vol. XIII, No. 16 (August 14, 1.913), pp.470-471.
"Art: False Remedies and Other Considerations," New Age, Vo1. XIV, No. 11 (January 15, 1.914), pp. 345-346.
"Artificial Incemination," Letter to The Times, July 4, 1945 , p. 2.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "Artificial Insemination", Letter to The Times, June 20,1945 , p.
"Art: Les Independents and the Salon des Beaux Arts," New Age, Vol. XV, No. 2 (May 14, 1914), p. 44.
"Art: Modern Dutch Masters," New Age, Vol. XIII, No. 20, September 11, 1913), pp.576-577.
"Art: Mr. Bergson's Views," New Age, Vo1. XI, No.23, (October 23, 1912), pp.547-548.
"Art: Mr. Walter Sickert and Others," New Age, Vol. XII, No. 19 (March 13, p. 458.
"Art: Nietzsche, Culture and Plutocracy," New Age, Vol. XIV, No. 13 (January 29, 1914), pp.411-412.
"Art: Over Production in the Graphic Arts," New Age, Vol.XIII, No. 22 (September 25, 1913), pp.638-639.
"Art: Pictures and Sculpture by Book-Post," New Age, vol. XIII, No.6, (June 5, 1913), pp. 152-153.
"Art: Raw Materia1 at the Dudley Galleries," New Age, vo1. XIII, No. 24 (October 9, 1913), pp.703-704.
"Art: Review of Rodin, by Muriel Ciolkowska (Methuen)," New Age, Vol.XI, No. 19 (September 5, 1912), pp.451-452.
"Art: Rue Lafitte, The Boulevard, and Elsewhere," New Age, Vol. XIV, No. 25 (April 23, 1914, p. 792.
"The Arts and Crafts," Letter to the New Age, Vol. XII, No. 16 (February 20, 1913), p. 390.

Letter to the New Age, Vol. XII,
No.18, (March 6, 1913), p. 438.
"The Arts and Crafts Exhibition at the Grosvenor Gallery," New Age, Vol. XII, No. 13 (January 30, 1913),
"Art: The Art of India[Review of The Arts and Crafts: of India and Ceylon, by Ananda Coomaraswamy (Foulis)]," No.I, New Age, Vo1. XIV, No.15, (February 12, 1914), pp.474-475.
$\ldots$, Number II, New Age, Vol. XIV, No.17, (February 26, 1914), pp.539-540. , Number III, New Age, Vol.XIV, No.19, (March 12, 1914), pp. 599-600.
, Number IV, New Age, Vol. XIV,
No.21, (March 26, 1914), pp.665-666.
"Art: The Arts and Crafts Again," New Age, Vol. XIV, No.23, (Apri1 9, 1914), pp.728-729.
"Art: The Carfax, the Grosvenor and the Goupil Galleries," New Age, Vol. XIII, No. 10 (Ju1y 3, 1913), p. 273.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "Art: The Gordon Craig Theatre," New Age, Vol. XI, No. 21 (September 19, 1912), pp.497-498.
"Art: The Goupil and Carfax Galleries," New Age, Vol. XII, No. 17 (February 27, 1913), p. 411.
"Art: The Goupil, the Alpine Club, and the Dorien Galleries," New Age, Vol. XIV, No.5, (December 4, 1913) pp.152-153.
"Art: The Grafton Galleries," New Age, Vol. XIII, No. 12 (July 17, 1913), pp.337-338.
"Art: The International Society of Sculptors, Painters and Gravers," New Age, Vo1. XII, No.25, (April 24, 1913), pp.619-620.
"Art: The Little Gallery and the Fine Art Society," New Age, Vol. XIV, No. 1 (November 6, 1913), pp.23-24.
"Art: The London Salon," New Age, Vol. XIII, No. 14 (July 31, 1913, pp.398-399.
"Art: The Modern Society of Portrait Painters at the Royal Institute," New Age, Vol. XII, No.15, (February 13, 1913), pp.358-359.
"Art: The New English Art Club," New Age, Vol. XIII, No.8, (June 19, 1913), pp.211-212.
"Art: The New English Art Club and the Chenil Gallery," Number I, New Age, Vo1. XII, No.9. (January 2, 1913), pp.210-211.

No. 11 (January 16, 1913), p .260.
"Art: The Poster-Impressionist Exhibition," New Age, Vol. XIII, No. 18 (August 28, 1913), pp.521-522.
"Art: The Pot-Boiler Paramount," New Age, Vol. XII, No. 3 (November 21, 1912), pp.66-67.
"Art: The Psychology of Inspiration and the Grafton Galleries," New Age, Vol. XIII, No. 26 (October 23, 1913), pp.765-767.
"Art: The Royal College of Art," New Age, Vol. XIII, No. 16
(August 14, 1913), pp.463-464.
"Art: The Royal Society of Oil Painters and the Royal Society of Painters in Water Colours," New Age, Vol. XI, No. 4 (November 28, 1912), pp.
"Art: Suffolk Street and the Goupil Gallery," New Age, Vol. XII, No. 23 (April 10, 1913), p. 563.
"Art: White Roses at the Stafford and the Carfax Galleries," New Age, Vol. XI, No.251(October 17, 1912), p. 596.
"Art: William Blake at the Tate Gallery," New Age, Vo1. XIV, No.3, (November 20, 1913), pp.89-90.
"Auguste Rodin's Art [Review of The Sculptures of Auguste Rodin, 119 Redproductions in Menochrome Photogravire, with a life and review of his work by Somerville Storey and a Catalogue Raisonne by Georges Grappe (Allen & Unwin, 1939)," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XXI, No. 6 (May 28,1942), pp. 52-53.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "Back to the Jungle," New Eng1ish Weekly, Vo1. XXXII, No. 15 (January 22, 1948), pp.144-145.
"Birth Control," Letter to the New English Weekly & New Age, Vo1. XXVI, No. 19 (February 22, 1945), p.148.
"Birth Control [Review of Control of Life, by Halliday Sutherland, M.D. (Burnes, Oates and Waterhouse Ltd.)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XXVI, No.14, (January 18, 1945), pp.102-103.
"Britain's Conservative Statesmen," South African Observer, Vo1. 1, No. 4 (August 1955), pp.5-6.
"A British Conservative Looks at the Black Invasion of Britain," South African Observer, Vo1. 1, No.3., (July 1955), pp.5-6.
"Caesar and Caesarism.[Review of № other Caesar, by Felix Grendon (John Lane)]," New Eng 1ish Weekly & New Age ${ }_{9}$ Vol.XIX, No. 15 (July 31, 1941), p. 153.
"Cant at the Tate Gallery," New Age, Vol. XI, No. 17 (August 22, 1912), pp.403-404.
"The Case Against Legalised Artificial Abortion," in F.W. Stella Browne, Anthony Mario Ludovici, Harry Roberts, Abortion, London: George Al1en & Unwin, 1935, pp.53-108.
"A Case for Freud," Letter to the New Age, Vol. XXIII, No. 18 August 29, 1918), p. 291.
"The Case of Nietzsche," Letter to the New Age, Vol. VIII, No. 22 (March 30, 1911), p. 527.

Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thrice-married lady London: Hutchinson, [1919]). pp. 288.
"Causality," letter to the New English Weekly & New Age, Vo1. XXV, No. 15 (July 27, 1944), p. 730 .
, Letter to the New Eng1ish Weekly $&$ New Age, Vol. Xxv, No.17-20 (August 31, 1944), p.156.
"Ce Que Femme Veut Dien le Veut [a poem]," New Age, Vol. XXIX, No. 17 (August 25, 1921), p. 204.
"Mr. Chesterton and Anarchy," Letter to the New Age, Vol. XI, No. 7 (June 13, 1912), pp.166-167.
" The Child: an adult's problem. London: Carroll & Nicholson, 1948, pp. 288.
"The Child Mind [Review of Child Psychology, by Fowler A. Brooks, with the collaboration of Lawrence D. Shaffer (Methuen)]," New English Weekly, Vo1. XXXII, No. 6 (November 20, 1947), pp.33-34.

The Choice of a Mate London: John Lane, 1935, pp.xxi 510.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "Civilisation and the Aeroplane [Review of Air Power and Civilisation, by M.J. Bernard, Davy (George $\overline{A l l e n} \&$ Unwin)]," New English Weekly \& New Age, Vol.xx, No.14, (January 29, 1942), pp. 129-130.
"Mr. Clutton Brock on Art [Review of Clutton Brock, Essays on Art (Methuen)]," New Age, Vol. XXVI, No. 13 (January 29, 1920), pp.201-202.
"Coincidence," Letter to the New Age, Vol. XXII, No. 6 December 12, 1912), p. 141.
, Letter to the New Age, Vol. XXII, No. 8 (December 26, 1912), p. 190.
"Conditions in England," Number I, South African Observer, Volume XV, No.1., December 1969, pp.14-15.
, Number II, South African Observer, Volume XV, No.2, January 1980, p. 13. , Number III, South African Observer, Volume XV, No.3, February 1970, pp.12-13. , Number IV, South African Observer, Volume XV, No.4, March 1970, pp.12-13. , Number V, South African Observer, Volume XV, No.6, May 1970, p. 14.
"Confusion in the Arts," Contemporary Review, Volume 192, (August 1957), pp.106-110.
"Conscience and Fanaticism, A reply to Mr. G. Pitt-Rivers's The Sick Values of a Sick Age (A reply to A.M. Ludovici's review of Mr. G. Pitt-Rivers's Conscience and Fanatacism)of November 13, 1919," New Age, Vol. XXVI, No. 10 (January 8,1920), pp. 155-156.
"Conscience and Fanaticism [Review of Conscience and Fanaticism: An Essay on Moral Values (Heinemann)]," New Age, Vol. XXV, No. 24 (October 9, 1919), pp.395-396.
"The Conservative Programme: A Further Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series, Volume XIII, (April 1923), pp.600-614.
"The Conservative Programme - A Suggestion," Fortnightly Review, New Series, Volume CXI, (June 1922), pp.948-962.

Creation or Recreation London: The First of St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, 1934. pp.37.
"The Crisis in Modern Art [Review of Professor Wladimir Weidle, The Dilemma of the Arts, (SCM Press Ltd)]," New English Weekly, Vol. XXXIV, No. 13 (January 6, 1949), Pp.152-153.
"The Crisis in Psycho Therapy [Review of Technique of Analytical Psychotherapy, by William Stekel (translated by Eden and Cedar Pau1, John Lane, London)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XVI, No. 3 (November 2, 1939); p.p.42-43.

, Letter to the New Age, Vol.XIV, No. 20 (March 19, 1914), p.639.
, Letter to the New Age, Vol.XIV, No. 23 (Apri1 9; 1914), pp.734-735. , Letter to the New Age, Vo1. XIV, No. 26 (Apri1 30, 1914), pp.825-826.
"A-Disturbing Treatise [Review of Advance to Barbarism, by A. Jurist [pseud.] (Thomas & Smith Ltd., ],"New English Weekly, Vo1. XXXIV, January 13, 1949, pp.163-164.
"A Doctor's Memoirs Review of Dr. Vere Pearson's Man, Medicine and Myself, (Museum Press Ltd.)], New English Weekly & New Age, Vo1. XXX, No.19-21. (March 6, 1947), p. 180.
"The Dominant Sex," Letter to the Spectator, September 29, 1923, pp.420-421.
"Dr. Dewey on the Responsibility of Philosophy [ Review of Problems of Men (New York: Philosophical Library, 1946)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XXX, No. 2 (October 24,1946 ), pp.17-18.
"Dr. Oscar Levy [Obituary]," New English Weekly & New Äge, Vo1. XXX, No. 5 (November 14, 1946), pp.49-50.
"Education in Modern England," Number I; South African Observer, Volume V., No. 9 January 1960, pp. 14-15.
, Number II, South African Observer, Volume V, No.10, February 1960, pp.12-14.
, Number III, South African Observer,
Volume V, No.11, March 1960, pp.12-13.
, Number IV, South African Observer,
Volume V, No.12, April 1960, pp.11-12.
, Number V, South African Observer,
Volume VI, No.1, May 1960, pp.8-9.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "Education in Modern England," Number VI, South African Observer, Vol. VI, No.2, June 1960, pp.11-12.
, Number VII, South African Observer, Vō. VI, No.3, July 1960, pp.12-13.

Vol. VI, No.4, August 1960, pp.10-11. $\begin{aligned} & \text { Number VIII, South African Observer, } \\ & \text {, }, ~\end{aligned}$ Number IX, South African Observer, Vol.VI, No.5, Septenber 1960, pp.12-13.
, Number $X$, South African Observer,
Vol. VI, No.6, October 1960, pp.12-13.
, Number XI, South African Observer,
Vol. VI, No.7, November 1960, pp.12-13.
, Number XII, South African Observer,
Vol. VI. No.8, December 1960, pp.12-14.
, Number XIII, South African Observer,
Vol. VI, No.9, January 1961, pp. 10-11.

Vol. VI, No.10, February, 1961, pp.11.13.
Enemies of Women. The origins in outline of Anglo-Saxon Feminism. [With a portrait]. London: Carroll & Nicholson, 1948. pp. 222.
"The Enfranchisement of the Girl of Twenty-One," English Review, Vol. 44. (June 1927), pp.651-666.
"England and the Farmer," New English Weekly & New Age, Vo1. XX, No. 4 (November 13, 1941), p.36.
"The English Flapper [a poem]," New Age, Vol. XXVI, No. 5 (December 4, 1919), p. 84.
English Liberalism London: English Array, [1939], pp. 32.
"The English Working Class," New Pioneer, Vol. 1. No.5, April 1939, p. 26.
"Equality and the Working Class," New Pioneer, Vol. 1, No.7, June 1939, p. 175.
"Equal Pay [Review of Equal Pay: What it is and what it means, with a foreword by Lord Percy (Aims of Industry)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XXVI, No. 8 (December 7 , 1944. pp.68-69.
"Essays by Thomas Mann [Review of Essays of Three Decades, by Thomas Mann, (Secker $&$ Warburg)]," New English Weekly, Vo1. XXXIV, No.11, (December 23, 1948), pp.127-128.
"The Essentials of Good Government," Number I, South African Observer, Vol. IX, Nó. 2 September 1963, pp.12-14.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "The Essentials of Good Government," Number III, South African Observer, Vol. IX, No.5, December 1963, pp.13-14.
, Number IV, South African Observer, Vol. IX, No.7, February 1964, pp.10-11. , Number V, South African Observer, Vo1. IX, No.8, March 1964, pp. 13-15. Vol IX, No.9, April 1964, pp.14-15.
, Number VII, South African Observer,
Vol.IX, No.10, May 1964, pp.12-13.

Vol. IX, No.11, June 1964, pp. 14-15.
, Number IX, South African Observer,
Vol. IX, No.12, July 1964, pp.18-19.
Vol $\bar{X}$, No. 1, August 1964, pp. Number
, Number XI, South African Observer,
Vol.X, No.2, September 1964, pp.12-13.
Vo1. X, No.3. October 1964, Pp , 12-13.
, Number XIII, South African Observer,
Vo1. X, No.4, November 1964, pp.13-14.
___ " Number XIV, South African Observer, Vol. X, No.5, December 1964, pp. 12-13.

Vol. $\mathrm{X}, \mathrm{Na}$, Number XV, South African Observer,
Vol. X, No.6, January 1965, pp.12-14.
, Number XVI, South African Observer, Vo 1. X, No. 7. , Number XVII, South African Observer, Vol.X No. 8, March 1965, pp. 14-15.
, Number XVIII, South African Observer,
Vo1.X, No.9, Apri1 1965, pp.14-15.

Vo1. X, No.10. May, 1965, pp. 12-13.

Vo1. X, No.11, June 1965, pp.14-15.
"Eugenics and Consanguineous Marriage," Eugenics Review,
Vo1. XXV, No.3, October 1933, pp. 147-157.
The False Assumptions of "Democracy" London: Heath Cranton, [1921], Pp. 222.
"The False Assumptions of Democracy," Number I, South African Observer, Vol. II, No.8, December 1956, pp.13-14.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "The False Assumptions of Democracy," Number II, South African Observer, Vol. II, No. 9, January, 1957, pp.8-9. , Number IIT, South African Observer,
Vol. II, No.10, February 1957, pp. 10-11.
Vo1. II, No.11, March 1957, pp.7-8.
, Number V, South African Observer,
Vol.II, No.12, Apri1 1957, pp.11-12.

Vol. III, No.1, May 1957, pp.7-8.
, Number VII, South African Observer,
Vol. III, No.2, June 1957, pp.14-15.
$\qquad$ , Number VIII, South African Observer,
Vo1. III, No.3, July 1957, pp. 11-12.
, Number IX, South African Observer,
Vol. III, No.4, August 1957, pp.15-16.
, Number X, South African Observer,
Vo1. III, No.5, September 1957, pp.13-14.
, Number XI, South African Observer,
Vol. III, No.6, October 1957, pp.13-14.
, Number XII, South African Observer, Vol.III, No.7, November 1957, pp.14-15.
, Number XIII, South African Observer, Vo1. III, NO. 8 December 1957, pp.11-12. , Number XIV, South African Observer, Vol. III, No.10, February 1958, pp. 10-11.
, Number XV, South African Observer, Vo1. ITI, No.11, March 1958, pp.12-13.
"Faust Retranslated [Review of Goethe's Faust, Part I: A New American Translation by Carlyile F. Mácintyre with illustrations by Rockwell Kent (New Directions)]," New English Weekly, Vol. XXXI, No. 24 (September 25, 1947, pp.177-178.
"Feelings Masquerading as Thoughts in the Modern World," Number I, South African Observer, Vo1. VIII, No.9, April 1963, pp. 9-10.
, Number II, South African Observer,
Vol. VIII, No.10. May 1963, pp. 11-12.
, Number IIT, South African Observer,
Vol. VIII, No.11, June 1963, pp.14-15.
"Feminine Franchise - A Beply to my Critics," English Review, Vol. 38, March 1924, pp. 371-376.
"The Folly of Feminine Franchise," English Review, Vol.37, November 1923, pp.571-579.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, The Four Pillars of Health. A contribution to post-war planning. London: Heath Cranton, 1945, pp.viii, 159.
"Freedom and the Workers," New Pioneer, Vol.1. No.6, (May 1939), p. 151.

French Beans London: Hutchinson, [1923] pp. 319.
"Freud and Veblen on Society [Review of The Freudian Psychology and Veblen's Social Theory, by Louis Schneider, (New York: King's Crown Press)]," New English Weekly, Vol. XXXIV, No. 1 (October 14, 1948).
"Further Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin," Number I, Cornhill Magazine, Vol. LIX; No.334, New Series, (December 1925), pp.754-766.
, Number II, Cornhill Magazine, Vol. LX- No.355, New Series, (January 1926), pp.111-126. , Number III, Cornhill Magazine,
Vol. LX-No.356, New Series, (February 1926), pp.213-226. The Future of Woman, London: Kegan Paul 1936. pp.viii. 152. The Goddess that Grew Up. London: Hutchinson, [1922]p. 304. "A Great Book on Education [Review of History, Heritage and Environment, by Mr. Harry McNicol (Faber and Faber)]," New English Weèkly & New Age, Vol. XXX., No. 28 (March 20, 1947), pp.200-201.
[pseud. Theognis]. "Happiness and Social Reform," Oxford Fortnightly, Vol. III, No. 9 (November 1913), pp.6-10. "Happiness in Asia [Review of Solution in Asia, by Owen Lattimore (Little, Brown & Co., Boston); India and the Indian Ocean, by K.M. Pannikar (George Allen & Unwin) : Report from Red Asia, by Harrison Forman (Henry Holt & Co., New York)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XXVII, No.15, (July 26, 1945), pp.128-129.

Health and Education through Self-Mastery, London: Watts & Co. 1933, Pp.xv. 125.
"The Health of the School Child," English Review, Vol. LXIV, March 1927, pp. 340-348.
"The Heart of an English Maid [a poem]," New Age, Vol. X, No. 18 (February 29, 1912).
"The Heart of an Eng1ishman [a poem]," New Age, Vol. X, No. 11 (January, 1912), p.253.-
"High and Low Bịth Rates [Review of Dr. G.F. McCleary's Race Suicide (George Allen $\overline{\&}$ Unwin)]," New English Weekly \& New Age, Vol. XXVII, No. 10 (June 21, 1945, pp.86-87.
"A History of English Food [Review of The Englishman's Food by J.C. Drummond and Anne Wilbraham (Jonathan Cape, 1939)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XV. No. 13 (July 13, 1939, pp.201-202.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "Hitler and Nietzsche," Number I, English Review, Vol. LXIV, No. 1 (January 1937), pp.44-52.

Vol. LXIV, February 1937; pp.192~202.
"Hitler and the Third Reich," Number I, English Review, Vol. 63, No. 1 (July 1936), pp.35-42.
, Number II, Eng1ish Review,
Vol. 63, August 1936, pp.147-153.
, Number III, English Review,
Vol. 63. No. 3 (September 1936), pp. 231-239.
"Hitjer's Generals [Review of Lidde11 Hart, The Other Side of the Hill (Cassel1)], New Eng1ish Weekly; Vol. XXXIII, No. 25 (September 30, 1948), pp.223-224.
"How the Blind lead the Blind," South African Observer, Vo1. 1, No.5, September 1955, pp.7-8.
"The Hundred and Forty-Fifth Royal Academy," New Age, Vol. XIII, No.4, (May 22, 1913), pp.95-96.
"The Importance of Racial Integrity," Number I, South African Observer, Vol. III, No.12, April 1958, pp.12-13.
, Number II, South African Observer,
Vol. IV, No.1, May 1958, pp.12-13.
, Number III, South African Observer,
Vol. IV, No.2, June 1958, pp.12-13.

Vol. IV, No.3, July 1958, pp.11-12.
, Number V, South African Observer,
Vol. IV, No.4, August 1958, pp. 12-13.
, Number VI , South African Observer,
Vol. IV, No.5; September 1958, pp.12-13.
, Number VII, South African Observer,
Vol. IV, No.6, October 1958, pp.10-12.

Vol. IV, No.7, November 1958; pp. 10-11.
, Number IX, South African Observer,
Vo1. IV, No.8, December 1958, pp.12-13.
$\cdots$, Number X , South African Observer,
Vol. IV, No.9, January 1959, pp.11-12.
, Number XI, South African Observer,
Vo1. IV, No.10, February 1959, pp.12-13.
Vo 1. IV, No. 11, March 1959, , pp. 10-11.
Vol. IV, No. 12, April 1959, Number, 12-13.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "The Importance of Racial Integrity," Number XIV, South African Observer, Vol.V, No.1, May 1959, pp.12-13.
, Number XV, South African Observer,
Vol. V, No.2, June 1959, pp.12-13.

Vol. V, No.3, July 1959, pp.10-11.
, Number XVII, South African Observer,
Vo1. V, No.4, August 1959, pp.12-13.
, Number XVIII, South African Observer,
Vol. V, No.5, September 1959, pp.12-13.
"The Importance to Women of Youthful Marriage," Marriage Hygiene, Vol.1, No. 4 (May 1935), pp.393-404.
"In-and-outbreeding," Letter to the Eugenics Review, Vol. XXVI, No. 1 (April 1934), pp.90-91.
"In Defence of Conservatism," South African Observer, Vol.1 No.2, June 1955, pp.5-7.
"India and the Western World," in K. Bharatha Iyer, ed., Art and Thought: Issued in honour of Dr. Ananda K. Coomaraswamy on the occasion of his 70th birthday, London: Luzac, 1947, pp.238-244.
"In the Worker's Paradise [Review of The Rabbit Kingsof Russia, by R.O.G. Urch (The Right Book Club), "New Pioneer, Vol.1, No.4, March 1939, p. 105.
"Is there a Sex War? [Review of Mrs. Bertrand Russell's Hypatia, or Woman and Knowledge (Kegan Paul, Trench, Trubner)]," New Age, Vol. XXXVII, No. 3 (May 31, 1925), pp.29-30.
"Jesus Christ [Review of Jesus Christ XIX Centuries After. (The Search Symposium by Leaders of the Great World Faith). Published by Search Publishing Co., 1933]," New English Week1y, Vol. III, No.24, (September 28, 1933), pp.562-563.
[pseud. Cobbet $\bar{t}$ ]. Jews and the Jews in England. London: Boswell, 1938.
"Judgement on Freud Review of La Methode Psychoanalytique, et la Doctrine Freudienne, by Dr. Roland Dalbiez, Desclee de Brouner et Cie, Paris, 1936; 2 vols.]," New English Weekly, Vol. XI, No. 6 (May 20, 1937), pp.107-109.
"The Jungle [Review of London's Overgrowth and the Causes of Swollen Towns, by S. Vere Pearson, M.A., M.D., (Danie117], New Pioneer, Vol. 1, No. 7 (June 1939), pp.181-182.
"Juvenile Delinquency[Review of Kate Friedlander's The PsychoAnalytical Approach to Juvenile Delinquency, (Kegan Paul, Trench, Trubner and Co. Ltd., )]," New English Weekly, VoI.XXXI, No. 25 (October 2, 1947), pp.189-190.
"The Latest Form of Puritanical Brutality," letter to the New Age, Vol. XIII, No. 1 (May1, 1913), p.19.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "The Latest Eorm of Poisonous Hate," New Age, Vol. XII, No.2, (November 14, 1912), pp.32-33.
"Laughțer," Sunday Referee, December 31, 1928, P.9.
"Lenin. An Epic of Stubbiorn Health[Review of Lenin, by David Shub (Doubleday) ]," New English Weekly, Vol.XXXV, No. 7 (May 26, 1949), p. 78.
"Lethal Benevolence in England," South African Observer, Vol.1, No. 6 (October 1959), pp.12-13.
"Lysistrata; or, woman's future and future woman. London: Kegan Paul, [1924],pp.117.
$\qquad$ "Man: an indictment. London: Constable, 1927, pp.xx 374.
Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition: London: William Heinemann, 1921, pp.xi 255 .
$\frac{\text { Mansel Fellowes, }}{\text { p.295. }}$ novel]. London: Grant Richards, 1918, p. 2.295 .
"Matriarchy and the Mothers [Review of The Mothers: A Study of the Origins of Sentiments and Institutions, by Robert Briffault, 3 vols. (Allen & Unwin)]," English Review, Vol. XLV, November 1927, pp.597-602.
"The Meaning of 'Civilised' Review of Tradition of Civility by Sir Ernest Parker (Cambridge University Press)]," New English Weekly, Vo1. XXXIII, No.22, (September 9, 1948), pp.201-202.
"The Menace of Depopulation [Review of Parents Revolt, by Richard & Kathleen Titmus, with a preface by Beatrice Webb (Secker & Warburg)," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol XXII, No. 8 (December 10, 1942), pp.64-65.
"Missouri Compromise ${ }_{7}$ [Review of Missouri Compromise, by Tris Coffin (Boston: 1947) New English Weekly, Vo1. XXXf, No.16, (July 31, 1947), p. 138.
" More about Thorstein Veblen $L$ Review of The Place of Science in our Civilisation; Imperial Gernany and the Industrial Revolution; Essays on our Changing Order (all by Thorstein Veblen and published by Viking Press, New York)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. Xxxvili, No. 4 (November 8, 1945, p. 37 .
"The Need of a Masculine Renaissance;" English Review, Vol. 37, August 1923, pp.193-199.
"A New Interpretation of Jesus [Review of A.D.33. A Treat for The Times, by Hugh Ross Williams, (Collins)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XIX, No. 18 (August 21, 1941), pp. 177-178.
"A New Political Science [Review of Geopolitics: The Struggle for Space and Power, by Robert Strausz-Hupe, (Pitman's, New York)," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XXII, No. 8 , December 10, 1942), pp,65-65.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "A Newton of Health. [Keview of The Universal Constant in Living, by F. Mathias Alexander (Chat terton Ltd.)]," Number I, New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XXVI, No. 12 (January 4, 1945), pp.104-105.
, Number II, New Eng1ish Weekly &
New Age, Vo1. XXVI, No. 13 (January 11, 1945), pp.94-95.
"The 'Next War' [Review of The Next War, Series edited by Capt. B.H. Liddell Hart. Sea Power in the Next War, by Commander Russell Grenfell, R.N., Air Power in the Next War, by J.M. Spaight, C.B., C.B.E., Propaganda in the Next War, by Sidney Rogerson; Tanks in the Next War, by Major E.W. Sheppard, O.B.E., M.C. (Geoffrey Bles)];" New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XIV, No. 20 (February 23 , 1939), pp. 297-298.
"Nietzsche and Art," Letter to the New Age, Vo1.XX, No. 19 (September 7, 1911), pp.454-455.

Nietzsche and Art. London: Constable, 1911. pp.xvi 236.
"Nietzsche and Science," Letter to the Spectator, January 8, 1910, p. 52.
"Nietzsche and the National Guild System," Letter to the New Age, Vol. XIV, No. 14, (February 5, 1914), p. 445.
"Nietzsche: his life and works. Preface by Dr. Oscar Levy, London Constable, 1910. pp.xv. 101.
"Nietzsche Once Again. [Review of The Story of a Human Philosopher, by H.A. Reyburn, in collaboration with H.E.
Hinderks and J.G. Taylor, (Macmillan and Co.)], " New English
Weekly, Vo1. XXXIII, No. 5 (May 13, 1948), pp.45-46.
The Night-Hoers: or the case against birth-control and an alternative, Lóndon: Herbert Jenkins, 1928, pp.288.
"Notes" to Friedrich Nietzsche, Thus Spake Zarathustra, translated by Thomas Common. Volume XI of The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, edited by Dr. Oscar Levy. Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909, pp.405-458.
"Nutrition," Letter to the New English Weekly & New Age, Vo1. XV, No. 22 (September 14, 1939), p.291.
"Peace and its Perpetuation [Review of The Nature of Peace by Thorstein Veblen (New York: Viking Press)],"New English Weekly & New Age, Vo1. XXIX, No.14, (July 18, 1946), pp. 136-137.
"Peace by Contract. [Review of Total Peace by Ely Cuthbertson (Faber & Faber Ltd)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol.XXVII, No.9, (June 14, 1945), pp.76-77.
"Personality and Human Destiny," South African Observer, Vol. 1, no.6, October 1955, pp.7-9.
"Personality in Statesmanship," South African Observer, Vol. 1, No. 7 , November 1955, pp.11-13.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "Personality in Statesmanship," Number III, South African Observer, Vol. 1, No.8, December 1955, pp.5-6. , Number IV, South African Observer, Vol.1, No.9, January 1956, pp.13-14.

Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin [With plates, including a portrait.] London: John Murray, 1926. pp.xi, 204.
"Personal Reminiscences of Auguste Rodin," Number 1, Cornhill Magazine, Vol. EV-No.325, New Series, July 1923, pp.1-13.
, Number II, Cornhill Magazine, vol. LV-No.326, New Series, August 19.23, pp.131-143. "A Phase of the World War Plot [Review of the Gzech Conspiracy, by George Lane-Fox Pitt-Rivers (Boswel1, 1938)], "New Pioneer, Vol.1, No.3, February 1939, p.81.
"A Philosophy of Marriage [Review of Marriage and Freedom by Dr. Eustace Chesser, (Rich and Cowan, Médical Publications)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. xxx , No.7, (November 28, 1946), pp:69-70.
"Poetic Justice," South African Observer, Vo1. 1, No.1., May 1955, pp.9-10.
[pseud. David Valentine]. Poet's Trumpeter. London: Jonathan Cape, 1939.
"The Political Misuse of Words," New Pioneer, Vol. 1, No. 2. January 1939, pp:47,52.
"Politics and the Mythical Review of The Myth of the State by Ernst Cassirer. Yale University Press);"New English Weekly, Vol.XXXI, No. 8 (June 5, 1947), p. 70.
"The Politics of Charles A. Beard. [Review of Charles A. Beard's The Economic Basis of Politics (Alfred Knopf, New York) ,"New English Weekly & New Age, Vo1.xxvIII, No. 10 (December 20, 1945), p. 94.
"Population [Review of Population, Today's Question by G.F. McCleary (George Allen \& Unwin) $]^{\prime \prime}$ New English Weekly, Vol. XIV, No. 1 (0ctober 13, 1938), pp.7-8.
"Preface to the Third Edition," of Friedrich Nietzsche, The Case of Wagner, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, Vol. VIII of The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, edited by Dr. Oscar Levy. Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foul is, 1911, pp.xv*xxv.
"The Problem of Freedon Review of Bronislaw Malinowski Freedom and Civilisation. George Allen & Unwin]" New Eng1ish Weekly, Vo1. XXXII, Nó.20, (February 26, 1948), pp.193-194.
"Prophecy in Morals [Review of Sex Morality Tomorrow, by Kenneth Ingram (George Allen & Unwin )], "New Engliish Weekly. & New Age, Vol. XVIII, No, 10 (December 26, 1940), pi115.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "Prostitution [Review of Prostitution, by Dr. Tage Kemp, Heinemann]" New Eng1ish Weekly, Vol.XI, No. 23 (September 16, 1937), pp.368-369.
"Psychology and Music. [Review of Dr. Percy C. Bruck Psychology for Musicians (Oxford University Press)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vo1. XXVI, No.1, (October 19 1944), pp.6-7.
"A Psychologist's Appeal to Adolescents. [Review of Letters to Margaret, by Theo dore Faithfull, (George Allen & Unwin)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vo1. XX, No. 14 (January 29, 1942), pp.129-130.
"Public Opinion in England," Number 1, South African Observer, Vo1. X, No.12, July, 1965, pp. $\overline{14-15}$.
, Number II, South African Observer, Vol. XI, No.1, August 1965, pp.14-15.
, Number III, South African Observer, Vol. XI, No.2, September 1965, pp.14-16.
, Number IV, South African Observer, Vo1. XI, No.3, November 1965, pp.13-14.
, Number V, South African Observer,
Vol. XI, No.4, December 1965, pp.12-13.
, Number VI, South African Observer, Vol. XI, No.5, January 1966, pp.13-14.
, Number VII, South African Observer, Vol. XI, No.6, February 1966, pp.11-13. , Number VIII, South African Observer, Vol. XI, No.7, March 1966, pp.13-14.
, Number X, South African Observer, Vol. XI, No.10, June 1966; pp. 13-14. , Number XI, South African Observer, Vol. XI, No.11, July 1966, pp.13-14.
, Number XII, South African Observer,
Vol. XI, No.12, August 1966, pp.13-14.
, Number XIII, South African Observer,
Vol. XII, No.2, November 1966, pp.16-17.
, Number XIV, South African Observer,
Vol. XII, No.3, December 1966, pp.13-14.
, Number XV, South African Observer,
Vol. XII, No.4, January 1967, pp.12-14.
, Number XVI, South African Observer, Vol. XII, No.5, February 1967, pp.13-15.

Number XVII, South African Observer,
Vol. XII, No.6, March 1967, pp.13-14.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "Public Opinion in England," Number XVIII, South African Observer, Voi. XII, No:8, May 1967, pp.12-14.

Vo1. XII, No.10. July 1967, pp. 13-14.
Number $X X$, South African Observer,
Vol. XII, No.11, August 1967, pp.12-13. Vo1. XII, No.12, September 1967, pp.11-12.
, Number XXII, South African Observer,
Vol. XIII, No.3, December 1967, pp.11-12.
, Number XXIII, South African Observer, Vo1. XIII, No.4, January 1968, pp.13-14. , Number XXIV, South African Observer,
Vol. XIII, No.5, February 1968, pp. 12-13.
Vo1. XIII, No. 6, March 1968 , pp. 12-13.
, Number XXVI, South African Observer,
Vol. XIII, No.7, May 1968, pp.13-14.
, Number XXVII, South African Observer,
Vol. XIII, No.8, June 1968, pp.12-13.
"The Question of Culture [Review of Primitive Polynesian Culture, by Raymond Firth (Routledge)]," New English Weekiy & New Age, Vol. XVII, No. 12 (July 11, 1940), pp.144-145.

The Quest of Human Quality. How to rear leaders. London: Rider, 1952, pp.228.
" "R.H.C.' and Nietzsche," Letter to the New Age, Vo1.XIV, No. 16, (February 19, 1914), pp. 508-509.
${ }^{-}$Recovery. The Quest of Regenerate national values, London:
St. James ${ }^{\text {'s }}$ Kin of the English Mistery, 1935, pp. 27.
"The Re-Educationist [Review of The Neurosis of Man, by Trigant Burrow (Routledge and Kegan Paul ltdj)" New Eng1ish Weekly, Vol. XXXV, No. 8 (June 2, 1949), p.95.
"Reflections of my Patron Saint [a poem]," New Age, Vol.XxIII, No. 3, (May 18, 1918), p.48.

Religion for Infidels, London: Holborn, 1961.
"Replies to Critics," Letter to the New Age, Vol. XIV, No.25, (Apri1 23,1914), pp.798-799.
"Reply to A.E. Linton;" Letter to the English Review, Vol. 45, August 1927, pp.250-251.
"Re-Reading Nietzsche [Review of What Nietzsche Means, by Professor Morgan (Harvard University Press 1943)] New English Weekly d New Age, Vol. XXVII, No. 23 (September 20, 1945), pp. 169-170.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "Review of Above all Liberties, by Alec Craig (G. Allen & Unwin)," English Weekly & New Age, Vol.XXI, No.3., (May 7, 1942), p.27.
"Review of Dynamic Defence, by Liddell Hart (Faber and Faber)," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XVIII, No.11, (January 2, 1941), p.121.
"Review of England and the Farmer, A Symposium, collected and edited by H.J. Massingham (B,J. Batsford)," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XIX, No. 26 (October 16, 1941), p. 250.
"Review of English Saga 1840-1940, by Arthur Bryant (Collins and Eyre and Spottiswoode)," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XVIII, No.23, (March 27, 1941), pp.265-266.
"Review of Married Life in an African Tribe, by J. Schapera (Faber and Faber)," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol.xVII, No.21; (September 12, 1940), p. 237.
"Review of Nietzsche et les Theories Biologiques Contemporaines, by Claire Richter, ( Mercure de France, Paris)," New Age, Vol.IX, No.20, (September 14, 1911), pp.473-474.
"Review of Rodin, Immortal Peasant, by Anita Leslie, "New Pioneer, No. 13, December 1939, p. 314.
"Review of Sex and Culture, by J.D. Unwin, M.C. Ph.D., Oxford University Press, 1934," New English Weekly, Vol. VII, No. 3 (May 2, 1935), pp.52-53.
"Review of The Defence of Democracy, by John Middleton Murray," Neẅ Pioneer, No.14, January 1940, pp.330-332.
"Review of The Fascist Movement in Italian Life, by Pietro Gorgolini, Fisher Uniin, 1923," English Review, Vol.37, October 1923, pp.487-492.
"Review of The Feminine Character, by Dr. Viola Klein, Kegan Paul, Trench Trüber & Co," New English Weekly & New Age, Vo1. XxIX, No.23, (September 19,1946), pp.188-189.
"Review of The Hawkspur Experiment, by David Wills. George Allen \& Unwin," New English Weekl $\dot{y} \&$ New Age, Vol.xx, No.9, (December 18, 1941), p. 78.
"Review of The Law of Civilisation and Decay, by Brooks Adams, New York: Alfred Knopf, 1943," Néw Eng1ish Weekly & New Age, Voi. Xxv, No. 23 (September 21, 1944), pp.177-178.
"Review of The Life of Friedrich Nietzsche, by M. Halevy, translated by J.M. Hone, with an introduction by J.M. Kettle. (T. Fisher Unwin)," New Age, Vol.VIII, No.17, (February 23, 1911), pp.402-403.
"Review of The Loom of Language, by Dr. Bodmer, George Allen & Unwin," New. English Weekly & New Age, Vol.XXIV, No. 25, (Apri1 6, 1944), pp.209-210.
"Review of The Mastery of Life, by G.T. Wrench, Stephen Swift," New Age, Vol.XI, No. 5 (May 30, 1912), pp.112-113.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "Review of The New Psychology and Religious Experience, by Thomas Hywel Hughes M.A.g D.Litt, D.D.; George Allen & Unwin," New English Weekly, Vol.V, No. 15, (July 26, 1934), pp.356-358.
"Review of The Problem of Sex Control, by William Brown; The Meaning of Sex, by M. Macauley; The Mysteries, Beauties and Perplexities of Sex, by A. Herbert Gray; Why Are Sex Relations Without Marriage Definitely Wrong?, by A. Herbert Gray," Eng1ish Review, Vo1. 63, August 1936, pp.147-153.
"Review of The Romance of Reality, by Janet Chance, with preface by olaf Stapledon, London: George Allen & Unwin, 1934," New English Weekly, Vol. VI, No. 12 (January 3, 1935), pp.258-259.
"Review of The War Diary of a Square Peg, by Maximilian A. Mugge, George Routledge and Sons, $1920, "$ New Age, Vol. XXVII, No. 26 (October 28, 1920), pp.369-370.
"Review of The Way of A11 Women, by M. Esther Harding, M.D., with introduction by C.G. Jung, New York. Longmans Green and Co.," New English Weekly, Vol.III, No.5, (May 18, 1933), pp. 105-106.
"Review of Woman, Theme and Variation, by A. Corbett-Smith, (Noel Douglas)," New English Weekly, Vol.1, No.7, (June 2, 1932), pp.155-157.
"Review of Worry in Women, by A.B. White. (Victor Gollancz)," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol.XXI, No.14, (July 23, 1942), pp.122-123.

The Sanctity of Private Property, London: Heath Granton, 1932, pp.48.
"A Sane View of Art and Humanity, [Review of Why Exhibit Works of Art? by Dr. Ananda Coomaraswamy, (Luzac and Co.,)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol.XXIV, No.6, (November 25, 1943), p.49.
"The Science of Social Adjustment. [Review of Human Ecology., by Thomas Robertson, Glasgow: William McClellan ", New English Weekly, Vol.XXXIV, No. 6 (November 18, 1948), pp.67-68.
"A Scientist's Special Pleàding [(Review of Man's Most Dangerous Myth: The Fallacy of Race, by Dr. Ashley Montagu, (2nd. edition; Columbia University Press)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol.XXXVIII, No.13, (January 10, 1946), pp.126-127.

The Secret of Laughter, London: Constable, 1932, pp. 134.
"Self-Righteousness and the Refugee Problem," New Pioneer, Vol.1, No.10, September 1939, pp.246-247.
" Sex Antagonisms Review of Theodore Besterman"s Men Against Women: A Study of Sexual Relations, Methuen añ Co. 19347, New English Weekly, Vol.VII, No.19, (September 19, 1935), pp. 375-376.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "A Sex Encyclopedia [Review of The Encyclpedia of Sex Practice, by Drs. A. Willy, L. Vander, and 0. Fisher, partly edited by Norman Haire, Ch.M., M.B., (Torch Publishing Co, )]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vo1. XIX, No. 9 (June 19, 1941), Pp. 92-93.
"Slavery, Life and Revolution," New English Weekly \& New Age, Vol.XIX, No. 1 (Apri1 24, 194 $\overline{1}$ ), pp.7-8.
"Social Credit Today and Tomorrow," Letter to the New English Weekly & New Age, Vol.XVII, No.1, (April 25, 1940), pp.15-16.
"Social Values," Letter to the New English Weekly \& New Age, Vol.XXI, No. 9 (June 18, 1942), p. $\overline{79}$.

Some Reasons For Fear, London: Eng1ish Mistery, 1936:p.16.
"The Sonderbund Exhibition at Cologne;" Number 1, New Age, Vol.XI, No. 13 (Ju1y 25, 1912), p.307.
(August 8, 1.912), p. 348 .
The Specious Origins of Liberalism; genesis of a delusion, London: Britons, 1967.
"The Specious Origins of Liberalism," Number I, South African Observer, Vol.VI, No.11, March 1961, pp.8-9.
, Number II, South African Observer,
Vol.VI, No. 12, April 1961, pp.12-13.
Number III, South African Observer,
Vol.VII, No.1, May 1961, pp. 9-10.
, Number IV, South African Observer,
Vol.VII, No.2, June 1961, pp.9-10.
, Number V, South African Observer,
Vol.VII, No.3, July 1961, pp.11-13.
, Number VI, South African Observer,
Vol.VII, No.4, pp.9-10, August 1961.
, Number VII, South African Observer,
Vo1.VII, No.5, pp.10-12, September 1961.
, Number VIII, South African Observer,
Vol.VII, No.6, October 1961, pp.12-13.
, Number IX, South African Observer,
Vol.VII, No.7, December 1961, pp.11-13.
Vol.VII, No.8, January 1962, pp.11-12.
, Number XI, South African Observer, Vo1. VII, No.9, February 1962, pp.9-11.

Vol.VII, No. 10, March 1962, pp.11-12.

```
LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "The Specious Origins of Liberalism," Number XIII, South African Observer, Vol.VII, No.11, April 1962, pp.13-14.
```

        , Number XIV, South African Observer,
    Vol.VII, No.12, May 1962, pp.11-12.
    Number XV, South African Observer,
    Vol.VIII; No. 1 , June 1962, pp.11-12.
    , Number XVI, South African Observer,
    Vol.VIII, No.2, July 1962, pp.10-11.
    , Number XVII, South African Observer,
    Vol.VIII, No.3, October 1962, pp.11-12.
                Number XVIII, South African Observer,
    Vol.VIII, No.4, November 1962, pp.12-13.
                        , Number XIX, South African Observer,
    Vo1.VIIT, No.5; December 1962, pp.10-12
, Number xX, South African Observer,
Vol.VIII, No.6, January 1963, pp.12-14.
"A Study in Human Responsibility [Review of Infant and Maternal Mortality in Relation to Size of Family and Rapidity of Breeding, by C.M. Burns, with preface by Lord Eustace Percy, (from the Department of Physiology, King's College, University of Durham), ]" New English Weekly & New Age, Vol.
XXIII, No. 13 (July 15, 1943), pp.113-114.
"Subsidised Sloth and Subnormality in the Socialist State,"
South African Observer, Vol.V, No.5, December 1959, pp.12-13.
The Taming of Don Juan, London: Hutchinson, [1924], pp. 312.
"Thorstein Veblen [Review of Thorstein Veblen and this America, by Joseph Dorfman, New York: Viking Press, 1940]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol.XXVII, No. 6 (May 1945),
pp.61-62.
"Thoughts on War [Review of Why Don't We Learn From History?
(P.E.N. Books, G. Allen & Unwin) "" New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XxV, No.15, (July 27, 1944), p. 130.
"Three Accounts of the Eng1ish [Review of Eng1ish Enigma by Dorothy Jane Ward (Arthur Barker Ltd.), The Secret of the English, by Ranjee Shahani (Adam & Charles Black) New English Weekly, Vol.XXXIV, No.23, (March 17,1949), pp.277-278.

Too O1d for Dolls. A nove1 London: Hutchinson, [1920], pp. 287.
"Transform Society's Values," in Chaim Newman, ed., Gentile and Jew; a symposium on the future of the Jewish people, with a foreword by the Rt. Hon. Lord Strabolgi, London: Alliance Press, 1945, pp.165-185.

[^22]LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "Translatorls Preface" to Friedrich Nietzsche, The Case of Wagner, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, Vol. VII of The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, edited by Dr. Oscar Levy, Edinburgh and London; T.N. Foulis, 1911, pp. ix-xiv.
"Translator's Preface," to Friedrich Nietzsche, The Twilight of the Idols, The Antichrist, Eternal Recurrence, Notes to Zarathustra, translated By Anthony Mario Ludovici, Vol. XVI of The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, edited by Dr. Oscar Levy, Edinburgh and London; T.N. Foulis; 1911 , pp.vii-xvii.
"Translator's Preface" to Friedrich Nietzsche, The Will to Power, Books I and II, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, Vol.XIV of The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, edited by Dr. Oscar Levy, Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909. pp.vi-xiv.
"Translator's Preface" to Friedrich Nietzsche, The Will to Power, Books III and IV, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, Vol XV of The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, edited by Dr. Oscar Levy, Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foûlis, 1910 , pp.vi-xix.
"Translator's Preface" to Friedrich Nietzsche, Thoughts out of Season, Part l, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, Vol. IV of The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, edited by Dr. Oscar Levy, Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909. pp.xxix-xxxviii.

The Truth about Childbirth: Lay Light on maternal morbidity and mortality, Londō; Kegan Paul, 1937, pp.xví-294.
"The United States and the Peace [Review of Professor N. Peffer's America's Place in the World, (Viking Press, New York) " New English Weekly & New Age, Vol XXIX, No. 14 , (July 18, 1946, pp, 136-137.
"Values," Jetter to the New English Weekly & New Age, Vol. XXI, No. 22 (September 17, 1942), pp.179-180.
& New Age, Vol.XXI, No. 25, (October 8, 1942), p.208.
Letter to the New English Weekly
& New Age, Vol.XXI; No.1 (nctober 22, 1942), p.8.
"Van Gogh and his Art," introductory essay to Vincent Van Gogh, The Letters of a Post-Impressionist, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, London: Constable, 1912.

Violence, Sacrifice and War, London: St. James's Kin of the English Mistery, 1933 pp.31.
"Visitors by Night. [a poem]" New Age, Vol, xXV, No. 26, (October 23, 1919), $\stackrel{4}{\mathrm{p}} .432$.
"War Reduced to Essentials [Review of the Logic of War, by Squadron Leader Murnay Harris (ceorge Allen & Unwin)" New English Weekly & New Age, Vol .XXVI, No, 3 (Novenber 2, 1944), p.26.
"Welcome Light on Proust [Review of Introduction to Proust, by Derrick Leon, (Kegan Paul, Trench, Trubner & Co, )] New Eng11sh Weekly & New Age, Vol, XVIII, No:17 (Februarÿ 13, 1941), pp.195-196.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, Western Europets Social History In One Word," South African Observer, Vol VIII, No. 12, July 1963, pp.13-14.
What Woman Wishes, London: Hutchinson, [1921] pp. 288.
Who is to be Master of the World? An introduction to the philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche, with introduction by Dr. Oscar Levy, Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1909, p.xii.199.
"Wine and Spirits, Review of Wine and Spirits, by Andre L. Simon, (Duckworth), ]" New Age, Vol.XxV, No. 2 (May 13, 1920), p. 24.

Woman. A vindication. London: Constable, 1923, p.xvi 378.
Woman's Contribution to Britain's National Decline," Number 1, South African Observer, Vol. 1, No.10, February, 1956, pp. 9-10.
, Number II, South African Observer, Vol.1, No.11, March 1956, pp.11-13.
, Number III, South African Observer,
Vol. 1, No.12, Apri1 1956, pp.12-13.
, Number IV, South African Observer, Vo1. II, No.1, Máy 1956, pp.12-13.
, Number V, South African Observer,
Vol.II, No.2, June 1956, pp.12-13.
, Number VI, South African Observer, Vol.II, No.3, July 1956, pp.12-13.
, Number VII, South African Observer,
Vol.II, No.4, August 1946, pp.14-15.
, Number VIII, South African Observer,
Vol.II, No.5, September 1956, pp.14-15.
, Number IX, South African Observer,
VoI.II, No.6, October 1956, pp12-13.
, Number $X$, South African Observer,
Vol.II, No.7, November 1956, pp.13-14.
"Woman's Encroachment on Man's Domain," Current History, Vol.27, (October 1927), pp.21-25.
"Women and World Planning Review of Dr. Maude Royden's Women's Parterership in the New World (Allen & Unwin)]," New English Weekly & New Age, Vol.XXI, No. 6 (May 28, 1942), pp.52-53.
"Work in Western Civilisation," Hibbert Journal, Vol.55, (October 1956), pp. 30-34.
"The Worldly Philosophy of the English Working Class;" Number 1, New Pioneer, Vol.1, No.8, July 1939; pp.200-201.

LUDOVICI, Anthony Mario, "The Worldly Philosophy of the English Working Class," Number II, New Pioneer, Vol:1, No. 9 , August 1939, pp.222, 228.
"Mr. Wyndham Lewis's Methods," Letter to the New.Age, Vol. XIV, No. 11 (January 15, 1914), p. 351.
"Young, Woodley" English Review, Vol.46, May 1928, pp. 555-560.

ANTHONY MARIO LUDOVICI: SECONDARY SOURCES

BALFOUR3 Lady Frances, "The Anti-Feminist Folly," English Review, Vol.37, December 1923, pp.741-744.

BARKER, Rodney, Political Ideas in Modern Britain, London: Methuen, 1978.

CLUTTON-BROCK, A. "An Open Reply to Mr. Ludovici," New Age, Vo1. XXVI, No. 15 (February 12,1920); p. 239.

COOK, E. Wake, "Nietzsche and Art," Letter to New Age, Vol.IX, No. 18, (August 31, 1911), p. 431.
, Letter to the New Age, Vol.IX, No. 16 (August 17, 1911), p. 382.

COOMARASWAMY, Ananda, "The Art of India," Letter to the New Age, Vol.XIV, No.22, (Apri1 2, 1914), pp.702-703.

COX, R. "Aristocracy and Mr. Ludovici," Letter to the New Age, Vol. XIV, No.17, (February 26, 1914), p. 543.

No. 19 (March 12, 1914), pp.604-605.
, Letter to the New Age, Vol.XIV, No. 25 (April 23, 1914), pp.7.96-797.

DIXON, T.S., "Aristocracy and Democracy," Letter to the New Age, Vol.XIV, No. 25 (April 23, 1914), pp.797-798.

FREEDMAN, Estelle B., "The New Woman: Changing Views of Women in the 1920s," Journal of American History, Vol. 61, No. 2 (September 1974), pp.372-393.

GAYRE, R. "The late A.M. Ludovici's Bequest to the University of Edinburgh," Mankind Quarterly, Vol.XIII, No.4, pp.191-194.

GREEN, John, "Youth Speaks Out II - A Political Writer. [Anthony Mario Ludovici]," National Review, Vol. 103, August 1934, pp. 220-227.

HARRISON, Austen, "The New Anti-Feminismi," English Review, Vol. 38, January 1924, pp.80-87.
"Woman Understood [Review of Woman. A Vindication by A.M. Ludovici]," English Review, Vol.37, September 1923, pp.339344.

HIMES, Norman E. "In-and-outbreeding," Letter to the Eugenics Review Vol.XXVI, No.1, (April 1934), pp.87-89.

HULME, T.E. "Mr. Epstein and the Critics," New Age, Vol.XIV, No. 8 , (December 25, 1913), pp.251-253.

JEVONS, Henry, "Art Criticism," Letter to the New Age, Vol.XIIT, No.11, (July 10, 1913), p. 311.

No.14, (July 31, 1913), p.406.
KERR, R.B. "Anthony M. Ludovici: The Prophet of AntiaFeminism," in his Our Prophets, Studies of Living Writers , Groydon: R.B. Kerr, 1932, pp.84-99.

KHANOLBAR, V.R., and SPACKMAN, W.C., and SOKHEY, S.S., "The Tmportance to Women of a Youthful Marriage [commentary on Anthony Mario Ludovici's article of the same name]," Marriage Hygiene, Vo1.1, No. 4 (May, 1935), pp.404-407.

LEW゙LS, Wyndham, "Epstein and his Critics, or Nietzsche and his Friends," Letter to the New Age, Vol.XIV, No. 10 (January 8, 1914), p.319.

LINTON, A.E. "Anti-Feminism," Letter to the English Review, Vol XLV, July 1927, pp.2-4.

LUDOVICI, Albert Jnr. An Artist's Life in London and Paris; 1870-1925 London: T. Fisher Unwin, 1926.
"A Pantomime Rehearsal," Theatre, Vo1. 26, February 1, 1891, pp. 72-75.

LUDOVICI, John, "Interview with the author," March 19, 1980, (conducted at Anthony Mario Ludovici's nephew's residence: 1 Hans Place, London SW1).

MAIRET, Philip, A.R. Orage: A Memoir, London:J.M. Dent, 1936.
MARTINE, Wallace, The 'New Age' Under Orage, Manchester University Press, 1967.

MASSINGHAM, H.J. "Values," Letter to the New English Weekly & New Age, Vol.XXI, No.26, (October 15, 1942), p.219.
"Values and Nature," Letter to the New Eng1ish Weekly & New Age, Vol.XXI, No. 23, (September 24, 1942), p. 187.
"NIETZSCHE'S Criticism of Wagner [Review of G.F. Nietzsche The Case Against Wagner and Nietzsche contra Wagner, translated by A.M. Ludovici, (T.N. Foulis) Nation (July 9, 1910 ; ; pp.533-534.

PLENTY, Arthur J. "Mr. Romney Green's Furniture," Letter to New Age, Vol.XIV, No. 25, (April 23, 1914), p.767.
, Letter to the New Age, Vo1.XIV,
No. 26 (April 30, 1914), p. 287.
PITT-RIVERS, George, "The Sick Values of a Sick Age. A Reply to Anthony M. Ludovici (On Conscience and Fanaticism, reviewed October 9, 1919)," New Age, Vol.XXVI, No. 2 (November 13, 1919), pp.25-27.

POMERAI, Ralph de, Marriage, Past, Present and Future: An Outline of the History and Development of Human Sexual Relationships. London: Constable, 1930 .
"Review of Catherine Doyle: the romance of a thricemarried lady, by Anthony Mario Ludovici, (London: Hutchinson \& Co. 1919 ," The Times Literary Supplement, October $30,1919, \mathrm{p} .613$ (c).
"Review of Lysistrata; or, woman's future and future woman, by A.M. Ludovici, (Kegan Paul), "New Age, Vol. XXXVII, No. 2 , (May 14, 1925), pp.21-22.
"Review of Man's Descent from the Gods; or, the complete case against prohibition, by Anthony Mario Ludovici, (London: William Heinemann, 1921)," The Times Literary Supplement, March 24, 1921; p. 199 (b).
"Review of Mansel Fellowes, by Anthony Mario Ludovici, (London: Grant Richards, 1918)," The Times Literary Supplement, November 7, 1918, p. 541 (b).
"Review of 'Raw Virginity'," in Anthony Mario Ludovici, Too 01d for Dolls, London: Hutchinson, 1920 p 296.
"Review of The False Assumptions of 'Democracy,' by Anthony Mario Ludovici, (London; Heath Cranton, 1921 ," The Times Literary Supplement, October 13, 1921, p. 667 (b).
"Review of The Secret of Laughter (Constable, 1932), by Anthony Mario Ludovici," Saturday Review, Vol.154, No.4020, (November 12, 1932), p. 505.
"Review of Too Old for Dolls, A novel, by Anthony Mario Ludovici, (London: Hutchinson 1928 )," The Times Literary Supplement November 25 , 1920 , p. 781 (b).
"Review of What Woman Wishes, by Anthony Mario Ludovici, (London: Hutchinson, 1921 ," The Times Literary Supplement, September 22, 1921, p. 641(c).
R.H.C. "Nietzsche, Culture and Plutocracy," Letter to the New Age, Vo1.XIV, No. 14 (February 5, 1914), p. 446.

RUSSELL, Dora Winifred Countess, Hypatia; or Woman and Knowledge, London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trubner & Co., 1925.

SELVER, Paul, Orage and the 'New Age' Circle. Reminiscences and Reflections, London: George Allen & Unwin, 1959.
SICKERT, Richard, "Mr. Albert Ludovici. [An Obituary]" Letter to The Times, March 26,1932, p. 15.

SMITH, Hamilton T. "An Open Letter to Mr. Ludovici," Letter to the New Age, Vol.XII, No.15., (February 13,1913), pp.363-364.
$\qquad$ , "The Arts and Crafts," Letter to the New Age, Vol.XIT, No.17, (February 27, 1913), p.414.

```
        ANTHONY MARIO LUDOVICI'S POLITICAL AFFILIATES
ENGLISH MISTERY, An Introduction to the Eng1ish Mistery, n.d.
    [July 1944].
_ Book of Ceremonial, London, 1938.
_ Chancellor's Index of Literature. Issued February 1, 1936.
___ Chancellor's Indeex of Literature. Issued February 20, 1936.
_ The Constitution. Order of 1930. No.1.
~.. The Constitution. Order of 1930. No,1, New Edition.
__ A Description of the English Mistery, 1938.
_...The English Mistery, Leaflet of 1934, No.1.
_The English Mistery, Leaflet of 1934, No.2.
_- The Eng1ish Mistery, Leaflet of 1935, No.1.
__ Finance, Order of 1930. No.6.
_ Functions and Composition of the Syndicate, Order of 1930, No. 2 .
- Functions and Composition of the Syndicate, Order of 1930,
___ Membership of the English Mistery, Order of 1930, No.3.
_ Notes on the Orders, 1933.
__O_Ojects. Order of 1930. No.7.
O_Orders of 1932, issued July 1, 1932.
__ Orders of 1933, issued January 1, 1933.
_ Orders of 1931, Numbers 1 to 6, n.d.
___ Revised Orders of 1931, Numbersr 1 to 8, n.d. [May 1931].
__ Revised Orders of 1931.Numbers 1 to 8. n.d. [September 1931].
_ Rules of Conduct for Companions, Order of 1930, No.5.
    Rules of Procedure, for all audiences of the syndicate and meetings of kin.Order of 1930. No.4.
IRVINE, Bryant, "Back to Nobility," National Review, Vol. 100, January 1933.
"Is the House of Lords Noble?," National Review, Vol.101, July, 1933.
ORDER OF THE RED ROSE, [pseud. Wỉliam John Sanderson. (According to British Musseum Catalogue, Vo1. 65 colum 3562, 1961)]. An English War Memorial, Leaflet No.13, n.d. August, 1916 .
```

ORDER OF THE RED RASE, [pseud. William John Sanderson] Rosemary for Rememberance, Pamphlet No. 20, June 191.9.
_ Before and After, Pamphlet No.1. 1913.
The Body Without a Soul, Pamphlet No.5, 1914.
__ Burn your Bonds, Leaflet No.9, n.d. [August 1916].
_ Burn your Bonds, Leaflet No. 14, n.d. [September 1916].
$\ldots$ Burn your Bonds, Leaflet No. 17 n.d. [December 1917].
___ But if not, Pamphlet No. 2, 1913.
_ The Case of the Amble Miners, Pamph1et No. 3, 1916.
D__ Drones in the Hire, Pamphlet No.10, 1916.
_ The Fight Against Degradation, Leaflet No. 2, [June 1914 ].
_ Forgive us our Debts, Leaflet No.11, n.d.[August 1916].
The Industrial Crisis and its effect upon the Acomb Miners, Pamph1et No. 15, 1921.
_ Jesus College Rowing Notes, Pamphlet No.14, 1919.
Like a Thief in the Night, Pamphlet No.12, 1918.
___ Memorandum, Leaflet No:18 n.d. [December 1919].
—. The National Debt, Leaflet No.10, n.d. [August 1916].
___ The Needle's Eye, Leaf1et No. 8, 1916.
___ Noblesse Oblige and National Service, Second Edition, 1913.
___ Order of the Red Rose, n.d. [February 1922].
—_ Order of the Red Rose, Leaflet No. 21, n.d. [February 1922].
_ Order of the Red Rose, Leaflet No. 22, n.d. [December 1923].
Poor Prisoners, Pamphlet No.6, 1914.
——_ Private Property, An Essay on the Political Significance of the Institution, Pamphlet No.11. 1917.
. A Red Rose, Pamphlet No.9, 1916.
$\ldots$ The Red Rose, Leaflet No. 19 n.d. [February 1919$]$.
___ Red Rose Report and Balance Sheet, July 1914, Leaflet No. 3 . n.d.
$\ldots \mathrm{n}_{\mathrm{d} .}^{\text {Red Rose Report }}$ and Balance Sheet, June 1915, Leaflet No. 6, Red Rose Report and Balance Sheet, June 1916, Leaflet No. 8 . n.d.

THE MAIN CONTEMPORARY NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS CONSULTEQ
ACTLON, London: New Movement. Vol. 1, nos, 1-13: 8 October-31 December 1931.

ACTION, London: British Union of Fascists, No. 1-222: 21 February 1936 6 June 1940.

BLACKSHIRT, The, London: British Union of Fascists, Nos. 1-37,58-261:
February 1933 - $5 / 11$ January, 1 June 1934 - May 1939. Not published between 11 January - 1 June 1934, incorporated by Fascist Week, [continued as British Union News], BRITISH FACISM, London: British Fascists, No.1-23; Special summer propoganda no. ; Extra autumn issue; [New Series] no [1]-4. June 1930 - February 1933; (June, October 1933): March June 1934.

BRITISH LION, The, London: British Fascists. No. $[1]-32:$ June 1926 - [November 1929]. [Continued as British Fascism].

BRITISH UNION NEWS, London: British Union of Fascists. No. 262 , June 1939.

BRITISH UNION QUARTERLY, London: British Union of Fascists, Vol.I, No.1, No. 2: January - Apri1, April - July, 1937.

FASCIST, The, London: Imperial Fascist League, No. 1-124: March 1929 - September 1939.

FASCIST BULLETIN, The, London; British Fascists. Vol:2, No. 1-43: 13 June 1925-12 June 1926. [Continued as the British Lion].

FASCIST QUARTERLY, The, London: British Union of Fascists. Vol.I, no.1-Vol.2. no.4: January 1935-October 1936. [Continued as the British Union Quarterly.]

FASCIST WEEK, The, (Incorporated with Blackshirt) London: British Union of Fascists. No.1-29: 10 November 1933-25 May 1934.

NEW AGE, The. A WEEKLY RECORD OF CHRISTIAN CULTURE, SOCIAL SERVICE
AND LITERARY LIFE, London. Vol.XIII No. 17 - vol.XXXVII, No. 3 : 23 February 1911 - 21 May 1925.

NEW ENGLISH WEEKLY, The. A REVIEW OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS, LITERATURE AND THE ARTS, London: Vol.1, no.1-vol.14, no.11; 21 Apri1 193222 December 1938. [Continued as the New English Weekly & New Age, etc.]

NEW ENGLISH WEEKLY AND THE NEW AGE, The, etc. London: Vol.14, no.12/13vol.31, no.: 5 January $1939-10$ April 1947. [Changed name to New English Weekly, etc.]

NEW ENGLISH WEEKLY, The, etc. London. Vol.31. no. vol.55, no.24: 17 Apri1 1947 - 22 September 1949.

NEW PIONEER, The, London. No.1-14: December 1938 - January 1940.
QUARTERLY GAZETTE OF THE ENGLISH ARRAY, The, London: English Array, No.1-6: September 1937 - January 1939.

RECORDER"' S QUARTERLY GUIDE, The, London: English Mistery, No.1-144: September 1936-March 1947.

SOUTH AFRICAN OBSERVER, The, Stellenbosch, Vol.1, No.1 - Vol.XV no.6: May 1955 - May 1970.

FASCISM: PRTMARY SOURCES

ALLEN, W.E.D, [pseud. James Drennan]. B.U.F.: Oswald Mosley and British Fascism, London: John Murray, 1934.

ANNUNZIO, Gabriele d', The Flame of tife, Boston: L.C. Page, 1900.

BARNES, J.S.; The Universal Aspects of Fascism, London: William and Norgate, 1929.

BERNHARDI, Friedrich Adam Julius von., How Germany Makes War, London: Hodder and Stoughton, 1914).

BON, Gustave le., The Crowd; A Study of the Popular Mind, London: London: Unwin, 1922.

BRITISH UNION OF FASCISTS, A:R:P: Be:Prepared! n.d. [Apri1 1939].
$\qquad$ , Big Boy Bevin, n.d. [November 1937].
$\qquad$ , Blackshirts Back Mosley because Mosley backs Britain, n.d. [November 1937].
[April 1939].
, Britain and Jewry, 2nd impression, n.d.
[April 1939].
, British Union and the Transport Workers,
n. d. [November 1937].
; 'British Union' for British Race, n.d.
November 1937].
, The British Union stands for Trade Unionism, n.d. [November 1937].
, Dockers! Nothing has been done, n.d.
[ November 19377.
, The Empire and the British Union, n.d.
[November 1937].
, Is Lancashire Doomed? n.d. [Apri1 1939]:
, The Marching Song, n.d. [November 1937].
$\qquad$ , Menbership Form, November 7, 1932.
$\qquad$ , The Miners' Only Hope, n.d. [November 1937].
$\qquad$ , Pharmacy in British Union, n.d. [April 1939].
, The Simple Jewish Worker, n.d. [November 1937].
, Support Fascism and Save the Fisherman,
n.d. [ November 1937].
; 10 Points of Fascism, n.d. [November 1937].
; To Every Britain, n.d: [November 1937].
$\qquad$ , Trade, Unionists you are the Victims, n.d.
[ November 1937].
——What Jews did in the War, n.d. [November 1937].
BRUCK, Moeller van den. Germany's Third Empire, translated by A. Lorimer, London: George Allen & Unwin, 1934.

CARTHILL, A. The Legacy of Liberalism, London: Philip Allen, 1924.
The Lost Dominion, London: William Blackward, 1924.
CELINE, Louis Ferdinand, Journey to the End of the Night, London: Chatto and Windus, 1934.

CHAMBERLAIN, Houston Stewart, The Foundations of the Nineteenth Gentury, London: John Lane, 1911, 2 vólumes.

CHAMBERS-HUNTER, W.K.A.J., British Union and Social Credit, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. [April 1939].

CHATER, Don. Jews and Reds cause the trouble, London: British Union of Fascist's, n.d. November 1937 .

CHESTERTON, Arthur Keith, Apotheosis of the Jew, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. [November 1937].

CLARKE, E.G., The British Union and the Jews, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. November 1937.
COLAN, [pseud]. 'Then Atheistic Communism will Cease', London: British Union of Fascists; n.d. [November 1937].

FULLER, J.F.C., The Dragon's Teeth, London: Constable, 1932.
(_ Empire, Unity and Defence, Bristol: J.W. Arrowsmith, 1934.
The First of the League Wars, London: Eyre and Spottiswoode, 1936.

March to Sanity, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. [April 1939].

Memoirs of an Unconventional Soldier, London: Iver Nicholson and Watson, 1936.

The Secret Wisdom of Qabalah, A Study in Jewish Mystical Thought, London: Rider, n.d.

Toward Armageddon, London: Lovat Dickson, 1937.
GENTILE, Giovanni, The Genesis and Structure of Society, translated by H.S. Harris, Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1960.
"The Philosophic Basis of Fascism," Foreign Affairs, Vol. 6, No. 2 (January 1928), pp. 290-305.

GINI, Corrado, "The Scientific Basis of Fascism," Political Science Quarterly, Vol.42, No.1, (1927), pp.99-115.

GOBINEAU, Arthur, de, Selected Political Writings, edited and introduced by M.D. Biddiss, London: Jonathan Cape, 1970.

GOERING, Herman, Germany Reborn, London: Elkin Matthews and Marrot Ltd., 1934.

GORDON-CANNING, $R$, The Holy Land, Arab or Jew? British Union of Fascists, n.d. [April 1939].

GORDON-CANNING, R. The Inward Strength of a National Socialist London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. [April 193g]. , Mind Britain's Business, 2nd edition, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. [April 1939].
GOULDING, Michae1, Labour's Peace Policy, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. [April 1939].

GUNTHER, Hans F.K., The Racial Elements of European History, London: Methuen, 1927.

HEYWARD, Peter, Menace of the Chain Stores, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. [April 1939].

HILL, F.D., Gainst Trust and Monopoly, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. [November 1937].

HITLER, Adolf, Hitler's Table Talk, edited by H.R. Trevor-Roper, London: Weidenfeld and Nicholson, 1953.
$\qquad$ . Mein Kampf, translated by James Murphy, London: Hurst and Blackett, 1942.

The Speeches of Adolf Hitler, April 1922-August 1939, edited by Norman H. Baynes, Oxford University Press, 1942, 2 volumes.

IMPERIAL FASCIST LEAGUE, Agriculture comes first, n.d.[Fèbruary 1935].
_-_ Destroy British Imperialism........... n.d. [December 1934], $\qquad$ The Era of Wovld Ruin! (The Era of Democracy), n.d. [March 1934]. Fabian Political Control, n.d. [February 1935].

Freemasonry, 1935.
——The Growing Menace of Freemasonry, n.d. [May 1935].

- The Hidden Hand Revealed in Black and White, n.d.[December 1934].
___ The Jew: Past and Present, n.d. [December 1934].
J_ Jewish Press Control. The London Newspapers, 2nd edition, Revised September 1937.

IMPERIAL FASCIST LEAGUE, The Plan of the Jew, n.d. [March 1934].
$\qquad$ ___ To Gentile Jester (of the Variety Profession), n.d. March 1934].
$\frac{\text { A Tragic Symphony. No. Eng1ishman Need Apply, n.d. [March }}{1934 \text { ]. }}$
JENKS, Jorian, The Land and the People, 4 th impression, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. [April 1939].
JERROLD, Douglas, Georgian Adventure, London: Collins, 1937.
JOYCE, William, National Socialism New, London: National Socialist League, 1937.

KENYON, H.W., Towards Freedom. Trade Unionism: Its History and Future, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. [Apri1 1939]
KEYSERLING, Herman, Europe, London: Jonathan Cape, 1929. The World in the Making, New York: Harcourt, Brace and Co., 1927.

LANE, Barbara Miller, and RUPP, J., eds: Nazi Ideology before 1933: AnDocumentation, Manchester University Press, 1978.

LANG, S., and SCHENK, E., eds. Memoirs of Alfred Rosenberg, Chicago and New York: Zife-Davis, 1949.

LA ROCQUE, A.M.J.F. de, The Fiery Cross. The Call to Public Service in France, London: Lovat Dickson, 1936.

LEESE, Arnold Spencer, Bolshevism is Jewish, n.p: Imperial Fascist League, n.d. March 1934]. Devilry in the Holy Land, n.p: Imperial Fascist League, n.d. [May 1939].

Disraeli the Destroyer, n.p: Imperial Fascist League, n.d. March 1934].
My Irrelevant Defence: Meditations Inside Gaol and Out on Jewish Ritual Murder, London: Imperial Fascist League, 1938.

LUDENDORFF, Erich Friedrich Wilhe1m, The Nation at War, London: Londön; Hutchinson, 1936.

LUDWIG, Emil; Talks with Mussolini, London; (George Allen & Unwin, 1932).
LYTTLETON, Adrian, ed. Itallan Fascisms: From Pareto to Gentile, London: Jonathan Gape, 1973.

MALAPARTE; Curzio, Coup BEtat: The Techinque of Revolution, New York; E.P.Dutton, 1932 .

MAURRAS, Charles, "Prologue to an essay on criticism," Criterion, Vol.VII, No.3, March 1928, pp.204-218.

January 1928, pp.5-15. ; Criterion, Vol.VII, No. 1 ,

MICHELS, Robert, First Lectures on Political Sociology, New York: Arno Press, 1974.

Political Parties, Glencoe, Illinois: Free Press 1958.
MOSCA, Gaetano, The Ruling Class, edited by A. Livingstone, New York and London: McGraw-Hil1, 1939.

MOSLEY, Oswald, Europe: Faith and P1an, London: Euphorion, 1958. Fascism Explained, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. February 1933].

Fascism: 100 Questions Asked and Answered, London: British Union of Fascists, 1936.

Fascism in Britain, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. November 1937.

The Greater Britain, 2nd impression, London: British Onione of Fascists, 1932.

My Answer, Second Edition, Ramsbury, Wiltshire: Mosley Publications, 1946. My Life, London: Nelson, 1968.

A National Policy, London: Macmillan, 1931.
Taxation and the People, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. [Apri11939].

Tomorrow We Live, Sixth edition, London: Greater Britain, 1939.
"Tomorrow We Live," 8th edition, in his My Answer, Second Edition, Ramsbury, Wiltshire: Mosley Publications, 1946.

MUSSOLINI, Benito, My Autobiography, Westport, Conneticut: Greenwood Press, 1970.

NAUMANN, Friedrich, Central Europe, London: P.S. King, 1916.
OAKESHOTT, Michael; ed. The Social and Political Doctrines of Contemporary Europe, Cambridge University Press, 1939.

PALMIERI, Mario, The Philosophy of Fascism, New York: Fortuny's, 1936.
PRIMO DE RIVERA, Jose Antonio, Selected Writings, edited and introduced by Hugh Thomas, London: Jonathan Cape, 1972.

QUISLING, Vidkun, Russia and Ourselves, London: Hodder & Stoughton, 1931.

RAMSAY, A.H.M., The Nameless War, 3rd edition, London; Britons, 1954.
RAVEN, Alexander, [pseud, for Alexander Raven Thompson? Civilisation as Divipe Superman, London: Williamand Norgate, 1932.
ROSENBERG, Alfred, Selected Writings, edited and introduced by Robert Pois, London: Jonathan Cape, 1970.
SCHMITT, Carl, The Necessity of Politics, with introduction by Christopher Dawson, London: Sheel and Ward, 1931.

SILLANI, T, ed., What is Fascism and Why? London: Ernest Benn, 1931. SOMBART, Werner, Socialism and the Social Movement, London: J.M. Dent, 1909.

A New Social Philosophy, New York: Greenwood, 1969.
SOREL, Georges, The Illusion of Progress, Berkeley and Los Angeles: University of California Press, 1969.

Reflections on Violence, introduced by E.A. Shils, translated by T.E. Hulme and J. Roth, London: Collier-Macmillan, 1972.

SPENGLER, Oswald, The Decline of the West, New York: Knopf. 2 volumes.
The Hour of Decision, London: George Allen & Unwin, 1934, reissued 1963.

Man and Technics, London: George Allen & Unwin, 1932.
Selected Essays, translated and introduced by D.O. White, Chicago: Henry Regnery, 1967.

Speng1er's Letters, 1913-1936, translated by A. Helps, London: George Allen & Unwin, 1966.

STAPEL, Wilhelm," The Coming Conservative Revolution," translated by Brian Lunn, English Review, Vo1. 53, June 1935.

STIRNER, Max, The Ego and His Own, edited and introduced by J. Carroll, London: Jonathan Cape, 1971.

STRASSER, Otto, Germany Tomorrow, London: Jonathan Cape, 1940.
. History in my time, London: Jonathan Cape, 1941.
.... Hitler and I, London: Jonathan Cape, 1940.
THOMPSON, Alexander Raven, Big Fish and Little Fish, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. [ November 1937].
The Coming Corporate State, London: British Union of Fascists, nod. [April 1939].

Our Financial Masters, London: British Union of Fascists, n.d. April 1939].

WAGNER, Richard Wilhelm, Richard Wagner's Prose Works, Vol.IV, trans lated by W.E. E11am, London; Kegan Paul, French, Trubner & Co. Ltd., 1912.

YEATS-BROWN; F. Bengal Lancer, London: Victor Gollancz, 1932.

FASCISM: SECONDARY SOURCES

ADAMS, John Clarke, "Some antecedents of the theory of the corporative system," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.3, No.2, (1942), pp.182-189.

AlIOTTA, Antonio, The Idealistic Reaction Against Science, London: Macmillan 1914.

ALLARDYCE, G., ed., The Place of Fascism in European History, Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey: Prentice-Hal1, 1971.
"The Political Transition of Jacques Doriot," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.1, No.1, 1966, pp.56-75.

ANCELET-HUSTACHE, Meister Eckhart, New York, 1957.
ANDERSON, Eugene N., "German Romanticism as an Ideology of Cultural Crisis," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol,II, Number 3, 1942, pp.301-317.

ARENDT, Hannah, The Human Condition, New York: Doubleday, 1959.
ARONSFIELD, G.C. "The Britons Publishing Society," Wiener Library Bulletin, Vol.XX, No. 3, New Series, No.4, (Summer 1966,) pp.31-37.

ASCHER, Abraham, and LEWY, Guenter, "National Bolsevism in Weimer Germany - Alliance of Political Extremes Against Democracy," Social Research, Vol.23, No.4, (Winter 1956), pp.450-481.

BALL, M. Margaret, "The Leadership Principle in National Socialism," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.III, No.1, (1942), pp.74-93.

BARBU, Z., Democracy and Dictatorship, New York: Grove Press, 1956.
BARZUN, Jacques, Race: A Study in Superstition, New York: Harper and Row, 1965.
"Romantic Historiography as a Political Force in France," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vo1. IIT, Number 3, (1942), pp. 330-338.

BEETHAM, David, "From Socialism to Fascism, The Relation between Theory and Practice in the work of Robert Michels. From Marxist Revolutionary to Political Sociologist," Political Studies, Vol.XXV, No.1 (March 1977); pp.3-24.

From Socialism to Fascism, the Relation between Theory and Practice in the work of Robert Michels. The Fascist Ideologue," Political Studiès, Vō. XXV, No. 2 (June 1977), pp.161-181.
"Reply to Bennett," Political Studies, Vol.XXVI, No.4, (December 1978), pp.488-491.

BELL, Daniel, ed., The Radical Right, New York: Anchor, 1964.
BENDA, Julian, The Betrayal of the Intellectuals, Boston: Beacon Press, 1955.

BENEWICK, Robert, The Fascist Movement in Britain, London: Penguin, 1972.
"Interpretations of British Fascism," Political Studies, Vol. 24 , No. 3 (1976), pp.320-324.

BENNETT, E.K. Stefan George, Cambridge: Bowes and Bowes, 1954.

BENNETT, R.J. "The Elite Theory as Fascist Ideology - A Reply to Beetham's Critique of Robert Michels," Political studies, Vo1.XXVI, No.4, (December 1978), pp.474-489.

BERGONZI, Bernard, "Roy Campbell: Outsider on the Right," Journal of Contemporary History, Vo1.2, No. 2 (1967), pp.133-147.

BIDDIS, Michael D, Father of Racist Ideology: The political and social thought of Count Gobineau, London: Weidenfeld and Nicholson, 1970.
"Gobineau and the origins of European Racism," Race: Journal of the Institute of Race Relations, Vol.7, No.3, pp. 255-270.
"The Intellectualisation of Prejudice: Race and Political Theory," Alta, Winter 1967-1968.
___ "Myths of Blood," Patterns of Prejudice, Vol.9, No.5 (1975).
… "Racial Ideas and the Politics of Prejudice, 1850-1914," Historical Journal, Vol.XIVे, No. 3 (1972), pp.570-582.
"Racialist Philosophies," Wiener Library Bulletin, Vol XX, No.3, New Series, No. 4 (1966), pp.31-37.

BIERER, Dora, "Renan and his Interpreters: A Study in French Intellectual Warfare," Journal of Modern History, Vol.25, No.4, (December 1953), pp.375-390.

BISCHOFF, R.F. Nazi Conguest through German Culture, Harvard University Press, 1942.

BLOOM, Solomon F., "The Peasant Caesar, Hitler's Union of German Imperialism and Eastern Reaction," Commentary, Vol. 23 (1957), pp. 406-418.

BLUME, Hilary S, "A Study of Anti-Semitic Groups in Britain 19181940" (Sussex University, M.Phil: thesis, 1971).

BOTZ, Gerhard, "Austro-Marxist Interpretations of Fascism; "Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.II, No. $4,(1976)$, pp.129-157.

BOURKE, Vernon, J. "The Philosophical Antecedents of German National Socialism," Thought, Vo1.XIV, (June 1939), pp.225-241.

BOWEN, R.H. German Theories of the Corporate State, New York: Russell and Russel1, 1971.

BRAMSTED, E.K. Goebbels and National Socialist Propoganda, Michigan, State University Press, 1965.

BREWER, J.D., "British Union of Fascists, Sir Oswald Mosley and Birmingham: An Analysis of the Content and Context of an Ideology" (Birmingham Univ., M.Soc.Sci. thesis, 1975).

BRIEFS, Goetz A., "The Economic Philosophy of Romanticism," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.III, No. 3 (1942), pp.279-300.

BRINTON, Crane, "The National Socialists' Use of Nietzsche," Journal of the History of:Ideas, Vol. 1, No. 2 (Apri1 1940), pp.131-151.

BROSŻAT, Martin, German National Socialism 1919-1945, Santa Barbaro, C1io Press, 1966.

BURDEN, Hamilton J. The Nuremberg Party Rallies 1923-1939, London: Pa11 Ma11, 1967.

BURNHAM, James, The Machiavellians, Chicago: Regnery, 1963.
BUTHMANN; William Curt, The Rise of Integral Nationalism in France, Columbia University Press, 1945.

BUTLER, R, D'O, The Roots of National Socialism 1783-1933, London: Faber & Faber, 1941.

BYRNES, Robert F., "Mores 'The First National Socialist'," Review of Politics, Vol.XII, (July 1950), pp.341-362.

CALDWELL, William, Pragmatism and Idealism, London: Adam and Charles Black, 1913.

CAMMETT, John M, "Communist Theories of Fascism 1920-1935," Science and Society; Vol.31, (1967), pp.149-163.

CANNISTRATO, P.V., "Mussolini's Cultural Revolution Fascist or Nationalist?," Journal of Contemporary History, Vo1.7, Nos. 3-4, (1972), pp.115-141.

CARPENTER, L.P. "Corporation in Britain 1930-1945," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.11, No.1 (1976), pp.3-27.

CARR, C.T. JJulius Langbehn - a forerunner of German National Socialism," German Life and Letteers, Vol.III, 1938-1939, pp.45-54.

CARR, E.H. "Radek's 'Political Salon' in Berlin," Soviet Studies, Vol. TII, No.4, 1951-1952, pp.411-430.

CARSTEN, F., The Rise of Fascism, London: Batsford, 1967.
CASPAR, C., "Mein Kampf - A Best Seller," Jewish Social Studies, January 1958; pp.3-16.

CECIL , Robert, The Myth of the Master Race, Alfred Rosenberg and Nazi Tdeology, New York: Dodd Mead, 1972.

CHANDLER, A.R., "The Political Typology of Moeller van den Bruck," in M.R. Konvitz and A.E. Murphy ed Essays in Political Theory; New York: Ithaca, 1948.
_ Rosenberg's Nazi Myth, New York: Greenwood, 1968.
CLARK, Evelyn A. "Adolf Wagner (1835-1917): From National Economist to National Socialist," Political Science Quarterly, Vol. 55 , No. 3 (1940), pp. $378 \cdots 41$.

CLOUGH, R.J. Futurism: The Story of a Modern Art Movement, New York: Philosophical Library, 1961.

COHN, Norman, Warrant for Genocide, London: Pelican, 1970.
CROCE, Benedetto, A History of Italy 1870-1915, Oxford: Charendon Press, 1929.

CROSS, Colin, The Fascists in Britain, London: Barrie and Rockcliffe, 1961.

CURTIS, M. Three Against the Third Republic, Princeton University Press, 1959.

DEAK, Istran, "National-Socialism in Hungary 1920-1938," (Columbia University M.A. thesis).

DODGE, P Beyond Marxism: The Faith and Works of Hendrik de Man, Hague: Martinus Nighoff, 1966.

DOMANDI, Mario, "The German Youth Movement," (Columbia University, Ph.D. thesis, 1960).

DORRALEN, Andreas, "Heinrich von Treitzschke," Journal of Contemporary History, Vo1.7, Nos.3-4, (1972), pp.21-57.

DUFFLER, Jost, "Bonapartism, Fascism and National Socialism "Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.11, No.4, (1976), pp.109-129.

EDMONDSON, Nelson, "The Fichte Society: A Chapter in Germany's Conservative Revolution," Journal of Modern History, Vol.38, (June 1966), pp.161-181.

EDWARDS, P.G., "The Foreign Office and Fascism 1924-1929," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.5, No.2. (1970), pp.153-161.

EISENBERG, Dennis, The Re-Emergence of Fascism, London: MacGibbon and Kee; 1967.

ELBON, Matthew H. French Corporative Theory, New York: Columbia University Press, 1953.

FALK, Minna R., "Review of Klemens von Klemperer's Germany's New Conservatism, Its History and Dilemma in the Twentieth Century, Journal of Central European Affairs, Vol.18, (1958), pp,211-212.

FELICE, Renzo de, Fascism: An Informal Introduction to its Theory and Practice, New Brunswick: Transaction Books, 1976.

Interpretations of Fascism, translated by B. H. Everett, Harvard University Press, 1977.

FERKISS, Victor C. "Ezra Pound and American Fascism," Journal of Politics; Vol.17, No. 1, February 1955.
"Populist Influences in American Fascism," Western Political Quarterly, Vol.10, No.2, June 1957, pp, 350-373.

FIELD, Frank, Three French Writers and the Great War, Cambridge University Press, 1975.

FINE, Martin, "Towards Corporation: The Movement for Capital-Labour Collaboration in France 1914-1936," (Wisconsin Univ, Ph.D. thèsis, 1969).

FINER, Herman, Mussolini's Italy, London: Victor Gollancz, 1935.

> FORD, Douglas, W. "The Forgotten Falangist: Ernesto Gimenez Caballero," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol 10 , No.1 (1975), pp.3-18.

FRIEDRICH, Carl J. and BRZEZINSKI, Zbigniew K., Totalitarian Dictatorship and Autocracy, Cambridge, Massachussetts: Harvard University Press, 1965.

GASMAN, Daniel, The Scientific Origins of National Socialism, Social Dawinism in Ernst Haeckel and the Monist League, London: Macdonald, 1971.

GERMINO, Dante, "Italian Fascism in the History of Political Thought," Midwest Journal of Political Science, Vol.VIII, No.2, (May 1964), pp.109-126.

GILBERT, Felix, "Mittel Europa:The Final Stage," Journal of Central European Affairs, Vol.7, No. 1 (April 1947).

GLASER, Hermann; The Cultural roots of national socialism, translated with an introduction and notes by E.A. Menze, London: Croom Helm, 1978.

GOAD, Harold E, and CURRY, Muriel, The working of a Corporate State, London: Iver Nicholson and Watson, 1933.

GOLDBERG, Harvey, "Jean Jaures and the Jewish Question: The Evolution of a Position, Jewish Social Studies, Vo1.XX, No.2, April 1958.

GRANDE, A.J. de, "Curzio Malaparte: The Tliusion of the Fascist Revolution," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.7, No.1, (1972), pp.73-91.

GREENE, Nathaniel, ed. Fascism: An Anthology, New York: Crowel1, 1968.
GREGOR, A.J., Contemporary Radical Ideologies, New York: Random House, 1968 .
"Fascism and Comparative Politics. A Review Essay," Comparative Political Studies, Vol.IX, July 1976, pp.207-222.
"Fascism and Modernization," World Politics, Vod. 26, (1973-1974), pp. 370-385.
"Giovanni Gentile and the Philosophy of the Young Karl Marx," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol. XXIV, No. 2, (1963), pp.213-231.

The Ideology of Fascism, New York: Free Press, 1969.
"On Understanding Fascism: A Review of Some Contemporary Literature," American Political Science Review, 1976.
"Professor Renzoode Felice and the Fascist Phenomenon," World Politics, Vo1.XXX, No.3, (April 1978), pp.433-450.

GRILLI, Marcel, "The Nationality of Philosophy and Bertrando Spaventa," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.3, No. 3 (1942), pp.359-371.

GROSS, David, "Heinrich Mann and the Politics of Reaction, Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.8, No. 1 (1973), pp.125-147.

GROSSMAN, Stanley, "Neo-Socialism: A Study in Political Metamorphosis," (Wisconsin University, Ph.D. thesis, 1969).

GULINI, Carlo, "Giovanni Pagini and American Pragmatism," Italica, Vo1.XXXII (1955), pp.38-48.

GULLACI, Giovanni, "The Pragmatist Movement in Italy," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.XXIII, No.1 (1962), pp.91-107.

HAAG, J.J. "Othmar Spann and the Politics of 'Totality': Corperatism in Theory and Practice," (Rice University, Ph.D. thesis, 1969).

HAMILTON, Alistair, The Appeal of Fascism, London: Anthony Blond, 1971.
HARRIS, H.S., The Social Philosophy of Giovanni Gentile, Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1960.

HARRISON, T.R.; The Reactionaries: W.B. Yeats, Wyndham Lewis, Ezra Pound, D.H. Lawrence, London: Victor Gollanz, 1966.

HAYES, Carlton T.H., A Generation of Materialism, 1871-1900, New York and London: Harper Brothers, 1941.

HAYES, P.M., Fascism, London: George Allen & Unwin, 1971.
Quisling, Newton Abbott: David and Charles, 1971.
"Quisling's Political Ideas," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.1, No. 1 (1966), pp.145-158.

HELLIER, Eric, The Disinherited Mind, London: Penguin, 1961.
HENTSCHEL, Cyril, The Byronic Teuton, Aspects of German Pessimism 1800-1933, London; Mathuen, 1940.

HERTZMANN, Lewis, D.N.V.P., Right Wing Opposition in the Weimar Replubic, Lincoln: University of Nebraska Press, 1963.

HOFFMAN, Stanley, "Collaboration in France During World War II," Journal of Modern History, Vol.40, No.3, September 1968, pp.396-411.

HOLBORN, Kajo, "Origins and Political Character of Nazi Ideology," Political Science Quarterly, Vol.LXXIX, No. 4 (1964), pp. 542-554.

HOLMES, Roger Wéllingtou, The Idealism of Giovanni Gentile, New York: Macmillans $1 \overline{937 .}$

HUGHES, Arnold and Kolinsky, Martin, "'Paradigmatic Fascism' and Modernisation: A Critique," Political Studies, Vol.XXIV, No. 4 (December 1976), pp.371-396.

HUGHES, H. Stuart, Consciousness and Society: The Reorientation of European Social Thought. 1890-1930. London: MacGibbon and Kee, 1959.

Oswald Spengler: A Critical Estimate, London: Charles Scribner ${ }^{\text {s }}$, 1952.
"Review of Germany's. New Conservatism: Its History and Dilemma in the 20 th Century, by Klemens von Klemperer," Commentary, Vol.XXIV, (November 1957), pp.470-473.

HUMPHREY, Richard, Georges Sorel: Prophet without Honour, Harvard University Press, 1951.
HURST, Michael, "What is Fascism?" Historical Journal, Vol.XI,
No.1 (1968), pp. 165-185.
HUTTON, p.H., "Popular Boulangism and the Advent of Mass Politics in France, 1886-1890," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.
11, No. 4 (1976), pp.1-17.

INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL FOR PHILOSOPHY AND HUMANISTIC STUDIES, The Third Reich. Essays on the National-Socialist movement in Germany. London: Weidenfeld and Nicholson, 1955.

IRVINE, William P. "French Conservatives and the 'New Right' during the 1930s," French Historical Studies, Vol.VIII, No. 4 , (Fa11 1974).

JACKSON, Holbrook, The Eighteen Nineties: A Review of Art and Ideas at the End of the Nineteenth Century, London: Grant Richards, 1913.

JACABSON, Dan, "D.H. Lawrence and Modern Society," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.2, No. 2 (1967), pp.65-80.

JAMES, William, "Giovanni Pa pini and the Pragmatist Movement in Italy," Journal of Philosophy, Psychology and Scientific Methods, Vol.III, No.13 (June 21, 1906), pp, 337-341.

JELLICKA, Eudwig, "The Austrian Heimwehr," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.1, No.1 (1966), pp.127-145.

JENSEN-BUTLER, B. "Theories of Fascism: A study of some interpretations of the rise of the Nazi Party in Germany," (Durham University M.A. thesis, 1973).

JOAD, C.E.M., "Prologomena to Fascism," Political Quarterly, Vol.2, (1931), pp.82-99.

JOLL, James, Three Intellectuals in Politics, London: Weidenfeld and Nicollson, 1960.

KANN, Robert A, "Wolfgang Menzel: Pioneer of Integral Nationalism," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.6, No.2, (1945), pp. 385-414.

KELE, Max H. Nazis and Workers: National Socialist Appeals to German Labour, University of North Carolina Press, 1972.

KERMODE, Frank, The Sense of an Ending, Oxford University Press, 1967, reprint 1977.

KESSLER, Harry Klemens Ulrich, graf von, Walter Rathenau; his life and work, New York: Harcourt, Brace and Co., 1930.

KITCHEN, Martin, "August Thalheimer: theory of fascism;" Journal of the History of Ideas; Vol.34, No. 1 (1973), pp.67-78.
___ Fascism, London: Macmillan, 1976.

KOEHL, Robert, "Feudal Aspects of National Socialism," American Political Science Review, Vol.54, No.4, (December 1960) pp.921~934.

KOLNAI, Anrel; The War Against the West, London: Victor Gollancz, 1938.

KREBS, Gerhard, "Moeller van den Bruck: Inventor of the Third Reich'," American Political Science Review, Vol.35, No.6, (December, 1941), pp.1085-1106.

KRIEGER, Leonard, The German Idea of Freedom, University of Chicago Press, 1957.

KUEHNEMUND, Richard, "German Prophets of Doom and Hope," Journa1 of the History of Ideas, Vol.3, No.4, (1972), pp.443-457.

LANE, Barbara Miller, "Nazi Ideology: Some Unfinished Business," Central European History, Vol.VII, Number 1, (March 1974).

LAQUER, Walter, Russia and Germany: A Centüry of Conflict, London; Weidenfeld and Nicolson, 1965.
ed. Fascism; A Reader's Guide, London; Weidenfeld and Nicolson, 1976.

LAUTERBACH, Albert J. "Militarism in the Western World," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.5, No.4 (1944), pp.446-478.

LEBOVICS, Herman, Social Conservatism and the Middle Classesin Germany 1914-1933, Princeton University Press, 1969.

LEBSELTZER, Gisela C., Political Anti-Semitism in England 1918-1939.
LEDEEN, M.A., Universal Fascism, New York: Howard Fertig, 1972.
LEVEY, Jules, "Georges Valois and the Faisceau: The Making and Breaking of a Fascist," Erench Historical Studies; Vol.VIII, No. 2 (Fall 1973).

LION, Aline, The Pedigree of Fascism, London: Sheed and Ward, 1927.
LIPSET, Seymour Martin, "'Fascism' - Left, Right and Centre," in his Political Man, London: Heinemann, 1960, pp.131-173.

LOUGEE, R.W: Paul de Lagarde, 1827-1891, Harvard University Press, 1972.
"Paul de Lagarde as Critic-A Romantic Protest in an Age of Realism, "Journal of Central European Affairs, Vol.XIII (October 1953), pp.232-245.

LOVEJOY, Arthur, 0. "The Meaning of Romanticism for the Historian of Ideas," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.III, No. 3. (1942), pp.257-278.
"The Practical Tendencies of Bergsonism," Parts Iand II, International Journal of Ethics, Vol.XXIII, (1912-1913).

LYTTLETON, Adrian, "Fascism in Italy: The Second Wave," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.1, No. 1 (1966), pp.75-101.

MACDONALD, J.M., A Political Escapade: The Story of Fiume and D'Annunzio, London: John Murray, 1962.

McGOVERN, W.M. From Luther to Hitler: The History of Fascist-Nazi Political Philosophy, 2nd edition, Boston and New York: Houghton Mif1in, 1973.

McRANDLE, J.H. The Track of the Wolf, Evanston, Illinois: Northwestern University, 1965.

MAEHL, William, "The Triumph of Nationalism in the German Socialist Party on the eve of the First World War," Journal of Modern History, Vol.XXIV, No. 1 (March 1952), pp.15-42.

MAIER, L.S. "Between Taylorism and Technocracy," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.15, No. 2 (1970), pp.27-61.

MANN, Golo, "The German Intellectuals," Encounter, Vol.IV, June 1955, pp.42-49.

MANNHEIM, Karl, Ideology and Utopia, London: Routledge & Kegan Paul, 1972.

MANNING, Maurice, The Blueshirts, Dublin: Gill and Macmillan, 1970.
MARRUSS, Michael R., The Politics of Assimilation: A Study of the French Jewish Comunity, at the time of the Dreyfus Affair, Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1971.

MASER, Werner, Hitler's 'Mein Kampf,' London: Faber and Faber, 1970.
MASON, John B, "Nazi Concepts of History," Review of Politics, Vo. 2 (April 1940).

MASUR, Gerhard, Prophets of Yesterday: Studies in European Culture, 1850-1914, London; Weidenfeld and Nico1son, 1963.

MATTHEWS, H.L. The Fruits of Fascism, New York: Harcourt, Brace and Co., 1943.

MAYER, Car1, "On the Intellectual Origins of National Socialism," Social Research, Vol.IX, No.2, (May 1942), pp. 225-247.

MEGARO, Gaudens; Mussolini in the Making, London: George Allen & Unwin, 1978.

MEISEL, James H. ed. Pareto and Mosca, Englewood Cliifs, New Jersey: Prentice-Ha11, 1965.
$\qquad$ , The Genesis of Georges Sore1, Michigan: Ann Arbor, 1958.
The Myth of the Ruling Class, Gaetano Mosca and the Elite, Michigan; Ann Arbor, 1958.

MELOGRANO, Piero, "The Gult of the Duce in Mussoline's Italy," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.11, No. 4 (1976), pp.221-239.

MEYER, Henry C, Mitteleuropa in German Thought and Action 1815-1945, The Hague: Martinus Ni-jhoff, 1955.

MICAUD, Char1es A, The French Right and Nazi Germany: 1933-1939, New York: Octagon Books, 1964.

MOMMSEN, Hans, "National Socialism," in C.D. Kernig, ed. Marxism, Communism and Western Society, A Comparative Encyclpedia, Vo1.VI, New York: Herder and Herder, 1972; pp.65-74.

MOSSE, G.L., "Caesarism, Circuses, and Movements," Journal of Contemporary History, Vo1.6, No. 2 (1971), pp.167-182. The Crisis of German Ideology, London: Weidenfeld and Nicolson, 1964.

The Culture of Western Europe, London: John Murray, 1963.
"The French Right and the Working Class: Les Jaunes," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.7, Nos.3-4, pp.185-209.
"The Genesis of Fascism," Journal of Contemporary History, Vo1.1, No.1. (1966), pp.14-27.
"The Mystical Origins of National Socialism," Journal of the History of Ideas; Vol.22, No.1 (1961); pp.81-97. The Nationalisation of the Masses: Political Symbolism and Mass Movements in Germany from the Napoleonic Wars through the Third Reich, New York: Ferfig, 1975.
> "The Poet and the exercise of Political Power: Gabrielle D'Annunzio," $Y$ earbook of Comparative and General Literature, Vol.22, (1973), pp.32-42.

MULLALLY, F. Fascism Inside England, London: Claud Morris, 1946 .
MULLER, Klaus-Jurgen; "French Fascism and Modernisation," Journal of Contemporary History, Vo1.11, No.4, (1976), pp.109-129.

MURPHY, R.E. et. al. National Socialism, Washington: U.S. Government Printing Office, 1943.

NAGY-Talavera, The Green Shirts and the Others, Stanford University Press, 1970.

NICOLSON, Harold, Diaries and Letters 1930-1939, London: Collins, 1973.

NOAKES, Jeremy, "Conflict and Development in the NSDAP, , Journal of Contemporary History, Vo1.1, No.4, (1966), pp.3-37.

NOLTE, Ernst, Three Faces of Facism, New York: Signet, 1969.
OBERLANDER, Erwin, "The All-Russian Fascist Party," Journal of Contemporary History; Vol.1, No. 1 (1966), pp. $158 \times 174$.

09GOOD, Samuel, French Royalism since 1870, The Hague; Martinus Nijhoff, 1970 .

PARKS, M.G., Introduction to Keyserling, London: Jonathan Cape, 1934.

PARSONS, Talcott, "Some Sociological Aspects of the Fascist Movements," in his Essays in Sociological Theory, New York: Free Press, 1964.

PAYNE, Stanley, J. Falange: A History of Spanish Fascism, Stanford University Press, 1971.

PHELPS, Reginald H. "'Before Hitler Came,': Thule Society and German Order ng" Journal of Modern History, Vo1.XXXV, No.3, (1963), pp.245-262.
"Review of Klemens von Klemperer's Germany's New Conservatism;"s $\frac{\text { Journal of Modern History, Vol.29, No. } 4 \text { (December 1957), pp. }}{402-403}$ 402-403.

PHILLIPS, Percival, The 'Red Dragon' and the Blackshirts. The True Story of the Fascist Movement, London: Daily Mail, 1923.

POIS; Robert A, "German Expressionism in the Plastic Arts and Nazism: A Confrontation of Idealists," German Life and Letters, Vol. XXI, No.3, (April 1968), pp.204-214.

POULANTZAS, Nicos, Fascism and Dictatorship; the Third International and the problem of Fascism, London: 1974.

PROSS, Harry, "On Thomas Mann's Political Career," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.2, No. 2 (1967), pp.65-80.

PULZER, P.J., Political Anti-Semitism in Germany and Austria, London: John Wiley, 1964.

RABINBACH, Anson, G. "The Aesthetics of Production in the Third Reich," Journal of Contemporary History, Vo1.11, No. 4 (1976), pp.157-185.

RANDAL, John Herman, "The Changing Impact of Darwin on Philosophy," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.XXII, No. 4 (1961), pp.435-462.

RAPPARD, William E, et al. Source Book on European Governments, New York: Van Nosfrand, 1937.

RAUSCHNING, Herman; Germany's Revolution of Destruction, Road to Nihilism, London: Heinemann, 1940.

The Beast from the Abyss, London: Heinemann, 1941.
RHODES, Anthony, The Poet as Superman: Gabrielle D'Annunziog London: Weidenfeld and Nicolson, 1959.

RIDGE, George R. The Hero in French Decadent Literature, University of Georgia Press, 1961.

RIDLEY , F.F. Revolutionary Syndicalism in France, Cambridge University Press, 1970.

ROGERS, James A, "Darwinism and Social Darwinism," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.XXXIII, No, 2 (1972), pp.265-281.

ROTNSTREICH, N., The Recurring Pattern, London: Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1963.

ROTH, J.J., "Revolution and Morale in Modern French Thought: Sorel and Sorelism," French Historical Studies, Vol.III, No.4, (Fall 1963), pp. $\overline{205-223 .}$
"The Roots of Italian Fascism: Sorel and Sorelismo," Journal of Modern History, Vol. 39 (March 1967), pp.30-46.

RUTKOFF, Peter M, "The Ligue des Patriotes: The Nature of the Radical Right and the Dreyfus Affair," French Historical Studies, Vol.VIII, No.4, (Fall 1975).

SALOMONE, A. William, Italian Democracy in the Making, Philadelphia: Undversity of Pennsylvania Press, 1945.

SALVEMINI, G: Under the Axe of Fascism, New York: Howard Ferfig, 1969.

SARTI, Roland, "Fascist Modernisation in Italy: Traditional or Revolutionary?" American Historical Review, Vol.LXXV, No.4, (April 1970), pp.1029-1045.

SCHAPIRO, J. Salwyn, Liberalism and the Challenge of Fascism, Social Forces in England and France 1815-1870, New York: McGraw Hill, 1969.

SCHEIDER, W. "Fascism," in C.D. Kernig ed. Marxism, Communism and Western Society. A Comparative Encyclopedia, Vol.III, New York: Harder and Harder, 1972, pp. 282-302.

SCHNURER, Herman, "The Intellectual Sources of French Fascism," Antioch Review, Vol. 1 (March 1941), pp.35-49.

SCHORSKE, Car1 E, "Politics in a New Key: An Austrian Triptych," Journa1. of ModernHistory, December 1967, pp.343-387.

SCHUDDEKOPK, Otto-Ernst, Revolutions of Our Time - Fascism, Weidenfeld and Nicolson, 1973 .

SCóTT, J.W., Syndicalism and Philosophical Realism, London: Adam and Charles Black, 1919.

SELIGER, M. "The Idea of Conquest and Race Thinking during the Restoration," Review of Politics, Vol. 22, No 4 (October 1960).

SETON-WATSON, Hugh, "Fascism, Right and Left," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.1, No. 1 (1966), pp.183-197.

SETON-WATSON, Christopher, Italy from Liberalism to Fascism, 1870-1925, London: Methuen, 1967.

SETTEMBRINI, Domenico, "Mussolini and the Legacy of Revolutionary Socialism," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.11, No.4, (1976), pp.239-269.

SHEPPARD, Michael D. "Adrian Moulin, Study of a Swedish Right Wing Radical" (Northwestern University, Ph.D. thesis, 1969).

SILBERNER, Edmund, "Anti-Jewish Trends in French Revolutionary Syndicalism," Jewish Social Studies, Vol.15, Parts 3-4, pp.195-202.

SKIDELSKY, Robert, Oswald Mos1ey, London: Macmillan, 1975.

SMITH, D. Mack, Mussolini's Roman Empire, London: Penguin, 1977.
SOUCY, , Robert J. Fascism in France: The Case of Maurice Barres, Berkeley: University of California Press, 1972.
"French Fascist Intellectuals in the 1930s: An 01d New Left?" French Historical Studies, (1973), pp.445-458.
"The Nature of Facism in France," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.1, No.1., (1966), pp.27-56.
"Romanticism and Realism in the Fascism of Drieu La Rochelle," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vo1.31, No. 1 (1970), pp.69-91.
$\qquad$ "French Fascism as Class Conciliation and Moral Regeneration," Societas, Vol.1, No. 4 (Autumn 1971), pp. 287-298.

STACHURA, P.D., "The Ideology of the Hitler Youth in the Kampfzeit," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.8, No.3, (1973), pp. 155-167.

STERN, Fritz, The Politics of Cultural Despair, Berkeley and Los Angeles: University of California Press, 1963.

STERNHELL, Zeev, "Fascist Ideology," in Walter Lagner ed. Fascism: A Reader's Guide; Berkeley and Los Angeles: University of California Press: 1976.
"Irrationalism and Violence in the French Radical Right; The Case of Maurice Barrese, "in Philip P. Weiner and John Fisher, ed. Violence and Aggression in the History of Ideas, Rutgers University Press, 1974.
"National Socialism and Anti-Semitism: The Case of Maurice Barres," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.8, No. 4 (1973).
… "Paul Deroulede, and the origins of modern French nationalism," Journa1 of Contemporary History, Vol.6, No. 4 (1971), pp.46-70.

STEWART, William K , "The Mentors of Mussolini," American Political Science Review, Vol.XXIL, No.4, (November 1928), pp.843-870.

STIRK, S.D. The Prussian Spirit. A Survey of German Literature and Politics, London; Faber and Faber, 1941.

STRUZIE, Walter, Elites against Democracy, leadership ideals in Bourgeois Political Thought In Germany 1890-1933, Princeton University Press, 1973.

SUGAR, P.F., ed. Native Fascism in the Successore States 1918-1945, Santa Barbara, California: 1971.

SZYMANSKI, Albert, "Fascism, Industrialism and Socialism: The Case of Italy," Comparative Studies in Society and History, Vo1. 15, No.4 (1973), pp.395-404.

TALMON, J.L. The Unique and the Universal, New York: George Braziller, 1965.

TANNENBAUM, E.R., The Action Francaise: Die hard reactionaries in twentieth century France, New York and London: John Wiley and Sons Inc., 1962.

TANNENBAUMER!'The Goals of Italian Fascism," American Historical Review, Vol.LXXIV, No.4, (April 1969), pp.1183-1204.

THAYER, George, The British Political Fringe, London: Anthony Blond, 1965.

THAYER, John A. Italy and the Great War: Politics and Culture 18701915. University of Wisconsin Press, 1964.

THEWLIS, Harold M., "French Authoritarian Movements of the Right 1924-1940" (Columbia University, M.A. thesis, 1952).

THOMAS, Hugh, "The Hero in the Empty Room: Jose Antonio and Spanish Facism," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.1, No. 1 (1966), pp. 174-183.

THURLOW, Richard C, "Racial Populism in England," Patterns of Prejudice, Vo1. 10, No. 4 (1976).

TUCKER, William R. "Fascism and Individualism: The Political Thought of Pierre Dricu La Rochelle," Journal of Politics, Vo1.27, No. 1 (1965), pp.153-178.
"The Legacy of Charles Maurras," Journal of Politics, Vol.17, No. 4 (November 1955).
"Politics and Aesthetics: The Fascism of Robert Brassillach," Western Political Quarterly, Vol. 15, No.4, (1962), pp.605-617.
TURNER, Henry Ashby, "Fascism and Modernisation," World Politics; 1972.
"Hitler's Secret Pamphlet for Industrialists, 1927," Journal of Modern History, Vo1.40, No. 3 (September 1968), pp.396-411.
$\qquad$ ed. Reappraisals of Fascism, New York: Franklin Watts, 1975.

VAJDA, Mihaly, Fascism as a mass movement, London: Allen and Busby, 1976.

VERMEIL, E, The German Scene: Social, Political and Cultural, 1890 to i) the present day London: George and Harrop, 1956.

VIERECK, Peter, Metapolitics: From the Romantics to Hitler, New York: Alfred A. Knopf, 1941.

VIRTANEN, Reino, "Nietzsche and the Action Francaise," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.XI, No. 2 (1950), pp.191-214.

WAGAR, W.W. ed., European Intellectual History since Darwin and Marx, New York; Harper and Row, 1966.

WATSON, D.R. "The Nationalist Movement in Paris, 1900-1906," in David Shapiro ed. The Right in France, London: Chatto and Windus, 1962.

WEBER, Eugen, The Action Francaise, Royalism and Reaction in Twentieth Century France, Stanford, 1962.
"The Men of the Archange1," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.1, No. 1 (1966), pp.101-127.

WEBER, Eugen, "Maurice Barres: Un Heritier," Yearbook of Comparative and General Literature, Vol. 22 (1973), pp.20-32.

The Nationalist Revival, in France, 1905-1914, Berkeley and Los Angeles: University of California Press, 1968.

"Nationalism, Socialism, and National Socialism in France," French Historical Studies, Spring 1962, pp.273-307.

. Varieties of Fascism, Princeton University Press; 1964.
WEBSTER, Richard A, "The Cross and the Fasces: Christian Democracy in Ttaly" (Columbia University, Ph.D. thesis, 1959).

WEISS, John, The Fascist Tradition, New York: Harper and Row, 1973.
___ ed., Nazis and Fascists in Europe, 1918-1945, Chicago: Quadrangle, 1969.
_ ed. The Origins of Modern Consciousness, Detroit, 1965.
WERNER, Alfred, "Trotsky of the Nazi Party: Orto Strasser," Journal of Central European Affairs, Vol.XI, (January 1951), WERNER, Karl Ferdinand, "On some examples of the National Socialist View of History," Journal of Contemporary History, Vo1.3, No. 2 (1968), pp.193-206.

WHITESIDE, Andrew Gladding, Austrian National Socialism before 1918, The Hague: Martinus Nijhoff, 1962.
"The Nature and Origins of National Socialism," Journal of Central European Affairs, Vol.XVII, No.1. (April 1957).

WILSON, Stephen, "The Anti-Semitic Riots of 1898 in France," Historical Review, Vol.XVI, No. 4 (1973), pp. 789-806.
"A View of the Past: Action Francaise Historiography and -its socio-political function," Historical Journal, Vol. 19, No.1 (1976), pp.135-161.
"Fustel de Coulanges and L'Action Francaise," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.XXIV, No. 1 (1973), pp.123-135.

WINEGARTEN, R. "The Fascist Mentality: Drieu La Rochelle," Wiener Library Bulletin, Vol.XXIII, (Winter 1968-1969).
"The Temptations of Cultural Fascism," Wiener Library Bulletin, Vol.XXIII, (Winter 1968-1969.

WINKLER, H.A., "German Society, Hitler and the Illusion of Restoration, 1930-1933," Journal of Contemporary History, Vo1.11, No. 4 (1976), pp.1-17.

WISTRICH, Robert $S$, "Leon Trotsky's Theory of Fascism," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.11, No. 4 (1976), pp.157-185.

WOOLF, Stuart J., Ed., European Fascism, London: Weidenfeld and Nicolson, 1968.

WOOLF, Stuart J, ed., "Mussolini as Revolutionary," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.1, No.2, (1966), pp.187-196.
ed., The Nature of Fascism, London: Weidenfeld and Nicolson, 1968.

YARROW, Clarence H. "The Forgoing of Fascist Doctrine," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.3, No. 2 (1942), pp.151-181.

ZEMEN, Z.A.B., Nazi Propoganda, Oxford University Press, 1964.

CONSERVATISM: PRIMARY SOURCES

AMERY, L.S., The Forward View, London: Geoffrey Bles, 1935.
BEGBIE, Harold, The Conservative Mind: by a Gentleman with a Duster, London: Mills and Boon, 1924.

BOOTHBY, Robert; MACMILLAN, Harold; LODER, John de v.; STANLEY, Oliver, Industry and the State: A Conservative View, London: Macmillan, 1927.

BOYSON, Rhodes, Centre Forward, London: Temple Smith, 1978.
BRAINE, Bernard, Tory Democracy, Lọdon: Falcon, 1948.
BUTLER, Geoffrey $C$, The Tory Tradition, London: John Murray, 1914.
BUTLER, R.A.B., The Art of the Possible, London: Hamish Hamilton, 1971.

CASE, The Case Against Socialism, A handBook for speakers and candidates, with prefatory letter by Right Hon. A.T. Balfour, London: George Allen & Sonsig 1908.

CECIL, Lord Hugh, Conservatism, London: Williams and Norgate, 1912.
CHURCHILL, Lord Randolph, "Elijah's Mantle," Fortnightly Review, Vo1.33, May 1, 1883.

CHURCHILL, Winston, Parliamentary Government and the Economic Problem, Oxford University Press, 1930.

CLARKE, David, The Conservative Faith in the Modern Age, London: Conservative Political Centre, 1947.

COOK, E.J. ed., Conservatism and the Future, London: William Heinemann, 1935.

CURZON, George M, "The Conservatism of Young Oxford," National Review, Vol.3, March 1884.
_ "Poetry, Politics and Conservatism," National Review, Vol.6, September 1885.

DAWSON, Christopher, Beyond Politics, New York: Sheed and Ward, 1939. Religion and the Modern State, London: Sheed and Ward, 1936.

DISRAELI, Benjamin, Earl of Beaconsfield, Whigs and Whiggism, Political Writings, London: John Murray, 1913.

ELIOT, Thamas Stearns, "The Action Francaise, M. Maurras and Mr. Ward, " Criterion, Vol.7, No.3, (1928), pp.195-203.
"L'Action Francaise - A Reply to Mr. Ward," Criterion, vol.7, No. 4 (June 1928), pp.84-88.

The Idea of Christian Society, London: Faber & Faber, 1939.
"The Literature of Fascism," Criterion, Vol. 8 (December 1928), pp. 280-290.

Notes Towards the Definition of Culture, Glasgow University Press, 1948.

Selected Essays, London: Faber and Faber, 1976.
FEILING, Keith, "Principles of Conservatism," Political Quarterly, Vó1.XXIV, No. 2 (April 1953), pp.129-138.

GILMOUR, Ian, Inside Right. A Study of Conservatism, London: Hutchinson, 1977.

GLENDAY, Roy, The Economic Consequences of Progress, London: George Routledge, 1934.
—— The Future of Economic Society, London! Macmillan, 1944.
GOLDMAN, Peter, ed The New Conservatism, London: Conservative Political Centre, 1955.

HEARNSHAW, J.F.C., Conservatism in England, London, Macmillan, 1933.
HOGG, Quinton, Lord Hailsham, The Dilenma of Democracy, London: Collins, 1978.

Toryism and Tomorrow, London: Conservative Political Centre, 1957.

HOLLIS, Christopher, Death of a Gentlenan: The Letters of Robert Fossett, 2nd edition, London: Oates, 1954.
$\qquad$ , Quality y or Equality? London: Signpost, 1944.

HORNBY, Richard, "Conservative Principles," Political Quarterly, Vol.32, No. 3 (1961), pp.222-237.

HOWELL, David, Efficiency and Beyond, London: Conservative Political Centre, 1965.

JONES, Aubrey, The Pendulum of Politics, London: Faber & Faber, 1946.
LECKY, William Edward Hartpole, Democracy and Liberty, London: Green and Co., 1913, 2 volumes.

LEWIS, Russell, Principles to Conserve, London: Conservative Political Centre, 1973.

LOFTUS, Pierse, The Creed of a Tory, London: Philip Allen, 1926.

MACMILLAN, Harold, The Middle Way, Second edition, London: Macmillan 1939.

Reconstruction; A Pleasfor a National Policy, London: Macmillan 1933.
_Tides of Fortune 1945-1955, London: Macmillan, 1969.
. Winds of Change 1914-1939, London: Macmillan, 1966.
MAINE, Henry Sumner, Popular Government, London: John Murray, 1885.

MALLOCK, W.H., A Critical Examination of Socialism, London: John Murray, 1908.

Aristocracy and Evolution, London: Adam and Charles Black, 1898.

Classes and Masses or Wealth, Wages and Welfare in the United Kingdom, London: Adam and Charles Black, 1896.
"Conservatism and the Diffusion of Property," National Review, Vol.XI, (March 1888).
"Conservatism and Socialism," National Review, Vol.II, (September 1883).
_ "Radicalism and the Working Classes," National Review, Vol.II, (September 1883).
…"The Functions of Wealth," Contemporary Review, Vol.41, (January 1882).
… The Limits of Pure Democracy, 3rd edition, London: Chapman and Hall, 1918.

OAKESHOTT, Michael, "On the Character of a Modern European State," in his On Human Conduct, Oxford University Press, 1975, pp. 185-327.

PERCY, Lord Eustace, Government in Transition, London: Methuen, 1934.

POWELL, J.E., A New Look at Medicine and Politics, London: Pitman, 1966.
......Freedom and Reality, edited by John Wood, London: Batsford, 1969.
——Savings in a Free Society, London: Hutchinson, 1960.
RAISON, Timothy, Conflict and Conservatism, London: Conservative Political Centre, 1965.

ROBERTSON, Edward Stanley, Communism, London: Liberty and Property Defence League, 1884.

ROSE, Richard, "Tensions in Conservative Philosophy," Political Quarterly, Vol.32, No. 3 (July 1961), pp.275-283.

SALTER, Arthur, The Framework of an Ordered Society, Cambridge University Press, 1933.

SELLON, Hugh, Democracy and Dictatorship, London: Lovat Dickson, 1934.

SMITH, Paul, ed., Lord Salisbury on Politics, Cambridge University Press, 1972.

STELLING, David, Why I am a Conservative, London: Conservative Headquarters, 1944.

STEPHEN, James Fitzjames, Liberty, Equality, Fraternity, London: Smith, Elder and Co., 1933.

CONSERVATISM: SECONDARY SOURCES

BEER, Samuel H., Modern British Politics, 2nd edition, London: Faber & Faber, 1969.

BOSWORTH, R.T.B.; "The British Press, The Conservatives, and Mussolini, $1920-1934$," Journal of Contemporary History; Vol.5, No. 2 (1970), pp.163-182.

ECCLESHALL, Robert, "English Conservatism as an Ideology," Political Studies, Vol.XXV, No. 1 (March 1977), pp.62-83.
"Richard Hooker's Synthesis and the Problem of Allegiance," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol. XXXVII, No. 1 (1976), pp.111-124.

FEUCHTWANGER, E.T., Disraeli, Democracy and the Tory Party, Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1948 .

FORD, D.J. "W.H. Ma1lock and Socialism in England 1880-1918," in K.D. Brown ed, Essays in Antl-Labour History, London: Macmillan, 1974.

FRIEDRICH, Car1 J., "The Political Thought of Neo-Liberalism," American Political Science Review, Vol. XLIX, No. 2 (January 1955), pp.509-526.

GLICKMAN, Harvey, "The Toryness of English Conservatism," Journal of British Studies, Vol.1, No. 1 (November 1961).

GREENLEAF, W.H., "The Character of Modern British Conservatism," in Robert Benewick ed.; Knowledge and Belief in Politics, London: George Allen & Unwin, 1973,
"Idealism, modern philosophy and politics," in P.King and B. Parekh, Politics and Experience: Essays presented to Professor Michael Oakeshott on the occasion of his retirement. Cambridge University Press, 1968.
…... Oakeshott's Philosophical Politics, London: Longmans, 1966.
HARRIS, Nigel, Competition and the Corporate Society, London: Methuen, 1.972.

HUNTINGTON, Samuel P. "Conservatism as an Ideology," American Political Science Review, Vol.51, No.2, (June 1957); pp.454-473.

JESSOP, Bob, Traditionalism, Conservatism and British Political Culture, London: George Allen and Unwin, 1974.

KLEMPERER, Klemens von. "Conservatism," in C.D. Kernig, ed. Marxism, Communism and Western Society, Vol.2, New York: Herder and Herder, 1972, pp.164-169.

McDOWELL, R.B., British Conservatism, London: Faber & Faber, 1939.
MINOGUE, Kenneth R, "Michael Oakeshott;" in Anthony de Crespigny and Kenneth R. Minogue ed., Contemporary Political Philosophers, London: Methuen, 1976, pp.120-147.

0'SULLIVAN, Noel, Conservatism, London: J.M. Dent, 1976.
PINTO-DUSCHINSKY, Michael, The Political Thought of Lord Salisbury 1854-1968, London: Constable, 1966.

QUINTON, Anthony, The Politics of Imperfection, London: Faber & Faber, 1978.

REES, Richard, "T.S. Eliot on Culture and Progress," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol. 2, No. 2 (1967), pp.103-112.

REMOND, Rene, The Right Wing in France, Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press, 1969.

ROTH, Andrew, Enoch Powe11: Tory Tribune, London: Macmillan, 1970.
SHORE, Peter, The Real Nature of Conservatism, London: 1952.

SMITH, Paul, Disraelian Conservatism and Social Reform, London: Rout ledge and Kegan Paul, 1967.

SOLDON, N., "Laissez-Faire as Dogma: The Liberty and Property Defence League, 1882-1914, in K.D. Brown, ed., Essays in Anti-Labour History, London: Macmillan, 1974.

TUCKER, Albert V, "W.H. Mallock and Late Victorian Conservatism," University of Toronto Quarterly, Vol.XXXI, No. 2 (January 1962), pp. 223-242.

WEISS, John, Conservatism in Modern Europe, 1770-1945, London: Thames and Hudson, 1977.

WHITE, J., Ed., The Conservative Tradition, London: Adam and Charles Black, 1969.

WOLIN, Sheldon, "Hume and Conservatism," American Political Science Review, Vol.48, No.4, (1954), pp.999-1017.
"Richard Hooker and English Conservatism," Western Politica1 Quarter1y, Vo1.6, (1953), pp.28-47.

WOOD, Neal, "A Guide to the Classics: The Skepticism of Professor Oakeshott," Journal of Politics, Vol.21, No. 4 (November 1959), pp.647-663.

MISCELLANEOUS

BARKER, Sir Ernest, Political Thought in England 1848-1914, 2nd edition, Oxford University Press, reprint 1959.

BERKI, R.N. and Parekh, B., "The History of Political Ideas: A Critique of A. Skinner's Methodology," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vo1.XXXIV, No. 2 (1973), pp.163-185.

BURGESS, Anthony, "Politics in the Novels of Graham Greene," Journal of Contemporary History, Vol.II, No.2; (1967), pp.93-99.

COHEN, Morris R, "Causation and its application to history," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.III, No. 1 (1942), pp.12-29.

COLLINGWOOD, R.G., The Idea of History, Oxford University Press, 1966.

DRADER, Hal, "Neo-Corportists and Neo-Reformers," New Politics, Vol.1, No. 11 (Fa11 1961), pp.87-107.

DUNN, John, "The Identity of the History of Ideas," in P. Laslett ed. Philosophy, Politics and Society, 4th series, Oxford: Basil Blackwel1, 1972, pp.158-174.

EAGLETON, Terry, Crieicism and Ideology: A Study in Marxist Literary Theory, London.

ECKSTEIN, Walter, 'Discussion on Nietzsche," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.6, No. 3 (1945), pp.304-306.
"Friedrich Nietzsche in the judgement of posterity," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.6, No. 3 (1945), pp. 310-324.

FAIRCHILD, Hoxie N., "Romanticism and the Religious Revival in England," Journal of the History of Ideas; Vol.III, No. 3, (1942), pp.330-338.

GUTMANN, James, "Discussion on Nietzsche," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.6, No.3, (1945), pp.299-303.

HUZSAR, George de, "Nietzsche's theory of decadence and the trasvaluation of all values," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.6, No. 3 (1945), pp.259-272.

INGLE, S.T., "Politics and Literature: An Unconsummated Relationship," Political Studies, Vo1. XXV, No. 4 (December 1977), pp. 549-562.
"Socialism and Literature: The Contribution of Imaginative Writers to the British Labour Party," Political Studies, Vol.XXII, No. 2 (June 1974), pp.158-167.

KARIEL, Henry, S., "Nietzsche's Preface to Constitutionalism," Journal of Politics, Vo1.25, No. 2 (May 1963), pp.211-225.

KVASTAD, Nils B., "Semantics in the Methodology of the History of Ideas," Journal of the History of Ideas, V01. XXXVIII, No. 1 (January 1977), pp. 157-174.

LOVEJOY, Arthur, 0. "Reply to Professor Spitzer," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vo1.5, No. 2 (1944), pp.204-219.

LOWITH, Kar1, "Nietzsche's Doctrine of Eternal Recurrence," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.6, No. 3 (1945) pp.273-284.

MACKENZIE, W.J.M., Political Identity, London: Penguin, 1978.
MANDELBAUM, Maurice, "Causal Analysis in History," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.III, No. 1 (1942), pp.30-50.

MORRIS, Charles, "Nietzsche - An Evaluation," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.6, No. 3 (1945), pp.273-284.

NIETZSCHE, Friedrich, Beyond Good and Evil. Prelude to a Philosophy of the Future, translated by Helen Zimmern, with an introduction by Thomas Common, edited by Dr. Oscar Levy, 4th edition, 2nd impression, London: George Allen & Unwin, 1967.

Early Greek Philosophy & Other Essays, translated by Macimilian A. Mugge, Vol. II of The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, edited by Dr. Oscar Levy, Edinburgh and London: T.N. Foulis, 1911.

On the Future of Our Educational Institutions, Homer and Classical Philology, translated with introduction by J.M. Kennedy, Vol. III of the Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, edited by Dr. Oscar Levy Edinbürgh and London: T.N. Foulis. 1909.

POCOCK, J.G.A., "The History of Political Thought A Methodological Enquiry," in P. Laslett and W.G. Runciman ed., Philosophy, Politics and Society, 2nd series, Oxford: Blackwell, 1962, PB. 182-203.

- Politics, Language and Time, London: Methuen, 1972.

RIEELER, Kurt, "Discussion on Nietzsche," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol. 6, No. 3 (1945), pp. 294-298.

ROUECK, J.S., "A History of the Concept of Ideology," Journal of the History of Tdeas, Vol.5, No.4, (1944), pp 479-488.

SCHURMANN, Franz, Ideology and Organisation in Communist China, 2nd edition, Berkeley: University of California Press, 1968.

SKINNER, Quentin, "The Limits of Historical Explanation," Philosophy, Vol.XLI, No. 157, (July 1966), pp.199-215.
"Political Theory: The Unimportance of the Great Texts," Political Studies Association Conference, 1968.

SPITZER, Leo, "Geistesgeschichte vs. History of Ideas as Applied to Hitlerism," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.5, No. 2 (1944), pp.191-203.

TEGGART, Friedrich J. "Causation in Historical Events," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol.III, No. 1 (1942), pp.3-11.

WEINER, Philip, P. "Some Problems and Methods in the History of Ideas," Journal of the History of Ideas, Vol XXII, No. 4 , (1961), pp.531-548.

WOLIN, Sheldon, Politics and Vision, London: George Allen & Unwin, 1961.

[^0]:    mrine three major commentaries are：Ho is to be Master of the Horld？期 introduction to the philosophy of friedrich Nietzsche．With an introduction by Dr．Oscar Levy，（Edinburgh end Loridon：ToNeToulis，1909）Niotrische：his life and works． Preface by Dx．Oscar Levy，（Iondon：Constable，1910）：Nietasche and Art，（Jondon：Constablep 1911 ）Ludovici translated Elisabeth FoersteroNietzsche ${ }^{\prime}$ s The Young Vietzsche（London－Wiliam Reinemanas 1912）．Furthermore，Fith the authorisation of Elisebeth Foerster Nietzsche he translated Friedrich Nietzsche＇s Selected Lettersio （London：Willian Heinemann，1921）．He was a major contributor to the first complete and outhorised English translation of Nietzsche s works The Complete Horks of Friedrich Nietrsche edited by Dro Oscar Levy （Edinburgh and London\＆ToN．Foulis．1909－1913）．Ludovici translated misabeth Foerster－Nietzsche＇s introduction to Volume I of this series The Birth of Tragedy，or Hellenism and Pensimism（1909）：He translated Volume Four Thoughts Out of Season（1909）He translated Volume Eight The Course of Wagner（1911）\％He annotated Volume Eleven，Thus Spake Zarathustra＇（1909）O He translated Volunes Fourteen and Fifteen，The Hill to Power（1909）．He translated Volume Sixteen．The Trilight of The Idolso othe Notes to Zexathustra and Etemal Recurxence（1911）． Finally，Ludovici translated Volume Seventeen Ecce Hono（1911）．

[^1]:    000 a veteran of the aristocratic and soldier academy of Nietzsche，who for 30 years has been quietly prosecuting the great thinker ${ }^{\circ}$ s works and，without pronouncing his nome et every breath，has nevertheless been performing the unprofttable and unpopular task，therever possible，of Combating degeneracy，and promoting the elevation of the type Man：46

[^2]:    mit consisted of lectures which he delivered in a condensed form at University College, London, during November and December, 1910; where two years previously he had the honour of addressing an audience on Wietzsche's moral and evolutionary views, and which formed his first book. Who is to be Master of the World? An introduction to the philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche, With an introduction by Dro Oscar Levy, published by T.N. Foulis in 1909.

[^3]:    ${ }^{0}$ Aethetics＇for Ludovici，finds its place in Life itself。 There is no absolute in subject beauty，it is merely the means to an end of 3 ＇type＇of mano ${ }^{221}$ Absolute beauty exists only in the confines of $a$ particular race：＂the moment we begin to share the Chinaman＇s or the negse＇s view of beauty，we run the risk of cutting ourselves adrift from our own people。＂${ }^{222}$ only when values are beginning to get mixed， owing to an influx of foreigners，according to Ludovici，does the vital biological idea of absolute beauty tend to dissepear，to be replaced by the weak and liberal belief that beauty is relative。

[^4]:    *A recent study has erroneously claimed Ludovici as such. cf. Rodney Barker, Pólitical Ideas in Modern Britain (London: Methuen, 1978) , p. 200.

[^5]:    oooa miserable, god-forsaken invalid who, racked with fevers, asthma, gout and the stone, drageed his foul body throuch this life as if the morld were a mausoleum, and himself the gangreneous symbol of the death of all human joys. 280

[^6]:    ©oas I need hardly point out to the scholers Aristotle was the chief Greek influence in Catholicism, just as Socrates was the chief Greek influence in Protestantism, and even the more normal morphology of Latin women [Which he cites as another reason for their lesser advocacy of feminism $I$ may be due to the healthier of the two Greek influences. 455

[^7]:    - apor in sho politicel liso of tichond boday io both orioting ordow. It 40 proesooly boccuge shoro bxe no nore prinetpled uxgonely nooded by modem incliohnon thot pumicion of clapotson and fonartio idoalo.

[^8]:    - 00 n min

     coo tho metax youchoug in the asubog

[^9]:

[^10]:    ...True, he was not the type that she had seen when on the motor tous with her father in trancos he had not the imes fire, the sed hot internal varntl. dut is bas probiscly the defteieney

[^11]:

     Glovely, cad elovo all to atudy the recordr of than hithorea. 945

[^12]:

     $(520263890) 0 \sqrt{20}$

[^13]:

[^14]:     tho condition indioco cone oonsonombly to o

[^15]:    ooodnd is teday wo doo tho Jou cueryyhoro dyooctiag, 1ine of dowhomight when to on madertond on the [^16]:

[^17]:    An so ofrown fron tweo wetclou ho enteribvien to tho

[^18]:    MThe following publications of Anthony Mario Ludovici were addressed to the English Mistery，or developed out of speeches that he oxiginally gave to them as contributions to their political doctrine： The Sanctity of Private Property，（London：Heath Cranton，1932）；The Secret of Laughter，（Lomdon：Constable，1932）：Health and cducation through Selfaliastery，（Londons Vatts \＆Co．o 1933）：Violence，Sacrifice and Wax（London：St．James ${ }^{\text {P }}$ Kin of the English Misteryo［1933］）： Creation or Recreation，（London：The First or Sto James ${ }^{\circ}$ Kin of the English Mis values，（London：St．Jemes？Kin of the English Mistery 193520 He addressed English Liberalism．（London：English Array．［1939］）．to the English Array。 Furthermore，Ludovici contributed copiously to the pemphlets，leaflets，and netspapers，of both the English Mistery and the English Array．

[^19]:    * Harold Nicodson to Osward Mosley, 29 June, 1932, MS uncatalogued Nicolson Papers; Gisela Lebseltzer, Political Anti-Semitism in England 1918-1939, (London: Macmillan, 1978), p, 176.

[^20]:    1. John Ludovici, "Interview with the Author", 19 March 1980,
    2. Thomas R. T. Manning, "Letter to the Author": 11 April 1980.
    3. Idem., "Letter to the Author", 9 June 1980.
    4.Idem., "Ietter to the Author": 11 April 1980.
[^21]:    1. John Ludovici, óp n. cit.
    2. Gayre, "The late A, M, Ludovici's Bequest to the University of Edinburgh", Mankind Quarterly, Volume XIII, No.4, pp. 191-194.
[^22]:    "Translator's Introduction," to Friedrich Nietzsche, Ecce Homo, translated by Anthony Mario Ludovici, Vol.xVII of The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, edited by Dr. Oscar Levy, Edinbuigh and London:T.N. Eoulis, 1911, pp.vii-xiv.

