This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Textile Society of America at DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln. It has been accepted for inclusion in Textile Society of America Symposium Proceedings by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln.

The background of the entire page is a repeating geometric pattern in red and white. The pattern consists of various shapes, including diamonds, triangles, and squares, arranged in a complex, interlocking design. The red color is used for the background of the pattern, while the white color forms the shapes themselves. The pattern is dense and covers the entire area.

This volume contains papers delivered at the Fourth Biennial
Symposium of the Textile Society of America, Inc. held at the Fowler
Museum of Cultural History, University of California,
Los Angeles, California, September 22-24, 1994.

The Textile Society of America, Inc. provides a forum for the exchange and dissemination of information about the historic, cultural, socio-economic, artistic, and technical aspects of textiles. It was founded in 1987 and is governed by a Board of Directors which includes scholars from museums and universities, as well as fiber artists.

The Proceedings of each biennial symposium are distributed as a benefit of membership.
The previous titles are:

1988 Textiles as Primary Sources
1990 Textiles in Trade
1992 Textiles in Daily Life

Past copies are available for $ 25.00 each (US currency only), postage included. Payment
