

UNIVERSITÀ DEGLI STUDI
DI MILANO

Dipartimento di Lingue e Letterature Straniere

Tirocinio Formativo Attivo (TFA)

Input Processing and Processing Instruction: the story so far

Alessandro Benati

University of Greenwich

27 marzo 2013

Aula A1, 16.00-17.30

Piazza S.Alessandro, 1

Milano

Prof. Benati is an academic scholar in the area of Applied Linguistics and Second Language Studies. His research focuses on how second language learners process incoming linguistic information at input level. He has worked extensively with James Lee (University of New South Wales, Australia) on classroom-based research measuring primary and secondary effects of processing instruction. Their most recent collaboration is Processing Instruction and Discourse (Continuum Publishing, 2010). He has also collaborated with Bill VanPatten (Michigan State University, USA) on a book on second language acquisition (Key Terms in Second Language Acquisition, Continuum Publishing, 2010).

Organizzazione e informazioni: Luciana Pedrazzini, luciana.pedrazzini@unimi.it