Abstract

The article focuses on the theory and methodology of origin, functioning, development and transformation of institutions in the process of traditional and innovative development of national economic systems. The authors carry out a diverse contrastive decomposition of national economic systems, laws, patterns and trends of their development. A functional role of interaction of traditions, innovations, investments and institutions in a national economic system of Russia as well as controversial polyfurcation consequences of such interaction are revealed. © Mikhail Postaliuk, Venera Vagizova, Taras Postaliuk, 2013.
