The phenomenal life process, referred to as birth, has always been viewed with astonishment and wonder. The newborn will soon be a toddler, later an adolescent, then a teenager, until he finally reaches adulthood. During this period of change, known as growing up, many problems must be overcome. These problems range from teething to first dates. Just as a baby goes through the pains of growing up, Coastal Carolina College experiencing its share of Growing Pains.

First Steps

Upon its foundation, Coastal Carolina College was considered to be merely a local junior college. Yet, now, with an enrollment of nearly 3000 students, Coastal must begin to face serious problems regarding expansion.

Certainly the new addition to Williams-Brice will aid the expansion process, but other areas will also need attention. Crowded classrooms, closed sections, and cramped parking areas are serious problems facing the college. Along with these problems, the immediate need for on-campus housing must be addressed for the continued growth of the college.

Construction workers rush to complete the new addition to Williams-Brice.

As the end of summer neared, the new building seemed far from finished.

On The Move

In between classes, students take time to discuss notes for an up-coming test.

The U.S.C. flag stands proudly on the front lawn of the E.M.S. building.

As College officials awaited the final "go ahead" from the legislature to begin breaking ground for dormitories, further plans were being made for a new Business Administration Building, an expanded library and more playing field areas. Officials feel that these expansions will increase Coastal's appeal to incoming freshmen is encouraging figure. So now, the question is how to keep these 1200 here for their entire college career. To accomplish this feat, Coastal must move ahead.

To keep up with activities, students now rely on information monitors.

Bulletin boards around Crossroads enable students to post notices for almost anything.

Getting Acquainted

Orientation is one of the most exciting events to take place in the life of an incoming freshman. Upon the student's arrival at orientation, he is immediately registered and assigned to a special group. In these group sessions, he becomes acquainted with his orientation assistant, O.A., who then provides him with general information about the college and its various rules, regulations, and opportunities.

Minutes before orientation. freshmen search the crowd for familiar faces.

Group sessions, one of the most important parts of orientation, allowed the new students to become better acquainted with C.C.C.

Cino Day '85

On April 12th, 1985. Coastal Carolina experienced its annual "Fun Day" Cino Day. With bands like Diamonds and Stark Ravin providing the entertainment. and Coors supplying the beer, how could anything go wrong. Campus Union definitely outdid themselves with the great hotdogs and barbecue. In addition. various clubs organized several different games.

One Giant Step

After four long years of hard work. Teralena Haymond happily receives her diploma.

As four long years of hard work come to a close, C.C.C. graduates to be became a little teary eyed and reminiscent of the laughter and the tears they had experienced during their stay at Coastal. Certainly they had much to celebrate. Graduation ceremonies were conducted outside in front of the Singleton building for the first time. Senior class President Michael Lehouck delivered his farewell address to his fellow students with both joy and sorrow. After the long awaited diploma was received the graduates departed with plans for the future.

New Friends

Everyone gathers around the Student Center to listen to the gyrating sounds of the "Thin Men" from Greenville, S.C.

The Student Mixer sponsored by S.G.A. on Fri. Sept. 6th, started the Fall semester off on the right track. Freshmen were given an excellent opportunity to make new friends and mingle with the returning students. The featured entertainment was provided by "Thin Men," who played a wide variety of music. In addition, students were served free barbecue and soft drinks with all the fixings. As the activities came to a close, it was obvious that both old and new friends alike left better equipped to face the new semester.

Thanks to S.G A., students were able to enjoy free food, drinks, and entertainment at the annual student mixer. This combination made for a good time for all.

Delighting everyone with their wide repertoire of songs, the "Thin Men" were a big hit.

Goodbye Tourists

Campus Union's Welcome Back Dance this year featured "A Fond Farewell to Tourists." It was this theme that inspired students to dress as tacky tourists. Tacky apparel included such items as flowered Hawaiian shirts, plaid bermuda shorts, knee-socks with stripes and old fishing hats. At midnight, captured first place in the "Tacky Tourist Contest." From 8 until 1, "tourists" danced to the sounds of Dance Ltd. As the evening drew to an end, everyone agreed that the event had been a success.

Robbie O`Quinn, attacked by his tacky tourist fans, seemed to have no complaints. Could you blame him?

Roberta Zeigler and Mike Allison laugh about the "horribly tacky" clothes that everyone seemed to be wearing.

Growing Clubs

Excitement mounted as clubs began setting up tables outside the Student Center for Activity Day. This event is held annually to introduce Coastal students to the many clubs available to them. In order to get lunch, students had to visit at least two tables to obtain tickets. Entertainment was provided by Jeff Norman, a local D.J., who played top 40 and beach music. Activity Day was deemed a success by the various clubs who were able to recruit many new members for the 1985-'86 school year.

Free hotdogs and Cokes were provided by S.G.A. making the lunchtime activity a success.

Deciding which clubs to investigate is a major decision for these students.

These students take a moment to read over the list of activities for Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Honorable Mention

Each year, Coastal holds Honors Convocation to recognize outstanding students and faculty in the various schools and departments. Organizational awards are also presented at this time such as media, S.G.A., and school spirit awards. All in all, the event allowed students and faculty to take time to thank each other for a successful school year.
S.G.A. officers Scotı Hill, Bruce Bacon, and Nancy Cicero present the school spirit award to the Business Club Vice President, Lynne Wright.

With much surprise, Veronica Davis accepts the Student Development Award from Dr. Bob Squatriglia.

Opening Doors

Dr. Robert Squatriglía makes a point to meet as many prospective students as possíble during C.C.C.'s Open House.

After a long, hot morning, José Montenegro and Darlene Beverly enjoy lunch in Spadoni Park.

April 20, 1985 marked the date for Coastal Carolina’s first Open House. Organizers set aside this time to introduce Coastal to prospective freshmen and their parents. Slide show presentations, guided tours, lunch, and entertainment kept everyone present busy the entire day. Early planning and hard work on the part of faculty, staff and student guides together with the enthusiasm on the part of prospective students and their parents made for a successful event.

Good Food

This year Coastal Carolina remodeled the cafeteria to better serve the needs of the students here. Doug Shoe, food service manager, has received training in both fast food service and conventional restaurant business. After surveying students last spring, the college found that students preferred fast food and deli sandwiches. Shoe explained that with the new system, the cafeteria has made more profit in two weeks than it did with the old system in one month. The new cafeteria has definitely been a success with both students and faculty.

With the new cafeteria system, referred to as Campus Station, free refills are a bonus tastes.

Eating in Campus Station can be cheaper than driving to Conway for other fast foods

The perfect cure for the EARLY MORNING BLUES - a fresh pot of coffece ean always be found here.

In the Know

T.V. Monitors are located in every building on campus to keep students informed.

Much skill and knowledge is needed to operate the T.V. monitors from behind the screess.

Fall ' 85 noted a major improvement in supplying campus information to students. *(No, you will not see your favorite soap opera on those television monitors!) Channel 7 airs student information while the other three channels supply conference times and classes. David Parker, audio-visual specialist and coordinator of audio and television productions, and Pat Parker, along with students studying theater and speech, all work together to keep the system running. It is hoped that the new monitors will keep students better informed and more aware of what the college has to offer.

Pat Parker gives us a complete demonstration of all the potential uses of the instructional television monitors.

To keep up with campus news, all you have to do is look.

Programming T.V. monitors is a very important job.

All Work and No Play

Hanging Out With Coastal's Finest

Living Quarters

Without dormitories, Coastal has suffered many disadvantages. By having students scattered from Georgetown to Aynor, Coastal laeks the unity that usually exists on college eampuses. Students rarely meet except for in their elasses, therefore they know very lítle about one another. Most everyone heads for home as soon as elasses let out. With dorms, not only would enrollment increase, but retention would no longer be a problem. More students would become involved in activities because they would be eloser to campus. Dorms would by far be one of Coastal's best bets for the future.

Coastal Carolina could be receiving the money these students put out for apartments

The chapel should be filled, but lack of dorms prevents it.

Students rarely use the library because they live off campus.

More out of state students would be attracted to Coastal if we had dorms.

With dorms on campus, everyone would be more involved in student activities and these lines would double.

Student support of college events sueh as volleyball would bc greatly increased if students lived on campus.

Crossroads is another apartment complex that would not be necessary if C.C.C. provided on eampus housing.

Afternoons at Coastal are like visiting a ghost town. No one is ever around.

With dorms, students would no longer be in danger at busy intersections.

Cultural Arts

Each year at Coastal Carolina College, a select group of faculty and students, forming the Cultural Arts Committee, sponsor different groups to perform throughout the year. The Cultural Arts Series includes theater, music, ballet and modern dance.

This year, students were fortunate to have a Shakespearean Festival from North Carolina, directed by Pedro Silva. The company gives performances throughout the Southeast.

Also, students experienced an evening filled with music, dance and song, performed by the Concert Royal and New York Baroque Dance Company, in Terpsichore.

On a different occasion, Eugenia Zuckerman played the flute. She has appeared with many major symphony orchestras in the U.S. and in Europe.

We were also delighted to have the Pittsburgh Opera Theatre here at Coastal. They performed Giacomo Puccini's "Madame Butterfly." The company presents approximately twenty performances each year, excluding school shows.

Thirty-two artists combined their talents of art to present "The Point of Departure." Three artists contributed typographical designs, paintings, and handmade paper. "The Point of Departure" included twenty-nine prints and mixed media.

The series ended with Kathryn and James March, Duapianists. For the 1985-86 concert season, they were awarded a South Carolina Arts Commission Community Tour Grant, to aid in sponsoring programs throughout the state.

GLORIA!

As weather bulletins broadcasted the hurricane warnings for the South Carolina coast, residents began to closely watch Gloria. And rightly so for Hurricane Gloria was certainly no lady. Packing winds up to 150 miles per hour, Gloria brought memories of Hazel who nearly wiped the Grand Strand off the map 30 years ago. On Tuesday morning, Sept. 26th, no one dared to speculate on the day's events. But serious praying paid off; Gloria made a northern turn at what seemed to be the last minute, sparing Coastal's beaches.

Even the Myrtle Beach P.D. prepared for the high winds expected with Gloria.

Workers all along Ocean Blvd. got ready for the worst that Gloria had to offer.

Occan front store owners board up windows to protect their stock.

Traffic lights and power lines endure the high winds.

Candles are lighted before the service begins by a helper from the congregation.

Julie Nelson, Preston McKever-Floyd and Robert Robinson participate in the College Chapel program.

The College Chapel program endeavors to serve the needs of all students here at Coastal Carolina College, regardless of their religious backgrounds and theological opinions. Worship, discussion, counsel and social fellowship are attempted in an ever changing, flexible and open program. Throughout the year, Humanists, Christians, Jews and adherents of other faiths will speak to the congregation. The Sunday Morning Service is held in the Student Center.

This procession marks the end of the College Chapel program for this Sunday.

After Hours

After a long day of classes and work, most students enjoy going out on the town to take advantage of the many specials that the local bars and night clubs have to offer. Whether it is Ladies Night, collcge night, or locals appreciation night, Coastal students can be found out in full force. To most the hot spots include Xanadu, Studebakers, Dr. Munchies, 2001, both Dutch Deli's and the newest spot, Bimini's. So whether it is for dancing, drinks, or just to see friends, C.C.C. students love to mix and mingle all around town. Surely with all the various clubs available for our entertainment, something can be found for just about everyone.

Planning for the Future

Senior Day 1985 started off with a bang as Coastal's campus was suddenly infiltrated with approximately 1200 high school seniors from the area schools. The idea behind this special event was to introduce Coastal to the 1986 graduating seniors. Each department was called on to make a presentation to our visitors. With Coastal students acting as guides, things went smoother than expected. Hopefully next year, these students will consider Coastal as their college choice.

Having given away all his C.C.C. buttons, Greg Hamlin loses control momentarily.

After getting a better look at C.C.C., Student guides greet the visitors as they arrive on these students prepare to leave. campus.

Over 1200 high school seniors crowd the bleachers in the Williams-Brice Gym to hear Dr. Ron Eagland welcome them to Coastal Carolina College.

Give Me a Break!

Late for class? What a bummer - not that you have to embarrass yourself in front of the whole class by walking in late - but that you may NEVER find a place to park! CCC has a major parking problem, complete with part-time cops issuing tickets left and right. Students are expected to park only in designated parking areas - no matter how many miles away from campus this happens to be. "As long as Coastal is a commuter college there will be problems" say parking officials. This may be true, but it is the loyal students trying to make it to class on time that suffer!

All vehicles are required to be registered and are required to have a parking sticker on them. Failure to do so results in traffic tickets and fines.

Crowded parking lots illustrate the need of CCC for more parking areas.

Campus Security doles out tickets, paying no regard to bribes, excuses, begging or crying

Often, filled parking lots will encourage students to park illegally and thus be fined.

Temptations

Oohh!! - the temptation of food! Who can resist the sweet, gooey, sticky, yummy, savory taste of the different foods that we all crave? From ice cream and sundaes to pizza and hamburgers, or anything whether it is healthy or not. These urges strike everyone sometimes. So go ahead, indulge in the good things in life, enjoy, and Pig Out!!

Life at the Beach

Why leave the good life? Just take a look around and see all the beauty and excitement available here at the beach. From the ocean to sports to night life, it can all be yours every day of the year.

As far as the eye can see, the beach always seems to be filled with bathing beauties - both male and female.

Mile after mile of sandy shore and clear skies is what Myrtle Beach days are like.

As Buddy sits on his stand all day, we can tell he has a tough job looking after all of the beach babies.

Looking out over the Atlantic Ocean we can see that Myrtle Beach is truly at the end of the rainbow.

Sunglasses appeal to everyone, no matter what age.

Being able to see more clearly has nothing to do with wearing sunglasses this way!

Bausch & Lomb? Varnuets? Foster Grants? Carrera? Pierre Cardin? Polaroids? Ferrari? Anne Klein? Rivierra? Oleg Casini? Do these names sound familiar? Believe it or not, these names are advertised at Coastal Carolina College every day. 1985 has seen the renaissance of sunglasses on campus as well as the surrounding areas.

Working Students

Juggling school, work, and play is a common problem for many Coastal students. Therefore, most realize that good time management is a necessary key for success. Certainly organization is a beginning point to achieving such management. It must be working, for statistics show that students who work are, on the average, better students than those who do not. While there are certain sacrifices that must be made to hold down a job and school, the student who can accomplish this feat is better prepared for the working world than those who do not.

New Alcohol Policy Affects College Socials

Coastal Carolina College, as well as every other college and university, has been deeply touched by the change in the legal drinking age. Campus activities that had in the past often included alcoholic beverages were stopped; and events such as dances and mixers were watched closely by the administration to ensure that our campus did adhere to the changing law. Students now must show their college I.D. plus a valid drivers license in order to be admitted to school sponsored activities. If a student is under age - they are clearly marked - either by arm bands or stamps - and they are forbidden to drink alcohol. Mixed reactions have been heard around campus regarding the new law, but the hope is to eliminate alcohol related accidents and Coastal Carolina College is doing its part to make the law work.

THE CHANTICLEER

The CHANTICLEER is Coastal's newspaper, published and produced by the students. Established in 1962, it has proven to be a great success. The CHANTICLEER contains information important to both students and faculty, such as articles on academics, sporting events, cultural and civic activities, club happenings and many other extracurricular activities and events. The CHANTICLEER also publishes editorials and articles submitted by students and faculty.

Each issue is informative and valuable to not only the individual, but to the campus as a whole. The new and improved CHANTICLEER is rapidly becoming more popular and successful! Under the careful guidance of Editor Greg Tyler, the Chanticleer won "Best News Story" at the fall session of the SC Press Ass. Collegiate Division. Certainly Tyler's leadership has had a direct effect on the success of the paper.

Striving for Excellance

Determined to produce a top quality book and have it delivered by May 1 st, the yearbook staff set out in August working diligently until February. As the last pages were drawn and the last few words were typed, the staff felt confident that they had succeeded. Having won first place in photography at the S.C. Press Ass. Collegiate Division, thoughts drifted to what type of an award the book might win in ' 86 . Certainly all the time and effort seems worthwhile at this point.

Encouraging students to have their pictures made for the yearbook takes much pleading.

Business Club

One of the most active organizations on campus is the Business Club. In fact, they received the award for the most active club at the ' $84-$ ' 86 Honors Convocation. Their purpose is to promote interest in the business environment, participate in community affairs, and provide a means for increased knowledge of the business activities of our society. The club accomplishes these goals by inviting guests from the local area to their meetings.

Making Music

The Coastal Carolina Concert Choir is a group of devoted Coastal students formed together to perform several vocal presentations. Christmas is the choir's busiest season with performances at Myrtle Square Mall, Lessons in Carols at Wheelwright Auditorium, and the First Methodist Church in Conway. The Choir looked forward to the spring semester's presentation of SHOWBOAT and an extensive tour of Europe in May. Fundraisers were held to help underwrite the cost of the trip for Choir members. Certainly with all their activities, the Choir is a "Good Will Ambassador" for the college.

In the fall, the Choir held a chicken bog at the Armory in Conway. While many members ran deliveries to the campus, Brenda Winn, Jason Sprankle, and Lelia Smalley held down "the fort".

Alph Phi Omega is a national fraternity for service. The chapter here at Coastal is Co-Ed in order to give girls an opportunity to be involved. During 85-86 APO sponsored such events as blood drives, measles immunization clinics, voter registration, and many other events. Anyone interested in joining APO may do so at rush which is held at the beginning of each semester.

Each semester APO sponsors a blood drive for the Red Cross. In 1985 they not only reached their goal but they broke the record for number of pints donated, thanks to the students and faculty.

APO asks students to give up their cigarettes for a day, hoping that they might quit smoking.

Anita Cansler and Robin Kooístra busily explain APO‘s membership procedures to a prospective pledge.

A Family of Brothers . . .

Sigma Phi Epsilon is Coastal's only national social fraternity. Helping young men develop character through virtue, dilligence, and brotherhood is the major goal of the Sig- Eps.

As one of the most active groups on campus, the Sig- Eps sponsor many annual events including a Halloween party, Founders Day Banquet, camp-outs, Heart Fund drives, and a Homecoming Parade. For those interested in joining Sig- Eps, rush is held at the beginning of each semester.

Becoming a member of Sig Eps is an excellant way to get to know other people here at CCC.

Sig Ep President Mike Demell stays busy planning the many projects and aetivities that the fraternity participates in each semester.

And Little Sisters

During a weekly Little Sisters meeting, Mike Mongeon makes a few suggestions about an upcoming banquet.

Just fooling around, David Berry and Steve Vereen prove that there is a such thing as "brotherly love"

The Sig Ep's can always be found around the Student Center, their local hang-out.

Each member proudly sports his own Sig Ep T-Shirt.

As a part of their initiation, new little sister pledges must get friends to sign their pledge pillows.

New Sorority hopes to ## go National

Sigma Delta Phi is a social sorority just reactivated during the fall of 85 . They seem hopeful that a National Sorority will pick them up in a few years. For their first year, these hard working girls have been extremely active. They collected canned goods during a "BAG PARTY", helped the choir sell chícken bog tickets, held Monday Night Football Parties, and helped with Sea Haven. With a membership of over thirty girls, Sigma Delta Phi promises to be a strong force at Coastal.

The Sisters sponsor numerous bake sales to raise money for their activities.

Activities Day gave the new sorority a great chance to recruit new members.

Phi Alpa Delta

Phi Alpha Delta is a new pre-law fraternity that has come to Coastal this year. PAD is an international association of law students, legal educators, and members of the Bench and Bar organized to promote professional competency and achievement within the legal profession. PAD's aims include having law students mix with practicing attorneys, providing students with practical information and legal skills generally untouched in the academic curriculum, guidance and educational opportunities, as well as providing valuable professional contacts. Phi Alpha Delta is the largest international professional legal fraternity in the world. The Pre-Law Advisor is Eddie Dyer.

Pi Epsilon Mu

Pi Epsilon Mu is a fraternity established this past year for physical education majors. Through their activities, they hope to stimulate professional interest, and involvement in health, physical education, recreation, and dance as a profession on the local, state, and national level. This year, PEM sponsored Guest speakers, films, community service, and a superstar competition.

Displaying Leadership

Omicron Delta Kappa is an organization designed to bring together all leaders in the various phases of college activities, in one body for the general good, ODK revolves around five major phases of campus life: Scholarship, athletics; social service, and religious activities; campus government; journalism, speech, and the mass media; creative and performing arts. Special functions and activities of ODK include the honoring of an underclass leader, service as ushers at Honors Convocation, and commencement.

Mike Mongeon and Jose Montenegro usher the 1985 Graduates into commencement.

New ODK members take turns signing the offieial registrar as Dr. Bob Squatriglia and Pres. Jose' Montenegro look on.

Dr. Singleton welcomes the 1985-86 alumni member of ODK, Billy Alford, after the induetion ceremony.

College Legislators

SCSL is a group of young college men and women from the student bodies of all the public and private colleges and universities in the state. They pass legislature onto the General Assembly of South Carolina in which they pass during the Fall. The Governor elect for the 1986-87 year is Coastal Carolina's very own Steven Neeves. He was elected at the Fall Session of SCSL during their thirtieth anniversary. This is an honor for Coastal Carolina College as well as Mr. Neeves. Spring session is also held sometime in April where amendments are added to the constitution. This has been an outstanding year for the Coastal Carolina chapter of South Carolina Student Legislature.

More On Writing

The Literary Club's main goal is to stimulate and foster creativity. While the club is open to any student interested, English majors are especially encouraged to join. Some of their activities this year include writing contests and critiques, donating books to the library, and sponsoring a literary movie. Also, the special project for this year will be to sponsor a film in the Spring Arts Festival.

Get into the Motion

Beth Sachs does time at the beer ticket table at the "Ricochet" concert.

Campus Union, the programming board for CCC, is without a doubt one of the most important organizations on campus. The absence of CU would leave the college void of dances, movies, coffee houses, nooners, and of course, Cino Day. It is the responsibility of CU to plan all the events for the college. Twenty-five dollars of the tuition of each student is allocated to pay for the activities that Campus Union sponsors. Because of this allocation, each student is automatically a member. In order to become a voting member, a student must attend three consecutive meetings. Campus Union meets each Tuesday at 2:30 in room 204 in the Student Center. Any student who would like to plan campus-wide events is encouraged to come be a part of Campus Union. After all, they are spending a part of each students tuition.

"Beer Buster" Riek Bedser takes a moment off duty to have lunch and relax.

Cino Day "Beer Busters" stay on red alert for those under age drinkers.

Student Government

The Student Government Association conveys student opinion to the college administration, serves as a liaison between the administration, and the students, and shares with the faculty and administration the governing of the college. SGA is composed of four executive officers: President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer. The remainder of the governing body is composed of all class presidents, two class representatives and a representative from each recognized student organization on campus.

The majority of SGA's time is spent solving student problems and engaging in debate, discussion, and resolutions over important aspects of our campus life. The main issues tackled by the Student Government Association in 85-86 were the ever important alcohol policy, telephone lines to Myrtle Beach as well as Georgetown and Conway, the choosing of a new chancellor and allocations.

The Student Government Association is in charge of the Freshman Mixer, the Service and School Spirit Award, and the reception after the Honors Convocation awards. SGA provided the students with coffee and donuts during examinations during December and it was greatly appreciated. SGA is definitely the "right" connection between students and faculty.

The 1984-85 Chanticleer Baseball season was one of success. Compiling a record of 30 wins and 19 losses, the Chants were at one point ranked in the top 10. According to Coach Richardson, the greatest weakness this year was the pitching. Hopefully, with hard work, the 1985-86 season will be a better one for Coastal baseball.

Around the Bases

Last season the Lady Chants, according to the new coach, Dee Dee Kish, "had a pretty good record." In fact, at one time they were playoff-bound, but due to complications, this was not realized. Coach Kish says "this group of girls seemed to play well, and hopefully next season's team will improve." Six players will be returning: Sue Cooper, Mandy Glover, Debbie Spatholt, Lisa Ibbetson, Carol Camnitz and Joy Owens.

Coastal Netters

A rebuilding season continues for the young and growing men's tennis team. The team put in long hours of practice to improve not only their playing abilities, but also their competitive skills.

Commenting on the season, Coach Tessier Stated, "The team worked hard in their new conference playing tougher schools in Big South was very challenging." The team seems to be looking forward to the new season.

Coach Ralph Tessier, Kevin Connolly, Jody Hyden, Jimmy Dew, Cam Crawford, Berry Allison, Mike Hoffman, Steve Davis, Richard Hagedorn, Ashok Dinakarah

Asked about his feelings on tougher competition, 1985-86 player George Jordan says, "The team members are very competitive, so it will be very interesting to see how we will stack up against our opponents."

An Air of Optimism

Coach Max Davis, Milly Carroll, Cindy Sims, Cile Voute, Roberta Ziegler, Laura Hennessey, Julie Nelson, Dina Knesel, Karen Riegle (NP)

As player Cathy Martin (1985-86) exclaims, "With a little more practice for the spring season, we should finish number one or two in the NAIA District Tournament at the end of the spring season."

The Women's Tennis Team, playing such opponents as FMC, Pembroke State, UNCWilmington, Winthrop, Lander, Presbyterian, and College of Charleston ended the season with a record of 4 wins and 13 losses.
"Last season Ralph and myself found out in August ' 84 that we were going to coach," says Coach Max Davis. "All six players were brand new. Two of the players were on scholarship, but the rest were walk-ons." Although the girls finished the season at 4-12, the love of tennis and their desire to improve have carried them a long way. The team has a wellbalanced singles game. Ann Godwin did Coastal proud by making it to the second round of the nationals last year. Though the team is not ranked in the district, there seems to be an air of optimism among the players.

Cross Country: Inexperienced but Growing

The Cross Country team began it's 1985 season with three returning runners and a rookie coach, yet Jim Koster described this year's season by explaining that while the team is young and inexperienced "a lot of obstacles can be overcome with proper training."

Sports Information Director

Glenn Mishoe became Coastal Carolina College's new Sports Information Director on June 1, 1984, replacing David Graham. Mishoe, a native of Horry County, took over after serving four years as a student assistant. He was also Sports Editor of the CHANTICLEER his freshman year. He graduated from Socastee High School in 1980, after two years as sports editor of the school newspaper. Mishoe is responsible for the writing and editing of all publications and brochures pertaining to CCC sports. He is also responsible for producing news releases and statistics, and works hand-in-hand with various news media. He is married to the former Mitzi Parker of Myrtle Beach.

Has the mascot controversy finally come to an end?

After several debates among students, faculty and staff to change Coastal Carolina College's mascot, has everyone decided that the Chanticleer is best? Last year the issue become major; this year it came up again, only to be voted down, again! This year's opposition was not nearly as strong against the Chanticleer as was last year's.

Many feel that the Chanticleer is just a baby gamecook, which is untrue. Unbeknownst to many, the Chanticleer is a symbol of intelligence and pride. As in Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, The Chanticleer is a very admirable character. Everyone should be proud ot have the Chanticleer as mascot - he portrays the ideals of CCC as an educational institution, as well as having a fine athletic department and excellent athletic teams. According to student Jan Howard, I like him! He's cute, and he even has nice legs!"

Although Chanty may look a little worn, according to Bruce Bacon, Student Government Association President, "The money is there to purchase a new mascot suit - the problem is finding a supplier. We are open to accept bids, but so far we have received none."

The Chanticleer is a CCC tradition which is important to students, faculty, staff, and alumni. So far, the tradition has been upheld, as it is hoped to be in the future.

Soccer: On the Move!

Soccer is definitely an upcoming sport at CCC.
With Paul Banta as head coach, the soccer team is reaching higher goals annually. The team now has players from several surrounding area high schools as well as members from foreign countries, such as Australia and Iceland. Ending their 1985 season with an overall record of 14 wins, 8 losses, and 1 tie, the CCC soccer team has much to be proud of.

Tough Season for Lady Netters

Rebuilding

"With our new players we feel like we are going to get more of that inside scoring." Coach Bergman

Young Team works hard

to compete in NCAA

With only five returning players, the $85-86$ Men's Basketball team faced a tough season with an extremely young squad. According to Coach Bergman, the team would have to play better ball inside to be consistently competitive. While experience was a big obstacle, CCC also lacked a dominating center to compete against the level of competition in the NCAA. Regardless of the problems, the Chants will be expected to be a better tcam next year as the "breaking in period" ends.

1985-1986  Men's Basketball Schedule

This year Coastal Carolina's men's basketball team have been met head on with many battles. Under the leadership of Russ Bergman, this has been a transition year. We are moving from the NAIA to the NCAA, Division II. Also facing the team was a schedule composed of much stronger opponents than in the past. This years team consisted of one junior, five sophomores and six freshmen; "the team as a whole was very young and inexperienced," according to Coach Bergman. Coach Bergman looks forward to a more experienced team next year with everyone back. He hopes for a 500 season or better, but knows that whatever the outcome, much team effort and hard work was

Lady Chants play well despite injuries

Though many of the Lady Chants' players suffered injuries this year, they surprised many with their enthusiasm and drive to continue to play good basketball. With a record of 6-3 in the conference in mid-January, the Lady Chants hoped to finish strong in the district - perhaps even in the top four.

New Coach Bailey Harris commented that the strong point of the team seemed to be the senior leadership. In addition, Harris noted that his biggest problem this year has been with depth and injuries. Tammy Jones, one of the strongest players, has had to sit out games due to an injury sustained against Furman. However, regardless of the problems, Harris and the team continue to face what has been viewed as their toughest season yet with great optimism.

Spirited Leaders  Work to cheer at ## away games

Coastal Carolina College has been blessed with a very gifted group of girls who graciously give of their time and energy to boost the school spirit. The CCC cheerleaders have proven time and time again that they are indeed proud of their school.

Led by Debbie Hucks, this enthusiastic squad has stood behind the Chanticleer teams and cheered them on to victory.

Many hours of practice go into being a part of the team and too often they are taken for granted. Yes, it is fun, but it is also hard work. So, hats off to a great bunch - thanks for your support!

Neeves Named Governor of SCSL

Coastal Carolina College proudly celebrated the election of Steven Neeves as governor of South Carolina Student Legislature (SCSL). Neeves is the first student of any USC branch to hold this office. Formerly holding the position of Senate Pro Tempore, Neeves felt he had the experience to lead SCSL during 1985-86. Describing his plans for the year, Neeves hoped for a reorganization of SCSL, including more statewide activity and better communication across the state's campuses.
The effects of having the governor reside at CCC have already been felt through the increase in SCSL membership and the rising awareness on the part of students about the political arena. Neeves also commented that his "position and the SCSL delegation represents the CCC student body. Therefore I encourage any input on any issue by the students. After all, the college student is our number one source of information and our number one concern."

Coastal Welcomes Interim Chancellor

In June, 1985, Ronald Eaglin, Ph.D., became Interim Chancellor here at Coastal Carolina College. Dr. Eaglin was previously Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs at the University of South Carolina - Spartanburg. He has been formerly employed by the University of Nebraska, the University of Utah, and Southern Illinois University. Dr. Eaglin is an active fund raiser; he has developed the best record of securing federal grants within USC campuses. Dr. Eaglin has been involved in the University system for twelve years. One of twelve authors of a forthcoming book on student retention, Dr. Eaglin has also had two articles published by education journals.

A strong family man, Dr. Eaglin has been married for twenty-three years and has four children. His wife, Bonnie, is a self-employed interior decorator.

Dr. Eaglin feels that he definitely made the right decision in coming to this area. He believes that this area possesses tremendous opportunity and optimism, and that it has three main assets: the ocean, the people, and Coastal Carolina College.

Coastal Carolina College, according to Dr. Eaglin, is intimately involved in the growth of Horry County. Coastal grew 10.4\% last year, and will continue to grow and become more diversified. Dr. Eaglin hopes that CCC will be able to offer a wider range of curricula to a larger group of people in the near future.

Dr. Eaglin's philosophy is XXXXXX: "You get out of life what you put in it." He calls himself "proactive" and feels that students shape their educational experience, and his job is to provide the best faculty, quality resources, and an excellent environment and atmosphere in which a student's educational experience can occur.

After attending primary and secondary schools in Buffalo, New York, Dr. Richard Collin went on to Catholic Seminary (1956-58), then later left to attend undergraduate college in Buffalo, graduating in 1952. He then went to Harvard (1962-67). He received his Doctorate from Oxford. As an Army Captain, Dr. Collin worked as an intelligence anaylyst in the Pentagon. When asked to describe his time as an intelligence officer, He stated: "Intelligence is $99 \%$ boredom and $1 \%$ sheer teror; there are no James Bond adventures with Russian spies runing around small dark allies - it is basically observation and briefings." Dr. Collin has come to Coastal because of its small size, where he is able to know his colleagues and his students well. Following is an interview conducted by Ann Lansberg, a brave staff member.

Dr. Collin Speaks Candidly About His Colorful Past

At the beginning of Dr. Collin's interview he wasted no time in setting conversation limits with this statement, "I'll talk about anything except Volkswagons, camels, Danish women, and Buenos Aires." When asked, "What's wrong with Buenos Aires?" he replied, "Will it never cease? One little mistake, one tiny little error of judgement, a moment of boyish enthusiasm, and people persecute you forever. Listen, it wasn't easy keeping it out of the papers, and we returned the camel, so I have nothing more to say on the subject." I think we're on to something! A: "Sorry, ah, perhaps you could tell us something about your early education?" A: "Yes, I attended elementary schools in Buffalo where I was routinely beaten by nuns, before going to be thrashed by Christian Brothers in high school. After more rough treatment by the Jesuits at my undergraduate college, Canisius, I escaped to Harvard." Q: "What effect did this have on you?" A: "I liked Harvard primarily because nobody hit me. In fact, I'd have stayed there forever had it not been for the U.S. Army, who invited me, in 1965, to stop learning about faraway places and interesting people, and to actually go to some faraway places and meet some interesting people - and shoot them." Q: "What did you learn in the Army?" A: "How to duck. Never to volunteer. How to get $91 / 2$ minutes' sleep out of a ten minute break." Q: 'I understand that you completed your doctorate at Oxford in England; why did you choose Oxford?" A: "I was rejected by Horry Georgetown Tech." Q: "Are you a family man?" A: "I've had a vast number of families, having set up housekeeping successfully with an opera singer, a Harvard mathematician, a black-power advocate, and several Arab girls who define precise categorization. In fact, once in Copenhagen, I . . . wait a minute, you're a student. We'd better skip that part. The problem is that until I met a certain red-haired English nurse, my status as a family man was always adversely affected by my tendency to leave town early in the morning without leaving a forwarding address." Q : "You feel then that you have found true love at last?" A: "Absolutely. Plus, she has my passport hidden." Q: "I'm told that you have written a number of books." A: "Yes, and I would like to take this opportunity to deny the rumor that nobody bought my last novel. My mother bought a copy. I know, because I personally sold it to her. She later retailed it to my father. That's two sales right there, up fifty percent from my previous book." Q : "To have led such an interesting life, what are you doing in South Carolina?" A: "Hiding! What about you?"

Planning for the Future

1985-86 has been a year of reevaluation for Coastal Carolina College, a time for pinpointing needs and setting goals. New committees were established to deal with student retention and even to plan for the year 2001. But most of all, 85-86 has been a year filled with growing pains for CCC. Faculty members as well as students have been forced to face problems that necessarily arise in a growing college, from basic problems such as crowded classrooms and understaffing to deeper questions of identity as a separate institution from the Columbia campus. Yet in the midst of these problems, a stronger awareness has developed among us all that will enable us to face $86-87$ with confidence.

I can remember countless times this year that I have asked myself - "Why did I take this job?" And yet, deep inside I know it is because I love it. In spite of all the pressure, the deadlines, and the disappointments, somehow when it is all over, it is worth it all.

The completion of this yearbook is truly a team effort, and I owe so much to so many people. To Paula, God bless you for always being there and especially for Confetti's in Dallas; to Elizabeth, Chris, Moe, Bill, Elvin, and Tracey, thanks for the great photos; to Shelia, Felecia, Mark, and Míchele, for always getting your copy in on time; to Ann and Carol, for all those letters you wrote; to Pat and Veronica, for always knowing those things that I never did know or bothered to find out and especially for Dallas; to Dr. Bob, for your support and confidence; to my Business office buddies, for patience and money; to Bruce for breakfast and hugs; to Donna for a shoulder and an ear; to Greg for advise and a camera; to Mirinda for putting up with me; to Mom and Daddy for believing and loving me. And of course, to all those unbelievers who doubted a spring delivery, HA! HA!, the book is here.

In the words of the A-Team's Hannable, "I love it when a plan comes together!"

Cordially,
