Debaters Win Honors

Guests at Purdue

February 11 witnessed nine representatives under the coaching of Prof. George C. Moore, chairman of the Department of Speech, headed for the annual Novice Invitational Debate Meet held at Purdue University. Debaters from twenty-eight colleges and universities had gathered to compete in the four rounds of debate.

Dr. A. H. Monroe, chairman of the Purdue Department of Speech and author of several texts used in the Olivet speech department, addressed the banquet on the importance of argumentation and debate in our atomic age. At the end of the day the group returned enriched with new experiences and a good percentage of "wins."

Jim Leach and Don Winne, Gene Harris and Eldon Cornett, and Betty Parr and Lorraine Johnson debated the pro's and con's of the national debate topic for this year which is, Resolved: That the United States should nationalize the basic non-agricultural industries.

At Wisconsin Meet

Over the week-end of Feb. 18, Olivet debaters participated in the sixth annual Speech Meet in the Wisconsin

State Teachers College at Eau Claire, Wis. There were thirty-one participating colleges and universities from six states. Entries were made in after dinner speaking, extemporaneous speaking, folk tale, and debate.

Jim Leach gave an original composition in an after dinner speech for which he received a rating of "Excellent." Louis Behr also received a rating of "Excellent" in an extemporaneous speech on "Health Insurance."

For a presentation of an old Irish folktale, Fred McGraw was awarded a rating of "Superior."

Rankings of "Excellent" in debate were received each by Gene Harris, Eldon Cornett, and Fred McGraw. Lacking less than one point in receiving a rating of "Excellent" in debate were Jim Leach and Don Winne. Other debaters receiving good ratings were Craig Baum, Louis Behr, and Leslie Wood. These teams debated both the affirmative and negative arguments of the current national debate resolution.

Prof. Moore accompanied the debaters as coach and judge. Lorraine Johnson and Jeanne Robinson also went along as student judges of debate.

On Friday evening a banquet was given at the Eau Claire Episcopal Christ Parish Home after which the winners in after-dinner speaking were presented. The Speech Meet was concluded Saturday afternoon by a convocation in which individual ratings and judges' criticisms were presented.

Intermittent refreshers of braunschweger and crackers, Wisconsin cheese, scenes of seemingly fairy realms in ice bound fields around the Mississippi, one unique lobster dinner for the coach, dissimilar souvenirs of the trip, and capitalistic singspirations of socialism helped to lessen the many miles in a mirthful manner. The exuberant return of the debaters was through the picturesque Dells of Wisconsin, past the state capital, and the University of Wisconsin.

Sunday School Contest Gains Momentum

With our record Sunday School attendance of 1,108 on March 5, Olivet finally swings into action in the fourth annual contest with Nampa. This record attendance puts Olivet in the lead by the doubtful margin of 36 points. And you don't have to be "A prophet or the son of a prophet" to predict a rugged battle ahead!

So let's all adopt Jim Leonard's slogan: "Roll out and be out for Olivet . . . because Nampa has beaten Olivet two of the three years of these attendance contests. We want to even it up this year . . . so—oo—oo, let's do it!"

Successful Revival Ends

Olivet's recent revival with Dr. D. I. Vanderpool, general superintendent, will indeed be long remembered in all hearts as a definite Holy Ghost revival in which many of the student body sought and found the Lord in His saving and sanctifying power. The power of God was truly evident in everything that was said and done.

Professor Gerald Greenlee not only blessed with his beautiful singing, but also with his sincere and humble spirit. It may be said indeed that all were uplifted, inspired to strive harder, under Dr. Vanderpool's heart-searching ministry.

The second of these Senior Recitals will be given on Monday evening, March 20, at 8:00 o'clock in the College Parlor, when Prof. Kathryn Zook will present Joseph Worley, tenor, assisted by Phyllis Blackwell, pianist, pupil of Prof. Wayne Spalding. The program will be as follows:

So Eat Breakfast!

State College, Pa.—(ACP)—The necessity for eating a good breakfast has been tested at the Pennsylvania State College Medical School. A group of women were used as subjects in experimental work under controlled conditions. The scientists wanted to know if there was a difference in the reaction time, output of work, and tremor of a person if that person had or had not eaten a good breakfast.

A cycle-like machine called ergometer was used to measure the work output. To show the reaction time of the women a series of lights and a timing machine were used. To measure the muscular fatigue after exertion, in this case to show the trembling of the outstretched arm, another electrical machine was used.

After months of testing, these results appeared: without breakfast, the output goes down, reactions are slower, and tremor increases. In other words when you eat a good breakfast you are apt to do everything that you try much better. You will be steadier, more calm and clearer in your thinking.

Students Sponsor New Sunday School

Currently canvassing East Bradley are twenty students under the direction of Richard Jaymes who is acting under the leadership of George Psaute and the Olivet Ministerial Fellowship. This activity is following the recent launching of this student enterprise to erect a chapel in East Bradley before school is out in order to accommodate Sunday School prospects.

This group of enthusiastic Christians call on the week-ends, hold prayer in a limited number of homes, and lately have been scheduling prayer meetings in homes in preparation for the day when the chapel shall be erected. Mr. Jaymes is reporting tangible results in that many Catholic homes offer a friendly reception to the propagation of this project as well as Protestant homes which are responding well.

Though the Lord has been leading in an unusual way there is still a great Macedonian call for more student participation, in this your project, along the lines of prayer, material and monetary assistance.

What of the Summer?

Although the snow has just melted and there's a bite in the air, and final exams are things not even thought of, have you considered what you will be doing next summer? Many desire Christian service on a large scale. Others would perhaps like to work with young people. Yet these two classes of people will be finding it necessary to work throughout the summer in order to be back next fall.

Now there is a possible way to fill both of those demands by just filling a job as a summer counselor. Many college students find camp counseling a stimulating way of spending their summer vacations. Camp directors, too, welcome the leadership of college level counselors.

To facilitate your finding a location for the summer there has been published an exclusive list of hundreds of camp jobs available all over the country. This "1950 Summer Camp Job Directory" gives you information on camp names, locations, positions open, necessary qualifications, where and how to apply, and other helpful data — all in easy-to-read, easy-to-select order.

This entire directory costs only one dollar. So order your copy now, to pick the job you want, where you want it, and in the type of camp you want it. Send your dollar and your name and address to: Camp Staff Service Bureau, Galloway Publishing Company, 705 Park Avenue, Plainfield, New Jersey.

Club Highlights

DAUGHTERS OF MARTHA WINES

Arlene Albrecht, Miriam Colwell, Alma Blakley, June Youngblood and Bonnie Youngblood presented some profitable discussions on the topics of faith, hope, prayer and charity, at the last meeting of the Daughters of Martha Ann Wines.

This year's officers include Norma Turley, President; Mrs. Ortive Welsh, Vice-president; Alma Blakley, Secretary-Treasurer; and Mrs. Wayne Donson, Sponsor.

ENGLISH GUILD

Three films were presented by the English Guild in the College auditorium Friday, March 10, 7:30 p. m. These films were obtained from the British Informative Services and included a technicolor feature on Famous English Gardens; the Sleep-Walking Scene from Shakespeare's "Macbeth"; and Northern Ireland. The latter picture compliments this year's Irish theme of the Guild.

Plans for the publication of the project for the year — a paper containing the original works of the members—has thus far been successfully carried through. A limited number of the papers will be made available to other students interested in purchasing a copy.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB

Dr. McMahan from Manteno State Hospital will discuss "Alcoholism" and a film will be shown on "The Problem Drinker," at the next club meeting. Dr. McMahan is an authority on the diagnosis and treatment of this growing social ill. The date for this meeting will be announced later.

COMMERCE CLUB

Mr. Vernon McBroom, who has been in the restaurant business for 40 years, spoke before the Commerce Club on February 24 about "Public Relations in the Restaurant Industry." A movie sponsored by the National Restaurant Association and called "America's Heritage of Hospitality" was shown.

Mr. McBroom is a member of the board of directors of the state restaurant association and is treasurer of the national organization.

F. T. A. NEWS

Erick J. Fisher will speak to F.T.A. March 14, 7:30-8:30 p. m. Mr. Fisher, an exchange teacher from England will present some interesting facts relative to British Education. All future teachers will enjoy this high point in their chapter activities for this year.

Men, Take Heed!

Marietta, Ohio—(ACP)—"Marry a woman who knows more than you do" is the advice given to college students by Warren Bruner, management consultant conducting an experimental course in career determination at Marietta College.

"A man's personality and mental stature tend to increase as he progresses in his occupational field," he told his classes recently. "On the other hand, a woman starts going backward as soon as she enters a career as a homemaker—unless she realizes the danger and fights hard against it.

"Educate her less than the man, or start them even, and you provide one of several causes for the case of a man in middle life divorcing the partner of his early struggles to seek a more compatible mate."

PRODIGAL SON

Rehearsals for the dramatic production, The Prodigal Son, which is to be presented March 29, 31, April 1, are under way, announces Prof. George Moore. Members of the cast are working several nights a week to make this a memorable program. Tickets may be bought from cast members.

Glimmering Thru The Glass

Dear Krys:

"Let it snow—let it snow — nothin' bothers me" except, of course, the exams that are gonna be! Oh, hi Krys, forgot that I was writing to my best friend. Topics of conversation around these days are: THE TORTOISE (that always wins in the end) and THE HARE (Nampa, that will lose in the end) so says Dr. Byron if we keep up the 1000 mark in Sunday school, exxxams that are to be in a week, the struggling faculty defeated by the able senior basketball team, the weather (your guess is as good as mine), and whether the GLIMMERGLASS will go to press without the right arm of Editor Reitz.

I know you're not interested in general topics that you want to know more about the "human interest" stories, well to satisfy you, here they are: George Prather and Dortha Cooper, Wilma Moody and Orville Rees, Ralph Strahm and Dorothy Ruble, Don Bell and Mary Mitchell, Jay Pate and Josephine Ambrosio, Carl Baker and Edna Drake, Don Ball and Carol Thompson, Marsh McGuire and Nona Powers (?), and Don Gollither and Esther Ferguson. Suppose there are a lot more "humanly interested", but you'll hear from me again.

'Cuse Krys, John Handschy just came in to tell me to say "Hi" to somebody, but I can't remember who. Hi anyhow.

Talk about service, we really have it in the Dining Hall now. All you have to

The nurse took her in to see the doctor right away because she was causing a lot of excitement among the other patients. When she walked into the doctor's office he very kindly asked her what her trouble was. "There is nothing wrong with me, doctor, it's my husband. He thinks he's an ostrich."

Engagement Revealed

Another Olivet couple have decided to "take the leap" into the waters of matrimony. Anna Sherwood, a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences, and Leland Wood, enrolled in the College Bible School, announce their engagement. A date for the wedding has not been set.

FROM THE PASTOR'S STUDY

—BY

DR. LLOYD BYRON

"Oh, you'll take the high road, and I'll take the low road," so sang the old Scottish folk song. But that is hardly the theme song of the student conscious of the abiding presence of the Holy Spirit. For him it is always the high road, the road of high ethical living!

The sanctified student senses the urge of a divine compulsion. It is his obligation to others as well as to God to exemplify in his life the grace that is now in his heart. That points, then, to the high road.

This heart experience of the Holy Spirit is wonderful; the inner effects of sanctifying grace are perfect; his spiritual nature is without a flaw. And with the ardor born of this glorious experience, he starts out. Then, sooner or later, he runs into this problem: How can he give proper expression to this perfect inner grace; how can he live the Christ-life above reproach, without rebuke, faultless, blameless? How can he channel into his living what is in his heart, when every expression is through his imperfect personality, his infirm body, his human temperament, his limited knowledge of God, his fallible moral discrimination, his inadequate native insight? What a problem!

But the realization of the problem cannot deter him; rather it alerts him to the difficulties he faces in himself; it makes him aware of his need of wisdom, of prayer, of perseverance; it sharpens his sense of responsibility to God and to others to make real in his life what God has made real in his heart. In the dormitory, in the class room, on the gym floor, in the dining hall, at his daily occupation, everywhere; his is the obligation springing out of his experience of the baptism of the Spirit to live Christ everywhere in daily life to make Him real, to make men want Him, to reproduce Him. And that means high ethical living; hence this call to all Olivetians to take the high road, the high road of Christian ethics in daily practice.

International Introductions

LOUIS BEHR:

Although Louis comes to Olivet from British Guiana he is a subject of the Netherlands possession Dutch Guiana. Six years ago he felt the call to preach and sought out L. J. Rogers, Nazarene missionary working in the British colony. The work of the church in the British Guiana has only been planted for 2½ years and there is urgent need for trained ministers of the gospel. The General Board made it possible for Louis to enter Olivet and the Lord willing he will return to take up the gospel mission in the British possession. The sincere testimonies for Christ and the work to which he has been called have been an inspiration to the students of the college and the prayers of many will follow him when he leaves to reap the harvest fields in the regions of the Amazon.

CUBA:

ZENAIDA GONZALES:

The following is a translation of your reporter's interview with our Christian friend from sunny Cuba:

"After much prayer, and having placed my life in God's hands, He gave me the opportunity to come to Olivet. I am here now studying so that I will be better prepared to return to Cuba and work. I am trusting in the Lord that I'll be able to graduate from Bible School, return to my country and be instrumental in the salvation of many souls.

I have greatly enjoyed my stay at Olivet. One of the things I miss is the delicious Cuban plate of fried beef steak with onions and "plantanos." I also miss the bright sunshine every morning."

"So They Say . . ."

Shortly after midnight of Friday, Feb. 24, the pale baneful light cast by the moon's new quarter made visible to someone two figures fleeing 'round the Nook through the freshly fallen snow. Some say that for quite a distance this person chased the culprits who, as it later became very evident, had made away with no less than a vast amount of teaspoons and forks from the dining hall. But rumor has it that he chased—by the opposite direction in search of Vigilant Hazard, the night watchman. Nevertheless, dissimilar opinions agreed only on one fact—the silver was gone for the first time in three years.

Others, not willing to shirk their duty, as is told, searched in every wee nook and corner to prove their fidelity to authority, or else, so some say, to avert suspicion. But, nonetheless, a motley sup-

Pottawatammie Tales

—Erle Ferguson

In the year 1769 the Illinois Indians located near Starved Rock were living on the plain across the river. For more than one hundred years there had been Indian wars in the Illinois valley. In the seventeenth century the Illinois Indians fought the fierce Iroquois who came from New York; and later, the Pottawatomi tribe which came from the north and east. An Ottawa Indian chief, Pontiac, tried to win the Illinois tribes that lived along the Mississippi River and in the Illinois valley to an Indian confederation that would drive out the European settlers who had entered the Middle West. The Illinois, however, were friendly with the French settlers in this territory and refused to take part in the conspiracy. In the summer of 1769, following an argument with some Illinois tribesmen, Pontiac was murdered brutally.

The Ottawa, Pontiac's tribe, were unable to avenge his death. The Pottawatomi were in sympathy with Pontiac and set out on the warpath against the Starved Rock Illinois camp. The Pottawatomi did not know that the Illinois of the Rock were innocent of the murder when they fell upon the little village as the inhabitants were busy gathering the fall harvest. Utterly unable to defend themselves when the cruel warriors swept down upon them from the paths along the northern bluffs, the Illinois men, women, and children, waded across the low waters and sought refuge on top of the huge rock. War cries and death chants, mingled with battle shrieks filled the air and blood flowed freely as women hoeing in the cornfields were hacked to death before they could learn the identity of the enemy and give warning.

After an attempt to scale the steep walls of the Rock the Pottawatomi realized that the Illinois vantage point was too great, and the besiegers camped at the foot of the rock until the enemy would be forced to come down. Before long the food supply of the Illinois gave out, and their water supply, too, for the ply of old silver was pressed into service over the weekend in accompaniment with small wooden picnic forks for the Sunday dinner. The raw joke ended through a warning tip to Mrs. Wellman whereby she found the silverware in a closet of Mr. Donson dean of men.

Seemingly only two major problems arose over the occasion: that is, the members of W.T.K. suffered a serious setback in their exacting etiquette and—well, is Dean Donson trying to prove himself to be "one of the boys" or just how did that silver get into his closet?

Pottawatomi were careful to cut the ropes of the water buckets that were lowered into the river from time to time. The Illinois Indians stayed on top of the rock for three long weeks. Before the first week had passed they had eaten their dogs; by the time of the third week they were eating grass and bark. They must descend and fight—or die of starvation. It was resolved to sneak through the Pottawatomi camp on the first stormy night.

The propitious night arrived and the procession silently made its way down the steep eastern face of the rock. The first of the Illinois were already passing through the outposts of the sleeping camp when a mother slipped as she made her way down the steep cliff; her child began to cry; and the Pottawatomi were awakened. The slaughter that took place in the narrow confines of the canyon was terrific. The cries of the hunger-worn warriors, too weak to defend even themselves ably, were soon stifled and stilled. Womanhood and childhood was no defense, for women and children alike shared the warrior's fate. Even those who had returned to the top of the rock were not spared as the Pottawatomi pressed them to the edges from which they fell to the sharp rocks below. When all were dead the Pottawatomi returned home.

Such is the tale told by the victors of the Battle of Starved Rock.

EUROPEANS ARE BETTER VERSED ON NEWS, SAYS JOURNALIST

"The average newspaper reader in Europe knows what goes on in the United States better than many American readers know what is happening in Europe," says the University Daily Kansan reporting Dean Kenneth E. Olson, Medill School of Journalism, who addressed the Inland Daily Press association in Chicago.

Dean Olson, who visited Europe in 1949, said that the press of Europe is a more serious press than the press in the United States.

"In Europe the papers," he said "carry much more foreign news and much more background of the news than our papers. Europeans can't understand why Americans shock their readers with crime, divorce, and the extra-curricular affairs of prominent persons.

Sophs Down Frosh In Opener

In the first game of the practice round Tuesday, Feb. 21, the Freshmen and Sophomore boys clashed in a game in which the Blue and White led all the way. By the end of the first quarter the sophomore boys led 11-7 and kept their lead at the half by a score of 23-15. During the third quarter the sophomores tossed in 11 points to the Freshies' 4. The finish for the sophomores was a strong one with the dropping in of 12 points to make the final score 46-31. Don Gollither led the sophomore scoring with 12 points, McMurrin making 10. McCullough led the Maroon and White with 7 points.

Friday night the Freshmen and Juniors played the closest game so far in the tournament. Both teams were smarting from a defeat and were trying for a come back. In the first quarter, the Juniors outscored the Freshmen 14-13 but fell behind them by the half, 26-22. When play was resumed for the second half, the Juniors broke ahead again and led 36-32 at the end of the third quarter, but again trailed at the final whistle, the Freshmen winning 43-39.

Juniors Bow To Seniors

Thursday, Feb. 23 saw the Junior and Senior men begin afresh the old battle between the classes. It was a nip and tuck game all the way with the lead changing hands many times during the game. When the first 10 minute period was over the Seniors led the Juniors 15-12 but the story had changed by the half time and the short but determined Juniors were ahead 26-25. The Seniors used their height to good advantage in the third quarter and pulled ahead by 7 points, 42-35, but in the last quarter the Juniors whittled at the lead, overcoming only one of those 7 points, and at the final buzzer were still behind 6 points. The final score read 59-53 in favor of the Seniors. Wellman paced the Maroon and Grey with 19 points followed by Beatty with 15. Tommy Clendenen took high honors for the Seniors with 16 points followed by Applegate with 13 points.

Trojans Emerge Victorious As Season Ends

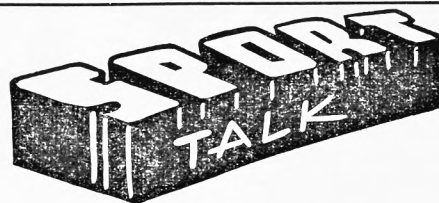

The 1949-50 society basketball season ended amid shouts of victory as the Trojans obtained a final victory over the Spartans 48-43.

The concluding game of the season between the Trojans and Spartans was fought hard all the way by both societies. The Spartans lagged behind at the end of the first quarter by 8 points, but at the half trailed by only 5 points, the score being 26-21. As the 1949-50 season closed, the Trojans held first place, the Indians were in second place, and the Spartans third. All three societies had played good basketball.

Society basketball hasn't closed as yet for the girls. The Spartans and Indians still have to play off the tie for first.

The Indians were behind and the outlook wasn't so good for them, but in their final game with the Trojans, they came out victorious. The score was close and the game an exciting one. Hodgson and Wallace scored 11 points each for the losers, and V. Johnson, 2; but their points didn't quite add up to the Indians' 25. L. Johnson scored 10; Street 7, McMurrin and Quanstrom, 4 each.

The last game made the tie fast. The Spartans won 18 to 12 with Harshman scoring 10 points. This tie between the Spartans and the Squaws will be played off later, so prepare yourself for a good game.

Right now we're in the beginning stages of the Class Tournament. The first rounds are practice ones. The standings are:

	W	L
Freshmen	2	1

The elimination tournament began last week.

Say girls, do you like to play ping pong and badminton? Well, start practicing; prepare yourself for a tournament in the near future.

After a hectic basketball race among the societies the Trojans finally emerged the victors by defeating the Spartans in the last game of the season. It was the most scrambled race we've seen for some time — about the time a team was counted out of the chase, it popped back and upset the favored opponent. The Trojans and Indians will be strong next year, with the Spartans coming in last, aided by new talent.

Tournament time has once again hit Olivet. All four teams look very strong and deep in reserves. The sophomore team looks very strong and the favorite from this quarter to take the white bucket for the second successive year. The Freshmen and Seniors look like a close second with the Juniors coming in last. Of course, at Olivet, anything can happen—upsets still occur!

We're looking forward to an interesting campaign and lots of fun on the part of players and spectators alike. Let's come out and cheer for our favorite team, and especially about the fourth quarter, yell for "the substitute to come in, so we can have fun, too."

On Olivet's Women

It can be said without question that Olivet's women sometimes can be very curt, snobbish, indifferent and even ambiguous in their dealings with Olivet's men.

By all evidences it seems that the women take too much for granted. If a fellow takes out a girl for two or three dates then takes out another girl, the poor thing has been jilted. On the other hand, if he dates her pretty steadily she has the tendency to string him along, and make believe that she likes him when only she is just wanting to make sure of having a date for all the school functions or just waiting for someone better to come along.

Some of the girls here tell the fellow that they have a good time on their date, then they will go right up to their room and start running the poor guy down.

I just can't understand it. If you smile at them you're a flirt, if you don't you're a drig. If you try to carry on a conversation on a date you're a gab, if you don't you're a bore. If you try to put your arm around her (or kiss her) you're fresh, if you don't you're just plumb green. If you try to be nice you're just fooling her, if you don't you're in love with her. Can you beat that? IT's beyond me Women? Whew! —Deliver me!

By Wayne Jones and Marsh McGuire

"Into the well which supplies thee with water, cast no stones"—'Tis a truth for sure, but it's not the basis for the statements of this simple composition. To attempt to write an article about women, a man, unless he is a fool, must admit that he could be wrong, that he probably is, and that he is sorry for it.

Perhaps the greatset boon of the modern school is the fact that it is a co-educational institution. Yet, some of our Olivet male section might just as well live in the 15th century. There are others of our group who like the "scenery"—they like the idea of young girls flitting around the campus. Even now we take their roving glance and glassy stare as a harbinger of warmer weather. But the man of true wisdom is the man who takes advantage of every good opportunity. The answer is — they are the best! They're not good looking?—You're mistaken! A recent graduate, who married one of Olivet's loveliest coeds, states that our girls as a group are better looking than the 9,000 females who inhabit the school where he is doing his graduate work. After all, to find true beauty you must look into people as well as at them. Here's the point, men—Get out and associate with the girls; find this added dividend of college-life. The actualities of feminine companionship will make you realize the stupidity of further indifference . . . "Are the stars too distinct? Pick up the pebble that lies at thy feet."
