Message from the Chancellor

Welcome back to faculty and staff who have been away from campus during the summer. One of the real pleasures of working in higher education is that every year we start fresh with new ideas and new visions.

This year, thanks to the hard work of staff and faculty, our enrollment is up, and we have an increase in the number of full-time students. Headcount is up one percent to 4,023 students, but more important to our fiscal situation, FTE enrollment is up 3.4 percent to 3,454.73.

The new freshman class increased by 6.4 percent to 635. The average SAT score is 863, an increase of 13 points, and 16 percent of our new freshman scored over 1,000.

As most of you have heard, the downside for the coming year is our budget situation. The South Carolina Supreme Court overturned the Budget and Control Board's initial plan which called for reductions based on each state agency's increase last year. The resulting 4 percent, across-the-board cut will double Coastal's total budget reduction to more than $400,000.

At this point, no jobs will be lost at Coastal. However, to meet this deficit, we must undergo serious fiscal belt-tightening. We will postpone filling vacant positions when possible, we will eliminate equipment purchases, and we will cut back on travel. I ask that each of you scrutinize travel expenditures and find less costly alternatives. I also ask that everyone cooperate in reducing long distance telephone charges and cutting back on supply purchases. If each of us makes appropriate reductions, we will weather this budget crisis. I want to stress that we will do everything possible to avoid a mid-year tuition increase, because our students should not bear the brunt of the budget shortfall.

Financial concerns aside, we are beginning what promises to be one of the most exciting years in Coastal's history. I hope each of you will share my enthusiasm as we plan and work toward a bright future for our institution.

Ron Ingle

First Annual Conference For Women offered via satellite

Coastal is offering the live videoconference "First Annual Conference For Women" on Wednesday, Oct. 14 from 1 to 3 p.m. in GCEC 003. The videoconference is $15 and includes lunch, which will be served at 12:30 p.m. Faculty and staff will be admitted free; students will be admitted for $5.

"First Annual Conference For Women" will address how women in the workplace can develop skills and strategies they need to improve their leadership, visibility and effectiveness in their organizations. Ann Morrisson, co-author of Breaking the Glass, and Juanita Hinshaw, vice president and treasurer of Monsato Company, will talk candidly about professional development for women. Key topics of the videoconference include: moving successfully from manager to leader, how to develop your professional leadership plan, and building credibility to reinforce your authority.

The program will consist of presentations, panel discussion, pretaped role plays with professional actors, and nearly 40 minutes of telephone questions and answers between the viewing audience and panelists via an 800 number.

The videoconference is presented by Graduate and Continuing Education through the PBS Adult Learning Satellite Service.

Pre-registration is necessary by Friday, Oct. 9.

To register or for more information, contact Graduate and Continuing Education. ~

Methodist church leases facility

Betha United Methodist Church, an interracial congregation which had been meeting in a storefront building on Highway 501, has leased the Little Theater for its services until the congregation is able to build a new church.

Although several members of the college community are members of the congregation, the space has been rented in accordance with the college's space utilization policy for off-campus groups. Rental fees will cover any expenses incurred by the congregation. ~

Third Quarter program gears up for semester

Coastal Carolina College invites those age 55 or older to enroll in Third Quarter, an academic and cultural program for older students.

The fall 1992 session begins Monday, Oct. 5 and continues through Thursday, Dec. 10; each course meets once a week, excluding Thanksgiving week. No educational prerequisites are required for participation in Third Quarter.

Developed through Graduate and Continuing Education, Third Quarter is supported through a membership fee that covers the cost of courses; a campus parking decal; Coastal identification and student privileges; use of Kimbel Library; and discounts on the purchase of the Wheelwright Passport, the college's cultural arts package.

Course offerings include:

- Gender Wars: The Male and Female in Literature and Language. Address the use of stereotypes and social reactions to gender in novels by Jack London, Eudora Welty, Ernest Hemingway, and more. The class meets Mondays from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Instructor: John Beard.

- History and Culture of Eastern Europe and the CIS: The Contemporary Period. This course will review the history, culture, religion and people of the new states of Eastern Europe and the Commonwealth of Independent States from the end of World War II to the present. Also included will be discussion of Soviet expansion and domination of Eastern Europe after 1945 and the fall and collapse of the Communist system. The class meets Mondays from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Instructor: James Farsolas.

- Current Events: Election '92. In this year of elections, this course will examine such topics as the electoral process, party issues and specific idiosyncrasies of the 1992 elections. The class meets Tuesdays from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Instructor: Paul Peterson.

- Introduction to the Great Books. Students in this course will encounter ideas in literature, philosophy, history and psychology and will learn to interpret them. The class meets Tuesdays from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Instructor: Jack Riley.

- Horry County Outback. This course will blend geography, history, biography and oral history interviews to introduce the sometimes remote and interesting places that make-up Horry County. The class meets Wednesdays from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Instructor: Catherine Lewis.

- Medicine In Cultural Context. This course examines the complex relationship between history and medicine by focusing on topics from antiquity through the 19th century, including Hippocratic medicine, the Black Death, the growth of modern surgery, and more. The class meets Wednesdays from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Instructor: Brian Nance.

- American Short Stories. This course will explore a wide range of short stories including works by Edgar Allan Poe, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Herman Melville, Mark Twain, William Faulker, Ernest Hemingway, Flannery O'Connor, and more. The class meets Thursdays from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Instructor: Virginia Cremen-Rudd.

- Creative Writing: The Narrative. Designed for beginning as well as advanced writers, this course will deal with character, conflict, and atmosphere in writing. Participants will publish an anthology of their writings. The class meets Thursdays from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Instructor: Susan Meyers.

For one or two classes, the fee is $35 per course. One person may take up to four courses for $100. If you have a friend, spouse or neighbor interested in joining Third Quarter, the two of you make take four courses each for $150 ($75 per person).

Registration continues through the first week of classes in the Graduate and Continuing Education Office.

For more information about Third Quarter, call Graduate and Continuing Education. ~

Area artist's work to be exhibited

An exhibit of paintings by South Carolina artist Charles Mills will be on display in the gallery of the Graduate and Continuing Education Building from Thursday, Sept. 24 through Wednesday, Oct. 21. The exhibit will be open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is free and open to the public. In conjunction, an opening reception will be held Thursday, Sept. 24 from 2 to 5 p.m. in the gallery. The reception also is open to the public.

Mills' paintings, abstract expressionistic and naturalistic works, have been exhibited in South Carolina, California and Virginia. More than 90 of his paintings are owned by collectors in the United States, Canada, England, Germany and India. He has seven years of abstract impressionism painting, 14 years of portrait and full figure painting, and three years of welded metal sculpture experience. Mills is a North Myrtle Beach resident.

For information, call Charles Wright. ~

Coastal receives flag from MBAFB

As one of his last official orders of business in the community, Col. Richard H. McDow, Commander of the 354th Fighter Wing of Myrtle Beach Air Force Base, presented a United States Flag, which had flown at the base, to Coastal Carolina College. Chancellor Ingle accepted the flag during a flag-raising ceremony held Friday, Sept. 18 on the Horseshoe on campus.

The flag presentation was a symbolic gesture signifying the 38-year relationship between the college and the base. According to Ingle, the base and the college have served together as partners in the community and both have been among the areas largest employers. That relationship became official in 1968 when the USC System began offering college courses, taught by Coastal faculty, at the base. In 1978, Coastal took over the program and it continued through the summer session of 1992.

The last A-10s of the 354th Fighter Wing will leave the base for the final time Tuesday, Sept. 22. ~

Tom Trout Memorial Fund established

The School of Humanities and Fine Arts announce the establishment of the Tom Trout Memorial Fund to honor this faculty member and friend who died May 29, 1992. Funds donated will be used to purchase two Charleston benches and a tree to be placed near the pond on campus. A plaque to read "Tom Trout Reading Room" will be placed in the area. The project is estimated to cost $300 to $350; any additional money collected will be donated to a scholarship fund named in Trout's honor.

A service to celebrate Trout's life is planned for Friday, Sept. 25 at 3 p.m. in the Little Theater. Students, faculty, staff, and friends are invited to attend the program. Participants will present readings and songs in his memory. A booklet of "Memories of Tom" contributed by his friends will be presented to his wife, Jeanie, at the ceremony.

Contributions to the memorial fund should be sent to Shirell Mishoe in the School of Humanities and Fine Arts, by Thursday, Oct. 15.

Native American-Catholic sister to address spirituality, discovery of America

Sister Jose Hobday, Native American and member of the Order of St. Francis of Assisi, will speak Wednesday, Sept. 23 at 7 p.m. in the Brookgreen Gardens Education Center. Brookgreen Gardens is located on Highway 17 in Murrells Inlet. Hobday's lecture, "One Native American's View of Columbus and the Quincentennial," will address the earth-centered traditions of Native Americans and the Catholic church and the significance of Columbus' arrival in America. The lecture is free and open to the public.

The lecture is the third in a series called the Homeland Lectures and Dialogues. Co-sponsored by Aynor-based Blackwater Partnership of Horry County and Coastal Carolina College, the series is addressed to citizens of the Waccamaw Neck, Pee Dee, and Grand Strand regions.

Hobday is a Native American of Seneca Iroquois descent on her mother's side and Seminole from her father. She also is member of the Order of Sisters of St. Francis of Assisi. Hobday is a staff member at the Matthew Fox Institute for Culture and Creation Spirituality in Oakland, Calif.

Hobday has a master's degree in American literature and has completed additional graduate studies in theology, Native American literature, and architecture and engineering at such institutions as the University of North Colorado, Notre Dame University, and UCLA. She has taught at secondary and university levels at institutions including the Native American Culture Center at UCLA. She also has conducted ministries and has lived and worked with the Sioux and Assiniboine tribes of Montana and the Papago tribe of Arizona.

Marine and wetland center to host three-part forum on environmental issues

To promote the exchange of information and discussion of pressing environmental issues facing the Grand Strand, the Center for Marine and Wetland Studies will host the annual Fall Forum in three parts - Thursday, Sept. 24; Thursday, Oct. 8; and Thursday, Nov. 19. The three parts of the Fall Forum are free and open to the public and will be held at the Myrtle Beach Martinique Hotel, 7100 North Ocean Boulevard, Myrtle Beach.

Beachfront Management Revisited: Post-Lucas Case will open the series on Thursday, Sept. 24 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. The Lucas case challenged the South Carolina Beachfront Management Act, and was presented before the U.S. Supreme Court. The case was recently turned back to South Carolina for dispensation - and is unresolved. Included on the panel of professionals are: Stephen Leatherman, director of the Laboratory for Coastal Studies at the University of Maryland;

Deborah Maddaloni, South Carolina Coastal Council; Fred Newby, attorney with Newby and Pridgen; Trefor Thomas, attorney with Nelson, Mullins, Riley and Scarborough; and William Stephens, risk manager for the city of Myrtle Beach. The forum will be moderated by Paul Gayes. The panel will accept questions from the public.

Land Use Planning will be held Thursday, Oct. 8 and Wetlands as Filters will be held Thursday, Nov. 19.

The Center for Marine and Wetland Studies is partially funded through the Horry County Higher Education Commission. The center's mission is to facilitate research of the marine and wetland environment of the area. Ongoing projects include studies of coastal erosion, relative sea level changes, mineral resources and geological framework, wetlands, and water quality.

For information, call Steve Berkowitz. ~

Special training workshops for student workers/supervisors

Training workshops are scheduled for all student workers and their supervisors Friday, Sept. 25 in SC 205. All institutional and college work study students are required to participate in one of the two sessions to be held from 9 to 11 a.m. or 1 to 3 p.m. Supervisors of student workers will meet from 11:15 to 11:45 a.m.

The program will be presented by Patricia Moody who is chair and professor in the College of Applied Professional Sciences, Department of Retailing at USC.

USC's College of Library and Information Science to celebrate 20th anniversary

A banner year is anticipated for USC's College of Library and Information Science as it celebrates 20 years of service. Events and special programs have been planned and will be publicized through newsletters and USC alumni mailings. An anniversary party will be held Thursday, Dec. 3 with former dean Bill Summers as the featured speaker.

Throughout the academic year, four commemorative banners will be placed at Davis College to honor excellence in library and information science education.

For more information about the anniversary celebration programs, contact Pat Feehan, College of Library and Information Science, Columbia campus, or call 777-2381 or 3358. ~

Graduate School and Career Information Fair to be held on campus

The Career Placement Office is sponsoring a Graduate School and Career Information Fair on Tuesday, Oct. 13 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Kimbel Gymnasium. Coastal, Horry-Georgetown Technical College, Francis Marion College, and Coker College students are encouraged to attend. The event is free and open to the public.

Area and regional employers representing banking and financial services, retail, education, government agencies, public utilities, computer services, health care, and the hotel and tourism industries will be available to talk to students, alumni, and community members who are exploring career options. Graduate school representatives also will be present.

Booths for interested companies, agencies, etc. are available for $25. Company information in the form of profile sheets, organizational charts, printed marketing materials, or other handouts is encouraged.

For information, call Mollie Starbuck. ~

Grant information available on network

The Office of Grants and Sponsored Research has established a new source of funding information available to faculty and staff who are on the campus Local Area Network (LAN). Currently, information about funding sources with deadlines through December, 1992 is located in a series of ASCII files that can be viewed using any editor or word processor. Please note that you cannot edit them unless you copy them first to your private directory or local disk drive. A simple "viewer" program is also located with the files if you want to quickly browse through them. To use the viewer enter the command SHOWME <filename.ext>.

To access these files you must first log onto the LAN, change to either your F or G drive and then change to the GRANTS directory by issuing the command "CD\PUBLIC\GRANTS". If you plan on using your word processor, you may want to start it before changing to this drive and directory. When you finish, you will probably want to change back to your original directory.

File titles are descriptive of the types of grant information they contain. For example, FINEARTS.SEP contains information on the fine arts (including the performing arts.) Currently all files have the extension ".SEP"; files will be updated monthly and the extension changed to indicate the starting month. Files for the following disciplines are currently available: FINEARTS (fine arts), HUMANITI (humanities), SCI_MATH (science, math and Engineering), SPC_SCIE (social sciences), EDUCATIO (education), INTERNAT (international programs), HEALTH (health-related programs), and UNRESTRI (unrestricted.) In addition to these disciplines there are also files containing general information on fellowships (FELLOWSH), equipment grants (EQUIPMEN) and grants for buildings (BUILDIN). Furthermore, more specialized files also can be produced. Currently four such files are: DIVERSIT (diversity and multicultural education), ENVIROM (environmental research and education), DRUG_ALC (drug and alcohol research and education) and AGING (research and education on aging and the elderly). Other specialized files can be produced on a regular basis. In addition to the files listing the funding opportunities, there may be other text files (those with extension .TXT) that contain more detailed descriptions of program opportunities and tips on grantspersonship.

For more information or assistance using the system, contact the Office of Grants and Sponsored Research. ~

Learn how to make USCAN work for you

Kimbel Library is offering two additional workshops designed to help faculty and staff understand USCAN changes, Tuesday, Sept. 29 and Wednesday, Sept. 30 from 3 to 4 p.m. in the library. Space is limited; therefore, reservations are suggested.

With the updated 5.0.2 version, a user can search by call number; limit a keyword search by language, format and date; and search for Coastal's holdings in keyword searches by using SZRC PC.

For more information or to reserve a space, call extension 2414. ~

Ballou Skinner participated in the 1992 NASA-sponsored Space Sciences Training Program Symposium entitled Preparing the Way for the Space Sciences in the 21st Century, held in Washington, D.C., Aug. 26 through 29.

Tim Touzel and Subhash Saxena recently participated in and presented papers at the Seventh International Congress on Mathematical Education held at the Université Laval in Quebec, Canada. In addition to his presentation, Touzel contributed to the working group on motivation and student attitudes. An abstract of his paper has been published in the conference proceedings and is being considered for additional publication. Saxena presented Comparative Study of HP 48SC, DERIVE and Mathematica. More than 2,000 mathematicians and mathematics educators from around the world attended and participated in working, technical, and study groups on issues in mathematics education.

Subhash Saxena has been listed in the 23rd edition of Who's Who in the South and Southwest.

David Barnwell published a review of "New Analyses in Romance Linguistics," ed. Dieter Wanner, in the summer issue of The Modern Language Journal. ~
