College Theater to present Thornton Wilder's "Our Town"

As part of the 1992-1993 Wheelwright Passport season, College Theater will present Thornton Wilder's American classic, "Our Town," on Friday, Nov. 20 and Saturday, Nov. 21 at 7:30 p.m.; and Sunday, Nov. 22 at 3 p.m. All performances are open to the public and will be held in Wheelwright Auditorium. Tickets are $8 and $5 for students.

"Our Town," Wilder's chronicle of hearth and home, is a story of two neighboring households in the hamlet of Grover's Corners, N.H., in the early 1900s. The lives of the Webbs and the Gibbs families are in no way sensational or special, and like the families, the town also is unassuming. The place is of no real importance and the information Wilder provides serves to underline the universality of Grover's Corners and those who live there.

In furthering the theme of universality, the play is narrated by a ubiquitous stage manager, who tells the audience that a copy of the script will be left in the cornerstone of a new bank so people a "thousand years from now" can see "the way we were: in our growing up and in our marrying and in our living and in our dying." Wilder points to the fundamental elements of existence - "Love and Marriage," and "Death" - as the titles of the second and third acts.

According to the play's director Don Naggiar, "Very few people who have gone to school or attended the theater in the United States in the last 50 years are unfamiliar with this important piece of American theater. If you haven't seen the play or read the script, consider yourself fortunate indeed, because the first-time experience will be extremely rewarding."

"Our Town" includes 22 roles, many of which will be doubled.

Tickets for "Our Town" may be charged to VISA and MasterCard.

For more information, call the Wheelwright Box Office, open weekdays from noon to 5 p.m.

Don't miss the party ...

College anglers know their kings

The king mackerel is one of the most sought after gamefish on the Atlantic coast and collegiate anglers recently showed that king mackerel can be taken in unorthodox ways. The occasion was the 19th annual Coastal Carolina Invitational, an intercollegiate fishing match and seminar held in Murrells Inlet on Oct. 30.

Teams of college students have come from as far away as Japan to participate in this event which has been sponsored by the college since the mid-1970s. In past years, students have fished from Myrtle Beach piers and headboats in the Gulf Stream, but this year they found sensational king mackerel fishing about 20 miles from the Murrells Inlet jetties.

Capt. Wayne Strickland skippered the "Captain Bill" from Captain Dick's Marina for collegians from Clemson, Francis Marion and Coastal. The plan was to find some good bottom fishing for blackfish (black seabass) and put out some drift lines with live cigar minnows or pinfish which the students and their coaches jigged on small hooks with no bait.

"We caught some kings on live cigar minnows," said tournament director Donald Millus, "but most of the kings hit drifted dead sardine baits." Millus, author of "Fishing the Southeast Coast," said a small egg sinker used ahead of the wire leader resulted in many more strikes than a regular drift line.

More than 30 kings were hooked and 23 were boated. The tournament record is 53 kings tagged and released in one day; the record catch was made on silver spoons and deep planers while trolling from regular charter boats.

Francis Marion finished first in the competition while Coastal's B team edged out the college's A team and Clemson for runner-up honors.

Prizes were donated by Abu Garcia, Ande, Berkley, Buck Knives, DuPont, Plano, Salt Water Sportsman Magazine, Shakespeare, Wright & McGill, and Zebco. The Grand Strand Salt Water Anglers held an awards cook-out for students and coaches at the end of the tournament.

The major sponsor of the annual event is Coastal Educational Foundation, Inc. ~

Country music course to be offered during spring semester

A new course, "The Poetics and Performance of Country Music," will be offered at Coastal during the spring semester, on Tuesdays from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Spring classes for the regular session begin Tuesday, Jan. 19 and continue through Saturday, May 1.

Paul Rice, a professor of English, published poet, and country music songwriter and guitarist, will address the following in the course: the history of American country music, the poetics of country music, country music as folk performance, recent sound technology and recording, songwriting, and delivering the goods through such avenues as TNN, radio and record sales. Also included in the course will be guest speakers, a tour of a country music studio and theaters, and an optional trip to Nashville to attend the 1993 Nashville Songwriters Association

Symposium. There will be additional costs for the optional Nashville trip.

Students may receive three hours of undergraduate credit for CEGL 337. All new students must apply to Coastal through the Office of Admission and must pay a $25 application fee.

Tuition fees for credit courses are waived for senior citizens who are South Carolina residents.

The course also is open for non-credit registration.

Early registration for the 1993 spring semester for continuing undergraduate students will be held through Tuesday, Nov. 24 in the Registrar's Office, located in the Singleton Building.

Late registration closes Friday, Jan. 15.

For more information, contact Graduate and Continuing Education or Paul Rice. ~

Joyner to teach South Carolina history course

"The History of South Carolina" with Charles Joyner will be offered during the spring semester, on Mondays from 2:30 to 5 p.m.

Joyner will explore South Carolina's origins, development, and recent history with emphasis on social and institutional development.

Students may receive three hours of undergraduate credit for CHST 383 or one-hour of undergraduate credit for CSPT 199H. All new students must apply to Coastal through the Office of Admission and pay a $25 application fee.

Senior citizens may register for the one-hour or three-hour credit course; tuition fees are waived for senior citizens who are South Carolina residents.

Early registration for the 1993 spring semester for continuing undergraduate students will be held through Tuesday, Nov. 24 in the Registrar's Office, located in the Singleton Building.

Registration closes Friday, Jan. 15. Spring classes for the regular session begin Tuesday, Jan. 19 and continue through Saturday, May 1.

Reported apparitions in Medjugorje, Yugoslavia topic of lecture

Wayne Weible, a former newspaper publisher and columnist who became fascinated with the alleged apparitions of the Virgin Mary in the farming village of Medjugorje, Yugoslavia, will speak at on Tuesday, Nov. 17 at 7 p.m. in GCEC 003. Sponsored by the Neumann Club, a student organization of Catholic students, the lecture is free and open to the public.

Weible first heard of the apparitions in 1985, which had reportedly been taking place since 1981, and decided to write an article for his weekly newspaper column. Weible soon changed his original plan for a single article and wrote a series of articles. Several months later, he sold his four weekly newspapers to devote his time to spreading the Medjugorje message.

More than 25 million copies of a tabloid containing Weible's articles, called "Miracle of Medjugorje," have been printed.

Weible has traveled to Medjugorje more than 17 times. He travels the United States and the world to lecture on the events of Medjugorje; his tours include appearances in Ireland, South America, Scotland, England, West Indies, Grenada, Australia, Singapore, Poland, and Canada.

Weible is a graduate of the University of South Carolina.

Ms. Coastal Carolina College crowned

Wendy Hall, a junior elementary education major from Conway, has been crowned the 1992 Ms. Coastal Carolina College. Seventeen Coastal students competed in the pageant held in Wheelwright Auditorium Saturday, Nov. 7. Hall was sponsored by the Sigma Phi Epsilon and performed a gymnastics routine for her talent.

With sponsorship from a campus club or organization, contestants are required to hold at least a 2.0 grade point average and be full-time Coastal students. The winner is selected based upon competitions in talent, evening gown, response to a random question, and an interview held prior to the pageant.

Yasemin Siab, a sophomore international studies major from Saudi Arabia, was first runner-up. Siab also received the Community Service Award. She was sponsored by the University Concert Choir.

Tamera Bobo, a freshman early childhood education major from Myrtle Beach, was second runner-up in the pageant. She was sponsored by Alpha Gamma Pi.

Melissa McCloud, a sophomore early childhood education major from Nesmith, S.C., was named Most Talented; she performed a dramatic monologue. McCloud was sponsored by Leadership Challenge.

Jodi Eanes, a freshman early childhood education major from Surfside Beach, was named Most Photogenic. She was sponsored by the Varsity Cheerleaders.

Keisha Jeffcoat, a freshman English major from Swansea, S.C., was named Miss Congeniality. She was sponsored by MENC. ~

A Pome . . .

This verse comes from Phil Byrum of the "Oklahoma Publisher" and was reprinted in the South Carolina Press Association's newsletter dated Nov. 6, 1992.

I have a spelling checker,
It came with my PC,
It plainly marks four my revue
Mistakes I cannot see.
I've run this pome threw it,
I'm sure your please to no,
Its letter perfect in it's weigh,
My checker tolled me sew. ~
