FR. EDWIN G. McMANUS, S.
J.*

1908-1969

Edwin George McManus was born in Brooklyn, New York, on November 12, 1908. After obtaining a bachelor's degree at St. Andnew-on-Hudson, near Pough-keepsie, New York, and studying philosophy for several years at Woodstock College, Maryland, he went to the Philippines for three years, teaching from 1934 to 1937 at the Ateneo de Manila. Upon his return from the Philippines he took up theological studies at Woodstock College, where he was ordained a priest on June 23, 1940. Though he had served in World War II as an army chaplain in Wales, Fr. McManus was assigned by the Jesuits to postwar missionary work in the Caroline Islands. After a short stay in Truk, he was made Superior of the Palau Islands District in 1948. Four years later, he become Superior of all the Jesuit missionaries in the Vicariate of the Carolines and the Marshalls, but his residence in Koror enabled him to maintain close contact with the Palauan language.

Upon completing his term of office as Mission Superior, Fr. McManus resumed pastoral work among the Palauan people. To this end, he made his headquarters at Ngeraard on Babeldaob, from which he was responsible for such outposts as Ngchesar, Melekeok, Ngiwal, Irrai, and Ngkekklau. It was while engaged in this work that Fr. McManus died of a heart attack on September 19, 1969. The sermon at his funeral mass in Koror was preached by Fr. Felix Yaoch, a fellow Jesuit, and a resident of Palau.

Preface

The work upon which the present dictionary is based is Fr. Edwin McManus' "Word List and Grammar Notes—Palauan-English and English-Palauan." It first appeared in 1955 in Koror, Palau, where it was mimeographed and distributed on a very limited scale. The 1955 edition incorporated revisions solicited through several preliminary versions shown to interested Palauans and Americans. One such version prepared in 1949 with the assistance of David Ramarui, then a teacher in Koror, relied primarily on Dr. A. Capell's "A Grammar of the Language of Palau"<sup>1</sup> and contained an English-Palauan word list of approximately 3,000 items supplemented by a discussion of Palauan grammar. A nearly identical version was mimeographed and distributed in mid-1950 by Cecilia H. Hendricks, then assistant professor of English at Indiana University and under contract to the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands as educational advisor at Koror; this project contained a sixty-page word list followed by a ten-page set of grammar notes.

Between 1955 and 1968, Fr. McManus spent much time expanding and revising his word lists, and by 1968 he felt the need for publishing an updated version. With this in mind, he came to Honolulu for two weeks in the spring of 1968 in order to discuss problems of Palauan grammar with Clayton Carlson of the Pacific and Asian Linguistics Institute of the University of Hawaii. As a result of those discussions, Fr. McManus further revised his grammar notes and sometime thereafter sent both the grammar notes and the word lists to Georgetown University, where they were typed onto photo-ready galleys (totaling more than 400 pages) in anticipation of publication.

It is reported that the typed galleys were being mailed to Fr. McManus for proofreading at the very moment of his untimely death in September 1969. After Fr. McManus' sudden passing, the manuscript fell into a state of limbo, which lasted for more than two years.

When I came in contact with the Georgetown galleys in 1972, several problems had already arisen. First, it was not clear what was to be done with the various revisions and annotations added by Fr. Felix Yaoch of the Koror Catholic Mission, to whom the galley pages had been given in 1969 for proofing. Even more perplexing was the question of what to do about the orthography of Palauan as presented in Fr. McManus' word lists: in 1972 and 1973 the spelling conventions of Palauan were being standardized through the work of the Palau Orthography Committee,<sup>2</sup> and the resulting system differed in significant ways from that used by Fr. McManus. Moreover, my Palauan Reference Grammar, distributed in manuscript form from 1972 to 1974 and ultimately published in 1975,<sup>3</sup> utilized the spelling system agreed upon by the aforementioned committee. Clearly, the publication of Fr. McManus' word lists in their 1969 form alongside the Palauan Reference Grammar would have produced a hopelessly confusing situation in which two different Palauan orthographies were competing with each other as standard.

After an exchange of correspondence between Fr. Richard O'Brien, director of Publication, Georgetown University, and Dr. Donald Topping, director of the Pacific and Asian Linguistics Institute (now the Social Science Research Institute), it was decided in mid-1973 that under the auspices of the institute, I would undertake responsibility for the revision and publication of Fr. McManus' word lists. Every item in Fr. McManus' work was to be respelled according to the new orthography and carefully checked for accuracy of form and meaning. Lexical entries were to be expanded (or totally new entries added) when any new information as to meaning, usage, or derivational relationships was discovered. Items were to be further identified by part-of-speech affiliation and, where applicable, by morphological analysis and historical origin. All of these additions, which have hopefully served to expand Fr. McManus' dictionary of Palauan, will be discussed in detail in the Introduction.

I received the Georgetown galleys in August 1973 and shortly thereafter began the task of revision with Masa-aki Emesiochel, then a teacher at Koror High School and now the Chief, Division of Curriculum Development, Bureau of Education, Republic of Belau. The greatest debt is owed to Mr. Emesiochel for his enthusiastic and invaluable assistance during the academic year 1973/74; without his patience and skill in supplying information about thousands of lexical items, the present dictionary could never have been realized. Much gratitude is also due Oikang Sebastian, who assisted greatly in the identification and definition of numerous items important to Palauan culture—parts of the Palauan house and abai, canoe parts, terms of kinship, geographical names—as well as many varieties of flora and fauna. Paul Geraghty, a graduate student in the Department of Linguistics, University of Hawaii, was also very helpful in the early stages of data checking and provided useful suggestions about the format of the dictionary entries.

Preface

The editing of the 1977 version of this dictionary was tremendously facilitated by data-processing techniques designed by Dr. Robert Hsu and Dr. Ann Peters, both of the Department of Linguistics and the Social Science Research Institute at the University of Hawaii. They gave most generously of their time in familiarizing me with those techniques and in overseeing the manuscript as it progressed through numerous computer printouts. Without their assistance, as well as that of keypunches Dawn Reid and James Tharp, the task of organizing such a massive amount of data as is represented in this dictionary would have been nearly insurmountable.

NEW PALAUAN-ENGLISH DICTIONARY.

The lexicon of any human language is so rich and complex that the idea of producing even a reasonably complete dictionary of a language within a relatively short period of time (such as five or ten years) must certainly be considered ludicrous. On the very day that the final manuscript for the original 1977 version of this dictionary was being sent to the publisher, I discovered ten new lexical items, as well as additional facts about at least fifteen others, that could not be included in the catalog of information then destined for publication. Even at that moment, I knew that a revision of Father McManus' Palauan-English Dictionary was inevitable. While the present volume bears witness to that inevitability, I have no illusions that it, too, will someday be replaced by a dictionary of greater scope, detail, and perfection.

The current volume is an improvement over the original in numerous ways. In addition to containing several thousand entirely new entries, it includes a wide variety of revisions to an equal number of original entries. Many definitions have been expanded or corrected, especially the names of Palauan flora and fauna. The works of Helfman and Randall, Johannes,

Preface

Otobed, and Owen (see bibliography) were invaluable in assisting me to produce a more accurate listing of Palauan fish, birds, land animals, and plants.

In order to give the reader a wider knowledge of proper idiomatic usage, phrasal and sentence examples have been added to a large number of entries. A particular effort has been made to include a wide range of popular Palauan proverbs, which are used often in normal conversation and reflect much about Palauan morality, social norms, and legend. In this regard, McKnight's 1968 article "Proverbs of Palau" provided a basis for investigation without which this unique aspect of Palauan verbal tradition could not have been brought to the attention, and often delight, of readers.

Whereas the original Palauan-English dictionary used a format in which each subentry was listed on a separate line indented under its head word, the current volume lists all subwords in run-on fashion following the main entry, resulting in a much more compact appearance. Most notations within entries are obvious in their import, but the reader should be especially aware of the following:

- (1) the notation "See" points to the word or words to which a main entry is related through inflection or derivation;
- (2) the symbol < introduces the group of words from which a single, more complex word is morphologically derived, often with phonetic contraction;
- (3) the notation "syn." indicates either a synonym—a word or expression of equivalent meaning—or a phonetic variant;
- (4) the notation "ant." provides an antonym—a word of opposite or contrasting meaning.

As shown in my article "The Impact of Borrowing on Palauan," Palauan has a very rich loanword component from Japanese, English, German, and Spanish. Whereas the 1977 dictionary simply identified the source language of a foreign borrowing, the current revised edition also supplies the actual word from the source language. This is of particular interest in showing gross distortions of pronunciation or a variety of semantic shifts that occurred during the borrowing process. By convention, a loan source from Japanese, German, or Spanish has been supplemented with an English gloss if there has been a significant shift in meaning or usage in the Palauan borrowed form. To take a striking example, the loan source of Pal. hónto 'Babeldaob' is given as Jp. hontoo 'main island' to illustrate the semantic narrowing in Pal. (since Pal. hónto refers specifically to Babeldaob, the largest island of Palau). On the other hand, if a source word from Japanese, German, or Spanish has no accompanying English gloss, it can be assumed that its meaning in the original language is identical to that of the corresponding Palauan word (e.g., Jp. kyuuri, Pal. kiúri 'cucumber').

Preface

For Spanish, German, and English, the loan source is given in the modern standard orthography. For Japanese, the Romanization system used is that found in Kenkyūsha's New Japanese-English Dictionary, ed. Koh Masuda (4th edition, Tokyo, 1974), with one exception to be mentioned below.

The Kenkyūsha system presents a phonetic (rather than phonemic) spelling of Japanese syllables using English orthographic equivalents for the sounds in question. The syllables of Japanese are rendered as follows:

|    |          |          |    |    |
|----|----------|----------|----|----|
| a  | i        | u        | e  | o  |
| ka | ki       | ku       | ke | ko |
| sa | shi [ši] | su       | se | so |
| ta | chi [či] | tsu [cu] | te | to |
| na | ni       | nu       | ne | no |
| ha | hi       | hu [ɸu]  | he | ho |
| ma | mi       | mu       | me | mo |
| ya |          | yu       | yo |    |
| ra | ri       | ru       | re | ro |
| wa |          |          |    |    |
| ga | gi       | gu       | ge | go |
| za | ji [ji]  | zu [zu]  | ze | zo |
| da |          |          | de | do |
| ba | bi       | bu       | be | bo |
| pa | Pi       | pu       | pe | po |

In addition to the above, a palatal glide can occur between a consonant and a following a, u, or o, as indicated in the following syllables:

|          |          |          |
|----------|----------|----------|
| kya      | kyu      | kyo      |
| sha [ša] | shu [šu] | sho [šo] |
| cha [ča] | chu [ču] | cho [čo] |
| nya      | nyu      | nyo      |

Preface

|         |         |         |
|---------|---------|---------|
| hya     | hyu     | hyo     |
| mya     | myu     | myo     |
| rya     | ryu     | ryo     |
| gya     | gyu     | gyo     |
| ja [ja] | ju [ju] | jo [jo] |
| bya     | byu     | byo     |
| pya     | pyu     | pyo     |

Though Kenkyūsha indicates long vowels within a single syllable by a long mark (e.g., kū, gō, etc.), in this dictionary the long vowels of Japanese are written double (uu, oo, etc.) Geminate consonants are spelled double as well (tt, pp, etc.). The symbol n stands for a syllable-final nasal phoneme that assimilates to the initial consonant of the following syllable within the word (e.g., shinpai [šimpay] ‘worry’, kankei [kaŋkey] ‘relationship’) and is realized in word-final position as a nasalized version of the preceding vowel (e.g., hon [hoŋ] ‘book’, shinbun [šimbuŋ] ‘newspaper’). In Tokyo dialect, the g in syllable-initial position is usually pronounced [ŋ] word-internally (e.g., negi [neŋi] ‘green onion’). The location of the pitch accent, although marked in Kenkyūsha’s Romanization, is omitted in all Japanese loan sources given in this dictionary.

The original Palauan-English Dictionary contains a 111-page English-Palauan finder list. Whereas the format of this finder list has not been changed in this volume, the list itself has been automatically expanded to reflect the thousands of new and revised Palauan entries and their meanings. In the finder list, the arrow notation ? is used to indicate the major entry under which a particular multi-word expression is listed.

In working on this expanded dictionary, I have spent countless hours in discussion and consultation with native speakers and others dedicated to Palau and the Palauan language. For helping me bring our catalog of knowledge about Palauan to its current state, I offer my heartfelt thanks to Romana Anastacio, Masaaki Emesiochl, Theodosia Faustino, Robert Hsu, Greg Lee, Clara Orrenges, Robert Owen, Richard Parmentier, Maria Rehuher, Billal Soaladaob, David Stampe, and Donald Topping. The Bureau of Education, Government of the Republic of Palau, deserves special thanks for its strong interest and financial support.

Introduction*

1.0. ORGANIZATION OF THE 1969 MANUSCRIPT.

Fr. McManus' 1969 "Word List and Grammar Notes" was composed of three major parts—an introductory section of thirty-one pages, a Palauan-English word list, and an English-Palauan word list. Since the format of the word lists will be described in considerable detail below, these paragraphs will concentrate on summarizing the thirty-one-page introductory section. After a brief foreword in which he expresses acknowledgements to those who assisted him<sup>1</sup> and lists his major sources,<sup>2</sup> Fr. McManus presents a very short section on Palauan spelling containing four rules. His prefatory comment reflects the state of affairs of Palauan orthography at that time as well as his own position:

There is no consensus on the spelling of Palauan words. The system used in this work is proposed with some trepidation; I am sure it can be improved but I am equally sure I am not the one to make the improvements.

What stands out most in this citation is Fr. McManus' humble reservation about making any definitive pronouncements on Palauan orthography, which, as he implies, is perhaps more properly the province of trained linguists and Palauan educators. Therefore, the spelling system used by Fr. McManus was still a working one, which more or less mirrored the current spelling practices of the Palauan community.

Following the section on spelling, there is a one-page note (entitled Subed 'announcement, notice, message') written entirely in Palauan. Here, Fr. McManus takes pains to explain to his Palauan readers that he has prepared his word lists not only for Westerners wishing to study Palauan but also for Palauans who want to know English as a lingua franca for communication with other island groups of Micronesia, or as a means of introducing themselves to Western and Christian thought. The remaining paragraphs of this note discuss several rules of

Palauan spelling (some similar to, and others different from, those presented in the English foreword) and give the reader the meaning of various English abbreviations used in the word lists.

The major portion of Fr. McManus' introductory section is entitled "Some Notes on Palauan Grammar." Although these notes are loosely organized and omit certain points, they nevertheless represent considerable linguistic insight for someone who was not trained as a professional linguist. After a description of the Palauan alphabet<sup>3</sup>

While he showed a certain prejudice, unavoidable perhaps, to impose English grammatical categories on Palauan structure, Fr. McManus nevertheless treated many of the above-mentioned topics informatively and insightfully. For example, in the section on particles, he recognizes that Palauan a is not only a semantically empty marker which precedes most noun phrases and verb phrases, but also a type of conjunction meaning 'if' or 'when'; in addition, he distinguishes among the many usages of the particle or preposition er,<sup>4</sup> which is equivalent to English 'of, in, at, into, from, by, for, because of,' and so forth. In discussing compound verbs, he summarizes the complex morphophonemic changes which take place when particular verb forms are derived from simple stems. Finally, he differentiates between two types of subject pronouns—Subjective Class I pronouns (e.g., ak 'I', ng 'he/she/it'), which are used in indicative sentences (statements and questions), versus Subjective Class II pronouns (e.g., k-/ku 'I', l-/le-/lo- 'he/she/it'), which are used in negative, conditional, and several types of temporal sentences. Interspersed among the grammar notes are some useful charts listing the types of Palauan pronouns and the principal parts of representative Palauan verbs.

Following "Some Notes on Palauan Grammar," there is another section written entirely in Palauan entitled "A Few Rules of English Grammar" ("Bebil Llach el Bedul a Grammar ra Tekoi ra Merikel"). Here, Fr. McManus presents a thumbnail sketch of English grammar with the primary purpose of familiarizing his Palauan readers with English grammatical terminology. Copious examples are given of corresponding grammatical phenomena in the two languages, and the principal parts of a large number of English irregular verbs are listed. This section clearly shows Fr. McManus' concern that his work be accessible to all Palauan readers.

* A few minor changes have been made in order to make this material more consistent with the new format presented to the reader in the current volume.

2.0. THE ORIGINAL PALAUAN-ENGLISH WORD LIST.

Whereas the shorter entries in Fr. McManus' 1969 Palauan-English word list typically consisted of a Palauan word followed by an English definition, many of the longer entries were a configuration of related forms involving a main entry followed by several subentries. These subentries were usually words having a formal (i.e., morphological or derivational) relationship to the main entry or, sometimes, a semantic relationship. Fr. McManus' reasoning in presenting entries in this format was quite ingenious, since the user was able to get a unified picture of the many words related to or derived from a single word or stem.

The same purpose was served by the extensive use of cross-referencing: thus, by looking up a word or stem indicated by a cf. notation (e.g., a main entry such as meleseb 'to burn' would be supplemented with the notation cf. seseb), the reader could locate a related or more basic form. In addition to indicating the morphologically related forms, Fr. McManus' cross-referencing sometimes pointed out unrelated words of similar (but not identical) meaning, or even antonyms. Several special entries presented groups of (morphologically unrelated) words belonging to the same semantic class and referring to significant aspects of Palauan culture. These included, among others, lists of the Palauan house and abai parts, canoe parts and sailing terms, and terms involving the growth and use of the coconut.

Though organized according to basically sound principles, Fr. McManus' Palauan-English entries posed certain difficulties for the user. As noted above, for example, the cf. notation had several functions and was therefore confusing. Thus, the reader could not always be sure whether the cf. notation was leading him to a morphologically related form, a semantically similar (but morphologically unrelated) form, a near synonym, or an antonym. In addition, because Fr. McManus' entries supplied no information on the part-of-speech affiliation of Palauan forms, in longer, more complicated entries, the absence of part-of-speech labels such as V. S. (state verb), V. T. (transitive verb), N. INSTR. (instrument noun), and so forth, sometimes made it difficult for the user to understand the relationships between forms or the internal structure of complex words.

All of the possible derived forms related to a given Palauan word or stem were not always included in a main entry. Furthermore, longer entries were not internally organized according to any particular scheme—in other words, following the main entry, the subentries were listed in random order. Consequently, the user sometimes found it difficult to locate a given form and to see the interrelationships between forms.

Finally, the English translations for some Palauan words were incomplete, too vague, or overly euphemistic. The translations of verbs were hard to use because it was sometimes unclear whether a given verb was transitive or intransitive (or both), and if transitive, what the characteristic object would be. Although idiomatic expressions were listed, no illustration was given as to how they were to be used in sentences (i.e., syntactically).

3.0. THE REVISED PALAUAN-ENGLISH DICTIONARY.

In revising Fr. McManus' 1969 Palauan-English word list, I have attempted to build and expand upon the sound basis of organization described in the preceding section. The general aim has been to incorporate the information of Fr. McManus' word list into an expanded format which allows for greater clarity, consistency, and depth, and which explicitly highlights the major patterns of Palauan morphology and syntax. The usability of the dictionary has been improved by including many additional pieces of information about particular entries (see below), as well as the results of recently acquired knowledge of Palauan morphology and syntax (as reflected, for example, in Josephs' Palauan Reference Grammar). The major features of the revised Palauan-English dictionary are summarized in the paragraphs below.

(a) Each major entry has been designed in such a way that the user can see, in one unified configuration, all of the words derived from or related to a given word or stem. Thus, all entries are presented according to the following scheme:

Main Entry ...    —Subentry<sub>1</sub> ...    —Subentry<sub>2</sub> .....
                   —Subentry<sub>n</sub>

All subentries reappear as main entries and may in turn have their own subentries of particular forms that are most directly derived from or related to them. All main entries which appear elsewhere as subentries are cross-referenced to the word or stem from which they are derived. To take a simple illustration, let us observe a condensed version of the main entry for séseb 'fire':

séseb N. fire (not for cooking), ant. ngau.—sesebél N. POSS.
           —meléseb V. T. burn; set fire to.

Here, the main entry séseb (which is designated as a noun meaning 'fire') is followed by the subentries sesebél (the possessed form of séseb) and meléseb (a transitive verb derived from séseb meaning 'burn' or 'set fire to'). Now, the subentry meléseb itself reappears as a main entry of the following form:

meléseb V. T. burn; set fire to. See seseb.—sosebíi, suéseb/ sméseb, silsebíi, siléseb V. PF.—oléseb N. INSTR. matches.

In the main entry line for meléseb, the notation "See seseb" refers the reader to the stem (namely séseb 'fire') from which meléseb is derived. Occurring as further subentries under meléseb are sosebíi, suéseb, silsebíi, and siléseb (the four major perfective forms of meléseb—see below) and oléseb (a derived instrument noun meaning 'matches').

(b) For ease of reference and uniformity of appearance, the longer entries have been internally organized to a certain extent. Thus, if a particular main entry (i.e., a word or stem) has certain derived forms, these will always be presented in the following fixed order:

Introduction*

(i) A given noun stem will be followed by its possessed form (N. POSS.), then by the transitive verb (V. T.) which is derived from it, and finally by any related resulting state verbs (V. R. S.) or anticipating state verbs (V. A. S.). A typical example (simplified) is given below:

báil N. (article of) clothing; clothes; wrapping material. —bilél N. POSS. —omáil 1. V. T. clothe (someone); wrap (present, package, etc.). 2. N. skull. —bláil V. R. S. —bliúll I. V. R. S. also, covered with hair. 2. N. R. S. wrapped tapioca. —biúll V. A. S.

(ii) A given transitive verb (V. T.) will be followed by its perfective forms (V. PF.), then by any resulting state verbs (V. R. S.) or anticipating state verbs (V. A. S.) if there is no related noun stem under which these would already have been listed, and finally by any instrument noun (N. INSTR.). The following example (simplified) is representative:

melbóid V. T. pull or press trigger of (gun, etc.); turn on or turn knob of (lantern, etc.); turn up volume of. —tibidíi, tibóid, tilbidíi, tilbóid V. PF. —telbóid V. R. S. —tebidáll V. A. S. —olbóid N. INSTR. trigger; knob (of lantern, etc.).

Whereas the order of commonly recurring subentries has been fixed as indicated in (i-ii) above, other subentries appearing under a given main entry have been listed in more-or-less random order. Such items follow the fixed-order subentries and include causative and reciprocal verbs, reduplicated forms of nouns and verbs, complex nouns of various types, and numerous unusual or idiosyncratic derivatives. After the single-word subentries, relevant phrases or idiomatic expressions are given, sometimes followed by sample sentences to show how the expression in question is used syntactically. A small number of interesting sayings or proverbs have also been provided.

(c) Information on part-of-speech affiliation has been supplied for the great majority of main entries and subentries, thereby illuminating the relationships between words as well as the internal structure of complex forms. In addition, information on the part-of-speech affiliation sometimes serves to clarify potentially vague or ambiguous English definitions. The part-of-speech terminology used in this dictionary is based on that developed in Josephs' Palauan Reference Grammar, where a special effort was made to introduce terms that uniquely reflect the basic patterns of Palauan morphology and syntax, avoiding preconceived notions of language structure influenced by analyses of English. All of the abbreviations and notions designating the parts of speech used in this dictionary are listed in §3.1 below, together with brief definitions of the grammatical properties involved.

(d) All major entries have been made as complete as possible, with several exceptions: the ergative forms of many transitive verbs have been omitted, especially when their meaning is totally predictable; most action nouns derived from verbs have been excluded; and not all possible reduplicative forms have been provided.

(e) Use of the “See” notation has been restricted solely to those cases in which a given word is to be referred to a morphologically or derivationally related stem (see, for instance, the sample main entry for meléseb in (a) above). Fr. McManus’ practice of using cf. to draw the reader’s attention to a semantically similar word or to a word representing the whole of a part-whole relationship has been eliminated, and instead the special notation ‘ant.’ has been introduced to point out oppositional relationships. Such relationships are of two kinds, as described below:

(i) The word or words following ant. are to be carefully distinguished from the item in question in that they share some, but not all, of the semantic features of that item. Thus, in the main entry meleót V. T. hammer; pound or bang (on); remove bark from (tree) by pounding with piece of wood or hammer and chisel.

each of the words introduced by the ant. notation is a verb having to do with pounding or banging, but one whose meaning differs somewhat from that of meleót. For example, merót means ‘pound/smash/crush (something) against solid surface; pound out (spearhead)’.

(ii) The word following ant. is a clear antonym or opposite of the item in question. Thus, in the main entry

Introduction*

the notation 'ant. kadikm' refers the reader to kadíkm 'right hand/arm; right side', which is the opposite of katúr.

It should be noted that the ant. symbol has not been employed in this dictionary as extensively as it could have. Rather, it has been introduced primarily to point out oppositional relationships which Fr. McManus explicitly recognized in his 1969 Palauan-English word list.

The information which Fr. McManus intended to convey by using the cf. notation for part-whole relationships no longer appears in the Palauan-English dictionary, but is nevertheless preserved in the English-Palauan section. Here, all of the relevant members of a particular semantic class have been listed under English headings such as house part, canoe part, kinship term, type of fish, type of plant, and so forth.

(f) The original definitions for Palauan words and expressions have been expanded and clarified. Parenthesized material has been added to provide various types of qualifying information essential to the proper definition of a word. Note the following examples of transitive verbs:

melángēb V. T. cover; slap (face).

meláod V. T. catch (sardines) between prongs of a spear, spear (fish); comb out (lice); place (legs) astraddle.

meléb V. T. interrupt (conversation, life); kill; stop (blood).

melebál<sub>1</sub> V. T. wash or dunk (hands) in water (usually, after eating).

In each case the parenthesized noun(s) following the verb specify the type of object involved; thus, when used to mean 'slap', the transitive verb melángēb will usually be followed by the noun mad 'face'; similarly, the transitive verb meláod will almost always take the noun mekebúd 'sardine' as its object. The parenthesized phrase 'usually after eating' included in the definition of melebál narrows down the circumstances in which this particular verb is used. Some other sample entries involving parentheses are listed below; the function of the parentheses should now be self-explanatory:

chelámech V. R. S. (betel nut) chewed; (tobacco) smoked.

Introduction*

cheleléu [ʔɛleléw] V. S. REDUP. pale (usually, from fright); (land) desolate or destroyed (e.g., after typhoon, war, etc.).

chellúut V. R. S. slapped; (eyes) smarting (from wind).

klemúr N. dried tail of rayfish (used as sandpaper).

mengerengárs V. I. REDUP. (heavy substance) ooze; (light) filter down.

okáng N. food used as bait (esp., for crabs).

ongetóem N. INSTR. instrument for spreading (e.g., butter knife, putty knife, etc.).

(g) Any obscure or unknown entry found in Fr. McManus' 1969 word list has been removed from the present dictionary. In any case where the meaning, origin, or form of a particular item was dubious, a question mark (?) notation has been appended to draw attention to this fact.

(h) All inconsistencies in Palauan spelling have been eliminated, and the orthographic decisions of 1972 (cf. Preface, n. 2) have been followed. With a few minor exceptions, the orthography used in the dictionary is consistent with that found in Josephs' Palauan Reference Grammar. The entire Palauan spelling system is explained in detail in §3.2 below.

(i) A very large number of new entries have been added to the dictionary, including some major lexical items as well as numerous derived forms. Special care has been taken to supplement the entries in the following areas:

(i) words of foreign origin (especially from Japanese and English) used commonly in contemporary Palauan;

(ii) geographical terms: names of municipalities, villages, natural landmarks;

(iii) parts of the Palauan house and abai (and related activities);

(iv) parts of the Palauan canoe (and related activities);

(v) stages in the growth of the coconut (and related activities);

(vi) kinship terms;

(vi) sexual terminology;

Introduction*

(viii) names of plants, birds, and fish.<sup>5</sup>

(j) In addition to the changes summarized in (a-i) above, the entries in the present Palauan-English dictionary have been expanded to include the following types of information:

(i) loan source. That is, the foreign language (if known) from which a particular Palauan word has been borrowed. This information directly precedes the part-of-speech designation, as in the following examples:

haráu (Jp. harau) V. T. pay.

ikelésia [igelésia] (Sp. iglesia) N. church.

stoáng (Eng. store) N. store.

(ii) morphological analysis. That is, the combination of smaller words or morphemes from which a more complex, unified form is derived. This information follows a main entry or subentry, as in the example below:

Babeldáob (< bab el daob) N. Babeldaob (largest island of Palau) (lit., upper sea) (spelled Babelthuap on maps). See bab, daob.

Here, the notation < indicates that the preceding main entry Babeldáob (spelled as a single word) is derived from (or analyzable as) the three-word phrase bab el daob, meaning literally ‘upper sea’.

(iii) phonetic transcription. This information follows a main entry and is given only when the exact pronunciation of a word would not be clear from the spelling. In practically every case where a phonetic transcription is provided, it is needed to show that an orthographic e in an unstressed syllable is pronounced as the full vowel “open e” ([ɛ]) rather than as the more commonly occurring neutral vowel “schwa” ([ə]). Typical examples are the following:

deledáes [ðələðáes] 1. V. R. S. (place) cleared. 2. N. R. S. free or unoccupied time. See dedaes. —deledesél [ðələðəsél] N. POSS.

engelákl [ɛŋəlákɫə] V. T. pass by, over or through. —engeleklíi 1. [ɛŋələklíy], 2. ilengeleklíi V. PF.

Further details on this matter will be given in §3.2 below.

(iv) equivalency relationship. Except for the part of speech affiliation, this may be the only information given in a main entry. It is used to indicate that the entry in question is equivalent either to (a) a particular phonetic alternant or (b) another (unrelated) vocabulary item having an identical meaning and use. Since the latter type is very rare, only the former type is illustrated here:

chadiréng N. syn. chaidireng.

kakngódech V. RECIP. syn. kakengodech.

The 'syn.' in entries of this kind merely refers the reader to those phonetic alternants under which a fully specified definition can be found.

3.1. TERMINOLOGY AND DEFINITIONS.

In the chart below, all of the abbreviations or notations used in this dictionary are explained and defined.

GRAMMATICAL TERMINOLOGY FOUND IN PALAUAN-ENGLISH ENTRIES

| MOD. (modifier)                               | any single word which qualifies or specifies a following state or action verb—e.g. kmal ‘very’, lochá ‘perhaps’.  |
| N. (noun)                                     | a word (or part of speech) which names or makes reference to various types of things and living beings.   |
| N. ACT. (action noun)                         | a noun which designates an action or activity as an abstract concept. Action nouns are derived by prefixing o- to transitive action verbs.   |
| N. A. S. (anticipating state noun)            | a noun, equivalent in form to an anticipating state verb, derived with the suffixes -(e)l , -all , or long vowel + l . Anticipating state nouns often describe things which are supposed or expected to undergo a particular action. |
| N. INSTR. (instrument noun)                   | a concrete noun <sup>3</sup> or utensil used in performing a particular action.   |
| N. OBLIG. POSS. (obligatorily possessed noun) | a noun which has no independent form and must therefore always occur with a possessor suffix.   |
| NON-EMPH. (non-emphatic pronoun)              | a type of independent pronoun which, when used as a sentence subject, refers to a person or persons without any particular sense of emphasis or contrast.   |
| non-human                                     | referring to something which is not human—i.e., to an animal or thing.  |
| N. POSS. (possessed noun)                     | any noun consisting of a noun stem followed by a possessor suffix.  |

| N. R. S.(resulting statenoun)               | a noun, equivalent in form to a resulting state verb, derived with the infix <sup>4</sup> -(e)l- . Resulting state nouns often describe things which have undergone or have been affected by a particular action. |
| NUM. (numeral)                                      | any word which designates a number. Most Palauan numerals consist of a prefix <sup>5</sup> identifying the category of thing being counted followed by a portion specifying the actual number.                           |
| OBS. (obsolete)                                     | no longer used by contemporary speakers.   |
| ORIG.(originally)                               |  |
| PAST  | in the past tense—i.e., describing actions or states which occurred or were in progress in the past (that is, at some point in time preceding the time of utterance).  |
| PL. (plural)  | referring to two or more persons, animals, or things.  |
| PLURAL PREFIX                                       | a prefix of the form re- or r- which can be added only to human nouns to form plurals.   |
| POSSESSORSUFFIX                                 | a suffix which is added to a noun stem to designate the possessor.   |
| PREDICTIVEWORD                                  | a word ( kung ) which expresses the speaker's prediction that the action of the preceding verb is about to happen.  |
| PRO. (pronoun)                                      | a short word referring to persons such as 'I', 'you', 'he', etc.; a word that substitutes for a noun in the proper context.  |

| PRO. HYPOTH. (hypothetical pronoun)         | a type of pronoun which is prefixed to verbs in a large variety of complex grammatical constructions that involve hypothetical (i.e., unreal) events or situations.  |
| PRO. OBJ. (object pronoun)                  | a type of pronoun which is suffixed to perfective verb forms and which identifies the person or persons affected by the action of the verb.  |
| QUES. WORD (question word)                  | a word which occurs in question sentences and is used to ask about the specific identity of a person, place, thing, etc.   |
| REDUP. (reduplicated)                       | form by reduplication, a phonetic process which involves repeating (or reduplicating) part or all of a verb stem or noun, usually resulting in a significant change of meaning.  |
| RELATIONAL WORD                             | a widely used Palauan word ( er ) which functions to express various types of relationships such as location, time, possession, and the like. This word corresponds to English 'on', 'at', 'in', 'from', 'of', etc. |
| SG. (singular)                              | referring to just one person, animal, or thing.  |
| slang                                       | informal, colloquial language with a special vivid flavor.   |
| Sp. (Spanish)                               |  |
| STEM  | that part of a noun derived by removing the possessor suffix from a possessed form (e.g., by removing -ek from bilék 'my clothing', we get bil- as the stem of báil 'clothing').               |

| V. A. S.(anticipating state verb)       | a state verb formed with the suffixes -(e)l , -all , or long vowel + l which describes the state or condition that someone or something is expected to be in.  |
| V. CAUS.(causative verb)                | a special type of verb formed with the causative prefixes ome(k)- or ol(e)- . Causative verbs describe actions in which the subject causes or forces someone or something to perform a particular action or be in a particular state. |
| V. ERG.(ergative verb)                  | a verb form consisting of the verb marker me- and a verb stem which takes as its subject what would be the object of the related transitive verb.  |
| V. I.(intransitive verb)                | a verb which names an action or activity that involves only a doer, but no object or receiver.  |
| V. IMP.(imperative verb)                | a verb form used to express an order or command. Palauan imperative verb forms are prefixed with the second person hypothetical pronoun.  |
| V. INCH.(inchoative verb)               | a verb suffixed with -a which denotes an action or state that has just come about and is therefore new and unexpected.   |
| VOCATIVE WORD                               | the word e , used at the beginning of a sentence when addressing someone.  |
| V. PF.(perfective verb)                 | a transitive verb form which contains a suffixed object pronoun and which designates an action that is brought to completion or perfection.   |
| V. PRED.(predictive verb)               | a verb suffixed with -u which expresses the speaker's prediction that the action of the verb is about to happen.   |

| V. RECIP. (reciprocal verb)                 | a verb formed with the reciprocal prefix ( kai- , kau- , kaiue- , ke- , ka- , and cha- ) which describes a situation in which two or more persons or things are affecting each other in some way. |
| V. R. S. (resulting state verb)             | a state verb formed with the infix -(e)l- which is used to describe the state or condition someone or something is in as the result of a particular action.  |
| V. S. (state verb)                          | a verb which describes a state, condition, or quality which temporarily or permanently characterizes a person, animal, or thing.  |
| V. T. (transitive verb)                     | a verb which names an action or activity that involves both a doer and a receiver or object; a verb identifying an action which is done to or directed at some person, animal, or thing.  |
| 1ST PERS. (first person)                    | a pronoun ('I' or 'we') or possessor suffix 'my' or 'our') which refers to the speaker of the sentence or the group to which he belongs.  |
| 2ND PERS. (second person)                   | a pronoun ('you') or possessor suffix ('your') which refers to the person or persons addressed but not the speaker.   |
| 3RD PERS. (third person)                    | a pronoun ('he', 'she', 'it', or 'they') or possessor suffix ('his', 'her', 'its', or 'their') which refers to someone or something other than the speaker or the persons addressed.  |

Introduction*

<sup>2</sup> The term possessor suffix is defined later in this list. The general term suffix refers to a meaningful unit which is attached to the end of a word. Suffixes are bound forms—i.e., they can never occur alone as independent words but must always be connected (or bound) to some word.

<sup>3</sup> A concrete noun is one which identifies something that has discernible physical attributes and can therefore be perceived by one or more of the five senses—i.e., something we can see, hear, touch, taste, or smell.

<sup>5</sup> A prefix is a meaningful unit which is attached to the beginning of a word. All prefixes are bound forms (cf. note 2).

In many of the part-of-speech designations found in this dictionary, the above terms have been combined in various ways to give more complex terms. Some of these complex combinations are listed below:

(a) different types of obligatorily possessed nouns:

N. ACT. OBLIG. POSS.

N. A. S. OBLIG. POSS.

N. INSTR. OBLIG. POSS.

N. R. S. OBLIG. POSS.

(b) different types of noun stems:

STEM N. ACT.

STEM N. A. S. OBLIG. POSS.

STEM N. OBLIG. POSS.

STEM N. REDUP. OBLIG. POSS.

STEM N. R. S. OBLIG. POSS.

(c) different types of reduplicated forms:

N. OBLIG. POSS. REDUP.

Introduction*

N. REDUP.

N. R. S. REDUP.

V. A. S. REDUP.

V. CAUS. REDUP.

V. ERG. REDUP.

V. RECIP. REDUP.

(d) different types of intransitive verbs:

V. I. INCH.

V. I. PRED.

V. I. REDUP.

The following terms require some special explanation<sup>6</sup>:

N. ACT. Action nouns are usually omitted from the dictionary because their form and meaning are totally predictable. Thus, when prefixed with o-, transitive verbs such as those in the left-hand column give rise to the action nouns in the right-hand column:

| Transitive Verb (in imperfective form<sup>7</sup>) | Derived Action Noun |
|---|----------------------------|
| meluches 'write'                                   | omeluches 'writing' |
| melim 'drink'                                      | omelim 'drinking'   |
| menga 'eat'  | omenga 'eating'     |
| mesuub 'study'                                     | omesuub 'studying'  |

In a similar way, the prefix o- can be added to intransitive verbs, as illustrated below:

| Intransitive Verb     | Derived Action Noun       |
|------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| milil 'play'          | omilil 'playing'          |
| merael 'walk, travel' | omerael 'traveling, trip' |
| mengedub 'swim'       | omengedub 'swimming'      |

If, however, a particular action noun has a meaning that cannot be inferred from the related verb, it is included in the dictionary and defined in full.

Introduction*

N. PL. Plural nouns consist of the plural prefix re- or r- followed by the noun stem—for example, rebeluu ‘villagers, people of the village’ (from beluu ‘country, village’) and reiungs ‘islanders’ (from iungs ‘island’). When the noun stem to which the plural prefix is to be added begins with an o, this o changes to a u, as in ruchad ‘siblings/relations of the opposite sex’ (from ochad ‘sibling/relation of the opposite sex’).

N. POSS. Possessed nouns are always included in the dictionary with the third person singular possessor suffix (-el, -il, -al, -ul, -ngel, etc.), but are not usually translated (either as subentries or main entries), because their meaning is totally predictable from the related noun. Only when a possessed noun has a specialized or unpredictable meaning is it specifically translated. If no N. POSS. subentry follows a particular noun, it may be assumed that the noun is unpossessible.<sup>8</sup>

STEM N. (OBLIG.) POSS. The stem of a possessed noun is derived by removing the possessor suffix from any possessed form. The stems of optionally or obligatorily possessed nouns<sup>9</sup> are listed as main entries in hyphenated form, but without translation. The main purpose of such entries is to refer the user directly to the related independent or possessed noun, which may be different in form and therefore not necessarily predictable from the stem. Thus, we find entries such as the following:

bil-él STEM N. POSS. See bail, buil.

ched-él [ʔɛđél] STEM N. OBLIG. POSS. See cheed-.

chung-él STEM N. POSS. See chuu.

Note that the stem bil- is found in the possessed forms of two different nouns—bail ‘clothing’ and buil ‘moon, month’.

V. A. S. Anticipating state verbs, when occurring as subentries, are usually not defined because their meanings are easily predicted from the related transitive verb occurring in the same entry. Thus, the anticipating state verbs in the right-hand column describe the state or condition someone or something is expected to be in as a result of the performance of the related transitive verb in the left-hand column:

| Transitive Verb (in imperfective form) | Anticipating State Verb |
|---|--------------------------------|
| mengimd ‘cut (hair)’                   | kmudel ‘is to be cut’   |

If, however, an anticipating state verb occurring as a subentry has a special meaning not predictable from the accompanying transitive verb, a full definition is given. In addition, all anticipating state verbs occurring as main entries are translated completely.

V. CAUS. ERG. The ergative forms of causative verbs are usually not included in the dictionary because their form and meaning are predictable. If a causative verb begins with the prefix omek-, then its ergative form is derived by replacing the ome portion with mu (e.g., mukdakt 'get frightened' from omekdakt 'frighten'), while causative verbs formed with ol(e)- replace this prefix with mo- (e.g., modurokl 'get sent' from oldurokl 'send'). In general, the ergative forms of causative verbs occur quite rarely.

V. CAUS. REDUP. Since the reduplicated forms of causative verbs exhibit rather unpredictable meaning changes, they are always defined in full. In some cases, the reduplicated form involves a weakening of meaning (e.g., omekikdakt 'frighten (someone) a little' from omekdakt 'frighten'), while in others it introduces a repetitive meaning (e.g., oltetebetobed 'keep taking out' from oltobed 'take out').

V. ERG. The ergative forms of most transitive verbs are normally not listed because their form and meaning are predictable from the related noun stem and transitive verb. The interrelationships among these forms should be clear from the following chart:

| Noun Stem                        | Related Transitive Verb(in imperfective form) | Ergative Form                     |

| chelebed'whip,'spanking' | mengelebed 'hit'                                   | mechelebed 'be/get hit'       |

Occasionally, however, ergative verb forms have special meanings; in such cases, they are listed in the dictionary and defined in full.

V. ERG. REDUP. The reduplicated forms of ergative verbs are listed for some of the more commonly occurring Palauan verbs. These forms all have the specialized meaning 'easy to ...', as illustrated below:

| Ergative Form                 | Reduplicated Form                      |
|--------------------------------------|---|

| melechets 'be/get tied'       | melelechelechets 'easy to tie'         |
| mesuub 'be/get studied'       | mesusuub 'easy to study'               |
| obeu 'be/get broken'          | obebeu 'easy to break, breakable'      |

V. I. REDUP. The reduplicated forms of intransitive (action) verbs are listed for some major entries. These forms designate the continued or repeated performance of an action (often in an absent-minded way). Typical examples are listed below:

| Intransitive Verb     | Reduplicated Form                       |
|------------------------------|--|
| chemiis 'run away'    | mechechiis 'keep avoiding/sneaking out' |

| lmuut 'return'        | meleluluut 'keep returning'             |
| merael 'walk, travel' | mererorael 'walk aimlessly'             |
| milil 'play'          | mesesilil 'fool around'                 |

Introduction*

V. PF. The perfective forms of a verb are always listed under the related transitive verb as main entry. Unless an idiosyncratic change of meaning is involved, perfective forms are not translated because their meaning is totally predictable—i.e., they designate an action which is brought to completion or performed exhaustively. In most cases, four major perfective forms are listed in the following fixed order:

3rd pers. sg. object, present tense

3rd pers. pl. non-human object, present tense

3rd pers. sg. object, past tense

3rd pers. pl. non-human object, past tense

Some typical examples include the following:

melámk V. T. shave; scrape; remove bristles from (pig, etc.); fade (clothing, etc.). —tomkii, tuámk, tilemkii, tilámk V. PF.

meléng V. T. borrow; rent; hire. —longír, Imeng, likngír, liléng V. PF.

Given the meaning of the related transitive verb occurring as main entry, we can easily predict the meanings of the perfective verb forms as follows:

tomkii 'shaves it'

longír 'borrows it'

tuámk 'shaves them'

lmeng 'borrows them'

tilemkii 'shaved it'

lilengír 'borrowed it'

tilámk 'shaved them'

lileng 'borrowed them'

In some cases, the meaning of a particular verb prevents the occurrence of 3rd pers. pl. non-human object perfective forms. Thus, a verb like melád 'needle/coax (someone) to do something' only takes human objects, and therefore the 3rd pers. pl. human object perfective forms are listed instead—namely, melád V. T. needle or coax (someone) to do something (esp., by challenging his ability to do it); make (someone) feel proud about (doing something); flatter; whet or sharpen (something) against stone. See mead. —edengíi 1. [εðəŋíy.] 2. edengelterír [εðəŋeltərír,] 3. ildengíi, 4. ildengelterír V. PF.

V. RECIP. REDUP. Most reduplicated reciprocal verbs are no different in meaning from the related reciprocal verb. These forms are provided only for the most commonly occurring reciprocal verbs (e.g., kasusuub, kesuub ‘imitate each other’, kakerker, keker/kaker ‘ask each other’).

V. R. S. Resulting state verbs, when occurring as subentries, are normally not defined because their meanings can be predicted from the related transitive verb found in the same entry. Thus, the resulting state verbs in the right-hand column describe the state or condition someone or something is in as a result of the performance of the related transitive verb in the left-hand column:

| Transitive Verb (in imperfective form) | Resulting State Verb      |
|---|----------------------------------|
| mengimd ‘cut (hair)’                   | klimd ‘cut’               |
| mengesbreber ‘paint’                   | chelsbreber ‘painted’     |
| meleng ‘borrow’                        | lleng ‘borrowed’          |
| meleseb ‘burn’                         | seleseb ‘burned’          |
| melub ‘spit on’                        | telub ‘spat on’           |
| meles ‘slice’                          | deles ‘sliced’            |
| meruul ‘make, do, fix’                 | rruul ‘made, done, fixed’ |
| omurech ‘spear’                        | blurech ‘speared’         |

If, however, a resulting state verb occurring as a subentry has an unpredictable meaning, it is defined fully. In addition, all resulting state verbs occurring as main entries are fully translated.

V. S. All state verbs marked as v. s. are automatically intransitive (i.e., involve only a subject, but no object). If a state verb is transitive (i.e., if it takes an object), it is specifically marked as V. S. T. (q. v.).

V. S./I. This special notation is used to identify those few verbs which can be either state verbs or intransitive verbs. Whereas state verbs form the past tense with the auxiliary word mle, intransitive verbs derive the past tense with the infix -il-.

Introduction*

Some members of this restricted class are listed below; since they can be either state verbs or intransitive verbs, they allow both past tense forms:

| V. S./I.               | Past Tense(state) | Past Tense(intransitive) |
|------------------------|------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| chuarm 'suffer' | mle chuarm            | chilarm                      |
| dechor 'stand'  | mle dechor            | dilechor                     |
| kiei 'live'     | mle kiei              | kiliei                       |
| smecher 'sick'  | mle smecher           | silecher                     |

V. S. REDUP. Although reduplicated state verbs are derived according to several different patterns, they always show a weakening of meaning—that is, reduplication gives a state verb a more tentative or less definite quality, resulting in English definitions that include qualifying words such as 'kind of', 'somewhat', 'fairly', 'rather', and so forth. Only the most commonly used reduplicated state verbs are included in this dictionary—for example,

| State Verb           | Reduplicated Form                   |
|-----------------------------|--|
| beot 'easy, cheap'   | bebeot 'fairly easy/cheap'          |
| sekool 'playful'     | sesekool 'rather playful'           |
| metongakl 'tall'     | metetongakl 'fairly tall'           |
| smecher 'sick'       | sesmecher 'kind of sick'            |
| mesaik 'lazy'        | mesesisaik 'kind of lazy'           |
| meringel 'difficult' | mererengeringel 'kind of difficult' |

V. S. T. Transitive state verbs have the quality of transitive verbs in that they take objects and have perfective forms, but they also behave like state verbs in that they form the past tense with the auxiliary word mle. Thus, the past tense form of the transitive state verb medengei 'know' is mle medengei, and this verb has perfective forms such as medengeli 'knows him/her/it', medengelterir 'knows them (human)', and so forth.

V. T. All transitive verbs marked as V. T. are automatically imperfective (i.e., they are used to designate actions in progress or actions which have not been completed). If a transitive verb is perfective (i.e., if it refers to a completed action), it is specifically marked as V. PF. (q. v.).

V. T. PF. This notation is used to identify that small number of Palauan transitive verbs which only have perfective (but no imperfective) forms. Some items in this class are kokir 'slow (oneself) down' and oba 'have, hold'.

V. T. REDUP. The reduplicated forms of (imperfective) transitive verbs always refer to the continued or repeated performance of a particular action. Because of this predictability of meaning, only the most commonly used forms are included in this dictionary. A few examples are given below:

| Transitive Verb (in imperfective form) | Reduplicated Form                          |
|---|---|
| mengiis 'dig'                          | mengikiis 'keep digging'                   |
| omeu 'break'                           | omebeu 'keep breaking'                     |
| melamech 'chew'                        | melelemelamech 'chew constantly'           |
| melobech 'chop'                        | melelebelobech 'keep chopping'             |
| omekall 'sail, drive'                  | ombebekall 'sail/drive around'             |
| menguii 'read'                         | mengchechichuii 'keep reading, read a lot' |

3.2. PALAUAN SOUNDS AND SPELLING.

The features of the Palauan spelling system used in this dictionary are summarized below.<sup>10</sup> First, the spelling of Palauan consonants and vowels is discussed, and then various rules pertaining to the spelling of individual Palauan words are presented. Finally, the alphabetization conventions used in this dictionary are explained and a summary list of phonetic symbols provided.

CONSONANTS. The letters used to spell the consonants of Palauan words are as follows: b, t, d, k, ch, s, m, ng, r, and l.

A. The bilabial stop b is always spelled with the same letter, even though the pronunciation of b sometimes sounds like p. Because any variation in the pronunciation of b is predictable and not consciously recognized by most Palauan speakers, it is sufficient to use only the one letter.

Introduction*

When b occurs at the beginning of a word before an l or a vowel, it is voiced (i.e., pronounced with a simultaneous vibration of the vocal cords). The phonetic symbol for this sound is [b], as illustrated in the following examples:

| Palauan Spelling | Phonetic Transcription | English Gloss |
|-------------------------|-------------------------------|----------------------|
| blai             | [blay]                        | 'house'              |
| bloes            | [bloes]                       | 'shot'               |
| bai              | [bay]                         | 'community house'    |
| bung             | [buŋ]                         | 'flower'             |
| beot             | [beot <sup>h</sup> ]          | 'easy'               |
| bilis            | [bilis]                       | 'dog'                |

The voiced pronunciation of b also occurs between two vowels as in oba [oba] 'have, hold' and rubak [rubak<sup>h</sup>] 'old man'.

When b immediately precedes or follows another consonant (except l), it becomes voiceless (i.e., the vocal cords do not vibrate while it is being produced). The phonetic symbol for this sound is [p], as shown in the examples below:

|              |                      |             |
|--------------|----------------------|-------------|
| btuch | [ptuʔ]               | 'star'      |
| bsibs | [psipsə]             | 'drill'     |
| bngak | [pŋak <sup>h</sup> ] | 'my flower' |
| brer  | [prɛr]               | 'raft'      |
| tbak  | [tpak <sup>h</sup> ] | 'my spit'   |
| kbokb | [kpokpə]             | 'wall'      |

At the ends of words, too, b is pronounced as [p] as in tub [tup] 'spit' and bab [bap] 'above'.

B. The dental stops t and d must be distinguished because the difference between them serves to contrast one word with another. For instance, we have the two contrasting words tub 'spit' and dub 'dynamite'. While t is basically voiceless (phonetic symbol: [t]), d is basically voiced (phonetic symbol: [d]). Both t and d show phonetic variations which are determined by the position (or environment) in which each of them occurs.

The consonant t has two different pronunciations. When t occurs at the end of a word it is released quite strongly with an audible puff of air. This type of articulation is known as aspi- ration, and the kind of t under discussion is an aspirated t (phonetic symbol: [t<sup>h</sup>]). The aspiration accompanying a word-final t in Palauan is heard in the following words:

Introduction*

|               |                        |                 |
|---------------|------------------------|-----------------|
| liluut | [liluwt <sup>h</sup> ] | 'returned'      |
| dakt   | [ðakt <sup>h</sup> ]   | 'fear'          |
| chelat | [ʔəlat <sup>h</sup> ]  | 'smoked (fish)' |

The other pronunciation of t involves no aspiration; this unaspirated t is represented by the phonetic symbol [t]. This variant of t occurs at the beginning of words (when either a consonant or vowel follows) and within words (i.e., word-internally) when preceded by another consonant and followed by a vowel. The following examples illustrate these positions:

|                |                      |                |
|----------------|----------------------|----------------|
| tbak    | [tpak <sup>h</sup> ] | 'my spit'      |
| tmuu    | [tmuw]               | 'enter'        |
| tkul    | [tkul]               | 'its edge'     |
| teruich | [təruyʔə]            | 'ten'          |
| tuu     | [tuw]                | 'banana'       |
| rektel  | [rəktəl]             | 'his sickness' |

The consonant d has four possible pronunciations, depending on the environment in which it occurs. To illustrate these different pronunciations, it will be necessary to introduce the phonetic symbol [θ], which is equal to the first sound of the English word thin, and the phonetic symbol [ð], which is equal to the first sound of the English word then. The four pronunciations of d are summarized below:

(i). Word-initially before a vowel, the pronunciation of d ranges from [d] to [ð]; in this position, [d] usually appears in rapid, casual speech, while [ð] is heard in more careful, controlled speech. Words showing this alternate pronunciation are:

|             |              |            |
|-------------|--------------|------------|
| dub  | [dup, ðup]   | 'dynamite' |
| deel | [dɛyl, ðɛyl] | 'nail'     |

Introduction*

(ii). Word-initially before a consonant, the pronunciation of d varies between [t] and [θ]. The sound [t] tends to appear before b and m and in rapid speech in general, while [θ] occurs before k and ng and in careful pronunciation. Some words showing these sounds are listed below:

|              |                      |                 |
|--------------|----------------------|-----------------|
| dmak  | [tmak <sup>h</sup> ] | ‘together’      |
| dbak  | [tpak <sup>h</sup> ] | ‘my dynamite’   |
| dngod | [θŋoð]               | ‘tattoo needle’ |

Note that tbak ‘my spit’ (see above) and dbak ‘my dynamite’ are pronounced identically, although they are spelled differently. Because they are pronounced the same, they have identical phonetic transcriptions—namely, [tpak<sup>h</sup>] for each. This is due to the fact that t has the voiceless variant [t] word-initially (before any consonant) and d also has this variant word-initially before a b. Hearing [tpak<sup>h</sup>] spoken in isolation, we would be unable to tell which word was intended; however, looking at the written forms clarifies the matter, since tbak ‘my spit’ is spelled with the same word-initial consonant as tub ‘spit’, while dbak ‘my dynamite’ is spelled with the same initial consonant as dub ‘dynamite’.

(iii). When the consonant d occurs between vowels or at the end of a word, it is pronounced with the sound [ð], as in the following examples:

|               |         |            |
|---------------|---------|------------|
| medal  | [məðal] | ‘his face’ |
| kedeb  | [kəðɛp] | ‘short’    |
| chedil | [ʔəðil] | ‘mother’   |
| bad    | [bað]   | ‘stone’    |
| kid    | [kið]   | ‘we’       |
| eanged | [yaŋəð] | ‘sky’      |

C. The velar stop k is always spelled with the same letter, although its pronunciation shows some variation. Again, this variation is predictable and not thought to be significant by the Palauan speaker. This consonant is pronounced in three different ways, as indicated below.

Introduction*

When k occurs at the end of a word, it is pronounced with aspiration (cf. the aspirated pronunciation of t under similar circumstances). This aspirated k (phonetic symbol [k<sup>h</sup>]) is found in the words below:

|                |                        |             |
|----------------|------------------------|-------------|
| brak    | [prak <sup>h</sup> ]   | 'taro'      |
| chermek | [ʔərmək <sup>h</sup> ] | 'my animal' |
| derumk  | [ðərumk <sup>h</sup> ] | 'thunder'   |

Word-initially (before a consonant or vowel), k is pronounced as an unaspirated sound (phonetic symbol: [k]), as in the words below:

|             |        |            |
|-------------|--------|------------|
| klou | [klow] | 'big'      |
| kmal | [kmal] | 'very'     |
| kid  | [kið]  | 'we'       |
| ker  | [kɛr]  | 'question' |

This [k]-sound also appears word-internally when k is next to any consonant except l, as in skuul [skuwl] 'school' and kbokb [kpokpə] 'wall'.

Between vowels, k is pronounced with voicing (phonetic symbol: [g]), as illustrated below:

|                |            |            |
|----------------|------------|------------|
| olekiis | [oləgiys]  | 'wake up'  |
| mekeald | [məgɛalðə] | 'warm'     |
| rekas   | [rɛgas]    | 'mosquito' |

D. The glottal stop ch is really one sound even though it is spelled with a sequence of two letters. It sounds like a "catch" in the throat and is sometimes heard in American English. For example, the negative expression uh uh is normally pronounced with a glottal stop at the beginning of each of its syllables. The phonetic symbol for the glottal stop is [ʔ], as illustrated in the words below:

|                  |            |               |
|------------------|------------|---------------|
| charm     | [ʔarm]     | 'animal'      |
| chisel    | [ʔisɛl]    | 'news of him' |
| meched    | [məʔɛð]    | 'shallow'     |
| dengchokl | [ðɛŋʔoklə] | 'sit'         |
| taoch     | [taoʔ]     | 'channel'     |
| teruich   | [təruyʔə]  | 'ten'         |

Introduction*

Some special comment needs to be made about when and when not to spell words with an initial ch. There are some Palauan words which are pronounced with an initial glottal stop under all circumstances—that is, regardless of whether they are spoken in isolation or spoken following another word within a sentence. For example, words like chad ‘person’ or chull ‘rain’ are pronounced, respectively, as [ʔað] and [ʔul:ə], both when spoken alone and when preceded by another word in simple sentences like the following:

Ng chad.      [ŋʔað]<sup>11</sup>      ‘It’s a person.’
Ng chull.      [ŋʔul:ə]      ‘It’s raining.’

By contrast, there are some words that have an initial glottal stop when spoken in isolation (and enunciated strongly), but lose this glottal stop when preceded by another word. For example, words like oles ‘knife’ and omes ‘see’ are [ʔoləs] and [ʔoməs], respectively, when uttered in isolation. Note, however, that the initial [ʔ] disappears in simple sentences such as the following:

Ng oles.              [ŋoləs]              ‘It’s a knife.’
Ng omes er ngak.    [ŋoməsərŋak<sup>h</sup>]    ‘He sees me.’

As the Palauan spelling of the words in question indicates, a word is always spelled with initial ch if the [ʔ] pronunciation is maintained within sentences; by contrast, if no initial [ʔ] is pronounced when a word appears in a sentence, then no initial ch is ever included in the spelling. When there is doubt as to whether or not to spell a given word with an initial ch, it can be easily tested in simple sentences such as those given above.

E. The fricative s (phonetic symbol: [s]) sounds as if it is somewhere between the s of English see and the sh of English she. It appears in all positions in the word, as in the following examples:

sils              [sils]              ‘sun’
sers              [sɛrs]              ‘garden’
mengiis        [maŋi:s]        ‘dig’

Introduction*

F. Palauan has two nasal consonants—m and ng. The bilabial nasal m (phonetic symbol: [m]) can appear anywhere in words, as in the following items:

|              |         |              |
|--------------|---------|--------------|
| mad   | [mað]   | ‘face’       |
| melai | [məlay] | ‘take’       |
| omoes | [omoes] | ‘shoot’      |
| blim  | [blim]  | ‘your house’ |

Though represented in Palauan spelling with a sequence of two letters, the velar nasal ng is one single sound. It has two principal variants, whose distribution is specified below:

(i). Before t, d, s, and r, ng is pronounced as a dental nasal (phonetic symbol: [n]). Some examples containing the [n] variant of ng are now given:

|                  |                       |                     |
|------------------|-----------------------|---------------------|
| iungs     | [yuns]                | ‘island’            |
| merangd   | [məranðə]             | ‘(a kind of) coral’ |
| sengsongd | [sənsənðə]            | ‘stick’             |
| ngduul    | [ŋduwl] <sup>11</sup> | ‘clam’              |
| ngriil    | [ŋriyl]               | ‘place near beach’  |
| ng til    | [ŋtil]                | ‘it’s her purse’    |

(ii). In all positions distinct from those described in (i) above, ng is pronounced as a velar nasal (the phonetic symbol for this sound, which is found at the end of English words like sing, is [ŋ]). In other words, the pronunciation [ŋ] occurs before vowels, in word-final position, and before consonants other than t, d, s, and r. Some examples are listed below:

|                  |                        |                   |
|------------------|------------------------|-------------------|
| ngau      | [ŋaw]                  | ‘fire’            |
| ngor      | [ŋor]                  | ‘mouth’           |
| reng      | [rɛŋ]                  | ‘heart, spirit’   |
| bung      | [buŋ]                  | ‘flower’          |
| ngklem    | [ŋklɛm]                | ‘your name’       |
| nglim     | [ŋlim]                 | ‘drunk (up)’      |
| ng chetik | [ŋʔətik <sup>h</sup> ] | ‘I don’t like it’ |

The only exceptions to the above-mentioned distribution of the variants of ng are found among words that have been borrowed into Palauan from Japanese and English. In such words the variant [n] appears in environments other than before t, d,

Introduction*

s, and r. Some examples are nas [nas] ‘eggplant’, niziu [niʃuw] ‘twenty (used often when counting change)’, John [ʃan], and so forth. In spelling these words, Palauans use the single letter n rather than the letter sequence ng. Note, further, that, in spelling a word of Japanese origin such as sensei ‘teacher’, the single letter n is used instead of ng, even before the consonant s.

Special mention needs to be made about when and when not to spell ng at the end of one and the same word. Quite a few Palauan words end in a, o, or u when pronounced within a sentence but take a word-final ng when spoken in isolation or at the end of a sentence. This common rule of Palauan pronunciation is illustrated in the sentences below, where the words menga ‘eat’ and mo ‘go’ are spelled in two different ways:

- (1) a. Ak mo mengang. ‘I’m going to eat (it).’
b. Ak mo menga er a ngikel. ‘I’m going to eat the fish.’
- (2) a. Ng mong. ‘He’s going.’
b. Ng mo er a skuul. ‘He’s going to school.’

The rule for spelling words of this kind is simple: if word-final ng is pronounced and heard, as in (1a) and (2a), we also spell ng; if, however, no ng is pronounced or heard, as in (1b) and (2b), it is omitted from the spelling. When words like menga ‘eat’ and mo ‘go’ appear as main or subentries in this dictionary, they are cited in the shorter form.

In addition to the above, there are many Palauan words that are always pronounced with a final ng, even within sentences. Words of this type, which of course are always spelled with word-final ng, include native Palauan words like bung ‘flower’, bang ‘goatfish’, ding ‘ear’, and reng ‘heart, spirit’, and borrowed words like hong ‘book’ and belatong ‘plate’.

G. The lateral consonant l (phonetic symbol: [l]) appears in all positions in words, as illustrated below:

|              |                      |           |
|--------------|----------------------|-----------|
| lius  | [lius]               | ‘coconut’ |
| luut  | [luwt <sup>h</sup> ] | ‘return’  |
| melai | [məlay]              | ‘take’    |
| rael  | [raɛl]               | ‘road’    |

Introduction*

H. The flap consonant r (phonetic symbol: [r]) also appears in all positions, as in the following examples:

|              |                      |            |
|--------------|----------------------|------------|
| rakt  | [rakt <sup>h</sup> ] | 'sickness' |
| rekas | [rəgas]              | 'mosquito' |
| beras | [təras]              | 'rice'     |
| kar   | [kar]                | 'medicine' |

I. The consonants l and r can appear double and are spelled as ll and rr, respectively. The sequence ll differs from l in that it is held about twice as long as the single consonant. The phonetic symbolization for this long l is [l:], where the colon [:] indicates the extra length. The sequence rr differs from r in that it is pronounced as a trilled r rather than a flapped r. A trilled r (phonetic symbol:[ř]) is composed of two or three flapped r's pronounced in rapid succession. The words below illustrate the Palauan sequences ll and rr in various positions:

|                 |           |              |
|-----------------|-----------|--------------|
| llel     | [l:ɛl]    | 'leaf'       |
| kall     | [kal:ə]   | 'food'       |
| rrom     | [řom]     | 'liquor'     |
| kerrekar | [kəřəgar] | 'tree'       |
| rruul    | [řuwl]    | 'made, done' |

J. The words of Palauan can consist of different numbers of syllables, or pulses of air. It is fairly easy to count syllables: for example, kar 'medicine' has one, elii 'yesterday' has two, medengelterir 'knows them' has five, and so on. When any consonant occurs before a vowel, it is pronounced along with that vowel as part of the same syllable. Thus, in bilek 'my clothing', b is part of the first syllable and l is part of the second. When certain types of consonants—specifically, the nasals m and ng, the lateral l, and the flap r—occur before other consonants in word-initial position, they become syllabic—that is, they are pronounced as separate syllables. To indicate this syllabic quality in the phonetic transcription, a dot is placed under the regular phonetic symbol for the sound in question. Thus, in the examples below, we find [ṁ], [ŋ], [ṛ], [l̥], and [ɾ].

|                  |                          |                |
|------------------|--------------------------|----------------|
| mchiielak | [ṁʔiyələk <sup>h</sup> ] | 'wait for me!' |
| nglim     | [ŋlim]                   | 'drunk (up)'   |
| ngduul    | [ṅduwl]                  | 'clam'         |
| Imangel   | [l̥maŋəl]                | 'cry'          |

Introduction*

|                |                        |                    |
|----------------|------------------------|--------------------|
| ltel    | [l̥tɛl]                | ‘his return’       |
| rsechek | [ʀsəʔɛk <sup>h</sup> ] | ‘my blood’         |
| rtangel | [ʀtaŋəl]               | ‘is to be pounded’ |

Syllabic r ([ʀ]) is pronounced as a trilled r by some speakers and with considerable friction by others. The only exception to the analysis given above concerns the sequence ml, as in mlai [mɫay] ‘canoe’. Here, the m is not syllabic but is pronounced along with the other sounds in the word as part of a single syllable.

VOWELS. The letters used to spell the vowels of Palauan are i, u, e, o, and a.

A. The high vowels i (high front) and u (high back) occur in the following words: Words with i (phonetic symbol: [i]):

|              |                       |              |
|--------------|-----------------------|--------------|
| sils  | [sils]                | ‘sun’        |
| kim   | [kim]                 | ‘large clam’ |
| metik | [mɛtik <sup>h</sup> ] | ‘find’       |

Words with u (phonetic symbol: [u]):

|              |                      |          |
|--------------|----------------------|----------|
| btuch | [ptuʔ]               | ‘star’   |
| bung  | [buŋ]                | ‘flower’ |
| rurt  | [rurt <sup>h</sup> ] | ‘race’   |

Note that the use of the letters y and w for i and u, respectively, has been discontinued in current standard Palauan spelling.

B. The mid vowels are e (mid-front or mid-central) and o (mid-back). While the letter o (phonetic symbol: [o]) has only one pronunciation, e has two different pronunciations. The letter e represents the “eh” (open e) sound (phonetic symbol: [ɛ]) found in Palauan ked [kɛð] ‘hill’, as well as the weaker, somewhat indistinct “uh” sound (known as “schwa”—phonetic symbol: [ə]) in the first syllable of chetik [ʔɛtik<sup>h</sup>] ‘my dislike’.

The Palauan vowel “schwa” ([ə]) has a very restricted distribution, since it occurs only in unstressed syllables. Every Palauan word of two or more syllables has just one stressed syllable, with the remaining syllables unstressed. It is usually not too difficult to identify the stressed syllable in such words, since this syllable tends to be louder and stronger than the nearby syllables. For practice, compare the stressed syllable with the unstressed syllables in words like klúkuk ‘tomorrow’, mengelébed ‘hit’, ngklém ‘your name’, and chillebedák ‘hit me’. To identify the stressed syllable in all main and subentries in this dictionary, a stress mark (´) has been placed over the vowel which is found in it; this stress mark, however, is not used in the Palauan spelling system.

Because both open e ([ɛ]) and schwa ([ə]) can occur in unstressed syllables in Palauan, the use of the single letter e does not give any clue as to which pronunciation is heard. This, of course, is no problem for native speakers of Palauan, who automatically know the correct pronunciation of words in their language, but it may cause difficulties for non-native speakers. Therefore, the following practice has been adopted in this dictionary: if a spelled e in an unstressed syllable is pronounced as an open e ([ɛ]), this fact is indicated by a full phonetic transcription of the word in question; if, however, the spelled e in an unstressed syllable is pronounced as a schwa ([ə]), then no phonetic transcription is provided. The latter case occurs much more frequently than the former.

In the Palauan words below, the letter e is pronounced as an open e ([ɛ]):

|                 |           |             |
|-----------------|-----------|-------------|
| sers     | [sɛrs]    | ‘garden’    |
| ngklel   | [ŋklɛl]   | ‘his name’  |
| ched     | [ʔɛð]     | ‘tide’      |
| kedeb    | [kɛðɛp]   | ‘short’     |
| deledaes | [ðɛɛðáɛs] | ‘free time’ |
| elii     | [ɛlíy]    | ‘yesterday’ |

Note that in the first four examples, the [ɛ] pronunciation occurs in a stressed syllable, while in the last two words it occurs in an unstressed syllable.

In the following examples, the letter e is pronounced as a schwa ([ə]):

|                 |                       |                |
|-----------------|-----------------------|----------------|
| lmangel  | [lɪmáŋəl]             | ‘cry’          |
| mengat   | [mɛŋát <sup>h</sup> ] | ‘smoke (fish)’ |
| delangeb | [ðɛláŋɛp]             | ‘covered’      |
| tacher   | [táʔər]               | ‘ten’          |

Introduction*

In every case, the schwa pronunciation occurs in an unstressed syllable.

When a word ends in a sequence of two consonants, this cluster of consonants is often followed by a short schwa sound. Because this schwa is automatically added after two consonants and is therefore predictable, it does not need to be indicated by an e in the spelling, as the following words illustrate:

|                  |            |         |
|------------------|------------|---------|
| bsibs     | [psipsə]   | ‘drill’ |
| ralm      | [ralmə]    | ‘water’ |
| kall      | [kal:ə]    | ‘food’  |
| dengchokl | [ðəŋ?oklə] | ‘sit’   |

The letter o is observed in the following words:

|                |          |               |
|----------------|----------|---------------|
| ngor    | [ŋor]    | ‘mouth’       |
| oles    | [oləs]   | ‘knife’       |
| omengur | [oməŋur] | ‘have dinner’ |
| klalo   | [klalo]  | ‘thing’       |

C. The low vowel a (phonetic symbol: [a]) appears in the following examples:

|             |                     |          |
|-------------|---------------------|----------|
| chad | [?að]               | ‘person’ |
| ngak | [ŋak <sup>h</sup> ] | ‘I’      |
| alii | [aliy]              | ‘hey!’   |

D. All the vowels of Palauan except a can occur long. These long vowels are spelled simply by doubling the letter—that is, we have ii, uu, ee, and oo. Phonetically, Palauan long vowels are indeed greater in length than the corresponding short vowels, but they also have some other distinguishing features. All of the long vowels contain a gliding articulation. The front vowels i and e are followed by a y-glide (phonetic symbol: [y]) when long, while the back vowels u and o are followed by a w-glide (phonetic symbol: [w]). The list below contains words with long vowels:

|              |                      |               |
|--------------|----------------------|---------------|
| diil  | [ðiyɪl]              | ‘abdomen’     |
| ngii  | [ŋiy]                | ‘he, she, it’ |
| buuch | [buw?ə]              | ‘betel nut’   |
| luut  | [luwt <sup>h</sup> ] | ‘return’      |

Introduction*

| school | [səgowl] | ‘playful’   |

E. The vowels of Palauan can appear in various kinds of combinations or clusters. Of the two adjacent vowels, one or the other may be stressed, or—less frequently—neither may be stressed. Given only the Palauan spelling of words containing vowel clusters, it is very difficult to predict the correct pronunciation. This is because some of the (spelled) vowels are pronounced differently depending on whether or not they are stressed and whether they precede or follow the adjacent vowel. The examples below illustrate some of the many possibilities:<sup>12</sup>

|                 |                      |                 |

We must give special attention to the problem of when and when not to spell a word with a final vowel cluster ei. A good number of Palauan words which end in e when spoken within a sentence take a word-final i in isolation or at the end of a sentence. The sentences below, which contain mei 'come' and chei 'fishing', illustrate this variation in pronunciation:

Introduction*

- (1) a. A Droteo a mei. 'Droteo is coming.'
b. A Droteo a me er a blik. 'Droteo is coming to my house.'
- (2) a. Ng mo er a chei. 'He's going fishing.'
b. Ng mo er a che er a klukuk. 'He's going fishing tomorrow.'

The rule of spelling involved here is similar to that observed for word-final ng: namely, if word-final i is pronounced and heard, as in (1a) and (2a), it is also spelled; however, if no i is pronounced or heard, as in (1b) and (2b), it is not included in the spelling. When appearing as main or subentries in this dictionary, words like mei 'come' or chei 'fishing' are given in the longer form.

FURTHER RULES OF PALAUAN SPELLING. In the paragraphs below are listed various spelling rules of Palauan that were not covered in the preceding sections. Most of the rules below concern the proper spelling of individual words and phrases. Often, the decision to spell something as a separate word is based on a grammatical analysis of the item in question. Such analysis allows us to identify or isolate one and the same word as it appears in different, though related, constructions. The understanding of many aspects of Palauan grammatical structure is facilitated if a particular word is spelled in the same way in all of its occurrences, even though there might be some differences in pronunciation from one occurrence to another.

A. The relational word er, which has a wide range of English equivalents such as 'in', 'at', 'to', 'from', 'of', 'out of', 'because of', and so forth, is always spelled as a separate word. Furthermore, the word a, which precedes all verbs and nouns (but not pronouns or demonstratives) should be spelled as a separate word. The separate word er is illustrated in the following examples:

- (1) a. Ak mo er a skuul. 'I'm going to school.'
b. Ke mo er ker? 'Where are you going?'
c. Ak mesuub a tekoi er a Ruk. 'I'm studying Trukese.'
d. Ak milsuub er a blik. 'I was studying at home.'
e. Ak merael er a klukuk. 'I'm leaving tomorrow.'

Introduction*

- f. Ng hong er a Droteo. 'It's Droteo's book.'
g. Ng hong er ngii. 'It's his book.'
h. A Droteo a milil er tiang. 'Droteo is playing here.'

The word er is not pronounced identically in all the examples above. If the preceding word is vowel-final, as in (1a-c), the e of er is dropped: thus, for example, the three words mo er a of (1a) are pronounced [mora]. On the other hand, if the preceding word is consonant-final, as in (1d-h), the vowel of er is retained, giving [ər].

In certain cases, we know from the grammatical structure that we have a sequence of the form er + a + noun, even though the a is not pronounced. The following phrases fall into this category:

- (2) er a elii [εrɛlíy] 'yesterday'
er a elechang [εrɛlɔʔaŋ] 'now, today'
er a Belau [εrbélaw] 'in/of Palau'

In the examples of (2), the vowel of er is usually pronounced as an open e ([ɛ]).

The word er is spelled as a separate word in the following special expressions:

- (3) ngar er ngii [ŋarŋíy] 'there is'
m̄la er ngii [mlarŋíy] 'there was'
mo er ngii [morŋíy] 'there will be'
mochu er ngii [moʔurŋíy] 'there is about to be'

In the first two examples of (3), we find the very common Palauan verbs ngar 'be (located)' and m̄la 'was (located)'. These verbs also appear in sentences like the following:

- (4) a. A Droteo a ngar er a stoang. 'Droteo is at the store.'
b. A John a m̄la er a Guam. 'John was in Guam.'
c. A Droteo ng ngar er ker? 'Where is Droteo?'
d. A Toki ng m̄la er ker? 'Where was Toki?'

B. The plural prefix re- or r- is always spelled as part of the pluralized noun, as in rengalek 'children' (cf. ngalek 'child'), resensei 'teachers' (cf. sensei 'teacher'), and rekebil 'girls' (cf. ekebil 'girl'). As the last example shows, if the pluralized word begins with a vowel, then r- is attached instead of re-. Some sentences containing plural words like rengalek 'children' are given below:

Introduction*

- (5)a. Ak ulemes er a rengalek. 'I was watching the children.'
b. Ng delmerab er a resensei. 'It's the teachers' room.'
c. A relluich el chad a mlad. 'Twenty persons died.'
d. Ak milsterir a rua Toki. 'I saw Toki and her friends.'

C. The word el is used in many kinds of constructions to relate one word to another. Some of the most common usages are illustrated below:

(i). With demonstratives, which are used to point out people, animals, or things—for example, tia el klalo 'this thing', se el hong 'that book', aika el charm 'these animals', tirka el chad 'these people'. In all of these examples, the e of el is not pronounced because a vowel-final word precedes.

(ii). With numerals, which occur in many different series, depending on what is being counted:

- (6) ta el chad 'one person'
chimo el kluk 'one dollar'
eru el klok 'two o'clock'
teruich me a ta el chad 'eleven people'
dart el kluk 'one hundred dollars'
euid el klok 'seven o'clock'

In the examples of (6), the e of el is not pronounced if it follows a vowel, but is pronounced following a consonant, (iii). With various kinds of modifiers, which describe or qualify some other word:

- (7) elecha el sils 'today'
mekelekolt el ralm 'cold water'
bek el tutau 'every morning'
mekngit el chad 'bad person'
ungil el chad 'good person'

In the expressions of (7), the modifier precedes the modified word. As expected, the e of el is not pronounced when it follows a vowel-final word; this e, however, is pronounced after a consonant-final word. If the word preceding el ends in an l, as in the case of ungil el chad ‘good person’, then el is completely omitted from the pronunciation—that is, we have [uŋilʔað].

(iv). With various types of complex constructions:

|                              |                      |
|------------------------------|----------------------|
| (8) dirrek el sensei  | ‘is also a teacher’  |
| di telkib el kukau    | ‘only a little taro’ |
| mo merek el mesuub    | ‘finish studying’    |
| omengur el oba a taod | ‘eat with a fork’    |
| blechoel el mesuub    | ‘always studies’     |
| mo el ngar er a mlai  | ‘go in a car’        |
| omuchel el mesuub     | ‘begin studying’     |
| mo el obengkel a Toki | ‘go with Toki’       |

The correct pronunciation of el in the examples of (8) can be easily predicted.

D. Palauan has several sets of pronouns, which are short words referring to various persons such as ‘I’, ‘you’, ‘he’, ‘they’, and so forth. Some Palauan pronouns are spelled as separate words, while others are not. A brief summary is presented below.

(i). The non-emphatic subject pronouns ak ‘I’, ng ‘he/she/it’, ke ‘you’, and the like, are spelled as separate words, as in the sentences below:

|                                 |                            |
|---------------------------------|----------------------------|
| (9)a. Ke mo er ker?      | ‘Where are you going?’     |
| b. Ak menguiu er a hong. | ‘I’m reading the book.’    |
| c. Te di mililil.        | ‘They just fooled around.’ |
| d. Ng kmal ungil.        | ‘It’s very good.’          |

(ii). The emphatic subject pronouns ngak ‘I’, ngii ‘he/she/it’, kau ‘you’, and so forth, are also spelled as separate words. These pronouns occur in addition after the relational word er. Observe the following examples:

|                                       |                        |
|---------------------------------------|------------------------|
| (10)a. Ng hong er ngii.        | ‘It’s his book.’       |
| b. Ak ulemes er kau.           | ‘I saw you.’           |
| c. Ngak a sensei.              | ‘I’m the teacher.’     |
| d. Ngii a lilechesii a babier. | ‘He wrote the letter.’ |

(iii). The object pronouns -ak'I', -ii/-ir 'him/her/it', -au 'you', and the like, are written as part of the perfective verb which accompanies them. These pronouns are found in such forms as cholebedak 'hits me', cholebedii 'hits him/her/it', cholebedau 'hits you', sosebie 'burns it', and so forth.

(iv). The possessor pronouns (or suffixes) are added to nouns to indicate the owner or possessor of something. These possessor pronouns have many forms, even for the same person. They are always attached to the word indicating the thing possessed, as in bilek 'my clothing', blik 'my house', ngerem 'your mouth', mlirir 'their car(s)', sebechel 'his ability', soam 'your desire', and so forth.

(v). The hypothetical pronouns ku- 'I', lo- 'he/she/it', chomo- 'you', and so forth, are attached to the beginning of verbs in a large variety of complicated constructions. A few sample sentences containing these hypothetical pronouns (in roman letters) are given below:

- |         |  |  |
|---------|--|--|
| (11) a. | Ng diak kusuub.                         | 'I'm not studying.'                        |
| b.      | A John a diak loilil.                   | 'John isn't playing.'                      |
| c.      | A hong a longuiu er ngii a ngalek.      | 'The book is being read by the child.'     |
| d.      | Ke mekera a chomoruul a mlai?           | 'What do you do to make a canoe?'          |
| e.      | Ng chetik a Droteo a lolamech a dekool. | 'I don't like Droteo to smoke cigarettes.' |
| f.      | Ng soal a kbo kusuub.                   | 'He wants me to study.'                    |

E. Palauan has many word sequences which function to express a single meaning or idea and which often have single English words as their definitions. Although these sequences have often been spelled as single words, detailed grammatical analysis leads to the conclusion that they actually involve more than one word and should therefore be spelled as shown in the examples below:

- |      |                |                      |                         |
|------|----------------|----------------------|-------------------------|
| (12) | e le ak | [ɛlɛk <sup>h</sup> ] | 'because I ...'         |
|      | e le ng | [ɛlɛŋ]               | 'because he/she/it ...' |
|      | me a    | [ma]                 | 'and (so)'              |
|      | me ak   | [mak <sup>h</sup> ]  | 'so I ...'              |
|      | me ng   | [mɛŋ]                | 'so he/she/it ...'      |
|      | e ng di | [ɛndi] or [əndi]     | 'but'                   |

|                    |                       |                       |
|--------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|
| er se er a  | [ɛrsɛra] or [ərsɛra]  | 'when'                |
| el kmo      | [ɛlkmo] or [əlkmo]    | '[say] that ...'      |
| el ua se    | [ɛlwase] or [əlwase]  | '[say] that ...'      |
| ng diak     | [ŋdiak <sup>h</sup> ] | 'isn't'               |
| ng di kea   | [ŋdigɛa]              | 'no longer is'        |
| di mle ngii | [dimlɛŋiy]            | 'by himself'          |
| ko er a     | [kora]                | 'kind of, like'       |
| a leko (ak) | [aləgo(k)]            | '(I) intended to ...' |
| a lsekum    | [alsɛgum]             | 'if, when'            |

F. Numerous exceptions to all of the Palauan spelling rules explained above can be found in two classes of words—personal names and words of foreign origin. First of all, many Palauan personal names—for example, Francisco, Polycarp, Hermana—are borrowed from other languages and therefore contain certain sounds not native to Palauan. In spelling these sounds, it is necessary to use non-Palauan letters such as p [p], f [f], j [j], y [y], and w [w]. Furthermore, the spelling of many native Palauan names, including personal names like Yaoch and Polloi, does not conform exactly to the rules presented above.

Second, words of foreign origin—especially technical terms—often appear in Palauan speech. Since these words contain sounds not native to Palauan, it becomes necessary in some cases to use non-Palauan letters. If the word is borrowed from Japanese and contains no sounds strange to Palauan, it should be possible to spell this word only with Palauan letters, as in basio 'place' and iasai 'vegetables'. If, however, the Japanese word contains sounds which do not occur in Palauan, then it is necessary to use non-Palauan letters such as z [z] and h [h]. Words of this type are daiziob 'all right', skoziob 'airport', benzio 'toilet', hutsu 'common, usual', kohi 'coffee', and keizai 'economics'. If the borrowed word comes from English—for example, government, post office, party—it is usually spelled as in English, unless a native Palauan spelling has become commonplace through long usage, as in the case of skuul 'school'.

3.3. ALPHABETIZATION IN THE PALAUAN-ENGLISH DICTIONARY.

The words in the Palauan-English dictionary are listed in standard alphabetical order, with the following special features:

Introduction*

A. When an independently occurring word and a particular (bound) stem have exactly the same letters, the independent word is listed first—for example, uléch before uléch-.

B. A given (bound) stem precedes any other word which has exactly the same letters followed by additional letters—for example, bung- before bungáll, ngebek- before ngebekebókel, and so forth.

C. An independently occurring word precedes a hyphenated suffix spelled with the same letters—for example, ak before -ak.

D. Subscript numbers are used to distinguish homonyms—that is, words spelled and pronounced identically but having different meanings. Typical examples are bung<sub>1</sub> ‘flower’ vs. bung<sub>2</sub> ‘second of time’ and ker<sub>1</sub> ‘question’ vs. ker<sub>2</sub> ‘where?’ Subscripted words precede bound stems and any other words having the same letters followed by additional letters, as in the following:

bung<sub>1</sub>
bung<sub>2</sub>
bung-
bungáll

E. When two words are spelled in the same way but are stressed on a different syllable, the word with the stress on the earlier syllable is listed first—for example, chélučh before chelúčh.

3.4. GUIDE TO PHONETIC SYMBOLS USED IN THE DICTIONARY.

The phonetic symbols found in this dictionary are listed below, together with the corresponding letter of Palauan spelling and a sample Palauan word.

4.0. THE ORIGINAL AND REVISED ENGLISH-PALAUAN SECTIONS.

Fr. McManus' 1969 English-Palauan word list was a much less ambitious undertaking than its Palauan-English counterpart. By no means complete, it was merely designed to provide quick reference to the Palauan equivalents of commonly occurring English words. While its most useful feature was its extensive listing of Palauan flora and fauna, canoe and house parts, and the like, it showed certain inconsistencies. One major difficulty was the lack of correlation with the preceding Palauan-English word list: often, a Palauan word given as the equivalent of an English item in the English-Palauan section did not itself appear as a main entry anywhere in the Palauan-English section.

Like Fr. McManus' 1969 word list, the current English-Palauan finder list is nothing more than a selected listing of common English vocabulary items followed by their major Palauan equivalents. The various topical lists developed by Fr. McManus have been preserved under such headings as "canoe part," "house part," "kinship term," "type of tree," and so forth, and inconsistencies vis-à-vis the Palauan-English section have been eliminated. English words have been listed alphabetically as main entries, with related forms or expressions appearing underneath as subentries. When two or more English words are spelled the same but differ in meaning (and sometimes pronunciation)—for example, light (in color) vs. light (in weight) vs. light (from the sun, moon, etc.) or palm (tree) vs. palm (of hand)—they are entered as separate entries for purposes of clarity. To avoid repetition, no information about part of speech, morphological analysis, loan source, and so forth, is provided for Palauan words appearing in the English-Palauan finder list, since all of this information is found elsewhere in the dictionary.

Notes

- 1 Dr. Capell's grammatical sketch of Palauan (mimeographed 1948?) resulted from research he carried out as a member of a CIMA (Coordinated Investigation of Micronesian Anthropology) group that visited the islands between November 1947 and February 1948. At the time, Dr. Capell held the position of reader in Oceanic Linguistics at the University of Sydney, Australia. His grammatical sketch included separate sections on spelling and sounds, morphology, and syntax, as well as a phrase-book supplement containing 366 Palauan sentences.
- 2 See "Palauan Orthography—A Final Report on the Decisions of the Palau Orthography Committee" (xeroxed, Pacific and Asian Linguistics Institute, University of Hawaii, Oct. 1972). The members of the committee included Alfonso Oiterong (district director of Education, Koror, Palau) and Fr. Felix Yaoch, Francisco Morei, Huan Polloi, Timarong Sisor, Rengulbai Ngeburch, Santos Ngodrii, Hermana Remarui, Hubert Elechuus, Masaaki Emesiochel, Masaharu Tmodrang, and Sadang Ngiraecherang. The current editor and Dr. Helen Wilson, then a graduate student at the Department of Linguistics, University of Hawaii, served as consultants. A follow-up workshop was conducted in 1972/73—see Lewis S. Josephs: "Report on the Palau Bilingual Program Spelling and Grammar Workshop, Dec. 20, 1972 to Jan. 3, 1973" (xeroxed, Pacific and Asian Linguistics Institute, University of Hawaii, Jan. 1973).

Notes

- 1 Those named specifically were Robert Owen, staff entomologist of the Trust Territory; Hera Owen, executive secretary of the Palau Museum; and Clayton Carlson, researcher with the Pacific and Asian Linguistics Institute at the University of Hawaii.
- 2 Fr. McManus made extensive use of Bishop von P. Salvador Walleser's 1911 Grammatik der Palausprache (in Ostasiatische Studien, edited by Prof. Dr. R. Lange and Prof. Dr. A. Forke [Berlin: Kommissionsverlag von Georg Reimer], pp. 121-231) and his 1913 Palau—Wörterbuch: I. Palau—Deutsch, II. Deutsch—Palau (Hong Kong). He also consulted Dr. Capell's CIMA report (cf. preface, n. 1).
- 3 Fr. McManus' alphabet includes the glides w and y which are not used in the new standard orthography of Palauan. In addition, as we will see below, his rules for spelling the word-initial ch have been superseded: "Most words that begin with cho drop the initial ch at times; all these words are spelled with an initial o in this work. But suffixed (transitive) verbs that begin with cho [e.g., chochisii 'chase it'] never drop the initial ch. All these verbs are spelled cho in this work."
- 4 Fr. McManus describes er in his section on particles as well as in his section on prepositions.
- 5 Not being a specialist in botany or zoology, I have had to rely solely on the original entries in Fr. McManus' ward list and on various lists available from the Office of the Chief Conservationist, Biology Laboratory, Koror. The following have been of invaluable assistance: Demei O. Otobed, "Guide List of Plants of the Palau Islands" (mimeographed, 1971) and Robert P. Owen, "The Birds of the Palau Islands including Helen Reef" (mimeographed, 1971) (updated 1974 as Birds of the Palau Islands Including Helen, Son- sorol, Tobi, Pulo Anna, and Merir Islands). The current editor has no way of vouching for the correctness of the identifications or scientific terms borrowed from the aforementioned works.

- 6 Readers who wish to go more deeply into the grammatical concepts introduced in this section should consult the appropriate chapters of Josephs' Palauan Reference Grammar.
- 7 An imperfective verb is a transitive verb form which consists of the verb marker (usually me- or o-), the imperfective marker (-l-, -ng-, or -m-), and a verb stem, and which designates an action which is in progress and has not been brought to completion or perfection.
- 8 An unpossessible noun is one which cannot take possessor suffixes—e.g., hong 'book' and sensei 'teacher'. With such nouns, possession is indicated by a phrase rather than a suffix—i.e., hong er ngak 'my book', sensei er tir 'their teacher'.
- 9 An optionally possessed noun is one which may (but does not have to) occur in a possessed form—i.e., a noun which can appear independently as well as with possessor suffixes. On the other hand, an obligatorily possessed noun is one which has no independent form and must therefore always occur with a possessor suffix.
- 10 Much of the material in this section is taken from Josephs' 1972 "Palauan Orthography—A Final Report on the Decisions of the Palau Orthography Committee" and Josephs' 1975 Palauan Reference Grammar, chap. 1.
- 11 The dot under the phonetic symbol [ŋ] or [n] means that this sound is pronounced as a separate syllable. Further explanation is given in the text below.
- 12 For greater detail and a more complex analysis, see Josephs' Palauan Reference Grammar, p. 25.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Lewis S. Josephs, adjunct associate professor of Japanese at LeMoyne College and Syracuse University, studied linguistics as an undergraduate at Yale College and received a Ph.D. in linguistics from Harvard University. His extensive work on the Palauan language began while he was an associate professor of linguistics at the University of Hawaii from 1970 to 1979. Among his publications during that time were the Palauan Reference Grammar and, the forerunner to this volume, the Palauan-English Dictionary, which he edited. The New Palauan-English Dictionary is the result of an additional decade of work revising and expanding the earlier dictionary. Dr. Josephs has also been principal lecturer in linguistics and English at the City Polytechnic of Hong Kong and an educational consultant in New York City.
