FOREWORD

For rules governing the spelling contests in the Interscholastic League, teachers and pupils should consult the Constitution and Rules, a bulletin which is sent free to teachers upon request. Remember that the contest is in plain writing as well as in spelling, and hence it is just as important for purposes of this competition to write legibly as to spell well. Be careful to study carefully the words that sound alike but are spelled differently. A great many of these words are indicated by phrases following them in italics. If you find any such word not so marked, we shall appreciate a letter giving us the word, and the page and column in which it occurs. Pronunciation of each word should be carefully learned and practiced. Many pupils fail to spell a word because they have not learned to pronounce it properly. Be especially careful with words of more than two syllables—pronounce each syllable. Avoid slurring a syllable, as that will almost surely cause you to misspell. We often find in spelling papers the word “government”—the “n” being left out because the pupil fails to pronounce the “n”. Similarly, many other words are misspelled on account of mispronunciation. Take the list gradually, a few words at a time. Don’t try to learn it all at once. Review, repeat, pronounce, write and re-write. Only hard work will enable you to score 100 per cent and be awarded one of the League certificates for excellence in spelling. If a strange word occurs in the list, get the definition firmly in mind and then write half a dozen sentences using it correctly in each sentence. Then take the first occasion to use it properly in conversation. In this way you will improve your vocabulary. Children under ten should know how to use each word in the sub-junior list, children from ten to fourteen should know how to use each word in both sub-junior and junior lists; and pupils fourteen to twenty should know how to use each word in all three lists.
