

10-1-2017

To Our Readers

Joseph Cangemi

Tony Norman

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.wku.edu/ijlc>

Part of the Educational Leadership Commons

---

Recommended Citation

Cangemi, Joseph and Norman, Tony (2017) "To Our Readers," International Journal of Leadership and Change: Vol. 5 : Iss. 1 , Article 1.
Available at: <https://digitalcommons.wku.edu/ijlc/vol5/iss1/1>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by TopSCHOLAR®. It has been accepted for inclusion in International Journal of Leadership and Change by an authorized administrator of TopSCHOLAR®. For more information, please contact topscholar@wku.edu.

---

To Our Readers

From the Editors,

This is the journal's Fifth Volume. We believe readers will find the articles both interesting and informative.

The first article by Larry Owens, Christine Call, and Neil Vincent introduces readers to perceptions of leadership qualities of their academic leaders on the part of Social Work Faculty.

Cynthia Wilson and Casimir Kowalski explored a comparison of African-American School Superintendents and School Board members on leadership attributes that contribute to superintendents' longevity in the second article.

The third article by Michael Hillis and Frank Kline describes leadership lessons of Martin Luther King, Jr.

Different Perspectives on Leadership and Change

The fourth article by Sam McFarland introduces readers to an unsung hero and leader — Jean Henry Dunant — Founding Father of the Red Cross.

R. Wilburn Clouse, Joseph Aniello, Noel McDowell, and Terry Goodin in the fifth article gives readers an interesting and provocative view regarding the future of leadership in the United States.

Wilma King, who has been involved in higher education for more than two decades, gives readers a view of higher education leadership from a different perspective.

Joseph Cangemi
Editor

Tony Norman
Associate Editor