Challenge Made, Challenge Met For Elliott Hall Renovation

Ten major communities rallied by 60 workers raised in excess of the $150,000 needed to meet a challenge grant given to Gardner-Webb College to renovate Phillip L. Elliott Hall.

"The challenge was given in June and we met the October 15 deadline," said Hank Garrity, vice president for development. "The key to our success was the help of those who had supported the college in the past. We went back to our best givers and they provided the necessary gifts."

"We used ten major towns and cities along with individual gifts from other areas to surpass the $150,000 goal," said Evans Whitaker, development associate.

There were 205 donors to the challenge fund.

"The response was phenomenal and the turn downs were very limited," Garrity said.

"Our campus development plans must now focus on the renovation of classrooms and dormitories," G-W President Craven Williams said. "The Elliott Hall project has successfully launched this phase of our development."

The college recently renamed the Church Annex classroom building in honor of the late Dr. Phillip L. Elliott on the recommendation of the college alumni association.

"The Phillip L. Elliott Hall honors the memory of a beloved educator and a key figure in the development of the college," Williams said. "The building which carries his name must reflect the quality and elegance of Dr. Elliott, our seventh president."

Renovations planned include a new heating and air conditioning system, interior painting, carpeting, a new roof, plus a redesigned front entrance.

Elliott served as president of Gardner-Webb from 1943 to 1961 leading the school through a period of growth that was marked by the college's admission to the North Carolina Baptist family of colleges, and accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Elliott Hall, situated on the front campus, is a three-story classroom building constructed in 1950. The building served the Boiling Springs Baptist Church as an educational building before the church's move to its new location approximately a mile further south on Main Street from the G-W campus at Boiling Springs.

The building currently houses faculty offices and classrooms for several liberal arts departments, as well as the associate degree nursing program.

Carrell J. Sigmon and Gardner-Webb College President Craven Williams stand in front of the mineral collection that Sigmon recently donated to the college. The collection was gathered for 25 years by Sigmon and is located in the Withrow Science Building on campus.

Rare Minerals Displayed In Donated Collection

Carrell J. Sigmon recently donated a large mineral collection to Gardner-Webb College.

The collection was unveiled in a ceremony that took place in the foyer of the Withrow Science Building Oct. 5.

"We've been collecting them for 25 or 26 years," said Sigmon. "Our daughter, Terri, finished school at Gardner-Webb. She would carry rock and minerals to school to show her classes. She kept telling me they didn't have a good collection over there."

"I could have sold it, but by giving it to the college, maybe a student will get interested and want to go into the business," Sigmon said.

Terri Sigmon Underwood and her husband, William Underwood, were both graduates of G-W.

"The mineral collection represents minerals from all over the world. It also includes some rather rare and very spectacular specimens from North Carolina," said Dr. Leslie M. Brown, professor of (continued on page 3)

"No mystery to growth"

Record Enrollment This Fall At G-W

For the seventh consecutive year Gardner-Webb College has set a record high enrollment record.

Figures for the 1984 fall semester show that 1902 students enrolled at G-W, an increase over the previous high recorded in the fall of 1983, when 1859 students were enrolled.

"Gardner-Webb continues to grow in defiance of nation-wide predictions of decline in enrollment," said Dr. John Drayer, vice-president for academic affairs.

"There is no mystery to the growth," Drayer said. "It is the result of much hard work by our day school, graduate school, and evening school admissions staffs. An aggressive teaching and recruitment program has insured for us another very good year."

The enrollment figures reflect increases in all academic programs but significant growth in the college's deaf and blind programs as well as the Greater Opportunities for Adult Learners (GOAL) program and the Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) program.

The BSN program has grown from 15 students in 1983 when the program began, to 88 students enrolled this fall. Mitchell Community College and the Davis School of Nursing in Statesville have experienced the greatest expansion with 76 students now enrolled. The Boiling Springs campus has 12 students in the BSN program.

"In the Statesville program, the campus is growing because of the design of the program," Dr. Janie Carlton, director of the BSN program, said. "Nurses don't have to resign now to get a BS in nursing. They can work full-time and go to school, too."

"Employers in the area are working closely with their employee-students to accommodate work and class schedules," Dr. Carlton said.

The college's enrollment of deaf students increased 100 percent in 1984. Gardner-Webb enrolled 30 deaf and hearing impaired students in the fall of 1984 compared to 15 the previous semester.

"Quality of service is the reason hearing impaired students want to come to Gardner-Webb," Carol Rellick, director of the program for the deaf, said. "The students are very sophisticated and realize the importance of good interpreting, tutoring, notetaking, and counseling services as a support to their classroom activities."

"Students, parents, and professionals are pleased with Gardner-Webb and its services and are encouraging others to enroll. I expect this program to become one of the most important ones in the southeast region in the next few years."

The program for the blind and visually handicapped has grown quickly from one to seven students since the program began in 1983.

"We are met with many new challenges, to insure that Gardner-Webb College will indeed have a support service program for the blind equal to none," Nell Kilpatrick, director of the program for the blind, said.

GOAL is designed for persons with two years of college who desire a four-year degree. Classes are taught in the evening on Gardner-Webb's Boiling Springs campus and at 15 satellite centers in North Carolina and South Carolina.

"Our GOAL program continues to be well received by adult learners at 15 locations in North Carolina," said Dr. Larry Sale, assistant academic vice-president for special studies.

"We have experienced a significant increase at our Forsyth center and we have opened new centers in Richmond and Wilkes counties," Sale said. "Our faculty and staff have worked very hard to make this possible."

A Webb Of Influence

Newsweek records the scene:

"It was just before noon in East Beirut. . . . Suddenly a Chevrolet Station wagon raced through a checkpoint of concrete blocks. . . . a British diplomatic bodyguard parked in a Landrover pumped five M-16 rounds at the runaway. . . . The wagon veered sideways. Then it hit a parked car and exploded with the force of 385 pounds of TNT.

. . . . This time 12 were found dead- including 2 U.S. servicemen. . . ."

With those words, descriptive of that event, little Gardner-Webb College in Boiling Springs, N.C. was thrust onto the international stage under the glare of the international spotlight. Michael Ray Wagner, one of those two U.S. servicemen, was one of us- Gardner-Webb College, class of 1976.

The famed British preacher and metaphysical poet, Dr. John Donne, wrote these words: "No man is an island entire of itself Every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main . . . any man's death diminishes me because I am involved in mankind; and, therefore, never send to know for whom the bell tolls. It tolls for thee."

During my first year as a student at SEBTS, one of history's major events occurred- President John F. Kennedy was assassinated. Sometime during the extraordinary week that followed, the newspapers reported that when that crafty old war horse, Andrei Gromyko, signed the memorial volume at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, there were tears in his eyes. You don't have to be naive or sentimental to believe those were real tears.

Surely it was not that the Soviet Foreign Minister had any love for the young American President- the fallen Prince of Camelot. Surely it was that he recognized that in some sense he, along with every other person, was diminished by John Kennedy's death. John Donne believed that every person's death reminds us of common destinies as human beings: to be born, to live, to struggle awhile, and finally to die.

It really does not require anything as cataclysmic as the assassination of an American president to remind us of our oneness with the international community. In 1977 this campus was shaken to its roots by the tragic accident which took from us one of this world's truly beautiful people: Jenny King.

In 1980 we lost Professor Robert Trexler- a gentle, loving scholar. Then Laura Mixon, one of our classmates became a victim of cancer. In the winter of 1983 the bells tolled for our Dr. Mike Harrelson, Dr. James Hinson, and Dr. John Rast.

As we move around this world, and as we act with kindness or with indifference or with hostility toward the people we meet, we affect them in ways we never know. The life that I touch for good or ill will touch another life, and that in turn another, until who knows where the touch stops or in what far place and time my touch will be felt. Our lives are linked together. The poet Edwin Markham was right: "There is a destiny that makes us brothers. No one goes his way alone. All that we send into the lives of others comes back into our own. No man is an island!"

Deep inside you there is a self- a soul - if you will. And that soul longs above all else to be known and accepted. And there is also a similar soul in me, and in everyone else. So when you and I meet as strangers, it is good for us to remember that we need each other greatly. Marcus Aurelius, the second century Roman Emperor whom many consider a pagan, was correct in saying, "People exist for the sake of one another." And C. P. Snow, writing in Strangers and Brothers picks up the same theme as he says of his 20 closest friends: They're all different for having known me."

This kind of reaching out from one person to another, from one island to another, from one continent to another, is made possible because Almighty God reached out to us in the life of His Son. This Son who was born, who lived, struggled awhile, and finally died, set the example for us. He knew where He had come from and where he was going. Jesus Christ knew that he had come from God and would return to God; therefore, His life took on a distinct mission.

Since Jesus' life had a specific origin and a specific destiny, it had a specific purpose: loving service. Our life too has a specific origin- God,- and a specific destiny- God. Thus our purpose in life, like Jesus' purpose is clear: loving service to others. Regardless of the profession in which we are engaged to earn a living,

Gardner-Webb Remembers Michael Wagner At Service

Minnis Wagner of Thomasville, N.C. attended a memorial service to honor her grandson, Michael Ray Wagner, on the Gardner-Webb College campus.

Wagner was killed in the bomb attack at the U.S. Embassy Annex in Beirut Sept. 20.

Hazel Foster and Maude Thomas, great aunts to Wagner, and Mrs. Claude Vassey and Mrs. Delbert Humphries, family friends, also came from Thomasville to help Gardner-Webb remember a former student and friend.

The college responded to the death of Wagner, with words from the college president, the Bible, a teacher, and a friend.

"It is good to remember that we need each other greatly. Michael Ray Wagner found his own best way of serving others; he served his country," G-W President Craven Williams said. "Wagner was a man whose life had significant meaning.

"Since we are a part of mankind, the death of another human being diminishes us," Williams said. "It reminds us of our own destiny."

"Who shall separate us from the love of Christ?" were the words of hope read from the Bible by Dr. Richard F. Wilson, assistant religion professor.

"Lebanon, for a southern boy, is not a great place to die . . . it is shockingly remote," said Dr. William B. Stowe, professor of English.

"I thank God Mike came my way. It seems like only yesterday we were in Bost Gym, in the classroom, and walking the campus together," said Bill Ellis, a college friend of Wagner's and assistant basketball coach at G-W.

"Suddenly, through the death of one, little Boiling Springs and little Gardner-Webb College is part of an international event," Williams said.

The service closed with the congregation singing a patriotic hymn.

Georgia Church Honors Memory of John Rast

To honor the memory of Dr. John Wesley Rast, the 1964 Alumni class of Hapeville High School, along with Rast's family, has established a living memorial of scholarships for future Gardner-Webb students.

Dr. Rast was one of three Gardner-Webb College professors killed in a 1983 automobile wreck.

This memorial, known as the John Wesley Rast Memorial Scholarship Fund, will be administered by the First Baptist Church of Hapeville, Georgia, where Rast was a member during the early years of his life.

It is the desire of the alumni class and family that the accumulated interest of this fund be used to assist young people in their pursuit of a Christian education, their growth in the Christian faith, and their exploration into the meaning of Christian ministry.

Donations to the scholarship fund can be made by interested persons by writing to John Wesley Rast Memorial Scholarship Fund, First Baptist Church, 612 College Street, Hapeville, Ga. 30354.

Grant Helps G-W Students With Tutorial Programs

As students arrived on campus for the first day of classes, Gardner-Webb College announced today the award of a $3000 grant to the college to aid in tutoring minority and handicapped students.

The grant was awarded to Gardner-Webb by the Southern Education Foundation headquartered at Atlanta.

"This grant will further advance our efforts to enhance the educational opportunities we can offer to our students. We are pleased the Foundation has expressed such confidence in our past successes," said Gardner-Webb president Craven Williams.

The grant will be used to provide tutors to students whose testing scores or class grades indicate a need for further individual instruction in any college coursework. The college also offers a developmental studies program, established in 1977, to work with marginal students exclusively in writing, reading, and mathematics.

According to Williams the tutorial program is part of a broader effort at (continued on page 4)

our mission in life is the same, and the question we ask is the same- how am I serving others through my life and work? How am I reaching out through my life and work to others so that many individual islands which make up the world can become continents, the continents can become a Kingdom and that Kingdom become the Kingdom of God? Only through such out-reaching can a world of strangers truly become a fellowship of companions.

Trustee Presents Scholarship to Gardner-Webb College

Charles L. "Rance" Henderson, a Gardner-Webb College trustee, announced recently that he will establish an annual scholarship at the college to honor his wife, Betty Ledford Henderson.

The scholarship was announced to G-W President Craven Williams at a luncheon meeting on campus Oct. 17.

"During the 27 years of our marriage," Henderson said, "I have been the beneficiary of Betty's excellent qualities.

"She had good qualities before attending Gardner-Webb, but the Gardner-Webb environment enhanced those qualities. This scholarship is my way of showing both respect to my wife and to Gardner-Webb," Henderson said.

"Rance and Betty Henderson have been instrumental in the program and development of this college," Dr. Craven Williams said. "It is very pleasing to us that Dr. Henderson would choose this method of honoring his wife. Through this scholarship many young people will be served and the love of this couple will forever be tangibly reflected."

Mrs. Henderson is principal of Rankin Hall, the kindergarten and elementary school program for the N.C. School for the Deaf in Morganton, N.C. She is also a member of the board of directors for the alumni association at G-W.

Mrs. Henderson is a graduate of Kings Mountain high school. She graduated with an associate's degree from Gardner-Webb College in 1953. Mrs. Henderson holds a bachelor of science degree from Carson-Newman College in elementary education and a master's degree in education of the deaf from Oregon College of Education.

Henderson lives in Morganton, N.C. with his wife where he is presently the superintendent of N.C. School for the Deaf and director of North Carolina Schools for the Deaf.

Before being elected to the board of trustees, Henderson served on the G-W board of advisors. He was awarded an honorary doctorate of humanities degree from the college in 1979.

He is a member of First Baptist Church in Morganton, the Kiwanis Club, Phi Delta Kappa, Convention of American Instructors of the Deaf, National Association of the Deaf, N.C. Association of the Deaf, N.C. Council for the Hearing Impaired and past president of the Piedmont Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

The Hendersons have two children, David and Julie.

natural science at G-W.

The natural science department's use of the mineral collection will be two-fold, according to Dr. Barbara Burkett, chairman of the department of natural science.

"First, the collection will give Gardner-Webb students the opportunity to have hands-on experience while they are studying the minerals in geology classes," Dr. Burkett said, "Secondly, there is an indirect opportunity for people off campus to visit the collection. We have a better collection than some colleges who offer a geology major."

The collection is on display in the foyer of the Withrow Science Building on the Gardner-Webb College campus.

Sigmon and his wife, Naomi, live in Maiden, N.C. They have six children, Phyllis Beal, Darryl Sigmon, Pat Setzer, Judy Houser, Clarence Walker, and Terri Underwood.

The Charitable Gift Annuity

... a gift that pays the donor a guaranteed life income.

Wade H. Bryant, vice president and trust officer for the Citizens and Southern National Bank in Greenville, South Carolina, points out that the federal government encourages gifts to churches, hospitals and organizations such as Gardner-Webb College by giving tax benefits to persons who give money or securities in exchange for the charity's agreement to pay the donor (and a survivor beneficiary, if desired) a fixed income for life. The donor has the pleasure and satisfaction of making a meaningful gift to his/her favorite institution and also receiving an income for life.

Bryant, a member of the Endowment Advisory Committee for Gardner-Webb College, explained that the annual income paid depends upon the age of the beneficiary at the time of the gift. This is a guaranteed rate of return and it remains constant for life.

For more information about how you can make such a gift to Gardner-Webb College, contact Max Padgett, Development Associate, Gardner-Webb College, Boiling Springs, North Carolina 28017 (Telephone: 704/434-2361).

Area Specialists Advise In Wills And Estates

Wills and estate planning were the subjects for three seminars sponsored locally, in Iredell County by Gardner-Webb College.

Each Monday from Oct. 1-15, area specialists were on hand to provide members of the community with information about the function of wills and the uses of insurance and trusts in estate planning.

The sessions were held in the meeting room of Northwestern Bank Building in Statesville, N.C.

According to Max Padgett, seminar co-ordinator and G-W development associate, 64 people attended one or more of the three sessions. The average attendance of each meeting was 42 people, Padgett said.

"People have more discretionary income today," said Padgett, "which means they have more decisions to make about how to use it."

"Mr. Lee Fincannon spent a great deal of time assisting me with registration and helping contact the area media about the seminars," said Padgett. Fincannon is a member of the G-W board of advisors and is also the South Yadkin Baptist Association promoter for wills and estate planning. "He was very instrumental in the success of the seminars," Padgett said.

Treadmill Addition Completes Total Fitness Program

A treadmill donated to the Gardner-Webb physical education department eventually will enable students and the public to check their heart rates against a computer's prescription.

The treadmill will both check cardiovascular features and serve as an exercise program. A moving belt allows exercisers to walk at various speeds and heights. Operators adjust the belt according to individual need.

Body attachments enable the operator of the treadmill to check heart rates during the exercise.

The treadmill was donated by Dr. Gene Washburn, president of Boiling Springs Medical Associates and chief of staff at Crawley Memorial hospital.

"We will use the treadmill for modified fitness training," Dr. Robert Blackburn, chairman of the department of health education and physical education, said. "We are very excited about the treadmill in the whole concept of our program."

Dr. Jeff Tubbs and Dr. Stan Andrews, both assistant professors of health education and physical education, will operate the treadmill. Tubbs has studied the functions of the treadmill at the Aerobic Center in Dallas, Texas. Andrews has worked in biomechanics and exercise physiology at the University of Mississippi.

"The treadmill completes a total fitness program that the physical education department has been developing for students, faculty and the community," Andrews said. "A $500-600 operation will be made available, free of charge, to the public."

The department plans to combine three divisions in completing their program. The divisions are the Wells Fargo fitness trail for aerobic development, the heart/health training center which teaches diet and exercise theory, and the treadmill for practical experience in a lab setting.

"Along with the treadmill," Tubbs said, "a hydrostatic weighing apparatus will be used that determines body fat proportions which indicates the condition of the body."

Dr. Jeff Tubbs and Dr. Stan Andrews, assistant professors of health and physical education, demonstrate the new treadmill at Gardner-Webb College.

Eventually, all three elements will be processed by a computer that will emit a fitness prescription. The operators can issue a program based on the prescription for each individual.

The installation of the program will begin with faculty training in the physical education department. Within the next two years the program will expand throughout the community.

Students Meet Baptist Leaders At Executive Committee Meeting

Six Gardner-Webb students recently returned from a trip to the executive committee meeting held in the Southern Baptist Executive Committee building in Nashville, Tenn.

"As a student, I completed an assignment, as a Southern Baptist I obtained a better understanding of Southern Baptist polity, and as a Christian I made acquaintances with fellow brothers and sisters in Christ," said Kevin Kirk, a senior religion major at G-W.

Dr. Robert Lamb, professor of religion and religious studies at G-W, accompanied the students.

"This was an opportunity for the students to meet with and interview the Baptist leaders in the executive committee as well as sit in on their committee and sub-committee meetings," Lamb said.

The executive committee acts as the Southern Baptist Convention when the Convention is not in session. The committee is composed of four standing sub-committees: administrative, promotion, finance, and convention arrangements.

"Since the executive committee meets more than once a year, they can work at solving problems as they arise rather than waiting until convention time," said Teresa Campbell, a junior religious education major at G-W.

"I left the city of Nashville impressed and challenged by the example of servanthood demonstrated by the executive committee," Kirk said.

The G-W students in attendance were Kevin Kirk, Teresa Campbell, Mike Crump, Steve Richardson, Cindy Robinson and Cindy Strickland.

These students as well as others are a part of a church administration class at G-W that learns about Baptist polity by attending Baptist association meetings.

The students in the class chose between attending a meeting of the Kings Mountain Baptist Association, the North Carolina Baptist State Convention meeting in Asheville, N.C., or the Southern Baptist Executive Committee meeting in Nashville, Tenn.

G-W Nurses Pass Exams By 100%

The May 1984 graduates of the associate degree nursing (ADN) program at Gardner-Webb College recently passed the nursing board exams by 100 percent on their first attempt.

This is the first G-W ADN class to pass these exams on the first attempt as a body.

"This class had 23 students and was highly motivated," said Martha Baskin, acting ADN director. "The ADN faculty is in a continuous process of striving for excellence and is very pleased with these results."

According to Baskin, the nursing board exams are a comprehensive testing of knowledge in all areas of nursing. The test measures the person's ability to apply safe nursing and to hold the title of registered nurse.

Share A Memory With Others

Would you like to share your Gardner-Webb memorabilia with the college? We will house them and display them and care for them lovingly. the college to aid such students. "Gardner-Webb believes that one of its special missions is to assist those who have not had the advantages of others in society," he said.

Williams said that special workshops and seminars are planned for minority students to develop self-confidence and personal esteem. In addition the college hopes to establish summer internships for minority students.

"It is believed by most observers that working closely with minority professionals will provide important motivato fill in gaps of our archival collection.

We will welcome those items you would like the college to have for its archives. Send them to: Miss Thelma Hutchins, Director, Gardner-Webb College Library, PO Box 836, Boiling Springs, NC 28017.

We will welcome you to come and see what others have shared.

tion," he stated.

Gardner-Webb was the first predominantly white college in the state to accept the application of a black student, and during the 1983-84 academic year 10.4 percent of the student body are black.

The college was also among the first in the nation to make its entire educational program available to deaf and hearing-impaired students, and has restructured its campus to accommodate students who are blind, or who have other visual or ambulatory handicaps.

G-W Number One In Education Report

The number of students receiving class "A" teaching certification at Gardner-Webb College rank first among approved teacher education private institutions in North Carolina.

The N.C. Department of Public Instruction announced the news in the annual Teacher Education Report for 1982-83. The report is a summary of data collected from the institutions in North Carolina.

A class "A" certification may only be received by students who earn a bachelor's degree from a state approved teacher education institution. The state of N.C. requires that teachers have a class "A" certificate.

According to Barbara Cribb, associate professor of education and art, 43 out of 44 institutions responded to the annual report.

"We have moved from third place in the 1981-82 report to first place," Mrs. Cribb said.

Also in the top five are Lenoir-Rhyne College, Mars Hill College, Atlantic Christian College, and Campbell University.

This G-W Classroom Houses Art History

A house that has provided a home for two generations of a family will be used as a living museum this fall by a Gardner-Webb College class.

The house, a gift to the college from George Blanton, Jr. and Caroline Blanton Thayer in 1981, is now the home of G-W President Craven Williams and his family and will be toured by the college's Cultural Arts Survey class.

Blanton and Mrs. Thayer gave the home to the college as a memorial to their parents George and Ida Wood Blanton.

Cultural Arts Survey is a new class introduced by the fine arts department that presents art in the community as well as in the classroom.

"The purpose of the tour and the class," said Dr. Robert Decker, associate professor of music, "is to help students see that art is present in every day environments and that there is opportunity for aesthetic experiences daily."

The class, designed by Decker and Terry Fern, associate professor of music follows the Quality Assurance Program's (QAP) standards.

North Carolina legislature established the QAP to upgrade the standards for teachers in the area of fine arts. Cultural Arts Survey is G-W fine arts department's way of meeting these new standards.

As a part of the class, the Blanton house will be toured. Mrs. Beth Williams will conduct the tour showing works of art in their home which include a serpentine chest, an antique secretary, the bed Mrs. Faye Webb Gardner, wife of North Carolina former Governor O. Max Gardner was born in, oriental rugs and porcelain as well as numerous paintings and other furnishings.

"The house will be used because of its stately architecture and inner design in addition to the Williams' decor and furnishings," Fern said. "It was in the art exhibit experience in the class that I realized students should be exposed to not only isolated examples of art, but also actual home settings."

The two-story structure of the Blanton house is of Colonial design with a partial basement area. The house is located on a 200' x 130' lot near the Shelby town square.

The class is open to all students and plans to incorporate tours of other Shelby homes in subsequent semesters.

Two Students Combine Religious Studies and Football

Two Gardner-Webb College students are busy combining religious studies and football on and off the playing field.

Wayne Roberts and Dale Gilleland are two religion majors on the 1984 Bulldog Football Team.

Roberts, a junior, divides his time between a family, religious studies and football practice at G-W.

"Wayne is one of our most inspirational and mature leaders on the team," said Woody Fish, head football coach. "This is due to his added responsibilities of being a husband and a father along with his school work and football duties. He's a hard worker and an exceptional person."

Roberts started at tight end for the Bulldogs in 1982 and caught 20 passes for 305 yards averaging 15.2 yards per reception. He caught three of those passes for touchdowns.

Roberts transferred to Valdosta State College in the spring of 1983 for one quarter. He returned to G-W the next fall. "Gardner-Webb was the college where I started school and it's where I'm going to finish," Roberts said.

"He's doing a good job for us in 1984,"

Fish said. "He starts at split end this year and we want to get the ball to him as much as possible because of his 6-7, 225 pound size."

Roberts combines his athletic ability and Christian testimony by speaking to youth groups in the area. He is a member of Pleasant Ridge Baptist Church in Shelby, a member of the Kings Mountain Baptist Association.

After finishing his studies at G-W, Roberts says he plans to play more football. If not, Roberts says that he will possibly go to seminary but will definitely pursue a career in full-time Christian ministry.

Dale Gilleland had the chance to attend college on a football scholarship after his 1980 high school graduation. He had not made a career choice at the time, so he decided not to further his education.

Gilleland, now a freshman at Gardner-Webb, chose full-time Christian service in August 1984 as his career.

Given the opportunity to pursue religious studies, he has also decided to try a college football career.

"I always wanted to try and play college football," Gilleland said. "I've trained for it and I'm going to keep working hard to fulfill my desires."

Gilleland is an offensive lineman for

1984-85 Annual College Fund: Alumni's Stake In School's Success

By Dianne Ledbetter

The 1984-85 Annual College Fund was launched by Chairman Randy Mayfield at the kick-off meeting in September. He noted that the annual giving effort at Gardner-Webb originated with the Alumni Association and had made a major difference in the life of the college. "It is time for the alumni to again play a leading role in this important drive," Randy said.

In last year's campaign, the annual college fund provided $160,000 toward the general budget. With a budget of over $9 million we ended the year in the black by $12,000. If your gifts had not been provided we would have had an unbearable deficit. The college is depending upon the Annual College Fund to provide necessary services, and to meet the needs of our current students. We want to make sure they get the best possible education a Christian college can offer. There is no way for a church supported college to thrive without pricing itself out of reach of its students unless help in the form of gifts from alumni, friends, churches, corporations and foundations is provided.

It is quite simple to state facts and figures and spout high sounding goals and multi-thousand dollar amounts. Many educational institutions are doing this and the dollar signs flow so easily.

It is something else again to believe so strongly in the college's commitment to the Christian faith and value system that you are willing to support its quest for excellence. Meeting this goal will help enrich the lives of present students while the college is "Getting Ready for Tomorrow . . ."

To make this dream a reality, hundreds of people are needed who will dedicate time, effort and resources. To succeed, the college needs, indeed requires, the enthusiastic support and involvement of all who care for this college and its ideals.

As an alumnus of Gardner-Webb College you have a big stake in its success. As the college reaches its goal of being among the very best small Christian educational institutions, your degree becomes more valuable and meaningful.

Many have already responded to this year's request for workers. Randy Mayfield, a '69 alumnus from Greenville, South Carolina, National Chairperson for the 1984-85 Annual Fund, said, "It is a cause to which I am totally committed. I believe in small colleges and I feel there is a definite need for private Christian colleges." Others have agreed with Randy and are acting as class agents. They will be writing, calling, and visiting fellow classmates asking for their support of Gardner-Webb College. A list of these people and their classes is given at the end of this article. As you will see, there are quite a few classes that need a chairperson. You can help Gardner-Webb College by working with your class. Feel free to contact Randy Mayfield or Dianne Ledbetter of the Development Office at the College to offer your assistance.

Now is the time to move Gardner-Webb forward. The success of our institution will depend a great deal on the work and support of its alumni. Can we count on you?

Parents' Council Works On Dorm Renovations

The Parents' Council met Saturday, October 27, during the Homecoming week-end. The Parents' Council assists the college in effectively relating to the parents of all undergraduate students. Chairman John Roberts announced that this year the Council will continue its efforts to help raise funds for dormitory renovations and another project which will be announced at a later date.

The Council added six new parent couples to its membership at this meeting: Mr. and Mrs. Reece Faulkner of Morganton, N.C. (Daughter, Celina), Mr. and Mrs. James I. Groome, Jr. of High Point, N.C. (Daughter, Juliann),

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Schlagenhauf of Raleigh, N.C. (Daughter, Julie), Mr. and Mrs. Bobby G. Shelton of Alexis, N.C. (Daughter, Sherry), Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smisor of East Bend, N.C. (Son, Grant), and Mr. and Mrs. Max Smith of Charlotte, N.C. (Sons, Kelvin and Brad).

Other parents present at the meeting were: Mr. and Mrs. Quentin Rhinehart of Strongsville, Oh. (Daughter, Michelle), Dr. and Mrs. John E. Roberts of Greenville, S.C. (Daughter, Julie), and Mr. and Mrs. Talmadge Roberts of Asheville, N.C. (Son, Chris).

"Mr. Eugene Hager also helped with the seminars by helping with the plans for the Iredell county area," Padgett said. Hager is the director of missions for the South Yadkin Baptist Association.

The seminars enabled local people to discuss the options available to them with some of the area's most experienced specialists in estate planning.

The first session led by Haywood Sellers, retired vice president and trust officer for Piedmont Bank and Trust in Charlotte, involved discussions on the function of wills.

Sellers is a graduate of Wake Forest University and has done graduate work at Duke University.

He previously has conducted wills and estate planning seminars at Wake Forest, Celanese Corp., Duke Power Co. and Southern Bell Corp., and for 12 years was an instructor at the American Institute of Banking.

Jack L. Elledge, president of the Elledge Financial Planning Group, spoke at the second session on insurance.

Elledge holds a graduate degree in economics and business from Appalachian State University and is a certified life underwriter.

Adelaide and Richard Craver conducted the final session on the use of trusts in estate planning.

Mrs. Craver, who currently is vice president and cashier at the First National Bank of Shelby, holds a bachelor's degree in economics from Duke University and a law degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She has over 14 years experience in administering personal trusts, guardianships, and estates.

Craver is a lawyer with the Charlotte law firm of Delaney, Millette, DeArmon and McKnight. He practices law in both Charlotte and Shelby specializing in estate planning, wills, trusts and taxation.

He received his bachelor's degree and a law degree from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

They're counting on your help to meet your class's goal.

Jim Wiles: We'll Apply More Pressure

New Style For G-W Men's Basketball

The Gardner-Webb Runnin' Bulldogs are looking to improve last year's statistics as they start the 1984-85 season with nine returning players, five new players, and a new style of basketball.

After being picked by many to win the district championship last season, the Bulldogs fell to a 14-15 record. Three starters were lost to academics after the Bulldogs' first 10 games leaving two freshmen and one sophomore as starters.

"That year is behind us now and I certainly look forward to this season," stated Head coach Jim Wiles. "We brought in five good students—athletes and all five are capable of playing a lot this year.

"We will be without a tall center this season and it will change our style of play," Wiles said. "We will apply more pressure defensively and run more of a motion style offense."

Junior Ben Davis returns as a wing player. Davis, 6-4, is from Clio, S.C. and he averaged 13.8 points per game. Two freshmen starters from last year's second semester also are back. Duvall McCleskey, a 6-6 wing from Acworth, Ga., averaged 6.2 points per game and Grady Martin, a 6-6 wing from Athens, Ga., averaged 2.2 points per game last season.

Two other wing players joined the Bulldog team this season. Keith Pryor, a 6-7 freshman from Edneyville, N.C., was an All-State performer from 1A Champion Edneyville. He set the career record for points at his high school with 2,493 points. Jamie Johnson, a 6-3 junior from Candler, N.C., has transferred from Montreat-Anderson College. He made the All-Region 10 Junior College team by averaging 17.5 points and 11.1 rebounds per game last season.

Gardner-Webb will have four point guards. Matt Gibson, a 6-1 junior from Greer, S.C., was last year's starter and will be ready after Christmas break. Aaron Patterson, a 6-0 sophomore from Spindale, N.C., returns, and two freshman will strengthen the point position. Brad Smith, a 6-2 player from Charlotte, N.C., averaged 17 points and 8 rebounds per game last season with Independence High School. Dennis Scott, a 6-1 player from Lexington, N.C., was the top player in the North Piedmont Conference for the past two seasons. Scott averaged 20 points and 9 rebounds per game as a senior.

Six players will be fighting for the position left by two-time All-American Eddie Wilkins, now with the New York Knicks. Ron Hargrave, a 6-7 senior from Lexington, N.C., returns with the most experience. Hargrave has been spelling Wilkins for three years and could become more of a scoring threat this season. Roger Norris, a 6-5 senior from Connelly Springs, N.C., and Cliff Rush, a 6-4 sophomore from Taylors, S.C., also return.

Rick Kinney, a 6-6 senior from Marietta, Ga., will return to starter status after being ineligible last spring. Kinney averaged 7.9 points and 5.6 rebounds per game in the 10 games he played in last year. Jeff Binns, a 6-6 senior from Washington, Ga., sat out last season with a knee injury. He will be ready to play the first game in January. Joey Renfro, a 6-7 freshman from Spartanburg, S.C., joins the team after averaging 11 points and 9 rebounds for Boiling Springs High School.

Rick Kinney

Strong Returning Players For G-W Women's Basketball

The women's basketball program is in its eighth season and the 1984-85 Lady Bulldogs Team will rely on depth and quickness as they work toward a winning year.

"This is the best pre-season feeling I have had since I have been here," said Sallie Black, head women's basketball coach in her fifth season at Gardner-Webb College.

"We are going to be a more balanced club with outstanding new talent and five players returning," Black said. "We will not have to look to one individual to do all our scoring this season. I experienced my best recruiting year to date and I expect the new talent to help us immediately."

Co-captain Dina Smith, a senior forward from Columbus, N.C., returns for her final season with the Lady Bulldogs. She has been voted by her teammates as the most valuable player on the squad for the last two seasons.

Smith's statistics show why she was selected. She is currently second on the career charts in both scoring and rebounding, and if Smith continues to average 21 points per game as she did last season, she will have a shot at taking the number one position away from top G-W scorer Carolyn Dewberry.

Dewberry graduated from G-W in 1982 with 1900 career points. Smith has 1386 career points after three seasons, needing only 515 points to become the G-W all-time leading scorer.

The other returning Lady Bulldogs are Lolita Rowe, Penny Stanton, Sandra Tate and Donna Robertson. Rowe, a junior from Taylorsville, N.C., will play at either forward or center. Rowe was the best offensive rebounder on the team last season and she averaged 4.1 points per game. Rowe will serve as co-captain with Dina Smith.

Stanton, a junior from Mars Hill, N.C., will play at center and she averaged 4.2 rebounds per game last season. Stanton, 6-1, is the tallest player on the team.

Tate, a junior from Morgantown, N.C., will play at forward or guard. Tate is a good outside shooter and is extremely quick: She averaged 12 points per game

Randy Alexander

Bill Ellis

Alexander and Ellis Promoted

Two athletic staff members have been given new responsibilities at Gardner-Webb College.

Randy Alexander has been named assistant athletic director and will be working closely with Hank Garrity, athletic director at G-W.

Moving into the position left by Alexander's promotion, Bill Ellis has been promoted from assistant Bulldog Club director to executive director of the Bulldog Club.

"Randy has done an excellent job leading the Bulldog Club," Garrity said in announcing the promotion. "There is now a need to expand his services in the total athletic program. I am pleased he will accept these added responsibilities. They will in no way take away from his sports information job. Randy will also continue as men's tennis coach.

"Bill's athletic background, leadership ability and knowledge of the area makes him the ideal person to lead the Bulldog Club to new heights," Garrity said. "He knows the value of the athletic program to himself as he will continue his duties as assistant men's basketball coach."

last season. Robertson, a sophomore from Greer, S.C., is a good rebounder and will play at forward.

Seven new players will be seen in G-W uniforms this season. Angie Black is a junior forward transfer from North Greenville College. Gloria Campbell is a freshman from Gaffney, S.C. and will play at guard. Mechelle Hamilton is a freshman from Gastonia, N.C. and will also play at guard. Donna Hendrix is a sophomore from Mocksville, N.C. and will play at forward. Jackie Littlejohn will play at guard and is a sophomore from Lincolnton, N.C. Wendy Shew is a freshman guard from Traphill, N.C. Delores Young is another freshman guard and she is from Burnsville, N.C.

"This should be an interesting team," Black said. "We have the experience, quickness, and people to score and some height to hit the boards."

Join The Bulldog Club

THE PURPOSE

The intercollegiate athletic program is a major source of unity and wholesome entertainment for the alumni, student body, faculty and friends of Gardner-Webb College. The purpose of the Bulldog Club is to promote Gardner-Webb athletics through a variety of activities including the establishment of athletic scholarships.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Scholarship assistance is available to students with athletic ability and a desire to attend Gardner-Webb College. The Bulldog Club wants Gardner-Webb to compete on an even basis with other colleges that have athletic programs. By joining the Bulldog Club, members directly assist Bulldog athletes in obtaining an education at Gardner-Webb College.

OPERATION

The Bulldog Club is operated through the Gardner-Webb Athletic Office. The Assistant to the Director of Athletics at Gardner-Webb College is the staff member in charge of the functions of the Bulldog Club. This person meets regularly with the Bulldog Club Board of Directors to examine Bulldog Club business. Membership drives, socials, special events and promotions are examples of the types of business that the directors take on.

HOW YOU CAN CONTRIBUTE

A cash gift is the most popular method of joining the Bulldog Club. If you are employed by an organization that matches gifts to educational institutions, your contribution can be doubled.

Some members contribute gifts-in-kind in lieu of cash. These gifts might include goods and services such as: gasoline, courtesy cars, printing, furniture, meals for teams or lodging.
