Medical Melody

It is not known whether the Muse of music, Euterpe, is a blood relation of Aesculāpius, the god of medicine, but we suspect that some relationship exists — however tenuous. As evidence for this hypothesis, we offer the following musical compositions and an appropriate (?) medical connotation:

The Sorcerer's Apprentice (Dukas)	The Medical Student
Rounds (Diamond)	Ward Walks
Wasps (Vaughan)	Antihistamine Therapy
Ionisation (Varese)	Electrolyte Therapy
The Slippers (Tchaikovsky)	Intervertebral Disks
Undertow (Schumann)	Trichophytosis
Mass of Life (Delius)	Autopsy
John Brown's Body (Bishop)	Tissue Culture
Surprise Symphony (Haydn)	Clinicopathological Conference
Academic Festival Overture (Brahms)	Graduation
Trial by Jury (Gilbert and Sullivan)	Practice
Hunt Symphony (Haydn)	Consultation
In the Beginning (Copland)	Obstetrics
Mother Goose Suite (Ravel)	Pediatrics
Enigma Variations (Elgar)	Internal Medicine
The Lost Chord (Sullivan)	Laryngology
Night on Bald Mountain (Moussorgsky)	Dermatology
Sleeping Beauty Ballet (Tchiakovsky)	Anesthesiology
Fantastic Symphony (Berlioz)	Psychiatry
Fancy Free (Bernstein)	Psychoanalysis
Nutcracker Suite (Tchiakovsky)	Neurosurgery
Pomp and Circumstance (Elgar)	Some Other Man's Specialty
Yeoman of the Guard (Gilbert and Sullivan)	Nursing Staff
